Answer for yourself: If these instructions and commands for the "non-Jew" in his relationship with God were made long after the time allotted by the New Testament for the death of this Jesus then should they not apply to the "non-Jewish" world today and especially for the Christian Gentile today? How can we change this decree, which by the way is taught by Judaism today for the "non-Jewish" world, and think we are following in the path of these disciples of Christ? We simply cannot!

The sad part about the whole matter is that few Christians today know the history of their faith and how the Jerusalem Apostles established rigid conditions for Gentiles to become part of "believing Israel", the people of God. And this inclusion of "non-Jews" in the people of God was done without their required conversion to Judaism and the enforced circumcision of adult males as had been the case previously to this momentous decision we find recorded for us in Acts 15 in our Bibles. Today, lacking such information and knowledge, which often goes unnoticed in the New Testament, we as mainline Christians and followers of this Jewish Jesus accept what is being done and taught by our denominations as being the "standard" and "God's will" for us never considering or thinking that we could "far from the mark" intended for our path to God, let alone if we want to be a true follower of this Jesus. The "status quo" of Gentile Christianity has been tragically and erroneously accepted as the norm for a "non-Jewish" seeker after God in Christianity and termed "God's will" while all the time a short serious study of this New Testament along with unbiased historical analysis of the events contained within it will provide a completely different picture to the serious student of what this God really desires from the "non-Jewish" world. Behind our "status quo" of the Christian world and their religious dogmas and doctrines lies the sinister footprints of an antisemitic and "Jew hating" Roman Church empowered by Constantine in its earliest centuries who changed "the faith once given to the saints" and which was followed up by the forging of religious texts to give such actions the sanction of presumed "orthodoxy". We call this forgery today the Christian Bible. Now hear clearly what I say. Understand "truth" lies in this New Testament in many places but not all that it contains is "truthful" and thus the need for serious scholarly study today to separate this "truth" from "fiction". Your task as a Christian today is to become competent to discern the difference before you die and meet this God face to face.

Answer for yourself: We have to answer a lot of big questions in our lives and perhaps the biggest is if we want to know "the truth" about God and our intended relationship to Him before we die when then it will be too late to do anything about it if we are currently disobedient to this Creator and not know it because we have been lead to believe "untruths" and follow them throughout our lives in reading this Bible Rome gave us. With this in mind, I have prepared a detailed examination that will not only challenge you and your typical Christian religious belief system, but hopefully stimulate your repentance in "key" areas of belief and conduct. May God bless your efforts in studying His Word to show yourself approved. Let us begin to come to these truths of which I speak.

Answer for yourself: Was the Book of Acts written following the death of this Jesus as depicted in the New Testament? Of course it was and then does it stand to reason that the truths found, when backed up by historical analysis within the book, must therefore apply to the Christian and the Christian Church today? They should! Do we dare think that the Jerusalem Church went out and "did it wrong" and what does that say about these followers of this Jewish Christ let alone our Christian lives and our cherished Gentile Christian doctrines that can be found today when examined and compared to be contradictory to what these Jewish followers of this Jewish Christ taught way back then as the "will of God" for the "non-Jews" of the world? Who is right, them or we today? Why read these passages in this New Testament if we don't understand them or desire to come to the truth behind them? And what should we do when we do learn what lies behind them when it contradicts our religious experience in our Churches today? Ever heard of repentance which brings the Kingdom of God near to you? This is the key dear one; knowledge and repentance leads to God!

Answer for yourself: When we read that the followers of the Jewish Christ were commanded to go into all the world and "teach them (Gentiles) to observe those things I have commanded you," can we say for certain that one of "those things" which was to be taught and obeyed by these "non-Jews" and Gentiles were the truths contained within the decisions and teachings that came out of the first "church council" in 50 C.E. which laid the foundation for what was "necessary" for Gentiles to be "saved" (Acts 15:28) and also be "included in the Jesus Messianic Movement and Jesus' church"? Most assuredly we can and must!

Answer for yourself: What are these things that "were commanded" of the followers of this Jewish Christ? Could they be in part what was also commanded of the "non-Jews" in Acts 15 and which they also wrote in the letters they later sent to the Churches of Asia, Minor, in Acts 16 in order to "strengthen the Gentile churches" there?

Acts 16:4-5 4 And as they went through the cities, they delivered them the decrees (the ruling of James and the Church in Acts 15 making "necessary" that the non-Jews keep and observe the Laws and Covenant of Noah) for to keep, that were ordained of the apostles and elders which were at

Jerusalem. 5 And so were the churches established in the faith, and increased in number daily. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that these things "commanded" of which I speak are Laws and Commandments contained in what we call the Covenant of Noah today otherwise known as the 66 Laws of Noah?

Answer for yourself: As you read the following article, I ask you to be honest in asking yourself that if Gentiles like you and me are to be "taught to obey those things Jesus commanded," then why is it that you have been in church your whole life and never were acquainted with nor taught to keep and observe the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah let along the other things that you will discover in these articles from Bet Emet Ministries?

You must answer that for yourself.

Answer for yourself: Is it of the remotest possibility that you, after finishing these articles, will come to the inescapable conclusion that you have not been taught the truths concerning many of the foundations of what your faith in God should consist of as commanded by the Jerusalem Church which was not only held in 50 C.E. but which set the very foundations for taking the Gospel and the message of God to the Gentile world; literally to people like you and me?

John 4:22 22 Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: When was the last or first time a Rabbi or Jew taught you about God? Is not "Salvation of the Jews" as we read? Most assuredly!

So often many mistakenly believe that the "cross of Christ" or the death of this "Jesus" as described in the New Testament given us by Rome altered "this or that". Failing to realize that we are reading "literally" today documents written almost 2000 years ago when reading of this "death of the Christ" we fail to ever think that the understanding of this "death of Christ" might have carried a completely different meaning in this day. One only has to read just one article to see this as I show the readers that in Acts 22 it appears beyond any question that this same Jerusalem Church, this same James, and this same Paul continued to bring "blood sacrifices" and "atonement offerings" long after this death of this "Jesus" recorded for us in our New Testaments which is supposed to be the final atonement for mankind's sins. Evidently these Jewish followers of this Jewish Christ did not believe what we are taught today and this idea of Jesus' death being the final sacrifice is not the case as you can see if you find the courage to read the article in question. Failing to understand what we read in our Christian Bibles correctly we mistakenly lean on our own inadequate understanding of the Sacrificial System and Judaism or other's erroneous teachings in arriving at conclusions that often set the course of our beliefs, conduct and our behavior which CANNOT be supported by comparison with many Scriptures and historical facts and evidences that "contradict" such conclusions. Therefore, in light of such available evidences today that can be found in serious study the only conclusion we can arrive at after such serious study is that our beliefs, faith, behavior and conduct cannot be RIGHT when seen to be contradicted by other conflicting Scriptures and accurate in-depth historical analysis along with archeological evidences available to us today.

Having done such serious studies for the last 20 years then is a given that we cannot be sure that we are accepted by God if our lives and beliefs do not line up with these abundant evidences and facts that lay outside this "one" book given us by an antisemitic Rome in the 4th century. The evidence of what I speak should confirm the New Testament as being the "truth" in all parts if "infallible, inerrant, and inspired" but these facts and evidences does just the opposite. Unknowingly, much of the traditional Christian's reasoning violates many Scriptures of which I speak and such in-depth historical analysis brings into question much of what we are taught today by normative Christianity and often such reasoning on our parts, when later conceived in actions and well intentioned deeds, are often defined by the Bible as sin and we don't seem to notice it or recognize it due to prior indoctrination of "untruths" which we naively accepted without question. It is time we took responsibility for what we believe and what we allow ourselves to be taught. The cause of such is false teaching can be blamed not only on our falsified Christian texts and Bibles but the gross lack of in-depth study by our Christian leaders who accept this "status quo"; never reading a scholarly book or outside evidences from sources not on the top 10 list at your corner Christian Book Store. The bottom line is that the Christian world, for the most part, are fed "milk" instead of "meat." Thus lies the problem and the reason we are being "dumbed down" in our pews Sunday after Sunday where we are like those of whom we read in our good book which speaks of "bad spiritual leaders":

Matt 15:14 14 Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. (KJV)

Let us begin our study with foundational truths which we find surprisingly in the Book of Hebrews, a book full of antisemitism but yet truth shines in chapter 5:

Hebr 5:12 (KJV) For <1063> when for <1223> the time <5550> ye ought <3784> (5723) to be <1511> (5750) teachers <1320>, ye have <2192> (5719) need <5532> that one teach <1321> (5721) you <5209> again <3825> which <5101> [be] the first <746> principles <4747> of the oracles <3051> of God <2316>; and <2532> are become such as <1096> (5754) have <2192> (5723) need <5532> of milk <1051>, and <2532> not <3756> of strong <4731> meat <5160>. 13 For <1063> every one <3956> that useth <3348> (5723) milk <1051> [is] unskillful <552> in the word <3056> of righteousness <1343>: for <1063> he is <2076> (5748) a babe <3516>. {is skillful: Gr. hath no experience} 14 But <1161> strong <4731> meat <5160> belongeth to them that are <2076> (5748) of full age <5046>, [even] those who by reason <1223> of use <1838> have <2192> (5723) their senses <145> exercised <1128> (5772) to <4314> discern <1253> both <5037> good <2570> and <2532> evil <2556>. {of full age: or, perfect} {use: or, an habit, or, perfection}

Let us examine the Greek word for "teachers":

Thayer's Greek Lexicon 1320

1320 didaskalos {did-as'-kal-os} from 1321; TDNT - 2:148,161; n m AV - Master (Yeshua) 40, teacher 10, master 7, doctor 1; 58

- 1) a teacher
- 2) in the NT one who teaches concerning the things of God, and the duties of man!!!!!!
  - 1a) one who is fitted to teach, or thinks himself so
  - 1b) the teachers of the Jewish religion (did you see this!!!!!!!!!!!!)
  - 1c) of those who by their great power as teachers draw crowds around them i.e. John the Baptist, Jesus
  - 1d) by preeminence used of Jesus by himself, as one who showed men the way of salvation
  - 1e) of the apostles, and of Paul
  - 1f) of those who in the religious assemblies of the Christians, undertook the work of teaching, with the special assistance of the Holy Spirit
  - 1g) of false teachers among Christians

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that this Christian reference has the courage to say that this word for teachers, when used in the context of reaching out to the Gentile world, has the connotation of teaching the world "the Jewish religion"? What does Roman Christianity have to do with the "Jewish religion"? Not much. Did the the author of Hebrews tell us that only hired preachers are to teach the things of God to others? No. It is the responsibility of all of us to share the truth but inferred is the idea that you have it in the first place.

Answer for yourself: Did the author of Hebrews tell us that we (all) are to teach the "duties" of man toward God to others? Yes. That means we all have to accept our individual personal responsibility to become mature in handling the Word of God; it is not just the responsibility of Pastors and Teachers but all of God's children. This means it is your duty to not just go to Church but study hard this Word of God to discern these truths from the Roman errors in it as well.

Answer for yourself: Could it be possible that we as adult Christians could be mistaken about much of the Bible and many interpretations of its various passages because of the lack of personal in-depth Bible study and by default have failed to teach others correctly because we were allowed ourselves to be taught in error by spiritual leaders we trusted who were just as equally non-equipped to teach this Bible concerning many of the fundamental dogmas and duties required of us toward God and to our fellowman? It sure is!

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that according to the definition of the Greek word, as found in Christian Lexicons and dictionaries, that the word used by the Holy Spirit for "teachers" relate that we are to "TEACH THE JEWISH RELIGION?" I hope so for this is very important and overlooked by the vast majority of Christians and pastors today. It is in coming to this understanding that we can recover our Jewish Roots of the Christian faith and recover the true "Pattern of Worship" once given by God to Israel to share with all mankind (Gentiles).

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that according to the definition of the Greek word used by the Holy Spirit that those in the religious assemblies consisting of Gentile followers of this Jewish Christ (Chrestians, Christians) were taught the Jewish Religion? You must allow this to sink in and then ask yourself "If this was the "Pattern" when why have you not been schooled in this same way? This seems almost impossible to believe in light of our personal Christians experiences but yet not only do we find this in the Greek words used in our New Testament but historical analysis of Judaism as well verifies that "non-Jewish" believers in God practiced "the Jewish faith" up until the early 5th century; that is until men like Ignatius, Justin Martyr, Irenaeus, and Constantine went to great lengths to change all of that and redirect "the faith once given to the saints" away from its Jewish Roots. Rome will replace Jerusalem!

Answer for yourself: In your Christian Church, be it Baptist, Catholic, Church of Christ, etc., are you being taught the Jewish Religion as James and the Apostles like Paul intended as seen from the original language in which we find the manuscripts of the New Testament? I would say no and you should as well. Did you observe Passover, Hag HaMatazah, Shavuot, Rosh HaShannah, Yom Kippur, Sukkoth or did you keep Easter? Were you taught the truth about Messianic prophecy or did you get the forged replacement Bible by Rome? Do you carry a Tanakh (the Hebrew Scriptures which read in key places entirely different from your Christian Old Testament) or do you carry the replacement Roman Old Testament taken from the forged Septuagint?

Answer for yourself: If you are not taught this "Jewish Religion" for the "non-Jew", then why not since this was the Apostle Paul's intention (that is if he is the writer of the Epistle to the Hebrews)?

Answer for yourself: As a Christian, have you been taught the Jewish Religion (understood as Messianic Judaism [Orthodox Judaism] and not Messianic Christianity) in your churches or have you been taught a Replacement Religion without your knowledge; a replacement religion that considers most everything "Jewish" as being outdated, replaced, or cursed? More than likely I believe you, like myself in my early years of my adult Christian experience, the latter.

Answer for yourself: What is contained in this Jewish Religion which was taught to the "non-Jewish" world long after the supposed death of this Jesus as depicted in our Roman New Testaments (the second New Testament by the way which replaced the Gnostic First New Testament).

Let us now examine the Greek word for "oracles":

3051 logion {log'-ee-on} from 3052; TDNT - 4:137,505; n n AV - oracle 4; 4

- 1) a brief utterance, a divine oracle (doubtless because oracles were generally brief)
- 1a) in the NT, the words or utterances of God
- 1b) of the contents of the Mosaic law

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that according to the Greek word used in this New Testament Scripture that these believers in this Jewish Christ in the Book of Hebrews were needing to be TAUGHT AGAIN the contents of the Mosaic law because they had not grasped the necessities within the Mosaic Law; necessities that required for them to begin teaching others? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: When was the last time in your Christian Church were you taught the Mosaic Law? Have you ever? Should it make a difference to you to find out this in this Covenant of Noah, in these Laws of Noah, are to be found 66 Laws and Commandments that are repeated in the Laws of Moses later? Why are we not taught this as were the earliest followers of this Jewish Christ?

WHO WERE THE RECIPIENTS OF THE EPISTLE TO THE HEBREWS AND WHAT ARE THE IMPLICATIONS FOR THE NON-JEW?

I have read several Christian authors over the years that says that the recipients of this book of Hebrew were Jews, they were "Hebrews" and not "Gentiles".

Answer for yourself: Are they right? Or is the truth somewhere in between?

The title "To the Hebrews" designates Jews in distinction from Gentiles. First of all it behooves us to learn about the creation of this New Testament and in so doing we first see that this title, "To the Hebrews", was not originally a part of the letter. Many scholars today teach us that it was most likely added in the second century, when the letters of the New Testament were beginning to be assembled into a collection. It has been suggested that the title "To The Hebrews" was written on the outside of the script rolls to identify the document as the letter we know as the Letter to the Hebrews. Since there is no greeting at the outset of the letter which identifies the original recipients, who they were can only be inferred from the internal evidence within the letter itself. Now we must pay close attention. It is correct on one hand to say that the entire letter indicates the original recipients were a group of Jewish Christians who had endured persecution and who were therefore considering giving up their Messianic beliefs. For them the Messiah had not come and history verifies that according to the Hebrew Scriptures. Judaism maintains this stance and has for 2000 years.

Answer for yourself: But what should we see as regarding the "non-Jew" in this Epistle? We should take strong notice that long after the time allotted for the death of this Jesus the Laws of Moses were still being taught and evidently were not "passed away" or "rendered obsolete" by this depicted death of Jesus in this same New Testament like so many suppose. We should see likewise that and the writer of the Epistle of Hebrews did not intend a replacement religion but rather the opposite; he continued to teach the Jewish religion long after the time for this Jesus.

Answer for yourself: Does you Pastor agree with Paul, if he was the actual author, that Christian churches should teach the Mosaic Law (remember this all occurred after the time of the cross and crucifixion and resurrection of Jesus as depicted in this New Testament)?

Acts 15:19-21 19 Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them (the non-Jews), which from among the Gentiles are turned to God: 20 But that we write unto them, that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood. 21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every sabbath day.

(KJV)

Answer for yourself: Were you aware previously that believers in this Jewish Christ in the first century, both Jew and Gentile (remember this is written 30 years AFTER THE CROSS) were being taught the contents of the Mosaic Law not only in the synagogues of Palestine but Asia, Minor as well?

Most likely not. It was in the Jewish synagogues in Asia, Minor, and not only in Palestine, that non-Jews were setting under the instruction of the Rabbis and teachers and being instructed in their responsibilities regarding their Covenant with God (the Covenant of Noah) and the Laws and Commandments that framed it (66 to be precise) and Isa. 56 where they could acquire more mitzvot in their spiritual development. And let us not forget that such instruction came out of the Laws of Moses which we saw above in Hebrews 5. We need to realize that it is in this teaching of the Laws of Moses after the time of Jesus' death according to the New Testament that "non-Jews" found their instruction concerning this "Pattern of Worship" intended for them as found in God's Sabbaths and Holy Days let alone in other forms of worship like prayer, "proper giving", etc.

This is startling and should arouse you from your spiritual slumber realizing what you have missed as we proceed to discover more truths for too long overlooked by the Gentile Church. Such is the power of indoctrination without your personal study to verify what you are being taught.

Answer for yourself: If the churches founded by Paul were being taught the Mosaic Law, then why aren't you? Then why does the New Testament in "places" appear so negative to this Mosaic Law?

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that often the New Testament, especially Paul, write passages that are 180 degrees in opposition to the ideas contained within them? Is this why many feel Paul is schizophrenic? Let me show you this which is startling as it exist just one page apart in Romans and is the epitome in contradiction.

Rom 2:13 13 (For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified. (KJV)

Rom 3:20 20 Therefore by the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight: for by the law is the knowledge of sin. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Just looking at these two passage do you grasp the necessity to huge importance to study to find the truth when we are given such mumbo jumbo in this New Testament at times?

Answer for yourself: Do we pattern ourselves as Christians today after the "Pattern of Worship" taught by James and the other Apostles of the first century or Rome? What should it be; Rome or Jerusalem where we turn for truth? If we can see, for example, that these "non-Jews" kept the Biblical Holy Days and Sabbaths of God then why do we stand for substitutes today in our Christian Churches? Why do we quote "they continued in the Apostle's doctrine" when we don't?

Please share these papers with your Pastors and see the look on their face when they see just how far they are off the hallowed path given by God to both Jew and "non-Jew" where the two peoples can be one. See how they will try to refute this "Jewish Religion" often hidden beneath the English words of our Bibles and don't be surprised that some will actually say that this is not what these words mean in the first place. I used Christian sources even to show the reader that beneath what we accept in Christianity is a completely different world when we get back to the original words of these texts. It is so simple, most who will deny what I show you will do so only because they lack the necessary language skill in Greek and Hebrew, for if they had these skills they would have discovered what I and hundreds of other diligent Pastors and Teachers in the Body of Christ have discovered that altered the courses of our lives, resigned their Christian pastorates and follow the Jewish faith today (as converts and non-converts living the "Jewish way" or should I say the "Godly way").

Let us examine the Greek word for "milk":

Thayer's Greek Lexicon #1051

1051 gala {gal'-ah} of uncertain affinity; TDNT - 1:645,111; n n AV - milk 5; 5

1) milk

1. a metaph. for the less difficult Christian truths

Answer for yourself: Do you see where we as believers are admonished by Paul to not be focused on or dwell on "less difficult Christian truths?" I hope so. It is time for the meat.

Let us examine the Greek word for "strong":

Lexicon Greek 4731

4731 stereos {ster-eh-os'} from 2476; TDNT - 7:609,1077; adj AV - strong 2, sure 1, steadfast 1; 4

- 1) strong, firm, immovable, solid, hard, rigid
- 1a) in a bad sense, cruel, stiff, stubborn, hard
- 1b) in a good sense, firm, steadfast

Answer for yourself: Do you see that by no longer dwelling on "less difficult Christian truths" and beginning to focus on the deeper truths contained in the Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah contained within them, that we can see that it is intended for us, as "non-Jews" to practice a form of this "Jewish Religion"? For instance we will see that Gentiles are commanded to study and follow the Mosaic Law (the Laws of Noah within them) which require us to reject all forms of idolatry and this is very important as this applies to the "godman" of this Christian faith. This is the Christian Jesus if you have not guessed which is the Nicean "godman" since the early 4th century. We find in study of this "Jewish religion" that "non-Jews" are found since the beginning of time celebrating and observing the Biblical Festivals and Sabbaths of the Lord long before there were "Jews" but instead we settle for "Christianized" Roman holidays which we have been taught to cherish and observe but are in reality a complete reinterpretation of them whereby they have had all things "Jewish" removed. We are not taught today to keep the Sabbath but instead Sunday observance (Sol..the Sun) has replaced the 4th Commandment. Even more righteous giving of the Tithe to areas where God said it should be given and applied "only" are neglected and these funds are channeled by our Pastors and Churches to areas in furthering man-made agendas and bigger ministries. Also let me mention voluntarily eating "kosher" and "clean foods" which is a Biblical truth "hidden" in the English wording and translation of your Bibles that few have seen. These and many other things will cause our lives to be stronger, more steadfast, and in such study of the "Jewish Religion" we will not be tossed "to-and-fro" by every conflicting wind of doctrine, even much Christian doctrine; sadly much of which is in error because of the failure of the Pastors and Teachers to study deeply the truths in the Hebrew Scriptures.

Let us now examine the Greek word for "useth":

Thayer's Greek Lexicon # 3348

3348 metecho {met-ekh'-o} from 3326 and 2192; TDNT - 2:830,286; v AV - be partaker 5, take part 1, use 1, pertain 1; 8 1) to be or become partaker

1. to partake

Let us now examine the Greek word for "have":

Thayer's Greek Lexicon #2192

2192 echo {ekh'-o} including an alternate form scheo {skheh'-o}, used in certain tenses only), a primary verb; TDNT - 2:816,286; v

AV - have 613, be 22, need + 5532 12, misc 63, vr have 2; 712

- 4) to hold one's self to a thing, to lay hold of a thing, to adhere or cling to
- 4a) to be closely joined to a person or a thing

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that we are to hold on to and possess in our minds this "Jewish Religion"? He sure is.

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that if we hold to, cling to, possess in our minds, or find ourselves focusing on the elementary truths of our faith, to the neglect of the deeper truths of God's Word, that we will be unskillful in our understanding of the Word of God? He sure is as we see below.

Let us examine the Greek word for "unskillful":

552 apeiros {ap'-i-ros} from 1 (as a negative particle) and 3984;; adj AV - unskillful 1; 1

1) inexperienced in, without experience of

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that if we hold to, cling to, possess in our minds, or find ourselves focusing on the elementary truths of our faith, to the neglect of the deeper truths of God's Word, that we will be unskillful in our understanding of the Word of God and will not learn to experience the deeper things of God? He sure is.

This is a monumental statement because I dare say that we have failed, due to lack of study to understand the real message in many Scriptures and passages (both Old and New Testaments), thus we have failed to grasp the truths that the first century church both knew and experienced and commanded be taken into all the world to the Gentiles in the Great Commission. All we have to do is look around and compare our experience to what we read in the Book of Acts and we can easily see that "something" is missing.

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that if we hold to, cling to, possess in our minds, or find ourselves focusing on the elementary truths of our faith, to the neglect of the deeper truths of God's Word, that we will be unskillful in our understanding of the Word of God and will not learn to experience the deeper things of God concerning the "sayings of God, the moral precepts of God, the doctrines and teachings of God?" He sure is!

Answer for yourself: Does God desires His children to be "unskillful and ignorant" in His words that lead to our righteousness? No. Let us investigate this further.

Please, dear saints, pay close attention to the Greek word for "righteousness":

1343 dikaiosune {dik-ah-yos-oo'-nay} from 1342; TDNT - 2:192,168; n f AV - righteousness 92; 92

- 1) in a broad sense: state of him who is as he ought to be, righteousness, the condition acceptable to God
  - 1a) the doctrine concerning the way in which man may attain a state approved of God (notice there is a way a man can attain approval of God by something he does!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!)....THE JEWS HAVE ALWAYS

KNOWN THIS.....BUT NOT THE CHRISTIANS

- 1b) integrity, virtue, purity of life, rightness, correctness of thinking feeling, and acting
- 2) in a narrower sense, justice or the virtue which gives each his due

Answer for yourself: Does one's correctness of thinking, feeling, and acting, which are a direct result of what he believes, have a bearing upon him be acceptable to God? It sure does. What if we have not been taught correctly and our actions are incorrect and are not aware of it due to the unreliability of the New Testament in many places and we not know of this because of our failure to personally study this document during our lives?

Answer for yourself: Can you see the importance of believing correctly, for if the truths we affix our actions upon are faulty or incorrect, then our conduct and behavior is less than pleasing to God? Surely you don't want this do you?

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that if we hold to, cling to, possess in our minds, or find ourselves focusing on the elementary truths of our faith, to the neglect of the deeper truths of God's Word (and in the context of Hebrews this meant failing to understand the Mosaic Laws which provide the foundations for one's beliefs and appropriate actions), that we will be unskillful in our understanding of the Word of God and fail to achieve that position of acceptableness before God? He sure is.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that when Paul said "all Scripture is inspired by God and profitable for doctrine, reproof, correction, and instruction" that NONE of the New Testament had been written yet and this could only refer to the Old Testament (the Law, Prophets, and Writings)? This one fact is of supreme importance because we must confuse these New Testament writings with the true Hebrew Scriptures in the Tanakh.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that it would take almost 400 years for the New Testament to be put together and presented in its canonized form?

Please don't quit reading the article at this point, for let me remind you that I didn't choose these words or orchestrate Biblical history but the Holy Spirit did, and although we might not have heard of these concepts and doctrines preached from the pulpits of our churches, it does not change the fact that we will be judged by the Word of God and not by our denominational doctrines and what we have earnestly been taught to believe as if correct. We must learn today the truth as taken from analysis of the original words of the passages and Scriptures, Biblical history, Biblical culture, archeology, etc, and then and only then can we be assured that what we are reading is the "truth".

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that if we hold to, cling to, possess in our minds, or find ourselves focusing on the elementary truths of our faith, to the neglect of the deeper truths of God's Word, that we will be unskillful in our understanding of the Word of God and fail to understand and obey the doctrines concerning the way in which we MAY attain a state of approval before God? He sure is.

Answer for yourself: Do you see that we play a role in making ourselves acceptable to God as indicated by the Greek word for "righteousness"?

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that if we hold to, cling to, possess in our minds, or find ourselves focusing on the elementary truths of our faith, to the neglect of the deeper truths of God's Word, that we will be unskillful in our understanding of the Word of God and fail to obtain the CORRECT way of thinking and feeling that ultimately leads to our CORRECT behavior, obedience, and conduct; thus assuring our position of approval before God? He sure is.

Now please pay close attention to this next word!

Let us examine the Greek root word for "righteousness" which occurs so often in the New Testament:

1342 dikaios {dik'-ah-yos} from 1349; TDNT - 2:182,168; adj AV - righteous 41, just 33, right 5, meet 2; 81

- 1) righteous, observing divine laws
- 1a) in a wide sense, upright, righteous, virtuous, keeping the commands of God
- 1a1) of those who seem to themselves to be righteous, who pride themselves to be righteous, who pride themselves in their virtues, whether real or imagined
- 1a2) innocent, faultless, guiltless
- 1a3) used of him whose way of thinking, feeling, and acting is wholly conformed to the will of God, and who therefore needs no rectification in the heart or life
- 1a3a) only Christ truly
- 1a4) approved of or acceptable of God!!!!!!!!!!!!!!
- 1b) in a narrower sense, rendering to each his due and that in a judicial sense, passing just judgment on others, whether expressed in words or shown by the manner of dealing with them

Answer for yourself: Were you aware before you read this article that being "righteous" contains man's responsibility for observing divine laws and keeping the commands of God?

Answer for yourself: Do you see again the concept of "being approved or acceptable of God" tied to keeping the commands of God and His divine laws?

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that if we hold to, cling to, possess in our minds, or find ourselves focusing on the elementary truths of our faith, to the neglect of the deeper truths of God's Word, that we will be unskillful in our understanding of the Word of God and will fail to observe Divine laws and Commandments intended to make us acceptable to God?

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that if we hold to, cling to, possess in our minds, or find ourselves focusing on the elementary truths of our faith, to the neglect of the deeper truths of God's Word, that we will be unskillful in our understanding of the Word of God, believing that these Divine Laws and Commandments have passed away, thereby assuring that we will fail to observe these Divine laws and Commandments, thereby hampering making ourselves acceptable to God? Most assuredly.

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that if we hold to, cling to, possess in our minds, or find ourselves focusing on the elementary truths of our faith, to the neglect of the deeper truths of God's Word, that we will be unskillful in our understanding of the Word of God and fail to realize that the commandments of God have NOT passed away, and much more, fail to obey them? He sure is.

Answer for yourself: Is the author of the Book of Hebrews telling us that if we hold to, cling to, possess in our minds, or find ourselves focusing on the elementary truths of our faith, to the neglect of the deeper truths of God's Word, that we will be unskillful in our understanding of the Word of God and fail to think, feel, and thus act in a manner pleasing to God, thus not assuring our "acceptance" before God? As hard as it may be for you to accept this concept, the original words of the Greek manuscripts from which we take a poor English translation say otherwise.

Let us examine the Greek word for "babe":

3516 nepios {nay'-pee-os} from an obsolete particle ne- (implying negation) and 2031; TDNT - 4:912,631; adj

AV - child 7, babe 6, childish 1; 14

- 1) an infant, little child
- 2) a minor, not of age
- 3) metaph. childish, untaught, unskilled

Answer for yourself: In other words, if we fail to study for ourselves, is there any way we can be assured that we are being taught Biblical truths by those we subject ourselves unto? No! The sad thing is that we spend our whole lives "hoping" our life-styles are pleasing to God because we try to follow the teachings of Gentile Christianity but if would have studied the texts we read we would have seen things deeper than the "milk" we are consistently given in our pews and seeing this "meat" underneath the surface texts which are often translated to lead the believer astray. If we had done such serious study we would have seen many things that would have led up to repent of many of the "beliefs" we inherited in Gentile Christianity. Such study will show you, as it did me, that we can have in our lives confident assurance that we by the decisions we make in our lives that line up with these Laws and Commandments of God that we can be assured that we, when we die, are acceptable to God. Learning of these deeper truth assures that we are good witness of God and that we don't misrepresent Him to others.

Answer for yourself: Has the failure on our part to study the Bible, the original languages of the Bible, Biblical history and culture, and the history of the rise of Gentile Christianity as it separated from Judaism along with the later forgery of the religious documents Gentile Christianity provided the world robbed us of vital information so necessary to our proper love and obedience to God? Most definitely.

Answer for yourself: Is the first church council of Jerusalem, which was headed up by the Apostle James in 50 C.E., loaded with hidden truths which, when known, and properly understood, should alter the course of the Christian's life? Yes it does. Does Acts 15 stand as a strong rebuke to Gentile Christian theology as it evolved over the first 500 years of the emerging Gentile Church as it separated from Biblical Judaism? Most definitely! Let us continue our investigation as we dig out these truths for our lives.

As you can see, this momentous church council occurred in 50 C.E. in Jerusalem and speaks to the Christian today. Sadly, very few Christians have known the extent of what is taught in Acts 15, nor heard their Pastor or Teacher teach on the subject. The participants at this first church council are the zakenim (elders) and sh'liikim (apostles) which formed the foundation for this Messianic movement within Biblical Judaism. Let us never forget that this Jerusalem church is built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, and not the Baptists or the Catholics, yet the majority of Christians today know very little about "apostolic doctrine," and it was this "apostolic doctrine" which the church of this Jewish Christ "steadfastly continued in!" This means that the "Apostle's Doctrine" is Jewish Doctrine! It is way past time that we reinterpret "Jewish" not as "cursed" but "Biblical"!!!

Instead we know only our "denominational and non-denominational" doctrines, which more often than not, conflicts and opposes "Apostolic Doctrine" which the Jerusalem Church and the Apostles both believed, taught, and commanded be taken to the Gentiles throughout the world in fulfillment of the Great Commission.

You may have never noticed, but the Great Commission of Matt. 28 DOES NOT SAY to take the identity of this Jesus or the theology that will later be created around him over the next 500 years into all the world, or some later "hammered-out Christology" conceived over the next 3 centuries by Rome. It does not say to take Rome's disguised literalized "Sun Worship" into all the world but rather it commands that the Commandments, the Torah and the Law of Moses (the Laws of Noah) are to be taken unto the Gentiles throughout the whole world for it is within these Laws of Moses we find our Laws of Noah repeated and the ways by which we, as "non-Jews" can make ourselves "acceptable to God" as had the Jews. This is so, so important to realize!

"Not so" you say, well the evidence and facts correct such an opinion. Lets continue to investigate this and I promise you that you will be amazed by what you will now learn as if this article alone has not be a "wake up call".

Let us continue in the second article to lay the foundations that are necessary for us to correctly understand how Gentiles were to come to God and be accepted into the Israel of God ("fitting" into the Jewish Religion without conversion....called "engrafted" by Paul in Romans 9-11). Shalom

"GODFEARERS" IN THE NEW TESTAMENT: THE "PATTERN" FOR GENTILE PARTICIPATION IN THE ISRAEL OF GOD #2

This Messianic movement of the first century in Israel faced a problem of the highest magnitude within twenty years after the time depicted by the New Testament for the existence of the Jewish Christ: "What are we going to do with these Gentiles who claim to be followers of Jesus and who are turning from idols to serve the God of Israel?" The solution: "We should not make it difficult for the Gentiles who are turning to God." (Acts 15: 19-21). Yacov (James) and the head zakenim (elders) then proceeded to mention "4 abstentions" for these Gentiles who wished to be part of the Jesus Movement:

- 1) Don't eat food polluted by idols;
- 2) Don't engage in sexual immorality;
- 4) Don't eat blood.
- 5) Don't eat the meat of strangled animals;

To twentieth century Western people this list seems pretty simple--the only abstention those in our society have to worry about is #2--sexual immorality. So now it's clear sailing for all those Gentiles. Thanks a lot for reading this article. But wait, this subject matter is not as simple as the English makes it seem, for the Christ of the New Testament is Jewish and the "mind of Christ" is "Jewish" and without a proper understanding of the language of Hebrew, the Greek language from which the Hebrew was translated, the history, and the culture of the first century, and the Jewish religious belief system in the first century then you and I cannot be assured we have the correct understanding of this Acts 15 passage let alone if our lives as Christians are actually pleasing to God. Since God is the same yesterday, today, and tomorrow, then let us never forget that obedience is better than any sacrifice today as well as yesterday (first century church).

As you read this article, as well as others I have researched and prepared, you should have easily seen by now that reading the English of our Bibles "only" often leads us astray from this "mind of Christ". You may say "You mean it's not quite that easy and clear?" You may say "You mean to tell me there may be more to understanding what James is telling the Gentiles than meets the eye from simple reading of the passages in the New Testament? Do you mean more important information lies beneath the simple reading of these texts than I first assumed that has the potential to have a startling impact upon my life as a typical Christian? That is exactly what I am telling you as you will shortly understand. Let us investigate to see this for ourselves as our studies increase.

WHY SHOULD THE CHRISTIAN BE AWARE OF THE HISTORICAL SITUATION IN THE BOOK OF ACTS?

The truth about the historical situation in Acts 15 must be uncovered in order to understand the impact and importance of these 4 abstentions for Gentile believers in the first century, so we as good Christians and followers of "the Christ" can then apply that understanding of Biblical truth to our lives today; especially in light of what we have been taught by Christianity and its dogmas. It must be constantly remembered that this decision regarding the "non-Jews" coming to God without full conversion to Judaism required certain actions on the part of these "non-Jewish" believers that are called "necessary" and which "seemed good to the Holy Spirit" in the words of James who was the leader of this Jerusalem congregation at that time. In speaking of the "non-Jewish" world who were turning to God as the result of the efforts of Paul who was bringing these "non-Jews" to God without full conversion or circumcision James says:

Acts 15:28-29 28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; 29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well. (KJV)

"Necessary" is a scary word if it is found later to apply to us as being "disobedient" to the precepts described above. I found upon serious study of the above text and its "theology" that I was at one time as a Christian totally ignorant of these things and my life was devoid of these things and such conduct as Christian. You will as well as you study. Upon serious study and reflection upon this passage with full understanding as my studies increased I was found to be "disobedient" to these "necessary" things that the Jerusalem Church required of the "non-Jewish" world to be accepted into the Israel of God. I had to repent the more I studied and studied as I was beginning to see a whole new world that lays silently behind the original words and historical analysis of what I was reading in my New Testament. Add to this process the tragic observation that the vast majority of today's Gentile Christian congregations in the world totally ignore these 4 simple instructions and it becomes clear that this decision by the Jerusalem Assembly from long ago which was intended for ALL GENTILE BELIEVERS has been blatantly misunderstood and or ignored for the past 19 centuries.

Today's Christians who understand the Jewish Christ's words "why do you say you love me and not obey ye" should be open to repentance when in-depth Bible study recovers long-lost truths which never changed; "truths" that both challenge and correct their Christian religious belief system and conduct today

We must, with a good conscience, apply these truths to our lives today, regardless if it seem different from what you have heard or weren't previously aware of before reading this article. If today's Christians want to uncover these truths and their significance for their lives, and live a life of higher obedience toward our God, then it will be a difficult but not unfruitful task as we uncover such challenging "truths" from such study but such is the test given us that indicated the level of love we have for God. Let us continue in this pursuit of truth for our love for God is manifested through our obedience and not a mental ascent to a "creed" given to us by those who changed this "faith once given the saints" back in the 3rd through 5th century. We must rise up in righteous responses to what we uncover in such in-depth study and turn in obedience to "every word that proceeds from the mouth of God." This is of major importance if we truly love God, not to mention the rewards and treasure laid up in Heaven on day that comes only in response to obedience.

THE HISTORICAL SITUATION IN ACTS 15

It is important as we begin to understand who these Gentile believers were that were being spoken of by James. The overwhelming majority, if not all, of these Gentiles wanted to be accepted as full participants in this Jewish faith but rejected "circumcision" and this was a "thorn" for Judaism in the first century. These "non-Jews" were in a special category of believing Gentiles called "Godfearers" and this is how they are described in the "New Testament.

Acts 10:2 2 A devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway. (KJV)

Whether you are aware of it or not, we as Christians are called "Godfearers" in the New Testament. Let's investigate these questions:

- Who were Godfearers?
- What was their belief and practice?
- How did they fit into the theological and historical scheme of the time?
- As Christians are we considered "Godfearing?"

WHO WERE THE GODFEARERS?

"Godfearers" in the technical sense of the word used by both Luke and Josephus ("Sebomenoi" and or "Phoboumenoi" in Greek) and refer to that special group of Gentiles who worshipped in synagogues and adopted a Jewish belief system and dogmas and a Jewish life-style for themselves, stopping just short of formal conversion in that they failed to be circumcised. Had they been circumcised then they would have been considered "full proselytes". This is the big difference that lays at the heart of much of the New Testament but "hidden" beneath the context of many texts.

Answer for yourself: As Christians, have you accepted the God of Israel and worship Him in your churches? Are you aware that had you done the same some 2000 years ago that your "religious belief system" would have been entirely different from what it is today since what we are taught as "Christians" today stemming from Roman theology is completely different from what these "non-Jewish Godfearers" were taught some 2000 years ago? Notice if you will I am referring to a time period "after" the supposed time for this Jesus when saying this. If one does serious study on the "Kodak moment" of Cornelius and what these "non-Jews" were taught in coming to the God of Israel and then compare with what we are taught today in a post "Nicean Council" world you will be horrified at what you see and the changed brought by an antisemitic Roman Church over the last 1,700 years.

Answer for yourself: As Christians, can you see that you fit the "pattern" of the New Testament "Godfearer" in that you have not made conversion to Judaism and not become a proselyte to the Jewish faith yet believe and follow the God of Israel?

The word Sebonenoi (with or without Theos) means "Godfearer" and is based on a parallel term for "non-Jewish" worshippers of other deities. What you don't understand about this former statement yet is that it can be shown that mankind, since the beginning of recorded time, worshipped this Creator and Cosmic Uncreated Energy of the Universe we simply call "God" today but used many different "names" and "terms" for this same Divine Principle. They were all "Godfearers" in this right and man has "interpreted" this Creative Energy called "God" alike but reinterpreted this God through the unique development of the particular nation in which they were born. But behind it all they understood this same Divine Principle but expressed it somewhat differently in the unique ways by which they were indoctrinated in the particular nations that they happened to be born. Judaism expressed the Egyptian religion through "Jewish" eyes if you get my point. Implicit in the term are the concepts that these "non-Jewish" people claim to worship the only true God, and that they worship Him with specific acts as the product of their "faith"; not just with their "mental attitude and mental ascent" to the existence of this Divine Principle we call God. The Book of Acts mentions "Pheboumenos" five times, and mentions "sebonenos" six times with or without the addition word "Theos-god" to denote Gentile adherents to the Jewish faith who were NOT proselytes or full converts. In this context, these two terms are a "functional equivalent" of each other. Thus, these "Godfearers" were NOT merely well-intentioned Gentiles walking around worshipping the God of Israel in their own privatenon-structured way or in a way that leaned on their own understanding. Rather, there were certain requirements and Laws which must be adhered to and obeyed to be considered as a "Godfearer."

Answer for yourself: Has your church or Pastor instructed you in these Laws and requirements to be part of the Israel of God in the same way both James and Paul commanded the "non-Jews" of their day? We must remember that this instruction was given long after the time for the New Testament Jesus and this must take into account of the "status quo" that existed in light of any existing "theology" that might be connected to this Jesus or actions taken on his part.

Answer for yourself: In other words if "this was the way it was done long after the time for this Jesus" then what has changed since then to replace these requirements given the "non-Jews" coming to the God of Israel? If this was the "Pattern" followed by the Jerusalem Church and the "real" Paul and not the one of Rome's later invention then how can Nicea and Constantine change all of this and we accept it today" as if it is the "will of God" from a God "who changes not"?

Emil Schurer quotes archeological inscriptions which point to "a defined category of Gentile Godfearers attached to the Jewish community". This refers to those "grafted into Israel" as Paul describes in Romans). Speaking of "non-Jews" Paul states concerning these "Godfearers":

Rom 11:17 17 And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree (speaking of "non-Jews" and "non-Converts"....the "non-circumcised non-Jew"), wert grafted in among them ("believing Israel, the Jews), and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree (the Israel of God); (KJV)

The Dictionary of the New Testament Theology adds that "Sebonenos" was the regular term for "non-Jews" who attached themselves (grafted into Israel) to the synagogue in this precise and specific way. Speaking again of these "non-Jews" and the requirements given them to adhere to the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah in Acts 15 James says:

Acts 15:21 21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every sabbath day. (KJV)

This is a clear indication that "non-Jews" were attending the Synagogue on the Sabbath to learn of the God of Israel, the Creator of all. The clear conclusion reached about both terms in Acts (i.e. phoboumenoi and sebomenoi) is that "with this concept...we are dealing with a technical term (to be distinguished from Theosebes [godliness]) which specifically describes a defined category of Gentiles associated with the synagogue and Judaism!!!

It cannot be emphasized too strongly that the first Gentile believers who came to the knowledge of the God of Israel are termed Godfearers in the New Testament as the Greek terms clearly indicate, and are NOT Gentiles who only felt warmth and emotional attraction to the God of Israel. The Godfearers ALREADY had received considerable Jewish (understood as Biblical) training and had made a considerable Jewish commitment (understood as Biblical) as I am attempting to demonstrate through the continued teachings of Bet Emet Ministry. The Theological Dictionary of the New Testament sums up the situation: "Thus the first conversion of a Gentile under Peter in Acts 10 is strictly the winning of a marginal member of the Jewish community(Cornelius was ALREADY a worshipper of the true God of the Bible before the message of Jesus was brought to him) for the Christian community." According to Schurer, John 12:20 probably reflects this group in describing "Greeks (Godfearers) who went up to worship (at the Temple) at the Festival (Passover) time". Again we see Greeks (Gentile Godfearers) keeping the Biblical Festivals such as Passover and if you look into this you find "non-Jews" observing the Passover in Egypt thousands of years before there were ever a "Jew" born. This should make you wonder what really lies behind these "appointed times with God"; these Equinoxes and Solstices termed "Biblical Festivals and Feasts" today which the Jews would later adopt which were kept long before them by the Gentile world. We address this on our Egypt-Christian website and our Astro-theology website but this is very in-depth study and I recommend that you wait until your foundations grow deeper in this Jewish expression of mankind's Ancient Faith in God before you attempt such study.

WHAT WERE THE BELIEFS AND PRACTICES OF THE GODFEARERS?

It is important to realize that these Gentile Godfearers were integral parts of synagogues within Israel and throughout the Diaspora (exile). And as noted above, Gentile Godfearers worshipped God with specific Jewish actions (understood as Biblical) after the time allotted by the New Testament for this Jesus, and not just with mental assent to a set of beliefs or creeds or doctrines that later came to be associated with Rome's depiction of this Jesus in their New Testament. These specific acts required of Gentiles which are called "necessary things" in Acts 15:28 PRIOR to being admitted to the Israel of God following the ruling of the Jerusalem Council in 50 C.E. (which was headed by James and which wrote letters in Acts 16 given to Paul and others to be given to all of the Gentile churches in Asia Minor). These letters were intended to strengthen the Gentile congregations and in these letters it was required of "non-Jews" turning to God to:

- 1). Adhere to the 7-part Noachide commandments
- 2). Adhere to the Sabbath commandment so that they and the Jews could be the "one" people of God...both as the Israel of God
- 3). Adhere to the dietary laws that pertain to the "non-Jews" and not those that were given only to the "Jews"

Answer for yourself: If this was required of Gentiles to be part of the Israel of God and a part of the Jerusalem congregation and "mother 'church'", can we be a part of the church that this Jewish Christ is building (for I will build MY church) without obedience to these "necessary things" or are we members in good standing in man's church (the word "church" is understood as an "assembly")?

These Laws of Noah seem simple but really they are "deep" and affect almost all aspects of the "non-Jew's" life and coupled with this further instruction was expected of these "non-Jews" as they learn more of the God of Israel as "Moses is read in the synagogues every Sabbath". It would be here, in the synagogue as the Torah was taught that these "non-Jewish" Godfearers would learn of the Laws and Commandments of God and invoking Isaiah 56 they could adopt and incorporate into their lives these Laws and Commandments of God, as seen in Second Temple Judaism (Judaism during the era 100 B.C.E.--70 C.E.), as not only the bedrock of Jewish observance but their lives as Godfearers as well. Gentiles desiring to "imitate this Jewish Christ" should want to do the same and learn the same things as were taught to these Godfearers and will want to do and live out these same things as Christians or else they as Christians are but a "poor shadow" of the real "Christ".

Dear Christians please understand that ANY other Jewish observances beyond these "necessary things" (understood as the Laws of Noah) would have been a matter of personal choice (Isa 56). Historically these Gentile Godfearers were encouraged by Jewish teachers within the synagogue structure to be circumcised, thus completing their "conversion" to Judaism; and according to G. F. Moore, "it was not uncommon for the next generation (their children) to be circumcised." But understood for these "Godfearers" by a part of Judaism was the eternal truth that this circumcision and full conversion of the "non-Jew" to Judaism is optional and never commanded of them by God as was required by many Jews in the first century which the Jerusalem Council stood against as well as other Jews who supported this interpretation of the Torah (like Rabbi Hillel and his school of Pharisees). What escapes us at present is the big rift inside Judaism in the first century as to just how these "non-Jews" were to be "accepted" into the Israel of God and this is the real reason for the writing of Galatians by Paul. The matter of circumcision for the "non-Jew" coming to God was a terrible dividing issue in Judaism in the first century and split Judaism right down the middle and the Shammite Pharisees, who mandated it, were opposed by the Hillel Pharisees. Such was the religious tension that surrounded this momentous decision made the the Jerusalem Council that took the side of the Hillel School of Pharisees.

CORNELIUS, THE GODFEARER

Cornelius, the Gentile Godfearer mentioned in Acts 10, was a centurion at Caesarea and serves as a good example of what a Godfearer did religiously. First, he and his household were devout (the Greek word is "eusebes") and Godfearing ("Phoboumenos Ton Theon"), which is a double adjective referring to him and his family which shows their exemplary lives characterized by Jewish norms and values which they modeled daily before their neighbors.

Please understand when I say "Jewish norms and values" I am not asserting conversion to Judaism, but lets face it, Jewish values and norms happened to be expressions of BIBLICAL VALUES AND NORMS! Luke also mentions that Cornelius prayed constantly to God and gave alms liberally to people in need (which the Rabbis call Tzedakah). These two actions (prayer and alms giving) would be actions even beyond the call of "Jewish duty," even more than the minimum for Jews. Interestingly enough, one afternoon during his regular 3 o'clock prayer time (the "ninth hour" was a prescribed Temple prayer time which survives in synagogue practice today and was the hour evening incense was offered in the Temple and Cornelius, a "non-Jewish" Godfearer adopted this pattern of prayer for his life) an angel came to Cornelius in Caesarea (a totally Gentile-built and Gentile-run city), to tell him that his prayer that his alms "had come up for a memorial" before God. That means that Cornelius' (an uncircumcised Gentile believer in God who followed the Laws of Noah and whom at that time knew nothing about some Jesus as the Messiah) prayers and alms had been accepted by God in the same way that the incense at the Temple and the smoke of a burnt offering "went up" and were accepted by God on behalf of the Jews. The same Greek word (snebenov) is used to translate in the Septuagint (Greek translation of the Hebrew Old Testament) the Hebrew word for offering: "olah"-literally, "an ascending" (understood as smoke ascending to God in an acceptable sacrifice).

Answer for yourself: Was a Godfearer who prayed continuously and gave alms acceptable to God prior to his understanding about this Jesus as we find Peter later coming to him in order to bring him supposedly this "gospel"? It surely appear it was from the text. This may be hard for you to admit considering what you have heard your whole life in the Christian Church and their exclusive teaching of "no salvation" outside of accepting the "theology" of Jesus, but the text I just showed you, as well as Jewish history and teachings of the Jewish faith for 2000 years say that "non-Jews", patterned by Cornelius for us, have been accepted with God always if they adhere to the basic Laws given them in their Noahide Covenant with God. And this, mind you, is not dependent upon any "theology" made necessary by Rome for "salvation" which they later connected to the Jesus of their creation. This is simply shown by a study of Acts 21 where blood sacrifices and atonement offerings were commanded by this same James and the Jerusalem Church of Paul which he does (around 60-65 A.D.) when observing a Nazarite vow some 30 years after the supposed "theology" connected with the death of this Jesus as Rome decries. Evidently the Jerusalem Church and Apostles and Disciples of this "Jewish Jesus" did not believe in their day that this death of Jesus was the final sacrifice and atonement for anything. Such is the fruit of serious study of our own Christian Bibles which sadly hides the real truth beneath the original languages and contexts of what we read and never fully understand and never look into being falsely assured Sunday after Sunday that we alone "have the truth".

You might be surprise to know just how important the doctrine of "Tzedakah" is in Judaism and its importance for the "non-Jew" as well for it is connected to "Eternal Life" throughout the Jewish Bible over and over again and "leads to life". No wonder we find references to Dorcas, who was "raised from the dead" and the only mention about her is that she gave "alms" (love in action which reflects the Second Tablet of the Law). If you find the time I recommend that you read and study the articles on comparing the Gospels of this Jesus against the Gospel of Rome \(called the Gospel of Paul\) in our Bibles today and be ready for an eye-opening experience.

Then the angel instructs Cornelius, to get in touch with Peter, who was in Jaffa, and the rest, as they say, is history. But note that what Cornelius did to deserve the commendation were concrete religious actions which Judaism strongly teaches and not his faith alone in God; in other words not just any old good deed would do but those that respond in obedience to the Laws and Commandments of God and that they (his righteous works) were accepted by the Jewish God using Jewish terminology and concepts, even though Cornelius was "technically" a Gentile. Let us never forget that there were more than just this one man who was a Godfearer in that there was a whole groups of Godfearers all around the Roman world who totally identified themselves with the Jewish community, except for circumcision which was the final step in commitment as a Jewish proselyte in the process of conversion.

Many Gentiles, while not prepared to enter this Jewish community as full proselytes through circumcision, were attracted by the simple monotheism of Jewish synagogue worship and by the ethical standards of the Jewish way of life. We may indeed say that Cornelius had every qualification short of circumcision which could satisfy Jewish requirement for full inclusion into Israel (grafted into Israel) with equal rights (could own land, hold offices in synagogues, etc.). It would be such Gentile Godfearers who would form the nucleus of the Christian communities in one city after another throughout the nations of the world in the first century follow the time allotted for the New Testament Jesus.

Obviously, as we have seen, Godfearers were more than "pagans" or "foreigners" but less than proselytes. Let's examine now these differing communities of people and their status in the eyes of the Jewish community during Second Testament times.

CLASSES OF NON-JEWISH BELIEVERS: PROSELYTES, GODFEARERS, AND FOREIGNER

Underlying the worldview of the Greco-Roman culture at the time is an unsympathetic attitude towards Jews. In Greek and Roman literature of the time the judgments about Jews are in general very derogatory. Seen in its most militant state, during Seleucid rule, Greek culture felt that Judaism was extremely old-fashioned and too highly nationalistic to fit in with the concept of the modern Greek world. Roman culture, beginning in 70 B.C.E. in Israel under Pompey, tolerated Jewish belief as long as it allowed for Rome to have the final governmental power. Rome tended to want to keep peace in its provinces and allowed different groups under its rule to have their own religious and cultural differences. Jewishness to Rome was a "quaint," unattractive religion which served well to keep the Jewish nation "unified" and serving Roman interest.

Passages from writers of the time such as Josephus, Juvenal, and Tertullian give us the impression that the Greco-Roman culture saw Jewishness as quite ridiculous. Thus, becoming a Godfearing person was not a popular action designed to move a person to a more influential sphere, in fact, it would have quite the opposite effect.

Living within Israel itself at the time there were Godfearers, exemplified by Cornelius and presumably also the Centurion in Luke 7 and Matt. 10, but "making proselytes" in an active "missionary" way was not common within Israel. As a rule, proselytes and Godfearers were welcomed by the Jews and regarded very highly, but there was in Palestine no active propaganda to further the cause of proselytism.

However, proselytism and Godfearers were very active in the Diaspora (the Jewish communities outside of Israel). According to Josephus in Antioch and Syria large numbers of Gentiles attended Jewish services. In Damascus almost the whole female part of the population was devoted to Judaism and it was quite often women of higher social standing who followed this trend. Evidently these Jewish communities encouraged and welcomed both Gentile proselytes and Godfearers.

Hellenistic Judaism developed an offensive against Roman paganism. They were eager to show up the immorality and senselessness of idolatry and display the rationality and sublimity of Jewish monotheism. Hellenistic Judaism had an apologetic ideology as there were many Godfearers who accepted the one God of the Jews, but not all the Laws of the same God. Hellenistic Judaism had almost succeeded in making Judaism a world religion in the literal sense of the words. Early Christianity then won the victory over Roman paganism using Jewish customs, traditions, and teachings.

This knowledge of history sheds much light on James' closing remarks to the zakenim (elders) and sh'likim (apostles) in Acts 15:21: "For Moses (the Pentateuch) has been preached in every city (in the Diaspora) from the earliest times (since 722B.C.E., over 700 years) and is read in the synagogue on every Sabbath." In other words, these Gentile Godfearers who want to become full-fledged believers in God have ALREADY received Moses' instructions concerning how people are to live (as taught in the Noachide and Sinatic covenants since when Moses (Pentateuch-first 5 books of the Bible) is taught, such teaching encompasses both the Laws of Noah and the Mosaic Covenant) and they heard this taught over and over again as they attended the Synagogues in Asia, Minor, as well as in Palestine.

Through attending synagogues in their own cities where the Torah (Mosaic writings were taught), Gentiles were ALREADY familiar with the basics of having a relationship with the one true God of Israel.

Now please pay close attention to what comes next.

James, the pastor of the Jerusalem Synagogue or Church, called the Messianic Movement within Judaism, is REQUIRING these 4 further instructions for Gentiles who want to be Messianists and a part of the Israel of God without submission to circumcision.

Notice Acts 15:28 states , that it seemed "good to them and the Holy Spirit" to REQUIRE these adherences of Gentiles.

Answer for yourself: Since God is the same yesterday, today, and tomorrow, and since it seemed good to the Holy Spirit (20 years after the death of Jesus) to require as "necessary" of Gentiles to be adherent to the Laws of Noah, to be adherent to the Sabbath requirements, and to be adherent to "clean/unclean" food laws in order to be included within the congregations of Israel (becoming part of the Israel of God), then do these "required things" apply to us today as well?

Answer for yourself? If these "necessary things" [adherence to Laws of Noah, adherence to Sabbath requirement, adherence to kosher laws given the "non-Jews"] were required before Gentiles could be part of the Israel of God as commanded by James, the Lord's brother and head of the first Christian Church, then are we part of Jesus' church if we neglect or are ignorant of them in our lives?

This Apostolic decision was made to make sure that there is no question as to what the "bottom line" of observance that is required of Godfearing Gentiles: the Noachide commandments, the Sabbath and dietary laws.

EXACTLY WHAT WAS EXPECTED OF GENTILES BY THE JEWISH COMMUNITY AT THAT TIME AND WHAT WAS NOT EXPECTED?

The Jewish religious concepts of the Second Temple period understood that the other nations of the world who did not follow the one true God were Godless (goyim-at least without the true God) and or pagan. However, for purposes of God's judgment of other nations (including his right to judge them), the Sinaitic covenant did not apply to these "goyim," having been given exclusively to Israel (Israel must be understood as a mixed multitude of Jews and Gentiles as well who accepted God's Covenant as Sinai). Don't get tripped up by failing to understand that WITHIN THE MOSAIC COVENANT AND LAWS IS CONTAINED ALL THE LAWS IN THE COVENANT OF NOAH. Conversely, there were many Laws contained in the Mosaic Covenant that were not included in the Covenant of Noah (Gentiles were not given all of the Mosaic Laws). Instead the rabbis felt, as seems clear from the passage in Gen. 9:1-18, there is a covenant for all the children of Noah (i.e. the whole world), including not only people but all living creatures (see v.10). Based on this section of Scripture, the rabbis found 7 major requirements incumbent for all nations:

- 1) no idolatry;
- 2) no incest/adultery;
- 3) no murder;
- 4) no blasphemy (profanation of the name of God);
- 5) no theft;
- 6) justice towards others (see Gen. 9:5...);
- 7) no eating flesh with blood in it and or cutting off flesh from a living animals.

To these generally agreed tenants some rabbis added others such as taking blood from a living animal. Several also mention prohibitions against witchcraft and other spiritual sorcery such as found in Dt. 18:10-11.

These then are the major categories by which God would judge all nations outside of Israel. To the rabbis it was clear that although God loved all His creatures and His creation, the goyim (Gentiles) had turned away from Him and would not even follow the Noachide commandments.

Answer for yourself: Again if the children of Noah could not abide and observe the 7 commandments which were enjoined upon them, how much less could they have accepted and fulfilled all the commandments of the Sinaitic Law of Moses?

The identifying terms used by the rabbis at this time for these goyim (Gentiles who are not Godfearers and who do not practice the Laws of Noah, kosher, and Sabbath) include: idolaters, the wicked, the enemies of Israel, the enemies of God, and the others. There was a different category, however, for those goyim who did abide by the Noachide covenant. They were called foreigners or aliens. Any Gentile who lived in the land of Israel and among Israelites was enjoined, at the very least, to keep the Noachide covenant. Keeping the Noachide Laws was their "bottom line" and if they did not, they were to be expelled. If they did keep the Laws of Noah, they were no longer called goyim, but gerim. The Talmud delineates them further by the new term ger toshev. These (ger toshev) were foreigners living in the land of Israel who were keeping the 7 Noachide commandments. By the time of the Septuagint (about 200 B.C.E.) the translators used the term "fearers" for the righteous Gentiles outside of natural Israel in contrast to the term proselytes, those righteous Gentiles who formally identified with Israel through full conversion which included circumcision, sacrifice, and mikveh (baptism...called "born again" in Judaism long before there was ever a Christian).

WHAT WAS THE NEXT STEP FOR THE NON-JEWISH BELIEVER? CONVERSION TO JUDASIM...THE PROSELYTE

The first "gerim" are mentioned in the Exodus narrative. Among the Jews who left Egypt there were Egyptians who also left their homes in Egypt and crossed the Red Sea, becoming part of the people of Israel [grafted into Israel] (Ex. 12:38). Although they were known as "aliens-gerim" (simply meaning that they were not physical descendants of Jacob), they could be circumcised, thus formally converting to this very early form of Judaism, then partake of the Passover meal with the rest of Israel (at this point, Passover was the only Jewish festival). Note the differentiation between "foreigner" in Ex. 12:43 and the "alien who lives among you." The foreigner may NOT eat the Passover (he is not circumcised and therefore not Jewish-Ex. 12:48), but the alien who is circumcised along with his/her household (converted to Judaism and had become proselytes) MAY EAT the Passover (they are considered Jewish). Verse 49 indicates that the proselyte was to have the same rights and privileges as the native-born Jews: "Exod 12:49 49 One law shall be to him that is homeborn, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among you. (KJV)" According to Ex. 12:19, the community of Israel is made up of aliens (believers/converts/proselytes who are circumcised) and native-born Jews. Consequently, these "gerim toshevim" who wanted to fully convert always could do so by becoming circumcised and then continuing to follow the Jewish (Biblical) way of life, which then adopted and followed the covenant at Mt. Sinai (Ex. 24) and the attending Laws. Note also that Sabbath observance was technically commanded BEFORE the acceptance of the Sinaitic code (Ex. 20:10 and 23:12).

Exod 20:10 10 But the seventh day is the sabbath of the LORD thy God: in it thou shalt not do any work, thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, thy manservant, nor thy maidservant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates: (KJV)

Exod 23:12 12 Six days thou shalt do thy work, and on the seventh day thou shalt rest: that thine ox and thine ass may rest, and the son of thy handmaid, and the stranger, may be refreshed. (KJV)

It is for this reason that I include the "Sabbath" as part of things "necessary" as would have James although not mentioned in Acts 15. Also we do as well since in was on this Sabbath that the opportunity for Jews and "non-Jews" occurred where they could study and learn of the Covenant of Moses (the Covenant of Noah) together in the Synagogues. Then although they (Ger Toshevim") were recognized by outward appearances as "aliens," they were now "Jews" in that they had left behind their old country and family and now were subsequently circumcised in order to be "part of the Jewish community." Likewise they had been "adopted" by the native-born Jews as "their own." The rabbis' term for these Ger Toshevim who became circumcised ("proselytes") was ger hazedek (righteous foreigners). How many proselytes there were down through the centuries is impossible to determine, but the rabbis are clear about the proselyte's relationship to the rest of Israel: "A proselyte is like a newborn child (it is again this "mikvah" required of the "non-Jew" in his full conversion that is the "born again" experience we fail to understand properly in the New Testament).

Answer for yourself: Does the above "newborn child" remind you of the term "born again" and historically could this term mean the conversion of the non-Jew to Judaism? It sure could!!!

This brings a whole new meaning to John 4 and Jesus and Nicodemus. More on that later in the website or follow the link to the above articles explaining the true meaning behind the often misused term in Christianity "born again".

Let us examine being "born again" as understood as becoming a "new creature":

The Apostle Paul instructs Gentiles in Corinth that is they accept God through the ministry of the Jewish Christ, thus being in Christ, then God will consider these pagan Gentiles as "new creatures" whereby their old sinful life-styles pass away in repentance as they come to knowledge and obedience of God's will for their lives.

2 Cor 5:17

17 Therefore if any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new.

The Greek word for "creature" is Strong's # 2937 ktisis which is understood in Greek as: the act of founding, establishing, building, etc.

- a) the act of creating, creation
- b) creation, that is, a thing created; used of individual things, beings, a creature, a creation
- 1) anything created
- 2) after a rabbinical usage (by which a man converted from idolatry to Judaism was called)
- 3) the sum or aggregate of things created
- c) an institution, an ordinance

Answer for yourself: Do you see for yourself that when the Apostle Paul instructs Gentiles in Corinth to come to God through Jesus he intends them to become "new creatures" by leaving their idolatry and convert to Judaism and Jewish ways and not Catholic or Protestant Christianity as we know it today?

Answer for yourself: As a Christian you consider yourself a "new creature," and although you or others call yourself a "new creature" are you really a "new creature" as defined by the words of your Bible, and as understood by the Apostle Paul if you neglect or are ignorant of the Laws of Noah, kosher, Sabbath, and Biblical Festivals such as Passover (Pesach), First Fruits (Bikkurim), Unleavened Bread (Hag HaMatzah), Pentecost (Shavuot), Rosh HaShannah, Feast of Trumpets (Yom Teruah), Day of Atonement (Yom Kippur), Tabernacles (Sukkoth), etc? That is a very hard question to have to face.

Answer for yourself: What will you do having been a Christian your whole life, having done little precious study on your own and relied on preaching your whole life for Biblical truths by men who are actually not qualified to teach you since not possessing this "meat" from the Word of God? Did you know that there are over 2,000 different denominations in Christianity and varieties of disunity and preaching to choose from? Who has the truth in all of this? What if we were to die one day and find out that we were never a "new creature" in the Biblical sense of the inspired word as understood by Paul, James, the Apostles, and the Jesus' church which followed Jesus' command to take this information to Gentiles worldwide? What do we do then?

Answer for yourself: Do you now see a much deeper meaning than "believing in Jesus" as a condition for being considered by Paul and James as a "new creature"? I surely hope so!

The proselyte is, however, required and expected to be as strictly observant as the native-born Jew, including paying the Temple tax (this is he funds demanded of God to build buildings of worship and not as is done today with the misappropriation of the Tithe). The book of Ruth, of course, portrays the most beautiful example of how God can highly honor a proselyte, by choosing her as the great-grandmother of David.

After the building of the Second Temple there was a recognized procedure for proselytes. For men, there was circumcision, followed by immersion (mikveh/baptism), then offering a sacrifice at the Temple. For women there was just the mikveh and Temple sacrifice. For Diaspora proselytes (outside the land of Israel) the Temple sacrifice was probably waived, or at least postponed, because of the great distance involved and its attendant difficulty to achieve..

As previously noted, the Godfearers' observance of the Law was located between the full proselyte (circumcised) and the gerim toshev (non circumcised).

Answer for yourself: Can you better understand now that this is where the Christian should stand today in faith and obedience since the matter was legislated by the Jerusalem Church and James, the hand picked Pastor of this congregation, as well as the Apostle Paul who were in agreement on the matter?

Circumcised Ger toshev were known as ger hashair (foreigners of the gate). To the Godfearer's observance of the Noachide covenant was added the Sabbath and dietary Law observance. It seem that Godfearers stopped just short of circumcision which would mean total and formal conversion, thus no longer being considered a Godfearer but Ger hashair or proselyte in full conversion to Judaism (a good example is Cornelius who lacked circumcision and was yet accepted by God and into the Israel of God). Today in America with male babies being circumcised as a matter of routine without any religious significance except by the Jewish people, then circumcision would not apply toward one's conversion to Judaism and would not mean that male Christians, who are circumcised routinely at birth, and who study, understand, and accept the Laws of Noah, kosher, and Sabbaths would be considered as if they had made full conversion to Judaism. In conversion today a special "pin prick" to draw blood is necessary to mimic actual circumcision and it is a "voluntary" action made by the "non-Jew" wishing to be a "full convert" to Judaism. So routine circumcision of the "non-Jew" in America today, for example, does not relegate one as a proselyte if later he adopts the Noahide Commandments and Covenant. If every Christian Gentile converted to Judaism, or if every Jew converted to Christianity then there would not be in the earth the witness of "two olive branches" or the "two candlesticks" whom are to have the same witness of God to "non believers". The reasons for Godfearers in the first century not formally joining Judaism are not clear to us twentieth century people. Some scholars, like Bruce, maintain that circumcision was both painful and shameful for men in that culture (since Gentile pagans had practiced a form of sexual immorality as a form of false religion, let alone risky considering health factors, where 8 day of babies have a double immunity (grown men do not) against infection for 6 months of their early lives and can better withstand the dangers of circumcision associated with possible infection and gangrene. Some also might have been fearful of anti-Semitism. At any rate, we do know that these Gentile believers in God, called Godfearers in the New Testament, were every bit as Jewishly observant as their Jewish friends as they had been undergoing disciplining and instruction in their local synagogues along side the Jews. These people (Godfearers) were not just well-intentioned "Gentiles," but Jewishly educated and committed to the Jewish way of life which was the pattern given to the Israel of God (consisting of a mixed multitude of Gentiles and Jews at Sinai). It was "this pattern of obedience" which was spoken orally by God in 70 languages to the 70 nations of the world at Sinai, for God called all men everywhere to repent and follow His will which was spoken orally and surrounded the whole world at the giving of the Torah (teaching, instruction, Law in Hebrew) at Sinai. Only Israel, a mixture of Jews and Egyptian Gentiles at Sinai, responded with a "yes" as seen in their memorial statement "we will do all that You say!" To this commitment God would in response call them (a mixture of Jews and Gentiles) a "holy people and a holy nation and a royal priesthood" which was to equip the nation of Israel to function as a mediator between God and rest of mankind. Israel's (Judaism as well as Messianic Judaism as seen in a distorted fashion in most of Christianity today) function is still to bring the Gentiles to God for as Romans 9 states.

Thus, Godfearing Gentiles, like our example of Cornelius, probably were more deeply devoted to Judaism than many native-born Jews.

In summary, let us tabulate our results from our search so far:

- I. Goyim: idolators, wicked, pagans,
- II. Foreigners (Ger toshev):
  - 1. Non Jews living in Israel
  - 2. Any Gentile who wanted to be righteous (i.e. "saved)
  - 3. Required to observe the 7 Noachide commandments
- III. Godfearers (Ger hashair)
  - 1. Required to observe the & Noachide commandments
  - 2. Required to observe the Sabbath
  - 3. Required to observe the dietary Laws plus others as they choose (Isa. 56)
  - 4. Expected to maintain synagogue discipleship where "Moses is preached" and not Paul
  - 5. Lack circumcision
- IV. Jews: Native Born -plus- Proselyte
  - 1. Proselytes were given all the requirements listed above for the Godfearer

- 2. Required circumcision for males
- 3. Required mikveh for females
- 4. Sacrifice in Temple (optional in Diaspora)
- 5. Pay Temple tax yearly

WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN FOR THE CHRISTIAN CONCERNING ACTS 15?

The vision related to Peter in Acts 10 and his subsequent experience with Cornelius and his household proved to Peter [also later to the zakenim (elders) and sh'likim (apostles)] that it was NOT NECESSARY for these "gerim" to proceed with full conversion to Judaism and undergo circumcision in order to receive God's provision of "Eternal Life". They could come as they were.....Godfearing Gentiles. There were only 4 further abstentions they needed to be clear about which actually delineated more clearly their already fully Jewish commitment.

- First, they should not eat food sacrificed to idols which gave the appearance that they have not given up idolatrous practices. It is this issue later at Antioch which will get Paul into trouble with the Jerusalem Council.
- Second, they should not engage in "blood" which is understood in the Laws of Noah as violence and premeditated murder for such destroys the very image of God within His creation.
- Third, they should not engage in sexual immorality as defined by Jewish standards which prohibit sex outside of marriage. Here again, the average "pagan Gentile" would see nothing wrong in visiting the prostitutes dedicated to serving and worshipping pagan Gods. Such conduct was not defined as immoral behavior outside of Israel but was so by God in the Torah. But it is a very grievous sin to the followers of the God of Israel (I Cor. 6:9-20), and should likewise be to those Godfearers who wish to follow Him.
- Lastly, abstention from meat of strangled animals (animals killed with the blood still left in the body) and from eating blood in general are a stronger reiteration of the Noachide regulations already understood and practiced by Godfearers (Gen. 9:4). James even concedes that they probably already knew these abstentions.. "For Moses (the Pentateuch) has been preached in every city..." These tenets would be nothing new for Godfearers but they sadly sure are for Christians and supposed followers of the Jewish Jesus today.

WAS CIRCUMCISION AND FORMAL ENTRY INTO JUDAISM MANDATORY FOR GODFEARERS?

No. These former Gentile pagans who were now known as Godfearers were already practicing the Torah in their household, where as most Christians today do not or at least are unknowledgeable about Torah and the Laws of God that frame their respective Covenant with God. These Godfearers were accepted within Messianic Judaism WITHOUT CIRCUMCISION [which was unheard of in Jesus' day with the majority of Judaism that was currently enforcing circumcision upon "non-Jews" before they could be accepted into the Israel of God. A smaller minority with first century Judaism, the School of Hillel, did not agree with this enforced circumcision of the "non-Jew" and had repented of their prior hatred of the Gentiles which was manifested in man-made requirements and "fences" to keep the "non-Jews" and Jews separate. Such hatred and dislike was manifested in enforced circumcision of the "non-Jew" by Israel when in fact the Covenant given the "non-Jews" of the world never required this of them by God. This minority accepted these Gentile believers as equal with themselves before God without circumcision whereas normative and the majority of Judaism would not at that time.

Understand that the Great Commission only emanated from the Messianic branch of Judaism and not Judaism proper in the first century. It was understood that these Gentile Godfearers would continue to study in the local synagogue and follow God Jewishly (understood as Biblical). By this time this included also following the 4 abstentions from Acts 15 (read the chapter for yourself for these Laws of Noah are mentioned twice in this book and are called "necessary" and which "seemed good to the Apostles and the Holy Spirit as well"). But as we have seen, these abstentions were based on guidelines they were already following anyway.

A good example of a congregation that failed even in these basic instructions is Corinth. It is noteworthy that Paul has to deal with several areas in which the Corinthian Gentile believers have failed to uphold the Acts 15 stipulations for inclusion into the Messianic Community: e.g. sexual immorality (one man sleeping with his father's wife, some congregates sleeping with prostitutes), and eating meat sacrificed to idols, etc. All of these sins are forbidden by the Laws of Noah.

Answer for yourself: Why all these problems with these new Gentile believers in Corinth?

These Gentile believers in the Church of Corinth are so uninformed of their Jewish roots that they use the occasion of the 4 Passover cups at the "Lord's Supper" to get drunk! The Godfearing guidelines for the congregation have already been lost and the people are in disarray.

Answer for yourself: Does your Christian Church or your Pastor teach and adhere to these "necessary things" which seemed good to the Holy Spirit and required by Jesus' church and its leadership for Gentile believers to be considered a part of Jesus' Church?

Dear brothers and sisters in the Lord, I have studied diligently for years and discovered these little known, and mostly forgotten FACTS which should serve as a clear warning to those Gentile congregations who are unknowledgeable of or openly flout the Acts 15 requirements which God, through the Holy Spirit, intended all Gentiles of the world to know, understand, adhere to, and observe.

WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN TO ME...A CHRISTIAN?

The Gentile Godfearers in Acts, who formed a large share of the core of the congregations founded by Paul, were not practicing pagans who were converted overnight. They were of a special class of Gentiles who had PREVIOUSLY been taught and nurtured in their local synagogues first, worshipping the God of Israel in Spirit and in Truth through specific Jewish acts and deeds as "new creatures" who turned from idolatry to Judaism. The "bottom line" of observance for Gentiles in the Jewish world of Second Temple Judaism and which were commanded to be taken in letters to strengthen Gentile churches throughout the world following the Acts 15 council would have been the 7 Noachide commandments (of which only 4 are mentioned in Acts 15).

Godfearing Gentiles, however, went even further "by choosing those things that please the Father" (Isa 56), observing the Sabbath, keeping the dietary laws, plus other Jewish observances that they had been taught by their local Jewish church leaders. Thus their life-style already identified them as Jews, even if the final ritual of formal conversion had not yet taken place. Acts 15 describes the full acceptance of these Godfearers by the leadership of Messianic Judaism in Jerusalem. The leaders of the Jerusalem church reemphasized 4 of the 7 guidelines contained in the Laws of Noah, which is a Covenant with Noah for all Gentiles of the world prior to progressive revelations and Covenants with the Jewish people which we discover were already what the Godfearers were already practicing. Actually we find similar Law Codes that remind us of these Laws of Noah all the way back to Sumer and pre-Egypt. The "non-Jews" were given these Laws in the beginning of the race of mankind it appears. If they maintained their Torah based practices, they would have congregations and practices co-equal with that of their Jewish brothers and sisters. If they failed to maintain their Godfearing life-styles and educational programs, they would fall into the traps of sin that were disrupting lives as seen in the Corinthian congregation.

It should be very plain by now that we as Christian Gentiles and followers of "the Christ" are intended to maintain Torah practices like those seen in the Biblical Godfearing Gentile examples of Cornelius and Acts 15 and the teachings of the Jerusalem Church. Such obedient Gentile Christians to the Gospel of Christ and Apostolic Doctrines, instead of adherence to "other Gospels" from denominational and non-denominational creeds and doctrines, which either contradict or neglect such Apostolic teachings, are to be desired by the Christian today. Of course this implies one has to be aware of this information and honest with himself and God who commanded this him in the first place.

"GODFEARERS" IN THE NEW TESTAMENT: THE "PATTERN" FOR GENTILE PARTICIPATION IN THE ISRAEL OF GOD #3

Recorded for us in the fifteenth chapter of the Book of Acts one of the most important events recorded in all of Scripture. That event is often overlooked by the majority of Christians who lack understanding of the dynamics of the New Testament as well as the attending history and culture of the first century. What we will see in this article is further proof substantiating "the pattern" for Gentile inclusion into the Israel of God as taught by first century Judaism and as by the Holy Spirit and enumerated by the Jerusalem Church and James as well as the other Apostles and elders of the first century church. I must remind you that these instructions and commands that came from the Messianic Jerusalem Synagogue and Council long after the time allotted for the death of this Jesus and this fact alone should have a dramatic impact and importance for us as "Christians" today.

Let us begin with a more detailed account of the history surrounding the events that precipitated the Apostolic Council of 50 C.E.

On reaching Antioch in Syria, from which place they had been sent forth on their mission, Paul and Barnabas took advantage of an early opportunity to assemble the believers and rehearse "all that God had done with them, and how He had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles." Acts 14:27. The church at Antioch was a large and growing one. A center of missionary activity, it was one of the most important of the groups of Christian believers. Its membership was made up of many classes of people from among both Jews and Gentiles.

While the apostles united with the ministers and lay members at Antioch in an earnest effort to reach the Gentiles with the Gospel of Christ, certain Jewish believers from Judea "of the sect of the Pharisees" [some but not all believed this heresy] succeeded in introducing a question that soon led to wide-spread controversy in the church and brought consternation to the believing Gentiles. With great assurance these Judaizing teachers asserted that in order for Gentiles to be saved and accepted within believing Israel, the believing Gentile must be circumcised and must keep the entire Law of Moses just the way the Jew has to [613 mitzvot which included circumcision].

Answer for yourself: Were these particular Pharisees teaching that the only way the "non-Jew" can come to God and be accepted with God is through "full conversion" and circumcision to Judaism which reflect the School of Shammai's view? Yes they are.

Answer for yourself: Having read the previous two articles, do you remember that Gentiles were not required by God to be circumcised to be Godfearers and "accepted by Him" as was Cornelius example we saw in Acts 10 [circumcision was not part of the Noachide Laws]? Do you recall that the "non-Jew" could be circumcised and make full conversion to Judaism and be considered as if they were themselves "Jews" and "born again" if they so desired? I hope you do.

Answer for yourself: Are you beginning to see the mercy of God which was expressed through this momentous Jerusalem Council's decision which catalyzed a movement within Judaism to take Eternal Life through the Torah to Gentiles throughout the world? Are you seeing that by not requiring of the "non-Jew" the rite of circumcision which was never required of them by God and which often resulted in the death of such a male that there were big objections to it by the majority of adult Gentile men and that this bigotry by certain Jews caused many of these "non-Jewish" men, as well as their families, to reject the monotheism of Judaism and remain in false worship and possibly die eternally lost?

Paul and Barnabas, aware of the Laws of Noah and the Noachide Covenant, and no longer bigoted in keeping such a simple salvation message from multitudes of Gentiles (like Jonah had previously gone to Ninevah to share the God of the Jews and the hope of their repentance), met this false doctrine head on. They opposed the requiring of the "non-Jew" be circumcised and called to obey all 613 Laws given to only the Jews for Gentiles to be accepted within the Jewish community and become "saved". They both opposed the continued enforcement by Judaizing Jews of such measures upon the Gentiles which God never gave them in the first place for acceptance with Him (remember Cornelius?).

On the other hand, many of the believing Jews of Antioch favored the position of these "circumcising and Judaizing" brethren which had recently come from Judea, for after all up until this time the only way Gentiles had full acceptance with Jews and Judaism was through circumcision since the House of Shammai was in ascendancy in that day and their "theology" ruled paramount over the majority of Judaism at this time. This Shammai "theology" made full conversion (proselyte) to Judaism mandatory and at the same time made these Gentile converts subject to all the Law like the Jews (613 Commandments).

From the result of the efforts and labors of Paul and Barnabas among the Gentiles it was evident that their "converts" to Messianic Judaism, whereby believing Gentiles were accepted within Judaism through adherence to the Laws of Noah, kosher, and Sabbaths [including Feasts and Festivals] without circumcision, would far exceed the Jewish converts in number [requiring circumcision]. The Judaizing Jews of Shammai feared that if all the Law (613 Mitzvoth which included circumcision) and commandments were not made obligatory upon the Gentiles as a condition of synagogue and church fellowship, the national peculiarities of the Jews, which had hitherto kept them distinct from all other people, would finally disappear from among those who interacted with these "non-Jews" and that Jews would be influenced to fall away from such Torah adherence.

The Jews had always prided themselves upon their divinely appointed services, and understood that God had once clearly outlined the Hebrew manner of worship, and that it was improbable that He would ever authorize a change in any of its specifications. They made one fatal flaw because of their racial prejudices...they imposed upon the Gentiles as conditions of acceptance in the Israel of God measures which God never commanded of them; namely circumcision and adherence to all the 613 Commandments in the Law of Moses (as a Noachide believer God gave 7 Commandments or Categories with 66 subsets or manifestations, not 613). These bigoted Judaizing Jews insisted that circumcision and adherence to all 613 of the Mosaic Laws should be incorporated into the rites of Messianic Judaism as far as the Gentiles were concerned.

In the church at Antioch the consideration of the question of circumcision resulted in much discussion and contention. Finally, the members of the church, fearing that a division among them would be the outcome of continued discussion, decided to send Paul and Barnabas, with some responsible men from the Antioch Assembly, to Jerusalem to lay the matter before the apostles and elders. There they were to meet delegates from the different churches and those who had come to Jerusalem to attend the approaching festivals. Meanwhile all controversy was to cease until a final decision should be given in general council by the leadership of the Jerusalem assembly which were, in this case, hand-picked by the Jewish Christ to lead the movement in its infancy. This decision on the matter was then to be universally accepted by the different churches throughout the world as letters recounting the final decision were to be circulated among the Gentile churches worldwide as seen in Acts 16.

On the way to Jerusalem the apostles visited the believers in the cities through which they passed, and encouraged them by relating their experience in the work of God and the conversion of the Gentiles.

At Jerusalem the delegates from Antioch met the brethren of the various churches, who had gathered for a general meeting, and to them they related the success that had attended their ministry among the Gentiles. They then gave a clear outline of the confusion that had resulted because "certain" converted Pharisees (who had accepted Yeshua as Messiah) had gone to Antioch declaring that, in order for the Gentiles who repented and believed in God through Yeshua to be saved, these Gentile converts must be circumcised and keep the law of Moses. Again we must understand that although the Bible records this statement, it does not instruct us that this statement is true, but to the contrary it instructs us that this view held by these Judaizing Jews who believed in Yeshua was incorrect and not of God.

This question was warmly discussed in the assembly. Intimately connected with the question of circumcision were several others demanding careful study. One was the problem as to what attitude should be taken toward the use of meats offered to idols. Many of the Gentile converts were living among ignorant and superstitious people who made frequent sacrifices and offerings to idols. The priests of this heathen worship carried on an extensive merchandise with the offerings brought to them, and the Jews feared that the Gentile converts would bring Christianity into disrepute by purchasing that which had been offered to idols, thereby sanctioning, in some measure, idolatrous customs.

Again, the Gentiles were accustomed to eat the flesh of animals that has been strangled which yet contained the blood of the animal, while the Jews had been divinely instructed that when beasts were killed for food, particular care was to be taken that the blood should flow from the body; otherwise the meat would not be regarded as wholesome. God had given these injunctions to the Jews for the purpose of preserving their health and spiritual vitality. The Jews regarded it as sinful to use blood as an article of diet. They held that the blood contained the very Soul and life of God and was sacred, and that the shedding of blood was in consequence of sin.

The Gentiles, on the contrary, practiced catching the blood that flowed from the sacrificial victim and using it in the preparation of food. The Jews could not believe that they ought to change the customs they had adopted under the special direction of God. Therefore, as things then stood, if Jew and Gentile should attempt to eat at the same table, the former would be shocked and outraged by the latter.

The Gentiles, and especially the Greeks, were extremely licentious, and there was danger that some, unconverted in heart, would make a profession of faith without repenting of their evil practices. The Jewish Christians could not tolerate the immorality that was not even regarded as criminal by the heathen. With this understanding you can see why some of the Jewish Messianic believers considered it as highly proper that circumcision and the observance of the Jewish Law should be enjoined on the Gentile converts as a test of their sincerity and devotion. This, they believed, would prevent the addition to the church of those who, adopting the faith without true conversion of heart, might afterward bring reproach upon the cause by immorality and excess.

The various points involved in the settlement of the main question at issue seemed to present before the council insurmountable difficulties. But the Holy Spirit had, in reality, already settled this question, upon the decision of which seemed to depend the prosperity, if not the very existence and influence, of the Christian church.

"When there had been much disputing, Peter rose up, and said unto them, Men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel, and believe." He reasoned that the Holy Spirit had decided the matter under dispute by descending with equal power upon the uncircumcised Gentiles and the circumcised Jews. He recounted his vision, in which God had presented before him a sheet filled with all manner of four-footed beasts and had bidden him kill and eat. When he refused, affirming that he had never eaten that which was common or unclean, the answer had been, "What God hath cleansed, that call not thou common." Acts 10:15.

Peter related the plain interpretation of these words, which was given him almost immediately in his summons to go to the centurion and instruct him in the faith of Judaism which likewise teaches the "non-Jew's" path to God. This message showed that God was no respecter of persons but rather accepted and acknowledged all men everywhere who feared Him (regardless if circumcised [Jews] or uncircumcised [Gentiles]). Peter told of his astonishment when, in speaking the words of truth to those assembled at the home of Cornelius, who could not understand Hebrew by the way, he witnessed the Holy Spirit taking possession of his hearers, Gentiles as well as Jews. The same light and glory that was reflected upon the circumcised Jews shone also upon the faces of the uncircumcised Gentiles and besides all of a sudden the "understanding of Cornelius" was opened and the same miracle occurred in the presence of Peter that had occurred some 17 years earlier when pilgrims for all over the Gentile world had their "understanding" of the Hebrew tongue made plain to them having no ability to understand Hebrew before that time. This is described as the Second Pentecost. This was God's warning that Peter was not to regard such a one, a supposedly "dog" and "scab" as looked upon by Judaism, as inferior to the Jew, for through faith, repentance, and obedience all of God's children are accepted with Him both Jew and "non-Jew". Needless to say Peter was floored and then he knew for certain that not only the School of Shammai was in error about what they taught concerning the "non-Jew" and how he is to come to God but that:

Acts 10:34-35 34 Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: 35 But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. (KJV)

Once before, Peter had reasoned with his brethren concerning the conversion of Cornelius and his friends, and his fellowship with them. As he on that occasion related how the Holy Spirit fell on the Gentiles he declared, "Forasmuch then as God gave them the like gift as He did unto us, who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ; what was I, that I could withstand God?" Acts 11:17. Now, with equal fervor and force, he said: "God, which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them (uncircumcised Gentiles who had not made full conversion to Judaism) the Holy Ghost, even as He did unto us (circumcised Jews); and put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith. Now therefore why tempt ye God, to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?"

Answer for yourself: What was this yoke that these Judaizing believing Jews tried to put on Gentile believers in God through Yeshua?

You see, God never promised salvation to the Jewish people by obedience to the Law, but by faith only. Obedience was expected by God for His precious gift of forgiveness of sins and when man failed then God provided the gift of repentance whereby man could once again make himself acceptable with God!

This "yoke" which was being Placed upon believing uncircumcised Gentiles was "obedience for salvation" [in particular circumcision and obeying all the 613 Laws]. These Judaizing believing Jews had forgotten that God never put on them circumcision and obedience to all the 613 Laws "FOR SALVATION," and to do so in regard to these Gentiles who are coming to God without circumcision was not of God.

Peter's address brought the assembly to a point where they could listen with patience to Paul and Barnabas, who related their experience in working for the Gentiles. "All the multitude kept silence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them."

James, the Pastor of the Jerusalem Church also bore his testimony with decision, declaring that it was God's purpose to bestow upon the Gentiles the same privileges and blessings that had been granted to the Jews.

The Holy Spirit saw good not to impose the law of circumcision, as well as all the 613 Laws of Moses on the Gentile converts, and the mind of the apostles regarding this matter was as the mind of the Spirit of God.

James presided at the council, and his final decision was, "Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them (by imposing mandatory circumcision and adherence to 613 Laws of Moses upon these Gentiles who are only by God the Laws of Noah), which from among the Gentiles are turned to God." If the Gentiles wanted to acquire commandments that would be their free choice whereby they could choose to obey those things which pleased God (Isa. 56).

In this instance James seems to have been chosen as the one to announce the decision arrived at by the council. It was his sentence that the entire Mosaic Law, which had previously been required by Jews for acceptance of Gentiles, and especially the ordinance of circumcision, should not be urged upon the Gentiles, or even recommended to them any longer.

Compelled by the love of Christ, the Apostles repented of their racial bigotry and influence of Shammai and returned to what God had originally commanded of all Gentiles (the Covenant and Laws of Noah), which when accepted and applied in their lives, brought acceptance with Him (remember Cornelius' prayers and alms was accepted with God before he was instructed by the Apostle Peter and the gospel that Peter came to preach about the Jewish Messiah).

James, the Pastor of the Jerusalem Church, sought to impress upon the minds of his brethren the fact that, in turning to God and accepting the tenants of Biblical Judaism (becoming new creatures as 2 Cor. 5:17 showed in the last article), the Gentiles had made a great change in their lives and that much caution should be used not to trouble them with perplexing and doubtful questions of minor importance, lest they be discouraged in following God.

The Gentile converts, however, were to give up the customs that were inconsistent with the principles contained in the Law of Moses. The apostles and elders therefore agreed to instruct the Gentiles in the Gentile nations of the world by letter to abstain from meats offered to idols, from fornication, from things strangled, and from blood (4 of the 7 Laws of Noah). These proto-Christians (Godfearers) were to be urged to keep the commandments which applied to them and which God had given them and to lead holy lives. They were not required by God or the Messianic Community to adhere to or observe Laws and Commandments which men laid upon them! Also, they were free to choose others commandments and incorporate them within their lives as such pleases God, but this was a matter for their further education, and such choices were to be manifestations of their love for God and their fellow man. They were also to be assured that the men who had declared circumcision to be binding were not authorized to do so by the apostles, because James distinctly tells us that he, nor any others under his authority gave such a command (Acts 15:24).

Paul and Barnabas were recommended to them as men who had hazardedly risked their lives for the Lord.

Judas and Silas were sent with these apostles to declare to the Gentiles worldwide by word of mouth the decision of the council: "It seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; that ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well." The four servants of God were sent to Antioch with the epistle and message of the First Church Council that was to put an end to all controversy; for it was the voice of the highest authority upon the earth; namely the continued ministry of the Holy Spirit!

Answer for yourself: As a Christian today, have you been made aware of the Noachide Laws and that they are considered as "necessary things" by the Holy Spirit for you to be part of the people of God?

Answer for yourself: If these "necessary things" concerning the Laws of Noah were required to be a member in the Jerusalem Church and the Israel of God, then if you are not as Godfearers and believing Gentiles following the example of Cornelius and the teachings of James and adhering to such things as kosher and unclean food laws which are contained within the Laws of the Covenant of Noah, then, according to the Jerusalem Church and the decision rendered by them which seemed good to James and the Apostles as well as the Holy Spirit, are you SPIRITUALLY and OBEDIENTLY actually part of Christ's Church or rather a part of some man's church which has their own agenda (even though you attend a gathering somewhere)?

Answer for yourself: Since you were most likely not aware of the gravity of the situation, what do you think would have happened if you had died before you came to these truths?

Answer for yourself: Now, having come to the truth, do you remember what the Jewish Christ is to have spoken: "why do you say you love me and not obey me?" Well it is quite evident that the Jewish Christ has commanded certain things be done by Gentile believers (Godfearers), and the omission of those in the light of Scriptural knowledge can only be understood as rebellion which is as bad a sin as witchcraft!

Answer for yourself: I understand that if asked you will say you love the Jewish Christ, but how strong is that love for him if you fail to take to heart the message presented in this article and repent of false belief systems you inherited in Gentile antisemitic churches your whole life because your traditional Gentile Pastors have failed to study out such truths and present them to you properly?

The council which decided this case was composed of apostles and teachers who had been prominent in raising up the Jewish and Gentile Christian churches, with chosen delegates from various places. Elders from Jerusalem and deputies from Antioch were present, and the most influential churches were represented. The council moved in accordance with the dictates of enlightened judgment, and with the dignity of a church established by the divine will. As a result of their deliberations they all saw that God Himself had answered the question at issue by bestowing upon the Gentiles the Holy Ghost; and they realized that it was their part to follow the guidance of the Spirit by re-affirming the Laws of Noah upon all Gentile believers as "necessary " for their inclusion and right fellowship in the Israel of God.

The entire body of Christians was not called to vote upon the question. The "apostles and elders," men of influence and judgment, framed and issued the decree, which was thereupon generally accepted by the Christian churches. Not all, however, were pleased with the decision; not will be with these articles. But the truth is the truth! There was a faction of ambitious and self-confident brethren who disagreed with it, and will with what I have exposed in this article. But dear child of God, Biblical history as well as the original languages of the Bible does not lie nor the testimony of Judaism for thousands of years and is the final authority in all issues of disagreement! Those who disagree with what is written in these articles by murmuring and faultfinding, and proposing new plans and seeking to pull down the work of the men whom God had ordained to teach the real gospel message to a world full of Gentiles (no less James, John, Peter, Paul) will get their full reward for being false teachers! From the first the church has had such obstacles to meet and ever will have till the close of time.

The broad and far-reaching decisions of the general council brought confidence into the ranks of the Gentile believers, and the cause of God prospered. In Antioch the church was favored with the presence of Judas and Silas, the special messengers who had returned with the apostles from the meeting in Jerusalem. "Being prophets also themselves," Judas and Silas, "exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them" by sharing the decision of the Jerusalem Council and James. These godly men tarried in Antioch for a time. "Paul also and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others also."

The history of this momentous event in the spread of the Gospel to the Gentiles like you and me stands as a solemn warning to men in positions of trust in the cause of God, that they may not fail in integrity, but firmly adhere to principle. The greater the responsibilities placed upon the human agent, and the larger his opportunities to dictate and control, the more harm he is sure to do if he does not carefully follow the way of the Lord and labor in harmony with the decisions arrived at by the general body of believers in united council.

In his ministry, Paul was often compelled to stand alone. He was specially taught of God and dared make no concessions that would involve principle. At times the burden was heavy, but Paul stood firm for the right (most of the time..but there is that problem of the Antioch Incident). He realized that the church must never be brought under the control of human power. The traditions and maxims of men must not take the place of revealed truth. The advance of the gospel message must not be hindered by the prejudices and preferences of men, whatever might be their position in the church. It is such a spirit that Bet Emet Ministries continues to illuminate the way of obedience and holiness which is a measure of our love for God.

Answer for yourself: Was the Book of Acts written following the death of this New Testament Jesus? Yes.

Answer for yourself: If we discover major teachings from the Jewish Christ's church issued AFTER THE CROSS which were directed to ALL the Gentiles of the known world, then should this teaching and practice intended for Gentiles (like you and me-remember that it came AFTER THE CROSS OF THE MESSIAH), also apply to us today? Most assuredly!

Answer for yourself: When the Jewish Christ commanded his disciples and Apostles to go into all the world and "teach them (Gentiles) to observe those things I have commanded you," can we say for certain that some of "those things" which were to be taught and obeyed by ALL the Gentiles was the decision and teachings that would later come from the first "church council" in 50 C.E. since such teaching is said to "seem right to the Holy Spirit?" Most assuredly!

Answer for yourself: Do you see that the momentous decisions reached at the first church council literally laid the foundation for what was "necessary" for Gentiles to be "saved" and included in the the Jewish Christ (Jesus) Messianic Movement and church? Most assuredly we can and must since it not only "seemed right to the Holy Spirit" but was understood as being taught by the Jewish Christ to the disciples previously.

Answer for yourself: As you read the following articles, I ask you to be honest in asking yourself that if Gentiles like you and me are to be "taught to obey those things the Jewish Christ commanded them," then why is it that you have been attending Christian Churches your whole life and never were acquainted with nor taught to obey the things that you discovered in these articles? You must answer that for yourself.

Answer for yourself: Is it of the remotest possibility that you, after finishing this article, will come to the inescapable conclusion that you have definitely failed to be taught many fundament truths concerning the foundations of what your faith in the Jewish Christ should consist of and commanded by the first church of the Jewish Christ? Most assuredly!

So often many mistakenly believe that the "cross of Christ" altered "this or that" whereby many mistakenly lean on their own understanding or other's erroneous teachings in arriving at conclusions that often set the course of their beliefs, conduct and behavior which, unfortunately, CANNOT be supported and affirmed when compared with many other Scriptures and other facts and evidences that exist outside this Bible that "correct" such erroneous former conclusions. Thus, our faith and conduct cannot be RIGHT, and thus accepted by God if it does not line up with EVERY SCRIPTURE and all sources of facts and evidences that support the Hebrew Scriptures and at the same times expose the unreliable texts of Rome as forgeries crafted to create a false religion to steer the "non-Jew" away from Biblical Judaism. Unknowingly, much of the traditional Christian's reasoning violates Scripture and often such reasoning, when conceived in acts and deed, is defined by the Bible as "sin." The root of such "sin" and error is "false teachings" which often is caused by the lack of in-depth teaching by the vast majority of Christianity today and their leaders which seems to focus on "milk" instead of the "meat" of the Word of God. Without knowledge of the Bible as it was taught and understood when written and received by the "hearers" way back then and in the culture where it was received then we cannot be sure that our understanding is right when simply reading the English Roman texts because, as you have seen, and continue to see, the English language does great injustice to both the Greek and Hebrew language, thus distorting and completely changing the original meanings of Scripture in numerous instances. Some of this is accidental and some of this is purposeful; in fact the majority of "key" discrepancies and anti-Jewish propaganda and dogma in this Roman Bible received is purposeful; make no mistake about this.

The sad thing is that we spend our whole lives "thinking" our life-style is pleasing to God, where if we would have studied, learned, and repented where necessary when show a higher walk with God from the fruit of such study, we could have spotted hidden sins in our life and repented of them that stem from our lack of understanding of the Jewish Bible and the places where it is altered and later forged by Rome. In such study we would have had confident assurance that our lives are truly acceptable to God and a good witness of this God and his true message to others.

Answer for yourself: Has the failure on your part to study in-depth robbed you of vital information so necessary to your obedience to God and possibly are you not aware of the depth of what I ask at this moment? "Most definitely" is the answer that most honest Christians should utter at such a question.

Answer for yourself: Is the church council of 50 C.E. LOADED with hidden truths which, when known, should alter the course of the Christian's life? Most definitely!

As you can see, this momentous church council occurred in 50 C.E. in Jerusalem and speaks to the Christian today. Sadly, very few Christians have known the extent of what is taught in Acts 15, nor heard their pastor teach on the subject. The participants at this first church council are the zakenim (elders) and sh'likim (apostles) which formed the foundation for this new Messianic movement which was headed by the Jewish Christ, the chief cornerstone. Let us never forget that the Jewish Christ's church is built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, and not the Baptists or the Catholics, yet the majority of Christians today know very little about the "apostolic doctrine" taught by the early church of the first century.

Ephesians chapter two draws out attention now.

Eph 2:19 Now <3767> therefore <686> ye are <2075> (5748) no more <3765> strangers <3581> and <2532> foreigners <3941>, but <235> fellowcitizens <4847> with the saints <40>, and <2532> of the household <3609> of God <2316>;

20 And are built <2026> (5685) upon <1909> the foundation <2310> of the apostles <652> and <2532> prophets <4396>, Jesus <2424> Christ <5547> himself <846> being <5607> (5752) the chief corner <204> [stone]

Lexicon Greek 2310

2310 themelios {them-el'-ee-os} or themelion {them-el'-ee-on} from a derivative of 5087; TDNT - 3:63,322; adj AV - foundation 16; 16

- 1) laid down as a foundation, the foundation (of a building, wall, city)

- 2) metaph. the foundations, beginnings, first principals
- 2a) of institution or system of truth

Notice that in verse 19 the subject of the verse are Gentiles who are coming to God through the Jewish Christ. It is these Gentiles, like you and I, who are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, and NOT DENOMINATIONAL AND NON-DENOMINATIONAL doctrines and teachings of a later Gentile Christianity as it separated from its Jewish Roots. Such teachings of this Gentile Church can be shown today to violate and contradict the Hebrew Scripture in multitudes of places. The Bible clearly and distinctly tells we are to be built upon the foundation of the Apostle's Doctrine (the Apostle's system of truth). We can start with Acts 15 and go from there as "Moses is taught in the Synagogues" as were the earliest "non-Jews" coming to the God of Israel,

Answer for yourself: Are you confident that what you have heard preached in your church your whole life is the Apostle's system of truth? How can you be sure?

You are mistaken if you said "yes", for the vast majority of contemporary Christian churches today teach and preach an antisemitic and anti-Judaic doctrine, either knowingly or unknowingly. Either way, this doctrine is incorrect and leads to major violations of obedience that the Bible terms "sin."

Answer for yourself: Have you ever compared Gentile Christian dogmas with Judaism and their religious beliefs on the same subjects? Would you care to? You better set down for this one!

The tragic part is that the vast majority of good Christians are not aware of such "sin" that is robed in antisemitic Christian religious doctrines and dogmas that is passed off as "orthodoxy" every Sunday to 2.5 billion uninformed Christians week after week.

Instead, the average Christian knows only their "denominational and denominational" doctrines, which are Constantinian to the core and more often than not, conflict with and oppose "Apostolic Doctrine" which the Jewish Christ and the Apostles both believed, taught, and took to the Gentiles in fulfillment of the Great Commission throughout the world. You may have never noticed, but the Great Commission of Matt. 28 DOES NOT SAY to take the Jewish Christ to the world, or the later theologies that will be created about him over the next 500 years by emerging Gentile Christianity and their Church Councils but instead it mandates that the Torah and the Law of Moses in the form of obedience to Commandments of God be taken to the Gentile world and this was done in Acts 15 and 16 when the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah were taught to the "non-Jewish" world as part of this Apostolic Doctrine. Maybe you should read it for yourself slowly and think what it is really saying and not rely on what you have heard others say it says!

"Not so you say," well lets investigate the Great Commission in the next article and I promise you that you will be amazed by what you will now learn. Shalom!

"GODFEARERS" IN THE NEW TESTAMENT: THE PATTERN FOR GENTILE PARTICIPATION IN THE ISRAEL OF GOD #4

We concluded the previous article with anticipation as we were to see just "what" was to be taken to the Gentiles of the world in fulfillment of the Great Commission given not only to the disciples and apostles, but to you and me as well as believers in God through the Jewish Christ.

Let me fore warn you that a study of the Greek words will not only challenge what you have been told and heard from preachers who stopped with the English translation, but what is more startling, understanding of the original meanings of the Greek and Hebrew words will CORRECT what you have been incorrectly taught by well-meaning pastors and teachers who lack these necessary language skills!

Answer for yourself: When the Jewish Christ commanded his disciples and Apostles to go into all the world in an effort to teach and disciple all men everywhere (the Gentiles) to observe those things he had previously commanded them (the Torah), do you think he was aware that he would have to wait a thousand years for the English language to be developed in order for the real meaning of what he intended could be conveyed to the hearers? Do you think that he was content to wait for 380 years before Rome will canonize a "New Bible" called the New Testament? Or do you think the Jewish Christ understood perfectly what was to be conveyed to his disciples and did perfectly convey to the Apostles such message, and they, correctly understanding the message set out in obedience to his commands and accomplished the task right then and there as seen in Acts 15 and 16 and following where the Jerusalem Council took the message of God as to how the "non-Jews" and Gentiles were to become part of believing Israel, the Israel of God and the Kingdom of Heaven?

Answer for yourself: Is it possible we lost much of the truths God intended we receive as "non-Jews" when the Jewish Christ's message was translated from Hebrew Gospels into the Greek language and lost even more when this Greek translation of Hebrew thoughts and words was finally translated into English by men who left hundreds of traces of their dishonesty in forging these New Testament documents we are taught to revere today?

Answer for yourself: Do you know that linguists tell us words change meaning every 70 years, and that being so how much have we failed to understand of God's revelation and the Jewish Christ, as well as the Apostles' words which undeniably have changed in meaning since the original context in which they were spoken or written almost 2000 years ago?

....after that he (the Jewish Christ) through the Holy Spirit had given commandments to the Apostles whom he had chosen...

Answer for yourself: Do you see that the Jewish Christ continued to direct the Apostles (Jerusalem Church and the Acts Council) through the ministry of the Holy Spirit ("it seemed good to us and the Holy Spirit...that Gentiles adhere to these 4 'necessary things'" to be part of the the Jewish Christ Movement and the Jewish Christ's Church)?

Answer for yourself: Since I have shown you through examination of the original language as well as the Biblical history surrounding the events concerning the inclusion of believing Gentiles in Israel and Messianic Judaism (the Jewish Christ's Church) following the time allotted for the life and death of this Jesus (without the necessity of circumcision as had been previously required by bigoted Jews) and since we have seen as well that the Jewish Christ continued to direct and spiritually lead the Apostles up and through the Jerusalem Council through the Holy Spirit, then if you have a faith or belief system that ignores, neglects, or says that such things as kosher is just for the Jews, that the Sabbaths of the Lord are just for the Jews, or that you are a New Covenant believer without understanding that the Jewish Christ commanded adherence to the Covenant of Noah AFTER the time of this Jesus, then can you not see that you have been deceived and have not been given the correct message the Jewish Christ intended all Gentiles like you and me receive?

As you can see the above scenario illustrates an important point; namely that in any translation of languages (for example from Hebrew to Greek, and then from Greek to English) the concepts and meanings carried by the "original word" or words from the original language MUST be faithfully carried over to the second language or third language if the intent of the speaker (ie. the Jewish Christ/ Apostles/Paul) is to be retained uncorrupted and truth is to be obtained from these passages and applied to our lives correctly

Answer for yourself: Since the Jewish Christ is a Jew and spoke Hebrew, do we as Gentile believers today, when reading the English language of our Bibles (which is a translation of a Greek translation that is a translation of the original Hebrew) receive the original thoughts intended by the Jewish Christ when commanding his followers to go into all the world with his message in the Great Commission? Before you answer "yes" to this question I suggest you read a book entitled Understanding the Difficult Words of the Jewish Christ by Roy Blizzard and David Bivin and you will get the shock of your life when you see just how far "off" the English is from the Hebrew ideas and thoughts which fail to be brought over into the English we read in our Bibles.

Such "disclosure of truth" from the original language is good because we are finally getting to the REAL WORDS OF the Jewish Christ, and only that way, can we truly understand his message both then and NOW. To do otherwise, by trusting translations in English without personal evaluation on the believer's part of the original language of the texts we read, often leads us into sins of conduct and behavior of which we are not aware because the English words fail to convey to us the original intended meaning of the Word of God and their corresponding actions which are required by God.

THE GREAT COMMISSION-A CLOSE EXAMINATION:

Let us examine the Great Commission from Matthew 28 and its implication for Gentile evangelism and the impact on the Godfearing Gentiles as seen in the Book of Acts.

Matt 28:18 (KJV) And <2532> the Jewish Christ <2424> came <4334> (5631) and spake <2980> (5656) unto them <846>, saying <3004> (5723), All <3956> power <1849> is given <1325> (5681) unto me <3427> in <1722> heaven <3772> and <2532> in <1909> earth <1093>. 19 Go ye <4198> (5679) therefore <3767>, and teach <3100> (5657) all <3956> nations <1484>, baptizing <907> (5723) them <846> in <1519> the name <3686> of the Father <3962>, and <2532> of the Son <5207>, and <2532> of the Holy <40> Ghost <4151>: {teach...: or, make disciples of all nations} 20 Teaching <1321> (5723) them <846> to observe <5083> (5721) all things <3956> whatsoever <3745> I have commanded <1781> (5662) you <5213>: and <2532>, lo <2400> (5628), I <1473> am <1510> (5748) with <3326> you <5216> always <3956> <2250>, [even] unto <2193> the end <4930> of the world <165>. Amen <281>.

Let us continue this very important study by looking at the word "go":

4198 poreuomai {por-yoo'-om-ah-ee} middle voice from a derivative of the same as 3984; TDNT - 6:566,915; v AV - go 117, depart 11, walk 9, go (one's) way 8, misc 9; 154

- 1) to lead over, carry over, transfer
- 1a) to pursue the journey on which one has entered, to continue on one's journey
- 1b) to depart from life
- 1c) to follow one, that is: become his adherent
- 1c1) to lead or order one's life

Let us now examine the tenses for the word "go":

Lexicon Greek 5679

5679 Tense - Aorist See 5777 Voice - Passive Deponent See 5789 Mood - Participle See 5796

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that the word "go" in the Greek IS NOT A VERB, BUT A PARTICIPLE and is used by the Holy Spirit in the "passive voice" ?

A proper interpretation would be as follows: "as you go through life and as you order your life in its daily course, journey, and routine, without any big fan-fare or big productions (like renting football stadiums or coliseums and holding massive evangelist crusades), order your life in such a way that you let your light of your correct beliefs and obedience shine and be for a witness and a teaching tool to those you influence and have contact, thereby bringing them into the knowledge of the God of Israel and what He requires and deems "necessary" to be part of the Jewish Christ's Church (being a Godfearer...who adheres to the decision of the Jerusalem Council concerning Gentiles who are to accept the Covenant of Noah and who can afterward choose those things that please God "as Moses is read" as shown in Isa. 56... such as the Sabbaths [Feasts, Festivals, and Weekly Sabbaths])."

Answer for yourself: What amazes me is that most Christian churches gear up for big productions and events in hoping to win some to Christ, not realizing that the best evangelism is person-to-person, not person-to-crowd evangelism that has little or no follow-up with little or no accountability and discipleship. Notice again that "go" is in the passive voice, meaning don't make a special attempt or don't go out of your way to evangelize or plan for such large promotions that detract from the personal approach which is best done by the example of your life (one-on-one).

Answer for yourself: Can you now better understand that the failure of the Christian Church to "win the world" over the last 1900 years is not for lack of "effort" in hold big meetings, big crusades, and building big monstrous churches that can house a lot of strangers," rather we have failed because we have put on the "few who we hire as representative ministers" OUR PERSONAL RESPONSIBILITY found in the Great Commission that requires that all believers to let their lives be a "model" that would attract those to whom we have influence and contact to God? I hope so.

Let us look at the Greek word used by the Holy Spirit for "teach."

3100 matheteuo {math-ayt-yoo'-o} from 3101; TDNT - 4:461,552; v AV - teach 2, instruct 1, be disciple 1; 4

- 1) to be a disciple of one
  - 1a) to follow his precepts and instructions
- 2) to make a disciple
  - 2a) to teach, instruct

The "root" word in the Greek for "teach" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 3101 3101 mathetes {math-ay-tes'} from 3129; TDNT - 4:415,552; n m AV - disciple 268, vr disciple 1; 269

1) a learner, pupil, disciple

Let us now examine the voice and mood:

Lexicon Greek 5657 5657 Tense - Aorist See 5777 Voice - Active See 5784

Mood - Imperative See 5794 Count - 376

Answer for yourself: What does the imperative tense mean?

Lexicon Greek 5794 5794 Mood - Imperative

The imperative mood corresponds to the English imperative, and expresses a command to the hearer to perform a certain action by the order and authority of the one commanding. Thus, the Jewish Christ's phrase, "Repent ye, and believe the gospel" (Mk.1:15) is not at all an "invitation," but an absolute command requiring full obedience on the part of all hearers.

Answer for yourself: Do you see that the Holy Spirit used the imperative mood of the word "teach" to instruct us that we HAVE BEEN COMMANDED by orders of the one commanding (the Jewish Christ), to teach the doctrines and precepts of the Jewish Christ, and which was verified to the Jerusalem Council by the Holy Spirit to ALL Gentiles, thus helping all Gentiles of all nations become disciples of the Jewish Christ and his faith? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Did you see that we have been given an absolute command requiring our absolute obedience to teach ONLY THOSE THINGS WHICH HE COMMANDED and not the traditions and doctrines of men which make what he commanded and the Commandments of God of none effect? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware from these previous studies that in many instances the Christian Church has done just the opposite of what the Jewish Christ commanded, and that the Christian Church stands guilty of "Sin" for having replaced many of the teachings of the Jewish Christ, as well as many which were given to his Apostles which seemed good to the Holy Spirit, with those of their own creation which have anti-Semitic and anti-Judaic motives? I hope so.

Notice that the Jewish Christ's disciples and Apostles were to teach all

Gentiles in all nations to observe the things both believed and taught by the Jewish Christ.

One small look at Gentile Christian Doctrine, as compared with Biblical Judaism, and one notices right away the wide gulf that exists between what Jews believe and what Christians believe.

Answer for yourself: If the Jewish Christ believed things which you do not, should you not repent and accept the mind of Christ and his beliefs and cast down beliefs you hold when shown to be incorrect when compared to the "religious belief system" of a Jew like this the Jewish Christ in the first century?

Answer for yourself: If we as Christians have a belief system that can be shown to be contradicted by the teachings of the Jewish Christ, his Apostles, the original languages of the Bible, and facts and evidences that exist outside this Roman Bible that proves it forgery or as the Holy Spirit as revealed in Scripture, should we not cast down, no matter what the source, our vain imaginations that exalt themselves against the truth and knowledge of God contained in the Hebrew Bible and texts when correctly understood and validated all today's facts and evidences of modern scholarship which shows us without a doubt that this New Testament is a gross forgery in certain "key" places?

Answer for yourself: the Jewish Christ in Jn. 7:16 state "My doctrine is not mine, but His that sent me." Knowing this, can the Jewish Christ teach or preach something other than the doctrines of God that existed then and which can be traced to Sinai and the giving of the commandments of God? No.

Answer for yourself: the Jewish Christ in Jn. 14:23 states (KJV): "the Jewish Christ answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him. 24 He that loveth me not keepeth not my sayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which sent me." If we don't keep the Jewish Christ's words, which are the Father's Words spoken to the Apostles through the Holy Spirit, can we say we really love him since he says our failure to keep his words is anything but an expression of love?

WE HAVE ALREADY SEEN IN THIS SITE HOW YESHUA AND PAUL DISAGREE ON SALVATION AND AT OTHER OF OUR SITES WE EXAMINE INDIVIDUAL RELIGIOUS DOCTRINES WHERE ROMANIZED PAUL ABSOLUTELY CORRECTS AND CHANGES THE TEACHINGS OF THE JEWISH CHRIST.

No, it appears to me that our failure to obey the words of this Jewish Christ is evidence of a lack of love for him and God who sent this message into the world through His Logos, this Jewish Christ within us all.

Answer for yourself: Did the Jewish Christ say that our failure to obey his words is an indication we don't love him, and are his words found in the Acts 15 Church Council's decision? Yes, you bet they are.

Answer for yourself: Did the Jewish Christ say that his word was not his, but his Father's word? Yes

Answer for yourself: Can we be certain...absolutely certain... that the Jewish Christ NEVER changed his Father's words, and those things he commanded his disciples to take to the Gentiles was his Father's Words ("teach them [Gentiles] to observe the commandments") as well as the words spoken by the Holy Spirit in Acts 15 which affirm the Laws of Noah for all Gentiles as necessary to be part of the Jewish Christ movement and his church? Absolutely. This of course requires a good bit of study but this is our responsibility before God as well, and let us not forget that Biblical Judaism has always taught that study is the highest form of worship of God that exists.

Answer for yourself: Since the Jewish Christ did not have the authority or desire to change his Father's Laws, then what give us as Christians the right to change the Father's Words (Acts 15 for an example since our traditional Christian experience contradicts what is recorded and commanded by the church and the "non-Jews" by the Jewish Christ and the Holy Spirit in Acts 15).....or even more, to violate his words by substituting our denomination's faith, message, dogmas, doctrines, ordinances, visions, plans, desires and programs, and even worse, doing so in his name?

Let us examine the word for "nations" as found in the Great Commission:

Lexicon Greek 1484 1484 ethnos {eth'-nos} probably from 1486; TDNT - 2:364,201; n n AV - Gentiles 93, nation 64, heathen 5, people 2; 164

- 1) a multitude (whether of men or of beasts) associated or living together
- 1a) a company, troop, swarm
- 2) a multitude of individuals of the same nature or genus
- 2a) the human race
- 3) a race, nation, people group
- 4) foreign nations not worshipping the true God, pagans, Gentiles
- 5) Paul uses the term for Gentile Christians*****

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that in the Great Commission only Gentiles, and not Jews were to be taught? I hope so. You see I found that Judaism has always had "the truth" of God; it is us, the "non-Jews" of the world who are best described:

Eph 2:11-12 11 Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Do you see that the Jewish Christ intended the Jews, who according to Romans 9:4 ("Who are Israelites (Jews) to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the Law, and the service of God, and the promises) had these Godly truths and manifestations of their religion, were to share with the Gentiles their religion (Second Temple Conservative Pharisaical Judaism)?

Answer for yourself: Why did the Gentiles need adoption, glory, covenants, Law, service of God and the promises?

Simply because the Gentiles of the world had false religion and their worship of God was in vain!

Let us read it again...and THINK!!!

Eph 2:12 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: (KJV)

Answer for yourself: How could the Apostle Paul, after the time of this Jesus as depicted in the New Testament, use the term "Gentiles" [which according to our definition inferred false religion and worship] for "Christian Gentiles" after they had come to the knowledge of God (Monotheism)? That's easy. The Apostle

Paul understood, like you should, that just because you come to the faith and knowledge of God as the ONLY God, your "converted" Gentile Christian religious belief system and lives are yet filled with memories of "what you used to do in a religious setting before you learn from the Jew about God's adoption, glory, covenants, Law, service of God, and the promises of God."

It would be so much easier today if we did not have to unlearn much of what we have accepted in religious teachings believing what we were told was God's truth our whole lives. But much of what has been passed off as truths from God are in reality manifestations of Replacement Religion begun long ago by the early Gentile Christian Church of the Dark Ages, who being very antisemitic and anti-Judaic, changed and substituted "their understandings" for what the Jewish Christ commanded the Jew to teach them. Simply said Jew-hating Gentiles in power, men like Constantine, made sure the "non-Jewish" world did not look to the Jews or Judaism for anything; let alone Spiritual Truth. You only have to read about Constantine and his Easter Letter to see this for yourself. Scholarship reveals the tragic events of such a deception which you and I have accepted wholeheartedly without questioning and study to verify if what we were told is the truth as it existed in the Jewish Christ's day and thereafter before changed by Constantine in the fourth century and others like him because of hatred toward the Jews.

Answer for yourself: Is it possible to go to Christian Churches who do not teach the Hebrew Roots of the Church and be completely devoid in your Christian religious belief system of truths concerning adoption, glory, covenants? Did you notice in the above passage from Ephesians the word "Covenants" is in the "plural"; thus meaning more than one? Yet Christian Churches only tell you about one...ie., as in "new", when the real word in the Hebrew does not mean "new, as in replaced" but "renewed, as in keeping the same but reaffirming it". Thus this is a reference to not a "new" covenant after all, but to others like the Covenant of Noah which stand side by side with the Covenant of Moses. The passage goes on to speak of other things given the Jews by God; namely, the Law, the service of God [Hebrew for worship], and the promises of God!

Answer for yourself: Can we go to church our whole lives and never understand what is contained in this passage of Ephesians 2 that refer to the Jews and their gifts from God that they are required to share with the "non-Jewish" world since they are God's Holy Nation and Royal Priesthood? Let me answer that for you. I was! Even after Baptist Seminary I was to a large extent for I was taught from a Gentile "perspective" all the while forgetting that the Jewish Christ said "salvation IS of the Jews"....not "WAS of the Jews"!

As the disciples and Apostles of the Jewish Christ "went" in fulfillment of the Great Commission they were to be teaching the Gentiles to observe those things commanded of God as taught and reminded by the Jewish Christ.

Let us focus on the Greek term for "teaching" as found in the Great Commission:

Lexicon Greek 1321 1321 didasko {did-as'-ko} a prolonged (causative) form of a primary verb dao (to learn);

TDNT - 2:135,161; v AV - teach 93, taught + 2258 4; 97

- 1) to teach
  - 1a) to hold discourse with others in order to instruct them, deliver didactic discourses
  - 1b) to be a teacher
  - 1c) to discharge the office of a teacher, conduct one's self as a teacher
- 2) to teach one
  - 2a) to impart instruction
  - 2b) instill doctrine into one
  - 2c) the thing taught or enjoined
  - 2d) to explain or expound a thing
  - 2e) to teach one something

Answer for yourself: Was the Jewish Christ intending the Gentiles of the world learn "Apostolic doctrines" as it existed then and which the early church "steadfastly continued in adherence towards according to Acts 2:42" or was he referring to Greek Catholic doctrines taken from a purposeful corrupted Greek translation of the prior Hebrew texts, antisemitic Reformation doctrines taught by John Chrysostom and Luther and others, or Protestant doctrines which would be created much later which seem to be a better "compromise" than the harsh unmerciful ones that were responsible for Rome killing millions of Jews throughout the middle ages and burning them and their families alive in their synagogues along with all their Torah scrolls and Tanakhs whereby today the oldest existing Torah scrolls cannot be found any earlier than 900 to 1000 A.D. due to the extermination of the Jews, their truths, and their religious documents by the glorious Roman Church who were doing God a favor by killing them along with their Divine truths? It was only with the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls some 50 years ago that the earth brought forth a thousand year older Isaiah manuscript and whole scroll (book) that exactly agrees with this much older Jewish scroll from 900 to 1000 A.D. which today proves the forgery of the LXX from the prior existing Hebrew Scriptures. This fact alone validates the Hebrew Scriptures over the Greek and validates Judaism over a falsified Christianity which today stands naked and ashamed for what it has done to the world. That should not be hard for you to understand as your studies progress as you see the horror of what has happened to "the faith once given saints" at the hands of Rome some 1,700 years at present. And tragically and sadly this same dogma and doctrine is preached from our pulpits from Sunday to Sunday and no one seems to know or care that over 6000 alterations have been made to the Greek and English Isaiahs we carry in our Christian Bibles and Isaiah 53 still is seen as the backbone of Christian Theology and the Christian Faith when examination of the Isaiah scroll and the Hebrew Bibles that exist today which agree totally theologically this Qumran Hebrew Isaiah which corrects the Greek and 1,700 years of Christian lies about the Jewish Messiah and shows the truth about this Roman Jesus presented in this Roman book that undergirds all of Christianity today. No wonder the Jews cannot believe in this Christian Jesus or let alone begin to believe he is the Jewish Messiah. They have the real Bible, they have the real deal; it is us who follow the fables and Catholic "make believe" and never know it because we are not taught the value of study by Christianity.

Answer for yourself: Any wonder why now that study is not paramount in Christianity?

Answer for yourself: Do you see that the Jewish Christ intended his Apostles and Paul, as well as others, to share with Gentiles, to instruct them, teach them, impart instruction, instill doctrine into them, and explain and expound the things he taught? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Having heard repeatedly in churches our whole lives that we are to take the Jewish Christ to the nations and for them to accept him and believe "in him" and the theology that surround him in this Roman New Testament then does not the Great Commission in reality actually say JUST THE OPPOSITE; that we are to TEACH GENTILES TO OBSERVE what the Jewish Christ COMMANDED concerning the Laws and Commandments he is to "observe" in the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah and not replace such an absolute commandment from the Jewish Christ which was given to his Apostles and disciples with "man-made doctrines created around the Roman identify of this "Jewish Christ"?

Answer for yourself: Where does the Great Commission say we are to teach "theology" about Christology or the doctrines around the Jewish Messiah to anyone let alone that Jesus is the Jewish Messiah? It simply does not? It does not command that the death, burial and resurrection of this Roman Jesus be taught to anyone let alone the decisions of the Nicean Council of 325 A.D. Instead what does it command?

It commands that the "non-Jews" are to be taught "what to observe"!

Let us examine the Greek word for "observe."

Lexicon Greek 5083 5083 tereo {tay-reh'-o} from teros (a watch, perhaps akin to 2334); TDNT - 8:140,1174; v

AV - keep 57, reserve 8, observe 4, watch 2, preserve 2, keeper 1, hold fast 1; 75

- 1) to attend to carefully, take care of
- 1a) to guard
- 1b) metaph. to keep, one in the state in which he is
- 1c) to observe
- 1d) to reserve: to undergo something

Answer for yourself: Did the Jewish Christ command his followers to teach other Gentiles in all the world to KEEP, OBSERVE, WATCH OVER, AND PRESERVE those things he had taught and carefully take this teaching and commandments to the Gentiles? What did this Jewish Christ teach and what was his Gospel? What did this Jewish Christ teach concerning Eternal Life and how to inherit it? If you are not certain or don't know then these links are there to show you clearly what his message was that luckily can still be found in this New Testament.

Answer for yourself: Did the Jewish Christ command his followers to teach other Gentiles in all the world to attend to carefully to his commandments and to observe those thing he had commanded? He sure did.

Answer for yourself: Did the Jewish Christ command his followers to teach the Gentiles in all the world to "hold fast" and carefully observe "all those things which he had previously commanded the Jews?" He sure did. Did this Jewish Christ ever teach Nicean theology? Never. Did this Jewish Christ ever teach that salvation of God is dependent upon what you believe about him? Never! This is Rome's doing as the links above will show you.

Answer for yourself: As a Gentile Christian, and according to the words used by the Holy Spirit, have you been taught, let alone observe, things commanded of the Jews which were also taught to the "non-Jews" in their Covenant with God? Sadly, most likely not!

Answer for yourself: Since it can be clearly shown, upon study, that Gentiles kept the Biblical Feasts and Saturday Sabbath well after the time of this Jesus and did so up through the fourth century before changed by Roman paganism, do you carefully observe all those things the Jewish Christ had previously commanded the Jews such as the Feasts and Sabbaths? Do you consider yourself engrafted into the Israel of God and if so what is your fruit that testifies to this being a reality in your life?

Answer for Yourself: What is the true message of the Great Commission and have you ever really hear it calling out to you in "truth" before now?

Answer for yourself: Can you preserve those things both taught and commanded by the Jewish Christ if you ascribe to REPLACEMENT THEOLOGY which says that the Law and the Biblical Feasts have passed away and that we are no longer under the Law (remember the Apostle Paul commended the Law to the Romans church in Romans 9:4)? No way. Let is be said there is a huge difference between the "real Paul" and what he taught and what the Romanized Paul teaches in this same New Testament. Unknown to most Christians is that the first Gnostic New Testament championed the real Paul for he was Gnostic, but only later made to appear "non-Gnostic" by Rome and their forgeries of the First Gnostic New Testament. That is why in reading the New Testament and Pauline writings today that he appears schizophrenic; Rome has had their way with these texts and such glaring contradictions are proof of it.

Answer for yourself: Can you preserve and obey those things both taught and commanded by the Jewish Christ if you believe that the writings and letters of this Romanized Paul (New Testament) have replaced the writings of Moses (Old Testament) [understand it was 380 years after the time for this Jesus before there was an official canon of the New Testament]? No.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that the Jewish Christ never read one thing Paul wrote, and would be appalled today to know that the New Testament has replaced the Old Testament in his churches? I bet you didn't, but it is a sobering thought once you see the scope of what is being said.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that almost all of Paul's letters are for "correction of Gentile beliefs and actions" and none are for doctrine, reproof, correction and instruction of Jews? For after all Paul is the "apostle to the Gentiles; not the Jews".

Let us now investigate the Greek word for "command" as the Jewish Christ taught his followers to teach all Gentiles to observe all those things which he had previously commanded to be done.

Lexicon Greek 1781

1781 entellomai {en-tel'-lom-ahee} from 1722 and the base of 5056; TDNT - 2:544,234; v AV - command 10, give commandment 3, give charge 2, enjoin 1, charge 1; 17

1) to order, command to be done, enjoin

Having looked extensively at the Great Commission, we now know for sure that the Jewish Christ never intended for the Gentiles in the various nations of the world to be taught anything OTHER THAN the COMMANDMENTS AND LAWS OF GOD IN THEIR COVENANT WITH GOD AND HOW TO CORRECTLY OBSERVE THEM!

I'm sure that now you see the importance of such a commandment issued to all Gentiles as they were shortly to be included in the the Israel of God without having to make complete and formal conversion to Judaism as was previously expected and required by the majority of Shammai influenced Judaism in its day. Not only that but their previous beliefs and religious pagan ceremonies were to be repented of and a new "service of God" instituted whereby they would worship the Father in Spirit and Truth instead of darkness as previously done.

This new Messianic movement within Judaism of the Second Temple Period, having obeyed the Great Commission, would now face a problem of the highest magnitude within twenty years after the Cross of Christ: "What are we going to do with these Gentiles who claim to be followers of the Jewish Christ?" The solution came in the form of a declaration by the Apostle James, both the Lord's brother and head of the Jewish Christ's church: "We should not make it difficult for the Gentiles who are turning to God." (Acts 15: 19-21). In saying that James reaffirmed the it would be "necessary" for Gentiles turning to God in faith to not be "converted" to Biblical Judaism but to observe and keep the Covenant of Noah with the 66 Laws of Noah in order to be "acceptable" to God and become part of the Israel of God.

"GODFEARERS" IN THE NEW TESTAMENT: THE PATTERN FOR GENTILE PARTICIPATION IN THE ISRAEL OF GOD #5

Having looked at the Great Commission just a little in a previous article, we now know for sure that God never intended for the Gentiles in the various nations of the world to be taught various "theologies" about Christologies concerning this Jesus or the Jewish Messiah or any other later dogmas that will be developed hundreds of years later in successive and chronological Roman Church Councils concerning "his person" or "identity" as connected to obtaining Eternal Life. Instead it is very plain when you study every word in this passage and paragraph in its original meaning (Greek) that the "only verb" in this whole paragraph in Matt. 28 which we call today "the Great Commission" is the word "teach" and it is in used the context of "teaching these Gentiles 'to observe' or 'adhere to' something. We are speaking about "actions" and "deeds" here and not "mental ascent" to "beliefs" or "creeds" like "incarnation, virgin births, miracles, crucifixion, resurrection, ascension, etc." Instead this whole Great Commission is geared to reaching the "non-Jewish" world with a message to them that is intended to motive them into following certain "conducts" and "behaviors" that will be pleasing to their Creator. This of course is better understood when we see that historically this involved taking these Gentiles and "non-Jews" their God-given responsibilities before God which are laid out in the Covenant of Noah and sharing with them their responsibilities to know, understand, and observe these 66 Commandments given them by God, our Creator, which are contained in this Covenant of Noah and enumerated by the Rabbis in its 66 Laws. There is nothing in this "Great Commission" other than "teaching the 'non-Jews' the Commandments and Law of God and how they are to correctly observe them in their lives which prepares them for the world to come."

Matt 28:19-20 19 Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: 20 Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen. (KJV)

When reading this passage in English everybody wants to get up and "go" and "do" something but dear ones "go" is not a verb in the Greek and the real truth truth behind this word is tragically lost when translated so poorly into English as "go". I want to show you this further as we continue to look at the Great Commission and then we have to decide if we have understood it correctly and obeyed it correctly ourselves.

Strong's Concordance: the Greek word for "go" is Strong's number 4198

#4198 poreuomai (por-yoo'-om-ahee); middle voice from a derivative of the same as 3984; to traverse, i.e. travel (literally or figuratively; live, etc.); KJV-- depart, go (away, forth, one's way, up), (make a, take a) journey, walk (as in walk through out our lives, to live it out)

Thayer's Greek Lexicon: again the Greek word for "go"

4198 poreuomai- to lead over, to carry over, to transfer

- a) to pursue the journey on which one has entered, to continue on one's journey
- b) to depart from life
- c) to follow one, that is: to become his adherent to lead or to order one's life

Answer for yourself: Is this word "poreuomai" a verb in the Greek? No, it is not and we will look into this more in just a second.

Answer for yourself: What is the tense of the word in the Greek that is translated as "go ye?"

Now this is very important so please pay attention since "Biblical Interpretation" relies upon other things quite often rather than "context". Upon study of this word "go" in the Greek we find that is is used in this "Great Commission" passage NOT as a verb at all but a participle. Greek 5679 ...5679 Tense - Aorist * Voice - Passive Deponent * Mood - Participle "Go ye" is not a verb...it is a Passive Participle in the Greek...but has been erroneously translated in the English as a "verb" thereby presenting a false picture of what the writer intended. The Greek participle corresponds for the most part to the English participle, reflecting "-ing" or "-ed" being suffixed to the basic verb form. The participle can be used either like a verb or a noun, as in English, and thus is often termed a "verbal noun." A simple way to understand how this "go" is to be understood is better seen by saying and understanding the writer is saying "as you are going, as you are living", etc. But again this "go", a participle, is a "passive" and not an "active" particle which carries the further meaning of "don't make a special effort" at this "going" but just let it happen as the normal course of your life. Now think on this for a second and it appears that all writer is saying to these Jews in this Eternal Mandate is something like "just be an example" among the "non-Jews" of the world or something like "let these 'non-Jews' see your Godly distinctives as you live out your relationship with your God". Be a light among these "Gentiles".

Isa 42:6 6 I the LORD have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles; (KJV)

Answer for yourself: So what does this mean to us? What this means to the Christians is that no purposeful activity is intended by this "going" but rather consistent and daily witness and instruction of the nations by Israel is to be done through one's normal course of life where the Jew makes no pretentious outreach to anyone; rather by the consistent demonstration of the Jew's life-does he declare the existence and glory of God where he lives out his faith through obedience to the Hebrew and Jewish Scriptures before others, the Gentile world. You see his very life is the "witness" of his faith in God and his obedience to what God has commanded and in so living out these Divine truths then the world around him will see this "distinctiveness" and be drawn to the light which his life exudes.

Answer for yourself: As Christians do we "look" at the Jew's life, how he lives, how he worships differently from what Gentile Christianity has taught us to do? Do we let his consistent observance of the Sabbath and the 4th Commandment in Exodus light our way to a higher obedience than the "Sun"-day we inherited from the solar worshipping Constantine? Do we let this consistent observance of God's Holy days as found in the Hebrew Scriptures and the history of the world speak to us about the pagan Roman calendar that the Christian Church has adopted from Constantine? Have we let the moral values of Judaism shame us into seeking these higher truths as we live in Christian nation which cannot build prisons fast enough for our 98% Christian citizens? Have we let the light of the Jewish faith shine unto us from the bushel placed upon it for some 1,700 years by Rome through giving in place of these precious Hebrew Scriptures their "substitute" Bible which is out outright forgery when studied seriously and when compared with this Hebrew Tanakh?

Answer for yourself: In noticing that the Jews observe the Biblical Festivals and Feast days for instance, have we ever stopped to ask ourselves why we as "non-Jewish" Christians don't observe these same "appointed times" with God as do the Jews? Have we ever studied long enough these Hebrew Scriptures to see a "pattern" where both Jew and "non-Jew" observed these Biblical Holy Days together and that the prophets spoke God's will that they do? Have we ever examined our Christian history in an unbiased way to see that this same "pattern" of worship of Jew and "non-Jew" existed into the 5th century before finally be squashed by Rome? Have we ever stopped to think let alone ask the Jew why he keeps the Sabbath, the 4th Commandment when we as Christians and supposed followers of the Jewish Christ do not? Have we ever stopped to ask the Jew why he does not accept or believe in this Christian Jesus as the Jewish Messiah and then open our hearts and eyes to listen to why he cannot accept this "Jesus salvation"? Have we ever wondered why the Rabbis' faces are not on the television and the subject matter of "20/20" where they are found molesting the children of the world like so many Christian ministers or running off with the Synagogue secretaries or found with prostitutes like our Christian ministers seem to do? Something is different about these people and the answer dear one is a "higher truth" that the "non-Jewish" world was never given by Rome for Rome did not want to live it out themselves for they hated these Jews and "their laws". You see the Jewish nation, like Egypt before them, know that we don't get away with anything and there is no "Jesus-Mastercharge" to get us out of jail free; mankind is responsible before God for his actions and without repentance there is no atonement. Thus the need for the Great Commission to model these truths to the perishing "non-Jewish" world, not only yesterday but today as well and the examples above only are the tip of the Jewish witness to us today...but if we only see and understand. It takes dear ones "eyes to see" and "ears to hear".

Such is the way the Great Commission was intended to be obeyed as taught by this Jewish Christ but instead today we find the mobilization of great forces of people and events by the organized Christian church at the costs of billions of dollars which is in direct disobedience to what this Jewish Christ commanded. Great outreaches are attempted with little or no follow-up and the "fruit" withers and wanders lost not planted in good soil after such endeavors. The Great Commission was commanded in order that the Jew's life be the vehicle to take the truth of God to the "non-Jewish" world and not the "non-Jewish" world turn the tables on them some 300 years later and try to "paganize" Judaism by a "reverse outreach" to "save the Jews" when our own New Testament says when speaking of "non-Jews":

John 4:22 22 Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we worship: for salvation is of the Jews. (KJV)

Here, in this very verse, we find the Jewish Christ addressing a "non-Jew" and telling her her people that their worship of the Creator is flawed and that the true worship of God lies with the Jews and not the "non-Jews" of his day. Over the twenty years of my studies into the true origins of the New Testament and the Christian faith as it developed down through history not truer word has ever been spoken by either man or God for as "non-Jewish" Christians we have stayed, either on purpose or innocently, so far from the truth and the path intended for us by our Creator that is almost beyond belief when you finally see the scope and depth of what I speak.

As if that is not enough speaking of these "non-Jews" again we find:

Eph 2:11-12 11 Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: (KJV)

Again because we don't know the truth about the Jewish Roots of our Christian faith and how the Gentiles departed from it and substituted a different religion in their later "reinterpretations of it", let alone produced for the world a Bible of their own design which is tragically "different" in "key theological places and passages", then in not knowing these things we assure ourselves that we follow the wrong path and allow ourselves to be led astray by our misdirected zeal which often brings us into a condition in our lives of direct disobedience to what the Hebrew instructs and what the Great Commission intended for us, as "non-Jews" to be know and observe in our lives. This should concern anyone who calls himself a "believer" in this Jewish Christ or this Jesus since most likely your Christian religious beliefs and actions motivated by them were imparted to you by an antisemitic Gentile Roman Church and their historic dogmas which certainly are not in parallel with the teachings of Judaism today which reflect the mind of this Jewish Christ both 2000 years ago and yet even today. When we read that very important passage:

Phil 2:5 5 Let this mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: (KJV)

we never stop to think that this is NOT referring to a "post-Constantinian" mind or a "post-Nicean theology" but instead reflects the mind of this Jewish Christ, a mind full of truths that once were taught to the "non-Jewish" world for several hundreds of years before the rise of the mighty Roman Empire which today stands guilty with blood stained hands for destroying not only these Divine truths but burning the libraries of the world to cover up these truths in the 3-5 centuries it took for them to control the known world. It is time to study these truths as Christians before we end up dead and stand ashamed before God since the typical Christian religious belief system taught today does terrible injustice to the "truth" and "the faith once given the saints" and all of this can be verified by your serious study into your faith when done in a "unbiased" and "scholarly" manner. It only takes one to be hungry for God and the truth and the courage to step out in faith and pursue such truth knowing all the while that our Blessed Creator never gave us lie; it was antisemitic men with agendas who have and this is the tragic truth that lies behind the sorted history of our Christian history and development of the Christian world.

The Jewish Christ never told the Jewish nation to mobilize or make any purposeful presentation or display of our faith. This applies to Christianity itself today. In fact this Jewish Christ stated just the opposite. This Jewish Christ (called Jesus in our texts) expected that men and women live out their Ethical Monotheism among their neighbors whereby their faith is seen in their works and actions like James so expertly taught in his epistle. This manifestation of one's faith as seen in response to the commandments of God and His Laws was how the existence and truths of this One God of Israel were to be witnessed to others. This Jewish Christ and Judaism never intended a satellite network or the renting of a 150,000 seat coliseum to hold a rally of masses of people; in fact he said not too. The participle "go" is "passive" and we must never forget this. He expected that one's life was to be a daily teaching vehicle where one lived out his faith in concrete actions in response to the Laws of God before all mankind that it is these Laws of God that usually go contrary to the tendencies of the "flesh" and in such a way, and that way only, was one to witness to others of his family and his neighbors these truths of our Creator. The word mistranslated as "go" in English is again a "passive participle" and not a "verb" but we would not know that unless we looked the word up in our Greek Lexicons or Strong's Concordance. Having most likely never done that and only listened to the unending refrain of "go" as echoed from thousands of pulpits by teaches unqualified to teach we have completely misunderstood this critical instruction to us by God. Let us never forget that "go" is more correctly rendered as "as you are living" or "as you are going through life." This is the intended meaning of the one whose mind we are to obtain as our own. If one was to take the time to compare the systematic theology of first century Judaism with the traditional systematic theology of the later emerging Gentile Christianity of Rome and even later Protestantism one would be horrified at what he sees for the differences are glaring and often breathtaking in scope. We have a replacement religion given us; make no mistake about it. We as "non-Jews" and Christians have been robbed of the fruit of this Jewish Great Commission by Rome. Seldom does Christianity not completely "reinterpret" and "replace" the Jewish religious beliefs that existed for thousands of years in their witness to the world of this Christ. At the hands of Rome from the early second century through the 5th century the damage was one and the Divine Revelation given to the Jewish nation for the world which had been entrusted God's Royal Priesthood and Holy Nation for thousands of years was unrecognizable. Rome was not God's choice to carry these truths to the world. Constantine will change all of that. And today we sit in our Churches with this forged book and its black leather cover crafted by these long-dead antisemites never knowing that we are the "blind who follow the blind" we read about in its passages. And we can lay this blame not only on these Jew haters which we reverently call today "Church Fathers" but ourselves for not praying hard enough that God open our eyes and hearts because we want more of Him.

Answer for yourself: Is it not said:

Matt 5:6 6 Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.

(KJV)

As we move on let us understand our responsibility as "non-Jews" to investigate Judaism and watch the Jews live out this "Pattern of Worship" before us as they faithfully fulfill this Great Commission and then hopefully as your understanding grows then you will desire to look into this "Pattern of Worship" which is modeled before us by Judaism and the "non-Jewish" world daily. If only we had the spiritual insight to see these "Divine Truths" shown us daily, weekly, and yearly as the Jews goes about his life and existence in rehearsal for the "world to come"; never once renting a mega coliseum to try to "evangelize" the Christian. No big effort here on their parts for they truly understand this Great Commission and obey it correctly; they let their light shine upon the "non-Jewish" world every Sabbath and with every Biblical Festival as they do with their distinctive dress and customs which hopefully will peak your curiosity as to "why they are different" from the Gentile world and in so asking you will make attempts to set at the feet of the Jew and learn of his God, the God which they are to share with you and not the "god" that Rome gave us.

One is to teach others by his life-style and not by getting on a soapbox or handing out tracts on some street corner. We are expected by this Jewish Christ to teach others to observe and "obey" what we have learned from the true message of this Yeshua and the pattern of his life that we can gather when reading the New Testament with "Jewish eyes". The problem before you is if you have been taught this same message that this Jewish Christ both believed in and lived out. A serious study of Christian dogmas compared with Judaism will leave no doubt somebody is wrong for both cannot be right and be 180 degrees opposite. Thus the need for your study to see just how we as Christians "got to where we are today" and in such study you will find where the train jumped the track and when. Then it is a simple matter of repentance on the part of the Christian to return "to the faith once given the saints".

Jude 1:3 3 Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints. (KJV)

This "faith" you see has never changed; well not until the 3rd century where Rome put itself above God. It is Israel who is a light to all the nations of the world and not Rome for Rome has darkened this true light and almost came to totally extinguish it during the Dark Ages. But since all Jews are conveniently "blinded" by the writer of Romans chapters 9-11, which by the way was not in the original book of Romans until after 150 to 180A.D. (how long was Paul on "life-supports"?), then hardly anyone wants to be taught by "theologically blinded Jews" which is so conveniently inserted into the texts some 100 years later. The irony of the whole thing is that the reverse is actually the case and the blindness can be laid at the foot of the writers and editors of the New Testament who were "non-Jews" pretending to be Jews and followers of this Jewish Christ and that blindness continues in the lives of almost all Gentile Christians who have failed to investigate their faith and the origin of anti-Semitic Gentile Christianity let alone the reliability of these religious texts we read. It should jump out at you when reading, for example in Mark 7:18:

Mark 7:18 And He said to them, "Are you so lacking in understanding also? Do you not understand that whatever goes into the man from outside cannot defile him; because it does not go into his heart, but into his stomach, and is eliminated?" (Thus He declared all foods clean.) [NASB]

Here we are expected to believe that an orthodox Jew, one supposed to be the hoped-for Messiah, can just do away with all Kosher food laws and change the Book of Leviticus. This should make you wonder what other tampering has been done to these texts which we are assured are "God-breathed"! This should make you rise up and ask yourself if tampering has been done with other passages that could be purposefully misquoted and mistranslated texts from the Hebrew Scriptures that changed the Divine Eternal teachings affecting such critically important doctrines and dogmas as atonement, forgiveness, Messiah, fulfilled prophecy, obtaining Eternal Life, the real gospel from the false gospel, etc. I have spent as of now 20 years in such study for I quickly realized that I did not have the "truth" as a Christian Pastor both during and after Seminary and with God's help I was going to get it! Bet Emet Ministries stands today as this "House Of Truth" for all who are hungry and desire the same.

I'm sure that now you see the importance of such a commandment as the Great Commission issued to Israel in behalf of all Gentiles as they were shortly to be included in the Israel of God through faith in a message brought to them by disciples and apostles of this Jewish Christ in their outreach to the "non-Jewish" world during and after the first century whereby these "non-Jews" were taught to "OBSERVE" something in their lives and not just "believe" in just something. "Observe what?"; this is the big question that you have to ask yourself and begin to search the answers out for yourself. We can help you find these answers as Bet Emet Ministries as this article is doing.

Historically this is not the "first outreach" to the "non-Jewish" world that we find in Judaism. In 20 B.C.E. the followers of Rabbi Hillel and others attempted this same outreach earlier whereby the Covenant of Noah was taken to the Gentiles of the world. Again important to remember as it will impact on major developments later to arise in Judaism was the fact that the "non-Jew", in repenting of sins and turning to God in faith, were taught that they were "accepted" with God without having to make complete and formal conversion to Judaism as was being currently at that time maintained by other factions in Judaism (like the Shammai Pharisees). Not only that but the false religious worship of these "non-Jews" were to be repented of and a new worship and "service of God" instituted whereby they would worship the Father in Spirit and Truth alongside with the Jew instead of in disobedience and darkness as previously done. This is the reason why I devoted so much time and effort to lay out for the reader the hundreds of examples of "non-Jews" and "Jews" observing the same "Pattern of Worship" down through history in accordance with the Hebrew Scriptures and even showed how this was the "Pattern" followed up till the 5th century when the antisemitic efforts of Rome finally vanquished the "Jewish Church".

This new Messianic movement within Judaism of the Second Temple Period, having obeyed the Great Commission, would now face a problem of the highest magnitude within twenty years after the time given for the death of this Jesus: "What are we going to do with these Gentiles who claim to be followers of Yeshua, and who are turning to Biblical Judaism and Biblical Faith"? The solution came in the form of a declaration by the Apostle James, both the Lord's brother and head of Yeshua's church: "We should not make it difficult for the Gentiles who are turning to God." (Acts 15: 19-21).

Not only in the Old Testament do we find teachings that address such topics as "strangers" and "non-Jews" as they relate to a "Pattern" of worship and inclusion into the Israel of God, but also in the New Testament do we find many requirements given to every Gentile who will name himself by the name of this Jewish Christ (Yeshua); requirement when observed thereby allowed the "non-Jewish" and Gentile believer in God to become grafted into the Israel of God without the need for full-conversion which required circumcision which certain Jews, like Shammai and his School of Pharisees, had previously mandated for all Gentiles who were wishing to come to the God of Israel.

As you read this article, as well as others I have researched and prepared, you should have easily seen that reading the English often leads us astray from the mind of Christ let alone the truths we so desperately need to have in our lives if our lives are to honor God today and be examples of truth. This information comes through the vehicle of your serious study, for without it you may never come to the truth of these matters until you stand before God "face to face".

"THE" FAITH ONCE GIVEN TO THE SAINTS ...NOT FAITHS!

The conviction that Messianic Biblical Judaism, and not the current manifestation of Rabbinic Judaism as we now see, is the one true religion given by God for all men and that it is destined to become the universal religion for all mankind has been the conclusion obtained which not only I, but others who study the Bible in its original languages, along with its culture and history in which it was written, have arrived. But today we don't find the practice of Biblical Judaism but Rabbinic Judaism. But I found you can come to understand Biblical Judaism, and especially how it related to the "non-Jew" back in the first century, through the study of Rabbinic Judaism and adapt this for your life and the lives of your family. It really is not that hard because there is a lot of "overlap" with Rabbinic Judaism today.

This concept of the two peoples of God becoming one under the umbrella of Judaism was not only a peculiarity of the Jews, but the Jewish Christ as well as he commanded its tenants, precepts, ordinances, and commandments be taken unto all the Gentile world in the Great Commission of Matt. 28 and it is God's desire and intent that these "non-Jews" be taught many of the same Laws and Commandment observed currently by the Jews. Again let us not forget that 66 Laws and Commandments in the Laws of Noah are reiterated exactly in the Laws of Moses. Thus there is the common ground we seek that binds these two peoples together. No other religion in the world and time made any such pretensions or cherished such aspirations. It was an exclusiveness the rest of mankind did not understand and therefore doubly resented. It is today as well which is obvious to all by the constant acts of violence toward these Godly people. Such a belief in the future universality of the "true religion," the coming of an age when "the Lord shall be King over all the earth," when "the Lord shall be one and His name One," led to efforts to convert the Gentiles to the worship of the one true God in the first century and to their adherence to both faith and obedience according to the revelation God had given. Thus Judaism became the first great missionary religion of the Mediterranean world in a funny way for you see the Jews were dispersed throughout the world from previous captivities and it was easy for them to let their customs and religious ways "light the way" toward truth before the "non-Jews" whose nations they lived. There was no pretension here; rather, the steady daily example of Godliness and adherence to the Laws of God before their captives. They understood that this "Great Commission" has been in effect long before the first century and "passively" they let their light shine before those who oppressed them. Let me also say as well, that Christianity, when stripped of its anti-Semitism, anti-Judaism, its false Sabbaths and replacement doctrines which originated from false religion and pagan sources, and when Gentile Christianity opens their eyes to this "Jewish witness" of Divine truth which just happen to be "Jewish" then there is hope that the "non-Jewish" world can see and restore to their own lives the Lord's Sabbath, His Feasts and Festivals (and the truth behind these Equinoxes and Solstices), the truths behind all these Jewish Apostolic doctrines, and let us not forget as well the hope of coming to the knowledge of the correct use of the Biblical Tithe which no Christian Church today teaches correctly today that I have ever seen or encountered. In such a way then we as "non-Jewish" believers will then have the assurance that we have become acceptable to God since we will adopt these higher truths and model them through our lives as does the Jew. God warns us that His people perish for lack of knowledge, and when confronted with it, reject it. I pray that is not you, especially when provoked to think and respond by hard-hitting articles not meant to please or obtain money; but rather to stir a slumbering soul which has drunk the liquor of falsehood for much too long as handed out by the Roman captors of our minds today through their falsehood and forged Bibles.

THE VEHICLE FOR INSTRUCTION:

Judaism's religious influence was exerted chiefly through the synagogues, which the Jews set up for themselves, but which were open to all whom interest or curiosity drew to their services. Most are open to the "non-Jews" today as well. To Gentiles, these services consisted essentially of readings from the Hebrew Scriptures which followed a "Divine Pattern" as well along with a discourse, along with prayers and hymns of praise. Such was inviting to the Gentiles of the first century as well as long before and I found quite refreshing each time I attended the synagogue when the impact of what I was experiencing dawned upon me. In that time period in the Hellenistic world (Greek influenced), polytheism (belief in many gods) and idolatry was so decisively prevalent, that the souls of men cried out for something more. Such was the difference between the Gentile and the Jew. As a Gentile came to renounce heathenism and adopt Judaism along with observations such as the Sabbath, Festivals, and conformity to the rules of clean and unclean foods which were necessary conditions of social intercourse with the Jew, such a changed life was seen to reflect a respectable degree of commitment and conversion on behalf of the Gentile that he be was accepted alongside the Jew as God's people by the Jews themselves. The rejection of idolatry by the Gentile was an acknowledgment of the whole law, since one who renounces idolatry is called in Scripture a "Jew."

CONVERTS & VARIETIES:

Such repentant Gentiles were called religious persons who "worship, or revere God," although in a strict sense outside of the mainstream of Judaism. They were not however "full-converts". Yet, they were expected to share with "Jews by birth" the favor of the God they had adopted, and were encouraged in this hope by their Jewish teachers. It was not uncommon for the next generation to seek incorporation in the Jewish people by circumcision, thus becoming a full-fledged "convert to Judaism." This came through time and spiritual maturation by these Gentiles as the consistent witness of the Jew drew them closer to the God of Israel. These Gentiles were seen as the ones "clinging to the skirt (prayer shawl) of the Jew" (Zech. 8:23).

23 Thus saith <559> (8804) the LORD <3068> of hosts <6635>; In those days <3117> [it shall come to pass], that ten <6235> men <582> shall take hold <2388> (8686) out of all languages <3956> of the nations <1471>, even shall take hold <2388> (8689) of the skirt <3671> of him that is a Jew <376> <3064>, saying <559> (8800), We will go <3212> (8799) with you: for we have heard <8085> (8804) [that] God <430> [is] with you.

Answer for yourself: In this prophetic passage, do you see that ten (Biblical number for completeness - referring to all the Gentiles from all the 70 nations) will in the future take hold of the skirt (prayer shawl) of the Jew and will go with them up to Zion for God is "with the Jew?" This will be a wonderful day indeed. Is this telling us that in the world to come that all "non-Jews", who are called by the names of other faiths other than Judaism, will come to embrace Judaism and the truths that she has for the whole world? It sure appears this way.

Answer for yourself: Did you know that all the nations will be coming up to God along with Jews and not with those called Christians who be in the "followers" and not "the leaders". I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Can you see that this passage is very problematic for those who ascribe to replacement theology (Christians), falsely believing that the Christian Church is the "New Israel" and false believing that they have taken the place of the Jew and Israel before God? I hope so.

Oh, by the way, let me remind you once again that this passage is prophetic and is yet to occur, but according to these Prophets this is the way it will happen!

Answer for yourself: How is it that Gentiles will follow the Jews to Zion to learn of God if we Protestants and Catholics have "all truth" and the "only ones saved" as we have been led to believe? Think on that for a while.

Much confusion has arisen from the habit of describing such Gentile adherents of the synagogue as a class of proselytes or semi-proselytes, and trying to find a category for them in Jewish law. People always ask me today "what do you call yourself"? Names are not important; how we live before God is however. Jewish law knows no such semi-proselytes, nor any other kind of proselytes than such as have, by conversion and baptism, not only become members of the Jewish church but has been naturalized in the Jewish nation. One should NOT make a distinction where none existed. But yet as I will show you that is a glorious place for the non-converted "non-Jew" in Judaism; this is the place for the "non-Jewish" Christian as you will come to see.

PHILO'S DEFINITION OF A PROSELYTE:

"Proselytes are such as have resolved to change over to the true religion, and are called proselytes because they have become naturalized in a new and godly commonwealth, renouncing the mythical fictions and adhering to the unadulterated truth."

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that Philo called Judaism "the true religion"? Think on that for a moment.

Amazing Under the Laws of Noah (7 commandments containing some but not all the Laws of Moses unless fully converted), proselytes enjoy equal rights in all respects with the native born Jews, as is only just, inasmuch as they have left country, friends, and kinfolk for the sake of virtue and holiness. There can be no question that Philo means by "proselyte" one who has deserted his false gods and his people to cast in his lot with the Jews. But this is not the only way to come to the God of Israel.

OTHER VIEWS ON THE PROSELYTE:

Tacitus (a roman historian) speaks of proselytes as such as "practice circumcision like the Jews." A proselyte is not one who had merely embraced the monotheistic theology of Judaism, but has addicted himself to the Jewish ordinances and customs, and in doing so severed himself from his people, friends, and kinsmen; for which reason he is to be treated with peculiar benevolence. He has become a naturalized citizen of a new religious commonwealth in which he has a full quality of rights and duties with born Jews. NOTICE a proselyte was considered as part of Israel! Here we see that "non-Jews" who are circumcised and convert to Judaism are sanctified from the world and responsible for the whole of the Torah before God (613 Laws) and equal to the naturalized born Jew and part of Israel.

Answer for yourself: Does a "proselyte" (former Gentile) adhere to the same Jewish ordinances and customs as other Jews? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Is the "proselyte" (former Gentile) required to be circumcised? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Does the "proselyte" (former Gentile) become a naturalized citizen of a new religious commonwealth called Israel in which he has a full quality of rights and duties with natural-born Jews? Yes.

THE "GER" - HEBREW FOR PROSELYTE:

In the Greek Bible, "proselyte" is the usual translation of the Hebrew "ger." The older associations of this word were both civil and social. The "ger" was an alien immigrant, or the descendant of such an immigrant, resident in Israelite territory by permission, without any civil rights. This is the position of the "ger" in the older Hebrew legislation and in Deuteronomy. They are distinguished from foreigners (nokrim), who may be casually and temporarily in the country, and from the descendants of the ancient Canaanites. Israelites are commanded not to oppress these aliens, who had no legal protection; and they are frequently presented as objects of charity.

Later, in the Persian period, the word "ger" comes to be applied to foreigners (men of other than Jewish descent) who join themselves to Jehovah, or to Israel as the worshippers of Jehovah. Thus in Isaiah 14:1, in the restoration, when God reestablished Israel in its own land, "the 'ger' (converts the Jews have made in the exile) will join themselves to them and attach themselves to the house of Jacob." Such converts are described in Isa. 56:6ff.

"The aliens who join themselves to Jehovah to minister unto him, and to love the name of Jehovah, to be his servants, every one that keeps the Sabbath from profaning it, and hold firmly to my covenant (laws), I will bring them to my holy mountain and make them rejoice in my house of prayer; their burnt offerings and their sacrifices shall be acceptable upon my altar, for my house shall be called a house of prayer for all peoples. Thus saith the Lord Jehovah who gathers the dispersed of Israel, yet will gather others unto him (Israel), besides those that are gathered of (Israel) himself."

The laws for the "ger" (Gentile proselyte) or "gerim" (Gentile proselytes) in Lev. 17-25 put them, so far as religious duties and privileges go, in all respects on the same footing with Israelites by birth; they are subject to all the obligations of the Law, precisely as the "gerim" (proselytes) in the rabbinical law are. This is true, not only of religious commandments and prohibitions but also civil law: "You shall have one civil law; the proselyte (ger) shall be treated like the native born, for I am the Lord your God." For living as a resident alien ("ger," in the original civil sense) in the land of Israel the verb is "gur," as in sojourn; for conversion to Judaism and adoption into the people as well as their religion a new form was needed and created, the "ger in a religious sense" understood as "becoming a proselyte."

THE "GER" RESTS BENEATH THE WINGS OF THE ALMIGHTY:

A favorite figure in the Psalms for the confident security of the religious man is having a refuge, or shelter, beneath the wings of God, or beneath the shade of his wings, as the young of birds do under their mother's wings for safety from danger. The same figure is frequently employed of conversion. The proselyte came beneath the wings of the Shekinah; one who converts a Gentile brings him under the wings of the Shekinah. The origin of this use is doubtless Ruth 2:12, where Boaz speaks for the Moabitish convert the reward for her goodness to Naomi from "the God of Israel, beneath whose wings thou are come to take refuge."

The legislation in the middle books of the Pentateuch (first 5 books of the Bible) thus puts the "gerim" on the same footing with native Israelites, not only before the civil law, but in religious duties and privileges, and Philo repeatedly emphasizes this parity of the naturalized and the native Jew as one of the notable features of the Mosaic Law.

So far we have only spoken of "full-converts" but watch what happens now.

BUT DISTINCTIONS DO EXIST HOWEVER:

The Passover was the most distinctively national of all the festivals, but the law admits the proselyte to it, though no foreigner, no settler, no hired servant may eat of it. For such participation it is necessary that one be circumcised, "for no uncircumcised man shall eat of it" (Ex. 12:48). In Num. 9:14 it is assumed that the proselyte is circumcised, and the only requirement is that he shall conform strictly to the ritual of the Passover: "Whether proselyte or native, you shall have the same ordinance." This Scripture puts the proselyte on the same footing as the native in all the commandments contained in the Law. "As the native born Jew takes upon himself to obey all the words of the Law," so the proselyte takes upon him all the words of the Law. The authorities said, "if a proselyte takes upon himself to obey all the words of the Law except one single commandment, he is not to be received." Thus Paul would say in Gal. 5:2 to the Galatians: "I solemnly warn every man that gets himself circumcised (Paul was referring to Gentile conversion to Judaism here) that he (the newly circumcised Gentile) is under obligation to fulfill the whole law (613 commandments)."

Answer for yourself: Why? Circumcision was the final ordinance to be adopted by the Gentile believer before he makes complete conversion to Judaism.

Since Paul was reared as a Pharisee, he made reference to both the Written Law and the Oral Law in this passage.

Answer for yourself: Are Gentiles who become circumcised, thus making full conversion to Judaism, allowed to partake of the Passover lamb? Yes, circumcision was required.

Answer for yourself: Are Gentiles who become circumcised, thus making full conversion to Judaism, required to take upon themselves the full yoke of the Torah which is responsibility for 613 commandments instead of the 66 from the Laws of Noah? Yes.

REQUIREMENTS FOR CONVERSION:

The initiatory rite by which a man was made a proselyte comprised three parts:

- circumcision,
- immersion in water (baptism...called "born again") and
- the presentation of an offering in the Temple.

In the case of a woman there was no circumcision, and after the destruction of the Temple no offering could be made. Circumcision alone is prescribed in the Written Law. The offering of a sacrifice is, thus, not one of the conditions of becoming a proselyte, but only a condition precedent to the exercise of one of the rights which belong to him as a sacrificial meal. As soon as he was circumcised and baptized, he was in full standing in the religious community, having all the legal rights and powers and being subject to all the obligations of the Jew by birth. He had "entered the covenant." It is interesting to note that this baptism of conversion was different from other baptisms of purification in that the presence of official witnesses was required for conversion. Two scholars would stand by him and rehearse to him orally some of the lighter and some of the weightier commandments. When he had been immersed and had come up from the water (following circumcision if a male), one is like an Israelite in all that he does. In the case of the woman proselyte, women made her sit in the water up to her neck, while two scholars recited the same commandments, both positive and negative and it was assumed that the initiate assumed "the yoke of the commandments." As the Israelite came into the covenant only by three things, circumcision, baptism, and sacrifice, precisely so the Gentile proselyte comes into the covenant by the same three things (Israel was circumcised before leaving Egypt, they were baptized in the Sinai desert, and after they pledged themselves to keep all God's commandments they were sprinkled with the blood of the covenant sacrifice). Here is the "pattern" again. Let us take note of these "patterns" as our studies progress and then it will be easier to apply them to ourselves later.

Answer for yourself: Was the Gentile convert to Judaism required to fulfill the same three requirement for conversion as was the Jew when he was BarMitzvahed? Yes.

PROSELYTES WERE BORN AGAIN:

Now listen well, the status of a proselyte who embraces Judaism is at the moment of his reception like that of a "new born child" or as if "born again." (Being "born again" is not a Christian concept by and of itself. More on that at a later). You should trace the link above on being "born again" for a terrific revelation that has dramatic impact on your Christian experience.

Answer for yourself: Does the concept of "being born again" refers only to Christians and not Gentile converts to Judaism? No, because the typical Christian is unaware that "being born again" is a Hebrew term for repentance associated with immersion, which was one of the 3 requirements for Gentile proselytes in their conversion to Judaism and being grafted into the Israel of God. (THINK). Ironically we do these same things but end up in practicing a faith that has little in common with Judaism today.

THE LAWS OF NOAH-FOUNDATIONAL FOR A GENTILE PROSELYTE:

Before a proselyte converted to Judaism, it was customary that before his initiation that he adhere to the seven Laws of Noah which were given to all heathen to observe if they lived within the land of Israel. The laws of Noah were the foundation from which one pursued righteousness.

With respect to God's commandments, all of humanity is divided into two general classifications: the Children of Israel and the Children of Noah. The Children of Israel are the Jews, the descendants of the Patriarch Jacob. They are commanded to fulfill the 613 Commandments of the Torah. The Children of Noah comprise the seventy original nations of the world and their branches. They are commanded concerning the Seven Universal Laws, also known as the Seven Laws of the Children of Noah or the Seven Noahide Laws. These Seven Universal Laws pertain to idolatry, blasphemy, murder, theft, sexual relations, eating the limb of a living animal, and establishing courts of law. All Seven Universal Laws are prohibitions. Do not wonder at this. Negative commandments are of a higher order than positive commandments, and their fulfillment, which takes more effort than positive commandments, earns a greater reward. Men and women are equal in their responsibility to observe the seven commandments. It is a matter of dispute as to when a person becomes responsible for his or her actions under these laws. One opinion holds that it depends on the intellectual development of the individual. According to this opinion, as soon as a child has attained the maturity to understand the meaning and significance of the Seven Universal Laws, he is obligated to the fullest extent of the law. The other opinion is that a boy reaches the age of legal responsibility at his thirteenth birthday and a girl at her twelfth birthday. The Children of Noah are permanently warned concerning the Seven Universal Laws. This means that ignorance of the law is not a valid defense. One cannot claim, for example, that he did not know that idolatry was one of the seven commandments. Nor can he claim that he did not know that bowing down to an idol constitutes idolatry. Therefore, one is duty bound to study the Seven Universal Laws to the best of one's ability and to teach the knowledge of them to one's children. When one of the Children of Noah resolves to fulfill the Seven Universal Commandments, his or her soul is elevated. This person becomes one of the Chasidei Umot ha-Olam, the Pious Ones of the Nations, and receives a share of the Eternal World. The Holy Scriptures call one who accepts the yoke of fulfilling the Seven Universal Laws a ger toshav, a proselyte of the gate. This person is permitted to live in the Land of Israel and to enter the Holy Temple in Jerusalem and to offer sacrifices to the God of Israel. Although the Children of Noah are commanded only concerning the Seven Universal Commandments, they are permitted to observe any of the 613 Commandments of the Torah for the sake of receiving divine reward. The responsibility of The Seven Noahide Laws is a yoke of faith in God. This means that the laws must be observed solely because God commanded them. If the Children of Noah observe these Seven Universal Laws for any reason or intention other than to fulfill God's will, the performance is invalid and no divine reward is received. This means that if one of the Children of Noah says, "These laws seem sensible and beneficial, therefore I will observe them," his actions accomplish nothing and he receives no reward. When one of the Children of Noah engages in the study of the Seven Universal Laws, he is able to attain a spiritual level higher than the High Priest of the Jews, who alone has the sanctity to enter the Holy of Holies in the Temple in Jerusalem. It is incorrect to think that since the Children of Israel have 613 Commandments and the Children of Noah have seven commandments, the ratio of spiritual worth is proportionally 613 to seven. The truth is that the Seven Universal Laws are general commandments, each containing many parts and details, whereas the 613 Commandments of the Torah are specific, each relating to one basic detail of the Divine Law. Therefore, the numerical disparity in no way reflects the relative spiritual worth of the two systems of commandments. The statutory punishment for transgressing any one of the Seven Laws of Noah is capital punishment. Yet, according to some, punishment is the same whether one transgresses with knowledge of the law or is ignorant of the law. According to others, a transgressor of the Noahide Law who is ignorant of the law receives the death penalty only in the case of murder. If the courts cannot punish an individual for lack of witnesses or any other reason the transgressor will be punished by Divine Decree. Besides the Seven Universal Commandments, the Children of Noah have traditionally taken it upon themselves to fulfill the commandment of honoring father and mother. Some authorities are of the opinion that the Children of Noah are obligated to fulfill the commandment of giving charity. In accord with the Seven Universal Commandments, man is enjoined against creating any religion based on his own intellect. He either develops religion based on these Divine Laws or becomes a righteous proselyte, a Jew, and accepts all 613 commandments of the Torah. Concerning making holidays for themselves, Noahides may participate in the celebration of certain Jewish holidays, such as Shavuot, celebrating the Giving of the Torah, since the Children of Noah received their commandments at the same time, or Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year and Day of Judgment, since all mankind is judged by God on that day, so it should therefore be important to the Noahide as well as the Israelite. When a Noahide dies, he is to be buried in the earth, "for out of it were you taken; for you are dust and unto dust you shall return" This does not mean that the Children of Noah transgress one of the Seven Commandments by utilizing another process such as cremation or cryogenic preservation, but they will lack the atonement that burial in the earth accomplishes. By observing the Seven Universal Laws, mankind is given the means by which it can perfect itself. The individual, through these laws, has the power to refine his essential being, and can reach higher and higher without limit. For it is written, "I call heaven and earth to bear witness, that any individual, man or woman, Jew or Gentile, freeman or slave, can have the Holy Spirit bestowed upon him. It all depends on his deeds." And it is also written, "Ultimately, all is understood: fear God and observe His commandments, for this is the completion of man" (Eccles. 12:13).

TERMINOLOGY: WE MUST SEE THE PICTURE CLEARLY

I am fully aware that today we call those who believe in God through Yeshua "Christians." Yet, in quoting Roy Blizzard "I believe we should call Biblical things by Biblical names". In doing so we discover nuances of meanings from terms which should influence what we should believe and how we should respond in faith. In the spirit of truth, the follow is presented to you, and some is of a technical nature, but try to follow the truth along.

Answer for yourself: In others words correct understanding of terms will lead us to perfect obedience and what higher manifestation of our love for God could there be?

The sincere and genuine proselyte (fully converted through circumcision, immersion, and having brought a sacrifice) is called "ger zedek," or "righteous proselyte" (Psalm 118:20). They are such as embrace the Jewish religion from religious motives, "for the sake of God," and therefore live in conformity to His will revealed in the Oral and Written Laws as they pledged themselves at their reception. Another name for such converts is the "get emet," or "true proselyte." To the "righteous proselytes" are sometimes applied texts in the Old Testament which speak of the righteous, or of such as fear God, the "truly righteous." In the daily prayers in the Temple petitions for God's blessings upon the righteous proselyte are invoked.

The word "ger" by itself having come to mean proselyte or convert to Judaism who has received circumcision and baptism not only into the religion of Judaism but into the Jewish people (Israel), occasioned the necessity to find a distinctive term for the resident alien.

Answer for yourself: Has the word "ger" come to mean a proselyte and convert to Judaism? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Has the "ger" received immersion and circumcision as well as bring an offering to the Temple? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Is the "ger tzedek" another name for the full convert to Judaism as is the word "ger?" Yes.

Answer for yourself: Does the term "righteous proselyte" refer to a full-convert to Judaism? Yes.

THE GER TOSHAV AND THE GER SHA'AR

The "ger toshav" was an alien, resident in Jewish lands by permission but on the condition that while he resides that he not engage in the worship of other gods or in idolatrous practices, and do not blaspheme the name of God (adhere to the Covenant and Laws of Noah). He had to pledge himself in the presence of 3 observant persons to abstain from idolatry. They also had to be subject to the jurisdiction of Jewish courts and keep free of flagrant crimes, homicide, robbery, theft, adultery and fornication. He also had to abstain from eating flesh with the blood or "life" in it (part of the Laws of Noah). Along with this came the seven commandments that God gave to Adam and Noah and were consequently binding upon all mankind. He was not required to join in the worship of Israel nor to take upon himself any further obligations to observe the commandments of God to Israel (Mosaic Law), though he enjoyed the exemption from labor on the Sabbath which gives rest on that day to slaves and hirelings of every race, as well as animals. He was not required to be circumcised. Upon his circumcision he would become fully Israel as we saw above.

The "ger toshav" is not a proselyte or a "semi-proselyte" and was not considered a convert to Judaism at all. The "ger toshav," as uncircumcised, also was called the "ger arel," and is not to be confused with the circumcised proselyte "ger ben berit" who has come into the covenant of God with Israel (ger mahul). The "ger toshav" was a heathen and was allowed to eat "carrion" or the flesh of animals not correctly slaughtered which no Israelite or proselyte could partake. The "ger" to whom an Israelite may give it in Deut. 14:21 is the "ger toshav"....Also, it was permissible to take usury from a "ger toshav" as with any heathen, but forbidden to take usury from an Israelite or "true proselyte;" the "ger zedek."

Answer for yourself: Was resident alien-heathen in the land of Israel required to be circumcised? No.

Answer for yourself: Was the resident alien-heathen in the land of Israel required to live by the Laws of Noah? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Was the resident alien-heathen called the Ger Toshav? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Was the resident alien-heathen allowed to eat foods that were not killed in a kosher manner? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Was the resident alien-heathen required to observe the 7 Laws of Noah? Yes.

Since the 18th century another category of proselytes emerged, the "proselyte of the gate" which is distinct from the "ger tzedek," or full proselyte or God-fearing Gentile. The "ger sha'ar" or "proselyte of the gate" suggests converts who lingered at the door of the synagogue as derived from passages in the Bible which speak of the "ger (alien) who is in thy gates" or residents in Israelite towns and cities (Ex. 20:10, Deut. 5:14).

In the 4th century a question arose as to whom the 4th Commandment concerning the Sabbath applied to, the "ger sedek" or "ger sha'ar" and the former opinion prevailed. In other words the full-convert is required to observe and keep the Sabbath, having become as one born in the land, while the "ger toshab" was not, yet he still could choose those things that pleased God if he so desired (observe Isaiah 56) and take upon himself the observance of other Commandments of God; like the Sabbath, the Festivals, righteous giving, mezuzah, Havdalah, etc. He is the "Godfearer" we read about in the New Testament and see in the example of Cornelius in Acts 10. Often such "strangers" are listed with names in Deut. along with the widows, orphans, and the landless Levites. Here we find the proselyte of the gate who was likewise often the object of charity.

ATTITUDES TOWARD PROSELYTES:

The attitude of the religious leaders of Judaism toward proselytes differed in different circumstances, and individual teachers had their own beliefs. Rabbi Shammai would have nothing to do with one who was not prepared to give implicit assent, before knowing its contents to the unwritten Law as well as the written Law. Many had bad opinions of all proselytes, fearing that with persecution that they would fall back into their old ways because they were naturally bad people who lived in sin as defined by the Hebrew Scriptures. It is for this reason the Scriptures had so often admonished Israelites not to give them offense by word or deed. The School of Hillel, unlike the School of Shammai, welcomed converts, and admitted them even though their knowledge was imperfect and the observance of Judaism faulty. Hillel, to whom this Jewish Christ agreed, coined a motto: "Be one of the disciples of Aaron, a lover of peace, following after peace, loving mankind, and drawing them to the Law (religion)." A tradition illustrating the different temper of the two masters states that a foreigner came to Shammai saying, "Make a proselyte of me, on condition that you teach me the whole of the Law while I stand on one foot." Shammai drove him off, beating him with a measuring stick, whereupon he gave Hillel the same proposition. Hillel received him as a proselyte and taught him: "What you do not like to have done to you, do not do to your fellow man. This is the whole of the Law; the rest is explanation of it. Go, learn it."

Just in case you did not notice it this saying of Hillel, also Confucius by the way, is the "Golden Rule" from the "negative" aspect and the Jewish Christ spoke the same from the "positive" perspective. Ironical that they both cover what God's positive and negative Commandments teach ("do's and don'ts").

Answer for yourself: Could it just be that this Law of God, spoken so negatively about in the New Testament, is really the Golden Rule for all mankind?

NO DIFFERENCE BETWEEN THE JEW AND THE GENTILE PROSELYTE:

Proselytes are dear to God, for you will find that the same things are said about them as about Israel: the Israelites are servants (Lev. 25:23) and proselytes are called servants, as it is said, "To love the name of the Lord and to be servants to him" (Isa. 56:60); the Israelites are called ministers, as it is said, "And ye shall be called the priests of the Lord, ministers to our God shall be said of you" (Isa. 61:1), and the proselytes are called ministers, as it is said, "The foreigners who attach themselves to the Lord to minister unto him" (Isa. 56:6); the Israelites are called friends, as it is said, "The offspring of Abraham, my friend" (Isa. 41:8) and the proselytes are called friends, as it is said (of God), "Friend of the proselyte" (Deut. 10:18). The word "covenant" is used of the Israelites in Gen. 17:13 and so it is used of proselytes "Who hold fast my covenant" (Isa. 56:6).

IN CONCLUSION:

The preaching of the Apostles was responsible for making converts among Gentiles to Biblical Judaism (both full-converts ("ger zadeks") and "ger toshavs" who were resident aliens who observed the 7 Laws of Noah. Also included in the fruit of Jewish teaching were proselytes at the gate ("ger sha'ar") who lingered at the door of the synagogue as derived from passages in the Bible which speak of the "ger (alien) who is in thy gates". According to Acts 2 those "Jews" from seventy nations from all over the world who had made pilgrimage to Jerusalem to observe the Feast of Shavuot (Pentecost), were previously Gentiles who had converted to Judaism by turning from idols to serve the living God. According to Biblical Law (Jewish Law), God required these Gentiles who had repented and come to faith in Him to be present at His appointed times three times a year.

The account in Acts 2 describes Gentile proselytes to Judaism who came over from all over the Gentile world to observe the special Sabbaths of God. Much later, in times of persecution, Gentile "Christians" sometimes joined the Jews to evade the test applied by the Roman officials to adore the emperor, to which Jews were not subject. Later, Christian emperors would make conversion of Gentiles to Judaism a crime in itself with severe penalties both for the Gentile convert and the Jew who converted him. Against all such attempts of pagan or Christian rulers to shut up Judaism in itself and prevent its spread in the first three centuries the Jews persisted in their efforts to make the religion God had revealed to their fathers at Sinai, and before, the religion of all mankind. It is with this understanding that we will continue in the next newsletter our study of Gentile conversion as traced through the Bible.

"GODFEARERS" IN THE NEW TESTAMENT: THE PATTERN FOR GENTILE PARTICIPATION IN THE ISRAEL OF GOD #7

In the previous articles I have gone into detail to relay to you specific information concerning the Biblical language, religious history, and the Biblical culture which surrounds the events concerning believing Gentiles and their relationship to God throughout the New Testament. We have seen, contrary to what we have been told by Gentile Christianity, that the Bible, when properly understood linguistically, historically, and culturally, has a very different picture of what a Gentile believer is to "believe" and "do" to be considered a part of the Israel of God let alone "fruit" of the Jerusalem Church that what we have been taught by our inherited Western Gentile Christianity of today. We saw that God has given very specific Laws and Commandments for the "non-Jew" to be included into the Israel of God. We saw in short summary that it was required of Gentiles, according to the Jerusalem Council, to:

- Adhere to the Laws within the Covenant of Noah (66 commandments).
- At times going beyond "the minimum" requirements given in the Covenant of Noah by choosing "those things that please God" since becoming grafted into the Israel of God with the Jews and have the option to participate in a "better" covenant (Isa 56) [the Covenants of God are progressive in scope].

Having reviewed all of the information presented I know some of you are prone to say or think "as a Christian I am under the "New Covenant" and that information does not apply to me. Many may feel that the information previously presented does not apply to them for some reason and claim New Testament exclusion. Let me remind you that these events chronicled and explained in the previous articles ARE New Testament events that occurred long after the time given for the death of this Jesus which we have been taught as Christians "sealed" and "fulfilled" everything. We have been taught by Gentile Christianity and their texts that this Jesus instituted a "New" Covenant that replaced the "Old" Covenant.

Answer for yourself: But is that true? Have we possibly misunderstood what we are reading and not know it? Have our Pastors and teachers missed something?

But if we read and "think" as we go through the New Testament readers with a "sharp eye" can see that nothing really ever changed. Every thing continued the same as I showed you in earlier articles; the Jerusalem Church continued at the direction of James and Paul to continue to bring blood sacrifices 30 years after the supposed death of Jesus which we are told today is the "final sacrifice for sin". Acts 21 sure shows us that James and Paul and the Jerusalem Church sure did not believe this. The the outreach to the "non-Jews" and the message contained with such outreach by the witness of the Jew (responsible for the 66 Laws in the Covenant of Noah) was the same both before and after the time of the New Testament Jesus. Nothing changed again. If you recall in the Covenant of Noah the "non-Jews" response to faith toward the God of Israel was validated by their observance of the Laws of Noah and this was called "necessary" for their being "acceptable before God" by James and the Jerusalem Church in Acts 15 and Acts 16. This again shows that that message, or the "real Gospel" to the "non-Jewish" world had not changed. I could go on. Nothing changed and that should make us wonder what event, if any, could have occurred after this "Jesus" which could have changed everything as we see today for surely you have to admit the "Jews" and the "non-Jews" have long ago separated and went their different "theological ways". If "salvation is of the Jews" this should give you pause to think and hopefully the desire to find out what happened to separate the "non-Jews" from this Jewish witness. Oh, forgot one small thing, Constantine came along in the 3rd century and hated Jews so bad that the full power of Rome was used to change everything of which I refer and once Roman power rewrote history then all was forgotten except to the scholars and historians with the desire and skills to uncover what Rome destroyed and tried to bury and hoped their efforts in this regard would in time be forgotten and in a generation or two no one would ever remember "what used to be".

In order to deal with the "New Covenant" and "New Testament" defense which some will appeal to, I believe it to be very rewarding if we ruthlessly look at this New Covenant we hear so much about. But let me warn you, what you will discover will be very disconcerting to you because at present most of you hold a religious belief system based upon untruths in many areas that you, like myself, inherited as children reared in a Christian home and when presented with "the real truth" you will tend to want to reject it and defend long held and cherished beliefs that you have held most of your life; religious beliefs I will remind you that few if any of the readers will have personally investigated themselves for truth as to their reliability and origin.

Answer for yourself: Do you want the truth or a lie? That is a hard one when it becomes uncomfortable to study and the study of Christianity and its true origins and deceptions is anything but "comforting"; that is why so many stop when they begin to really get into this type of study.

Answer for yourself: Before dealing with the "New" or "Renewed" covenant, do you remember that all the events that transpired in the Book of Acts happened after the time for given by these New Testament writers for the death of this Jesus and were examples and pictures of what this emerging Gentile Church truly was before the rise of the Mighty Empire of Rome? Having agreed with this statement then let us proceed.

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that you have gone to church your whole life and called yourself a "New Testament" believer and never fully understood what Covenant you are under in the first place?

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that you don't know God's intended meaning for the word "New" as used in the New Testament or this "New Covenant" as seen in this Christian "New" Testament? Seems impossible does it not? But yet we never looked behind this big word "new" and traced down this quote found in the New Testament to see if the writer was faithful to the meaning of the word "new" as used by the Prophet in the Hebrew Scriptures who first "spoke" and "penned" this word. Got you seat belt on? You will need it for here comes the shock of you life (or one of them for our articles have shock after shock in them but that is what happens as you come to see what the truth will do to you when it hits you between the eyes).

Answer for yourself: Could you, as a Gentile Godfearer, who calls yourself a "Christian," be a literal descendant of Abraham through Isaac and Jacob and not know now it?

Perhaps the idea strikes you as too incredible to take seriously, too far fetched to be true--much like a dream which is so good that you are sure it could never happen in reality. The possibility of your own physical descent from Abraham (he was a Gentile if you recall and not a Jew by the way) is such an overwhelming notion that it is easy for your rational mind to dismiss the thought as literally "too good to be true."

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that a careful reading of the Torah and the Prophets reveals that Abraham's seed, particularly the descendants of the Northern Ten Tribes, who were taken captive into all the Gentile nations of the world, are still in exile among the world's nations, and will soon be brought back to the LORD their God and to the Land of their ancestors? Are you aware that the Old Testament prophet Hosea states that these captives will "intermarry" with the Gentile world, be assimilated into Gentile religions, and lose the truth of the religion of their fathers? Are you aware that these who are "blinded to their paths" are promised that in 2000 years that God will have mercy on them and "open their eyes" and that they will "recover" their paths and return to the Jewish faith? Now that sounds great for the Jews but we are not speaking about "Jews"; we are speaking about "non-Jews" who were taken all throughout Europe over 2000 years ago and had their "seed" spread far and wide for 2000 years and this "blood line" was diluted but yet scattered throughout the known world and one day the Mayflower came to America and with it Hosea's promise for truly today the "awakening" in Gentile Christianity to is "Jewish Roots" is the fulfillment of this promise. The rest of this story is found in the evolution of Gentile Christianity since the colonies to today as found in the corner Church houses of our land; many of which contain "thinking" Christians who are blessed to live in the "Information Age" where this knowledge of our "Jewish Roots" can awaken us to our past and our intended futures.

Answer for yourself: It is possible that centuries of intermarriage of these captive Jews from these ten Northern Tribes with all the other nations to which they were sent spread the chromosomes and "blood line" of the family of Abraham and today that these "seeds" cover the world as Genesis records and as Abraham was told (number as the sands of the sea)? Are God's promises made to these seeds today? Could that be you? If so, could you be a fruit of this "seed" and not know it?

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that if you are experiencing an inner pull toward the God of Israel, and to His Torah, and the Hebrew Roots of the Christian faith, then the probability is high that in these last days that you, as a Gentile Godfearer, could possibly be a descendant of one of the Ten Northern Tribes which were assimilated into all the Gentile nations of the world? How so? Well it begins with Acts 15 and Acts 16 again for we see historically that within a "Gentile despising" Judaism of its day a group of repentant Jews rose up to take the Covenant of Noah to the "non-Jewish" world and no longer enforce circumcision upon the "non-Jew" for his inclusion into the Israel of God. This was long after this "Jesus" and was the actual fulfillment of the Great Commission as we know it historically and this was again both the "pattern" and the "message" taken to the world whereby the Gentile could be "saved". If you are looking for the true Gospel you found it; the true Gospel is the knowledge given to mankind that in faith and repentance and obedience to God and Creator to the Laws and Commandments given him in his Covenant with God that mankind can make himself acceptable to God and be assured of his Eternity with God at his death.

While the Divine scenario of the Northern House of Israel being taken captive by Assyria, scattered among the nations, and regathered to the LORD in the latter days is most specifically laid out in the Book of Hosea, chapters 1 and 2; one could argue that it is most passionately enunciated in Jeremiah, chapter 31. However, be cautious in your reading of Jeremiah 31, since this vitally important chapter has often been misunderstood by both Christians and Jews, when they have failed to pay close attention to Jeremiah's carefully chosen language. It is intriguing that the prophet himself tells us, "In the latter days (today) you will understand this" (30:24b).

In hopes that this prophecy will be fulfilled in your life I continue with this article.

Answer for yourself: To whom is the prophet Jeremiah giving the prophecy of this "New Covenant" in Jeremiah 31?

Before you hastily answer "the Christian Church" as it now stands, you better examine what I have to show you.

You will note that the prophecy recorded in Jeremiah 31 is directed to both the House of Israel, which consists of the Northern Ten Tribes of Israel, and the House of Judah. Nowhere is the Gentile Christian Church of Rome or her Protestant daughter mentioned. This point is forcefully made in chapter 30 verse 4 where this particular prophetic sequence of events is initiated with the statement, "Now these are the words which the LORD spoke concerning Israel and concerning Judah...."

Answer for yourself: Was the Lord talking through Jeremiah the Prophet at that time to the Baptists,

Methodists, or Catholics today, or was God speaking through Jeremiah to the House of Judah (Jews of the Tribe of Judah and Benjamin) and the House of Israel (consisting of the Ten other Tribes of Jacob); those who observed the Jewish faith and follow the Hebrew Scriptures and the Covenant of Moses (Laws and Commandments)?

If you answer this question incorrectly then there is no hope for you to understand what Jeremiah is really saying in these verses, let along the Jewish Christ who said things like:

Matt 5:17 17 Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil. (KJV)

or

Matt 15:24 24 But he answered and said, I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel. (KJV)

Instead of "reading into the passage" a meaning you desire it to say, or a meaning that your Pastor has taught you in your traditional "anti-Jewish" theology, I challenge you to let the Bible teach you what it says!

Then follows the now familiar pattern we often find in the Old Testament of Israel being punished for her disobedience. We see the need for punishment upon both Houses of Israel by military defeat and scattering in exile, but ironically in such punishment we find the mercy of God resulting in the complete accomplishment of the Holy One's purposes by Israel's eventual regathering as being seen today in both Jewish and Christian circles as they recover their "Jewish Roots". I hope and pray that over time this will become real to you and that you will full understand later about what I just said. Please read on.

Answer for yourself: Can you see the complete futility of trying to make this prophecy of Jer. 31 refer to the Christian Church because in no time in its history was the Christian Church punished by scattering, exile, and captivity as was the Tribes of Israel? Ironically it was the Christian Church who did the punishing of millions down through the Dark Ages. If you want to see the truth then I suggest you read The Dark Side of Christian History by Helen Ellerbe.

Answer for yourself: Is it possible you have your whole life misunderstood what God, Jeremiah, and the Jewish Christ meant when speaking of the "New" Covenant? I can assure you that most have.

Both the scattering and the regathering of Judah and Ephraim (Ephraim is a synonym for the Ten Northern Tribes) are in the Wisdom and Providence of God. Jeremiah's language is chilling in 30:24: "The fierce anger of the LORD (YHVH) will not turn back, until He has performed, and until He has accomplished the intent of His heart; in the latter days you will understand this."

Answer for yourself: Are we living in the latter days, and if so, is it time to fully understand this passage correctly? What have we missed up to now?

These words bring to mind a parallel passage in the Book of Isaiah, chapter 27 verses 8 and 9, "By measure, by exile, thou didst contend with them; He removed her by His rough blast in the day of the east wind (both exiles and captivity were by foreign invaders from the East). By this (exile and captivity) therefore shall the iniquity of Jacob be atoned; and this is all the fruit to take away his sin...."

It is worth noting that Isaiah here indicates that the exile would serve as an atonement for the sins of the people. Such an idea of atonement for sins might come as a surprise to those used to thinking in Christian terms, but is only because we have failed to understand Yom Kippur and all the facets of Biblical Atonement (if interested please request our articles on Yom Kippur) and learn the truth about true Biblical Atonement and if this Biblical atonement, in spite of what you have been taught by Gentle Christianity and its Bible, could ever be applied to the death of one for another according to the Hebrew Scriptures!!!

Fortunately, the Almighty's plan does not end with punishment and abandonment of His people, Israel. Jeremiah 31 starts out with the hopeful declaration of the LORD (YHVH), Himself, "At that time (that is, 'in the latter days,' see previous verse)...I will be the God of all the families of Israel, and they shall be My people." God promises the descendants of Israel (who, through captivity, exile, and intermarriage with Gentiles became assimilated and enculturated Gentiles today) that they will find "grace in the wilderness" (verse 2), followed by the most moving promise of all, "I have loved you with an everlasting love" (verse 3). It would be a grave mistake, at this point, to assume that these incredible promises are made only to the House of Judah, the Jewish people; on the contrary, read closely verses 5, 6, and 9b:

Again you shall plant vineyards On the hills of Samaria; For there shall be a day when watchmen On the hills of Ephraim shall call out, 'Arise and let us go up to Zion, 'To the LORD our God.' For I am a father to Israel, And Ephraim is my firstborn.

These clear statements, made by the LORD, identify the primary audience. It was the Northern Ten Tribes who occupied Samaria/the hill country of Ephraim anciently, and who are prophesied to do so again.

These Ten Northern Tribes, who are frequently referred to in Scripture collectively as Ephraim, are called the LORD'S "first-born" (possibly an allusion to Genesis 48:14-20 and I Chronicles 5:1).

The sure word of God to the descendants of Ephraim, the Northern Ten Tribes, is, "Behold, I am bringing them from the north country (Assyria), and I will gather them from the remote parts of the earth...." (verse 8a). And again, stated even more emphatically in verse 10, "Hear the word of the LORD O nations, and declare in the coastlands afar off, and say, 'He who scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him as a shepherd keeps his flock.'" Notice the interesting wording here. This declaration is to be made in the "coastlands afar off," and the descendants of Israel are to be gathered from "the remote parts of the earth." These locations certainly lend evidence to current efforts to identify the descendants of the Ten Tribes with the Northwest European peoples and their colonies (America). Take pause to think of what I just said!

Proceeding to the next major section of Jeremiah 31, we encounter the heart-rending passage, "A voice is heard in Ramah, lamentation and bitter weeping. Rachel is weeping for her children; she refuses to be comforted for her children, because they are no more" (verse 15). This passage was applied in the New Testament to Matthew's report that Herod slaughtered infant Jewish children at the birth of the Christ child. But we know from study that this event by Herod is pure fiction created to make the "Jesus Story" follow the Ancient pattern of the sungods (darkness tries to overtake the light...this is pure astronomy at its best). Most historians would agree that this cannot be its intended original meaning. Jewish interpreters have most often understood it as a reference to the Holocaust, or to Jewish suffering throughout the ages. Yet even this reading, which is certainly more to the mark, because it is too general and does not do justice to the highly specific language of Jeremiah. Remember, according to the historical books of the Bible, the Jewish people are primarily composed of descendants of the Tribes of Judah and Levi, and to a lesser extent Benjamin. Judah and Levi are the children of Leah, not of Rachel (Gen. 29:32-35). And while Benjamin was Rachel's son, she never got the chance to know him, as she died during his birth (Gen. 35:16-19).

But Rachel did give Jacob a son, whom Jacob loved very dearly, Joseph (Gen. 37:3).

Answer for yourself: Is it not this son Joseph and his children [Joseph remember had two sons....Manessah and Ephraim] whose descendants were taken in the Assyrian captivity and never returned to their land or their faith that Rachel is weeping over in Jeremiah 31:15? Indeed, it must be!

The Holy One instructs Rachel to stop weeping, promising her that her children will "return from the land of the enemy."

Answer for yourself: And, what children are these?

Look closely at verses 18 and 20, where the LORD (YHVH) says, "I have surely heard Ephraim grieving, 'Thou hast chastised me, and I was chastised like an untrained calf; bring me back that I may be restored, for Thou art the LORD (YHVH) my God.'" The LORD'S reply is passionate:

"Is Ephraim my dear son? Is he a delightful child? Indeed, as often as I have spoken against him, I remember him; Therefore My heart yearns for him; I will surely have mercy on him," declares the LORD.

Again, it is clear that it is The House of Israel/Ephraim/the Northern Ten Tribes which through intermarriage is melted into the Gentile gene pool of the world which is being referred to here, not the House of Judah/the Jews. If anyone is tempted to think that the term Ephraim is being employed here in a generic way to address all Israel, just glance down to verses 23, 24, and 27, where Judah is treated as distinct from Ephraim/the House of Israel.

Next follows the passage that is at once the most awesome and the most misinterpreted of all the promises recorded in the prophets--the one concerning the "New Covenant."

Answer for yourself: Understanding that although most Christians have applied this amazing prophecy of Jeremiah, which is often quoted in the New Testament to the Gentile New Covenant Church and its mission to the Gentile nations; is it possible that this understanding could be in error? It sure is!

Anyone who will carefully read what Jeremiah says, and whom he addresses in this prophecy, if kept in context, will quickly see that such an application does serious injustice to the text. Unfortunately, the unconscious motivation Christians have in trying to claim this passage as for their own only promotes the advancement of a "replacement" religion which began long ago, in which the Jews were no longer the heirs to the promises of God, but rather the Gentile Christian Church. One can only say, in the face of such claims--read the text!

Answer for yourself: What does Jeremiah actually say?

It can be clearly seen from the context (verses 27-28) that at a time when the House of Israel (the Northern Ten Tribes) and the House of Judah (Judah, Levi, and Benjamin) have been restored to the Land promised to their ancestors, and are multiplying and prospering, the LORD will THEN AND ONLY THEN "make a new covenant with the House of Israel and with the House of Judah...." (verse 31).

Answer for yourself: With the vast majority of Jews living outside the Laws of Israel today, by some estimates 95%, then is it proper to say that "this time" has arrived and that this "New Covenant" is in place at the time of the writing of this article? Could again this "New Covenant" be in existence and the foundation for the Christian Church as they propose? No way.

Answer for yourself: Just because we say that this "New covenant" spoken of by Jeremiah the Prophet refers to us and our church, does that make it so?

Answer for yourself: Let say that you, as the Christian, are Ephraim (and ironically you are if you are awakening to the Jewish Roots of Christianity) and this prophecy applies to the Christian Church, then according to the timing of when God will make this "New covenant", can you say that this New Covenant is already made and existing because the Christians have been restored to the land of Israel and their ancestor's faith (surely Christianity does not follow Judaism)? Again this is not happening today. Or do most of Christianity today lay outside the land of Israel and have a belief system quite opposite to the Jewish Church of Jerusalem; a religious belief system that denigrates these Laws and Commandments of God and "kills" according to the New Testament? I think you get my point.

Answer for yourself: Can you see that this is another example where the Gentile Christian Church has stolen the "blessings intended for the Jews" and erroneously applied them to itself while leaving all the "curses" for the Jews? Church history is replete with such examples of Replacement Theology, and I bet you didn't think you had or accepted any anti-Semitic doctrines in your belief system! Well, you have. This is just one of many and most go undetected because they are called "orthodoxy" today.

Please note that this New Covenant is not made with the Gentiles; neither is it made solely with the house of Judah, the Jews. Rather, it is an incredible future promise that is guaranteed to the Jews and to their brothers, the descendants of Joseph/Ephraim (this Jewish Christ called these the "lost sheep of the Hours of Israel [Ephraim]), after they have been reunited and are prospering in the Land of Israel...as well as the "non-Jews" being restored to the Hebrew Roots of their faith through the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah (part of the Covenant of Moses)

You well know the magnitude of the promise and if not let us review it:

I will put My Law within them and on their hearts I will write it (God's Laws); and I will be their God, and they shall be My people. And they shall not teach again, each man his neighbor and each man his brother, saying, "Know the LORD," For they shall all know Me, from the least of them to the greatest of them," declares the LORD, "for I will forgive their iniquity, and their sin I will remember no more." (verses 33-34).

Answer for yourself: Does not this passage sound strange to a Christian that prides himself as not being under the Law but grace? Now, how sure are these promises? Can God lie?

Answer for yourself: Could these promises be taken away from the physical descendants of Jacob/Israel and given instead to a group of Gentiles calling themselves "Christians" who reject the Laws of God let alone His appointed times such as Biblical Festivals and Sabbaths? I would not count on it if I were you!

The scriptural text addresses that possibility most plainly, when it says, "Thus says the LORD, who gives the sun for light by day, and the fixed order of the moon and the stars for light by night..., `If this fixed order departs from before me, ...then the offspring of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me forever'" (verses 35-36). And, as if that wording were not strong enough, the passage continues, "Thus says the LORD, `If the heavens above can be measured, and the foundations of the earth searched out below, then I will also cast off all the offspring of Israel for all that they have done'" (verse 7).

Answer for yourself: What further comment is needed?

Now, dear Christian, let me ask you a very important question:

Answer for yourself: Are you grafted into Israel as Paul stated in Romans, or are you grafted into a Gentile organization built upon Replacement Theology given to you by the early Gentile Catholic Church?"

Answer for yourself: Do you observe the Festivals and Sabbaths of the Lord and of Israel, or do you observe pagan holidays that have had the name of "Jesus" affixed to them and have taken the place of what is commanded in Scripture and can be shown to be observed by both Jew and "non-Jew" both in time of the Old Testament as well as the New Testament and historically up until the 5th century?

Answer for yourself: Have you substituted the "day of the sun" (Sunday) for the Sabbath?

Answer for yourself: Have you replaced one of the most fundamental tenants of the Jewish faith...giving of Tzedakah (charity) which comes from your tithe and which is commanded to be given only to "certain areas" in the Hebrew Scriptures with the financing of buildings, mortar, brick, utilities, fancy lunches, Pastors cars, recreation, vacations, Hotel rentals, symposiums, gatherings, home payments, etc., with your tithe instead of what Yahweh commands and the particular ways delineated in the Hebrew Scriptures that in "only be used"?

Answer for yourself: Are you, as Gentile Godfearers grafted into Israel, in fact part of Israel and the people of God along with the Jews or have you apostatized from this "Jewish truth" and does your life reflect a practice exhibiting a mixture of truth and error as taught you by the Gentile Christianity of today?

Answer for yourself: Are you the "remnant" among the Gentile nations who will be gathered as the "elect" and be presented at the Marriage Supper along with Judah-Benjamin, thus making up the Bride of Messiah, or will you be delegated to be the "servant-foolish bride, the ten 'foolish virgins'" and be cast out of the Wedding Supper because the Jewish Christ, in his own Torah, is commanded by his Father to not marry Gentiles! The only Gentile who will become a bride to Messiah is one, like Ruth, who said "your people will be my people and your God my God." You better think on this one!

Answer for yourself: How can you dear Christian continue to believe, practice, observe, and finance "neo-paganism" and the fruit of Constantine's antisemitism masquerading and defined as "righteousness" after having come to truths as shown in these articles?

Since you have been deprived by so many essential truths God desired you have, much of what you believe and consequently do is out of ignorance and lack of knowledge. You are forgiven by repentance which is just one decision away.

I suppose that there is no greater spiritual darkness than what surround the false teachings today concerning the "New Covenant." It is to this we turn now our attention in our next article.

"GODFEARERS" IN THE NEW TESTAMENT: THE PATTERN FOR GENTILE PARTICIPATION IN THE ISRAEL OF GOD #8

We addressed in our last article the possibility that this often spoke of "New Covenant" in the Christian Church might not possibly even begun yet as Christianity teaches. Such a thought usually is met when spoken aloud with ridicule and dismay by the hearers but I call you to attention to what will be presented in this and later articles in another series dealing in-depth with this critical issue. At state is the sad fact that one either stands outside of relationship with God in a "make-believe" Covenant of their own making due to their lack of proper understanding of the Hebrew texts, contexts of the Scriptures they read and a lack of historical information or else one stands secure in the Covenant given them by God; a Covenant that I have often brought to your attention as a "non-Jewish" believer in God; the Covenant of Noah which you will come to see as "New" or more correctly, "Re-newed".

Answer for yourself: Is the "New Covenant" really "New" at all? We would be foolish to answer in the affirmative until we examine what comes next in this and further articles.

Before we go in depth in this matter a little background information is necessary. Shavuot (Pentecost or the Feast of Weeks) is the festival of the giving of the Torah, the Laws and Commandments of God. The Torah, which is commonly known as the Pentateuch, consists of the first five books of the Bible: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. This may surprise you, but the Torah, the Law and Commandments of God which are given to both "Jews" and "non-Jews" is an integral part of this "New" or "RENEWED" Covenant mentioned in our New Testaments. You may find this likewise shocking, but the "New Covenant" you heard spoken of continually will NOT become effective until a Shavuot Festival, some time in the future. Many Christians talk about the "New" Covenant, or Testament constantly without knowing of what they really speak. You may find it surprising, but the Greek word for "testament" is "diatheke" meaning "mutual undertaking between two parties or more, each binding himself to fulfill obligations." In the New Testament, the use of "diatheke" means:

- 1). a promise or undertaking, human or divine,
- 2). a promise or undertaking on the part of God, and
- 3). an agreement, a mutual undertaking, between God and Israel (notice it does NOT say the church). We spent a good deal of time and space in the last article showing the reader that the promise of this "New Covenant" was made with both Judah and the Ten Northern Tribes of Israel, otherwise known as Ephraim. And we showed that historically Ephraim was dispersed over the known world and scattered and assimilated into the Gentile nations of the world for some 2,000 years where they would "lose their paths" and their "religion" but with the promise of their return where they would be "restored to their paths" in the latter days which Hosea describes as 2,000 years which make us current of sorts. And we connected this to awaking of the Gentile Christian to his "Jewish Roots" which truly are these "paths" of his fathers before they were dispersed and became Gentiles for all practical purposes in this captivity of Israel. So again in the Christian's discovery of these "Jewish Roots" of his Christian faith we have before us the fulfillment of Hosea and it is here the Christian is being grafted "into the Israel of God".

Answer for yourself: Does the actual words in the Greek Scriptures teach us that a "testament" is made between God and Israel and not the antisemitic Gentile Church? It sure does.

Often in Bible study "little" word have "gigantic" meanings. Let us look at one.

Heb 8:10 10 For this is the (SAME) covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people: (KJV)

Strong's Concordance: the Greek word of "this": #3778 houtos (hoo'-tos); including nominative masculine plural houtoi (hoo'-toy); nominative feminine singular haute (how'-tay); and nominative feminine plural hautai (how'-tahee); from the article 3588 and 846; the he (she or it), i.e. this or that (often with article repeated): KJV-- he (it was that), hereof, it, she, such as, the same, these, they, this (man, same, woman), which, who.

Answer for yourself: Is the writer of the Book of Hebrew referring to "the same" Covenant (quoting Jer. 31:31) which the writer of Jeremiah speaks? He sure does.

Notice if you will two verse above, in Hebrew 8:7, we find concretely that this "same" Covenant mentioned by this Hebrews writer and Jeremiah is called "New" and is the one that the New Testament speaks about throughout its texts from beginning to end when addressing this "New" Covenant.

Heb 8:8 8 For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah: (KJV)

In other words, "this---same" covenant, as was spoken by Jeremiah (that was originally instituted with an earthly Priesthood) has now been called "New" in the New Testament but the meaning behind this word "New" escapes us at present until we look it up.

Answer for yourself: Is it just possible, when looking up in a Hebrew Lexicon, this word used by the original writer Jeremiah when he penned in Jer. 31:31 this "New" Covenant that its real and true meaning does not mean "new, as in replaced" but "RENEWED, RESTORED, REAFFIRMED" and "NOT REPLACED"!

Answer for yourself: In referencing "New Covenant" in the Greek New Testament, is the reference ALWAYS to the covenant spoken of by Jeremiah the Prophet which was made with Judah and Ephraim? It sure is and we know this for a fact since the Hebrew writer says it is the "same" Covenant of the quote he uses and we know that this quote comes from Jer. 31:31 where Jeremiah mentions that one day God will establish this "New Covenant" with Judah and Israel.

Answer for yourself: How do Gentiles, who "once were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, who had no hope, and were without God in the world", according to Eph. 2:12, become part of this "New Covenant" of Jeremiah spoken about in the New Testament?

Well lets look at this Hebrew word for "New" that is the key to what Jeremiah said and what the writer of the Book of Hebrew quotes and what is the backbone of Christian theology today.

Jer 31:31 31 Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: (KJV)

Strong's Concordance: The Hebrew word for "new": #2319 chadash (khaw-dawsh'); from 2318; new: KJV-- fresh, new thing.

This does not tell us much so we have to keep looking for if we stopped here then we will miss completely what Jeremiah is really telling and what the historical witness of Judaism teaches.

Brown-Driver-Briggs Hebrew Lexicon: The Hebrew word for "new": #2318 chadash (khaw-dash'); a primitive root; to be new; causatively, to rebuild: KJV-- renew, repair. 2318 chadash- to be new, to renew, to repair a) (Piel) 1) to renew, to make anew 2) to repair b) (Hithpael) to renew oneself

Answer for yourself: What should we learn from this Hebrew word?

As you can see we are "not replacing" anything; rather we are taking "the same" and "rebuilding it, renewing it, repairing it"; actually we are "repairing ourselves" which is the simple fruit of repentance to these Laws and Commandments that we allow God to write onto our hearts and which we live throughout our lives. Simply said when we realize that we are grafted into Israel and into the faith of Israel then we come to see how these Laws and Commandments in the Covenant of Moses, laws which I have shown you are part of the Covenant and Laws of Noah for the "non-Jew", then it should dawn upon us that we repair ourselves by submitting to the observance of these Laws and Commandments give us as "non-Jews". It is these Laws and Commandments which make up our Covenant with God. These "same" Laws are the ones which the Acts 15 Jerusalem Council called "necessary" and on top of that as I have shown you we get the opportunity to "choose those things pleasing to God" which helps unite both Jew and "non-Jew" together. In such Laws and Commandments are opportunities for the "non-Jew" to become more Torah obedient in voluntarily submitting to and observing the Sabbaths and Biblical Festivals along with other mitzvot that we come to adopt in our lives "because it pleases God". As we also have shown repeatedly is that the Bible, when correctly interpreted, show that these "non-Jews" kept and observed these "Holy Days" right along with the Jews as "Godfearers" which demonstrates for us that they understood the principle of Isaiah 56. Surely you see by becoming members of various denominations and non-denominations which reject God's Biblical Feasts, Festivals, and Sabbaths that this "unification" of these two peoples of God who are supposed to make us this Israel of God can never happen; especially when Christianity considers the Jews "lost" and tries to evangelize them when the reverse is the "pattern" of the whole Hebrew Scriptures as well as the Great Commission.

Jude 1:3 3 Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common salvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints. (KJV)

Hopefully this makes you think if you are really in "the faith" given only "once" to the saints by God or just have "a" faith about something" which God never gave you or desired you have. Hopefully it will dawn upon you that you have received not this "one faith" given mankind by God but the one which Constantine did and took exceptional efforts to make sure you never found the truth.

Writing long before the rise of the Roman empire and the Roman Church Paul speaks of this "one faith" which he was teaching his "Gentile Churches" in Asia, Minor:

Eph 4:5 5 One Lord, one faith, one baptism, (KJV)

Since it can easily be shown that Paul taught these Holy Days to these "non-Jews" then it is a "no-brainer" as to what Paul was teaching these "non-Jews"; he was teaching them the "Jewish faith as practiced by non-converted Gentile believers". Let me give you two examples; one where Paul taught the "non-Jews" to observe the Sabbath and one where Paul taught the "non-Jews" to observe the Biblical Festivals long after the time for this New Testament Jesus. This was the "Pattern" of worship dear one which was intended to be taught to every "non-Jew" in the wake of Acts 15 "as Moses is read in the synagogues every Sabbath" and one that Rome destroyed over 500 years and which needs restoring today to the Christian Church.

In other words, the "New" covenant of the "New Testament" is in reality this "same covenant" so often spoke of in the Hebrew Scriptures [Mosaic which contains within it the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah for the "non-Jew"] which is to be renewed in your life; not replaced with one of Rome's making. This Covenant mentioned in Hebrew and referenced in Jer. 31 is "the same covenant" with its Laws and Commandments which are to be written on our hearts which are our Covenant stipulations and responsibilities before God. It is "this same Covenant" which Rome, through their "Romanized Paul" will teach the whole Gentile world does not any longer apply to them by forging their "Second New Testament" (little do we know that the First New Testament is not the one we have today). Little do we know or understand that every one of God's Covenant are Eternal!

Now pay attention please.

Answer for yourself: Jeremiah 31 states that the day will come when this RENEWED Covenant will be made with "whom"? Does he say Israel and Judah? Or with Judah and the Christian Church; a Christian Church which by the way rejects the faith of Judah and these same Laws and Commandments and has done so now for some 1,700 years presently?

The answer to that question is "Israel and Judah", Israel being understood as Ephraim who today are dispersed Gentiles worldwide; many of which qualify as truly "Ephraim/Israel" because they are turning to the Jewish Roots of Christianity and finding these "Jewish Roots" best represented in Judaism and not the imposter called "Messianic Christianity" which often has these same "anti-Jewish" dogmas as traditional Gentile Christianity but only masqueraded in "Jewish dress" and "Jewish music". It is these "blinded" Gentiles who have lost their father's faith who today are awakening to the truth of Judaism and their place within it through adoption of the Covenant of Noah along with the observance of Isa. 56 in their lives. Ironical it is when you see it that Ephraim was punished by God for straying away from this "faith once given to the saints" and departing from "Jewish" or "Biblical" ways but yet it is Gentile Christianity which has adopted the same and practice this replacement religion each Sunday. This I remind you is the same practice from what the LORD commanded with brought the judgment of God down upon their nation and which happens to be the same reason why Ephraim was taken captive in the first place.

Answer for yourself: Where is Israel to be found today?

Answer for yourself: Is Israel to be found in the Tribe and descendants of Judah; many of which are in the land of Israel since 1948, but also scattered about the globe? There are large factions of Judah in Africa today and few know this. Where are the ten tribes of Israel today? I have already shared a little on this but more on this will come shortly so keep reading.

Secondarily this "New" testament is often used to refer to a collection of books supposedly written by the Apostles. While we all talk "about" this New Covenant, most folks do not know the terms that make up this "New" Covenant. Since most folks consider the "New" covenant as an important part of their religion and relationship with God, it becomes clear that we "ought" to know the terms of this "New" (Renewed) covenant. Since this is a legal document and has an impact on our lives, we certainly should be intimately familiar with the terms of this Covenant. First let me tell you what the "New" covenant is not. It is not the collection of books commonly known as the New Testament which has unfortunately replaced the Bible of the Jews, the Hebrew Tanakh. Little known by most Christians is the fact that it will take Rome almost 400 years before the Roman Catholic Church created a document to establish their validity of their antisemitic theologies and dogmas which they created in their reaction to Biblical Judaism; doctrines by the way which are often contradicted by the Torah and Tanakh (the Law, Prophets and Writings found in the Hebrew Tanakh). I have already shown you that it was this "message" of the Torah, a message of personal responsibility to obey these very

Laws and Commandments of God, which was taken into all the world to the Gentiles in the Great Commission).

Answer for yourself: How do we know this?

We know this because a Covenant, or testament, is a contract between two parties. Webster's Unabridged Dictionary defines "testament" this way: "In law, a writing, under seal, containing the terms of agreement or contract between parties..." Since the collection of books merely quotes the terms, and since most of the writings of the New Testament do not contain the terms of this covenant, it would be poor scholarship to refer to this collection of Apostolic Writings as the "New Testament."

The ceremony commonly known as "communion," which is mistakenly practiced by most Christian churches as a substitute for the Festival of Passover, is not the New Covenant because this ceremony does not mention the words that make up this agreement. While this ceremony mentions the seal of the New Covenant (the cup of wine of the Passover), it does not mention the actual words that make up this agreement.

Answer for yourself: What exactly are the words, or terms, of this "New" covenant?

The words, curiously enough, are found in the collection of books sometimes referred to as the "Old" covenant. The prophet Jeremiah wrote down the words of this agreement in Jeremiah 31:31-34: "The time is coming," declares the LORD (Yahweh), "when I will make a new (renewed) covenant with the house of Israel".

Answer for yourself: What are we missing here ?

We must never forget that Israel had been dispersed, assimilated, and intermarried into Gentile nations for over 200 years when Jeremiah spoke this prophecy) and with the house of Judah. This means that this "renewed Covenant" will be made basically with "non-Jews" and it is to them that God said that He will:

Jer 31:33 33 But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the LORD, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Since the "Jews" have since Sinai been "God's people" then who is the subject of Jer. 31 who appear to "not be God's people"? It is the "non-Jew"!

Speaking of the "non-Jews" we find:

Eph 2:12 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: (KJV)

In other words, you cannot find the Tribes or descendants of Israel when Jeremiah spoke this prophecy, as these ten tribes were literally becoming "Gentiles-heathen" since their captivity and were no longer "God's people." Israel as a Torah practicing people was no more! No longer were they living by God's Laws and Commandments in their lives. Rather, the descendants of Abraham, once monotheists, were now polytheists like their captives, and began to adopt a new religious belief system of man's invention instead of God's revelation. They were losing their Biblical Roots, they were losing their Hebrew and Jewish Roots just like Gentile Christianity of today has and has for the last 1,700 years due to the efforts or antisemitic Rome and their forged Bibles that teach a "replacement religion" instead of the true faith of God.;

Answer for yourself: Has this same sickness infected the Body of Christ in the Gentile Churches of today? You better believe it has (just request our articles on Sabbath and Festivals to understand the depth of darkness that exists today in Gentile Christianity).

Let me explain. Since Ephraim's captivity, the people of Israel were becoming intermarried with pagans, being influenced and yielding to paganism, accepting and replacing, or at least mixing pagan religious beliefs with those given to them by God at Sinai, thus no longer following the "faith once given to the saints".

Please read slowly and carefully:

This "same covenant," seen in Hebrew 8, "will not be like the covenant I made with their forefathers when I took them by the hand to lead them out of Egypt, because they broke my covenant, though I was a husband to them," declares the LORD. "This is the covenant I will make with the house of Israel after that time, declares the LORD. I will put my law (Torah) in their minds and write it on their hearts. I will be their God, and they will be my people. No longer will a man teach his neighbor, or a man his brother, saying, 'Know the LORD,' because they will all know me, from the least of them to the greatest, declares the LORD. For I will forgive their wickedness and will remember their sins no more."

Answer for yourself: Could these "Laws" and "Commandments" that are to be written on the hearts of these "non-Jews" be referring to the Laws of Noah later called "necessary" in Acts 15 by James and the Jerusalem Church? You bet they are.

Answer for yourself: Why is so important and why do I stress this so much?

Without study of these 66 Laws of Noah then it is impossible for you to grasp at present what a major correction they are for present day Christianity and Christian teaching and dogmas. At the very core of these Laws of Noah is a major rebuke of normative Christian doctrine and christologies that render all "non-Jews" who accept these "beliefs" about this Christian Jesus both idolators and blasphemers before God! This dear one is the "unpardonable sin" we read about in our New Testament and the horrible irony of it all is that we are tainted by this horrible sin until we die because we were taught typical Christian dogmas about this Jesus and accepted them without serious study on our parts. We carry the shame of this sin till our last breath and a blessing to us is that our deaths are the final atonement for such a horrible sin. It may be too late for us but not too late for children because with proper teaching then it is possible that they can live before God in their lives without this horrible sin that will follow them all the days of their lives.

Answer for yourself: As stated before, how does God intend His laws to be written on our hearts (let alone a Christian's heart) and how can this be done when a Christian denies the Law and believes it has passed away?

Let us never forget that faith comes by hearing and hearing by the Word of God. Understand that those former Israelites were now inter-married and assimilated into Gentile nations where they were forgetting the faith of their fathers and were no longer knowledgeable of nor observing the Laws and Commandments of God along with His Sabbaths and Festivals like Christianity has done today. Through this Great Commission the Jew was to be a "light to the world" whereby once again these "non-Jews" could be once again instructed concerning the Covenants and Laws of God by the Jewish witness to them of these truths. Then the product of their hearing and learning of these Laws of God given and intended for them would stamp these truths in their "minds" thus when accepted would enable them to become engrafted once again into the Israel of God. One only has to look at Nehemiah, chapter 8, for a perfect example of former Jews, who when returned from captivity where they did not hear the Word of God and were influenced by pagan cultures, had forgotten the Word of God. Yet when taught by Ezra for the first time of God and His Laws intended for them, cried, repented, and returned to God with broken hearts as this "renewed" Word was "written on their hearts" as they heard with their ears and understood with their minds.

Answer for yourself: Is it any wonder why you do not at this time have the same religious belief system as taught by the Old Covenant which is held by the Jews today and which can be shown to be shared by both "Jews" and "non-Jews" in the Hebrew texts considering what Rome has done to this revelation over the last

1,700 years? It is any wonder why we have a completely different religious belief system than the once that can be discerned upon some serious study in the New Testament?

It is so simple. We as Christians and followers of the Christ have not had good teachers to teach us the truths which have for so long remained hidden until these last days. And those we have are blinded by prejudices and anti-Semitic doctrines inherited from both the Catholic and Reformation churches and when shown the facts and evidence from such hard-nosed study of the texts and history refuse to acknowledge these facts as if they don't exist before their eyes.

I would again like to call your attention to the names of the parties that "WILL" make this covenant in the future. The first party is called "the house of Israel" (currently the House of Israel as the dispersed and assimilated Gentiles when this prophecy was spoken by Jeremiah) and "Judah" (Judah was still in the land of Israel when Jeremiah prophesied, but would shortly be taken into Babylonian captivity). The other party to this "RENEWED" covenant is God. God is referring to Himself as Yahweh.

So, if you (typical believing Christians) are not of the house of Israel or Judah, then this "new" or RENEWED covenant has no effect on you!

In other words, the Christian Church finds her validity as she is grafted into Israel, not the converse, where Israel is being grafted into the Gentile church.

Answer for yourself: Take a minute and ponder which I just said, then ask yourself this question: am I grafted into Israel, or is Israel grafted in my corner church?

On the other hand, if you are convinced that the "New" covenant applies to you, then somehow you must be a part of the House of Israel in order for its benefits to be applied to you. This covenant, between the house of Israel and God, is quoted, verbatim, in Hebrews 8:8-12. This is the only other place where the words, or terms, of the new covenant are spelled out so expressly in the New Testament. If you carefully read this contract, or if you were to take this contract to your lawyer, you will learn that this contract of the New Covenant has not yet taken effect!

This contract cannot take effect until the Gentile Christian understands, believes, and practices the faith of the Jewish Christ. This contract cannot take effect until the Gentile Christian comes to the understanding of the truths presented in these articles and truly believes that he is grafted into Israel, thereby rightfully entering into the "renewed covenant" of Jer. 31.

Ye who have ears to hear, hear what the Spirit says to the church! Also, this contract-covenant can only become effective when everyone knows the Lord (that's what it said). "Until everyone knows the Lord" means knowing and understanding His ways which are revealed in the covenant contract, the Torah (the first five books of the Bible which have not passed away in lieu of grace). The tragedy is that most Christian churches teach that the LAW (our covenant contract) has passed away and does not apply today since we are under "grace" and "not the Law". Not only do we have to be content with looking forward to the time when this contract is put into effect, but we must unlearn lies taught as truth by well intentioned spiritual leaders who are sincere, but sincerely wrong.

We must understand that the Law is still in effect, only the Priesthood and the sacrifices which accompany the Priesthood have changed. We must understand and cherish our "marriage certificate with God," His Torah, His Law, and take our rightful place as Gentile believers as "part" of Israel, and no longer allow ourselves to be tossed by every wind of doctrine by ascribing to replacement theology whereby we falsely believe the Christian Church has a covenant of its own to the exclusion of the Biblical Covenants as found in the Hebrew Scriptures and which are confirmed by a proper reading and understanding of the New Testament.

The actual terms of this renewed covenant, to which the Christian Church finds its identity, appear to be the same terms of the covenant that God made with the house of Israel at Sinai! We can deduce this by noticing that the "Torah" will be written on our hearts instead of stone. This refers to God's command when He gave the Torah. Deuteronomy 32:46 records for us: Take to heart all the words I have solemnly declared to you this day, so that you may command your children to obey carefully all the words of this law (Torah). We should also notice what is being written on the hearts. It is God's Law, His Torah. It is God's instructions or laws.

The implications of this are staggering!

This means, that when this is done, we will no longer disobey God. We will desire to obey the Law that most Christians are taught today to hate because they have been told that it brings bondage.

This erroneous teaching is due to errors in manuscript transmissions as well as cleverly placed words and additions to our forged Christian Bibles (built off the forged Greek Old Testament along with these forged texts quoted in our New Testament) that are meant to lead you to the pre-formed theological opinions of those who printed your Bible (these redactors are influence by anti-Semitic and anti-Judaic sentiments inherited from prior erroneous education). It just so happens that this "anti-Law" belief, which has been cleverly written into the pages of our Bibles and the corners of copies of Greek manuscripts which were later incorporated into the very text itself which were not there in the earlier Greek manuscripts from which the English translation is derived, is in total conflict with the words of the Jewish Christ and the real Paul in the Bible (see articles on misunderstanding Paul and the Law and misunderstanding Galatians).

Now you know the real history and the facts behind these "texts" we inherited from Rome along with their "false tradition" that has robbed us of the rich truths and experiences we could have had in the proper worship of our Creator; a "Pattern" which yet still today exists in Biblical Judaism and which we can turn to. All we need it a little truth and someone to show us the way. Now you have been shown.

Blessings

PAUL'S REBUKE OF PETER ...HAS THE NEW TESTAMENT MISREPRESENTED IT & THE INCIDENT AT ANTIOCH? #1

---

Disclaimer: It is important for the reader to understand that in this website, in comparing first century Judaism and their Messiah with later Christianity and their presentation of the Jewish Messiah along with the unveiling of the historical truths concerning the non-Jewish "believer" in the first century, I will use a "literal-historical" approach to the "Jesus Story". If you have studied our other websites then you know that "the Christ" can be interpreted from 3 different perspectives down through recorded history: "mystical", "mythological", and "literal-historical". Only after one has spent a considerable time in dedicated and scholarly studies in such areas as Biblical Judaism, the Jewish Messiah and true Messianic prophecy as taken from the Hebrew Scriptures and not the later forged texts of Rome, manuscript evidences, the history and origin of the Roman New Testament, the Gnostic Paul vs the Roman Paul, the Essenes and their "literal godman", Gnosticism, Egyptian religion and the ancient "Jesus Story", Comparative religion, and Astrotheology can he understand and be certain which two of the above three methods of interpretation of "the Christ" are accurate and factual. Again for purposes of comparing Judaism vs Christianity and the implications that this holds for the non-Jew and "Godfearer" we adopt in this website and for all studies in this website a supposed "literal-historical" interpretation of "the Christ" as well as the Jesus of the New Testament. Only in so doing can we adequately contrast the truths of Judaism vs Christianity theology and by so doing follow the train of these Divine Truths back down the corridors of history to the earlier Divine revelations given to mankind by the Creator which were intended for both "Gentiles" and "Jews" as well. I will let you be the judge of the results of such studies and leave to the reader to draw the necessary conclusions as we attempt to compare Jewish and Christian theological perspectives all the while dealing with the New Testament Jesus in a "literal-historical" manner in order for such an accurate comparison to be done effectively.

WILL THE REAL PAUL PLEASE STAND UP

I can just hear many of my readers now: "There he goes again, tearing down my hero Paul". Well it is not my desire to build up or tear down anyone; only to get to the truth behind accounts in the New Testament which have been recorded in such a slanted way as to obscure truth. It is in the spirit of truth and critical historical study that we investigated great time and research to get the bottom of Paul's rebuke of Peter.

Identifying forgeries in the Bible often calls for some hard detective work. There is no "royal road." Every clue, every nuance, no matter how subtle or insignificant it may seem, must be followed to its logical conclusion. Sometime the results are ambiguous and frustrating.

They remain questionable, and I will point out a couple of examples. But perseverance often pays off, and the data confirm a suspected Bible forgery. So, although some of the suspected Bible forgeries may ultimately be proved authentic, others certainly will be substantiated. The so-called Pauline epistles are a good case in point because modern scholarship today reveals that many that carry Paul's name are outright forgeries; fakes written often to present an anti-Jewish polemic or an anti-Gnostic polemic. This is rather amazing as one does the necessary studies for it is quite evident to the accomplished scholar today that the authentic Paul of the New Testament was Gnostic "Chrestian" through and through although later portrayed in anti-Gnostic tone by Roman writers.

Paul was a Jew born at Tarsus, a city in Cilicia. The year of his birth is not known exactly but scholars put it at about 5 C.E. His Jewish name was "Saul" which he used within the Jewish community with "Paul" being the Greek version. He is believed to have died in Rome around 65 C.E. Paul was a contemporary of the time in which Jesus supposedly lived. Outside the New Testament letters (epistles), there are no reliable sources for his life. In the New Testament the so-called Pauline epistles begin after the Book of Acts and include the next thirteen entries. They all begin with the words "The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the . . ."

Answer for yourself: But did he really write them?

According to scholarly analyses (see Attachment), Romans, I and II Corinthians, I Thessalonians and Galatians are genuine. Opinion is divided on the authenticity of Philippians and Philemon. Ephesians, Colossians, II Thessalonians, The Pastorals (I and II Timothy and Titus) are held by most scholars to be forgeries written considerably later than the time of Paul. The story of Paul's conversion to Christianity and his career as a missionary is given in the Book of Acts and was probably written many years after his death. Therefore its authenticity remains highly questionable.

Of the thirteen epistles ascribed to Paul in the Bible, only five to seven can be identified as authentic with any degree of certainty according to modern scholarship. Yet, all thirteen are headed with the bold inscription, "The Epistle of Paul the Apostle to the . . ." which is blatant subterfuge in the face of undeniable evidence to their forgery. This amounts to a most scandalous and irresponsible deception. I know of no minister of the gospel who has ever had the intestinal fortitude go before his congregation and make this revelation. They, instead, proudly promote themselves as paragons of virtue and honesty; purveyors of truth - the only truth. Intellectual dishonesty is their stock in trade.

This issues at stake in such research affects every non-Jewish believer on this planet. This will become crystal clear if you take the challenge and read the forthcoming articles which will strip away many of the lies and half-truths portrayed in the New Testament. Dear one, whether you know it or not, the New Testament you carry in which you hold beliefs concerning "inerrancy and infallibility" is more truthfully understood to be a Roman religious propagandist document in which a "replacement religion" was used as a political glue to hold the crumbling Roman Empire together in the 2nd through 4th century when the Canon of the New Testament was organized.

To examine all the forgeries attributed to the Gnostic Paul would take several books so I have limited our study in this website to the "Antioch Incident". James D.G. Dunn, in Jesus, Paul, and the Law, states on page 2 that: "The Antioch incident was a crucial episode in Paul's career. The question was , How crucial?" He goes on to challenge his readers with such questions as:

- What was it that the men from James demanded from Paul and his church?
- Why was it that they demanded such from Paul and his Jewish-Gentile church?
- What was it that Peter and other Jewish Christians withdrew from, and why?
- What effect did this Antioch incident have upon the future of Jew-and Gentile relationships in the churches of Yeshua?
- What effect did this Antioch incident have upon Paul's relationship with the Jerusalem Church and was his defense of his Apostleship in many of his epistles stem from the Jerusalem's rejection of Paul and "his gospel"?

One of the issues raised by this study was is the changing relationship between Paul and the Jerusalem church before and up to the Antioch incident. Prior to the Antioch incident Paul had been much less independent of Jerusalem than subsequently-hence the somewhat defensive tone of Galatians 1:10-2:10. Without a doubt Galatians 1-2 reflects a transition in Paul's relationship with Jerusalem and the Jerusalem congregation and its authorities. What you the reader must understand from the outset is that it is this rejection of Paul and "his gospel" by the Jerusalem Church which plays such an integral part in the overall picture of Paul's theology and its development.

Answer for yourself: What was Paul's gospel? Paul consistently mentions his gospel by name. He remarks "my gospel" often in the New Testament. But there is one problem.

Answer for yourself: What is that? Well have you ever read supposed Pauline literature and noticed that Paul often seems schizophrenic and contradicts himself? Well, he does quite often. That is because of this tampering and forgery of epistles that bear his name today. What we find when we look is that Rome will later write quite a lot of "anti-Gnostic" propaganda and use Paul's name for authority for their anti-Jewish and anti-Gnostic propaganda. This, simply said, explains why Paul seems schizophrenic in the New Testament; often contradicting himself on the same page or within two pages of the same epistle. If you have never see this for yourself then you have not read close enough because it is there in the New Testament in abundance.

Answer for yourself: So what are we to do with Paul, especially in light of the large possibility that much of the Pauline corpus in the New Testament is not the expressed beliefs of the Gnostic Paul? Well, for the purpose of contrasting the anti-Jerusalem Church message by the emerging second century Roman Gentile Christian Church where Paul's name, as the leading apostle to the Gentiles, was used as the highest authority for promoting the Roman anti-Gnostic and anti-Jewish theology, we then have to assume that Paul wrote all that carries either his name or assumed to be written by him. Only later will we, in later teachings, vindicate Paul for the true Gnostic that he was but that is a study for another day. So, please forgive my assault upon Paul for truly it is not so much an assault upon Paul but Rome who forged anti-Gnostic and anti-Jewish treatises in his name. Now let us be prepared to read between the lines as we study the following articles.

The Antioch incident marked a crucial stage in the development of Paul's theology (Rome's theology) and his separation from the Jerusalem Church. In Galatians Paul is striving to assert his independence from Jerusalem. I challenge you to read Galatians 1-2 with the understanding that those whom Paul opposes and who opposed him were in reality the famous James and the elders of the Jerusalem Church. This puts a whole new spin on Paul's self-vindication in his epistles. The inner tension should be noticeable by all. The problem is ascertaining whom the adversaries of Paul actually are. You can understand my amazement when I discovered over the years of my study that the adversaries of Paul of whom he characterizes as "Judaizers" in the New Testament are the very one whom the supposed Jesus walked with and taught for 40 days after his resurrection. To assume these "Judaizers" are wrong and that Paul is "right" makes Jesus an incompetent who put the wrong men in charge of the Messianic Movement. To assume these "Judaizers" of Jerusalem, James and the Jerusalem Church are "wrong" in their theology is incredulous considering these same men had been filled with the "Spirit of Truth" on Pentecost. Surely the true anointing of God did not lead these men into error. James no less is the leader and head of the Jerusalem church and Messianic movement in Jerusalem in the first century. This again is the mother church for all missionary activity. It seems to me that if these men at Jerusalem had it wrong then what does that say about God's competency in setting these men in authority especially in light of beliefs attached to Jesus, that he was resurrected from the dead and believed to be the Messiah of Israel by many in this Jerusalem Church. This is the tension we have between these two parties.

This again is the setting we have that confronts our further study: Paul is opposed by James and the church and Paul is opposed to the same. Unfortunately we have only Paul's and Luke's account of the matter in the New Testament. Let it be remembered that this "Luke" was Paul's friend and companion in several of his trips. So if we are to come to the bottom of the matter then everything must be scrutinized for truthfulness. We can take nothing for granted nor shall we.

TROUBLING QUESTIONS TO CLOSE ON

As we close this brief introductory article in this Antioch Incident Series understand what is at stake here. If James and the Jerusalem Church can be found to be in the right then that means Paul was not observant of the dictates of the Acts 15 Church Council that preceded the Antioch incident. Let us never forget that the Book of Acts attests for us in Acts 15:23 that the church wrote letters of their decision at the momentous Jerusalem Council and attests as well that these letters containing James' decision regarding Gentiles and their grafting into the Israel of God were to be sent to the Gentiles congregations in Asia to inform them of the decision of the mother church/synagogue in Jerusalem. This if anything was to be the "pattern" for Gentiles and their relationship with both God and Jews everywhere. Not only that but verse 28 states that "it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things". Take just a moment to notice that the decision of James and the Jerusalem Council was seen by the Holy Ghost to be "good" and "necessary" for the non-Jewish believer.

Answer for yourself: Have you ever stopped to take notice of what is said in Acts 15 and then ask yourself "What things were these that seemed 'good' and 'necessary to the Holy Spirit' concerning Gentiles in their relationship with God and the Israel of God?"

It seems certain things were mandated by God and enforced by Godly representatives for the non-Jewish believer to both observe and keep as part of his inclusion into the Israel of God whereby he received the gift of salvation. The seriousness of the matter is underscored by the fact that these "necessary" and "good" things will not be enforced by Paul to his Gentile churches; in fact Paul, or should I say the "Roman Paul" will be seen to be instrumental in casting such things to the ground as if they were not important. This is the whole of the crux of the problem at Antioch. The letters informing of the Jerusalem Church's decision were intended to "strengthen" the Gentile Churches but the information within them had to be implemented among the Gentile converts and Godfearers. Paul, or should I say the "Roman Paul", would make several serious compromises the majority of which today escape the notice of the casual reader.

In the next articles I will point out each area of contention where Paul, or should I say the "Roman Paul", directly disobeyed both James, the Church, and the Holy Ghost and literally broke from being submissive to the Jerusalem authority and preached "his own gospel" in defiance of Jerusalem and the Holy Ghost's decision.

This I know is shocking to most because you have grown up with the positive account of Paul in the New Testament. But understand that this view of Paul is biased to say the least and far from the truth concerning this man. If you find the courage to continue reading I will prove, prove to you that the Paul of the New Testament is not a friend of Jerusalem Church let alone "the Christ" whom you think he followed. But again we are dealing with a false picture of this man whereby he is made to be anti-Jewish and anti-Gnostic by this Roman New Testament. Therefore, this Roman Paul is made to do his own thing and this is what brought him into great contention with the Jerusalem Church and its authorities. And in such disagreements of course this Roman Paul is made to appear as if he not only wins such contentions but is presented in such a way that diminishes the authority and validity of the Jerusalem Church.

But the New Testament is not consistent in the portrayal of Paul or even of the Jerusalem Church. Again such wavering in positions speaks to the inconsistency of the writers of the New Testament documents which are not historically reliable but intended to bolster theological agendas. The censors and redactors of the New Testament often left behind stands of thought that betray their alteration of key ideas in the texts. Take for example where Paul is summoned to Jerusalem twice to answer charges brought against him in his life; the first at the Acts 15 Council and finally in Acts 21 where he would publicly demonstrate under duress his obeisance to the Torah and in so doing complete the Nazarite vow which required of him the offering of blood offerings and sin offerings for atonement.

Answer for yourself: And what is so strange about this? Well, for one thing Paul is found bringing blood sacrifices to the Temple for atonement offerings some 30 years after the supposed death of Jesus; the same Jesus which this New Testament attests is the final offering for sin.

Answer for yourself: That being the case then does it appear that the Jerusalem Church, who commanded Paul to do this, believed that the supposed death of Jesus was a final atonement for sin and does it appear that Paul, by obeying such a command, also believed that this supposed death of Jesus was a final atonement and sacrifice for sin? Well it sure appears not.

Answer for yourself: Understanding this fact which often goes hidden in the text of Acts 21 where it says:

Acts 21:26-27 26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day purifying himself with them entered into the temple, to signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, until that an offering should be offered for every one of them. 27 And when the seven days were almost ended, the Jews which were of Asia, when they saw him in the temple, stirred up all the people, and laid hands on him, (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Why is this passage of monumental importance for a Christian? Well, for one thing, hidden in this passage is the fact that the death of Jesus as recorded in the New Testament was not believed to be a death that was the final sacrifice of sin; either by Paul himself or James and the Jerusalem Church. This fact is hidden under the surface of this passage and unknown to Christianity and this fact exposes again Rome's fictional theological creationism in the New Testament where they have passed off to an unsuspecting Gentile world a "replacement religion" for over 1,800 years at present. Contained in this passage is the hidden truth that Paul was ordered by James to take a Nazarite vow, a vow which according to Judaism and the Laws of Moses required he make blood sin offerings and blood atonement in the Temple long after Jesus' death. This was done according to the New Testament as James request and that Paul obliged. What is staggering to the mind of a "thinking believer" is that bringing of bloody sin offerings and bloody atonement offerings was done 30 years after the time of Jesus death as depicted in the New Testament when, as we are taught today, that Jesus' death was supposedly understood and believed to be the final sacrifice for sin. Evidently someone forgot to tell James, the Jerusalem Church, and Paul about this "doctrine". We one begins to look at this event he, maybe for the first time in his life as a Christian, comes to see how true Biblical Atonement operated and how it is impossible in Judaism that one's death, no matter whom, could be an atonement for the sins of others. This has fatal implications when applied to the New Testament's dogma that this Jesus' death was a final sacrifice for sin and a final atonement for all mankind. This fact alone shows us that neither Paul nor James and others in the Jewish Church of the first century interpreted this Jesus' death as a sacrifice for sin and the door for Eternal Life. I ran upon this fact when studying Judaism over 17 years ago and in so doing it only motivated my further study to come to the truth about other things I was reading in the New Testament like this "Antioch Incident" we are dealing with in these articles. It is time to learn the truth about Biblical Atonement and how God gave all mankind various ways to make themselves acceptable to Him.

Answer for yourself: What then should you do knowing this? You should study. Well, for one thing you could begin to study true Biblical Atonement in the link above and learn how it truly worked and only then can you see for certain if atonement could be connected to one shedding his blood for others. This is a big problem that lies at the heart of the "crucifixion" of this Jesus and worthy of your study to find out the truth about true Biblical Atonement and what, if any, relationship it has to the death of this Jesus.

That was a lot to start with and I ask that you ponder what has been said, but above all, let us continue with the second article in this series. But don't forget what I said about true Biblical Atonement. The irony of this whole thing is that I learned the truth about Biblical Atonement not from Jewish writers or Rabbis but through

Christian Old Testament scholars and historians who do not have a church to build or an offering to collect. I first learned the truth about true Biblical Atonement from two famous Christian authors who give us today the Kiel-Delitzsch Commentary on the Old Testament. After having been exposed to this I began to read Jewish sources and Rabbis concerning atonement which only confirmed what I had been previously shown by Kiel and Delitzsch when reading on Leviticus. You see, like me, you never knew the truth about atonement because you trusted and believed everything in this New Testament and never knew to look into such things having been falsely assured that everything in it is "God-breathed". I was horrified to know that no longer could I casually "read and believe" this New Testament and accept what I was reading as the "truth" without personal study. This was the opening of my theological "pandora's box" for me.

PAUL'S REBUKE OF PETER ...HAS THE NEW TESTAMENT MISREPRESENTED IT & THE INCIDENT AT ANTIOCH? #2

If one reads Galatians chapter one and two he finds it very informative as to Paul's relationship with the Jerusalem apostles. This is one of the key questions relating to the beginnings of Christianity which has never achieved a completely satisfactory resolution. It is clear enough that in Galatians itself Paul is striving to assert his independence from James, Peter, and the Jerusalem Church. This cannot be disputed in light of historical facts.

THE EXEGESIS OF GALATIANS 2....LOOK AT WHAT WE FIND

Paul finds himself in rather a difficult predicament. The facts of history already betrayed Paul as Gentile convert and a Sadducee, which when spurned in his love interest in the Chief Priest's daughter, defects to the Pharisees. So now we have Paul as a self-made Pharisee. Paul, wishing to defend his honor and reestablish his position in the religious hierarchy of Jerusalem, made such a attend following his "revelation" on the Damascus road. Paul desired independence from the Jerusalem Church yet needs their acknowledgment and authority for his missions.

In Gal. 1:15-17 we find Paul's admission that he, after receiving his revelation of Jesus, "did not confer with flesh and blood, nor did he go up to Jerusalem to those who were Apostles". Paul makes a strong case that he did not "confer" with those who knew Jesus best.

Answer for yourself: Does this not seem rather odd, especially since the New Testament pictures this Paul as opposed in the beginning to this "Jesus Movement"?

That seems strange to me considering he persecuted the "way" of the Nazarenes and caused the death of many before his "enlightenment" on the road to Damascus.

The Greek word for "confer", as taken from Galatians 1:16 tells us a lot:

4323 prosanatithemi-

- 1) to lay upon in addition to
- 2) to lay upon oneself in addition
  - a) to undertake besides
  - b) to put oneself upon another by going to him,
  - c) to commit or to betake oneself to another for the purpose of consulting him
  - d) to consult, to take one into counsel
  - e) to add from one's store

3) to communicate, to impart

DOES PAUL INCRIMINATE HIMSELF AND REVEAL HIS MOTIVES IN THIS WORD FROM GALATIANS 1:16?

Remember in this study we are looking not only at the texts in question and trying to understand them in their historical significance as relating to the non-Jewish believer in the first century but also looking for the "authentic Paul" as opposed to the "inauthentic Paul" of Rome's invention.

The first thing we see in our study that "yes", Paul does incriminate himself. In fact Paul's choice of words betrays his hidden attitude toward authority in his life. Remembering his rejection by the Chief Priest not being allowed to marry his daughter since being a "non-Jewish convert" and how he at first had thrown in his lot with the Sadducees, Paul sets out to establish his own credibility and authority in response to his being rebuffed by the Chief Priest and Temple authorities. If you wish to read in-depth in these issues I highly recommend H. Maccoby's The Mythmaker: Paul And The Invention Of Christianity. This book will open your eyes and only begin a life-long study into "what is the truth about Paul?"

Answer for yourself: In what way? This book, hard to locate today, by Maccoby, will show you the Roman Paul and the "anti-Jewishness" of his characterization and portrayal in the New Testament, the same New Testament which also goes to great lengths to show this same Paul as a "Pharisee of Pharisees". This is the schizophrenia of Paul that I have mentioned before that we find in his portrayal along with the many vacillations of doctrinal and religious positions that we find in the Roman New Testament.

We find from this simple word study ["convey" in Greek] that although Paul had been a severe if not major persecutor of Jesus's Church, after his "revelation" Paul braggingly stated that was not willing to confer, to consult, to take into counsel the Jerusalem authorities, or even to "add" to his store of knowledge concerning Jesus from those who knew him best.

Answer for yourself: This does not sound right, does it?

According to this Greek word for "consult" Paul braggingly states in Galatians that he was not willing to lay up more knowledge concerning Jesus from those who knew him best. He did not seem to need to add to his knowledge of Jesus other than what he had received on the Damascus road. But more enlightening is the meaning that he was not to put himself in a humbled position of submitting to another or committing to another for the purpose of consulting him in hopes of gaining needed and necessary knowledge concerning Jesus and Jesus's gospel. Except for the Damascus road revelation we all know Paul was in direct opposition to Jesus and had the wrong message. Not only that but Paul did not consult with flesh and blood about the significance of the revelation he had received about his understanding of "revelation of Jesus Christ" (v.12) as a call to preach the gospel to the Gentiles. For Paul it was not necessary for him to consult with any man about the meaning of the revelation he had received by Jesus Christ. He had a private interpretation to which he assumed he needed no witness from those he had previously been persecuting. What is most amazing to me is that Paul brags about not needing to go to those who were the apostles before him (v. 17), to those, that is, who remain within the circle of Jesus's followers who were at that time regarded as the most qualified to give an authoritative interpretation of what he (Paul) had seen on the Damascus road. By the time he did first visit Jerusalem three years had elapsed and the meaning of the "revelation of Jesus Christ" at Damascus had been clearly established "in" Paul without any reference to outside-human-agency, including the Jerusalem Apostles.

PAUL'S FIRST VISIT TO THE JERUSALEM CHURCH

Galatians 1:18 states: "Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter, and abode with him

15 days". Verse 19 states: "But other of the apostles saw I none, save James the Lord's brother".

Thayer's Greek Lexicon translates "see" in this manner:

2477 historeo-

- 1) to enquire into, to examine, to investigate
- 2) to find out, to learn by enquiry
- 3) to gain knowledge of by visiting, used of some distinguished person, to become personally acquainted with, to know face to face

Now we see after three years Paul's submission to the Jerusalem Church whereby he traveled to Jerusalem to enquire and find out information which he was lacking about Jesus. We must understand that Paul probably never met or heard Jesus teach so his information about him would be shallow indeed. Paul needed to "catch up" especially since he fashioned himself the Apostle to the Gentiles. Paul's trip was, according to the Greek word, intended for the sole purpose of gaining information and knowledge of Jesus by visiting those who knew him best. The word carries the implication of "gaining information" and in this case from those who knew Jesus best; namely Peter and James.

If Paul was so concerned at this stage of his life in asserting his independence from Jerusalem he would hardly have used a word which explicitly acknowledged his own personal indebtedness to Peter for information concerning the "Christ crucified" which he preached.

But we have good reason to conclude that Paul's attempt to distance himself from Jerusalem had a much more specific issue in view; namely, his own personal interpretation of the revelation given him on the Damascus road. Understand that Paul was not trying to stand aloof from Jerusalem in respect to everything to do with the new movement. What he wanted to safeguard was quite simply the claim that his basic understanding of the gospel to the Gentiles came direct from God (v. 11-12). It was precisely his understanding of his Apostleship to the Gentiles which he refused so resolutely to attribute to any human authority (v.1). This had been made perfectly clear by Paul in his refusal to confer with the Jerusalem authorities for 3 years following his "revelation".

What is important for us to know is that Paul was NOW quite ready, as seen in these passages, to acknowledge his indebtedness to Peter and James for further information concerning the background of Jesus's ministry as well as the very beginnings of the new movement centered on the risen Jesus.

That Paul would have had a natural curiosity about this Jesus who had appeared to him outside Damascus is rather obvious and we can hardly doubt that the fortnight with Peter was largely spent in passing on such information. Paul used his time with Peter, the one who had been closest to Jesus, to make inquiry, to draw out the sort of information which had not come to him with the apostle-making gospel-giving revelation three years earlier. What I want you to grasp is that after three years we supposedly find Paul submissive to the Jerusalem Church but that was to change over the course of the next few years.

PAUL'S SECOND VISIT TO THE JERUSALEM CHURCH

Galatians 2:1-2 states: "Then after fourteen years I went up again to Jerusalem....I laid before them the gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but privately before those of repute, lest somehow I was running or had run in vain".

The Greek word for "laid" is as follows:

394 anatithemai (an-at-ith'-em-ahee); from 303 and the middle voice of 5087; to set forth (for oneself), i.e. propound: KJV-- communicate, declare.

This is a very interesting word. The word carries the added idea of "declaring and communicating" with the added idea that the person to whom a thing is referred is asked for his opinion. In other words, something is laid before someone for his consideration. Paul is asking for approval of the Jerusalem authorities for the message he has been preaching for the last 14 years! This word carries the idea of submitting to a higher authority an issue which the one making he submission (Paul) was incompetent to resolve on his own. Dear reader what we read here in the Greek is that Paul is submitting to the Jerusalem authorities "his gospel" for their approval. This literally is Paul's acknowledgment that the authority of his gospel depended on Jerusalem's approval.

This is of major importance as we again see for over 17 years Paul was preaching "his gospel" without the sanction of the Jerusalem Church! Wow! Let that sink in!

During these 17 years Paul has been holding a delicate balance in defining his relations with Jerusalem. On the one hand Paul makes it clear that his second visit took place 17 years after the revelation which had determined and defined for him "his" gospel and Apostleship to the Gentiles. Nothing that happened at such a distance in time from that decisive event could undermine or call in question the direction or significance of his commissioning by God through Jesus Christ. Paul goes out of his way to point out that he went up in accordance with a further revelation thus presumably excluding any suggestion that his visit to Jerusalem was in response to a summons from James and the mother church. Furthermore he calls the Jerusalem leadership "men of repute", a phrase which acknowledges the high standing in which the pillar apostles were held by others, without constituting an endorsement by Paul himself. The use of the last expression in particular reinforces the impression that Paul's choice was designed to characterize the balance between Paul's recognition of the Jerusalem's Apostles' eminence and authority and his even firmer assertion of independence in the authority of his gospel and Apostleship.

PAUL DOUBTS THE VALIDITY OF HIS REVELATION...NOW PAY CLOSE ATTENTION

Let me set the stage for you. Paul had a revelation. Lets face it, revelations are not always easy to understand or comprehend without help from spiritual authorities at times. Paul sought no help for 3 years. Only after three years did Paul consult with the Jerusalem authorities; and then only Peter for 2 weeks where he asks for "information" about the one he preaches in hopes of "filling in the gaps" lacking in his knowledge of Jesus. Paul then strikes out preaching this revelation for 14 years then has second thoughts as we see from Galatians 2:2. Notice Paul then, after 14 years, makes the rather phenomenal statement in Gal. 2:2: "Lest somehow I should be running or had run in vain" (Gal. 2:2).

This clause certainly indicates not only serious doubt by Paul about the truthfulness of what he has been preaching for 14 years but a genuine concern on Paul's part that the success or failure of his missionary work among the Gentiles which depended upon the approval of the Jerusalem Church as well as its head Pastor James. Without a doubt the judgment of the Jerusalem apostles mattered to Paul; an adverse judgment concerning his gospel would have rendered his work past and present ineffective and useless.

Answer for yourself: If you have been following then here comes a big question. How can Paul in the same breath both assert his independence of the Jerusalem apostles and yet also acknowledge that the effectiveness of his work depended on the approval of his gospel by these same Jerusalem authorities? Something is wrong here! There are two Pauls here before our eyes. This should give us pause to think that something is amiss in the texts!

On one hand we see the thought that Paul knew, what few Christians know today, that Jerusalem's refusal to acknowledge all or part of Paul's "gospel message" would render it ineffective. Rome new this as well and had to have their Paul receive the backing and support of the Jerusalem Church and James if they were ever to use the historical Paul to their theological and political advantage in the New Testament they would later write. Rome knew that to use Paul for 2/3 of their New Testament where they give the world a "lawless/Torahless" message from the mouth of Paul then this same Paul would have to appear to have the sanction and support of the Jerusalem church. Thus the accounts we read that make Paul obeisant to the Jerusalem Church while others reveal his independence from them.

Answer for yourself: Did these Jerusalem authorities and apostles ever give Paul complete approval of his "whole gospel" or would they at the Acts 15 Church Council correct many parts of it and command Paul upon his return to Asia Minor to make sure that his churches under his tutelage be taught the truth in certain areas which at that time because of Paul they did not possess? These things will be searched out in future articles so stay tuned?

YET...PAUL WAS CORRECT IN MANY THINGS

Let me say at this point that one of the things Paul had been preaching was correct. Paul had been preaching that the non-Jewish believers in God, who accepted the Covenant of Noah along with the Laws of Noah, through the ministry of Jesus and his followers, were grafted into the Israel of God without the need of circumcision. Paul was right on this. This is what the whole Galatians epistle is about; not about being "not under the Law, but only the non-Jew not being under the law of CIRCUMCISION as stated in the Covenant and laws of Noah." Christianity possibly has got nothing more incorrect than this, or maybe possibly its Christology.

You need to know that the acceptance of the non-Jew without circumcision was not the accepted or established practice of mainline Judaism at this particular time in Israel. Due to the intense Jewish hatred for the non-Jew, the rite of circumcision, given only to the Jew, was imposed upon the non-Jewish male in hope of providing an effective deterrent to his conversion to Judaism or other types of religious intercourse.

Guess what; it was working. Because of this potentially life-threatening procedure upon an adult male who no longer had his mother's antibodies to retard against infections as a child, hundreds of men wishing to draw closer to God died in such procedures. The bigoted Jews, who hated Gentiles because God had consistently used them to punish and persecute Israel for their disobedience to their covenant, were using such procedures to hold the non-Jew at arms length and limit both social and religious intercourse. Under the Laws of Noah, and the Covenant of Noah, which both preceded the Laws of Moses, such requirements were never imposed on the non-Jew. Because of the ministry of Jesus and his followers such as James, the pastor of the Messianic Church of Jerusalem, and other, major repentance in the direction of Israel in this regard was to be accomplished. Understand however I am speaking only of the Messianic branch of Judaism only; the orthodox Judaism of the 2nd Temple period never relinquished such a requirement upon the non-Jew.

BUT UNDERSTAND...PAUL WAS WRONG IN OTHER THINGS

Having vindicated Paul on this point, it saddens me to say that Paul will defiantly oppose the other mandates of the Jerusalem Council which would come later as mandated by head Pastor James in Acts 15. The casual reading of Acts 15 without background in this area robs today's believer of such knowledge. A little study can show you Paul was wrong and defiant toward the apostles after Acts 15.

Because of his defiance to accept other parts of the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah as binding upon the non-Jew, as it had been for Abraham, Paul would distance himself from the Jerusalem Church and begin to tout his "own personal authority" and "his gospel" over against the authority of the Apostles of the mother church. This explains the many examples in his epistles where he defends his "Apostleship" against those of Jerusalem which had problems with Paul and his message.

Probably for many of you this is "news" to you...problems with Paul...the Apostle to the Gentiles! My dear one all is not what it appears in the New Testament. If you are acquainted with our ministry we have dealt heavily with the New Testament documents and scrutinized them with the aid of scholarly research to ascertain the truth from the error within them. Such articles as this is the fruit of our labors.

Paul's refusal to accept the mandate of the Jerusalem Council would lead to such comments in the New Testament as this one:

"But from those reputed to be something-what they once were matters nothing to me; God shows no partiality-the men of repute added nothing to me (Gal. 2:6)".

Paul in writing Galatians following the Acts 15 Council would not and did not admit to accepting any requirements as such from the Jerusalem authorities. But as I have shown you James made a ruling and commanded letters be written of the Council's final decision and circulated among the churches in Asia Minor. James is the head of the church and not maverick Romanized Paul!

These very important "mandates" for the Gentile Churches of Asia should have "added something to Paul". It is one thing for Paul to write in a letter intended for the churches of Galatia that the men of Jerusalem added nothing to his gospel and quite another to say that in front of James and the elders of Jesus's Church in Jerusalem. When the cat is away the mouse will play! With such insights you should be able to re-read Paul in the New Testament and discern the tension between him and the Jerusalem elders and his self-vindication to the non-Jews of Asia Minor who knew not the decision of the Jerusalem Council. This is so lopsided it is staggering and we as believers took such rhetoric hook line and sinker never questioning what was the dynamics behind some of Paul's self-vindicating statements. You will see how serious this becomes for the non-Jewish believer as we get deeper into the dogmas and doctrines contained in the Jerusalem decree in Acts 15.

PAUL'S DILEMMA

Paul knew that to acknowledge the Jerusalem apostle's overall authority to determine the terms on which the gospel could be received and Gentiles accepted into Israel's Re-Newed Covenant would have jeopardized the Gentile mission if the "Judaizers" in Galatia could have claimed Jerusalem's authority. Yet, at the same time, the pillar apostle's authoritative ruling in Acts 15 (James') was one Paul had to appeal to if his gospel was to be effective and his vision of Gentile converts being brought into the people of God to be fully realized. It was this attempt to hold on to Jerusalem's authority and yet at the same time to hold it at arm's length which explains the great lengths Paul goes to in his epistles to play up his Apostleship and play down the authority of the "pillars" of Jerusalem. Above all else Paul wanted to make it clear that the pillar apostles acknowledged the validity of his circumcision-free gospel to the Gentiles. That was where he wanted his readers to recognize the significance and force of Jerusalem's authority: Titus was not circumcised despite strong advocacy on the part of some that he should be.

Paul will tell a blatant lie in Galatians 2:6 when he says:

But of these who seemed to be somewhat, (whatsoever they were, it maketh no matter to me: God accepteth no man's person:) for they who seemed to be somewhat in conference added nothing to me:
(KJV)

Paul will later say

"They added nothing, no further content, request, instruction or requirement to the circumcision-free gospel...except the encouragement to remember the importance of almsgiving (Gal. 2:10)".

If you keep reading you will see this is a outright lie Paul tells in rebellion to the Jerusalem message he was commanded to communicate with his churches in Asia Minor. Paul, this Roman Paul of the Roman New Testament is made to violate this command and will of James and simply will not do it!

What Paul writes in Galatians chapter 2 is simply not true. This is where the problem comes in. One only needs to read Acts 15 and James's decree to understand that certain stipulations from the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah were mandated upon non-Jewish believers coming to faith in God, even if through Paul and his ministry. To say these "pillars" added nothing is far from true. It is in these declarations by James that Paul will cast aside when trying to "win souls to Christ". You need to understand that at this point Jerusalem's backing was absolutely crucial to Paul's whole understanding of his gospel and its outworking in his missionary strategy.

On the other hand Paul had no desire to lean on Jerusalem's authority more heavily than was absolutely necessary. Hence once again the distancing phrase, "those reputed to be of some account" and its echo three verses later "those regarded as pillars" (Gal. 2:6-9). Notice also the highly revealing parenthesis, "what they once were makes no difference to me; God shows no partiality". Here Paul's language indicates clearly enough both at that time the Jerusalem apostles were accorded a status and authority [ "what they once were" ...notice the imperfect tense] which is now a matter of indifference to him [again note the change of tense]. Notice also that in his view the Jerusalem apostles are still accorded too high a status and authority by some-but not by God. If this is not stabbing in the back I don't know what it!

It is to these actions of Paul's rebellion and defiance we will investigate in the further articles.

In closing of this article let me conclude with this thought. In laying "his" gospel before the Jerusalem apostles what Paul sought was not so much their approval, without which his gospel would have no validity, as their recognition of his gospel's validity, without which his gospel would lose its effectiveness.

Paul, according to the New Testament and the later epistles of Paul, has appeared to gain James and the other apostles' approval for "his" gospel of "no circumcision" and "no law" for salvation of the Gentile and inclusion of the non-Jewish believer into the Israel of God "without such law". This, as I hope you see, is in direct violation of the earlier decree of James in Acts 15 and Acts 16 where the churches of Asia Minor were given letters stating that the "Laws of Noah" were "required of them by the Holy Spirit". What escapes most Christians today is that when reading the Book of Galatians they tend to get the idea Paul opposed all the Law. A very close reading of the New Testament will show you that he did not. It was just for Paul the Laws of Noah and the Laws of Moses were like a salad bar...he would pick this one and reject this one. This is never what God intended for His children, as we said before, one's relationship with God is totally dependent upon one's Covenant and his effort to maintain Covenant stipulations thereby maintaining relationship with God. For the non-Jewish believer, the Christian, this is the Covenant of Noah. But more than that the Hebrew Scriptures and a careful reading of the New Testament in the Greek and not the English will show you that in the first century "non-Jews" went beyond the minimum Laws of Noah and observed and kept with the Jews the Sabbath and the Biblical Festivals and Feasts plus other mitzvot. This was "optional" but many did it because "Moses was read in the synagogue to them every Sabbath"!

This religion, of both Jew and "non-Jew", side by side, together in the Synagogue, worshipping in like ways the God of Israel, sharing the Torah and observing the Laws of the Torah together, is the religion that existed up until the 3rd century when Constantine and the emerging Roman Gentile Church of Rome will stop it and use the Paul of their creation, as found in many and various forged texts, to give the "non-Jew" a lawless and Torahless Gospel. This false replacement religion will make the "cut" in their official sanctioned New Testament when officially canonized in the late 4th century. One only has to read Constantine's Easter Letter to see the death blow for a Gentile "Judaism". But remember that this had been the pattern for some 300 years before being officially stopped by Rome.

More in the next article in this series as we look deeply into what the issues were that Paul, or should I say the Roman Paul, put aside from the Acts 15 Council along with the the following incident at Antioch where he makes full breach with the Jerusalem Church. What we find is that Rome, and their Roman Paul, will make a full breach with not only the Jerusalem Church but Judaism as well, the faith that gave Christianity its very life. Shalom.

PAUL'S REBUKE OF PETER ...HAS THE NEW TESTAMENT MISREPRESENTED IT & THE INCIDENT AT ANTIOCH? #3

In the first two articles in this series I have tried to lay a foundation into the background of the dynamics involved in the later Antioch incident where the men from James rebuked Peter, Barnabas, and Paul along with his church. We will see this in a minute but for now we are laying a background of necessary information to know for certain what transpired that led up to the Antioch Incident. These events, when properly understood, hold tons of important information that should be of interest to today's non-Jewish Christian if he truly desires to live a life pleasing to God according to the decree of the Jerusalem Church which is historically backed up by Judaism's teaching of the "non-Jew" and his covenants before God. Failure to understand the truth behind the skewed pictures of the event in the New Testament guarantees the reader that his life will not prosper from such a restored truth and hopefully his repentance in several areas of his life once the impact of this information hits home. This will become more apparent as we dig deeper.

PAUL'S REVELATION...&...FIRST VISIT TO THE JERUSALEM CHURCH THREE YEARS LATER

We have made note previously that when Paul had his "revelation" of "the Christ" on the Damascus road, Paul writes (Gal. 1:16-24) that he did not immediately confer with those who had been apostles before him; instead, he went due south to Arabia and then returned to Damascus. Only after three years did he visit Jerusalem for a fortnight's conference with Cephas (Peter); among the apostles he saw only their leaders, Cephas and James the Lord's brother. Presumably in consequence of this meeting he then went to "the regions of Syria and Cilicia," avoiding "the churches of Judaea" even though they had been informed of his conversion and his mission work. Paul implies, and we have no word from the Jerusalem church to state otherwise, that the Jerusalem leaders agreed with him that he should confine his activities to the Gentile mission; at any rate, he was not to work under the direct jurisdiction of Jerusalem or in proximity to it. He also implies that there was no question about the right of the apostles at Jerusalem to govern the churches of Judaea.

The church of Jerusalem was the church of the twelve apostles. From I Corinthians 15:5-7 it appears that their jurisdiction was based on appearances of the risen Christ—on the one hand, to Cephas, the Twelve, and a large group of disciples; on the other, to James and to "all the apostles." The list of appearances seems to reflect the combination of two groups of appearances which were especially related to Cephas and to James, and the authority of the Jerusalem church thus rested on a double foundation (Peter and James). Paul's own claim to apostolic authority was obviously parallel not to that of Cephas, who had been a disciple of Jesus in Galilee and at Jerusalem, but to that of James, a convert only after the resurrection like himself. From the account in Galatians it is by no means clear that Cephas and James recognized Paul's apostolate when he first visited them. Indeed, it looks as if they waited for fourteen years before explicitly recognizing that by divine favor he had been entrusted with the mission to the ## gentiles (Gal. 2:7-9).

Answer for yourself: What should this teach us? Whose authority and message should we listen to more today; the message of Acts 15 and 16 from James and the Jerusalem Church where they commanded non-Jewish believers the world over to observe the Laws of Noah or the message of the later Roman Jesus who preaches repeatedly in the New Testament that the non-Jewish believer is not under the Law? You, the reader, will have to decide that for yourself; I am only trying to make you think.

If this account above is true, the leaders of the church of Jerusalem must have enjoyed a primacy greater than Paul not only in Judaea but also among Jews in other areas of the Christian world. Dear one this means that for all Messianic Jewry the Church of Jerusalem was the ONLY authority for the Jesus Movement...even in Asia Minor where Paul would go later.

Answer for yourself: In light of the pronouncement of the Jerusalem Church and James that the "non-Jews" were to keep and observe the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah because they were "necessary" and "seemed good to the Holy Spirit" then how do we reconcile such a fact with the host of "anti-Law" statements in the Pauline epistles of this supposed Paul who was to be under the authority of the Jerusalem Church and from which he derived his authority for "his gospel"? Did Paul really write these anti-Law sentiments we find in the New Testament or did Rome write then and affix the name of Paul to give then a bolstered authority? Wow, what a question to ponder and study out. Let me warn you we at Bet Emet have done this and the results of our investigation over the years as moved us to develop these websites in order to share our findings for they are critical to the "non-Jew" and how he both lives his life before God and how he worships God as well.

It is a little premature for this now but let me ask it anyway. It is sort of a hint if you will.

Answer for yourself: Is the depiction of Paul in the Roman New Testament accurate to the historical evidence we have or is it even remotely possible that this Paul of whom we read was a Gnostic "Chrestian" (thats right, I did not misspell the word) and we not know it because of Rome's manipulation of history and New Testament texts where they reinterpreted this Paul as they have done with Jesus as well?

Well, that is a great question which we deal with on another website in detail but for now we have the only the Paul we know, the Paul of the New Testament and the epistles and we again must "assume" that what we read is the "authentic Paul" for only in doing so can we contrast the truths of Judaism versus the schizophrenic Paul of Rome's invention and replacement religion.

FOURTEEN YEARS LATER...PAUL'S SECOND TRIP TO THE JERUSALEM CHURCH TO GET THEIR APPROVAL FOR WHAT HE WAS PREACHING

What happened after fourteen years was that Paul went to Jerusalem from Antioch, taking with him both Barnabas and a Greek convert named Titus. The purpose of the visit was to hold a private conference with the Jerusalem leaders and to set before them Paul's gospel to the gentiles (Gal.2:1-10). The results of this conference were extremely important for the later history of the Pauline mission and of the Christian church. Jewish Christians, under the influence of Rabbi Shammai, continued to advocate the practice of required circumcision for non-Jews although it was never required in the Laws of Noah.

Answer for yourself: What was Paul's stance on Rabbi Shammai enforced circumcision of the "non-Jew"?

Paul indignantly rejected it and refused to have Titus circumcised. The leaders of the Messianic Movement within Judaism, the Jerusalem Church, agreed with Paul's position, and from then on he apparently won the definite allocation of spheres of influence described in his letter. According to Paul the "pillar" apostles of Jerusalem laid no additional requirements upon him, he says, and they recognized that by divine favor he had been entrusted with the gospel for the gentiles, just as Peter had been given it for the Jews. This statement by Paul is not true and we will see shortly in Acts 16 that there were several "additional requirements" called "necessary" and "which seemed good to the Holy Spirit" by James which we see that this Paul would not do nor agree to; that is if the epistles of Paul we have today are faithful representations of the Paul of history. Again this reliability of some, but not all of the Pauline epistles, is a large matter of debate among modern scholarship today.

Paul and Barnabas were henceforth to work with gentiles; James, Cephas, and John with Jews. In ratifying this agreement they shook hands with him and also required that he take up a collection in support of the Jerusalem community, presumably thus sealing the concordat. This collection from the non-Jews was evidently analogous to the tax which Jews paid for the support of the temple in Jerusalem.

PAUL'S RETURN TO ANTIOCH AFTER THE 2ND VISIT...NOT ALL GOES WELL...THE ANTIOCH INCIDENT

Following Paul's second meeting with the Jerusalem Church following his 14 years absence difficulties arose immediately after Paul's return to Antioch, for the agreement Paul made with the Jerusalem Church was unworkable in communities consisting of both Jews and gentiles. This needs some explanation for you to grasp the hidden political and religious dynamics behind the scenes which prompted the meeting of the Acts 15 First Church Council.

Lets regress for just a second. Prior to the Acts 15 Council, and follow the revelation to Peter in Acts 10 and 11 where Peter learned (Acts 10:35) that "non-Jews" were "clean" and "accepted with God by practicing righteousness", Peter came to Antioch and at first observed the local Christian custom of eating meals, as a Jew, with Gentiles.

Answer for yourself: Did you catch what I said? It is a shot heard round the world.

Acts 10:35 is a bombshell; not only historically but theologically because it is true and validated by Judaism, not only then but today as well.

Acts 10:34-35 34 Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: 35 But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. (KJV)

Practicing "righteousness" is the key to Eternal Life and Salvation in Judaism as it was in Egyptian religion even before it. Here, instead of obeying the Law of circumcision and making full conversion to Judaism, which was enforced by some Rabbis like Shammai, we find that God breaks through all the religious bigotry of the Jews, and sets the matter straight to Peter who must repent theologically since heavily influenced by R. Shammai and others in his day. "Practicing righteousness" was all that God required for acceptance of the "non-Jew" and in this he found his "salvation".

Answer for yourself: How does a "non-Jew" learn of "practicing righteousness"? Well, he begins with the Laws of Noah enumerated by Judaism and repeated in summary fashion by James in Acts 15. No wonder these "Laws" were "necessary" and "seemed good to the Holy Spirit" and to James. They are the core to the salvation message of the "non-Jew".

Answer for yourself: Do you remember the reference in an earlier article to "true Biblical Atonement"? If you have read this and survived the revelation of these truths and the lies of Christianity then you see most clearly now the big difference between the false salvation message of Rome connected to the crucifixion of this Jesus in the New Testament and the true salvation message of Judaism where "practicing righteousness" makes one acceptable with God! Study is the highest form of worship for only through study can we extricate ourselves today as "non-Jews" from the horrible lies given us as religious truth by Rome these last 1,800 years at the point of a sword tipped in fear! Repentance, the doorway to life and Life Eternal, lies at the door of your life to you. These articles are for you and are my gift to you as a fellow seeker of truth. Now back to where we left off.

Since there were evidently many Jews in the congregation at Antioch, the more conservative among them presumably informed James, at Jerusalem, that the command of the Jerusalem Church regarding the Laws of Noah which were "necessary" and "seemed good to the Holy Spirit" were being undermined by Paul and his congregation at Antioch. In other words Paul had agreed to teach these Laws of Noah in order to strengthen the churches in Asia, Minor, but in reality was violating them before his congregation and teaching by example that they can be broken if need be.

In response to this notification James sent emissaries to insist that Jews should not eat with Gentiles, and his concern was respected not only by Peter but also by Barnabas and the other Jewish Christians (Gal. 2:11-13).

Answer for yourself: Why not? Why were Peter and Barnabas rebuked by the "men from James" over what they saw ("spied out our liberty")? The Laws of Noah regarding table fellowship were being flaunted and violated by both the non-Jews and Jews in Antioch as well and Paul was responsible, or at least this is the idea carried by the New Testament text.

There are many reasons for this repentance over table fellowship on the part of Peter, Barnabas, and other Jews at Antioch when the men from James appeared because as you will see under the teaching of Paul some of the Commandments in the Laws of Moses (the Laws of Noah are within the Laws of Moses) were being violated at table-fellowship with non-Jews as well as some of the Laws from the Covenant of Noah which pertained to these same non-Jews. In other words, in the effort "to become all things to all men" Paul had compromised many Commandments and the men from James would not let these breaches of Law pass nor such disobedience to the Word of God continue for expediency sake.

Answer for yourself: Why would James, the Lord's brother and head of the Jerusalem Church, command Jewish believers not to continue to eat with non-Jewish believers?

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that non-Jewish believers were sinning when they were eating and sharing table fellowship with the Jews, and in doing so tempting the Jews to follow in their sinful ways? Yes!

Answer for yourself: It is possible that at table fellowship in Antioch, between Jewish believers and non-Jewish believers, that important parts of the Laws of Noah from the Covenant of Noah, which were binding upon all non-Jewish believers, were being violated by Paul and the practice of his churches?

Answer for yourself: Had Paul justified the "breaking" and "bending" of these Noahide Covenant requirements and Laws in the hopes of "becoming all things to all men that he might win some"? He sure did.

And the Christian Church today, under this same Covenant of Noah, although they don't know it, sadly follows in the same footsteps and is not aware. This is the reason that the men from James continually dogged this Roman Paul in the New Testament everywhere he went. Paul's persecutions and "beatings" recorded in the New Testament are not from some stray Jews, they were not from "thugs"; rather it was from "brothers" from the Jerusalem Church who had been given a mandate to teach all nations (Gentiles) to observe certain things (many of these things Paul would treat as if they did not exist or apply). These persecutions were simply the result of Paul violating the teachings of the Torah.

But without a deep understanding of what comes next in these articles it is so easy to read Paul's accounts and feel sorry for him when we should be enraged against one who violated the Torah and teaches other to do so. We have only to listen to the words of "the Christ" on this matter to know who is right:

Matt 5:19 19 Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. (KJV)

Rome is cleaver, clever indeed. We find in this Roman New Testament that this Paul supposedly defends breaking the Torah by calling these righteous men who held up such standards of righteousness "Judaizers". Growing up in the church this term always had a "bad" connotation when in truth it is these "Judaizers" who were closest to God and were not compromising the Commandments of God like Paul, Rome, and others. You can see how Paul literally blasphemes those keeping the Torah and relegates them all with the negative term "Judaizers."

Along with this question we must factor in what we have already learned from the previous articles. Let me summarize what we have seen so far:

- Paul was desperately attempting to justify himself after being spurned by the Chief Priest over his not being allowed, since a "non-Jewish convert" to marry the Sadducee Chief Priest's daughter.
- Remember again this is primarily due to Paul being a Gentile who converted to Judaism as the Ebonites teach us today and such a one was "not good enough" for the Chief Priest's daughter, even after conversion in the eyes of the Chief Priest (who was his boss by the way since Paul was first a Sadducee before trying to become a Pharisee).
- Coupled with this, after Paul's defection from the Sadducees and profession of Pharisee beliefs, was further tension created by needing the acceptance and authority of the Jerusalem Church in order to give credibility for his Gentile mission. Paul's prior persecution of the Messianic Movement while being part of the Temple police force as a Sadducee did not help in the matter as well. You need to read H. Macobby and his Mythmaker: Paul And The Invention Of Christianity to understand what lies beneath our New Testament depiction of Paul.

At this point Paul could see that his own mission to the Gentiles was being endangered. I appears that Paul was literally trying to build a name for himself and promote his authority which had been rejected by both the Sadducees and the Pharisees (it took 14 years or them to accept him and yet there was still problems). But I want to be fair as possible to Paul for he had successfully claimed during his trip following his 14 year absence that circumcision was not to be required of Gentiles (never required in the Covenant of Noah). But on the Jewish dietary laws he falters and they are included in the Laws of Noah which are "necessary". Paul, it appears, understood that the straw that would break the camel's proverbial back were these "Jewish dietary laws" among the Gentiles. He feared his "freedom in Christ Jesus" (Gal.2:4) and the unity of the churches would be destroyed if he enforced these Jewish dietary laws were enforced and taught in Paul's estimation. Paul's, or at least the Roman Paul's ideas conflicted with the Torah. The Jews were commanded to observe such Commandments forever (like kosher). There was no getting around this issue for a Jew and any table fellowship with non-Jews (take Antioch for example) would involve such issues. When the men from James came to the Antioch congregation they saw that at table fellowship between Jews and non-Jews that several breaches of the Covenant of Moses and the Laws of Noah regarding table fellowship were not being observed. Understand that such Laws of Noah are reiterated at Sinai and find their identity in the Laws of Moses as well.

A ONE-SIDED DEFENSE OF AN INDEFENSIBLE POSITION

Paul was caught red-handed violating the Covenant and Laws of Noah regarding table-fellowship if I might say so by the men from James. He had two options:

- Repent and confess and return to the dictates of the Laws of Noah for his followers...or
- Write a defense of his position and propagate it to other non-Jews who would know no better since lacking background in the Laws and Covenant of Noah.

It is not hard to see what occurred. Now read Galatians and Romans and you will begin to see through the charade. Understanding that in the Laws of Moses it is forbidden for Jews to eat "unclean foods" and in the Laws of Noah it is forbidden for "non-Jews" to eat meat sanctified or sacrificed to false idols and gods. Eating meat sanctified and sacrificed to idols for a "non-Jew" is defined as "idolatry" according to the Laws of Noah and, although we have not extensively looked into the "Antioch Incident" yet let me go on record saying that both these issues come to play and are denounced by the "men from James" which were occurring in the Pauline Antioch church. The New Testament records for us that Paul denounced Peter's action of repentance from violating kosher food laws when accused by the men from James and it is recorded for us completely different in that he asked him, "If you as a Jew live in a Gentile, not in a Jewish fashion, how can you compel the Gentiles to practice Judaism?"

Gal 2:14 14 But when I saw that they walked not uprightly according to the truth of the gospel, I said unto Peter before them all, If thou, being a Jew, livest after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews? (KJV)

Answer for yourself: What is wrong here in this passage? First of all Peter, a Jew, is not to live "after the manner of Gentiles" and compromising table-fellowship, unclean food laws as a Jew, and the Laws of Moses is sin for Peter. Both the Jew and the non-Jew are commanded to not eat food sacrificed to pagan idols and that was the common custom in Antioch in the day. The converse is also true for a Gentile in that they were never required by God to "live as do the Jews" (refrain from eating unclean foods but they get to choose to obey this commandment by "choosing things that please God" according to Isaiah 56) but some of their commandments and Laws in their Covenant of Noah are "overlapping" with commandments in the Laws of Moses.

Unfortunately for us the New Testament does not report Peter's answer.

Answer for yourself: How do we know what actually happened here when we have Paul's account of a rebuke of Peter which seems strange when the Torah forbid Peter's actions and his repentance brought such a rebuke from Paul?

Peter's and Barnabas' actions give us their answer and the truth behind the "Antioch Incident". After being reminded of their Covenant obligations and how they had broken and compromised them both (guilty of eating meat sacrificed to idols which is idolatry which the textual connotation that they were also compromising in eating unclean foods prohibited by the Torah) Peter and Barnabas, according to Paul, both left Paul's fellowship and Paul's church moved next door! The New Testament only records the biased view from Paul's perspective that they were wrong in their response to the men from James but as I have showed you that Paul, if this is the true Paul, was was wrong and the men from James was right. The New Testament would have us believe that Peter's and Barnabas' actions were wrong when in fact they were correct. The New Testament only states that even Peter and Barnabas were taken away by such liberal compromise in the efforts to "win some". The Christian Church is guilty of teaching this same error and leading their congregations into idolatry in the same way today by not understanding and teaching the Laws of Noah to their flocks.

If the standards are lowered then it would be much easier to gain followers; thus bolstering Paul's reputation and authority. But the men from James, as well as James, knew better. This is why the men from Jerusalem was sent to "spy out" the situation at Antioch. At this time, regardless of what Paul, or should I say the Roman anti-Gnostic Paul would have you think according to this Roman New Testament, the Jerusalem Church remained highly skeptical of Paul after 14 years. That is why the Jerusalem Church continually "dogged" Paul in every city where he went and reported his every action to the authorities in the Jerusalem Church. That is why Paul would be summoned twice to return to the Mother Church over problems for which he was the instigator. We see that in Acts 15 and Acts 21 where Paul had to report to James. Again we have only a one-sided account in the New Testament whereby he went up by "revelation", as if his actions were directed by God, but dear one read between the lines and understand correctly once you have the facts.

THE ANTIOCH INCIDENT CAUSED THE NEED FOR THE JERUSALEM COUNCIL OF ACTS 15

The church was in disunity and the Gentile problem facing Judaism in Asia, Minor, was becoming critical for Gentiles were coming to faith in the God of Israel "without circumcision" and "full conversion" in huge numbers. This was contrary to what Rabbi Shammai, a leading Pharisee in his day, was teaching at the time.; As you can see one of the principal occasions of disunity within the early first century Judaism was provided by the conversion and mission of the apostle Paul. An authoritative decision on such matters was necessary if unity was ever to be restored to the Gentile problem facing Judaism. Such an authoritative decision is reflected in the account of a Council at Jerusalem provided in the book of Acts (15:1-35). In many respects the account runs parallel to Paul's narrative in Galatians, but the two stories are basically different. According to Acts, the apostles and presbyters of the Jerusalem church held a public discussion on the question of circumcision. Peter made an address in which he pointed to his own work among Gentiles and insisted that circumcision was unnecessary. Paul and Barnabas described their work. Finally James proposed that, in view of Mosaic precedents [which again you remember many are but reiterations of the Noahide Laws], Gentile converts should be given four "necessary" requirements based on Leviticus 17-18. The apostles and elders agreed with James and composed a decree containing his four points. Again the practice of circumcision was "dropped" since it never was required by God in the Covenant of Noah and only enforced upon non-Jews by the School of Shammai as they hated non-Jews and used circumcision as a means to keep non-Jews from coming into religious fellowship with other Jews as they held all non-Jews not worthy of the World to Come.

EXAMINATION OF THESE FOUR POINTS....CALLED BY JAMES "NECESSARY" AS WELL AS WHAT "SEEMED GOOD TO THE HOLY GHOST"

First of all let us look at the text:

Acts 15:28-29

28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things;

29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well.

This is James' decree at the Acts 15 Council which was prompted by the events at the Antioch incident earlier. Take note that the Jerusalem Messianic Community believed it "seemed good to the Holy Ghost" that these things be laid upon the non-Jewish believers. If the non-Jew would take upon himself these obligations and requirements which were ALREADY within the Covenant and Laws of Noah then table fellowship between the Jews and non-Jewish believers would not be a problem as it had been previously.

Answer for yourself: Why is this Jerusalem degree of great importance?

This "apostolic decree" is very important as the first pronouncement made by a Christian synod. Let us never forget that these decrees were over twenty years after the supposed death of Jesus. This was what the Church of Jesus considered "necessary" to impose upon non-Jewish believers in God.

In closing let us not forget that it would be the Apostle Paul who had compromised and failed to teach these dogmas and doctrines to his "non-Jewish" followers in Asia, Minor, and would continue to not teach them after the Acts 15 Council. It is these very issues that would separate Paul from the Jerusalem Church finally in the latter years of his life. Because of Paul's refusal to accept the First Church's Council and their decision Gentile Christianity today stands outside of those things considered "necessary" and "good to the Holy Spirit".

It is to these issues we not turn in the next article as we try to regather truth long overlooked by Gentile Christianity which God commanded of us and still requires of us. Shalom.

PAUL'S REBUKE OF PETER ...HAS THE NEW TESTAMENT MISREPRESENTED IT & THE INCIDENT AT ANTIOCH? #4

As stated previously the "apostolic decree" in Acts 15 referencing the Laws of Noah as "necessary" and which "seemed good to the Holy Spirit" for non-Jewish believers is very important since it is the first pronouncement made by a "Christian" synod. We will concern ourselves in the following articles primarily with those 4 Laws of Noah mentioned in summary fashion by James.

Acts 15:20 20 But that we write unto them, that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things strangled, and from blood. (KJV)

At first look when reading this passage few Christians understand what lies hidden behind such words and on the surface seems, at least some of them, to apply only to table-fellowship as related to the Laws of Moses for Jews and the Laws of Noah for the "non-Jew".

- This first item, abstinence from pollutions of idols (meats sacrificed to idols), is based on Leviticus 17:8-19 and was understood, at least by Paul (I Cor. 10:28), to refer to foods known to have been consecrated to pagan Gods but not to meals eaten at Temples.
- The second item, abstinence from "fornication," seems strange in this context, although Paul may refer to it in letters from and to Corinth (1 Thess. 4:3; I Cor. 5:1, 6:13; 7:2). Among Jewish Christians it was referred to rules about marital intercourse and ritual washings (Lev. 18:6-19).
- The third, abstinence from the meat of animals which had been strangled, without their blood being drained; was an ordinance certainly Jewish in origin (Lev. 17:13-14) and enforced among Jewish Christians (Clem. Hom. 7,8; 8,19; Clem. Rec. 4, 36). This was not discussed by Paul; it is absent from the text of Irenaeus, Tertullian, and Cyprian.
- The fourth, abstinence from blood, has to do, believe it or not, with the dietary regulations of Leviticus 17:10-12, and was so interpreted later (Eusebius, H.E. 5, 1, 26). At one point, however, Tertullian took it in regard to murder (De pudic. 12, 4-5). So did the Rabbis by the way. So what might look on the surface as applying only to table-fellowship has deeper meanings when applied to murder.

THE TAMPERING WITH THE DOCUMENTS BY THE GENTILE CHURCH BEGINS

By the early second century two versions of James' decree were in circulation. But the New Testament shares that he only gave one. One of them contained the four items listed above; the other omitted any reference to "things strangled" and added the "golden rule" that "whatever they do not wish done to themselves they should not do to others" (cf. Tobit 4:15; Didache 1,2). Witnesses to the third item include both Clement and Origen at Alexandria. The other version was known to Irenaeus and Tertullian, probably also to Theophilus of Antioch (Ad Autol. 2, 34). Adding the "golden rule" sounds nice but again a total fabrication of what Judaism represented as the Laws of Noah required of the "non-Jew". This is but one small example of what I am alerting my readers concerning; namely, how Rome forged large volumes of religious writings in the Apostle's names over the early centuries of the emerging Roman Catholic Church.

What this modification of the "golden rule" indicates is that the decree was seriously regarded as Christian legislation and for this reason was modified later by those who wished NOT to accept James' decree concerning "unclean foods" and how animals were to be killed before consumption of them as mankind's food.

This decision from the Jerusalem Church for the non-Jewish believers in Asia Minor was to be transmitted to Antioch and throughout Syria and Cilicia by two Jerusalem "prophets," Judas Barsabbas and Silas, who were to accompany Barnabas and Paul in order to make sure that it was delivered. Later on, we learn that Judas and Silas delivered the decree at Antioch and then returned to Jerusalem (Acts 15:30-33); and Paul went so far as to circumcise the son of a Jewish mother and a Greek father (15:40-16:4). Indeed, Silas accompanied Paul through Asia Minor to Macedonia and Achaia, disappearing from the picture just before Paul's extended stay at Corinth (18:5).

The precise extent to which Paul may have regarded such a decree as binding upon Gentile converts—for example, outside Syria and Cilicia—is problematical. He and Silas (Sylvanus) wrote a letter from Corinth, insisting that God wills holiness and specifically referring to "abstaining from fornication" (I Thess. 4:3). Paul does not speak of dietary regulations (for obvious reasons as you will see shortly), but he praises "the churches of God in Judaea in Christ Jesus" as persecuted by the Jews just as the Thessalonians are persecuted by Gentiles (I Thess. 1:14). It is likely that he had told them of the apostolic decree, for the substance of it seems to appear in I Corinthians. Sections of practical counsel in that letter begin with discussions of "fornication" (5:I, specifically related to Lev. 18:7) and of "meats sacrificed to idols" (8:1). At the same time, it is evident that Paul, or a later Pauline writer in his name, cannot accept the legal principle underlying the decree. For Paul, or a later Pauline writer in his name, Christians are not bound by dietary regulations, though they may observe them for the sake of others (10:23-29).

23 All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not [how can that be Paul when there are 365 negative Commandments?]

24 Let no man seek his own, but every man another's wealth.

25 Whatsoever is sold in the shambles, that eat, asking no question for conscience sake: [what is this? Might this constitute idolatry for Paul and those who follow his advice?]

26 For the earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof.

27 If any of them that believe not bid you to a feast, and ye be disposed to go; whatsoever is set before you, eat, asking no question for conscience sake. [what is this? Might this constitute idolatry for Paul and those who follow his advice?]

28 But if any man say unto you, This is offered in sacrifice unto idols, eat not for his sake that shewed it, and for conscience sake: for the earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof: [is Paul more concerned that others might see him break the commandments of God than God seeing him?]

29 Conscience, I say, not thine own, but of the other: for why is my liberty judged of another man's conscience? (KJV) [since when are you more concerned what men think of you than what God thinks of you Paul....after all did you not say you were not a man-pleaser but a God pleaser?]

SO WHAT'S THE PROBLEM?

Growing up as a Christian you might say as I did “this sounds good to me,” however these Pauline suggestions violate Commandments given in the Old Testament in the Laws of Moses and the Covenant and Law of Noah. Again we must remember that these are earlier called "necessary" and that they "sounded good to the Holy Spirit". There is no room for improvement on these. We will see this in detail as we go on but understand Pauline theology that violates and contradicts the written Commandments of God is sin even if they sound good and are taught by the Christian Church today. Paul's “Christ” never gave him authority to do away with the Commandments of God and you need to face that fact now!

Matt 5:17-19 17 Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil. 18 For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled. 19 Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. (KJV)

If Silas continued to adhere to the Jerusalem regulations, which were no more than the reiteration of the already existing Covenant responsibilities God had given the non-Jew in the Covenant of Noah, then it is no wonder that he left Paul at Corinth. According to Acts 21:25, the elders at Jerusalem were still concerned with observance of them when Paul last visited the church there; they had heard that Paul taught —“becoming everything to everyone,” as he wrote himself (I Cor. 9:22):

1 Cor 9:22 22 To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some. (KJV)

The Jerusalem church had even heard that Paul was even teaching and urging Jewish Christians not to observe the law (Acts 21:21):

Acts 21:21 21 And they are informed of thee, that thou teachest all the Jews which are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, saying that they ought not to circumcise their children, neither to walk after the customs. (KJV)

The word "customs" is interesting:

1485 ethos- 1) custom 2) usage prescribed by law, institute, prescription, rite

The Jerusalem congregation had heard that Paul was teaching "all" the Jews in his mission to not abide by "the law" which for us means the Commandments of God!

Yet we find under the authority of James and the Jerusalem church, according to Acts 21:26, that Paul submitted to James' mandate and submitted to the Nazirite vow of consecration (Num. 6:9-20.....oh, by the way, this included blood sacrifices and sin offerings.....and Paul did this over 25 years after Jesus' death which we are told and asked to believe is the last sin offering...THINK?). At Jerusalem, one would suppose, Paul accepted the practices of the church there. He was under Jerusalem jurisdiction.

It must be admitted that to try to coordinate Paul's account in Galatians with the "literary" narrative in Acts leads to many difficulties. It is most unlikely that in the long run Paul, as we read him today, or this Pauline writer did NOT regard the Jerusalem decree as binding upon non-Jews, or himself.

THE ANTIOCH DINNER

If the decree was known at Antioch, problems arose there as soon as Cephas (Peter) visited the city. Swayed by emissaries from James of Jerusalem following their rebuke, Peter withdrew from table fellowship with Gentiles and the Pauline church and was followed by other Jews in forsaking fellowship with those who violated the Torah. This included even Barnabas. Paul insisted that Peter's action was; inconsistent and irresponsible (Gal. 2:11-14). But I will leave you, the reader to judge that for yourself.

To be sure, the question of infringement as to authority arose in many of the provinces where Paul had previously maintained control over them not only by personal visits but also by writing letters and by sending his lieutenants especially Timothy and Titus, to them. At Corinth, he speaks of others as proclaiming "another gospel" (2 Cor. 11:4), using the same language as that employed in the Galatian controversy (Gal. 1:6-9). Ironically those whom Paul, or this Pauline writer accuses of preaching another Gospel are the very Apostles and the Jerusalem church and somehow the Christian Church has missed this, maybe on purpose, for two thousand years!

This is the irony that I wish to expose to you. By not following through by upholding James' decree along with the mandate of the Jerusalem Church Paul caused those he taught along with his churches to be in violation of many of the dogmas and Laws contained in the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah. This is sin; in fact the sin of idolatry which is a hideous sin as defined by the Hebrew Scriptures!

Being so far removed today from our Jewish Roots we find Gentile Christianity no better off in this regard and a strong rebuke and call to repentance is needed. It is to these issues we now turn.

It is our prayerful hope that you, upon examining these articles, will make the necessary corrections in your religious belief system and conduct before God.

PAUL'S REBUKE OF PETER ...HAS THE NEW TESTAMENT MISREPRESENTED IT & THE INCIDENT AT ANTIOCH? #5

The incident at Antioch, briefly described by Paul in Galatians 2, has long been a source of some perplexity to students of the New Testament. This has become possibly more evident to you since reading the first four articles in this series. In the patristic period the embarrassment of an account recorded in the New Testament where Paul openly condemned Peter for hypocrisy was avoided by such devious exegesis as that of Clement of Alexandria who maintained that a different Cephas was in view, or that of Origen who argued that the whole dispute between Peter and Paul was "simulated." This "Antioch Incident" is truly a problem for it either undermines the authority of Jerusalem or Rome and I hope by now you are seeing the situation as it really exists, even today.

Answer for yourself: Is salvation of the Jews and Judaism or Rome and Christianity? This is the crux of the matter when you get right down to it. After years of study of the New Testament with all its problems I am convinced that "salvation if of the Jews and Judaism" and not the Christianity as we have it today. But understand Christianity as we have it today did not always exists as it does today for after the 3rd century the Ancient spiritual wisdom of Egypt and Israel was "reinterpreted" by Rome and in its place a replacement religion was given to the world. Through the burning of the world's libraries and through the murder of 18 million followers of "the Christ" Rome has succeeded in pulling off this hoax.

Answer for yourself: What really went on in this incident at Antioch which is recorded in the New Testament from Paul's view only, and is it trustworthy? How can we be sure Paul's view as presented in the New Testament is correct?

Answer for yourself: Are there any other sources to illuminate this incident outside the New Testament, and do they confirm Paul's viewpoint on this "Antioch Incident" and the requirement of the Laws of Noah for the non-Jews or do other existing sources bring Paul's and Rome's view into question?

Answer for yourself: What if you were to find that Paul's "viewpoint" of the "Antioch Incident" is a gross distortion of the facts of the matter and in reality both Peter and Paul were BOTH rebuked by the men from James as the ambassadors of Yeshua's church?

Answer for yourself: Why would James, the Lord's brother and head of the Jerusalem Church, command Jewish believers not to continue to eat with non-Jewish believers?

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that non-Jewish believers were sinning when they were eating and sharing table fellowship with the Jews, and in doing so tempting the Jews to follow in their sinful ways?

Answer for yourself: It is possible that at table fellowship in Antioch, between Jewish believers and non-Jewish believers, that important parts of the Laws of Noah from the Covenant of Noah, which were binding upon all non-Jewish believers, were being violated by Paul and his churches?

Answer for yourself: What if you were to find that it was Peter and Barnabas, Paul's close traveling companions, who were the ones to repent after the rebuke from the Jerusalem Church and that it was Paul who defiantly resisted the mother church's instruction?

WHAT IS TRUTH?

Dear reader I will prove to you as we conclude this series of articles on the incident at Antioch that Paul's defiance to conform to the Church's mandate is masked in the New Testament and is recorded in a distorted one-sided account in Galatians 2. Without these facts that I will show, the casual reader of the New Testament reads this "one-sided" pro-Pauline account and arrives at the wrong conclusion concerning the matter. One will read Paul's self-defense in his epistle and be led to believe Paul is right and that Peter and Barnabas is wrong. You must remember that this event at Antioch occurred after the cross of Christ and the decision brought from the Jerusalem Church is the dogma and doctrine that was to enforced on both Jew and non-Jew long after Yeshua's resurrection. That brings a lot of weigh to what the Jerusalem Church taught and SHOULD matter to Christians as the followers of this "Christ" today.

We need to listen to what the men from James had to say in this matter which was in reality both a rebuke to Peter, Barnabas, and Paul as well. We have no letters from Peter and Barnabas on this issue that has survived and only have Paul's account which is definitely one-sided. Let us examine other materials which have survived which paint an entirely different picture of the matter and exposes the truth which is a direct contradiction of Paul's account. Millions of Christians read the account of Paul's slander of the Jerusalem Church whom he calls "Judaizers" and "false brethren"; never knowing that Paul is referring to the "pillars" from the Jerusalem Church in Galatians chapter 2 and are led to believe that Paul, or this Pauline pro-Roman church writer is right, never knowing that those he attacks and slanders are representatives of the the Jerusalem church. Sadly the other side of the coin is not presented in the New Testament but believe me it does exist. So in the light of the fact that the Roman Church, wishing to promote Gentile religion over Biblical and Jewish faith, did not include both accounts of the incident at Antioch when they put the New Testament together. So what else is new? I will, and it is my hope that our readership will understand that this issue at Antioch goes to the very heart of the Olive Tree of Israel and how the non-Jew is to relate to the people of G-d.

LOOKING AT GALATIANS UNDER THE MICROSCOPE

Gal 2:1-16

1 Then fourteen years after I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took Titus with me also. 2 And I went up by revelation, and communicated unto them that gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but privately to them which were of reputation, lest by any means I should run, or had run, in vain. 3 But neither Titus, who was with me, being a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised: 4 And that because of false brethren unawares brought in, who came in privily to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage: 5 To whom we gave place by subjection, no, not for an hour; that the truth of the gospel might continue with you. 6 But of these who seemed to be somewhat, (whatsoever they were, it maketh no matter to me: G-d accepteth no man's person:) for they who seemed to be somewhat in conference added nothing to me: 7 But contrariwise, when they saw that the gospel of the uncircumcision was committed unto me, as the gospel of the circumcision was unto Peter; 8 (For he that wrought effectually in Peter to the Apostleship of the circumcision, the same was mighty in me toward the Gentiles:) 9 And when James, Cephas, and John, who seemed to be pillars, perceived the grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship; that we should go unto the heathen, and they unto the circumcision. 10 Only they would that we should remember the poor; the same which I also was forward to do.

11 But when Peter was come to Antioch, I withstood him to the face, because he was to be blamed. 12 For before that certain came from James, he did eat with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew and separated himself, fearing them which were of the circumcision.

13 And the other Jews dissembled likewise with him; inasmuch that Barnabas also was carried away with their dissimulation. 14 But when I saw that they walked not uprightly according to the truth of the gospel, I said unto Peter before them all, If thou, being a Jew, livest after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews? 15 We who are Jews by nature, and not sinners of the Gentiles, 16 Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ, even we have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law: for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified.

First of all you need to know that when the men from James came to Antioch they rebuked not only Paul, but Peter and Barnabas as well for violating their Covenant and its Covenant Laws! Not only that, but the non-Jews as well as they Jews who should have known better had been led to compromise their Covenant responsibilities under G-d according to the Laws of Noah and the Covenant of Noah! Paul is right in saying that before the men from James arrived Peter did eat with the Gentiles and it was this compromise at Jew-Gentile table-fellowship which violated Covenant Laws. It will become more apparent as we proceed which Laws were violated and are yet violated today.

What I want you to notice in the beginning is Paul' testimony that Peter repented (along with Barnabas) and withdrew and separated himself from eating with the Gentiles which had been taught wrong by Paul. They left Paul's fellowship and moved the church next door!

This occurred after the supposed death of Jesus is a major statement on how the Church of Jesus understood how they, the people and Israel of G-d, were to relate and accept the non-Jew into fellowship.

Answer for yourself: What has changed since then?

Answer for yourself: Should we not listen to what the ambassadors from the Jews have to say about how we, non-Jewish believers in G-d are to be "accepted" by God (Acts 10 and Acts 15)?

Answer for yourself: If when listening to the message of the "men from James" that was taught long after the time of Jesus and if we, understanding this message, find that we, as non-Jewish believers in G-d, have not "separated" ourselves from the very same activities that we encounter in the Antioch incident, then are we truly "accepted" by G-d although we feel accepted by our "denominational churches"? This is the heart of the issue for a "thinking" believer and "lover of God"!

Answer for yourself: Do our denominational Christian churches today have greater authority than the "men from James", and if you believe they do, then where do you find that they get it?

Answer for yourself: Is it possible we have lost the true message of Yeshua and his followers after 1,800 years of Gentile control of the Church after it separated itself from Judaism?

Answer for yourself: How much has this "one-sided" account of Paul, or later Pauline pro-Roman writers who wrote in his name, as presented in the New Testament, prevented you from learning the truth about how Yeshua's Church would have accepted or rejected you into the people of G-d twenty years after the time of Jesus?

Answer for yourself: How does it feel to realize that you might be in good standing with your Baptist, Lutheran, Methodist, or your Catholic Church, but in Heaven not accepted by G-d in His assembly (because you are yet guilty of the same conduct as were the Galatian Jews and non-Jews who were guilty of idolatry for not following the Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah? Now you know that long after the time of Jesus obedience to the Law mattered and few if any true followers of "the Christ" believed that these Laws had passed away or that Christ was the "end of these Laws" as we find in Pauline literature. These are serious questions I must say!

IS ANY OF THIS MAKING SENSE TO YOU YET?

Answer for yourself: Can we assume that Peter accepted Paul's rebuke and amended his conduct and followed Paul in this matter or is it closer to the truth that Peter and Barnabas accepted the men from James rebuke and altered their conduct and that Paul's defiance to be rebuked by the men from James is cloaked in a supposed "rebuke" of Peter and Paul's later self-defenses in the Book of Galatians and Romans? THINK! Sadly millions trust this New Testament document for Divine truth when it can be shown to be "fixed" in hundreds of places. We have lost so much truth that should affect our religious belief system and our conduct in life due to anti-Semitism and the Roman Church and "their document forgery".

Answer for yourself: What was the actual conduct that was "exposed" that caused Peter and Barnabas and the Gentile followers of Paul to repent and leave Paul's fellowship in Galatia?

Answer for yourself: What was the dynamics that would later cause Paul to say in 2 Tim 1:15: "thou knowest, that all they which are in Asia (a whole continent) be turned away from me (Paul)"? READ THAT AGAIN!

Answer for yourself: If Peter did not heed Paul but the men from James, what does that tell us about the development of Paul's missionary work, about his subsequent relations with Jerusalem and Peter, about factions within first-century Christianity (Peter and Paul parties, etc.)?

Answer for yourself: Did you ever stop to think that it was the Jerusalem Church and the Apostles which were responsible for Paul's troubles to which he refers constantly? Any wonder why "the Jews" are painted in such a negative light as if they did not know any better in this New Testament which is 2/3 Pauline or pro-Pauline Roman writings in his name?

Dear one these issues were first raised in their present sharp form by the work of F. C. Baur, Paul: His Life and Works (1845); ET 2 vols: London/Edinburgh: Williams and Norgate, 1873). I learned of this in Seminary as we spent 2 minutes on it. I, being inquisitive, later investigated this on my own. It seemed important to me and hopefully you understand the immense repercussions that such knowledge can make if one has it. This is not new material only materials that you have NOT yet been exposed to as of yet. The New Testament presents one perspective; I assure you that opposing this "one view" is the testimony of Moses, the Prophets, and even "the Christ" that assures us that the Law and Covenants of G-d have not passed away in spite of what other "self-appointed" authorities of G-d might say. For centuries men have seen behind the deception of Galatians 2 and Paul's rebuke of Peter and it is time you do as well.

WHAT WAS THE NATURE OF THE TABLE-FELLOWSHIP THAT CAUSED THE PAULINE AND PETER SPLIT?

Answer for yourself: Again, where does the "Antioch incident" fit within the history of that period? What is its theological significance for me today?

Answer for yourself: Can we assume that it formed the impetus for holding the Jerusalem council recounted by Luke in Acts 15? Was it responsible for the reiteration of the necessity of the Law of Noah for non-Jewish believers in God? The answer is "yes" on both accounts.

Answer for yourself: Or is the issue even more complex than this, with the historicity of Acts being called in question in parts at least when considering pro-Pauline accounts?

Considering the significance of the Antioch incident has been recognized in many such discussions, there has been remarkably little detailed work done on the incident itself. The question of whether or not Galatians 2.1-10 is an accurate portrayal of Acts 15 has been overlooked by many. And when commentators or historians have moved on to the Antioch incident they have not paused long over what must on any reckoning be a crucial question: What was the nature of the table-fellowship that Peter enjoyed with the Gentile believers?

Answer for yourself: What was involved in this table-fellowship which was so unacceptable to the men from James?

Answer for yourself: What precisely did he withdraw from when the men from James arrived?

EXISTING TABLE FELLOWSHIP OF THE JEW AND NON-JEW AT ANTIOCH...THE TWO OLIVE BRANCHES BECOMING ONE

The ready assumption by most is that the whole Antioch incident was all simply a matter of the Jewish food laws and little more need be said.

Answer for yourself: But was it quite so simple? Is this not another exegetical assumption which ought to be examined more closely?

Without some clearer idea of what table-fellowship at Antioch involved prior to Peter's withdrawal, our grasp of what was at stake is seriously defective, and consequently also our ability to assess the significance of Peter's and Paul's conduct. You need to understand that the issues involved at table fellowship at Antioch involved commandments and conduct described in the Laws of Moses and the Laws Noah.

Answer for yourself: Why is this so important for the non-Jewish Christian?

The Laws of Noah and the Covenant of Noah is the Covenant whereby the non-Jew finds his standing before G-d! If the non-Jew converts to Judaism then he "moves up" so to speak to a higher Covenant, but Covenant relationship with G-d is determined by how one fulfills his Covenant responsibilities! It was these Commandments given by G-d to all non-Jews, as their Covenant responsibilities, long before the Laws of Moses, which Paul had compromised and was teaching others to do the same. Thus the consternation of the Jerusalem church over this incident and Paul.

At that time of the Antioch incident many of these "Commandments" given to the non-Jew as seen expressed in various "conducts" had been relaxed by Paul to his church and even Peter and Barnabas had been "taken in" by such violations of these Commandments in the name of "winning souls". G-d was not pleased that His Commandments were violated and broken in the name of "ministry" and such goes on today almost everywhere today in the Christian Church which has forsaken Judaism and the non-Jew's relationship to G-d within it. Instead, the Gentile Church "created another way" and walks in it today; never questioning is if "this new way" is accepted by G-d. The horror of such actions and deviation from Divine Truth is masked by a host of forged New Testament documents which have been altered from the "original truths" once held by the Jerusalem Church.

It is toward this area and aspect that I wish to focus in what follows. My belief that such an investigation is necessary is the product of reflection on several overlapping and wider issues, a reflection stimulated by various items of recent scholarship. The overlapping and wider issues inform us of the broader historical context within which we must attempt to assess if we are truly to understand the Antioch incident and will engage our attention in future articles in this series. In the light of our findings there we will attempt some exegesis of Galatians 2.11-18 in the hope of clarifying the incident itself, including the reasons for Peter's conduct and the force of Paul's response. Finally we shall consider possible implications for some of the more familiar questions connected with this passage.

Now let us continue on to deeper matters that will reflect on the non-Jew's relationship or lack of relationship with God, his Covenant with God as taught by the Jerusalem church in the first century following the time of Jesus. This is important for when we get the gist of the truth as it existed following the time that Jesus was supposed to have lived then no "theological" event ever happened to change the "existing truth" following his assumed death. What we find taught by the Jerusalem Church concerning the "non-Jew" concerning his relationship with God is existing and valid for today's Christian regardless of what the Roman New Testament will say following the second century as their "anti-Jewish" religion continued to develop and evolve. Any "thinking believer" should agree with this assessment and this furthers our need for more study into these areas that are so crucial to the "non-Jew's" standing before God both then and today!

Let us continue our studies.

Shalom.

PAUL'S REBUKE OF PETER ...HAS THE NEW TESTAMENT MISREPRESENTED IT & THE INCIDENT AT ANTIOCH? #6

THE HISTORICAL CONTEXT SURROUNDING THE ANTIOCH INCIDENT

The Antioch incident is usually dated in the late 40s of the first century, depending of course on such questions as the date of the Jerusalem council (Acts 15) and the relation between Galatians 2 and Acts 15. Scholars usually date anywhere between 43 C.E. and 51 C.E., but the majority of scholars prefer 48 C.E. or 49 C.E. as the most probable date (R. Jewett, Dating Paul's Life [Philadelphia: Fortress/London: SCM, 1979,1-2]. Since the crisis at Antioch was provoked by the arrival of "certain individuals from James" (Gal. 2.12), that is, from Jerusalem, it is important to clarify the relationship between the church in Jerusalem and the church in Antioch at that time, and to examine possible influences on these churches from the broader social and political situation within Palestine and within Palestinian and Diaspora Judaism. But for our further study you need to understand that most likely the Antioch Incident occurred in the late 40's and it was the impetus for the acts 15 Jerusalem Council which was quickly to follow in 48-49 C.E. It would be at this time and at this council that dogma would be decided that would determine how the non-Jew was to be "included" in the Olive Tree of Israel without complete conversion to Judaism. Dear one, this "Jerusalem decree" is the binding and loosing the Bible teaches about in the Old Testament and legally binding with God and His representatives regardless of what your particular denominational by-laws decree today. This is where most Christians miss it. They can be in good standing with their Pastor and Church today but totally disobedient to the Heavenly decree of James and the Jerusalem Church and not know it because they lack the necessary information about what truly went on with Peter, Paul, and the men from James.

THE RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN THE JERUSALEM CHURCH AND THE CHURCH AT ANTIOCH

One of the major weaknesses in many reconstructions of Christian origins and New Testament theology has been the failure to grasp the full racial and nationalistic dimensions of the early disputes within Christianity. As K. Stendahl pointed out in a famous essay, The Apostle Paul and the Introspective Conscience of the West, Harvard Theological Review 56 (1963) 199-215), Paul's teaching on justification through faith was not intended as an answer to a Luther-like agonizing after personal assurance of salvation. Paul's concern was rather with the relation between Jew and Gentile. His question was not, How can I be saved?, but, How can Gentiles be included within the messianic community of Israel?

You most likely need to read the above statement again.

If you can you need to procure for yourself and read K. Stendahl's Paul Among Jews And Gentiles And Other Essays (Philadelphia: Fortress/London: SCM, 1976). Stendahl brings out clearly that this essentially racial or nationalistic concept of righteousness as a consequence of God's election of and covenant with Israel. This concept is further illuminated and received fresh illumination from the major study by E. P. Sanders with his characterization of Palestinian Judaism in terms of "covenantal nomism" taught so excellently in his Paul and Palestinian Judaism: A Comparison Of Patterns Of Religions (London: SCM, 1977,. The heart of the book and Sanders' message is so needed to be heard by the Christian Church today.

Sanders teaches that one's place in God's plan is established on the basis of the covenant and that the covenant requires as the proper response of man his obedience to the covenant's commandments, while providing means of atonement for transgression (p. 75). One's intention and effort to be obedient constitutes the conditions of remaining in the covenant (p. 180).

This at first might not sound alarming but when you study our series of articles on the Christian and his covenant, and see how the New Testament has misrepresented the "new" or "renewed" covenant which has, believe it or now, not occurred yet according to the Prophet Jeremiah regardless of what the unknown writer of the book of Hebrews attest and what Christians maintain. This should be rather scary for the New Testament Christian who finds his standing before God in a "non-existent" Covenant!

You can read all the Essene materials you want and see they thought themselves representatives of this "New Covenant" since they rejected normative Judaism in toto and the Temple-Priesthood. Don't look now, but if you are really familiar with their writings they are totally discredited as "falsehoods" since their prophecies failed and this relegates them to an ever growing company of "false teachers" according to the Torah. You need to learn the truth about the Essenes and their "New Covenant," because when they converted in mass to the Jesus movement, they brought their "New Covenant" theology with them. They simply were wrong as history attests! Their writings are equally wrong in this regard along with other theological tenets that they maintained and most of it is little more than apocalyptic star-wars religion. Read some good books on them; take L. Schiffman's Reclaiming the Dead Sea Scrolls to get an accurate picture of how reliable their writings were and if they are to be trusted and believed today.

Answer for yourself: Why is this important for the Christian today? Simply because they gave the emerging Jewish Messianic movement of the first century a "literal godman" shaped after the Osiris of Egypt!

The Christian today literally stands apart from God without a Covenant in force for he is either ignorant of or rejects the only Covenant God gave to him (the Covenant of Noah). Being totally ignorant of the Covenant God made with the non-Jew and its stipulations and responsibilities placed upon the non-Jewish believer, he is unable to recognize and fulfill its obligations because he stands ignorant of them due to Christian indoctrination and erroneous teaching for the last 1,800 years. No intention or effort is made by most Gentile Christians at all to remain in a Covenant that you are not aware that exists or applies to you and few find out while they are alive unless they study serious their "Jewish Roots". One needs only to look at the anti-Semitism of the Catholic Church for the last 1,800 years and how it influenced the writing. formation and collection of the Second New Testament, in rejection of the First Gnostic New Testament, to understand how such truths were lost. If you want this series to see the horrible facts for themselves let us know. Now back to the "Antioch incident".

The point you need to see and understand is this: that earliest Christianity was not yet seen as something separate and distinct from Judaism. It was a sect, like other sects within first-century Judaism. The first Christians had some distinct and peculiar beliefs about Jesus Christ and the Jewish Messiah; but their religion was but a variant sect within the religion of the Jews! This important and forgotten aspect needs to be researched by every Christian alive today. Let me suggest you begin your study by reading L.H. Schiffman, "At the Crossroads: Tannaitic Perspectives on the Jewish-Christian Schism", Jewish and

Christian Self-Definition, Vol. II, Aspects of Judaism in the Graeco-Roman Period (ed. E. P. Sanders; London: SCM Press 1981) 115-156.

What the Christian Church must come to understand is that when Gentiles began to embrace these particular beliefs about Yeshua the question raised was still only in terms of what requirements were necessary for Gentiles to join themselves to the people who worshipped the one God; by that I mean the Israel of God. Historically the question was not "have you asked Yeshua into your heart?", "have you accepted the blood of Yeshua for your sin?", or "do you believe in Yeshua?" You might be amazed to find that these questions which seem to fill our pulpits today had no relevancy to the earliest Church of Jerusalem because such theologies had not yet been created in the first century and attached to a "literalized life and death of the Christ" by his followers. Owing to Paul's teaching on the Christ, since these writings carry his name, or a pro-Roman Pauline anonymous writer who later wrote on these doctrinal issues while drawing on a "literalization" of prior mystery religions, much of the Gnostic teaching of the authentic Paul is altered and presented in such a form as if the authentic Paul believed in a "literal Christ Jesus". Such "literalization" of "the Christ within" will basically become the message and fruit of the non-Jewish Churches after the destruction of the Temple in 70 C.E. in the vacuum caused by the absence of the Jewish Authorities. The Gentiles would draw upon their prior pagan concepts of salvation from the mystery religions and when later "literalized" by Rome they found new life when applied to "the Christ within". It is a short jump to apply these "literalized" teachings of "the Jesus Christ within" to a historical person believed to have existed by some in the first century. This was done to Rome's advantage. Since the canonization of the New Testament was entirely a Gentile endeavor it is not surprising that such traditions survive today as written in and among the scattered truths about this Gnostic "Christ within" in the New Testament.

Now, back on track, and contrary to what you have heard or even read in the forged New Testament, a Roman creationism, Paul's main argument in Galatians is about how one becomes Abraham's offspring, heir of his blessing (Gal. 3—4) and not how a non-Jew is "saved". As I will show you as we go along, circumcision was only one aspect of that debate concerning the Gentile's inclusion into the Israel of God, and it was probably the later incident at Antioch which helped sharpen the issues for Paul as well as the Jerusalem Church concerning how "non-Jews" were to be accepted into the Israel of God.

Now something else that is of major importance when viewing the New Testament. This nationalistic dimension of the Jew-Gentile relationship as well as table-fellowship between the Jew-Gentile helps us to recognize that the church at Antioch would not have seen itself as an entity independent of the Jews or of the Jewish believers in Palestine. It was simply the believing Jewish community at Antioch embracing more and more God-fearing Gentiles. The fact that the new movement was first given a distinctive name in Antioch (Christians-Acts 11:26) need not imply a distinction between the new movement and the synagogue, but only a distinction within Judaism. The absence of any mention of hostility from synagogue authorities in Antioch against the "Christians" in any of our sources is to be understood as very significant! This means that the first non-Jewish believers in God understood that they were a part of Biblical Judaism and were now included in the Israel of God and not a part of something "new" and "different" as apart from Judaism! This is a major statement with profound consequences to the Christian Churches today. They did not consider themselves a "new" denomination or a "new religion"!

Almost certainly the majority at heart would simply think of themselves as part of the Diaspora, with Jerusalem still serving as a source of pride and inspiration and a focus for faith and aspirations - despite the persecution which had forced many of the founding members to flee from the capital city (Acts 11.19-20). Stephen's views as represented in Acts 7 should not be understood as calling for an abandoning of Judaism. On the contrary they can be readily understood as a recall to a more primitive and purified form of Judaism. This would also involve the church at Antioch recognizing the church at Jerusalem as the fountainhead of their distinctive faith (cf. Rom. 15.27) and probably also as the authoritative interpreter of it. This is why when the men from James appeared and rebuked the church which had been taught its own version of Pauline Christianity, and in the wake of this rebuke we find that the church repented of such errors in belief as well as behavior. The Jews and many Gentiles removed themselves from table-fellowship with Paul and the remnant of his church over issues such as meats sacrificed to idols, meats that had not been tithed of correctly, and although this commandment of tithing was not given to non-Jews, the non-Jewish believers took upon themselves the commandments concerning meats which had not been killed rabbinically according to Commandments which instruct mankind how the blood was to be drained from the meat before eating. This was given to Jews and if non-Jews were to share table-fellowship on the "two olive branches become one" then this would have to be observed by the non-Jews as well. This was voluntary and we see this principle again in Isaiah 56!

All these issues are dealt with in the Laws of Noah believe it or not but few Christians know this for they have not been instructed that the Covenant of Noah is their Covenant before God. The failure of the Church of Antioch to adhere to these Commandments affected not only the non-Jew since they were given the Covenant of Noah but the Jews as well as these same Laws of Noah were included in the Laws of Moses. And the Church at Antioch and its failure to observe such "necessary" things which "seemed good to the Holy Ghost" can be traced to Paul's leadership; or should I say lack of leadership! Later we will look at each of these issues in ways not yet discussed.

WHAT DOES THAT MEAN TO ME...A NON-JEWISH BELIEVER TODAY?

This means we today must listen to Jerusalem before we listen to Paul, Pauline theology in this Roman New Testament and other Antiochian echoes. Sadly the Christian Church of today has it just backwards and this explains the mess we have in the world today which is the direct result of Gentile Christianity's theology of grace without Law. In other words most of the the problems we find today in the Christian World are directly traceable to the Antiochian influence over the Jerusalem influence. It was never meant to be this way but such is the fruit of the anti-Semitism of the Gentile juggernaut called the Christian Church since the 3rd century.

PAUL'S RELATIONSHIP WITH THE JERUSALEM CHURCH BEFORE THE ANTIOCH INCIDENT...PAUL IN THE BEGINNING WAS DEPENDENT UPON JERUSALEM

Most significant here is the degree to which Paul's treatment of his own relations with Jerusalem prior to the Antioch incident reinforces the impression that up until the incident over "table-fellowship" at Antioch Paul too had taken it for granted that Jerusalem had this primacy and authority as pertaining setting standards and requirements for "non-Jews" incorporation into the Israel of God. I refer to the character of Paul's self-defense of himself and his ministry in Galatians 1-2. Prior to this event Paul was in the middle so to speak. He wanted his Gentile followers to see his "independence" from the authority of Jerusalem but yet was dependent upon Jerusalem's recognition for the validity of his mission and his authority among the Gentiles. The dialectic between being independent of and being acknowledged by Jerusalem and James is the keynote of this important text and must not be forgotten. If this is news to you I suggest you read B. Holmberg's Paul and Power: the Structure of Authority in the Primitive Church as Reflected in the Pauline Epistles.

Answer for yourself: Where is the Book of Galatians in all of the, the earliest of Paul's authentic writings?

In Galatians Paul is writing AFTER the incident at Antioch, after his rebuke by the men of James, and long after the Jerusalem Council which reaffirmed the Laws of Noah, and his antagonist exposition toward "Law", here as elsewhere in other of his authentic writings, is heavily colored by that later viewpoint. But in trying to assert his independence from Jerusalem, and the directness of his Apostleship and gospel from Christ, he cannot escape the fact that previously he had readily acknowledged the authority of the Jerusalem apostles. We have by Paul's own hand his testimony in Gal. 1:18 that "after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter and abode with him fifteen days." Peter was sought out as well as James by Paul. Later in the same epistle we have Paul's admission again in 2:1: "Then fourteen years after I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took Titus with me also. And ....communicated unto them that gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but privately to them which were of reputation, lest by any means I should run, or had run in vain".

Let me show you how Paul was dependent upon the Jerusalem Church, at least at first in the beginning of his outreach to the "non-Jew" before he will later break away from the Apostolic decrees made at the Acts 15 Council. In Gal. 1:16 Paul states that he "conferred" not with flesh and blood in the beginning following his revelation but would do so three years later.

- 1) to lay upon in addition to
- 2) to lay upon oneself in addition
- a) to undertake besides
- b) to put oneself upon another by going to him,
- c) to commit or to betake oneself to another for the purpose of consulting him
- d) to consult, to take one into counsel
- e) to add from one's store
- 3) to communicate, to impart

Paul's use of the word "prosanatithemi" (to consult in order to be given an authoritative interpretation) in 1.16 is an implicit acknowledgment that the Jerusalem apostles were recognized by him at that time as the appropriate authorities to consult on the interpretation of the revelation given him at Damascus - the point (as he now insists) being that he had not consulted them (1:16-17). He does not disguise the fact that his first visit to Jerusalem had been 'to get information from Cephas' in Gal. 1:18), though the information was evidently something different from the gospel already received three years earlier through the revelation of Christ (1:12). The purpose of his second visit to Jerusalem was to consult the Jerusalem leadership about "his" gospel, but he does not hide the fact that what they thought or decided about his gospel would make all the difference to the success or failure of his mission to the Gentiles. The point is not that Paul's gospel might be judged invalid, but that its effect among the Gentiles might be nullified. So without a doubt one can see Paul yielding to Peter, James, and the Jerusalem Church in both of his visits. This means that Paul was in subjection to the Jerusalem authorities from Yeshua's Church and this is the way it should be. Sadly all this would change later after the Antioch incident.

The language Paul uses in Gal. 2:2 and 2:6 indicates a certain embarrassment at this admission of dependence upon the Jerusalem Church for the authority for his mission to the "non-Jews" of Asia, Minor. He calls the Jerusalem apostles "the men of repute", a phrase familiar in political rhetoric, where it was used both positively and negatively. The parenthesis of verse 6, with its noticeable change of tense - 'what they were (then) is (now) a matter of indifference to me; God shows no partiality' - is all aimed at curtailing the authority of the Jerusalem apostles in the current situation in Galatia and at reducing the significance of his earlier acceptance of that authority (D.M.Hay, "Paul's Indifference to Authority", JBL 88 (1969) 37-8; Betz, Galatians 94-95). Likewise when he says "those of repute added nothing to me" (2.6), there again the language indicates an acknowledgment on his part at that time of Jerusalem's 'right' to instruct or give directives to its daughter churches. So too, it can plausibly be argued that Paul's convoluted statement in verses 7-10 is a further attempt to obscure the degree to which Paul had been willing to accept Jerusalem's authority at that time as clearly expressed in the pillar apostles' recognition of Paul's and Barnabas' missionary success and their approval of a future division of labor (Bruce, Paul, 154, and Betz, Galatians, 96-103). All this points strongly to the conclusion that while

Paul defended a position at Jerusalem, the three 'pillar' apostles delivered a verdict.

Moreover, there is a growing agreement on the view that when Paul went up to Jerusalem this second time it was not as an independent missionary or apostle, but as a delegate from the church at Antioch (so Acts 15:2; cf. 14:4, 14 - 'apostles', that is, of the church at Antioch, 13:2-3). The question discussed at the meeting in Jerusalem was not primarily whether Paul (and Barnabas) were apostles, but whether as apostles of Antioch their practice of not circumcising their converts should continue - that is, whether the church of Antioch's practice of according full acceptance to uncircumcised Gentile believers should continue without modification.

Answer for yourself: Why is this so important? Simultaneous as this time in Jerusalem there existed two different schools of Pharisees, one led by the Rabbi Shammai who took a very hard line in relationship to "non-Jews" and Judaism. Rabbi Shammai, who opposed the school of Hillel, treated the "non-Jews" like dogs and vermin and demanded that all social intercourse or religious participation with the "non-Jew" be one only after circumcision (where many died being full adults no longer having their mother's immune antibodies to fight disease and infection as they did the first six months of their lives as infants), and full conversion to Judaism. This is a bid deal in the New Testament that lies behind the importance of accepting these "non-Jew" into religious and social participation with the Jews without total conversion. This is what the whole of Acts 15 and the Jerusalem Council was all about. The victory or rather concession won by the Antioch delegation did not call in question the authority of the Jerusalem apostles to make this concession. The point is that the church at Antioch could not make this decision by themselves, and readily referred it to Jerusalem. And when subsequently the delegation came from James, the majority of believers in Antioch just as readily accepted the authority of this further ruling regarding the practice of table-fellowship at Antioch. Paul, as we will seen, although agreeing on circumcision with the Jerusalem Church would not follow other decisions of the Jerusalem Council regarding the Laws of Noah for the "non-Jew" and this is where the problem comes into play which would cause the quick meeting of the Acts 15 Church Council to settle the matter.

This nationalistic dimension to the Antioch incident becomes still more significant in the light of the second feature of the broader historical context to which we now turn.

WHAT MOTIVATED THE MEN FROM JAMES TO REBUKE PETER, BARNABAS, AND PAUL OVER EATING WITH GENTILES?

During the period which concerns us, many Jews, no doubt a growing proportion within the Jewish territories, must have believed their distinctive religious and national prerogatives were under increasing threat. The long, drawn out crisis provoked by Caligula's insistence that a statue of himself be set up in the Jerusalem temple is well known (AD 40). And later, after the death of Agrippa in AD 44, the situation deteriorated rapidly under a succession of weak Roman procurators. Cuspius Fadus (AD 44-46) demanded that the vestments of the High Priest be returned to the Romans for safe-keeping (Josephus, Antiquities 20.1.1 §6) and had to act against the threatened rebellion led by the self-styled prophet Theudas (Antiquities 20.5.1 §§97-9). Tiberius Julius Alexander (AD 46-48) crucified James and Simon, the sons of Judas the Galilean, presumably because, like their father, they were engaged in fomenting unrest against Roman rule on account of its threat to their faith (Antiquities 20.5.2 §102). Under Cumanus (AD 48-52) things went from bad to worse, with a near riot in Jerusalem resulting in thousands of deaths (20,000 or 30,000 according to Josephus - Jewish War 2.12.1 §§223-7; Antiquities 20.5.3 §§105-12), and a succession of disorders involving zealot bands in Samaria and elsewhere (Jewish War 2.12.2-5 §§228-38; Antiquities 20.5.4-6 §§11-24). Josephus reports that "from that time the whole of Judea was infested with bands of brigands" (Antiquities 20.6.1 §124) - 'brigands' being Josephus' way of describing the Zealots."

INTENSIFIED NATIONALISM AND THE PUSH TO REMAIN SANCTIFIED KEPT THE JEWS APART FROM GENTILES

The Jerusalem Assembly within Palestine would not have been unaffected by these mounting pressures. The death of Stephen and the subsequent persecution (early or middle 30s) presumably had the effect of ensuring that those followers of the Nazarene who had been exempted from the persecution, or who had returned to Jerusalem thereafter, would take care to show themselves good Jews, loyal to their religious and national heritage. Agrippa's execution of James (brother of John) in or before AD 44 is presumably also to be explained against this background; Luke notes that 'it pleased the Jews' and encouraged Agrippa to move against Peter (Acts 12.1-3).

Furthermore, we should bear in mind that such pressures towards conformity with the mainstream of nationalistic Judaism were experienced as much within the infant Christian communities as from without. It is not simply a matter of coincidence that in the preceding episode involving Peter prior to his arrest, Peter had been criticized by the circumcision party for eating with an uncircumcised Gentile (Acts 11:2-3). We need to understand that nowhere in the Torah is the Jew commanded NOT to eat with the Gentile; however, several Commandments from the Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah deal with the "requirements" for food and table-fellowship that must be enforced and maintained if this table-fellowship is to be accomplished. This is the issue here and not just simply eating with non-Jews; the issue is obedience to the Laws of God! The subsequent controversy over the necessity of circumcision clearly indicates that many Jewish believers took it as routine that Gentiles must be circumcised if they were to have a share in the Jewish heritage, and were prepared to exercise considerable advocacy and missionary endeavor to ensure that that heritage was neither diluted nor endangered. The school of R. Shammai was the dominant Pharisee school of the day and this was their position.

EXAMPLES

In Acts 15:1 we have the statement that "certain men which came down from Judea taught the brethren, and said, Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses ye cannot be saved".

In Acts 15: 5 we have the statement that "But there rose up certain of the sect of the Pharisees which believed, saying 'That it was needful to circumcise them, and to command them to keep the law of Moses'".

These are just two examples of the Jews trying to preserve and protect their faith from dilution which they expected would happen once the flood gates were open to the acceptance of the "non-Jews" on such a wide basis. The references to "certain men" and a "certain sect of the Pharisees" is a reference to the School of Shammai and not to the School of Hillel. The Jerusalem Assembly in Acts 15 sides with the School of Hillel on this issue and well as all other issues concerning the "non-Jew" and his incorporation into the Israel of God. This was an effort to keep the faith of the Jew sanctified, although wrong in some ways. The Jews, in particular the Jerusalem Assembly of Acts 15 within Judaism, could not continue to require and put and require circumcision upon the "non-Jew" because they knew that G-d never commanded it of the "non-Jew" in the Laws of Noah. It has been enforce wrongly upon them for the reasons above and as a deterrent in keeping the "unclean dog", the "non-Jew" at arms length from the Jews. But again we must be smart enough to understand that certain Laws in the Covenant of Noah are not negotiable and are required of all "non-Jews" who come to saving faith in G-d.

Answer for yourself: Since we are looking at Acts 15 which occurred long after the supposed death of Jesus then would James' requirement of "non-Jews" keeping the Laws of Noah being "necessary" and "seeming good to the Holy Spirit" refer to me today? Would these same Laws concerning idolatry as connected to eating to me as well? Has your church ever taught you these Laws of Noah as your Covenant stipulations before God? Why not?

It was "some" of these Laws which Paul has relaxed in his efforts to win the "non-Jews" to "his gospel". So when the men from James came and rebuked the condition of table-fellowship as they saw it being compromised by both Jews and "non-Jews" Paul defends his indefensible position by stating:

4 And that because of false brethren unawares brought in, who came in privily to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage: 5 To whom we gave place by subjection, no, not for an hour; that the truth of the gospel might continue with you.

Let us not forget that these "false brethren" were the authorities from the Jerusalem Church and they were not there to remove any liberty that the "non-Jews" had in G-d, but only to make sure that obedience to the Commandments of G-d was being enforced between the Jews and "non-Jews" during table-fellowship in the Antioch Church.

Answer for yourself: Could the connection of the "Law" being "bondage", as stated by Paul above in his earliest epistle, now be seen NOT to refer to the whole of the 66 Laws of Noah or the 613 Laws of Moses, but should be limited to only one Law; that being the Law regarding table-fellowship? It sure should. Surely you see the Commandment not to kill, or not to commit adultery is surely not "bondage"; therefore we see the branding of "the Law" being "bondage" comes early in the career of Paul because the Jerusalem Church had ruled concerning interpretation of the Laws of Noah regarding table-fellowship between the Jew and the "non-Jew" and this "strictness" was disadvantageous, in Paul's mind, in building a large ministry in Asia, Minor, that would rival the Assembly of Jerusalem.

Paul is sure right in one thing; he would not submit to the Jerusalem Church in this regard no matter what they said for his stance was etched in stone and would ultimately lead to him being "recalled" to Jerusalem and James to answer accusations and charges once again later in Acts 21 toward the end of Paul's life. You must understand that Paul's "gospel" which he wanted to continue with his followers is not the "gospel" the Jerusalem Church wanted to go into all the world to the "non-Jew" (in some areas)!

Paul takes all of this personal as we will now see. Paul would even stoop so low as to call these "pillars" in the Jerusalem "dogs" in Phil. 3:2 where he warns his readers that these ambassadors for Christ were in reality "evil workers" and "dogs".

Phil 3:2 2 Beware of dogs, beware of evil workers, beware of the concision. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: What does the word "concision" mean?

Strong's Concordance:

2699 katatome (kat-at-om-ay'); from a compound of 2596 and temno (to cut); a cutting down (off), i.e. mutilation (ironically): KJV-- concision. Compare 609.

So we see a different word used to refer to the "party of the circumcision" which is a slang for "the Jews" who were known because of their circumcision.

Remember with me that it is these Apostles and disciples of "the Christ" in Jerusalem who not only opposed Paul and "his" gospel, which in many ways opposed the true gospel of the Jerusalem church, but "dogged" him during his travels to "undue" the errors that Paul was teaching. It is these same "Jews" from James that followed Paul and were responsible at times for his "stripes", beatings, and persecutions which Paul mentions in his epistles. Think on that for a minute! These who followed Paul and tried to control Paul were Jews who represented the stance of the Jerusalem Church and it was their devotion to God and His Law that caused them to follow this Paul to make sure they could "undo" the problems created by Paul along with his false teachings concerning the Law.

Let me say again that we are dealing with two issues here. Table-fellowship falls under the category of idolatry in the Laws of Noah and you will see this for yourself when you get to the study of each of the Laws of Noah. The other issue is that of circumcision and understand that Paul and the Jerusalem Church had no difference between themselves on this issue. The issue or "Law" that is in question between Paul and the Jerusalem Church is the one dealing with idolatry and table-fellowship. Both Paul, James, and the Jerusalem Church were in full agreement that imposing circumcision upon the "non-Jew" was totally out of step with the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah. Racial hatred of the "non-Jew", like R. Shammai and others, was the reason why such stringent requirements were put upon the non-Jews by "certain" Jews in hopes of keeping them at arm's length from Judaism.

Here too, we may note the evidence of the Gospel of Matthew, which indicates the conservative direction the Law and Israel took in preserving the nation and its faith.

Matt 5:17 17 Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil. (KJV)

Matt 23:3 3 All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but do not ye after their works: for they say, and do not. (KJV)

Matt 10:5-6 5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: 6 But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel. (KJV)

Matt 15:24 24 But he answered and said, I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel. (KJV)

The "non-Jew" was the mission field for God and His Torah. The world did not know that God offered them a Covenant whereby they could make themselves acceptable to God. Israel, as God's Holy Nation and Royal Priesthood, was charged to make the world know, but ends did not justify the means and spreading idolatry along with the Message of God was not to be done. So we are at a crossroads between Paul and the Jerusalem outreach. Wholly consistent with all this, and not at all surprising in view of it, is Luke's account of Paul's last visit to Jerusalem (probably in AD 57), where James describes the church in Jerusalem (and Palestine) as consisting of 'many thousands . . . who are all zealous for the law' (Acts 21:20-1). All that the Jews of Jerusalem knew of Paul at that time is rumors that he is a renegade and menace to their Jewish faith and inheritance.

The threat to Jewish prerogatives was, of course, not confined to Palestine, nor were Jewish exertions to defend them. Philo gives a clear account of the riots in Alexandria in AD 38, provoked by deliberate attacks on the religious and civic rights of the considerable Jewish population resident there (Flaccus particularly 41-54; also Embassy to Gaius 132-7). Delegations to the Emperor, the first led by Philo himself, resulted in a reiteration of these rights by Claudius in AD 41. In the same year, according to Dio Cassius, Claudius deprived the Jews resident in Rome of their right of assembly (Dio 60.6.6), and eight years later, according to Suetonius, he expelled the Jews altogether because they were 'constantly rioting at the instigation of Chrestus' (Suetonius, Claudius, 25.4; cf. Acts 18.2).

Boy, we could chase one of the biggest rabbits you have ever seen when getting into this word "Chrestus". I wish I had time and you, the reader, the courage to continue such a study for it goes to the very issue of a "historical Jesus" or the lack of one. Let me say as we get back on track that "the Chrestus" is not "the Christos", the Chrestus is the "Christ within, the Divine Energy of God in man, the Soul", and the "Christos" is the supposed "literal Christ Jesus of history". You need to do the study into Gnosticism and find out who these first "Chrestians" were and when the later Roman "Christians" take the field. You will find as I did that there are Two New Testaments; the first given us by Marcion, the Gnostic, that taught only "the Christ within" that comes around 140 C.E. and a later "reinterpretation", or forgery, called the Second New Testament from 180 C.E., given us by Rome, which adds a "bunch", like the infancy narratives and conflicting genealogies, and gives the world a "historical Christ without", or "literal Christ Jesus". Now the rest is up to you.

Since all the other Jewish unrest of this period largely centered on Jewish response to what they perceived as threats to their unique racial and religious status, it may well be that the trouble in Rome was caused by similar Jewish reaction to the success of evangelism of the "non-Jew" by the school of Hillel (the Jerusalem Church), like that against Stephen and that against Paul (Acts 6:9-14; 21:27-36; cf. 13:50; 14:2-5, 19; 17:5-7, 13; 18:12-15).

Whatever the precise details of these various incidents the overall picture is clear enough. During the period in which the Antioch incident took place Jews had to be on their guard against what were seen to be repeated threats to their national and religious rights because of the influx of "unclean Gentiles". Whenever such a threat was perceived their reaction was immediate and vigorous. In Palestine more and more were resorting to open violence and guerrilla warfare. The infant "Chrestian/Christian" sect in Jerusalem was not exempt from this unrest. Indeed we may generalize a fairly firm conclusion from the above review of evidence: wherever this new Jewish sects belief or practice was perceived to be a threat to Jewish institutions and traditions its members would almost certainly come under pressure from their fellow Jews to remain loyal to their unique Jewish heritage.

The question which such a conclusion leaves us is obvious:

Answer for yourself: To what extent was the Antioch incident the result of such pressures operating upon the infant communities in Palestine and Syria, pressures from Jews loyal to their heritage both without and within the sect itself?

Against this background the hypothesis becomes rather compelling that the open table-fellowship practiced at Antioch was perceived by the Jerusalem church (and perhaps by other Jews like R. Shammai and the School of Shammai) as such a threat. The mission of the men from James would then have been their reaction to that threat. And the danger of diluting or abandoning Israel's heritage with its converse and powerful appeal to national and religious loyalty would have weighed heavily with Peter, Barnabas and the rest.

One thing must not be overlooked here. Just before the Antioch incident Paul had returned from Jerusalem after 14 years having "won" the round concerning "circumcision" and the Messianic Community no longer would make it required for Gentile followers of HaShem. Yet Acts 15:1 links "circumcision" to the salvation of the non-Jew. This must be understood as the zealous reaction of fellow Jews from Jerusalem who were keenly aware of the threat the non-Jew presented to Judaism at present and there was a fraction within even the Messianic Movement which did not agree with James. But this issue between James and Paul had previously been worked out before Paul's return to Antioch. In fact in Acts 15:24 we have James' own admission that neither he nor his men gave any such commandment of required circumcision of the "non-Jew" or had said that "non-Jews had to be circumcised or keep the Law [understood as the Law of Moses (all 613 Laws) as in full conversion] to be saved". This again was the stance of the School of Shammai and not the stance of the School of Hillel. Yet however dear one James never absolved the "non-Jews" from the Laws pertaining to them within the Covenant of Noah! It would be Paul who would do that!

IN CONCLUSION

Thus already a fair amount of light has been shed on the Antioch incident from the broader background. We may summarize these preliminary observations thus.

- At this stage of its growth, the School of Hillel, the Jerusalem Church, would almost certainly still think of themselves as a development of and within the religion of the Jews (a form of eschatological, messianic Judaism) - not yet a distinct faith or separate religion.
- Within this Messianic Movement within Judaism, the primacy and authority of the Jerusalem apostles in matters of dispute, specifically over what requirements should be laid on Gentiles who wished to associate with the new movement, would be generally acknowledged, and in fact had already been acknowledged by the church at Antioch and by Paul, the delegate/apostle of the Antioch church.
- The increasing threat to Judaism, especially from the deteriorating political situation in Palestine, and the increasingly polemical response of the Jews themselves, would increase the pressures on those involved in the new movement to show themselves as faithful and loyal Jews. In short, the probability is strong that all the main participants in the Antioch incident would naturally think of themselves as first and foremost Jews (a probability confirmed by Gal. 2.15); as such they would naturally look to Jerusalem for direction when in doubt and not Paul; and as such they would inevitably feel themselves moved by the mounting groundswell of Jewish nationalistic and religious sentiment.

With the broader background thus clarified we can now dig more deeply into that which most concerns us - the table fellowship at Antioch.

Answer for yourself: What was at stake in the Antioch church's practice of table-fellowship?

Answer for yourself: Within the context of Palestinian and Diaspora Judaism in the middle of the first century C.E. how would the table-fellowship at Antioch have appeared? Was it seen as something unexceptional, as something very unusual, as a breach of Jewish practice and covenantal loyalty which posed a threat, or what?

Answer for yourself: We are accustomed to seeing the issue through the eyes of Paul (Gal. 2.11-18). But how was it seen through the eyes of “the men from James”?

This brings us to the next stage of our analysis.

PAUL'S REBUKE OF PETER ...HAS THE NEW TESTAMENT MISREPRESENTED IT & THE INCIDENT AT ANTIOCH? #8

WHAT WERE THE LIMITS OF TABLE-FELLOWSHIP IN THE JUDAISM OF THE LATE SECOND TEMPLE PERIOD?

The significance of table-fellowship in the east is well known. In Judaism particularly the religious significance of a shared meal was central. 'In Judaism', as Jeremias notes, "table-fellowship means fellowship before God, for the eating of a piece of broken bread by everyone who shares in the meal brings out the fact that they all have a share in the blessing which the master of the house has spoken over the unbroken bread" (J.Jeremias, New Testament Theology. Vol. I. "The Proclamation Of Jesus" (1971; ET London: SCM, 1971) 115. The added significance for the rabbis and their pupils is well characterized in a saying of R. Simeon (c. 100-160 or 170):

If three have eaten at one table and have not spoken over it words of the Law, it is as though they had eaten of the sacrifices of the dead (Ps. 106:28), for it is written, 'For all tables are full of vomit and filthiness without God' (Isa. 28:8 - 'place' taken as a designation for God). But if three have eaten at one table and have spoken over it words of the Law, it is as if they had eaten from the table of God, for it is written, 'And he said unto me, This is the table that is before the Lord' (Ezek. 41:22). (m. Abot 3.3)

No devout Jew could engage in an act of such religious significance casually, and the question of who was and who was not an acceptable table companion must have greatly exercised the minds of such Jews during the period which concerns us, as the Antioch incident itself demonstrates (cf. Acts 11:2-3; 1 Cor: 8-10).

*2 And when Peter was come up to Jerusalem, they that were of the circumcision contended with him,
3 Saying, Thou wentest in to men uncircumcised, and didst eat with them.*

I will let you read the three chapters in I. Cor. 8-10. before we go on.

To put all this in another way, part of the pressure on a devout Jew in the 40s and 50s of the first century A.D. would have been the compulsion to observe the limits of acceptable table-fellowship. These limits would be determined partly by two things:

- The explicit laws in the Torah, particularly concerning unclean foods (Lev. 11:1-23; Deut.

14:321), and

- The multiplying halakoth of the oral tradition concerning tithes and ritual purity.

THE ANTIOCH CHURCH AND THEIR OBEDIENCE TO THE LAWS OF NOAH AND THE LAWS OF MOSES...OR WERE THEY?

Basically the issue we are facing is if under the teachings of Paul was the Antioch Church, containing both Jewish and non-Jewish believers, observing and keeping the respective Laws of their respective Covenants (the Laws of Moses for the Jews and the Laws of Noah for the Gentiles). You will come to see, or maybe you have already, that both the Jew and the non-Jew were in violation of their respective Covenants in Antioch and one must look to the teacher who failed to instruct properly; in this case we must confront Paul for what he was actually doing and teaching which was contrary to both the Jew's and non-Jew's respective Covenant stipulations. The New Testament, and especially epistles from Paul's perspective, give a certain "spin" to the story, but research in both Covenants and their respective requirements are very telling in the gathering of truth and exposing Paul's apostasy in this regard!

BACKGROUND...THE COVENANT AND LAWS OF NOAH FOR THE NON-JEW

Some basic background information into the Laws of Noah concerning abstaining from eating the limb of a living animal will be very helpful at this point in our study. There is some discussion as to whether or not the prohibition of eating the limb of a living animal was originally given to Adam, the first man. One opinion states that it was included in the original commandment forbidding the eating of the fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil (Babylonian Talmud, Sanhedrin 56 b). According to this opinion, Adam, who was clearly given vegetation for food, as it is written, "And God said, Behold I have given you every herb bearing seed which is upon the face of the whole earth, and every tree upon which there is fruit of a tree bearing seed, to you these shall be for food" (Gen. 1:29), was not forbidden to eat meat, but was merely forbidden to kill animals for food. If the animal had died of itself, it was permissible as food (Babylonian Talmud, Sanhedrin 56 b). What Noah was given, therefore, was permission to kill animals for food, but he was forbidden by God to eat the flesh of any animal while the animal was still alive (Gen. 9:4, Commentary on Rashi). According to the other opinion, Adam had received six of the Seven Universal Laws and had been forbidden to eat the flesh of an animal in any manner. Only after the Flood was the leniency of permitting animal flesh instituted (Mishneh Torah, Laws of Kings, chapter 9, law 1).

This commandment is explicit, as it is written, "Every moving thing that lives shall be for you for food; just as the green herbs, I have given you everything. But flesh with its living soul, its blood, you shall not eat" (Gen. 9:3-4).

Answer for yourself: What should we learn from this?

This means that an animal's soul is contained in its blood and it is this soul/blood that God was forbidding man to consume since the very "life principle" of all existence resides in the blood; the soul is in the blood of animals and mammals. The life is in the blood and it is this life, the soul in the blood, that God has given as an atonement. One should realize that when "blood" is mentioned in the context of atonement in the Old Testament it is truly meaning something deeper; it means the Soul is the actual atoning vehicle and not the "red blood cells". One's life, his soul, atones in his actions and repentance following his sin; it is this decision of repentance and renewed obedience coupled with a contrite and broken heart that does the actual "atonement". If you have never studied this out as a Christian then I highly recommend you do so as soon as possible because when you do then you will never be deceived again in your life about how to acquire atonement and make yourself acceptable to God.

There are studies on this on the net explaining how Christianity has misunderstood this concept and how the Jews have got it right all along! The vitalizing animal soul is contained within the blood, and this is what the commandment refers to, for when an animal dies, this vitalizing soul departs. So long as this vitalizing soul remains within the animal, its flesh is forbidden to man as food (Lev. 17:14 , commentary of Rashi; Gen. 9:4, commentary of S. R. Hirsh).

At first glance, this commandment seems peculiarly out of place as one of the Seven Universal Laws.

Answer for yourself: How can eating the limb of an animal take its place side by side with such monumental principles of human morality as those prohibiting idolatry or murder?

Besides a few scattered sociological perversions in Africa and China, one is hard put to imagine who would even consider eating an animal's meat while the animal lives.

And yet this is precisely why this commandment may well epitomize the spirit of the Seven Universal Laws.

Although mankind is enjoined to obey the Seven Laws of Noah along with their specific commandments as they appear, nevertheless the letter of the law serves only as a minimum, a starting point, which guarantees God's favor and ensures human morality. But, if man wishes to realize his spiritual greatness, he must tap into the infinite potential of the Seven Laws, using them to refine and elevate himself. We see here that eating the limb of a living animal serves as a hint to the potential refinement that man can attain through his eating habits and by practicing kindness to God's creatures. For what man ingests as food is absorbed in his bloodstream and in every cell of his body and thereby becomes part of his essential being. The person who eats snakes and monkeys will surely be different from the one who eats nuts and berries.

The Noahide may eat the flesh of an animal that dies by itself (Encyclopedia Talmudica, vol 3, chp. 21), but there is an opinion stating that only the flesh of an animal killed through slaughtering is permissible" (Asarah Ma'amarot, Chekur Din, sec. 3, chp. 21).

For the Noahide animals, birds, and fish may be killed for food in any way that man deems to be efficient and it should be done as humanely as possible. For the Noahide, the non-Jewish believer, slaughtering of animals or birds does not have to be in a ritual manner as with Jews. But this was a Commandment which had to be enforced and taken up by the "non-Jews" voluntarily if the "non-Jew" was to partake of the food at any table fellowship with Jews. Again this was voluntary and is a perfect example of "choosing those things that please God" as instructed of "non-Jews" in Isaiah 56. The "non-Jews" might not have been given such a commandment but if they were to share table fellowship with Jews then it was up to them to voluntarily take upon themselves those commandments requiring ritual slaughter if fellowship with their Jewish brethren was to ensure. Let us again be reminded that such table fellowship is the example and rehearsal of the Marriage Supper where both peoples of God; both Jew and "non-Jew" share in the "supper" of God!

Notice again that the issue of "circumcision" had been dealt with for the most part after Paul's 14 year absence and subsequent trip to Jerusalem, but not all Jews had yet "agreed" to this mandate by James. Yet circumcision remained a problem for many Jews, especially the non-Messianics. In Antioch "tensions" surfaced where the "non-Jews" were expected to respond in obedience to other commands if they were to maintain fellowship with their Jewish brethren. Notice these "other commands" were not required of these "non-Jewish believers" in the Covenant of Noah, but they "had to" keep them if they were intent on solidifying their fellowship with their Jewish brethren.

This is where we begin to encounter problems in the Antioch incident and why the men from James began to rebuke Paul for the manner of table fellowship which was being practiced in his congregation. The Jews had no options: either be excluded or compromise their Covenant and Commandments and sin! But the texts carries another idea even deeper when we look. The men from James discerned that the table fare, which had come from the Gentile market-place had not been prepared, ritually slaughtered, drained of all blood, and most likely not tithed of, which was required by the Covenant and Laws of Moses. Even Peter and Barnabas and other Jews in the congregation had been misled by such practices as condoned under the auspices of being "in Christ" and "becoming all things to all men that they might win some". There were certain procedures involved in the killing of the animal which was commanded to be done in as merciful a manner as possible before the animal was considered "kosher" for consumption by the Jew. The practice of such relaxation of such commandments was not acceptable to the men from Jerusalem and nor it should be.

The men from James had NOT forgotten that one guilty of transgressing this commandment in the Laws of Noah or Laws of Moses, in any of its manifestations, is subject to punishment by the courts whether he eats the limb of a living animal or merely the flesh of a living animal or any internal organ, even the smallest amount, or even eating the smallest amount of an animal that has not been killed by Biblically sanctioned ritual slaughter. A Jew was subject to punishment by the courts for eating the limb or the flesh of either a living domestic or wild animal which had not been ritually slaughtered according to the Torah.

The Antioch congregation under the authority of Paul had somehow not bothered themselves with this commandment since "being in Christ" for them meant they were no longer under the Law according to Paul. But the men from James and the Jerusalem Church had something to say about that. The uproar would be heard all the way back in Jerusalem and the Acts 15 Council would be called and these principals reiterated to Paul and included in letters which were sent in Acts 16 in order to "strengthen" all the churches of Asia Minor.

Answer for yourself: What does this have to say about such practices in Gentile Christian America today as to how our meats and slaughter houses are run in America today? Ever been to a packing plant? Even seen how cruelly these animals are butchered by American industries? Ever heard of a Christian church teaching on the Laws of God concerning how we prepare our meats before we consume them?

Animals, together with their lives, were given into the hands of mankind. The higher spiritual rank of man dictates that he not eat the limb of a living animal. Even though human flesh and animal flesh are related, the one may be incorporated within the other through eating. But the soul (blood) of an animal may never be incorporated within the soul of man. The soul (in the blood) of an animal must first be separated from its physical being before the animal body may be absorbed within and become part of the human body (Gen. 9:4, commentary of S. R. Hirsch). This means that certain procedures are necessary to drain the blood, which contains the life and soul of the animal, from the animal before the flesh is fit for consumption. This is applicable to both Jew and "non-Jew". Such procedures as commanded in the Laws of Noah and the Jewish Laws were not practiced in pagan markets of that day and time and such meat at table fellowship had no guarantee that such safeguards had been taken to ensure the blood was completely drained from the animal. Besides methods of slaughter as addressed above, now we have the problem of draining the blood completely before consumption. These violations would be grouped under the admonition of James in Acts 15 as "refraining from pollution of idols and blood"! Remember these things were "necessary" and "seemed good to the Holy Spirit":

Acts 15:28-29 28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; 29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well. (KJV)

Obedience to the Law of God concerning unclean foods had been one of the "make or break" issues in the Maccabean rebellion. "Many in Israel stood firm and were resolved in their hearts not to eat unclean food. They chose to die rather than to be defiled by food or to profane the holy covenant; and they did die" (1 Macc. 1.62-3). No one who cherished the memory of the Maccabees would even dream of eating unclean food. The typical Jewish attitude at the time with which we are concerned is probably well caught by Luke's account of Peter's reaction to the vision given him in Joppa: "I have never eaten anything that is common or unclean" (Acts 10.14). It is very important to notice that it is this belief that was later compromised with Peter and other Jew's because of Paul's teaching in Rom 10:4 that "Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth". What we can be sure of is that we have a rather perplexing problem in the testimony of the New Testament concerning the "attitudes of Jesus and of Paul as to the law. What we uncover by such study is that we have hidden in this New Testament is two different "gospels"; one by Paul and one by Jesus. In reality we have two different paths to Eternal Life and they conflict; again one by Paul and one by Jesus. Deciding which one is real and the other a "replacement religion" is mandatory and only possible through intense study of what we read in the New Testament.

Answer for yourself: Is the real gospel expressed by the depiction of Jesus in Mark 7 where we find that Jesus denies that anything outside a man is able to defile him and at the same time defines all foods as clean (Mark 7:15, 18-19)? Or is the real gospel revealed in the depiction of Jesus in Matt. 5, when he declares the inviolability of jots and titles and the importance of even the least commandments found in the Law (Matt. 5:18-19; 23:23)?

Well that is what you have to decide and clarifying this muddled picture in the New Testament is impossible without study. All we can say is that the Pauline corpus of writings existed prior to the writing of the Gospels and to think that the Gospels and their writers were not influenced by Pauline theology would be rather naive.

Jewish devotion on this point of Law was particularly expressed in their abhorrence of pigs and of pork. The height of Antiochus Epiphanes' abomination had been his sacrifice of swine on the altar(s) of the temple (Josephus, Antiquities 13.8.2 §§ 243). Continuing Jewish antipathy to the pig is illustrated by the Mishna's refusal to allow Jews to rear swine anywhere (in Israel) (m. Baba Qamma 7.7). And Jewish rejection of pork was well known and often commented on in Greek and Roman society. For example, Philo reports Caligula as interrupting his hearing of the Alexandrian delegations with the abrupt question, "Why do you refuse to eat pork?" (Embassy to Gaius 361), and Plutarch devotes one of his Quaestiones Convivales to discussion of why Jews abstain from pork (4.5). Clearly abstention from pork was thoroughly characteristic, we may even say universally characteristic, of Jewish conduct both in Palestine and in the Diaspora.

But notice if you will Paul's comment in Gal 2:4:

4 And that because of false brethren unawares brought in, who came in privily to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage:

The Greek word for "spy" is Strong's Number #2684 (kataskopeo) which means to "inspect, to view closely, in order to spy out and plot against". Understand that when these men from James arrived they observed in this table fellowship something that was "visible" that immediately grabbed their attention as to irregularities concerning the Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah. They could not tell by simple observing if the meats had been slaughtered according to the Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah. They could not tell if these meats has been sacrificed in the markets to strange gods without asking . But they could easily spot the types of "meats" on the tables and this speaks to the very issue concerning if these "meats" were "unclean and unfit for consumption or if they were clean and fit for consumption". The only thing "visible" was the type of food on the table to begin with and most likely this points to the fact that the diet of that day contained "unclean" and unkosher food. This only led to other deeper probing of the "visual" problem encountered by these men from James who had not been swayed by Paul's compromises on the Law. Deeper issues lay at the heart of such a transgression of these Laws such as the lack of tithing, the lack of ritual slaughter, etc.

Equally abhorrent to the devout Jew was food tainted by the abomination of idolatry, although the extra-biblical documentation is thinner in this case. In addition to 1 Corinthians 8-10 and Acts 15.20, 29, we may mention Josephus' report of how in 64 C.E. he sought to aid certain priests of his acquaintance who had been taken prisoner in Rome and who "even in affliction had not forgotten the pious practices of religion, and supported themselves on figs and nuts" (Life 3 §§13-14), presumably in part at least to avoid meat left over from pagan sacrifices (4 Macc. 5.2). This will be dealt with in more detail in other articles.

Having seen these "visual" compromises only would lead to inquiry as to if the meat (of clean animals) had been ritually slaughtered according to Jewish Law and if the blood had been drained in accordance with the clear and repeated commandments of Moses (Lev: 3:17; 7:26-7; 17:10-14; Deut: 12:16, 23-4; 15:23; Acts 15:20, 29). What constituted a proper slaughtering of a clean animal for food is well defined in rabbinic Judaism by the time of the Mishna (tractate Hullin; also Keritot 5.1), but we can gain some idea of how far the halakoth had developed by the middle of the first century from Hullin 1.2, which reports the debate between the school of Shammai and the school of Hillel on what precisely was allowed by the (presumably) earlier ruling that slaughter with a handsickle was valid. If you recall the Noahide, let alone the Jew, was commanded not to eat any animal in which the "life/soul" remained in the animal. The higher spiritual rank of man dictates that he not eat the limb of a living animal. Even though human flesh and animal flesh are related, the one may be incorporated within the other through eating. But the soul (the blood) of an animal may never be incorporated within the soul of man. The soul (in the blood) of an animal must first be separated from its physical being before the animal body may be absorbed within and become part of the human body (v. 27:30-32). Thus the Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah in this regard.

Equally abhorrent to the devout Jew was food that was consumed from which a "tithe" had not been given. To consume food without first tithing from it was considered robbery from God. A tenth part of agricultural produce or livestock which was "holy to the Lord". Animals, together with their lives, were given into the hands of mankind. The Bible specifies various percentages of the crop that the Jewish farmer must allocate in accordance with given criteria as a religious offering to particular individuals. The custom of tithing is of ancient origin, as Abraham gave a voluntary tithe to Melchizedek (Gen. 14:18-20; cf. 28:22). As part of the commandments "dependent on the Land [of Israel]," these tithing regulations are only applicable to produce grown there (Kid. 1.9). Such laws applied to the first six years of the seven-year cycle during which crops were grown; no tithes were given in the seventh Sabbatical year (shemittah) during which the fields had to remain fallow.

God shares with us in the Commandments of the Tithe that if we fail to set apart a "tithe" for the "poor", the remainder we keep for ourselves is considered by God as if it is "stolen". If we fail to remember the poor when we eat then God considers that all we have which we consider as "ours" (since we worked for it) as if it were "stolen" and it is not released for our use. Thus, we rob God in a big way. The real problem is the church where we attend is NOT teaching the tithe correctly. If you ever take the time to study the tithe for yourself you will see that few if any Christians understand the Lord's Tithe correctly for never have I heard a Christian preacher teach it correctly.

During two years of every seven year cycle (the third and the sixth years), a person was obligated to "set apart" from the fruit of his soil a tithe for the poor, the stranger, the orphan, and the widow; in addition to the Terumah (the heave offering) and Maaser (first fruit offering) which he "set apart" for the Kohen (priest) and the Levite respectively. If one failed to formally "set apart" the tithe for the poor the entire basket was prohibited for use by the giver even if the Terumah and the Maaser Rishon (the first tithe which went to the Levite) had already been "set apart". The men from James ascertained that since the table fare had come from the market place in Antioch and "visual" irregularities abounded then most likely this table fare had not been tithed of according to Scripture and that in reality rendered those at table as if they were robbing God. Thus again the rebuke of Paul, Peter, Barnabas, and the whole church was necessary for such laxities regarding the Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah.

Answer for yourself: Does your church give, as commanded in the Hebrew Scriptures of Moses, all of the tithe every 3 years to the poor (equivalent to 1/3 of the church's budget every year since 2 years out of 6 ALL of the Tithe (fraction would be 1/3) was given in total to the poor? Hardly! Has God said?

"For the poor will never cease from the midst of the land." "Take care" the Torah (the first 5 books of the Old Testament) therefore said to the Jew, "lest you forget the stranger, the orphan, the widow or the poor. When one eats of the bread of the land, he is to know that the land and its fullness belongs to the Lord alone. The food which He prepared for His creatures, He prepared for them all". If food for a poor person was not available in his home, it was considered to be available through "your" home. The food he needs, is his, not yours! And when you give the poor his Maaser (heave offering), it is not charity which you give him. Rather are you returning what belongs to him. When you made the return, you did so graciously, as one does who returned an object temporarily entrusted to him for safekeeping.

The Kohen (priest) acquired his portion first. After him came the Levite. The poor, the stranger, the orphan and the widow came next. And you guessed it; the people of the land came last! What those at Antioch were not observing is this practice of tithing first before they consumed their food. If you have already "set apart" the required Terumah and Maaser offerings, you too may eat your "bread" in joy, for God has graciously acknowledged your deeds. Even if you have not yet actually given the offerings already "set apart," to their respective recipients, the remainder of your produce is already permitted to you by God. When you "set apart" your Terumah and Maaser offerings you thereby receive the right to enjoy the remnant of your product. In the act of "setting apart" you acknowledge God's ownership of the land, His being the source of your bounty, and the consequent claim of others to their rightful portion of your bounty. God then grants to you your portion and he says; "What remains...is for you. Let it be yours!" Whoever keep the portion of the poor in his possession, and fails to give it to them, is not withholding charity, but is rather in possession of stolen property (Mal. 3:8). And the people of God are not given to such malicious wrongdoing.

These matters are of paramount importance to our discussion of the incident at Antioch and Paul's breach of the Law for both Jews and "non-Jews".

LOOKING FROM THE JEWISH PERSPECTIVE

Obedience to these commands so clearly set out in the Torah was obviously fundamental to devout Jews in our period; it belonged to the distinctiveness of their race and religion and marked them out as Yahweh's chosen people. Such fundamental laws were a limiting factor of considerable consequence for the devout Jew's practice of table-fellowship. These Laws and Commandments are not negotiable for the Jew. They did not, we should note, inhibit his own entertainment of others, where he was responsible for what was served up and for the manner of its preparation. But these Laws and Commandments would largely prevent him from accepting with an easy conscience invitations from others (Gentiles) who might ignore them in whole or in part, hence it is the case of an invitation to someone else's house which Paul discusses in 1 Corinthians 10:27-9.

But whereas Paul was addressing "non-Jews" who were called to table fellowship with other "Jews" in I Cor. 10:27-29, the Jew is held to a higher standard. The Jew were called to a higher level of holiness than "non-Jews" and unlike the "non-Jews" who need not ask about where the "dinner" came from, the Jew has to know. When Paul would go on to say in I Cor. 10:38 "Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God" we would be wrong to conclude that "everything" was fair game and was able to be consumed in any manner whatsoever because stipulations in preexisting Covenants given to both the Jew and the "non-Jew" state otherwise!

It was these laws which were being overlooked at table fellowship in Antioch. The men from James when they arrived "spied" out Paul's liberty as he stated, and found several things wrong. They called for immediate repentance and Peter and Barnabas and the rest of the Jewish part of the congregation removed themselves. Acts 15 was to soon occur following the report to James by the men from the Jerusalem church who went to Antioch and the issue would hopefully be settled then. We will find that Paul will not agree theologically with these decrees of James.

TITHING AND RITUAL PURITY

One of the most striking features about the Pharisees in Palestine prior to the Jewish revolt was their preoccupation with defining the limits of table-fellowship more scrupulously. J. Neusner has concluded from his meticulously detailed study of rabbinical traditions about the Pharisees that of the 341 individual rulings from our period "no fewer than 229 directly or indirectly pertain to table-fellowship, approximately 67% of the whole" (Neusner, Rabbinic Traditions 3.297, pp. 291-4). Within these the major concerns were quite clearly ritual purity and tithing.

As to ritual purity, the Pharisees quite simply sought to apply the purity laws governing the temple ritual to their everyday lives. Others might quite properly conclude that these laws referred only to the priests when performing their temple service and to themselves only when they went to the temple; outside the temple the laws of ritual purity need not be observed.

But the Pharisees held that even outside the temple, in one's own home, the laws of ritual purity were to be followed in the only circumstances in which they might apply, namely, at the table. Therefore, one must eat secular food (ordinary, everyday meals) in a state of ritual purity as if one were a temple priest.

The detail with which the schools' debates were already concerned, as to the precise circumstances in which foods and food containers would be rendered unclean, indicates clearly the importance of such matters for the Pharisees and their conscientiousness in trying to maintain their purity (cf. Matt. 23.25-6).

Matt 23:25-26 25 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess. 26 Thou blind Pharisee, cleanse first that which is within the cup and platter, that the outside of them may be clean also. (KJV)

It is important to note that Jesus was not condemning the Pharisees for their ritual purity and their efforts in such regards, he was however, rebuking their religiosity at the expense of weightier matters of their faith; namely, the issues of the heart and their neglect of loving-kindness to the poor and downtrodden. The Kingdom of Heaven, of what Jesus spoke, was not just internal and personal, it was something that needed to be manifested in positive actions to those needing help. It was love in action, not just in theory. This is where some, but not all, of the religious Pharisees failed! Notice I said "some" for history shows that many would not be included in Jesus' rebuke for they understood and lived the life which Jesus modeled. But as you know, even today we have our "hypocrites."

Particularly important here was the cleansing of the hands which were always liable to uncleanness through an unintentional touching. A complete tractate of the Mishnah was to be devoted to the purity of hands (Yadayim), and the ramifications must already have been the subject of debate at our time, as our own Gospel traditions also testify (Mark 7.2-5; Matt. 15.2; Luke 11.38).

Mark 7:2-5 2 And when they saw some of his disciples eat bread with defiled, that is to say, with unwashen, hands, they found fault. 3 For the Pharisees, and all the Jews, except they wash their hands oft, eat not, holding the tradition of the elders. 4 And when they come from the market, except they wash, they eat not. And many other things there be, which they have received to hold, as the washing of cups, and pots, brasen vessels, and of tables. 5 Then the Pharisees and scribes asked him, Why walk not thy disciples according to the tradition of the elders, but eat bread with unwashen hands? (KJV)

THE IMPORTANCE OF TITHING TO RITUAL PURITY

Tithing was important according to the same logic, since only food which had been properly tithed was ritually acceptable. That is to say, tithing was as much concerned with table-fellowship as ritual washing. Tithing was considered a dietary Law (Neusner, Politics to Piety, 80, 83). Here too it is significant that a whole tractate of the Mishnah was to be devoted to rulings about produce not certainly tithed (Demai), that is to guidance for the devout Jew in his dealings with Jews whose devotion to the law could not be presumed (particularly the am ha-aretz). And again there can be little doubt that scrupulous tithing must have formed an important element in the Pharisaic halakoth of pre-AD 70 Palestine, as our own Gospel traditions again confirm (Matt. 23.23; Luke 18.12).

Matt 23:23 23 Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye pay tithe of mint and anise and cummin, and have omitted the weightier matters of the law, judgment, mercy, and faith: these ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone. (KJV) Again we find Jesus not rebuking them for what they were doing in this regard, but failing to continue their actions to the more important aspects of their faith; namely, positive actions toward others. True Biblical faith does not just "believe," it "responds in concrete actions based on that faith."

Jesus' brother even said: But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead [James 2:20 20] (KJV)

We should not confine the influence of such Pharisaic rulings and practice to their own ranks (the haberim). For the well-attested Pharisaic criticisms of Yeshua's table-fellowship as an eating with 'tax collectors and sinners' (Mark 2.16; Matt. 11.19; Luke 7.34; Luke 15.2) and of his eating with unwashed hands (Mark 7.2-5; Matt. 15.2; Luke 11.38) were precisely criticisms of a devout Jew outside the Pharisaic circle for not observing the Pharisaic halakoth - "Why do your disciples not live according to the tradition of the elders . . .?" (Mark 7.5; Matt. 15.2). What is important for our understanding here is if this issue, as detailed in the New Testament, was in reality in effect and imposed upon non-Pharisees and non-Priests in the days of Jesus. There is evidence that such regulations, as imposed upon the general populace, was only later applied to the common people in the time of Rabbi Akiba. That means when reading the New Testament that such events most likely never happened as recorded, and was later inserted into the text to further separate Jesus and his faith in order to give authority for the new religion which would later be created by Rome.

TITHING...OUTSIDE THE LAND OF ISRAEL

Now let us look closer to how this applied to Paul and his Gentile followers. Nor can we assume that such influence was limited to Palestine. It is true that some halakic sources ruled that the law of tithes did not apply "outside the Land" (e.g. m. Halla 2.2; m. Qiddusin 1.9):

- But already in Tobit we read of tithes being scrupulously observed from a home in Nineveh (Tob. 1.6-8).
- Josephus mentions an edict issued by the pro-consul of Asia Minor to the people of Miletus in the days of Caesar permitting the Jews to "perform their native rites and manage their produce in accordance with their customs" (Antiquities, 14.10.21 §245), which presumably indicates that the practice of tithing was well established among the Jews of Asia Minor in the first century BC.
- And Philo tells us that tithing was observed by the Jewish community in Rome (Embassy to Gaius 156) and implies that the Alexandrian Jews did the same (Special Laws 1.153).

Answer for yourself: So what do we learn from the above statement? Namely, that the Laws of the Tithes, although officially not required outside the Land of Israel, was seen to be practiced as the usual "custom".

RITUAL PURITY

As to the purity ritual we may simply note that the practice of Jewish ritual cleansing outside Palestine is presumed by the Epistle of Aristeeas 305-6, and that such purifications are described as characteristic of Jews as a people by the Sibylline Oracles 3.592-3 and Josephus, Against Apion, 2.23, 24 §§198, 203. Philo also testifies to a more general concern in Diaspora Judaism for a punctilious observance of the law (Migration of Abraham, 89-93). Here too we should note Paul's own testimony, that though he came from the Diaspora, nevertheless he "advanced in Judaism beyond many of my own age among my people, so extremely zealous was I for the traditions of my fathers" (Gal. 1.14; cf. Phil. 3.6). It is this Pharisaic striving for a rectitude beyond what was written which is probably in view in the fierce condemnation of Matthew 23.15 - a proselytizing zeal on the part of the Pharisees is elsewhere unattested, but the Pharisees may indeed have been more than willing to "traverse sea and land" to ensure that those who became proselytes properly understood the full extent of their obligations under the law ("when he becomes a proselyte, you make him twice as much a child of hell as yourselves").

We may justifiably infer, then, that wherever Pharisaic influence was strong during the middle decades of the first century of our era, both within Palestine and among strong concentrations of Jews in the Diaspora, there would be pressure on those who thought of themselves as good Jews to observe the halakic clarifications of the laws on tithes and purity - that is to say, pressure on devout Jews (including proselytes) to observe strict limits in their practice of table fellowship.

BUT THERE WERE OTHER OPINIONS..THERE WAS NO UNIFORMITY

On the other hand we should not assume that this pressure would be constant and consistent. The Pharisees were not the only ones with views on these matters. For a start, the Sadducees denied that the laws of purity were applicable outside the temple. At the other end of the spectrum, the Essenes observed rules of ritual purity even stricter than those of the Pharisees (IQS 3.4-5, 8-9; 5.13; 6.16-17, 25; 7.3, 16; IQSa 2.3-9; CD 10.10-13; Josephus, Jewish War 2.8.5, 9-10 §§129, 149-50). And we know that within the ranks of the Pharisees there were many debates between the schools of Shammai and Hillel about particular details, where the concern in effect was to define the precise limits of table-fellowship. We also know that the Pharisees of our period already distinguished several degrees of purity.

Similarly with the Essenes: according to Josephus the novice had to pass through several stages of purification before participating in the common food (Jewish War, 2.8.7 §§137-9), and a senior member could be rendered impure by the touch of a junior member of the community (Jewish War, 2.8.10 §150). Once the concept of differing degrees of purity within the temple ritual was translated into rules governing everyday table-fellowship it inevitably meant that different degrees of association were possible - he who lived at a stricter level of purity could not eat with one who observed a less strict discipline. And I stress that Jewish records date this event in the time of Rabbi Akiba around 100 A.D.; long after the life-time of Jesus!

We may conclude that in the Palestine of our period there was a wide spectrum of teaching and practice on this precise issue - from the am-ha-aretz who knew not the law (cf. John 7.49) to the stricter Pharisees and 'the many' of the Essenes at the other, with varying degrees of scrupulousness and disagreement about particular details in between. Insofar as the new sect of followers of Yeshua was to any extent influenced by Pharisaic views, its members were bound to be caught up in these debates and cross-currents about the acceptable limits of table-fellowship. We need simply note here that it is precisely an issue of this sort, and the disagreements between Christians concerning it, which is reflected in the different emphases drawn by Mark and Matthew from Yeshua's words about true cleanliness (Mark 7.19; Matt. 15. 17, 20).

Mark 7:19 19 Because it entereth not into his heart, but into the belly, and goeth out into the draught, purging all meats? (KJV)

Of particular interest for us is what all this would have meant for the devout Jew (including the devout Nazarene) in his social intercourse with Gentiles. It is to this subject we continue to investigate as this get us to the core of the problem at Antioch. Having surveyed the various beliefs about Table-fellowship with non-Jews let us now turn our attention to the Paul-Peter problem at Antioch.

PAUL'S REBUKE OF PETER ...HAS THE NEW TESTAMENT MISREPRESENTED IT & THE INCIDENT AT ANTIOCH? #10

We have spent considerable time researching into the background of "table-fellowship" in Judaism in relationship to what is "accepted" and what is "not accepted" in the religion of Israel and in the Jewish faith as related to the "non-Jew". We must never forget that this New Testament Jesus is a Jew and that he normally would have had certain views in these areas as well, and such views, when ascertained, should be used to help us "non-Jewish believers" chart our way in such areas as well. Besides the Gospels we can look at normative Biblical Judaism to see what were the current views held by conservative Jews in these areas. We must remember that the issue is more than just "table-fellowship" and goes to the very core of how we, "non-Jewish" believers in the God of Israel are to be accepted and included in the Israel of God. This is the crux of the matter as these dogmas express the will of God for the "non-Jew" in these areas. These teachings by the followers of "the Christ", we must remember, are expressed "after the time of the New Testament's depiction of the death of Jesus" and were intended to be enforced on all "non-Jew's who came to God through the ministry of Paul and Peter as well as other disciples. That means you and me! Just because our denominations teach something different today does not mean they are right and your relationship with God, as He intended, is being upheld in good standing by you. This issue cuts to the very core of the Torah and the Law and how much of it applies to the "non-Jewish believer. You must understand if I can prove, as I will, that we are truly grafted into Israel and not the Baptist, Catholic, or the Methodist Church, then the covenant by which we are related to God and its covenant stipulations and commandments, as upheld by us, is the means by which we keep ourselves in good standing in the covenant and maintain a positive relationship with God. Let us never confuse our emotions and our love for God for how God looks at us and how He feels about us. We can only be certain of God's acceptance of us by our adherence to what God said and His representatives which gave His will in the matters at hand. It is these men, moved by the Holy Spirit as found in the early Jerusalem Church, that we must look in order to be certain that our actions and conduct is pleasing and acceptable to God. This is why I provoke you to think about the historical accuracy of the accounts in the New Testament in order for your to see "if you really are in the faith" or not. You must realize if you are "outside" of the Covenant God gave you or if you have been deceived into believing that you are under another Covenant; the one created by Gentile Christianity which God never gave mankind. If the latter is your experience then in reality you are without a Covenant before God! Making one up, as Gentile Christianity has done concerning the supposed "New" Covenant is not valid and God knows it. It is those who have failed to study these issues in detail who will lose in the end. Now on with the study.

WE EITHER FOLLOW PAUL OR JESUS...BUT WE CANNOT FOLLOW BOTH

In our previous studies we have found that there was no unanimous opinion regarding how to relate to the "non-Jew" in Judaism. We have found in the previous article that no one opinion on ritual purity held sway but that many different ideas were promoted. For our discussion purposes we are concerned as to how the Messianic Community of the First Century understood it and how they ruled accordingly. Their ruling stand today as accepted in Judaism and in light of that then we as "non-Jewish" believers in the God of Israel either walk in the footsteps of the early Messianic Jewish Jerusalem Church or we do not. We either follow Paul and his ideas or those of "the Christ". Dear one I have endeavored with all my might to reveal to the reader that these views, religious belief systems, and "gospels" of the New Testament Romanized Paul and the "the Christ" are not the same! The sad fact is that the vast multitude of Christian believers today follow this "Romanized Paul" and his forged epistles and ideas and think they are at the same time following the wishes of "the Christ" and the Jerusalem Church. Nothing could be further from the truth as we shall see as we continue our examination of the issues involved at the incident at Antioch and later when comparing the corrupted and forged texts at the hands of Rome when compiling their "replacement" New Testament.

WHAT DOES ALL WE HAVE LEARNED SO FAR MEAN TO US?

As a Gentile Christian you need to understand that the dominant tendency within Judaism in the century or so around the time of the reputed life of Jesus seems to have been for the Jews to avoid social and religious intercourse with Gentiles as much as possible. This can be attributed in a large sense to the teachings of R. Shammai and his Rabbinic School. This might be shocking to you as well but there is not one story in the New Testament where Yeshua welcomes "non-Jews!" In fact his response to them ranges from calling the daughter of a "non-Jew" a "dog" to instructing his followers to not go to the Gentiles [THINK].

26 But he answered and said (speaking to the Gentile woman), It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs.

Matt 10:5-6

5 These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not: 6 But go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

To think that Yeshua's primary intent was to "save" the Gentile is a severe misjudgment of his time and his religion. To the lost sheep of the House of Israel God's Christ was sent and because the descendants of Abraham had been assimilated and had become part of the Gentile peoples of the world for over 800 years. These people, formerly Jews who had a Covenant with HaShem, were now being "lost" to their spiritual heritage and "the one faith" as well as their privileges and responsibilities before God. James was God's man of the hour. A "pure" Gentile mission with a "replacement religion" was not on his mind I assure you. He knew what the Gentile Church does not today; namely that the Gentiles were "unclean" because they had no knowledge of God and His Laws. James knew that only by the "non-Jew's" submission to the God of Israel whereby the "non-Jews" took up the Covenant given to them by HaShem (whereby they submitted to the commandments of God) would they then find acceptance with God and the Jews. Only by this would the "non-Jew" maintain their acceptance in the grace of God within the Covenant God had given them. But yet it was to these "lost" brethren from the Northern scattered tribes Yeshua was sent and not the "Eskimos" (if you get what I mean). Today it is hard to look backward and realize such since the Gentile Church is such a force in the world but that was not Yeshua's purpose to create a Gentile Church which would almost persecute his Jewish family to death over the centuries and completely do away with the Law which was the only means of maintaining good standing in the Covenant with God. Let us return to "table-fellowship" and acceptance of the "non-Jews".

JEWISH RELATIONSHIP WITH GENTILES

The stories of Daniel, of Tobit and of Judith were all held forth as examples of the faithfulness and success of Jews who refused to eat "the food of Gentiles" (Dan. 1.8-16; Tob. 1.10-13; Jdt. 10.5; 12.1-20; see also 3 Macc. 3 4; Joseph and Asenath 7.1). The fear of idolatry and of impurity was a considerable limiting factor, since by definition a Gentile was an idolater and certainly ritual impurity had to be assumed rather than the reverse (Alton, Jews, 170-4; Schurer, History, 2.81-4).. This played heavy in the minds of the men from James as they came upon such a compromising situation in Antioch. Thus the Mishnaic tractate on idolatry is mainly concerned with defining the permissible relationships with Gentiles (Aboda Zara). And in several rabbinic sayings the uncleanness of the Gentile is well-known: Gentiles are simply "unclean persons" (Makhot. 2.3); 'the dwelling-places of Gentiles are unclean' (Oholot 18.7); A Gentile is in every respect like to a man who suffers a flux' (Eliyahu Rabba 10). Such sayings cannot be dismissed as the later utterances of rabbinic Judaism subsequent to our period. The prohibition on Gentiles entering the temple sanctuary was already well established by our time (cf., e.g., Antiquities, 12.3.4 §§1450), and must have been based on the belief that Gentiles were unclean. Already in Jubilees the same attitude is clearly expressed and the line firmly drawn:

Separate yourself from the nations, And eat not with them,..... For their works are unclean, And all their ways are a pollution and an abomination and an uncleanness ... (22.16)

According to the Epistle of Aristaeas, Moses fenced us (Jews) round with impregnable ramparts and walls of iron, that we might not mingle at all with any of the other nations, but remain pure in body and soul . . . he hedged us round on all sides by rules of purity, affecting alike what we eat, or drink, or touch, or hear, or see. (139, 142; cf. 106)

And Tacitus scornfully describes the Jewish hatred for the rest of the world: "they eat separately, they sleep separately .. " (Histories, 5.5).

If such views were consistently and rigorously applied, no devout Jew could even have considered participating in table-fellowship with a Gentile. But that is by no means the whole story.

BUT CERTAIN GENTILES WERE ACCEPTED INTO TABLE-FELLOWSHIP DESPITE THE ABOVE SAFEGUARDS AND EXCLUSIONS

You must keep in mind the whole purpose of these articles is to again to show how certain "non-Jews" were "accepted" into table-fellowship with the Jews and were included in the "Israel of God". This means those "non-Jew's" who were "unacceptable" somehow were "made acceptable". This is what confronts our study as Gentile believers in the God of Israel at it applies to us today as Christians and followers of "the Christ".

Answer for yourself: As a traditional Christian, how certain are you in light of facts presented that you have made yourself "acceptable" to God in these areas?

What we must look for is which of the above responsibilities mentioned by the Rabbis were also expected of the "non-Jewish believers by the Messianic Church and James in order for them to be included in the Israel of God.

Make so mistake about it some items mentioned above were to be later rescinded by the Jerusalem Church (circumcision) and James BUT NOT ALL and many were yet required of "non-Jewish believers to be incorporated into the Israel of God (the Laws of Noah). James would call many of these "necessary" and say that they seemed "good to the Holy Ghost" and they apply today whether you are aware of them or not! This is the deceptions which must be removed in order for the "non-Jewish believer to make his calling and election certain.

CLASSIFICATIONS OF NON-JEWISH BELIEVERS

For there were two types of Gentiles towards whom even the rabbis could maintain a very positive and welcoming attitude:

- The Proselyte or Full Convert (Gentile converts to Judaism)
- Gentiles who showed themselves sympathetic to the religion of the Jews broken down into two classifications: The Resident Alien & the Godfearer

Answer for yourself: How were these "non-Jewish believers in God, through the ministry of the Jerusalem Church, affected by the limits commanded by God and observed by the devout Jew in his table-fellowship?

What you the Christian must understand that there are some things commanded by God of the Jew that are eternal observances and are not negotiable and some of the "obligations" were mandated and put upon the "non-Jew" before or "acceptance into the Israel of God". Sadly over time some "obligations" were put upon the "non-Jew" which came not from God but from bigoted Jews who disliked "non-Jews" and wanted to keep them at arms-length from any type of political-social intercourse. This is where our study must go if we are to discern the path for unity in the Israel of God. Because God seemed to always use the "non-Jewish" nations to punish the Jewish people for their transgressions you can understand the Jewish dislike for the "non-Jew" and their attempts to lay upon the "non-Jews" stipulations and obligations they knew would be so distasteful to them that few if any would accept them and want to be included in the Israel of God. Besides that Gentiles were generally thought to be "unclean." Now not all Jews felt this way but the trend leaned itself to this and this is exactly what we find happening in first century Israel especially under the influence of R. Shammai and his schools of Pharisees. Understand again that through the Messianic ministry of the followers of "the Christ" not only the "lost sheep of the House of Israel" would be reached but the ""non-Jew"" as well, but again make no mistake about it, these ""non-Jews" reached by the Jesus movement were obligated to certain commandments and responsibilities to be "accepted" as God's children which the Christian Church today does not teach. Again understand it was not only the belief of the Jerusalem Church and their will that these conditions for acceptance be met but God's as well. It would do the Christian Church well to begin to serious study the first century to ascertain such things as this in order to no longer deceive and mislead their people and teach them error. Surely at death we will receive a rude awakening when the Christian finds he has lived his whole life in ignorance concerning "THE" Covenant God gave him let alone the Covenant stipulations it requires. One will quickly find upon one's death that he is ill prepared for the judgment!

We must now look at the three classifications of the "non-Jew" and how each relates to his acceptance into the Israel of God.

CLASSIFICATION OF THE NON-JEW AND HOW EACH RELATES TO HIS ACCEPTANCE INTO THE ISRAEL OF GOD

Understand for the Jerusalem Church there were not Baptists, Methodists, and Catholics. No Gentile religious establishment had been created yet nor replacement "dogmas" invented to replace the faith of the Bible nor the Hebrew Scriptures. That would come later. There were not as yet any Gentile centered denominational ecclesiastical authorities to orchestrate and replace the faith of the Jerusalem Church with those of their own making. This would come later and my dear friend you are mired in a replacement religion never given mankind by God and most likely don't know it! We need to restore "the truth" as it existed then and apply it to our situations today. We begin such a task of repentance by understanding the classifications of "non-Jews" by Judaism and the Hebrew Scriptures.

For your information discussion in this area usually works with a three-fold distinction:

- the proselyte,
- the resident alien and
- the God-fearer (sometimes misleadingly called the 'half-proselyte') [G.F. Moore, Judaism, 1.326-7, 339].

This Gentile scholar knows the truth and his two set of books are in invaluable resource to anyone's library and such facts as I share with you can be found in them if you will only look. In fact his books are classics on Judaism and everything the "non-Jew" needs to understand about the Jewish faith and his Covenants within it. Understand as we proceed that either the followers of "the Christ", by that I mean James and the Jerusalem Church, under the influence of the Holy Spirit, either went out and "did it wrong" or else they "did it right" and it is we "non-Jewish" believers who today, in deviating from their instructions in the matter, "does it wrong" without knowing! It is our hope and prayer at Bet Emet once you see the whole of the facts in this issue will repent and "do it right".

THE PROSELYTE, OR FULL CONVERT

In the beginning the Israelite religion had always inculcated a positive attitude towards the non-Jewish stranger (ger) who lived within the borders of Israel (Exod. 20.10; 22.21; 23.9, 12; Deut. 1.16; 5.14; etc.). However, that was to change as shared above in referencing certain influential Jews like R. Shammai and by the first century C.E. these commands concerning the ger had been referred almost completely to the proselyte: already in the LXX (the Greek translation of the Hebrew Scriptures) the regular translation of "ger" in rabbinic Judaism always means a Gentile won over to Judaism. A positive approach to proselytization is likewise indicated by such stories as those of Ruth finding shelter under Yahweh's wings (Ruth 2.12) and Achior in Judith 14.10, by Isaiah 56.1-8 addressed to 'the foreigners who join themselves to the Lord' and Matthew 23.15, by the accounts in Josephus of the forcible conversion of the Idumeans by Hyrcanus and of the Itureans by Aristobulus (Antiquities, 13.9.1 §§257-8; 13.11.3 §§318-19), and by various other accounts and references in both Jewish and "non-Jewish" sources (e.g. Josephus, Life, 23 §§112-13; Antiquities, 18.3.5 §82; Horace, Satires, 1.4.142-3 - 'we, like the Jews, will compel you to make one of our throng'). If you wish to read into these subjects let me suggest K. Lake, The Beginnings of Christianity, Part I: The Acts of the Apostles (Vol. V; London: Macmillan 1933) 82-84 and B.J. Bamberger, Proselytism in the Talmudic Period (1939; New York: Ktav, 1968) 15-16, 267 ff.

As a "proselyte" to Judaism, a full convert, the Gentile had undertaken to observe the law, including circumcision, and was more or less a full Israelite (see e.g. Exod. 12.49; Philo, Special Laws, 1.51-2; b. Yebamot 47b, Josephus, Antiquities, 20.2.4§39). Despite the stigma of being a proselyte (m. Qiddusin 4.1), and the suspicion harboured by some rabbis that he was always liable to fall back into his old ways (m. Niddah 7.3; b. Baba Mesia 59b), the proselyte (following his mikveh, circumcision, and sacrifice) and once his initiation was complete came within the same limits of table-fellowship that applied to the native born Jew (G.F. Moore, Judaism, 1.341). Of particular interest to us, however, is the fact that there seems to have been some debate among the rabbis at this period over the degree of uncleanness attaching to the Gentile proselyte at his conversion and over the length of time it took before his uncleanness could be washed away by ritual purification (m. Pesahim 8.8; m. Edayyot 5.2). Most now agree that proselyte baptism (mikveh or "being born again") had already become an accepted practice by the middle of the first century C.E. Strange as it may seem to the "born again" Christian "born again" is a Jewish concept that related to the "non-Jew" at his mikveh/baptism whereby he became a convert to Judaism and not to a competing religion such as Christianity. Ironically "born-again" Christians are complete opposite to what the term meant in the first century and have no idea whatsoever what the term meant in the discussion between Jesus and Nicodemus. The term "born again", in its Jewish context, before hijacked by Roman Christianity, meant a "non-jew" becoming a proselyte to Judaism and accepting the 613 Laws upon himself and totally identifying with the Jewish people and their faith. The terrible irony of the whole mess is that Christians call themselves "born-again" and reject the very Laws that when obeyed provided security of acceptance into the Covenant. So sad.

THE RESIDENT ALIEN...THE GER TOSAB...THE LAWS OF NOAH

Although it understood the biblical ger to refer to the proselyte, rabbinic Judaism also recognized a different category of Gentile, the "ger tosab", the resident alien. He too lived within the borders of Israel, but unlike the "full" proselyte who accepted the "whole of the Law" he accepted only some of the commandments of the Torah.

Just how much he had to accept before being recognized as a ger tosab was a subject of dispute among the rabbis. According to R. Meir (c. 150) a sufficient requirement was that the Gentile in question undertook in the presence of three haberim (holy ones) to renounce idolatry (G.F. Moore, Judaism, 1.325).

Answer for yourself: Now, can you see why the idolatry as connected with table-fellowship in Antioch due to the Pauline relaxation of the Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah was so critically important?

In the first century, long before theology was worked out by the Gentiles in the 3rd century that made Jesus "God", this was not a problem for the "non-Jew" was taught that there is only ONE God. Today this is problematic considering the vast majority of Christians today are Trinitarians and believe Jesus is God because the Gospel of John calls him "God". The belief that Jesus is God would disqualify a "non-Jew" from being accepted in the Israel of god and from being a ger tosab because it make one ## an idolator!

Others defined a "ger tosab" as a ger who eats of animals not ritually slaughtered, that is, he took upon himself to observe all the precepts mentioned in the Torah apart from the prohibition of (eating the flesh of) animals not ritually slaughtered' (b. Aboda Zara 64b). This will be one of the problems encountered at Antioch for the "meat" came from the market place where it had been sanctified to idols and not killed in a kosher manner thus not being ritually slaughtered. But remember that the Noahide (as the Ger Tosab) did not have to observe this commandments but "got to" and "needed to" if table fellowship with non-Jews was to be observed. This exemption of the "ger tosab" from the prohibition against animals not ritually slaughtered was determined by Deuteronomy 14.21 - 'You (Jews) shall not eat of anything that dies of itself; you may give it to the alien (ger) who is within your towns, that he may eat it . . .' - a law which could properly be held to exempt the ger tosab from at least some of the restrictions governing the eating of meat, and which thus provided sanction for slackening one of the limits of acceptable table-fellowship.

But the halakah which gained greatest support and decided the matter was that a "ger tosab" was any Gentile who takes upon himself the seven Noachic laws - that is, he holds himself subject to the established courts of justice, and refrains from blasphemy, idolatry, adultery, bloodshed, robbery, and eating flesh cut from living animals (b. Aboda Zara 64b; cf. b. Sanhedrin 56a). I suggest reading Moore, Judaism, 1.339 to learn more about this requirement. It is this Covenant, the Covenant of Noah which was given to the non-Jew to be "acceptable with God".

Understand that this Noachic Covenant was NOT being promoted to the "non-Jew" in the first century C.E. by R. Shammai and his School of Pharisees and others because the Covenant of Noah did not require circumcision of the male. It was the act of circumcision that was hoped by the bigoted rabbis to hold the Gentile at arms length and prevent his assimilation into the Israel of God. Acts 15 is pivotal here as the Messianic Jews would repent of such hatred and bigotry toward the "non-Jew" and return to the Laws of Noah for the non-Jew thus increasing the chances of inclusion of non-Jews into the Israel of God. Circumcision would no longer be enforced upon the "non-Jews" for fellowship or inclusion into the Israel of God. Paul would win this round over not requiring circumcision of the "non-Jew" however other obligations within the Laws of Noah would mandatorily be kept and this is where Paul would depart from the Jerusalem Church in heart and spirit.

Clearly, then, there was some debate among the rabbis in the period before the consensus view was established regarding the definition of a "ger tosab", a debate in effect as to the terms on which social intercourse with Gentiles living locally might be acceptable. This strongly suggests that there were already during the first century period diverse views among the rabbis regarding the limits of table-fellowship as they applied to the resident alien. Here we should note also that, despite such rabbinic characterizations of Gentile uncleanness as were cited above (m. Makkot 2.3; m. Oholot 18.7), the Mishnah contains at least two rulings which presuppose situations at the meal table where a Gentile (not a ger) was present (m. Berakot 7.1; m. Aboda Zara 5.5), and the Babylonian Talmud contains discussion of the conditions on which Jews might accept invitations to and participate in Gentile banquets (b. Aboda Zara 8a-b). We can only conclude that, in all probability, in the Palestine of our period there was also a diversity among devout Jews in their practice of table-fellowship so far as Gentiles were involved - a diversity similar in extent to or indeed continuous with the spectrum of permissible table-fellowship as determined by the various grades of purity among Jews themselves.

THE GODFEARER

A third group of more acceptable Gentiles were those usually called "God-fearers" or "pious Gentiles"- those who showed themselves sympathetic towards Judaism - though whether "God-fearers" was a technical term for such may be doubted. However it needs be understood that these "Godfearers" were attracted to Judaism and signified their interest in the Jewish faith by attaching themselves to Jewish practices in differing degrees. How diverse such attachments were is a question more easily posed than answered. We know from Acts that such Gentiles attended the synagogue or Jewish meetings for worship (Acts 13.16, 26, 50; 16.14; 17.4, 17). Cornelius most nearly approaches in a technical sense as described as "a devout man who feared God, gave alms liberally to the people, and prayed constantly to God" (10.2). We should also recall that pious Gentiles were welcome to worship in the temple (John 12.20; Acts 8.27; also Josephus, Jewish War, 4.4.4 §275), within, of course, well-defined limits (namely, the court of the Gentiles). Let me say something now that few will understand, there was a "Pattern of worship" in the Temple which both Jew and non-Jew participated in. It might surprise you that this "Pattern of Worship" survived well into the 4th century for the "non-Jew" until obliterated by Constantine and the Roman Church-State. Constantine's Easter Letter will help you see the beginning of such replacement religion.

Answer for yourself: If God intended this pattern of worship be observed by Jew and "non-Jew" and it did so up and until the fourth century, could it have been God intended it be followed eternally in spite of Constantine's actions which stopped it? The answer is "yes" especially in the light of the existence today of over 2000 different Christian denominations which are filled with hundreds of conflicting doctrines, dogmas, and differing "Jesuses".

The central question for us, however, is the extent to which such God-fearing Gentiles were expected to keep the law (including the oral traditions) concerning tithing and ritual purity. Josephus' claims in Against Apion, confirm the attractiveness of Judaism for many Gentiles: many Greeks 'have agreed to adopt our laws' (2.10 §123); our laws 'have to an ever increasing extent excited the emulation of the world at large' (2.38 §280; cf. 2.28 §§209-10). Philo speaks in similar and similarly vague terms in Life of Moses 2.17-20. But Josephus becomes more helpfully explicit a little further on in Against Apion - "The masses have long since shown a keen desire to adopt our religious observances; and there is not one city, Greek or barbarian, not a single nation, to which our custom of abstaining from work on the sabbath day has not spread, and where the fasts and the lighting of lamps and many of our prohibitions in the matter of food are not observed" (Against Apion, 2.38 §282).

Answer for yourself: Did you hear that? You see Judaism was a world religion for a reason and we think that is was some small sect of Jews in Palestine. Nothing could be further from the truth and it remained so until the creation of the juggernaut called the Roman antisemitic Christian Church of the 3rd and 4th century when the Jewish Church comprising both Jews and non-Jews, were be persecuted almost out of existence and forced underground.

Equally interesting is the succession of notices which demonstrate how attractive the Jewish way of life was for many Gentiles In Rome itself and how alarmed the authorities were in consequence. Plutarch (in a passage which relates to the middle of the first century BC) speaks of a freedman named Caecilius 'who was accused of Jewish practices' (Life of Cicero, 7.6). Seneca mentions autobiographically that in his youth he began to abstain from animal food, but that he abandoned the practice because 'some foreign rites were at that time being inaugurated, and abstinence from certain kinds of animal food was set down as proof of interest in the strange cult' (Letters, 108.22).

He refers most probably to the persecution of Jewish and Egyptian rites under Tiberius in AD 19 (Tacitus, Annals, 2.85). Perhaps significant here too is the report of Dio Cassius already cited, that in 41 Claudius forbade the Jews in Rome to hold meetings because they had increased so greatly in number (60.6.6). Better known is the persecution by Domitian of "those who followed the Jewish way of life without formally professing Judaism" (Suetonius, Domitian, 12.2); Dio Cassius, also writing of the late first century AD, speaks of "many who were drifting into Jewish ways" being condemned for atheism (67.14.1-3). And Juvenal confirms the attractiveness which Judaism obviously exercised for many at this period when he attacks contemporaries who "ream and practice and revere the Jewish law" and who get themselves circumcised, under the influence of a Sabbath-reverencing, pork-abstaining father (Satires, 14.96-106). As evidence of Judaism's continuing influence at the other end of the second century AD we may simply note Tertullian's report that many Gentiles in his day observed Jewish feasts and ceremonies and Jewish practice in prayers (Ad Nariones, 1.13). It would not be unjust to deduce from all this that many God-fearers attracted by the Jewish law quite naturally would have observed the law in the way native born Jews did - that is, in the way that the developed customs and developing tradition dictated.

Still more interesting for us, not least because the incident described took place within a few years of the Antioch incident, is the well-known story of the conversion of Izates, king of Adiabene, recounted by Josephus (Antiquities, 20.2.4 §§38-48). Izates was initially told that he need not be circumcised - "he could worship God, even without circumcision, if he had fully decided to emulate the hereditary customs of the Jews" (Antiquities, 20.2.4 §41). Since the sticking point was circumcision, we may take it that Izates was prepared to go the whole way apart from that, and "zeal for hereditary customs" suggests that his devotion would have embraced much at least of the oral law as well as the written Torah (cf. 20.2.3,4 §§34, 38). This may well be confirmed by the fact that when Eleazar came upon the scene from Galilee, described by Josephus as a Jew "who had a reputation for being extremely strict concerning the hereditary customs", the only further step he required of Izates was circumcision (Antiquities, 20.2.4 §§43-5).

Most interesting of all, however, is Josephus' description of the Jewish politeuma in Antioch in the period prior to the Jewish revolt: "they grew in numbers . . . and were constantly attracting to their religious ceremonies multitudes of the Greeks, and these they had in some measure incorporated with themselves" (Jewish War, 7.3.3 §45).

Whatever degree of devotion to the Torah, written and unwritten, on the part of the God-fearing Greeks is implied by this statement, it must denote a considerable measure of acceptance by the Antiochene Jews of these Greeks, and so also a considerable measure of social intercourse between circumcised Jew and uncircumcised Gentile.

We may conclude from all this that there was a broad range of attachments to Judaism and Jewish ways wherever Diaspora settlements had made any impact on the surrounding community - from occasional visits to the synagogue, to total commitment apart from circumcision, with such matters as the sabbath and dietary laws being observed in varying degrees in between. There would be a broad range of social intercourse between faithful Jew and God-fearing Gentile, with strict Jews avoiding table-fellowship as far as possible, and those less scrupulous in matters of tithing and purity willingly extending and accepting invitations to meals where such Gentiles would be present.

We can also see that the attitude and practice of openness to the Gentile would not have been static. It would depend upon the influence of particular rabbis and of particular rulings in matters of dispute. This is where the authority of the Jerusalem Church comes into the mix. We may compare, for example, the famous legend contrasting the response of Shammai and that of Hillel to the Gentile who asked both to teach him the whole Torah while he stood on one foot (b. Sabbat 31a). It would depend on the mood of the surrounding populace and local authorities at the time - particularly in Rome, Alexandria and Antioch, where the Jews were strong in numbers and undue influence on their part could be construed as a threat to the state. And at the period which concerns us it would depend not least on the Jews' sense of the mounting threat to their religion and nation which we sketched out earlier and which must have expressed itself in an increasingly hostile attitude to the Gentiles. This last is illustrated by the sequence of events described in Acts 21, which depicts Jerusalem Jews in the late 50s giving ready credence to the rumor that Paul had taken a Gentile into the temple (Acts 21.27-36). Another instance is the report of Josephus that at the beginning of the revolt in 66 Eleazar "persuaded those who officiated in the temple services to accept no gift or sacrifice from a foreigner" (Jewish War 2.17.2 §409). Here too we may mention again the episode of Izates' conversion, which among other things shows that the attitude of the Palestinian Jew was stricter than that of the Diaspora Jew on the question of how far a Gentile had to go to be acceptable (Josephus, Antiquities, 20.2.4 §§38-48), and which thus provides an interesting parallel to the Antioch incident.

Before moving on, it is worth noting once more, if it is not already clear, that the issues in all this would have been issues for the earliest Christians too, particularly as the circle of Jerusalem's discipleship began to embrace more and more Gentiles. The extent to which the spectrum of attitude and practice mirrored that within the rest of Judaism is indicated by Paul's advice to the believers in Corinth (including Jews) at one end (1 Cor. 8-10), and at the other by the reaction of the Judean brothers to Peter's eating with a Gentile, even though he was a pious God-fearer and presumably already observed the dietary laws (Acts 11.2-3). At the latter end of the same spectrum we should note also the untypical saying of "the Christ" preserved for us not surprisingly only by Matthew - "if he (the brother at fault) refuses to listen even to the church, let him be to you as a Gentile and a tax-collector" (Matt. 18.17). The question for us, of course, is where the Antioch incident, not to mention Acts 15.20, 29, fits into this spectrum. It is to this question that we can now at last turn.

PAUL'S REBUKE OF PETER ...HAS THE NEW TESTAMENT MISREPRESENTED IT & THE INCIDENT AT ANTIOCH? #12

THE ISSUE AT ANTIOCH...ONE FINAL LOOK

Against the background sketched out in the preceding articles, the exegetical alternatives in Galatians 2.11-18 become clearer.

The leading questions can be posed thus and by now it is hoped the reader can provide his own accurate answers to this closing and overview of the Antioch Incident.

- Answer for yourself: What did the table-fellowship at Antioch involve prior to the coming of the men from James?
- Answer for yourself: And what would have been required of Gentile believers if the table-fellowship was to be resumed after the initial disruption caused by the withdrawal of Peter and the others?
- Answer for yourself: To put it another way, what was it that the men from James objected to or found fault with in the table-fellowship at Antioch?
- Answer for yourself: And how could that defect be remedied, if at all?
- Answer for yourself: What in your practice of your faith would the Ambassadors of the Jerusalem Church find objectionable or find fault with and what bearing does this hold concerning your acceptance by God and in the Israel of God?

By now you should be able to answer many of these questions.

Understand again that there is a big difference being accepted in the Church as it existed in Jerusalem in the First Century C.E. and a Baptist, Catholic, or Methodist Church today. Think on these things.

ENTER PAUL AND HIS ANTI-JERUSALEM CHURCH THEOLOGY

The exegetical alternatives focus particularly on the key phrases of Paul's challenge, "If you, a Jew live like a Gentile and not like a Jew, how can you compel the Gentiles to judaize?" We are Jews by birth and not Gentile sinners ...' (Gal. 2. 14-15).

The problem is that Jews are not to live "like a Gentile" and a "Gentile is to live like a Jew" in that the "non-Jew" is to accept the same basic Covenant requirements (66 Laws) which we find given in the Laws of Noah and later reiterated in the Covenant of Moses.

Answer for yourself: "To live like a Gentile" must exclude any detailed observance of the law; but need it exclude a more limited observance, such as many Gentiles attracted by Judaism obviously maintained? In the previous article you saw for yourself the attractiveness of Judaism to the non-Jewish world and the non-Jewish believers. Gentile Christianity today surely will discount this but that is the fact of the earliest centuries before the emergence of the Roman Empire and its church.

In particular, since the Noahide Laws were thought by many Jews to apply to all mankind, we cannot exclude the possibility that the antithesis here is the antithesis between what we may call a Noahide life-style and a Sinaitic life-style, the one being characteristic of God-fearing Gentiles, the other of loyal Jews. At least this is the attitude of S. Schechter in his Aspects of Rabbinic Theology (1909; New York: Schocken, 1961) 206-207 as well as men like E.P. Sanders in his Paul, 210-211. Based upon my research I believe these men have hit the nail on the head in laying before their readers the very heart of the matter at hand.

The one instance from our other sources which might shed some light comes from Eusebius, where he describes Symmachus as an Ebionite, that is, as one who strongly maintained 'that the law ought to be kept in a more strictly Jewish fashion' (Ecclesiastical History, 6.17). What 'a more strictly Jewish fashion' means is presumably indicated by Eusebius' earlier description of the Ebionites as those who "insisted on the complete observation of the law", and who "were zealous to insist on the literal observance of the law" (Ecclesiastical History, 3.27.2, 3). This simply serves to confirm that "to live in a Jewish fashion" was a relative term and did not imply a pattern of behavior precisely defined or widely agreed among Jews.

Answer for yourself: What was it that Paul accused Peter of requiring from the Gentile believers?

In the LXX of Esther we read that "many of the Gentiles were circumcised and judaized for fear of the Jews" (8.17 LXX). So also Theodotus: Jacob would not give Dinah to the son of Hamor "until all the inhabitants of Shechem were circumcised and judaized" (Eusebius, Praep. Evang. 9.22.5). In Josephus we read a similar characterization of one Metilius, the commander of the Roman garrison in Jerusalem, who "saved his life by entreaties and promises to judaize and even to be circumcised" (Jewish War, 2.17.10 §454). In each instance "judaizing" is obviously not the same as being circumcised: it denotes rather the range of possible degrees of assimilation to Jewish customs (Jewish customs are only expressions of Biblical Commandments observed), with circumcision as the end-point of judaizing; but evidently one could "judaize" without going the whole way (circumcision). It must therefore describe that range of conduct covered by the term God-fearer (or within Palestine also the term "resident alien") and signify an embracing of much that characterized the Jewish way of life, enough at any rate for the judaizing individual to be acceptable to devout Jews.

Answer for yourself: You have to ask yourself if you as a Christian embrace enough of the Jewish way of life, as understood as a life-style of Biblical observed commandments, to be acceptable to devout Jews and be included in the Israel of God? If not, after all this evidence presented I would think I would seriously reevaluate my relationship with God and come to terms about what Covenant I have with God and familiarize myself with the various Covenant stipulations and requirements. This is the very heart of the issue for Bet Emet Ministries.

Still more interesting is the passage a little later in The Jewish War, not least because it describes the situation in Syria in the mid-60s - "The whole of Syria was a scene of frightful disorder; every city was divided into two camps, and the safety of one party lay in their anticipating the other ... For, though believing that they had rid themselves of the Jews, still each city had its Judaizers, who aroused suspicion; and while they shrank from killing offhand this equivocal element in their midst, they feared these neutrals much as pronounced aliens. (Jewish War, 2.18.2 §§462-3)

Here we have confirmation that a considerable number of Gentiles in Syrian cities (including of course Antioch) were attracted sufficiently to Judaism as to have identified or associated themselves in some marked degree with it. Moreover, these Gentiles are further described as "those who had become mixed up with the Jews", and which elsewhere in such a context denotes social intercourse including guest friendship, living with, and intermarriage. This strongly suggests a degree of affiliation to Judaism which made possible a high level of social intercourse between Jew and Gentile, including not least unrestricted table-fellowship. Moreover, when taken together with Josephus' testimony in Jewish War, 7.3.3 §45, it clearly implies that the Jewish community at Antioch in the 50s and early 60s had attracted large numbers of Gentiles and that many of these Gentiles were sufficiently ready to conform to Jewish practices as to make possible regular social intercourse including at least guest friendship and table-fellowship. But understand those which did not share such sentiments were problematic for the men from James and would literally cause the forthcoming Acts 15 Council to settle the problems.

THE SINNER

A sinner is determined as such precisely by his relation to the law. 'Sinner' was becoming more and more a technical term for someone who either broke the law or did not know the law - the two criticisms of course often amounting to the same thing.

21 Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. 22 Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? 23 And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity.

Let us close this series of articles by looking at this very important word once again. If we look up the word for "iniquity" in the Greek along with its root word you will be amazed:

The Strong's # for iniquity is #458 anomia:

- 1) the condition of without law
  - a) because ignorant of it
  - b) because of violating it
- 2) contempt and violation of law, iniquity, wickedness

I have spent considerable time trying to reach you with the truths long overlooked by Gentile Christianity. Yeshua definitely said that he will not "know" certain people (the term in Greek means sexual intercourse and applies to the Marriage Supper where Groom Messiah and Bride (believers) become one flesh). Besides this he said that the reason that these will be rejected as "foolish virgins" is that they practice "iniquity". I know you think that such a condition cannot refer to you let alone the typical Christian. But that is exactly to whom it refers; especially the Gentile Christian! Let me show you.

To those whom "the Christ" tells to depart and to whom will not be allowed to become one flesh with God's Messiah are those who, by definition, are "without the law". In Antioch Paul had been leading a Church which had laid aside their personal requirements in many areas of the "Law". Many of Paul's followers were "ignorant" of such Laws in the Covenant of Noah because they had not been taught by their spiritual leaders. But they were to learn from their teachers and if Paul was not teaching them right then their life-styles before God would be offensive and they would never know this because their teachings were in error and they never knew it.

Answer for yourself: So what else is new today?

Mainline Gentile Christianity is totally ignorant for the most part of the Laws of Noah and the Covenant of Noah. Being ignorant of these Laws assures you that most likely you are not observing and obeying many of them; thus you are violating them and don't even know you are. I assure you that you will find out when you die. But even more so being a traditional Pauline Christian you have grown up in church with a "contempt" for the Law as this forged "Romanized Pauline theology" had been taught to you more than the faith of the mother church, the Jerusalem congregation that birthed all later churches in Asia, Minor. I have taken great pains to show you that you, like those in Antioch who were deceived by men of God, are likewise deceived today by the Bibles we carry and the doctrines we hear Sunday after Sunday. If the men from James came to your church then you would likewise receive a stern rebuke for Gentile Christianity violates many of these 66 Laws of Noah and beginning at the top we can start with idolatry! This would have the men from James screaming and this cry could be heard all the way back in Jerusalem today. We have bought into to the lie of Rome and their corrupted religious New Testaments with their anti-Law biases. You had been deceived by the Romanized Paul and stand with the congregation in Antioch who were in need of a stern rebuke for not "being in the faith". As if that was not enough such a condition of ignorance of the Laws of Noah by the Christian today is called "wickedness" and you surely understand this since these same Laws were once considered "necessary" and were said to have "seemed good to the Holy Spirit". They still are!

Answer for yourself: I wonder what the Holy Spirit thinks about Paul's contradictions of the Laws of Noah as well as mainline Christianity's denouncement that we are no longer under these Law but under grace?

Now more facts are needed. We saw the Greek word above for "iniquity" now let us look at the explosive root word and its meaning that goes to the very heart of the issue. The root word for "iniquity" in the Greek is Strong's # 459 anomos (an'-om-os); from 1 (as a negative particle) and 3551; lawless, i.e. (negatively) not subject to (the Jewish) law; (by implication, a Gentile), or (positively) wicked: KJV-- without law, lawless, transgressor, unlawful, wicked.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that in the word used by "the Christ" is the implication was directed explicitly toward Gentiles especially; Gentiles who are ignorant and disobedient and violate and have contempt for Law; in this instance the Laws of Noah, which are the laws defining their own Covenant no less and which are also reiterated in the Laws of Moses?

Answer for yourself: Dear one have you not seen that this was a major problem for the Jerusalem Church and a serious problem with Paul at Antioch and that Paul and "his gospel" had literally infected the hearts and minds of good "non-Jews"; both back then and yet today who sadly respond by priding themselves not "being under the Law but under grace"?

SINNERS (GENTILES) ...ARE LAWLESS...TORAHLESS

Thus already in the LXX of the Psalms the link between sinner" and "lawlessness" is well established (Ps. 27.3; 54.3; 91.7; 100.8; 124.3; 128.3 - LXX); the sinner is defined as one who forsakes the law, who does not seek God's statutes (Ps. 118.53, 155 - LXX). And in 1 Maccabees "sinners" and "lawless men" are parallel terms (1 Macc. 1.34; 2.44).

More striking is the way in which "sinner" becomes synonymous with "Gentile" - already in Psalm 9.17, and again in 1 Maccabees 2.48; also Psalms of Solomon 1.1; 2.1-2 (cf. Tob. 13.8; Jub. 23.23-4; 4 Ezra 4.23). It was evidently a well -established usage by the time of the first Christians: "sinners" and "Gentiles" stand as variant versions of the same Q saying (Luke 6.33- "even sinners do the same"; Matt. 5.47 - "even Gentiles do the same"); and the same equivalence is probably implied in the saying of Yeshua, "the Son of Man is betrayed into the hands of sinners" (Mark 14.41//Matt.26.45; Luke 24.7), as the parallel with Mark 10.33 also suggests. Gentiles are "sinners" by reason of the fact that they do not have the law and are disqualified by the law from covenant righteousness (cf. Clementine Homilies 11.16).

Having taken all that went before into consideration now let us hear clearly the implications from the ministry of Yeshua and its meaning for today's Christian

Still more striking for us is the evidence of how the word was used in relation to Jesus' ministry, as a description of those within Israel whose way of life should have debarred them from the table -fellowship of the devout Jew. It applied not just to those who had abused the written Torah (Luke 7.37, 39 - a prostitute; cf. Matt 21.32), but to tax collectors (Luke 19.7; cf. Matt. 5.46 with Luke 6.32), and it would seem also to other trades which put the practitioner beyond the pale of what was deemed acceptable (Mark 2.15-17; Matt. 11.19; Luke 7.34; Luke 15.1-2).

Here we are evidently once again back in an area where the limits of acceptability were being determined by the multiplying halakoth of the Pharisaic rabbis. That is to say, not just disobedience to the Torah but disregard for the rabbinic rulings on what obedience to the Torah entailed, was what showed a person to be a sinner. This has become more explicit in the Mishnah: a sinner (rasha) is one who treats halakic rulings lightly (m. Edayyot 5.6; m. Abot 4.7; 5.14). These Rabbis set today in Moses' seat!

Given that so much of the Pharisaic teaching of our period was concerned with the limits of acceptable table fellowship, and given that the context of Galatians 2.15 is a dispute precisely about whether and under what circumstances a devout Jew could have table-fellowship with Gentiles, the presumption becomes compellingly strong that "sinners" in verse 15 belongs to the same range of usage.

That is, "sinners" was a word used of the Gentile believers by the men from James to express their disagreement or dismay at the table-fellowship being practiced by Peter and the other Jewish believers.

And it had the connotation of "unclean" (=Gentile=sinner), one who by his very race was legally disqualified from participating in the table-fellowship of a faithful Jew:

Answer for yourself: How could Peter, a true-born Jew, have table--fellowship with a Gentile sinner?

THE GOSPEL OF PAUL.....VS....THE GOSPEL OF JESUS...THE FINAL WORD!

The men from James came with the authority of the Jerusalem Church and found fault at table-fellowship with the "non-Jews" and Peter, Barnabas, and Paul because "necessary" Commandments were being violated under the authority of Paul at Antioch.

In reality the Acts 15 Council was called to do only two things:

- The Messianic Jews were to repent of forcing all 'non-Jews' to be circumcised before coming to God
- They Messianic Church of Jerusalem, and James, corrected the teachings of Paul as he was teaching his own Gospel which led both Jews and "non-Jews" to break their Covenant and its Covenant stipulations.

Rom 2:16 16 In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ according to my gospel. (KJV)

Rom 16:25 25 Now to him that is of power to establish you according to my gospel...

Answer for yourself: Forgive me but was not Paul supposed to be teaching the Gospel of "the Christ"?

Those who follow Pauline Christianity instead of the faith of Jesus (Biblical Judaism for the non-converted "gentiles") are breaking many of their Covenant responsibilities and stipulations today in the Christian Church. We must no longer follow Pauline Christianity over the "faith of Yeshua". Dear one, the Gospel of Paul is not the Gospel of Jesus. They clash and conflict and contradict each other very often when you read closely. And table-fellowship is only where it starts as it can be shown that Paul's Gospel contradicts the teachings of Jesus and the religious belief system of the Jerusalem Church in numerous places; even in serious matters like atonement and redemption no less! You may have never noticed this in reading the New Testament, but your failure to discern this does not mean it does not exist! Truly, these two "Gospels" oppose each other in basic religious beliefs. It is to these very issues and the need of repentance in these areas that we must now consider if we expect to be held in good standing within the "true" Church of God.

Shalom and blessings.

THE ACTS 15 COUNCIL AND ITS IMPORTANCE FOR THE CHRISTIAN "GODFEARER"

Unknown to most Christians is the crucial and critical importance of Acts 15 in their Bibles. In it, hidden behind 2,000 years of history and lost interpretation of a major "theological event" between the Jewish people and the "non-Jews" of the world is the very "Pattern" given by God in the beginning of time for the unification of all mankind in the true worship of the Divine. This event which is so often passed over in reading of the New Testament is the turning point in relations between the Jewish people and the "non-Jews" concerning not only how they were to "fellowship" together without required conversion of the "non-Jew" but the promotion of the Divine Pattern of worship given by God in the beginning of time. Over time as your studies into these areas increase on this website and others by Bet Emet Ministries this fact will become glaringly apparent to you the reader. Understand for now that this unify of all mankind, both Jew and "non-Jew" as the one people of God makes significant strides in Acts 15 when James and other Jews in Israel come to realize that Israel must drop the "man-made" requirement for Gentiles (non-Jews, i.e. pagan) to be circumcised before they can be recognized as part of the Israel of God.

Let us begin by noting that Luke is the author of the Book of Acts, or at least that is the accepted church tradition while others scholars today question this and ascribe the writing of the this New Testament book to the second century. Being as that may we need to look at the writer's account of the discussion regarding the relation of the Gentiles to the Law of Moses which in reality forms the centre of Acts both structurally and theologically. This is necessitated by not only Paul's preaching to the non-Jews in Antioch as well as the Antioch problem that developed over table fellowship between the Jews and "non-Jews" and the degree of observance expected of the non-Jew to Jewish Laws \(the Covenant of Moses\).

Answer for yourself: Are you familiar with this very big, big problem that surfaced with Paul in Antioch and which threatened the whole of Judaism as it existed historically in the first century? Are you aware that this Antioch Problem will split Judaism right down the middle? Are you aware that it will open the door to "non-Jews" to become the people of God without "circumcision" being imposed as well as "forced conversion" of "non-Jews" in the first century among the followers of the Jewish Christ? Are you aware that this polarizes even more the Schools of Hillel and Shammai? Well if you are not then stop right here and read the articles before you continue in order to understand the dynamics of what is occurring with James and the Jerusalem Council regarding Paul and his ministry among the "non-Jews". That being done then we can continue.

Within this matter of contention in Antioch between the men from James who came down from Jerusalem and the Pauline emphasis we see the degree of obligation then existing in the first century required of the "non-Jews" which they had to obey concerning various "kosher laws" if they were ever to eat together and fellowship together with other Jews. The Jews, knowing already that the "non-Jews" have their own unique Covenant with God, the Covenant of Noah that brings them Eternal Life, are here concerned with the acceptance of the "non-Jew" with other Jews without prior conversion which had been the current way of dealing with the "non-Jew" up to that point. The School of Shammai required full conversion of the "non-Jew" before any acceptance of the "non-Jew" by Israel. The School of Hillel said otherwise. Now something new was happening through the preaching of Paul in Asia, Minor, where the "non-Jew" was being accepted by the Jews without prior conversion. Having said that let us also reflect that in the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah there is also obligations given the "non-Jew" regarding eating of meat and this comes to a head in Antioch when the men from James arrived and discerned the compromises being made both by Jews as well as the "non-Jews" in regards to these important points of Law. Violations of both the Laws of Moses by the Jews and the Laws of Noah by the "non-Jews" were occurring in these Pauline churches and Paul allowed this to occur in the name of "expediency" to "win the Souls" of the "non-Jews" and make both "peoples" one. This became a critical issue for the Jerusalem Church as we shall see.

Gal 2:12 12 For before that certain came from James (Jews), he (Peter) did eat with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew and separated himself, fearing them which were of the circumcision (Jews from James). (KJV)

Basically everyone got into trouble for these compromises and something had to be done and the Jerusalem Church Council of Acts 15 was soon to follow to decide this matter.

Once the Pauline mission had begun to evangelize Gentiles who had not previously been circumcised and converted to Judaism, the problems of the conditions of their membership and inclusion into the Israel of God began to arise. It had evidently been the policy of the church at Antioch and its missionaries that such Gentiles should not be required to keep "ALL" the Jewish law which up to that time was tantamount to the "non-Jew" making full-conversion to Judaism. This was the policy taught by the School of Shammai and required of all "non-Jews" in order to be accepted in Israel. This point is passed over in silence in chapters 11-14 but is clear from 15:1.

Acts 15:1 1 And certain men which came down from Judaea taught the brethren, and said, Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved. (KJV)

Notice if you will "saved" meant contextually not only "eternally" but included "acceptance into the Israel of God" as well as fellowship with the Jewish people.

But even though this, required conversion of the "non-Jews", was the "status quo" in Israel at that time this policy was unacceptable to some Jewish believers for two reasons:

- First, they found it hard to believe that Gentiles could be "saved" and become members of the Israel of God, become like them "the people of God" without accepting the obligations of the Jewish law...in other words being accepted socially and religiously without first making conversion and being "born again" in the Jewish manner.
- Secondly, there was also the question of how Jewish believers, who continued to live by the Jewish law, could have fellowship at table with Gentiles who did not observe the law and were therefore ritually unclean...this problem was particularly acute when the church met to 'break bread'. This is the heart of the Antioch Problem!

But notice something if you will. Notice the audience to whom Paul spoke. We find in this audience the presence of "God-fearers" (13:16b, 26) who were not only present but were already in some ways connected to Judaism,

Acts 13:16 16 Then Paul stood up, and beckoning with his hand said, Men of Israel, and ye that fear God, give audience. (KJV)

We find that in this audience in Jerusalem at the Council the presence of those who "fear God" which is the term used for "non-Jews" who worship the God of Israel and abide by the Laws of the Covenant given by God to the "non-Jews". We have a mixed audience! These Godfearers had, at least in religious ways, a level of commitment to the Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah well beyond the average Gentile (Gentiles who practiced Isa. 56). The narrative in Acts 15 leaves it ambiguous as to whether these Gentiles were "accepted" as Gentiles as just "Godfearers" or whether they had to become previously proselytes to Judaism \(made full conversion\), or had to some degree submitted to Jewish religious practices (Acts 15:1) in order to be "saved".

Answer for yourself: That brings up a big question. What, is the extent of the free offer of the gospel to Gentiles in Acts 13?

Acts 13:47-48 47 For so hath the Lord commanded us, saying, I have set thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou shouldest be for salvation unto the ends of the earth. 48 And when the Gentiles heard this, they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Were these "ordained to eternal life" to remain as Gentiles or do they still need, and were expected by Paul and others to in some way adhere to Judaism (i.e., kosher laws, circumcision, immersion, etc.)?

This issue, of course, becomes the reason for the Jerusalem council in Acts 15 and is resolved there by the Jewish leaders connected with the Messianic Movement within the Judaism of its day.

We now turn specifically to the problem as outlined in Acts 15. In Acts 15:5 certain Christian Pharisees (those who supported the Judaizing wing of the church) argued that it was necessary for Gentiles to be circumcised and "ordered to obey" the law of Moses (fully) in order to be saved. This means that they accepted the "non-Jews" only if they became "full converts" and "proselytes". Luke says in 15:2 that this caused "no little dispute between Paul and Barnabas and the Judaizers". Israel was divided on this issue after so many "non-Jews" were turning to God from idols.

Answer for yourself: Why was this division in the first place? Simply because there were Jews, like James and others, who knew that circumcision was never required by God of the "non-Jew" in the Covenant of Noah and to require that of these "non-Jews" turning to God simply was not right and many refused to undergo such a dangerous procedure when adults. Thus many men and their whole families turned away from God and His salvation because of this required circumcision enforced by the School of Shammai and possibly died away from God and this is not the fruit that God expected of His "Royal Nation and Holy Priesthood" (Israel).

The term ("sharp dispute") in 15:2, the stronger of the two words Luke uses to describe the debate, occurs nine times in the New Testament, seven of which are in Luke-Acts (Luke 23:19, 25; Acts 15:2; 19:40; 23:7, 10; 24:5). In each case in Luke-Acts the term carries not the meaning of "existence" or "continuance" but the force of either "riot," "discord," or "strife." One only needs to see how John Mark left Paul and Barnabas because of his uneasiness with a mission to the Gentiles. With that in mind, it may well be that his return to Jerusalem (13:13) sparked the issue with the Jewish "Christians" there, with the result that they sent men to Antioch to command the Gentiles to be circumcised and obey the law of Moses (supposedly these are the so called "men from James" which he will later deny ever sending). This required circumcision and full conversion had been standard practice for "non-Jews" to be accepted by the Jews up to now. The point is that the inclusion of the Gentiles into the Israel of God without prior "full conversion (circumcision, kosher, etc.) severely threatened to divide Judaism along ethnic lines and put an end to the Jewish mission in the Diaspora (i.e., the witness to Jews living outside Palestine around the Mediterranean in cities such as Alexandria, Antioch, and Rome...this remember is the purpose of the Priesthood of Israel). Concerning the issue of Jew/Gentile relations in the church and Luke's portrayal of the Jerusalem council, Witherington remarks:

Here the matter must be resolved as to what constitutes the people of God, and how the major ethnic division in the church (Jew/Gentile) shall be dealt with so that both groups may be included in God's people on equal footing, fellowship may continue, and the church remain one. Luke is eager to demonstrate that ethnic divisions could be and were overcome, despite the objection of very *conservative Pharisees (adherents of the School of Shammai and not the School of Hillel)

The issue was not easily resolved, however, for Luke says that it was only after “much debate” that any defining progress was made (cf. 15:7ff.). The fact that Peter stood up and brought to their remembrance what had happened in his case and how God had “chosen” the Gentiles to hear the gospel through his mouth and believe (cf. also Acts 13:48) indicates that the mission to the Gentiles was God’s decision and that Peter was involved in it. Although most Christians think Paul was the instigator of the mission to the Gentiles and “non-Jews” that is not the case. Thus the gospel to the Gentiles had occurred about ten years earlier, with the then leader (Peter) of the Jerusalem church when sent to the house of Cornelius in Acts 10. This is where Peter took the “keys to the kingdom” to the “non-Jew” Cornelius first. The outreach to the “non-Jews” without required circumcision began within Israel with Peter and Cornelius. Peter’s big revelation was the fatal blow to the School of Shammai and his bigotry toward the “non-Jews”:

Acts 10:34-35 34 Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: 35 But in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. (KJV)

Those at the council knew that to be true, though given the point of the debate, they may not have recognized the precedent God had set in doing it. Thus Paul’s “law-free” approach (the “non-Jews” were freed from 613 laws that involved full conversion but were not freed from the 66 laws in their Covenant of Noah) could not be scorned as a movement apart from God’s desire and against Moses (remember the Laws of Noah are in the Laws of Moses). Peter’s conclusion is that the God who knows the hearts of all men gave the Spirit to the Gentiles in the same way as he had done with the Jews (see the Cornelius event in Acts 10... his ears and understanding of Peter speaking Hebrew was given to him as we find in Acts 2 at Pentecost when the ears and understanding of Peter speaking Hebrew was made know to these 70 different converts from all over the world who did not know Hebrew..we have here the reverse of the Babel curse). Thus, the conclusion we see in Acts 15:11 is made clear to Peter and blown away he says that Jews are saved by the grace of God in the same way as Gentiles. The repeated mention of the identical manner of reception of the Spirit by Cornelius, a “non-Jew” who is not converted as were the “non-Jews” who were converts in Acts 2 indicates Luke’s focus on unity among the Jews and Gentiles in the church. This is crucial that you understand this! This event with Cornelius will turn the School of Shammai and Judaism upside down. In fact, Peter says that God “made no distinction between them and us, cleansing their hearts by faith” as well (15:8-9). To turn around, says Peter, and force Gentiles to keep the Law (all the Law including forced circumcision) is to put God to the test (v. 10).

After Peter stopped speaking, Paul and Barnabas, in v. 12, told all that God had done among the Gentiles through them (opened their understanding to Hebrew being spoken by Peter as seen in Cornelius, a “non-Jew”, as was done 17 years earlier to the “non-Jewish” converts (considered Jews now) from all over the world”. This miraculous event with Cornelius supported Peter’s testimony. But when they finished speaking James did not refer to their stories, but to that which Peter had done. He uses the word “first” to indicate that what God had begun through Peter, he was now carrying on through Paul and Barnabas (15:14). This indicates the continuity and unity between the Petrine offer of the gospel to Gentiles and Paul’s mission to the Gentiles. Both were initiated by God. This is clearly the case in the unfolding of the narrative of Acts. Peter was given a vision which led to the meeting with Cornelius where the same miracle occurred in Peter’s presence again as had happened at Pentecost 17 years earlier when the curse of Babel was reversed and Cornelius, by the Spirit of God, understood Peter speaking Hebrew although Cornelius had no knowledge of Hebrew prior to that time. The texts calls this “salvation” (10:9-16).

Answer for yourself: But was not Cornelius already a “Godfearer”? Yes. Had not Cornelius already believed in the God of Israel and prayed and even given alms? Yes. Then was not Cornelius already "saved" in the traditional Christian sense? Yes. Then does this word "salvation" not mean "Heaven" or "Hell" but rather refers to the non-covert "no-Jew" being included along side the Jew in the Israel of God? It sure does. We have to be careful reading the words "salvation, save, saved, etc.) in the texts because out of 17 words for "save, saved, salvation, saving, etc. in the Bible only one word out of 17 words refers to things occurring after we die and it is used only 3 times in the whole Bible. One has to be a keen reader in understanding that Cornelius was already a believer in God since his prayers and alms had previously come up to God. Thus this salvation spoken of in the texts refers not to believing the theology about some Jesus but being included alongside the Jews in the Israel of God.

Acts 10:2 2 (Cornelius) A devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God always. (KJV)

Strong's Concordance tell us that the root word for "devout" in the Greek is:

4576 sebomai (seb'-om-ahee); middle voice of an apparently primary verb; to revere, i.e. adore: KJV--devout, religious, worship. So by definition Cornelius was ALREADY a worshipper of God and can be considered a Godfearer and saved "eternally". That being the case he was already "saved" as such but here the event recorded in Acts 10 is a major teaching tool by God to alert Peter that there is no difference with God between the "non-Jew" and the Jew regardless if Judaism and the School of Shammai made it so or not. Peter, who brought interpreters with him since Cornelius would not have understood Hebrew/Aramaic, began preaching and the Spirit fell upon Cornelius and his understanding of Hebrew was miraculously given him and he understood what Peter was saying. This is exactly what happened when Peter got up to preach at Pentecost to pilgrims from 70 different nations and dialects from all over the world which had traveled to Jerusalem to observe the Festival of Pentecost and the Spirit again opened their minds and hearts and they were given the spirit of understanding of Hebrew. This is the miracle given only to Jews (converts are considered full Jews) in Acts 2 which is repeated before Peter in Acts 10 to not a convert; rather only to a Gentile "non-Jew" who was not converted but only adhered to faith in God and the few Laws given him in the Covenant of Noah (66 to be exact).

Answer for yourself: But is Acts 10 and Acts 2 not about "speaking in tongues" as we hear in our Christian Pentecostal and Chiasmatic churches? Sorry, Acts 2 is not about blabbering tongues the way the Pentecostal and Charismatic churches teach so we need to grow up and interpret these texts correctly and stop acting improperly since being improperly instructed people before the Presence of God in our worship and allowing ourselves to be led astray by emotional hucksters who call themselves preachers of the Word of God. We need to repent of such sins now for unrestrained emotionalism is a poor substitute for worship in Truth and in Spirit. Acts 2 is not what Paul later speaks of when mentioning glossolalia. In the first Centuries C.E., glossolalia meant the ability of a person to communicate in a foreign language that they had never learned. e.g. a person raised speaking Greek and unable to speak any other language would suddenly be conversing in Aramaic or Hebrew. This the context of Acts 2 and Acts 10. Sadly, at the present time, it refers to a person who suddenly, in a state of religious ecstasy, starts speaking sounds that sound like language but do not represent any known tongue. This is not the same and travesty when contrasted with the true events which reveal the grace and power of God. Anybody can utter unintelligible sounds when prompted by pastors or others but this again is now what occurred in Acts 2 and Acts 10. God, please give us better teachers to the Body of Christ.

We see rather that Peter quickly comes to understand as recorded in Acts 10:34-35:

Acts 10:34-35 34 Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: 35 But in every nation he that feareth him (in nations outside Israel all "non-Jews" who are not converts), and worketh righteousness (obey the Laws of God which define which works are accepted and not accepted by God), is accepted with him. (KJV)

What a verse. What a verse. The whole of Salvation rapped up in one verse. The testimony of 10,000 years of Egyptian religion passed on to their "Jewish children" in one verse (35). This is it bothers and sisters. So simple, yet so elusive since we never hear this in our Churches today which denigrate the Laws of God which define what God considers "true righteousness and what is not true righteousness". We instead hear:

Rom 10:4 4 For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth. (KJV)

Rom 6:14 14 For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace. (KJV)

Rom 6:15 15 What then? shall we sin, because we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid. (KJV)

Unbelievable statements in view of countless contradictory evidence in the New Testament which is anything but a theological unity.

The council had listened to the testimony of Peter, and Paul and Barnabas. They heard the reoccurrence of the "Jewish Pentecost" among the "non-Jew" Cornelius (the Gentile Pentecost). The conclusion was obvious. It only remained for James to give the scriptural precedent according Amos 9:11-12 (Acts 15:16-17).

Amos 9:11-12 11 In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up his ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old: 12 That they may possess the remnant of Edom, and of all the heathen, which are called by my name, saith the LORD that doeth this. (KJV)

It was happening before their eyes; not ours today. Prophecy was truly being fulfilled before their eyes. God was working out the words of Amos now before them. Man's theologies spouted by Shammai and his bigotry was falling apart. The two peoples of God, Jew and "non-Jew" were being united without required circumcision and conversion to Judaism as the School of Shammai maintained.

Acts 15:16-17 16 After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: 17 That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: What is this all about and is Acts 15 the defining moment for Judaism as God's Holy Nation and Royal Priesthood? Yes it is as I will explain.

Zechariah 4:2-4 And he said to me, "What do you see?" So I said, "I am looking, and there is a lampstand of solid gold with a bowl on top of it, and on the stand seven lamps with seven pipes to the seven lamps. The two Olive trees are by it, one at the right of the bowl and the other at it's left." So I answered and spoke to the angel who talked to me, saying, "What are these, my Lord?"

Zechariah 4: 11-14 Then I answered and said to him, "What are these two Olive branches that drip into the receptacles of the two gold pipes from which the golden oil drains?" Then he answered me and said, "Do you not know what these are?" And I said, "No my Lord." So he said, "These are the two anointed ones, who stand beside the Lord of the whole earth.

Jeremiah 11:16 The Lord called you a thriving olive tree with fruit beautiful in form.

In Genesis 48 we read of Joseph's Sons being blessed by Israel as two branches or tribes of the people of God, the younger becoming a multitude of Nations (Gentiles).

Genesis 49:22 Joseph is a fruitful bough A fruitful bough by a well His branches run over the wall.

These prophetic utterances towards the end of the Old Covenant era are of great interest in these new days of the 2000 millennium. We know that the Israelite Nation was divided into two Kingdoms for much of the Old Covenant period, the Northern and Southern Kingdoms. We know also that the Israelites (Jews) are God's chosen nation of people who have never been able to be erased from human history. Other nations have been completely destroyed by various means and no longer walk the earth, but the Israelites are still with us and still exerting great influence on world events. His branches run over the wall. Is an interesting reference and could be easily interpreted to mean that through Joseph the people of God will extend beyond the boundaries of being born into the Jewish nation.

Romans 11: 17 And some of the branches were broken off, and you ("non-Jews", being a wild olive tree, were grafted in among them, and with them became a partaker of the root and fatness of the olive tree.

Here is clear reference to both the Jews and the Gentiles being grafted together into ONE tree in the ONE ROOT.

Consider Ephesians 2:11-12. Therefore, remember that you, once Gentiles in the flesh - who were called Uncircumcision by what is called the Circumcision made in the flesh by hands, that at that time you were without Christ, being aliens from the Commonwealth of Israel...

Ephesians 2:15-16 ...so as to create in Himself one new man from the two, thus making peace and that He might reconcile both to God, in one body...

There is and has been for most of the New Covenant era, enmity between the Christians and the Jews. Labelled wrongly as Christ killers, Jews have been slaughtered and persecuted by the world and Christians alike. Christians have believed that they have replaced the Jews as God's chosen people. But the Word is very clear, there are two Olive trees which will become one in God and their enmity will be put aside. We work and look forward to the time when Christians and Israelites will rise from the death of division and distrust and stand as the witnesses of the One God on the earth teaching the one true message of God given Israel in the beginning. Then and only then can these two Olive trees become one people of God in His Christ but this will never happen until Christianity faces the truth about its antisemitic theology.

What you just read is most likely a composite citation and that Luke understood the mission to the Gentiles not as a purely "Christian" thing, but according to a cumulative prophetic witness associated with Davidic hope. Thus the boundaries of the "people of God" are widened to include the Gentiles on equal footing with the Jews on the basis of Davidic hope. The speakers are making the important affirmation that Gentiles can be God's people in the full sense that Israel is without full conversion. This is a major ruling based upon summary re-evaluation of what God has been doing among the "non-Jews" in front of the witness of the Jews. Davidic hope in Luke-Acts is for all, regardless of ethnicity, and places all in the same position in terms of the reception of covenant blessing, including the reception of the Spirit.

Thus through the combined witness of the missionaries and James' citation from the Jewish Scriptures and the reference to Amos, the "law free" (free from 613 laws and full conversion but not free from the 66 laws of the Covenant of Noah) mission to the Gentiles was officially sanctioned and acknowledged by the Jerusalem church. The ambiguity surrounding Gentile inclusion in Davidic promise in chapter 13 is settled in chapter 15.

James makes his remarks in response to the summary testimonies of the missionaries. Some requirements were stressed so as to make table fellowship between Gentiles and their more scrupulous Jewish brothers possible and that the mission to the Jews in the Diaspora not be hindered. The point is to maintain a practical unity in the church. James considers these "requirements" as not optional and the text makes this very clear:

Acts 15:28 28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; (KJV)

BUT THERE WERE SOME "NECESSARY THINGS"....SOME LAWS WERE REQUIRED AFTER ALL

The only thing they asked was that the Gentiles maintain love for their Jewish brothers and sensitivity toward Jewish ritual purity for the sake of the Jewish-Christian witness in the Diaspora (15:20-21). Thus Luke accomplished his purpose of demonstrating how the Gentiles came to be accepted as Gentiles into what had hitherto been a predominantly Jewish church.

James first begins by mentioning Moses being "read" to these "non-Jews" in the Synagogues every Sabbath. From this we see the picture of the "non-Jew" observing the Sabbath in the first century.

Acts 15:21 21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every sabbath day. (KJV)

Next we find the decree of James as look at the very important mention by James of various "Necessary Things" which seemed good to the Holy Spirit that the "non-Jew" "must do":

Acts 15:29 29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well. (KJV)

Acts 15:29

29 That ye abstain from:

- meats offered to idols,
- and from blood,
- and from things strangled,
- and from fornication:

from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well.

Answer for yourself: Some believe that the above admonitions refers to 4 of the 7 precepts of the Laws of Noah at that they do when examined in a particular way. This is true but however is there a deeper meaning here that most miss that fits the context of Acts 15 better?

Answer for yourself: In addressing the Gentile question as so many "non-Jews" were coming to faith in God through the outreach of the Jesus Movement in first century Judaism (Second Temple), what are the implications in the above verse that today's Christian needs to be made aware?

In order to find the meaning, both historically and culturally, we need to look at the original words as taken from the Thayer's Greek Lexicon:

The Greek word for "meat":

1494 eidolothuton-

- sacrificed to idols, the flesh left over from the heathen sacrifices it was either eaten at the feasts or sold (by the poor and the miserly) in the market

The Greek word for "blood":

129 haima-

- 1) blood
  - a) used of man or animals
  - b) refers to the seat of life (the soul is in the animal's blood)
  - c) used of those things that resemble blood, grapejuice
- 2) bloodshed, to be shed by violence, slay, premeditated murder

The Greek word for "strangled":

4156 pniktos- suffocated, strangled

- a) what is strangled, that is, an animal deprived of life without the shedding of blood
- b) used of cooking: our "smothered" as a culinary term

The Greek word for "fornication":

4202 porneia-

- 1) illicit sexual intercourse
  - a) adultery, fornication, homosexuality, lesbianism, intercourse with animals, etc.
  - b) sexual intercourse with close relatives; Lev. 18
  - c) sexual intercourse with a divorced man or woman; Mk. 10:11,12
- 2) metaphorically, the worship of idols; used of the defilement of idolatry, as incurred by eating the sacrifices offered to idols before eating (a form of idolatry)

Answer for yourself: Now for a very important question. Is there a common theme among these four "admonitions"? Yes there is and can you see it?

These admonitions which James called "necessary" and "which seemed good to the Holy Spirit" all involved "eating" and "table fellowship" in some way where the Jew and "non-Jew" were to be "one" as God's people. By being one not only in dietary concerns the Gentile could come and learn from the Jew and thereby both would have the same witness of the same truth through a unified message where both Gentile and Jew come together as the two sticks in Joseph's hand with a united message for the ## world (Judah and Ephraim).

Answer for yourself: What are we missing here?

Simply that the Jews are given many "kosher" commands which are not voluntary and although the "non-Jews" are not given many of these "required Laws" concerning "kosher" for unity and table fellowship to occur between the "Jew" and the "non-Jew" then the "non-Jew" will have to understand Isa. 56 and the principles laid out there and "voluntarily" acquire other mitzvot not given to him by God in order for such communion between "Jew" and "non-Jew" to occur. Sure, as a "non-Jew" are you not required to eat only "clean food" as this is not required in the Covenant of Noah but we must choose "those things that please God" as Isaiah 56 commands of the "non-Jew". We don't have to eat "kosher"; but we "get to" and in so doing when we choose to not eat shrimp before a Jew we literally tear down that middle wall between the Jew and "non-Jew". This and other such issues were the problem at Antioch. That is our task as "non-Jews" and our role in fulfilling the words of Amos 9 and Genesis 49 through our lives. We, as "non-Jews" have a huge responsibility and obligation toward our Jewish brothers and sisters and in so doing maybe we can undo somewhat the horrors done to the Jewish peoples by the Christian Church during the Dark Ages that sadly have not yet abated due to the gross ignorance of Christians about the true nature of their birth faith.

THE ANTIOCH PROBLEM

Simply said these 4 items referred to the prior problem concerning Paul and his teachings that led up to the Antioch Incident and the problem of table-fellowship; Jews with "non-Jews". This was not meant to be a treatise upon the 7 Noahide Laws or the Noahide Covenant although these items are contained within them. This was concerned only about the "Paul problem" at Antioch and the violation of the Covenant of Noah and Moses to whom both Jews and "non-Jew" had fallen victim because of Paul's laxity and teachings which were opposed to the Torah in places. This might be hard for you to hear but Paul was teaching a form of "idolatry" as defined by the Covenant of Noah and Moses and this will be proved in the following articles which follow. Paul was not perfect and neither are we and this is why Paul was always a problem for James and the Jerusalem Church.

In other words one can see that the Acts 15 Council was to deal with the violation of Covenant Stipulations for both Jew and "non-Jew" [Moses and Noah] due to incorrect teaching and laxity in keeping the Commandments of God as taught by Paul; both for the Jew and the "non-Jew" concerning not only "table fellowship" but it runs deeper; deep as idolatry as defined by these Laws!!! READ THEM AGAIN ABOVE. Let us not forget that these "believers" were the first followers in "the Jewish Christ" and the accurate understanding of the dynamics of Acts 15 has a message to you if you consider yourself a follower of the Jewish Christ (called Jesus)!

It is to the Antioch Problem to which we must now turn to understand thoroughly the reason for the Acts 15 Council and the implications for all "non-Jews" who desire to be followers of Jesus and "the Christ"

THE LAWS OF NOAH.....ONE MUST NOT EAT ANY LIMB TAKEN FROM A LIVING ANIMAL #1

If you have studied with us this far then you know by know that long before the Jewish people existed God made Covenants with non-Jews and that their relationship and good-standing with God was determined by how they lived up to their Covenant stipulations (Laws). In particular we have been looking at the Laws of Noah and the Covenant of Noah where a non-Jew was considered "righteous" by God if he lived up to his Covenant and repented when he strayed from his Covenant Commandments and returned to obedience unto God.

In our day and time if you are reading this article then you are most likely a contemporary Christian and most likely highly indoctrinated by your denominational or non-denominational theology. If you have been faithful to study with us up to this point then you have seen beyond any doubt that the Jesus Movement of the first century instructed non-Jews who came to faith in God through Yeshua's followers to obey the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah. As a typical Christian or otherwise I assume that you are basically a "good person" and not the chiefest of sinners. Yet when we examine in detail these Laws of Noah which frame our Covenant with God then we encounter many things that not only challenge how we live in America today but which should bring shame to the best of Christians as you will come to quickly realize that your Gentile denominational religious belief system in normative Christianity has caused you to sin in many areas which before now you had no knowledge that such beliefs and actions were sinful. It is our hope at Bet Emet Ministries that your love for God is greater than your love to eat with the Pastor after Sunday's service and that you take to heart the matters that will be discussed here for let us end this introduction with these words:

I Jn 5:3 3 For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments: and his commandments are not grievous. (KJV)

-182: ONE MUST NOT EAT ANY LIMB TAKEN FROM A LIVING ANIMAL (DEUT. 12:23)

In the Laws of Moses, which many are but reiterations of the previous Laws of Noah, Maimonides/Rambam codifies this Commandment as #182 of the negative Commandments given by God by which man must not do. By this prohibition we are forbidden to eat a limb of a living creature: that is, to cut off a [whole] limb from a live animal or fowl and eat as much as an olive's size of the limb in its natural condition [that is, together with its veins and sinews]; and even though there is only the smallest amount of meat on it, whoever eats it is punished by whipping. The prohibition is contained in His words, Thou shalt not eat the life with the flesh (Deut. 12:23).

There are distinctions between this prohibition as it pertains to a Jew and as it relates to a non-Jew. A Jew's prohibition is only concerned with kosher animals, while for a Gentile it applies to all animals.

The Sifr'e says:

"Thou shalt not eat the life with the flesh: this refers to a limb of a living creature." The verse is interpreted similarly in the Gemara of Hullin (102b [Sonc. ed. p. 569])<sup>3</sup> where we also read: "He who eats a limb [severed] from a living creature, and also flesh [severed] from a living creature, is liable twice." The reason for this is that there are two prohibitions, of which the first, Thou shalt not eat the life with the fles forbids eating a limb, and the second, Ye shall not eat any flesh that is torn of beasts in the field (Ex. 22:30) forbids eating the flesh of a living creature, as we have explained.

This prohibition occurs again, in another form, in His words to Noah forbidding the eating of a limb of a living creature: Only flesh with the life thereof, which is the blood thereof shall ye not eat (Gen. 9:4).

"It is forbidden to cut off a limb of a living animal and eat it, because such an action would produce and develop cruelty; besides, the heathen kings used to do it; it was also a kind of idolatrous worship to cut off a certain limb of a living animal and eat it" (Moreh Nebuchim III, 48).

THE RABBIS COMMENT

All commentaries are unanimous in their explanation. The purpose of this prohibition against eating the limb of an animal while the animal is still alive-a mitzvah which is applicable to the Noahide as well as to the Jew-is for man to refrain from an act of unspeakable cruelty and inhumanity. Maimonides adds another reason to that given above. This was a heathen practice and should, therefore, not be imitated by the Jew or the non-Jew.

THE LAWS OF NOAH.....A TORN OR MAULED ANIMAL IS FORBIDDEN TO EAT #2

If you have studied with us this far then you know by know that long before the Jewish people existed God made Covenants with non-Jews and that their relationship and good-standing with God was determined by how they lived up to their Covenant stipulations (Laws). ### -181: ONE MUST NOT EAT ANY LIMB TAKEN FROM A LIVING ANIMAL (EXODUS 22:30)

You shall not eat any flesh that is torn by beasts in the field, you shall cast it to the dogs (Exodus 22:30)

By this prohibition we are forbidden to eat terefah.

Answer for yourself: What is terefah?

Terefah is the flesh of an animal torn by a wild beast, or by a wild bird, or the flesh of any injured or diseased animal which, although ritually slaughtered, is known to be one which could not have lived more than a year; or the flesh torn from a living clean beast.

Animals and fowl that may not be eaten (aside from "unclean" animals) are divided into two classifications:

Nevelah ("carcass") and terefah ("torn"). Nevelah refers to the flesh of an animal or fowl that died of natural causes or was not slaughtered by shehiitah, i.e., in accordance with Jewish law. Terefah refers to the flesh of an animal or fowl that was killed by a predatory animal [one who eats blood] or one that had physical defects or injuries with which it could not have survived for twelve months. The flesh of an animal with such physical defects is forbidden food, even if the animal was ritually slaughtered. The general rule is that any injury with which the animal cannot survive renders it terefah or unfit for consumption under Jewish law.

Any of the following eight defects discovered on examination following ritual slaughter renders an animal terefah:

- a. Derusah: An animal or fowl whose flesh was torn by a bird of prey or a wild beast.
- b. Nekubah: An animal or fowl with a perforated vital organ; e.g., a perforated heart.
- c. Hisurah: An animal or fowl with an underdeveloped or atrophied organ; e.g., a lung of less than normal size.
- d. Netulah: An animal or fowl that is found to have, for example, no liver.
- e. Pesukah: An animal or fowl with a cut windpipe.
- f. Keru'ah: An animal or fowl with a torn membrane, such as that of the stomach.
- g. *Nefulah (lit. "a fallen animal"): An animal or fowl whose "limbs were loosened from one another" as the result of a fall from a high place.
- h. *Shevurah (lit. "a broken animal"): An animal with most of its ribs fractured.

An animal with these defects is terefah, regardless of whether they were inflicted on the animal by accident, by other animals, or by a man (e.g., a hunter).

It is contained in His words, Ye shall not eat any flesh that is torn of beasts in the field (Ex. 22:30)

The prohibitions in this Commandment and the preceding one are repeated as regards the priests in His words, That which dieth of itself, or is torn of beasts, he shall not eat to defile himself therewith (Lev. 22:8).

The reason why the prohibition is repeated in their case is that, since Scripture commands them to eat of the sin-offering of a bird which is [slaughtered] by melikah - a method of slaughtering which if used in the preparation of ordinary food would undoubtedly be invalid, as it makes the meat nevelah - it might occur to us that they are permitted to eat even as ordinary food [the flesh of an animal which has been slaughtered by] melikah, or has been improperly slaughtered; Scripture therefore explains that they continue to be in the same position as laymen with regard to the admonition against eating nevelah or terefah. This is the explanation given by the Sages, who also mention this verse in connection with another law, which is not relevant to the present work (Hullin, 100b (Sonc. ed. p. 557)).

But a domestic or wild animal that is inferred by one of the accepted modes of interpretation to have become terefah is forbidden food, even though it has been ritually slaughtered; and one who ritually slaughters it and eats of its flesh is punished by whipping under Rabbinic law.

The things that make [an animal or bird] terefah are explained in the third chapter of Hullin. The provisions of this and the nine preceding Commandments are explained in the same chapter [of Hullin], in the last chapter of Makkoth, and in the first chapter of Bekoroth.

In his Mishneh Torah Maimonides enumerates seventy diseases and injuries which render a beast terefah (Kedushah, Hikhoth Shechitah X, 9). Later scholars have devoted much time and thought to the exhaustive study of this subject, with the result that the certification of meat as kosher carries with it a maximum guarantee of fitness for human consumption.

THE RABBIS COMMENT

Hinnukh: An animal that has been mauled by a wild beast falls prey to infection and disease even if the direct cause of the animal's death was shehitah. The meat of such an animal is detrimental to man's health. Hinnukh adds that whatever food is bad for a man's body will also be bad for his soul.

Abrabanel: This, too, was the reason why hunting is forbidden. However, although we are forbidden to eat the meat of animals killed by a hunter, we may derive other benefits from such meat; e.g., it may be given to one's dogs.

Ibn Ezra, Da'at Zekemm: Why does the Torah mention no other means of disposing of terefah meat than to feed it to dogs? Because dogs act as the guardians of flocks of sheep and herds of cattle. Should one of the herd, nevertheless, become prey to a wild beast, the dogs should be given the meat of the dead animal and should be rewarded for their efforts to protect these animals.

FURTHER COMMENTS...EATING THE LIMB OF A LIVING ANIMAL

There is some discussion as to whether the prohibition of eating the limb of a living animal was originally given to Adam the First Man or not.

One opinion states that it was, indeed, included in the original commandment forbidding the eating of fruit of the tree of knowledge of good and evil.

According to this opinion, Adam who was clearly given vegetation for food, as it is written, "And God said, Behold I have given you every herb bearing seed which is upon the face of the whole earth, and every tree upon which there is fruit of a tree bearing seed, to you these shall be for food." (Gen. 1:29). Adam was not forbidden to eat meat, but was merely forbidden to kill animals for food. If the animal had died of itself, it was permissible as food. What Noah was given, therefore, was a refinement of this commandment, in which God allowed man to kill animals for food, but forbade him to eat the flesh of any animal while the animal was still alive. According to the other opinion, Adam had received six of the Seven Universal Laws and had been forbidden to eat the flesh of an animal in any manner. Only after the Flood was the leniency of permitting animal flesh instituted. (Maimonides)

This commandment is one which is revealed explicitly in scripture, as it is written, "Every moving thing that lives shall be for you for food; just as the green herbs, I have given you everything. But flesh with its living soul, its blood, you shall not eat." (Gen.9:34) This, of course, does not mean that an animal's blood is its soul and that what man was being forbidden was animal blood. It is taught by the sages that the vitalizing animal soul is contained within the blood, and this is what the commandment refers to, for when an animal dies, this vitalizing soul departs. So long as this vitalizing soul remains within the animal, its flesh is forbidden to man as food.

At first glance, this commandment seems peculiarly out of place as one of the Seven Universal Laws.

Answer for yourself: How can eating the limb of an animal take its place side by side with such obvious fundamental principles of human morality such as those prohibiting idolatry or murder?

Besides a few bizarre and isolated sociological perversions in Africa and China, one is hard put to imagine who would even consider eating an animal's meat while the animal lives.

And yet, this is precisely why this commandment may well represent the essence of the Seven Universal Laws. Although mankind is enjoined to obey these commandments as they appear, the letter of the law only serves as a minimum, a starting point, which guarantees God's favor and insures human morality. But if man wishes to realize his greatness spiritually, he must tap into the infinite potential of the seven laws, using them to refine and elevate himself. We see here that eating the limb of a living animal serves as a hint as to the potential refinement that man can attain through his eating habits and by practising kindness to every creature.

For what man ingests as food is absorbed in his bloodstream and in every cell of his body and thereby becomes part of his essential being.

The person who eats snakes and monkeys will surely be different from the man who eats nuts and berries. And the mystical teachings state that the Holy Spirit will never rest on one who kills any creature, even the lowliest insect, purposelessly. (Teachings of the AriZal, Rabbi Isaac Luria Ashkenazi)

The early sages differ concerning the act of consuming the blood of an animal. The sages say that the Children of Noah contend that they are not forbidden blood as food. The Children of Noah may eat the flesh of an animal that dies by itself, but there is an opinion that states that only the flesh of an animal killed through slaughtering is permissible. One is guilty of transgressing this commandment subject to punishment by the courts whether he eats the limb of a living animal or for merely the flesh of living animal, even the smallest amount. The actual transgression is the eating of a limb or any flesh while it lives. Use of an animal's hide or any other benefit is permissible. Although a person is subject to punishment for eating the limb or the flesh of a living domestic or wild animal, he is not so condemned for the limb or flesh of a living chicken. It is, however, forbidden to eat this as well. Fish and other creatures, including animals, that are killed may have a limb or flesh taken from them and eaten. Slaughtering does not have to be in a ritual manner as with Jews. However, the killing of any animal for food must be done in as humane a manner as possible. Fish are considered dead the moment they are taken out of the water, but even so, one may not eat a fish while it appears to be alive as this is a lack of refinement and the chief reason for the giving of the Seven Universal Laws was to refinement the nature of man.

When one slaughters an animal, even if its windpipe and esophagus are severed, so long as the limbs are still moving, the limbs and the meat that are separated from them are forbidden to a Gentile because of this law. However, if one eats the limb or flesh of an animal after it has been killed, but while it is still moving, he is not punished for this by the courts, for it is not actually considered the limb or flesh of a living animal.

Everything that is forbidden to a Jew because of the law of the Limb Of A Living Animal is similarly forbidden to a Gentile, except that the Gentile has the added strictness of being guilty for this particular transgression whether the animal is spiritually clean or unclean. The Jew is guilty only if the animal is a type that is spiritually clean. Animals, together with their lives, were given into the hands of mankind. The higher spiritual rank of man dictates that he not eat the limb of a living animal. Even though the flesh of man and the flesh of animal are related, the one may be incorporated within the other through eating. But the soul (in the blood) of an animal may never be incorporated within the soul of man. Therefore the admonition for mankind to not eat blood as did the pagans in their false ritual worship. Another reason is that it is this blood that contains the Divine Life Source in the form of the Soul which God gave as atonement for the sins of mankind.

The soul [blood] of an animal must first be separated from its physical being before the animal body may be absorbed within and become part of the human body. (Samson Raphael Hirsch commenting on Genesis 2:16 and 9:5)

ATONEMENT...THE SOUL...THE BLOOD...THE LIFE...WHAT IS GOING ON?

As a Christian Pastor I can say that out of all the Biblical doctrines which Gentile Christianity completely misunderstands and teaches incorrectly I can find no other more misunderstood teaching than what Gentile Christianity teaches concerning ATONEMENT and how it actually was accomplished. The confusion rests in the understanding of the "blood" as the vehicle for the "life" which is contained within the blood for God tells us if we read slowly and think that it is the "LIFE" that is in the blood that He gives mankind for atonement and NOT THE BLOOD. We read over this so often because we are subconsciously or consciously brainwashed by erroneous teaching our whole life to "think" blood when in reality we as Christians got it just backwards. The link above will straighten this all out and I strongly suggest that every Christian read the above information and make adjustments in their religious beliefs systems if they want to meet God with the truth one day. Shalom.

ACTS 15-THE FIRST CHURCH COUNCIL AND AFTERMATH-IS THIS YOUR CHISTIAN EXPERIENCE?

Matt 28:18-20 18 And Jesus came and spake unto them, saying, All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. 19 Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: 20 Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world. Amen. (KJV)*

This new "Jesus Movement" faced a problem of the highest magnitude within twenty years after the Cross of Christ: "What are we going to do with these Gentiles who claim to be followers of Yeshua Meshichenu (Yeshua, our Jewish Messiah)? The solution: "We should not make it difficult for the Gentiles who are turning to God." (Acts 15: 19-21). Yacov (James) and the head zakenim (elders) then proceeded to mention "4 abstentions" for these Gentiles who wished to be part of the Jesus Movement:

- Don't eat food polluted by idols;
- Don't engage in sexual immorality;
- Don't eat the meat of strangled animals;
- Don't eat blood.

To twentieth century Western people this list seems pretty simple--the only abstention those in our society have to worry about is #2--sexual immorality. So now it's clear sailing for all those Gentiles. Thanks a lot for reading this article.

But wait, that is not as simple as the English makes it seem, for Yeshua is Jewish, and without a proper understanding of the language of Hebrew, the Greek language from which the Hebrew was translated, the history, and the culture of the first century, you and I cannot be assured we have the correct understanding of this Acts 15 passage. Let us never forget that obedience is better than any sacrifice today as well as yesterday. Also, let us understand that Jesus' church deemed that these things discussed in Acts 15 were "NECESSARY" for those who wished to be included in Jesus' Movement and church.

Acts 15:28-29 28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; 29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well. (KJV)*

Answer for yourself: How certain that you have been taught, let alone follow, these "NECESSARY" things today? If you find out that you have not been taught, nor follow such things, are you a member in "good standing" in Jesus' church?

As you read this article, as well as others I have researched and prepared, you should have easily seen that reading the English often leads us astray from the mind of Christ. You may say "You mean it's not quite that easy and clear?" You may say "You mean to tell me there may be more to understanding what James is telling the Gentiles than meets the eye? "Do you mean more information is assumed as "given" in this situation than is normally understood by the normal Christian nowadays?" That is exactly what I am telling you as you will shortly understand. Let us investigate.

WHY SHOULD THE CHRISTIAN BE AWARE OF THE HISTORICAL SITUATION IN THE BOOK OF ACTS?

The historical situation in Acts 15 must be uncovered in order to understand the impact importance of these 4 abstentions for Gentile believers in the first century, so we as good Christians and followers of Jesus and "the Christ" can then apply that understanding of Biblical truth to today's circumstances. Add to this process the tragic observation that the vast majority of today's Gentile Christian congregations totally ignore these 4 simple instructions and it becomes clear that this decision from long ago has been blatantly misunderstood and or ignored for the past 19 centuries. Today's Christians who understand Yeshua's words "why do you say you love me and not obey ye" should be open to repentance when in-depth Bible study recovers long-lost truths which never changed that both challenge and correct their belief system and conduct. We must, with a good conscience, apply these truths to our lives today, regardless if they seem different from what you have heard or weren't previously aware of or not. If today's Christians want to uncover these truths and their significance for their lives, it will be a difficult but not an unfruitful task, but such is our test of the level of love we have for God. Let us continue in our search for truth for our love for God is manifested through obedience and not a mental faith which lacks righteous responses in obedience to "every word that proceeds from the mouth of God." This is of major importance if we truly love God, not to mention the rewards and treasure laid up in Heaven in our account that comes only in response to obedience. .

THE HISTORICAL SITUATION IN ACTS 15...INTRODUCING THE GOD-FEARERS

It is important as we begin to understand "who" these Gentile believers were that were being spoken of by James. The overwhelming majority, if not all, of these Gentiles wanted to be accepted as full participants in this Jewish faith in the Jewish Messiah. These non-Jews to whom James referred were in a special category of Gentiles called "Godfearers." Let's investigate these questions:

- 1) Who were Godfearers?
- 2) What was their belief and practice?
- 3) How did they fit into the theological and historical scheme of the time?
- 4) As Christians are we considered "Godfearing?"

WHO WERE THE GODFEARERS?

"Godfearers" in the technical sense of the word used by both Luke and Josephus. The terms "Sebomeno" and or "Phoboumenoi" refer to that special group of Gentiles who worshipped in synagogues and adopted a Jewish belief system and a Jewish lifestyle for themselves, stopping just short of formal conversion (failed to be circumcised) and becoming proselytes.

The word Sebonenoi (with or without Theos) means "Godfearer" and is based on a parallel term for worshippers of pagan deities. Implicit in the term are the concepts that these people claim to worship the only true God, and that they worship Him with specific acts, not just with their "mental attitude." The Book of Acts mentions Pheboumenos five times, and mentions sebonenos six times with or without the addition word "Theos-god" to denote Gentile adherents to the Jewish faith who were NOT proselytes. In this context, Bauer states that these two terms are a "functional equivalent" of each other. Thus, these Godfearers were NOT merely well-intentioned Gentiles walking around worshipping the God of Israel in their own private non-structured way or in a way that leaned on their own understanding. Rather, there were certain requirements and Laws which must be adhered to and obeyed to be considered as a "Godfearer."

Emil Schurer quotes archeological inscriptions which point to "a defined category of Gentile Godfearers attached to the Jewish community." The Dictionary of the New Testament Theology adds that "Sebonenos" was the regular term for non-Jews who attached themselves the synagogue in this precise and specific way. The clear conclusion reached about both terms in Acts (i.e. phoboumenoi and sebomenoi) is that "with this concept...we are dealing with a technical term (to be distinguished from Theosebes (godliness) which specifically describes a defined category of Gentiles associated with the synagogue.

It cannot be emphasized too strongly that the first Gentile believers in Yeshua as "the Messiah" mentioned in the Book of Acts are from this special and technical realm of Godfearers, as the Greek terms clearly indicate, and are NOT Gentiles who only felt warmth and attraction to the God of Israel. The Godfearers ALREADY had received considerable Jewish training and had made a considerable Jewish commitment as I am attempting to demonstrate through the continued teachings of Bet Emet Ministry. The Theological Dictionary of the New Testament sums up the situation: "Thus the first conversion of a Gentile under Peter in Acts 10 is strictly the winning of a marginal member of the Jewish community (Cornelius was ALREADY a worshipper of the true God of the Bible before the message of the Messiah was brought to him) for the Christian community." According to Schurer, John 12:20 probably reflects this group in describing "Greeks who went up to worship (at the Temple) at the Festival (Passover) time"

What most misunderstand about the Acts 10 account regarding Cornelius is that he was recognized as ALREADY "having a relationship with God" by the Jews. The message of Messiah through the Great Commission was brought to him for the benefit of the Jews as well as himself, for the religious and political environment of that day precluded "Gentile-Godfearers" from fellowshiping with Jews. Peter's reaction in witnessing that Cornelius (a Gentile) received the same gift of the Spirit as they had previously at Pentecost was the deciding factor in reporting to Jerusalem that the "middle wall" of separation between the Jews and Gentiles was removed, and it was removed because of the ministry of Yeshua which continued long after his resurrection and ascension. See my other articles about Shammai and Hillel and existing prejudices concerning the Gentiles.

WHAT WERE THE RELIGIOUS BELIEFS AND PRACTICES OF THE GODFEARERS?

It is important to realize that these Gentile Godfearers were integral parts of synagogues within Israel and throughout the Diaspora (exile). And as noted above, they worshipped God with specific Jewish acts, not just mental assent. These acts included:

- 1). Adherence to the 7-part Noachide commandments
- 2). Adherence to the Sabbath commandment
- 3). Adherence to many but not all of the dietary laws

These Laws, as seen in Second Temple Judaism (Judaism during the era 100 B.C.E.--70 C.E.), is the bedrock of Jewish observance even today. Any other Jewish observances beyond these would have been a matter of personal choice (Isa 56). Isaiah chapter 56 informs us that one a Gentile becomes part of the Israel of God through faith and repentance with limited obedience to the Commandments (the Laws of Noah), then he has the "choice" to choose other Commandments over and above his "minimum" that can be incorporated into his life because do so "pleases God".

These Gentile Godfearers were encouraged by Jewish teachers within the synagogue structure to be circumcised, thus completing their "conversion" to Judaism; and according to G. F. Moore, "it was not uncommon for the next generation (their children) to be circumcised." This means the second generation of non-Jews usually made full conversion and were considered "born again" Jews. It is here we find the original and true meaning of this over-worked and sadly misinterpreted term as used in Gentile Christianity today.

CORNELIUS, THE GODFEARER

Cornelius, the Gentile Godfearer mentioned in Acts 10, was a centurion at Caesarea and serves as a good example of what a Godfearer did religiously. First, he and his household were devout (Eusebes) and Godfearing (Phoboumenos Ton Theon), a double adjective referring to him and his family which shows their exemplary lives characterized by Jewish norms and values. Please understand when I say "Jewish norms and values" I am not asserting conversion to Judaism, but let's face it, Jewish values and norms happened to be expressions of BIBLICAL VALUES AND NORMS! Luke also mentions that he prayed constantly to God and gave alms liberally to people in need (which the Rabbis call tzedekah). These two actions (prayer and alms giving) would be actions even beyond the call of "Jewish duty," even more than the minimum for Jews. Interestingly enough, one afternoon during his regular 3 o'clock prayer time ("ninth hour" was a prescribed Temple prayer time which survives in synagogue practice today and was the hour evening incense was offered in the Temple) an angel came to Cornelius in Caesarea (a totally Gentile-built and Gentile-run city), to tell him that his prayer that his alms "had come up for a memorial" before God. That means that they he been accepted by God in the same way that the incense at the Temple and the smoke of a burnt offering "went up" and were accepted by God. The same Greek word (snebenov) is used to translate in the Septuagint the Hebrew word for offering: "olah"-literally, "an ascending." Then the angel instructs Cornelius, to get in touch with Peter, who was in Jaffa, and the rest, as they say, is history. But note that what Cornelius did to deserve the commendation were Jewish religious acts and not his faith (not just any old good deeds would do) and that they (his righteous works) were accepted by the Jewish God using Jewish terminology and concepts, even though Cornelius was "technically" a Gentile.

Now for a real shocker, Cornelius was "accepted by God" and this condition existed long before Peter came to preach to him about Yeshua for Acts 10:35 states such. In fact, Peter is flabbergasted when this revelation (that Gentiles who turned from idols to serve the living God were equally acceptable to God as were Jews) become real to him for he realized that the stigma put upon the Gentile Godfearers by "pious" Jews headed by Shammai were totally false and such bigotry had prevented Israel from obeying God by not becoming a "light to the Gentiles" as was their calling. Once you understand that Shammai led Israel to believe that no Gentile was worthy of the world to come or of Eternal Life, then you can understand Peter's startled reaction. God was correcting the situation and news of this would quickly turn Jerusalem around.

Let us never forget that there were more than just this one man who was a Godfearer in Israel, in that there was a whole group of Godfearers at that time all around the Roman world who totally identified themselves with the Jewish community, except for circumcision which was the final step in commitment as a Jewish proselyte.

Many Gentiles, while not prepared to enter this Jewish community as full proselytes through circumcision, were attracted by the simple monotheism of Jewish synagogue worship and by the ethical standards of the Jewish way of life. We may indeed say that Cornelius had every qualification short of circumcision which could satisfy Jewish requirement for full inclusion into Israel with equal rights (own land, hold offices in synagogues). The middle-wall of inequality as not removed. It would be such Godfearers who would form the nucleus of the Christian community in one city after another. Sadly, the Godfearers would one day be replaced with "organized religion" in the form of anit-Semitic Constantinian theology.

HOW DID GODFEARERS FIT INTO THE HISTORICAL-THEOLOGICAL SCHEME OF THE WORLD AT THAT TIME?

Obviously, as we have seen, Godfearers were more than "pagans" or "foreigners" but less than proselytes. Let's examine now these differing communities of people and their status in the eyes of the Jewish community during Second Testament times.

CLASSES OF GENTILES: PROSELYTES, GODFEARERS, AND FOREIGNERS

Underlying the worldview of the Greco-Roman culture at the time is an unsympathetic attitude towards Jews. In Greek and Roman literature of the time the judgments about Jews are in general very derogatory. Seen in its most militant state, during Selucid rule, Greek culture felt that Judaism was extremely old-fashioned and too highly nationalistic to fit in with the concept of the modern Greek world. Roman culture, beginning in 70 B.C.E. in Israel under Pompey, tolerated Jewish belief as long as it allowed for Rome to have the final governmental power. Rome tended to want to keep peace in its provinces and allowed different groups under its rule to have their own religious and cultural differences. Jewishness to Rome was a "quaint," unattractive religion which served well to keep the Jewish nation "unified" and serving Roman interest.

Passages from writers of the time such as Josephus, Juvenal, and Tertullian give us the impression that the Greco-Roman culture saw Jewishness as quite ridiculous. Thus, becoming a Godfearing person was not a popular action designed to move a person to a more influential sphere, in fact, it would have quite the opposite effect.

Living within Israel itself at the time there were Godfearers, exemplified by Cornelius and presumably also the Centurion in Luke 7 and Matt. 10, but making proselytes in an active "missionary" way was not common within Israel. As a rule, proselytes (full converts) were welcomed by the Jews and regarded very highly, but there was in Palestine no active propaganda to further the cause of proselytism. Godfearers stood outside of this acceptance until they fully converted.

However, proselytism and Godfearers were very active in the Diaspora (the Jewish communities outside of Israel). According to Josephus in Antioch and Syria large numbers of Gentiles attended Jewish services. In Damascus almost the whole female part of the population was devoted to Judaism and it was quite often women of higher social standing who followed this trend. Evidently these Jewish communities encouraged and welcomed both Gentile proselytes and Godfearers.

Hellenistic Judaism developed an offensive against paganism. They were eager to show up the immorality and senselessness of idolatry and display the rationality and sublimity of Jewish monotheism. Hellenistic Judaism had an apologetic ideology as there were many Godfearers who accepted the one God of the Jews, but not all the Laws of the same God. Hellenistic Judaism had almost succeeded in making Judaism a world religion in the literal sense of the words. Early Christianity then won the victory over paganism using Jewish customs, traditions, and teachings.

This knowledge of history sheds much light on James' closing remarks to the zakenim (elders) and sh'likim (apostles) in Acts 15:21:

"For Moses (the Pentateuch) has been preached in every city (in the Diaspora) from the earliest times (since 722B.C.E., over 700 years) and is read in the synagogue on every Sabbath."

In other words, these Gentile Godfearers had ALREADY received Moses' instructions concerning how people are to live (as taught in the Noachide and Sinaitic covenants since when Moses [Pentateuch-first 5 books of the Bible] is taught, such teaching encompasses both the Laws of Noah and the Mosaic Covenant). Through attending synagogues in their own cities, Gentiles were ALREADY familiar with the basics of having a relationship with the one true God of Israel. James, the pastor of the Messianic Movement within Judaism, is REQUIRING these 4 further instructions for Gentiles who want to be Messianists and a part of Jesus' church. Although these are sometimes seen as 4 of the 7 Laws of Classification of the Laws of Noah deeper study reveals that they apply in this situation to how the Jews and non-Jews were to have table fellowship together. This fact is made plain by our study of the Antioch Problem which is available for your study.

Notice, that it seemed "good to them and the Holy Spirit" to REQUIRE these adherences of Gentiles. These things were called "NECESSARY."

Acts 15:28-29 28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; 29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well. (KJV)

This was done to make sure that there is no question as to what the "bottom line" of observance is by Godfearing Gentiles: the Noachide commandments, the Sabbath and dietary laws, and these 4 requirements. These were "NECESSARY" according to Acts 15:28-29.

Let us be truthful:

- 1). Now, do you practice and have working knowledge of what these "necessary" things are as taught by the early church and does your church teach the same things?
- 2). Although you are in "good standing" with you pastor or your church; are you in "good standing" with God as a non-Jewish believer if you don't adhere to these "NECESSARY" things?
- 3). Are you aware that the Sabbath is Saturday and not Sunday as Christianity practices?
- 4). Are you aware that one of these "necessary" things is adherence to "clean and unclean" food laws for the non-Jew? Understand that this is not required by the Laws of Noah but necessary voluntarily if a non-Jew is to have table fellowship with the Jews around the Biblical Festivals and Sabbaths.

This is only the tip of the iceberg for those who wish to identify with the Jesus Movement of the Bible.

EXACTLY WHAT WAS EXPECTED OF GENTILES BY THE JEWISH COMMUNITY AT THAT TIME AND WHAT WAS NOT EXPECTED?

The Jewish religious concepts of the Second Temple period understood that the other nations of the world who did not follow the one true God were Godless (goyim-at least without the true God) and or pagan. However, for purposes of God's judgment of other nations (including his right to judge them), the Sinaitic covenant did not apply to these "goyim," having been given exclusively to Israel. Don't get tripped up by failing to understand that WITHIN THE MOSAIC COVENANT AND LAWS IS CONTAINED ALL THE LAWS IN THE COVENANT OF NOAH. Conversely, there were many Laws contained in the Mosaic Covenant that were not included in the Covenant of Noah. Instead the rabbis felt, as seems clear from the passage in Gen. 9:1-18, there is a covenant for all the children of Noah (i.e. the whole world), including not only people but all living creatures (see v.10). Based on this section of Scripture, the rabbis found 7 major requirements incumbent for all nations: 1) no idolatry; 2) no incest/adultery; 3) no murder; 4) no blasphemy (profanation of the name of God); 5) no theft; 6) justice towards others (see Gen. 9:5...); 7) no eating flesh with blood in it and or cutting off flesh from a living animals.

To these generally agreed tenents some rabbis added others such as taking blood from a living animal. Several also mention prohibitions against witchcraft and other spiritual sorcery (such things as horoscopes, ouiji boards, palm readers, etc.) such as found in Dt. 18:10-11.

These then are the major categories by which God would judge all nations. To the rabbis it was clear that although God loved all His creatures and His creation, the goyim had turned away from Him and would not even follow the Noachide commandments. "Again if the children of Noah could not abide and observe the 7 commandments which were enjoined upon them, how much less could they have accepted and fulfilled all the commandments of the Sinaitic Law of Moses?

The identifying terms used by the rabbis at this time for these goyim include: idolaters, the wicked, the enemies of Israel, the enemies of God, and the others. There was a different category, however, for those goyim who did abide by the Noachide covenant. They were called foreigners or aliens. Any Gentile who lived in the land of Israel and among Israelites was enjoined, at the very least, to keep the Noachide covenant. This was their "bottom line" and if they did not, they were to be expelled. If they did keep the Laws of Noah, they were no longer called goyim, but gerim. The Talmud delineates them further by the new term ger toshev. These (ger toshev) were foreigners living in the land of Israel who were keeping the 7 Noachide commandments. By the time of the Septuagint (about 200 B.C.E.) the translators used the term "fearers" for the righteous outside of natural Israel in contrast to the term proselytes, those righteous Gentiles who formally identified with Israel through conversion which included circumcision, sacrifice, and mikveh (immersion).

WHAT WAS THE NEXT STEP FOR THE GERIM WHO WANTED TO BECOME FULL JEWS?

The first "gerim" are mentioned in the Exodus narrative. Among the Jews who left Egypt there were Egyptians who also left their homes in Egypt and crossed the Red Sea, becoming part of the people of Israel (Ex. 12:38). Although they were known as "aliens-gerim" (simply meaning that they were not physical descendants of Jacob), they could be circumcised, thus formally converting to this very early form of Judaism, then partake of the Passover meal with the rest of Israel (at this point, Passover was the only Jewish festival). Note the differentiation between "foreigner" in Ex. 12:43 and the "alien who lives among you":

- The foreigner may NOT eat the Passover (he is not circumcised and therefore not Jewish-Ex. 12:48), but
- The alien who is circumcised along with his/her household (they converted to Judaism and had become proselytes) MAY EAT the Passover (they are considered Jewish).

Answer for yourself: But what of "native-born" Jews?

native-born Jews: "The same law applies to the native-born and alien." According to Ex. 12:19, the community of Israel is made up of aliens (believers/converts/proselytes who are circumcised) and native-born Jews. Consequently, these "gerim toshevim" who wanted to fully convert always could do so by becoming circumcised and then continuing to follow the Jewish way of life, which then adopted and followed the covenant at Mt. Sinai (Ex. 24) and the attending Laws. Note also that Sabbath observance was technically commanded BEFORE the acceptance of the Sinaitic code (Ex. 20:10 and 23:12). Then although they (Ger Toshevim) were recognized by outward appearances as "aliens," they were now "Jews" in that they had left behind their old country and family and now were subsequently circumcised in order to be "part of the Jewish community." Likewise they had been "adopted" by the native-born Jews as "their own." The rabbis' term for these Ger Toshevim who became circumcised ("proselytes") was ger hazedek (righteous foreigners). How many proselytes there were down through the centuries is impossible to determine, but the rabbis are clear about the proselyte's relationship to the rest of Israel: "A proselyte is like a newborn child." Do you see the comparison to being "born-again?" The proselyte is, however, required and expected to be as strictly observant as the native-born Jew, including paying the Temple tax. The book of Ruth, of course, portrays the most beautiful example of how God can highly honor a proselyte, by choosing her as the great-grandmother of David.

After the building of the Second Temple there was a recognized procedure for proselytes. For men, there was circumcision, followed by immersion (mikveh), then offering a sacrifice at the Temple. For women there was just the mikveh and Temple sacrifice. For Diaspora proselytes the Temple sacrifice was probably waived, or at least postponed, because of the great distance involved and its attendant difficulty to achieve..

As previously noted, the Godfearers' observance of the Law was located between the full proselyte (circumcised) and the gerim toshev (non circumcised). Circumcised Ger toshev were known as ger hashair (foreigners of the gate). To the Godfearer's observance of the Noachide covenant they added Sabbath and dietary Law observance. It seem that Godfearers stopped just short of circumcision which would mean total and formal conversion, thus no longer being considered a Godfearer but Ger hashair or proselyte in full conversion to Judaism (a good example is Cornelius who lacked circumcision). The reasons for their not formally joining Judaism are not clear to us twentieth century people. Some scholars, like Bruce, maintain that circumcision was both painful and shameful for men in that culture. Some also might have been fearful of anti-Semitism. At any rate, we do know that these Godfearers were every bit as Jewishly observant as their Jewish friends as they had been undergoing discipling and instruction in their local synagogues. These people (Godfearers) were not just well-intentioned "Gentiles," but Jewishly educated and committed to the Jewish way of life which was the pattern given to Israel by God at Sinai. It was "this pattern of obedience" which was spoken in 70 languages to the 70 nations at Sinai, for God called all men everywhere to repent and follow His will which was spoken to all the world at Sinai. Only Israel responded with a "yes" as seen in their memorial statement "we will do all that You say!" To this commitment God would in response call them a "holy people and a holy nation and a royal priesthood" which was to equip the nation of Israel to function as a mediator between God and mankind. Israel's function is still to bring the Gentiles to God for as Romans 9 states

Thus, Godfearing Gentiles, like our example of Cornelius, probably were more deeply devoted to Judaism than many native-born Jews.

In summary, let us tabulate our results from our search.

I. Goyim: idolators, wicked, pagans,

II. Foreigners (Ger toshev):

- Non Jews living in Israel
- Any Gentile who wanted to be righteous (i.e. "saved)
- Required to observe the 7 Noachide commandments

III. Godfearers (Ger hashair)

- Required to observe the 7 Noachide commandments
- Required to observe the Sabbath (expect voluntarily)
- Required to observe certain dietary Laws plus others as they choose
- Expected to maintain synagogue discipleship where "Moses is preached" and not Paul
- Lack circumcision

IV. Jews: Native Born -plus- Proselyte

- Proselytes were given all the requirements listed above for the Godfearer
- Required circumcision for males plus mikveh
- Required mikveh for females

Sacrifice in Temple (optional in Diaspora)

- Pay Temple tax yearly

WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN FOR THE CHRISTIAN CONCERNING ACTS 15?

The vision related to Peter in Acts 10 and his subsequent experience with Cornelius and his household proved to Peter (also later to the zakenim (elders) and sh'likim (apostles) that it was NOT NECESSARY for these "gerim" to proceed with full conversion to Judaism in order to receive God's provision of atonement. They could come as they were..Godfearing Gentiles. There were only 4 further abstentions they needed to be clear about which actually delineated more clearly their already fully Jewish commitment.

First, they should not eat food sacrificed to idols which gave the appearance that they have not given up idolatrous practices. Notice Rav Shaul and Jochanan HaSchliach also objected to eating food sacrificed to idols in I Cor. 8:10-22; and Rev. 2 because of the outward meaning of the action to highly observant Jews and "weaker brothers" from pagan backgrounds. As this only refers to food, the underlying principle is that we should refrain from any conduct or behavior that gives the appearance that we have not given up idolatrous practices.

Second, they should not engage in sexual immorality as defined by Jewish standards which prohibit sex outside of marriage. Here again, the average "pagan Gentile" would see nothing wrong in visiting the prostitutes dedicated to serving and worshipping pagan Gods. Such conduct was not defined as immoral behavior outside of Israel. But it is a very grievous sin to be followers of the God of Israel (I Cor. 6:9-20), and should likewise be to those Godfearers who wish to follow Him.

Third, abstention from meat of strangled animals (animals killed with the blood still left in the body) and from eating blood in general are a stronger reiteration of the Noachide regulations already understood and practiced by Godfearers (Gen. 9:4). No I am fully aware that few of you kill an animal and eat from it as it slowly dies as do many different peoples in the Far East today, but what you are not aware of is within this categories of commandments is contained the admonition to refrain from eating "unclean" foods as was also given to the Jews. We fail to realize that this distinction in diet was originally given to Noah as he segregated the animals upon the Ark by categories of clean and unclean. Only later would this "oral law" be reiterated to Moses at Sinai when given the Laws of God on stone. James even concedes that these Godfearers probably already knew these abstentions.. "For Moses (the Pentateuch) has been preached in every city..." These tenets would be nothing new for Godfearers.

Fourth, Godfearers were to refrain from "blood." You might think this was a reiteration of the food laws, but it refers in Hebrew to violence and premeditated murder.

See my articles on the Law of Noah for more information.

SUMMING IT ALL UP

The Gentile Godfearers in Acts who formed a large share of the core of the congregations founded by Rav Shaul were not practicing pagans converted overnight. They were of a special class of Gentiles who had PREVIOUSLY been taught and nurtured in their local synagogues first, worshipping the God of Israel through Jewish acts and deeds. The "bottom line" of observance for Gentiles in the Jewish world of Second Temple Judaism would have been the 7 Noachide commandments. Godfearing Gentiles, however, went even further, observing the Sabbath, keeping the dietary laws, plus other Jewish observances that they had been taught by their local Jewish leaders. Thus their lifestyle already identified them as Jews, even if the final ritual of formal conversion had not yet taken place. Acts 15 describes the full acceptance of these Godfearers by the leadership of Messianic Jews in Jerusalem. The leaders added only 4 additional guidelines which were based on what the Godfearers were already practicing. I am convinced that James' referral to these "4" additional guidelines included all the "7" as well. If they maintained their Torah based practices, they would have congregations and practices co-equal with that of their Jewish brothers and sisters. If they failed to maintain their Godfearing lifestyles and educational programs, they would fall into the traps of sin that were disrupting the Corinthian congregations.

Gentiles who maintain Torah practices like Biblical Godfearing Gentiles can be assured that they are in "good standing" in Yeshua's church, thus welcomed into full membership and leadership within the Spiritual Body of Messiah today. Those who fail to meet these qualifications should seriously consider if they "be in the faith." Dear brothers and sisters, heed the warning. Ask questions. Study to not be ashamed one day before the LORD. Many may say after studying Hebrew Roots that they wish to formally convert to Judaism, but it is not necessary for full acceptance for the Gentile believer and Godfearer into God's family is not dependent upon conversion within Judaism. That is what Acts 15 was all about, and it set the pattern and stage for Gentile evangelism throughout the world. As long as the Gentile believer (Godfearer) maintain their active Jewish lifestyle, they can rest assured that they are "in the faith once given to the saints."

CONTROVERSY AT JERUSALEM: LAW OR GRACE? YOU WILL BE SURPRISED!

AN EXAMINATION OF ACTS 15:1-30

*And some men came down from Judea and began teaching the brethren,
"Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved."*

These words in Acts 15:1 introduce an issue which challenged the Christian church soon after its inception and would continue to be debated among the believers for years to come.

Answer for yourself: But where did this controversy originate? Was circumcision really required for "non-Jews" to be "saved" or was this ordinance imposed upon them by Jews who hated Gentiles so much that they knew that such an ordeal for an adult Gentile male assured that he most likely would not make any attempt to come to the God of the Hebrews?

Answer for yourself: Why was it such a crucial matter for the early church?

Answer for yourself: How did the apostles deal with this challenge and what were the repercussions of their decision?

This essay is an attempt to answer these and other questions surrounding this intriguing central episode in the book of Acts. First, the background and cause of the circumcision question will be considered; secondly, the nature and implications of the question itself; thirdly, the process of debate and decision followed by the Jerusalem council; and finally, the ramifications of the apostles' edict for the early church as a whole and what it means to a follower of the "Jewish Christ" and Jesus today.

THE CAUSE

In order to trace this issue back to its roots, one must go back to the Old Testament and consider what it has to say about the relationship between Jew and Gentile. In the Garden of Eden and in the world of Noah's day, there was no separation between the two groups for everyone at that time were Gentiles. The Law of Moses given to Israel had not yet been given at Sinai, yet God's Laws existed in an oral form since the Garden of Eden when given to Adam. Certain admonitions and restrictions were given to Noah by God after the flood (Gen. 9:1-7), but these were few and general in nature. These were called the Laws of Noah within the Covenant of Noah given and intended for all mankind to observe, thus providing a way of fellowship and relationship with God. Not until God chose Abraham and his descendants to become his unique and special chosen people, Israel, and not until He raised up Moses to lead the Israelites out of bondage and to communicate to them His Law, did a clear distinction emerge between Jew and Gentile.

Once the distinction appeared, however, God made it clear that He wished the separation between His people and the pagan nations to be readily apparent at all times (Deut. 7:6). First, all Jews were to undergo circumcision as an indelible mark of their relationship to God (Gen. 17:10-13). Of course, Israel was not the only middle eastern nation to practice circumcision, but for the Jews the ritual had special significance. In addition to this distinguishing mark, God gave the Israelites a detailed and complex set of dietary, religious and social laws designed to remind them of their call to holiness and to prevent them from associating too closely with their Canaanite neighbors (Lev. 20:23-26).

Although Jewishness was largely a matter of ancestry - descent from Abraham, Isaac and Jacob -- it was nevertheless possible for a "non-Jew" to become part of the nation. If, however, a Gentile wished to leave his pagan gods for the worship of Yahweh and enter in to God's covenant with Israel, he must first be circumcised (Ex. 12:48-49) and then accept the Mosaic Law as binding on himself. This was tantamount to be "converted". Important to note as well one could not claim to be a worshipper of Yahweh and yet refuse to revere and keep the Law.

Over the thousands of years mankind chose not to obey God's ways and lost much of the truth of God, including the revelation of Noah. At Sinai within the Laws of Moses we find the Laws of Noah contained as the very foundation upon which Moses will build the additional Laws given by God; basically the Laws of Noah were first reiterated and elaborated upon and build upon by Moses thereby the 66 Laws became the 613. These Noahide statutes (66 laws) were intended for Gentiles and these again plus others which totaled 613 Mitzvoth were given to the Jews. At that time there was no other means of approach to God [for both Gentile and Jew] except through the Mosaic ritual and regulations for mankind had lost the revelation of God and the knowledge of the Covenant and Laws of Noah; all that is except the Jewish people. Thus God was required to reiterate them plus others at Sinai once again.

For centuries -- even millennia -- this pattern persisted. Prior to the Gnostic's teaching of the rising-god within the Soul of man Israel had an intense hatred for the Gentiles and such animosity prevented them from making it easier for Gentiles to come to God by being a light to them of the Noahide Covenant with their 66 Laws. One only has to read about Rabbi Shammai to understand the intense hatred of the Jews for the non-Jewish nations (captivities, wars). To make it harder for these "non-Jews" to know God, the Jews insisted on circumcision, knowing full-well that most pagans and Gentile men who worshipped their false gods through fornication and fertility rites would object to such a sever measure, especially when circumcision was administered to their "organ" of worship since most Gentile nations were into fertility worship and fornication religious rites.

James and the influence of the Gnostic Paul among the Gentile nations will change Judaism and how it views the "non-Jew" and its requirement of circumcision upon the "non-Jew" for inclusion into the Israel of God. At first Jewish disciples understood the message of the gospel as belonging to the nation of Israel alone (as it had previously been customary to exclude Gentiles except upon full conversion and circumcision), but the Holy Spirit soon directed otherwise (circumcision and full conversion were not required by God for relationship with Gentile believers), and this message spread through Philip to the half-Jewish Samaritans (Acts 8:5-8) and the non-Jewish proselytes to Judaism (Acts 8:26-36), through Peter to the uncircumcised "God-fearers" like the Roman centurion Cornelius (Acts 10:1-2), and finally through Cypriot and Cyrenian disciples to the pagan and idolatrous Gentiles (Acts 11:19-21). With the advent of the apostle Paul's ministry, great numbers of Gentiles began coming to the Lord (Acts 13:48-49) without the need of circumcision. The issue of how these non-Jewish believers were to be incorporated into the church body, therefore, became crucial and it is important to know that the whole of the Galatians letter which seems to be "against the Law" was, in reality, only concerning the Law of Circumcision which was being imposed incorrectly upon the "non-Jews".

Answer for yourself: Was "Messianic" Israel to continue to make it difficult for Gentiles to come to God (as other Jews had done) by requiring circumcision which was never within the Covenant of Noah (given to all the Gentile nations of the world), or would they heed the words of his Pastor James and repent and no longer require of Gentiles such an excluding rite?

Answer for yourself: Would the message of James and the Jerusalem Council carry more weight than the anti-Gentile doctrines espoused by the majority of Israel and other Rabbis like Shammai at that time?

The earliest converts to Christianity had been the Jerusalem Jews who heard Peter's stirring sermon on the day of Pentecost (Acts 2:14-36). They had been "pierced to the heart" by his call for repentance and a call to return to the Torah, and some three thousand of them had been baptized on that first day alone (Acts 2:37, 41). It was only natural, therefore, that these Jewish believers would feel anxious about seeing so many Gentiles entering the fellowship without undergoing the traditional conversion process (especially circumcision). After all, in the recent past no Gentile could be counted among God's people unless he was circumcised and submitted to ALL the Law (613 and not just 66): why many saw no reason to change anything regarding these "non-Jews".

So it was that while Paul was ministering in the Gentile territories of Asia, he encountered a number of Jewish Christians who had traveled up from the Jerusalem area to make sure that the Gentiles understood their legal obligations as imposed by the present Religious establishment in Jerusalem. These "Jews" from Jerusalem were brining with them the message that circumcision was required for the "non-Jew" to come to God. These were by and large Gentile hating Jews but circumcision was never required by God according to the Covenant He made with the Gentile world.

THE CONTROVERSY

Paul's Pharisaic background (Phil. 3:5) certainly gave him a ready understanding of the Judaizers' position, but on the basis of his knowledge of the gospel of grace (circumcision was not required), he strongly opposed their teaching.

Let us understand the New Testament correctly; in order to do that often passages have to be read and understood both in a cultural and historical setting if one desires to derive the truth from the passage instead of reading into the passage what he wants it to say. Years later he would explain to the Galatians:

A man is not justified by the works of the Law (referring to CIRCUMCISION only in this letter) but through faith in Christ Jesus (how are we to understand "Jesus Christ" here...allegory/literal?)... by the works of the Law (CIRCUMCISION only in this letter) shall no flesh be justified... if righteousness comes through the Law (CIRCUMCISION only in this letter), then Christ died needlessly (how are we to understand this death of Christ)....allegory/literal?) (Gal. 2:16,21)

There are questions lying behind the obvious questions that take a lot of study to come to the true understanding as was held some 2000 years ago not only by the writers of these ancient texts but as understood by the hearer. When one finds out for themselves that it was an "allegorical" understanding of the "death" and "resurrection" of the "Logos/Christ/Karast" within a person ("being born again") then it brings full meaning to the texts as we see some simple procedure of cutting skin from one's organ makes one not righteous but yet being a "picture" of cutting away the flesh of mankind and the Soul then the inner "Christ" is released to live in and through such a vessel whereby one now can become the actual vehicle for God to live, and move and have His being. In so doing then we should understand now a deeper level of a similar text:

Rom 2:13 13 (For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified. (KJV)

Here the text is not restricted as speaking only about "circumcision" as we find in Galatians which is confined by the context of the events at hand. There is a big difference!!!

Paul and Barnabas fought the Judaizers and their "false gospel" intended for the "non-Jews" (must be circumcised and converted to be saved" in Antioch for some time before it became clear that the debate must be resolved by official means (Acts 15:2 - the Jerusalem Council). At last the church at Antioch decided to send a delegation, led by Paul and Barnabas, to Jerusalem to consult the apostles and elders there. Whatever was decided at the council would determine the practice of the Gentile believers throughout the Roman Empire and throughout subsequent history.

Arriving at Jerusalem, Paul and his company were welcomed by the apostles and gave a full report of their ministry among the Gentiles (vs. 4). However, when the specific reason for Paul's visit was discussed, some of the believers of Pharisaic background immediately declared their support for the Judaizers. Not only must the Gentile believers be circumcised, they said, but they must be made to observe the Law as proselytes to Judaism had done in the past. Otherwise they were not truly saved (vs. 1,5).

Answer for yourself: Was this really such an important issue?

Answer for yourself: Couldn't the Judaizers (teaching the "non-Jew" must be circumcised and converted to be saved") have been allowed to prevail to keep the peace, or, as a compromise, couldn't the issue have been left up to individual conscience?

The apostles and elders quickly saw the foolishness of any such superficial means of dealing with the situation. No, it must be discussed and debated thoroughly, and a firm decision made, even though large numbers of Jewish believers and potential believers might be alienated if the ruling were not in the Judaizers' favor. The issue was crucial because it struck at the very center of the Jewish faith -- obedience to the Law "because one is saved by grace" and not "obedience to the Law to be saved," and that no further works of men (CIRCUMCISION) could add to or complete the salvation given by grace from God and justification of those who trusted in God through the Messianic outreach. If it were deemed necessary for a Gentile believer to accept circumcision and follow the Law "to be saved" (convert to Judaism as previously taught as customary by Biblical Judaism and the School of Shammai), then this would ultimately lead to an understanding that faith in God was superfluous and that "non-Jews" were not to approach God except through full conversion. But again God never said that and the Covenant of Noah proves it.

The debate among the apostles and elders went on at length, possibly for several days. They were struggling to get over their bigotry. No doubt many scriptures were consulted, many arguments raised. Luke does not record all the deliberations and all the evidence, but he does supply for us the closing remarks which decided the issue. First Peter rose up to speak, followed by Barnabas and Paul, and the final pronouncement was made by James "the Just", the half-brother of Christ who had become prominent in the Jerusalem church.

THE CONCLUSION

Peter's attempt to persuade his brethren was based on his personal experience of how God had worked in the hearts and lives of the Gentiles who had believed through his ministry. He described how God had not only directed him to share the gospel with pagan people, but had showed His approval by bestowing the Holy Spirit on those who had believed (vs. 8). By giving the Spirit He had clearly shown that in His sight the Gentile believers (uncircumcised Cornelius; where he was able to understand the Hebrew of Peter as were converts Gentiles on the day of Pentecost in Acts 2) were no different from and no less privileged than the Jewish believers.

Answer for yourself: This being the case, what grounds were there for saying that the uncircumcised Gentiles were inferior in God's sight and needed to do more to complete their salvation?

Answer for yourself: Had God Himself made a mistake in giving the Spirit prematurely to people who were not truly saved?

Surely not, said Peter.

Answer for yourself: Why, therefore, were the Judaizers attempting to be more strict than God Himself in this matter and forcing circumcision and full conversion upon the Gentiles?

The burden of keeping the Law was heavy, and no man had ever been able to fulfill it perfectly and completely (vs. 10). Therefore the Law could never be the means by which salvation came. Salvation was through faith in God as a free gift, and this was just as true of the Gentiles as it was of the Jews (vs. 11).

Paul and Barnabas' subsequent address to the council is not recorded, though it is summarized by Luke in verse 12 of the chapter. Their approach was similar to Peter's, in that they argued their case by relating their personal experience of God's mighty work among the Gentiles. Perhaps they related the incident at Lystra where God used Paul to heal a lame Gentile who had believed (Acts 14: 8-10) or told how God had set his stamp of approval on Paul's witness to the Gentiles by reviving him after he was stoned by a mob in the same city (14: 19-20).

In the face of the mounting evidence the crowd was silent, considering carefully the things they were hearing. But the final word must belong to James.

James was known and respected, even among unbelieving Jews, as a pious and Law-abiding man. His testimony in the world was impeccable and his authority highly regarded in the church. Because his love for the Old Testament was so well known, it was likely that the Judaizers believed he would be on their side. They were in for a surprise. James opened his argument with a quotation from the Old Testament, but the verses he gave came not from the Law but from the Prophets. Using a prophecy recorded by Amos, James described how in the past God had revealed that the Gentiles would come in to God's kingdom and be called by His name. God would surely support and strengthen Israel (vs. 16), but not for her own sake: rather, she would be used to draw the rest of the nations to Himself (vs. 17).

In light of this prophecy, James explained, it would be wrong to hinder the Gentiles from receiving the gospel by putting extra requirements upon them (CIRCUMCISION and "full conversion"). The Gentile nations as a whole had never been given the Law (613 which included CIRCUMCISION but only 66 which did not include CIRCUMCISION); the Law (613) had been given to Israel. In the past Gentiles who wished to follow God had voluntarily joined the Israelite nation through full conversion with circumcision, but this was no longer the case: now they were joining themselves to God without the requirement of full conversion. In the past few Gentiles had believed; now great numbers were coming to faith. It was clear that the Jerusalem church had repented of their bigotry toward Gentiles due to the Cornelius incident. It was clear that something significant had changed in Israel's dealings with mankind, and this could not be ignored.

No, the Gentiles were not to be burdened with the observance of the ALL the Law (613 including CIRCUMCISION) to be accepted with Israel and with God any longer....the Messianic part of Biblical Judaism would return to teaching the Laws and Covenant of Noah for the "non-Jews" to be accepted with God

Rather than the way it was done before by the School of Shammai and its "forced conversion" the "non-Jews" were to be encouraged and supported to accept God's gracious gift of Eternal Life which was being taken to them without the rigorous restrictions as before, and this was all done in the time of the hoped appearance of the Jewish Christ and Messiah, the one who is the ultimate goal and fulfillment of the Law (Rom. 10:4, Gal. 3:24-25).

Nevertheless, the issue of how to facilitate closer relations between Jewish and Gentile believers could not be ignored. There was no reason that Gentiles should give needless offense to the Jews by continuing in strongly pagan practices, and it was also necessary that Gentile believers should maintain some standard of godly conduct which might make them a testimony to their neighbors both Jewish and Gentile. Perhaps James also had in mind the basic commandments given to Noah prior to the Law, which Jews today still consider to be binding upon Gentiles.

James, Jesus' Pastor of the Jerusalem church ruled that although the Gentiles did not need any longer to be circumcised nor to accept the Mosaic Law (613) to be accepted by Israel or God (make full conversion), they are required by God to follow a few basic principles of morality and tablefellowship (called "necessary" in Acts).

I HATE TO TELL YOU THIS

Firstly, they should stay away from food which had been ritually offered to idols. Later, in his first epistle to the believers at Corinth, Paul would contradict James, pointing out that although such food was not evil in itself, and it was possible for a believer to eat it with a clear conscience, nevertheless Christians ought to refrain from such things if they caused others to stumble (1 Cor. 8:1-13, 10:19-20). In effect Paul was teaching that eating meat sacrificed to idols was permissible if a knowledgeable believer does not see you. This you need to know is a violation of the Covenant of Noah and Moses and constitutes idolatry. This was a second reason for the calling of the Acts 15 council in order to correct Paul in this and other matter. The Antioch incident will precipitate the convening of the Acts 15 council to deal not only with the Gentile question but the Pauline Problem.

Answer for yourself: Who are we to believe here...James, the hand-picked Pastor of the Jerusalem Church, or Paul? Remember the ruling of James and not Paul was called "necessary" and it was said that it, and not Paul's views, "sounded good to the Holy Spirit" according to Luke.

James's second ruling was that the Gentiles should stay away from blood (eating of blood in pagan worship) and sexual immorality, which was an extremely common practice among the pagans who regarded sexual activity with cult prostitutes as a form of worship. But this is only half the story; besides the admonition prohibiting the eating of the soul "blood" as seen in the Gentiles worship with their Eucharist we find that the word used for "fornication" in Acts refers metaphorically to the worship of idols; used of the defilement of idolatry, as incurred by eating the sacrifices offered to idols. Again we have the issue of tablefellowship as before and it was these actions being compromised at Antioch with Paul.

Paul also reiterated this teaching to the Corinthians (1 Cor. 6:15-20). The third ruling was not repeated by Paul in his epistles: the Gentiles were to abstain from the meat of strangled animals and from the eating of blood. Again we have the issue of tablefellowship as before.

None of these commandments were unreasonable or unduly burdensome, and they served to give some moral direction to the Gentiles and to remind them to be considerate of their Jewish brethren, while at the same time rebuffing the Judaizers. The whole council, including Paul and Barnabas, seems to have agreed willingly with James. A letter was drafted to send to the Gentile churches in Syria and in Asia Minor to notify them of the council's official decision. This letter served five purposes:

- one, it established that Gentiles who turned from idols to serve the living God were required to follow and adhere to the Laws of Noah as "minimum" requirements of fellowship with both Israel and God;
- second it made clear that the Judaizers who had come from Jerusalem were not officially sent by the apostles and did not have their approval (vs. 24);
- third, it showed unconditional approval for Barnabas and gave Paul a second chance to adhere to the official doctrine of the Jerusalem church which was to be taught among the Gentiles (vs. 25-26);

- fourth it commended Judas and Silas to the work among the Gentiles (vs. 27); and
- fifth, it laid out in writing the simple requirements the Gentiles were to follow, so that no legalist might misrepresent or add to them (vs. 28-29) as had been done before.

History teaches us that soon Paul would make an official break with the Jerusalem church shortly after this council's decision and this will require him being called again to Jerusalem to answer charges in Acts 21.

THE CONSEQUENCES

When the meeting at Jerusalem concluded, Barnabas, Paul and their new companions Judas and Silas promptly carried the apostolic letter to the church at Antioch, where it was received with great rejoicing (vs. 30:31). Although the issue of whether or not circumcision and Law-keeping were necessary to salvation remained a hotly debated one in the Christian community for some time afterward, and Paul was soon forced to write a lengthy epistle to the church at Galatia to counteract the grievously effective work of the Judaizers among them (requiring Gentiles to be circumcised a condition of acceptance with Israel and God which God accepted Gentiles in the Noahide Covenant without circumcision), there could no longer be a doubt as to the opinion of the leading apostles and elders on this question. The official statement had been made:

Gentiles were justified by faith in God alone.

Neither circumcision nor observance of the Mosaic Law was necessary to complete their justification. Jewish believers, too, could see in this ruling a new freedom: knowing that the Law (of circumcision only) was not necessary to salvation of man, but is to be obeyed and adhered to because they are already saved. Obedience to God's Laws of ethics and morality is the zenith of our demonstration of our love for God.

They could enjoy the positive aspects of their Jewish heritage while not being burdened by it. Thus we see that the first and earliest followers of the Jewish Christ commanded in fulfillment of the Great Commission the teaching not of a "new" Covenant which replaced the prior Covenants of God but a return to the Covenant and Laws of Noah for the Gentiles to have a saving relationship with God

Answer for yourself: Now you must ask yourself: Is this what you are being taught by your Christian Church and if not why not? What changed in the years following the Jerusalem Council's decision and subsequent ministry by them along with Paul? Nothing! Nothing that is until Rome will come in the 3rd through 5th century and destroy the faith taught Israel by the Jewish Christ as God's voice and create a false faith.

Bet Emet stands ready to help you return to the faith once given the Saints.

HAVE WE MISUNDERSTOOD PAUL'S MESSAGE IN THE BOOK OF GALATIANS? #1

The Book of Galatians is frequently regarded as a pivotal book in Christianity's rejection of the Law and the Torah for "non-Jewish" believers today. Paul's letter to the Galatians is the Scripture most used to try and prove that God's Law has been done away with with Jesus. Typical Christians will tell you that the Book of Galatians describes the believer's freedom from "the Law" through the New Testament Jesus and his work of providing "salvation" apart from the Law. They will tell you that, according to Rom 10:4 that "...Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth. (KJV)" And since they "believe in Jesus" then the Law of God and its demands upon upon both them is put away because they "believe" in typical Christian doctrines taught about this Jesus. It seems so simple on the surface reading of such texts. Many theologians cite passages from Galatians to establish that the so-called "Mosaic Law" (i.e., Torah) given at Mount Sinai has no validity for "new covenant" believers and Christianity down through its 1,700 year history has taught the cessation of this "Law" for both Jews and "non-Jews".

Answer for yourself: But is this position correct? Did Jesus remove the Law that God gave the Israelites at Sinai and replace it with a different law? And what are we to make of the fact, as we have seen on other articles, that the Jerusalem Church commanded that the "non-Jews", when coming to the God of Israel, are required to adhere to and obey the "Laws of Noah" in Acts 15 as commanded by James and described to us as being both "necessary" and "seemed good to the Holy Spirit".

What are we to make of the statement in Acts 21:20 which describes the conditions that existed in the "Jesus Movement" some 30 to 35 years following the New Testament's depiction of the death of this Jesus: "And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all zealous of the law: (KJV)". Something is amiss here and we are missing something! We are failing to understand properly what we are reading and it appears that an objective reading of these as well as other texts in our New Testaments provide a conflicting "picture" as to the status of the Law for "believers".

The key to understanding anything in the Bible is an awareness of the CONTEXT of the Scripture you're reading. Paul's epistle to the Galatians is no exception. We have to remember that this text is a letter that Paul wrote to try and correct a problem that was occurring in Galatia. To fully grasp what Paul is saying in this pivotal New Testament epistle, we must become aware of the specific problems that had arisen in Galatia. We must also understand who was causing those problems. Our goal in this article is to compare Paul's comments to the Galatians with teachings that existed in 1st-century Judaism. By doing this, we will identify the group of "Judaizers" who were disturbing Paul's converts in Galatia.

Answer for yourself: But is Paul's apparent "negativity" to the Law the "whole truth" of the matter that Paul was trying to convey to his audience in the first century and was Paul really saying that with Jesus the "Law ended" or have we today possibly terribly misunderstood the real message and its true meaning behind these writings of Paul?

The answer to this problem is of utmost importance for the Christian as well as the Jew as it lies at the very foundation of one's relationship to God whether you are aware of it at this time in your life or not. Sadly, the Book of Galatians is also often portrayed as the death knell for "Jewish Christianity", or should I rather call it "Messianic Judaism" today. The vast majority of Christians have come to interpret "any Jewish observance" in Christianity as negative and just "Judaizing".

Answer for yourself: What is the real message of the book of Galatians?

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that you have been completely misled in understanding Paul's point in Galatians and by passages that say "Christ is the end of the Law" because you have failed to understand the unique circumstances that prompted its writing in the first place?

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that when Paul was saying to the Gentile believers of Galatia that "you are not under the Law" that he only meant "ONE LAW;" the commandment of circumcision as it was being applied by the Jews toward Gentile believers for their inclusion into the Israel of God? Is it possible that Paul never desired nor wanted others to come to the conclusions we have in Christianity today and in reality never intended that Gentile believers to believe that God's Law and Commandments, for example those concerning the Sabbath, the Biblical Festivals, unclean foods, proper observance of the Tithe, etc., had "ceased" and that they did not any longer apply to them, let alone all "non-Jewish" believers as we have construed today?

Unknown to the vast majority of Christians today is the historical context of these verses they read. Unknown to most Christians is the fact that different Jewish sects taught different meanings for circumcision. Despite the common misconception of most Christians, Paul was not opposed to circumcision per se. In fact, he required circumcision of his co-worker Timothy (Acts 16:1-4), and he stated that "the sign of circumcision" is "a seal of the righteousness of the faith" (Rom. 4:11). But Paul's adversaries in Galatia were teaching that circumcision was required for the "non-Jew" to come to the God of Israel and be accepted into the "Israel of God". Yet we have seen in our earlier studies that no such Command was ever given by God to the "non-Jews" or to Israel to be taught to the Gentile nations in the first place. The issue of circumcision was for the "non-Jew" to be totally voluntary and was connected to his decision to make "full conversion" to Judaism and no longer continue as a "Godfearer".

We will have to investigate this historical context more closely to be sure, and you will be wonderfully surprised once finishing your study considering what you have heard preached by the majority of Pastors and teachers in the contemporary Christian churches of today. In fact what you will come to see will open your eyes to these texts you have read your whole life never truly seeing what prompted their writing in the first place.

Answer for yourself: Is the book of Galatians teaching the cessation and abolition of all Jewish observances among Jews as well as "non-Jews" when these "non-Jews" "turned to God from idols to serve the living and true God" according to I. Thess 1:9?

Some say yes, some say no. Only one group can be correct. We must investigate to be certain we don't fall into the group that erroneously teaches doctrines opposite of what God desires for the "non-Jewish" world and what was taught by the Jerusalem Church in Acts 15 and 16 and which were taught in all of Asia, Minor, when the Great Commission was attempted as seen in Acts 16 and following.

Answer for yourself: Does the book of Galatians teach the abolition of obedience to ordinances, statutes, and commandments taught both by Moses and the Jewish Christ and intended to be taught likewise to the Gentiles in the Great Commission?

You must be the judge for yourself as you study.

Other than the book of Revelation, the book of Galatians is the most ## misunderstood book in the whole of the Bible!

Answer for yourself: Does the book of Galatians teach that grace has replaced the need for obedience to God's Laws that were given to provide examples and patterns for Godly conduct if obeyed?

You must be the judge for yourself as you study.

These are just a few of the difficult questions we will address in the following articles.

NEW LIGHT UPON OLD DARKNESS...WE BENEFIT TODAY LIKE AT NO OTHER TIME IN HISTORY...IF ONLY WE KNEW TO LOOK

Unfortunately, the "cessation of the Law" perspective has surfaced more regularly of late especially since the modern rise of the Messianic Jewish movement which is a movement among today's Jewish followers of the Jewish Christ as well as Gentile followers which stresses the return to the Hebraic Roots of early Christianity. It is their intent to express themselves and their faith using the Jewish Biblical traditions and help establish synagogues and churches where both Jews and "non-Jews" worship God together. Bet Emet Ministries and ministries like it are the fruit of this teshuvah (repentance, returning to God and what He says instead of our inherited Roman Church traditions). The cause for such a return among multitudes of Christians to their Jewish Roots is the deep longing in their hearts and mind to earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints as taught in Jude 1:3. This has occurred for many reasons, not the least of which is the discovery upon serious study by many of the many Biblical truths that have come to light as the fruit of such in-depth study of the first century faith of the Jewish Christ by those within the Messianic movement. We are indebted to the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls for new illumination that makes suspect much of what we inherited as our normative "church tradition". But too few know of these developments and the earth-shaking revelations discovered at Qumran that brings into serious question much of what typical Gentile Christianity has taught the world for the last 1,700 years. It is these discoveries at Qumran as well as others that have confirmed many Jewish and Biblical truths which have remained hidden and or misrepresented by Rome for 17 centuries by our traditional Christianity, which only now, in our day and time, especially since the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls, and the Nag Hammadi library are being revealed to all serious seekers of truth. Because of the surfacing of new Biblical truths in our day, as stated above we benefit today by being assured of the correct interpretation of the Book of Galatians (historically, linguistically, culturally). This discovery just concerning the Book of Galatians must be seen by all and understood as the antidote to the errors being preached from the pulpits of our land which mistakenly lead good people away from the true righteousness of God and into sin, much of which they are not aware. And all of this lies at the feet of Rome's purposeful misrepresentation of the Law!

The cause for such a return among multitudes of Christians to "faith which was once delivered unto the saints" is the fact that many Biblical truths that have come to light and illumination through in-depth study of the faith of the first century Judaism as it is rightfully interpreted...especially since the discovery of the Dead Sea Scrolls and the Nag Hammadi Library of Egypt

Answer for yourself: We must come to terms with the biggest question facing the Christian in his walk with God; namely, does the Book of Galatians indeed teach that maintaining the Jewish traditions and heritage is wrong for the followers of the Jewish Christ, both Jew and Gentile? I am totally convinced that once you study you can confidently say "no."

Answer for yourself: Surprisingly, contrary to what you have been erroneously taught, does the book of Galatians in fact, rightly interpreted, teach that Gentile believers are right to observe Jewish ordinances such as the Sabbath, the New Moon festivals, the seven Biblical Holy Days and Sabbaths, the Law of the Tithe as taught by the Hebrew Scriptures, as well as many other "Laws" that in reality have not "ceased" with Christ as we once supposed and as we have been taught from the pulpits of our Churches?

LET US BEGIN OUR SERIOUS INVESTIGATION TO ANSWER THE ABOVE QUESTIONS

To your surprise, that is exactly what Paul is telling them as you can quickly see from Galatians chapter 4:8:

Gal 4:8-11 8 Howbeit then, when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them which by nature are no gods. 9 But now, after that ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye desire again to be in bondage? 10 Ye observe days, and months, and times, and years. 11 I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed upon you labour in vain. (KJV)

Before we begin...some more questions to set the stage....

Answer for yourself: Have you been taught by your church that "those old Jewish rites and ceremonies" have been done away with by the death of Jewish Christ as we see in this New Testament given us by Rome and not Israel? Most likely you have.

Answer for yourself: In this book of Galatians, do we find Paul writing before or after the time given for the death of this Jesus? We all can agree that it is "after" so any "pattern" or "picture" that we see in our study as it applied to the "non-Jew" should tell us and be interpreted that in spite of this "death" of Jesus some twenty years earlier that the events under questions and which we study are the intended will of God as understood both by the Jerusalem Church and Paul in spite of this "death of Jesus". At the core of what we are saying is determination if the death of this "Jesus" had any affect or bearing on what was later "taught" and "done" by either James and the Jerusalem Church and Paul. I believe it is fair to say that the events following this time for the "Jewish Christ" in an around 30 C.E. and as seen from the study of the Book of Acts regarding the "non-Jews" coming to God are to be understood as the determined will of God for both Jew and "non-Jew" since these New Testament texts assure us that the Apostolic community had determined that the said events "...seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things; (KJV)" Acts 15:28 28. It is inconceivable that they could had gone out and "done it wrong".

This brings us to the problem of the "non-Jews" and circumcision and the turning of the "non-Jews" to God in great numbers during this time of Israel's history. Let us refresh the condition of the "non-Jew" in the mind of God as seen in the Bible.

Eph 2:12 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Does Paul tell us that the "non-Jewish" world, in particular Galatia to whom Galatians is addressed, did not know God, His ways, and were ignorant of His precepts, Covenants, Laws, Ordinances, Statutes, and Commandments; therefore their religious worship was service unto "non-gods?" Yes.

Gal 4:8-9 8 Howbeit then, when ye knew not God, ye did service unto them which by nature are no gods.

Answer for yourself: And why was that? They did not posses the truth concerning the Creator and His indwelling within them as seen in Paul's later disclosures. They had not been taught correctly the truths about the Creator and their responsibilities to Him. But Paul was to change all of this or at least he hoped for he would bring them a message that would change their lives.

Col 1:27 27 To whom God would make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles; which is Christ in you, the hope of glory: (KJV)

Paul has experienced this same "revelation" when he converted to Judaism since he was a "non-Jew" as well.

Gal 1:16 16 To reveal his Son (the Christ) in me, that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood: (KJV)

Gal 4:19 19 My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you, (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Does Paul remind these "non-Jews" they are no longer in ignorance of God or His ways, in fact, does Paul stress the point that "NOW" they have come to the knowledge of the True and Living God? Yes on both counts.

Gal. 4:9 But now, after that ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye desire again to be in bondage? (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Do you see the "time factor" in the above verse? Do you see Paul's emotional consternation at the fact that "NOW", these Gentile believers, having since come to know God, been taught His ways, His statutes, and His Laws and Commandments, were "turning back AGAIN" (a quote from Gal. 4:9) to those things which they had previously practiced and believed while yet they were ignorant Gentiles? I hope so. This is terribly important to note at this time of our study. They were turning away from the "Jewish Revelation" of God as well as what they, as "non-Jews", had been taught about their Covenants, Laws, Ordinances, Statutes, etc. In other words, they were "rejecting the message of Israel" given them already once by Paul. They were rejecting the idea that "salvation is of the Jews" as we read in parts of the New Testament. Historically it is important that we take notice that synagogues were not only in Israel but in Asia, minor as well. Thus we should expect that the "non-Jews" had come to know certain things concerning the God of Israel.

Acts 15:21 21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every sabbath day. (KJV)

Early in the first century, Asia Minor was a mixture of ancient Anatolian, Hittite, Greek and Roman culture. Most of the people were pagans, who worshipped the great earth mother goddess Cybele, later known as Artemis, or Diana. But there was also a thriving Jewish community in the region. Diaspora Jews had settled there in the preceding two centuries, establishing themselves in trade and commerce. They had also built synagogues, where they worshipped freely on the Sabbath, welcoming visitors into their midst - Gentile converts (proselytes), God-fearers (uncircumcised Gentile worshippers of the God of Israel) or simply curious Gentile onlookers. So when the apostle Paul began visiting synagogues in Asia Minor, he was able to preach the gospel to both Jews and Gentiles at the same time, and fledgling churches began to grow. In the first century, followers of the Way were generally considered a sect of Judaism, and because Judaism was one of the legalized religions of the Roman Empire, they had a certain measure of protection. As a result, the churches soon became well established. In the shadow of Judaism, believers were allowed to worship on the Sabbath and weren't necessarily required to worship emperors, even though the imperial cult had been established for some decades. By John's time, however, things had begun to change. In some areas an effort had been made to Romanize the population more thoroughly, and there the issue for believers had become, "Who was Lord - Caesar or Christ?" The confrontation between Christ's followers and the Roman authorities was now clearly focused. It was against this backdrop, and the pagan society and customs of the time, that Paul will rebuke these Galatians from "turning back AGAIN" to those things which they had previously practiced and believed while yet they were ignorant Gentiles following the pagan religions of the time. We see clearly that Paul encouraged the churches to resist various pressures to compromise God's way of life which they had learned from letting the light of Judaism shine into their lives.

Answer for yourself: Can you now see that historically these believing Gentiles who had come to know God's ways, His rites, His ordinances, His Laws, His Commandments, His Sabbaths, His Festivals, were "turning back AGAIN" those pagan observances of months and pagan days, and other religious holidays which they had previously repented of and ceased to observe and practice since coming to faith and knowledge in the God of Israel and the true "Pattern of Worship" as taught by Judaism for both Jews and "non-Jews"? You should be able to see that now.

In other words these formerly pagan believers who observed pagan holy days sanctioned by Rome had repented of such false worship once coming to the knowledge of the God of the Jews and His ways, but were now, falling away from Judaism and returning to pagan worship which they had before...much of which the Christian Church still observes today in their rejection of Biblical Judaism

LET US PLAY THE DEVIL'S ADVOCATE FOR A MOMENT

Answer for yourself: How can we be sure that those "months, days, and years" are not Jewish Festivals and Sabbaths and that Paul is rebuking Gentile believers for observing? Understand that this is how traditional Gentile Roman Christianity has interpreted the passage.

It really is easy to get the truth of this matter. Pagans did not of their own course celebrate Jewish Holy Days for they had their own pagan holidays which they observed (like Lent, Easter, Sol Invictus as Sunday, Christmas as the Saturnalia, etc.). It would be physically impossible for these Galatian believers to have been practicing paganism and "return again" to paganism. Such an idea does grave injustice to the thoughts of Paul let alone the truth that lies behind both "history" and the texts themselves. If one turns again he received a new direction. It is called repentance. Most definitely we find here that Gentile believers, having turned from prior pagan days and their perverted worship of the Divine, were observing Jewish and Biblical days once that they have come to "know God and His ways." It is from these Biblical days, months, and years from which they were turning since coming to faith and knowledge in the God of Israel and going back to their previous pagan ways; and under the influence of emotionalism and false teaching found themselves returning back to the pagan holidays of their previous religious lives. To such we have Paul's admonition and rebuke. Thus we find that nowhere does the grace we receive from God absolve us of our responsibility to obey the teachings of the Apostles as we find Paul teaching Gentiles in Galatia. Make no mistake about it; Paul taught a "Gentile brand" of Judaism to these Galatians.

Answer for yourself: Do you now see that Paul was teaching Gentiles to observe the Jewish Festivals, Holy Days, and Sabbaths, and it was from these Biblical injunctions that they "were turning back away from" to return again to the pagan life-style from which they had been delivered since coming to God and His ways?

You should. That should make us wonder why we celebrate the Roman Calendar in our Christian Churches instead of the Biblical Festivals as did the early Gentile Church before the rise of Rome in the 3rd through 5th centuries.

Answer for yourself: Is this what is done in your church as well; do you observe Easter or Passover? When was the last time your Pastor let you in the Passover Haggadah, or Shavuot, or Sukkoth, or Rosh HaShannah, or taught correctly the Sabbath? Has your church rejected the Biblical Festivals in favor of their own "traditional" church calendar inherited from Rome? Would you receive the rebuke of Paul today, or worse, the rebuke of God never knowing without serious study that you have been deceived?

WHY SHOULD WE OBEY..."TO BE SAVED" OR "BECAUSE WE ARE SAVED"?

Answer for yourself: Having seen that manifestations of the Law (such as adherence and observance of Festivals and Sabbath-Saturday) were being taught to Gentiles following the time given for the death of the New Testament Jesus, a death by the way that was supposed to change everything, we find historically that nothing really changed. This is perplexing given the traditional Christian "theology" and dogmas that have come down the halls of the Roman Gentile Church and Vatican. We find, as shown repeatedly in earlier articles on this website, numerous historical reference by the Church Fathers no less of the "non-Jewish" believers observing with the Jews these "appointed Holy times" with the Jews let alone following a "Jewish" expression of faith in the God of Israel. Countless examples have been already given from the Old and New Testaments when looking into the Hebrew and Greek behind our English texts of instances where the normal practice was that both Jews and "non-Jews" worshipped together the God of Israel and observed many of the same Laws and Commandments of God, both in Old and New Testament times. Something is wrong with the picture and expression of our Christian Faith today because this "Pattern of Worship" is no longer followed in Gentile Christianity and we see that it did not change after 30 A.D. as we are led to believe. Rather your study into the matter will show you that the real changes come early in the 4th century by the decree of Constantine and others. Over time and with the destruction of as much of this "Jewish history" as could be managed by Rome few would remember and follow such a "Pattern of Worship" a few generations later. We come to see upon such unbiased study that the New Testament can be shown to record that Paul was later teaching Gentiles and "non-Jews" to obey these and to observe these Divine Sabbaths of God. He did this because it was the Divine Truth as he knew it "then" and did not that these "non-Jews" could "BE SAVED" but became they were "ALREADY SAVED". Having come to saving "faith" in the God of Israel then obedience to the Laws and Commandments of God in their respective Covenants was required. That is why James called these "requirements" both "necessary" and said that they "seemed good to the Holy Spirit" in Acts 15. Let us never forget that obedience is always our loving response to God's grace in "saving us" and revealing Himself to us.

Answer for yourself: So then, if Gentiles who were brought to faith in the God of Israel thorough the ministry and outreach of both the Jewish Jerusalem Assembly as seen in Acts 15 and Acts 16, as well as Paul in his travels and 3 missions, both before and after the Acts 15 council, were, as seen in study of our texts, worshipping alongside the Jews, keeping the Sabbath, the Festival of Passover, the Festival of Unleavened Bread, Festival of Shavuot \(Pentecost\), the Festival of Yom Kippur, the Festival of Tabernacles, and being taught the Torah as well as the principles of Isaiah 56, then does it not stand to reason today that "the Law" was not understood to have "passed away" long after the time of the New Testament Jesus since observation of these "appointed times" are taught for both Jews and "non-Jews" in the Hebrew Scripture as well as the examples found in the New Testament? Should we not learn something from this historical example, both before and after the time for the Jewish Christ and as Christians and follower of the Jewish Christ should we not likewise be following this same "Pattern of Worship" that we see in these inherited passages even when they, when properly understood and interpreted correctly by recovering the "keys" to correct Biblical hermeneutics, contradict our current Church's teachings and practice let alone current Christian doctrine? Of course the answer we must give before God is "yes".

This is a very big and disturbing question when you see it in all of its ramifications and the impact of what I am showing you hits home in your mind and life.

Answer for yourself: If Paul was not actually saying that all these "Laws" had passed away but was only speaking of the Law of Circumcision (in his Galatians letter) as no longer applying to the "non-Jew" in his day despite efforts of many strict Jews who wanted to apply it to all "non-Jews" then dear Christian, what right do we have to attend churches which do not teach us these same Laws and Commandments to us?

Can you grasp the importance of what I am saying when, as you will see the more that you study, that there are Laws and Commandments and examples for us "non-Jews" in both the Old and New Testaments which show us that the teachings and observances in worship both before and after the time given for the New Testament Jesus are 180 degrees contrary to what we have been taught to both "believe" and "do" by Roman Christianity today?

- Are you aware that many of these Laws and Commandments given you as a "non-Jewish" believer as found in the Hebrew Scriptures affect whether your worship of God lies in a form of idolatry and blasphemy or not?
- Do we dare forget that it was this historical James that is recorded for us which spoke of the requirements for "non-Jews" turning to God and that he mentioned certain "necessary things" required of all "non-Jews"; "necessary things" that can be shown today to have come from the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah?
- Are you aware that many of these "necessary" things define what "is" and "is not" idolatry and blasphemy and that many of them are "cardinal Christian teachings" today that center of orthodox religious beliefs attached to this New Testament Jesus?
- Could many of our Christian dogmas and doctrines which we are taught today and "believe in" be actual manifestations of idolatry and blasphemy of the Name of God and we not know it?
- Could many of these Laws given the "non-Jewish" believe, once though to have "passed away" or "ended with this Christ" actually not passed away at all except in the mind of Rome and our failure to know this fact from our lack of serious study of the reliability of the Roman New Testament has prevented us from seeing that many things we are taught to "believe" in Christianity today renders us as "sinners" before God and we not know it?
- If the "non-Jew" continued in the same worship of God from Jewish witness both before and after the time for this depicted death of the Jewish Christ according to this New Testament then when did these things change and was Rome behind it?
- If it can be shown from historical study that nothing changed in religious dogmas taught by Israel to the "non-Jews" and that the worship of God at taught the "non-Jew" remained the same long after the time for this New Testament Jesus and did so into the early 5th century then should we not question what we are being taught today and seek answers as to why things changed at all?
- Could it be that the only "Law" that changed and ceased which Paul says the "non-Jew" was not "under" is the Law of Circumcision which was never given to the "non-Jew" in the first place?
- Why is our Gentile Christian religious beliefs of today so different from what was taught the "non-Jews" by Israel for the first 5 centuries and why has our experience today as Gentile followers of "the Christ" and Christians so different and deviating from this "theology" taught way back then?
- Why has Roman and Greek pagan holidays and their "literalized" doctrines of the "godman" or "the Christ" as well as Rome's teaching that the "Laws of God passed away" and "grace superceding the Laws of God" been substituted for what was taught 2,000 years ago?
- What is the truth concerning our real standing before God as we begin to question our Christian experience?
- Could it be that we as "non-Jewish" Christians actually stand before our God and Creator in great disobedience and without the right Covenant because of the antisemitism of Rome which set about changing everything in the 3rd through the 5th centuries and in place of the "the faith which was once delivered unto the saints" we are given by Rome and follow a faith substituted by Rome and we don't know the extent of our disobedience?

As we study it is my hope that this information and facts presented you makes you "think" and do you own personal study into these serious issues; issues that were awakened to me while I was in Seminary and during the early years of my Pastorate. During these intense times of study and reflection I began to see how I had been misled in my inherited Christian faith. It is all about the "reliability" of this New Testament given us by Rome and this is where the problems lie. We should repent immediately as these studies come to impact our lives and minds and we can begin to learn how to observe those special appointed times with God which He gave us, we can learn the real truth behind God's "appointed times" and no longer observe those church holidays given to us by the antisemites of Rome. Once you see this truth of which I speak and realize the shame that we carry as Christians who never studied to know the truth of our faith then the fruit of your seeking out the truth of your birth faith and the knowledge you gain in such studies should be the greatest motivator for your repentance and your return to ""the faith which was once delivered unto the saints"". As we are beginning to see the things of which I speak then we slowly come to see that the "real Paul" did not ever teach that the "Law" (Laws and Commandments that make up our Covenants with God) ceased with Christ; instead only the Law of Circumcision "ceased" to be required of "non-Jews" who were turning in his day to the God of Israel! Paul, in agreement with James on this issue, understood which most Pastors and Christian teachers don't know today; namely, that the "non-Jew" as well as the "Jew" are possessors of Covenants before God which are defined by various Laws and Commandments, both positive and negative, by which their standing before God is determined!

BUT MY CHURCH TOLD ME THAT THE LAW WAS "AGAINST ME"...WHAT IS THE TRUTH?

Knowing that we are saved by grace, such knowledge should not give us a license to sin by not observing the Laws and Commandments of God. We, as thankful believers should desire to obey the God who gives us the free gift of Eternal Life and Salvation. If, when reading the Bible, and especially Paul, let us never forget that the only part of the Law that was written in ordinances which was against us was the "death penalty" for our breaking of the Laws of God. It is this part of the Law, the judicial part of the Law that revealed our need for salvation, and it has served its purpose to motivate us and led us to God and His salvation. That part of the Law is finished in the life of a believer as the Law has drawn him to God and His Torah; for within the Torah is the blue-print for Eternal Life.

But the Law of God is more than just "judicial". The instructive and teaching aspect of the Law still remains for both "Jewish" and "non-Jewish" believers today (Christians) as it did for the Galatians and Paul. To such Gentiles Paul took the Law (for example the Laws of the Torah regarding ethics and regarding worship of the Creator that lay out the "Pattern" for the world; worship that included the observance of the Festivals and Sabbaths for example) and to us he would do the same if we were able to come and instruct us in our Churches today. It is a shame that Paul could say that he was "not guilty of failing to preach the whole counsel of God" when so many Christian leaders are guilty today in failing to do what Paul says. It is important you grasp the next thought. Paul taught the Law as a consequence of "being saved," thus strengthening our relationship with the God who saves us, and not as a prerequisite to being saved. E. P. Sanders says it best: "Whatever obligations of obedience to the law were required of the covenant people (both Jew and "non-Jew"), they were required as a response to the initiatives of God's grace. For this reason, Sanders describes the pattern of religion that was pervasive to Second Temple Judaism as "covenantal nomism." Covenantal nomism understands that:

- We "get in" the covenant relationship by grace, and
- We "stay in" or "maintain" the covenant relationship by works.

So for anyone that teaches or preaches that Gentile believers are NOT to observe the Law because it brings bondage and legalism (ie., the commandments, statutes, and ordinances concerning such things as Festivals, Sabbaths, Holy Days, and ethics, etc.) have totally misunderstood Paul and his message in Galatians. Such views espoused by many churches conflict with the true historical message of the real Paul by 180 degrees!

HAS CURRENT CHRISTIAN THEOLOGY CAUSED ME TO VIOLATE THE LAW AND THUS CAUSED ME TO SIN?

Answer for yourself: Does our misunderstanding of the message of Paul cause us to sin by producing in us multitudes of conflicting denominational and non-denominational belief systems and their resulting conducts and behaviors which, more often than not, oppose the real words and message of which God commanded us to both believe and do? It sure does.

...to be sure we to be right with God we must interpret His word correctly... we must study from a Jewish viewpoint (REMEMBER YESHUA IS JEWISH AND WE ARE TO HAVE THE MIND OF CHRIST ...THIS IS A JEWISH MIND)...

Answer for yourself: Have you ever thought that you could go to church and be taught to sin by being told "not to do what God has said," by being told "what God has revealed and said is "Eternal" in the Hebrew Scriptures is now passed away", by being told that "much of the Bible was pertinent only till the death of the Jewish Christ and the death of Jewish Christ changed everything" (I have many articles that show that things did not change with the death of this Jesus and that Paul still was teaching much of the Law to the Gentiles after the time given for the death of the New Testament Jesus), and by being told "to do, observe or practice what God never said"? The sad irony of the matter is that when you study hard you find that your life as a normative Christian is full of "believing" and "doing" what God commanded not to be believed and be done as recorded in the Law, Prophets, and Writings (the Hebrew Scriptures). Let us not forget that we serve a Living God who says "For I am the LORD, I change not..." Mal 3:6 6. If God never changes well something sure did as historical study of the origin of Gentile Christianity as its separated from its Hebrew and Jewish Roots reveals. This sad fact impacts all of what we have been taught to believe by Rome in their book, their "Second New Testament" and explains why typical Gentile Christianity today rejects the Hebrew Roots of the early Jewish-Gentile church. Your understanding and interpretation of this material is paramount to your "true standing" before God as I will enumerate further in the second article in this series.

HAVE WE MISUNDERSTOOD PAUL'S MESSAGE IN THE BOOK OF GALATIANS? #2

YOUR UNDERSTANDING AND INTERPRETATION OF THIS MATERIAL IS PARAMOUNT TO YOUR "TRUE" STANDING BEFORE GOD

We pick up where we left off in the previous article. Just a short summary of what we discovered is beneficial at this time. We began to see that Paul's negative attitude to the Law as expressed in the Book of Galatians was influenced by a cultural and religious problem unique to Judaism at that particular time involving the acceptance of the "non-Jew" into the Israel of God. Judaism was split between two Schools of Pharisees; the School of Shammai where circumcision was enforced upon the "non-Jew" before he and his family could be accepted into the Israel of God and the School of Hillel which followed the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah and accepted the "non-Jew" and his family into the Israel of God without enforced circumcision of the father of the household. Circumcision upon an adult male was often fatal due to infection from the procedure and unlike an 8 day old baby who possessed his mother's antibodies against infection the adult male had no such protection. The threat of infection and possible death was a strong deterrent keeping the "non-Jewish" males from Judaism along with their families. The School of Shammai used this knowledge to keep the "non-Jew" outside of a Biblical relationship with the God of Israel. In other words total conversion of the "non-Jew" and his family was not enforced upon the "non-Jew" by only a part of Israel and the the opposing camp of Shammai and his School of Pharisees adhered to the opposite of the School of Hillel.

It is difficult for us, in our culture, to comprehend the structure of the theocratic government of Israel in the first century. But the most important group in Israel was the Pharisees who sat under the teachings of a rabbi named Shammai, who founded his school shortly before the beginning of the first century. Ironically, the closest example in our country to illustrate the philosophies of this school would be to imagine a White Supremist church. The school of Shammai was somewhat similar in philosophy, believing, among other things, that the Hebrew seed of Abraham were the only people beloved of God and that other nations were of no value. Salvation, in their opinion, was only available to Jews, and few would even consider allowing a Gentile to convert to Judaism. Most Pharisees from the school of Shammai hated Gentiles and had little regard even for Jews who didn't follow them (in one case, nearly attacking Hillel himself for bringing a sacrifice to the Temple on a day they disapproved of). So passionate was the hatred of these Pharisees for Gentiles that around 8 AD Shammai passed 18 edicts specifically meant to force separation between Jews and Gentiles. The specifics of these edicts have been lost, but among them was a prohibition of entering the house of a Gentile lest a Jew thereby become defiled, and even eating with or purchasing food from a Gentile was forbidden. Because of Shammai's influence, these edicts became laws of Israel. Thus, when you read of Peter being criticized for eating with or entering the houses of Gentiles (in Peter's case by his fellow Christians under James, who probably had been taught by the school of Shammai), this criticism traces itself to the edicts passed by this school. The school of Shammai, which was politically proactive, also had close ties to the infamous Zealots, a group of fanatics who favored armed revolt against Rome. It's critical for you to note that virtually every time you see the Apostles in strife against what the Bible label as "Pharisees" or "Judaizers" it is referring specifically to Pharisees or ex-Pharisees from the School of Shammai and not the School of Hillel who led the other Pharisees of Israel. It is important to note that Paul would have had many differences with his fellow Pharisees from the School of Shammai because of his outreach to the "non-Jew" and it would be this Shammai School of Pharisees which would be the dominant influence in Judaism until the destruction of the Temple in 70 A.D. and it would be his ideas concerning the "non-Jews" whom we find the Pharisees like James and the Jerusalem Church oppose.

Of lesser influence in Israel was the School of Hillel. The school of Hillel was far more liberal, and its founder was renowned for placing people and mercy at the heart of Judaism whereas Shammai stressed strict observation of religious laws, not unlike the difference between the extremist Taliban fundamentalists compared to Moderates in Islam. While Hillel's followers acknowledged that the Jews were God's special people, they willingly accepted Gentile converts to Judaism in the belief that the God of Abraham allowed all to worship Him who would turn from idolatry. When you read in the New Testament about "Hellenists" or about Jews with Greek names, this was the school whose rabbis would have accepted these Gentiles into the Jewish faith (although the school was not a Hellenistic movement, per se). Soon after the beginning of the turn of the century Hillel died and was eventually succeeded by his grandson Gamaliel, who was Paul's tutor. Modern-day Judaism traces its roots to the teachings promoted by the followers of Hillel who survived the destruction of Jerusalem and began codifying their teachings around 200 AD.

At the center of this dispute between Shammai and Hillel is the matter of circumcision. Conversion to Judaism was discouraged by Shammai and he recognized "non-Jews" only if they were circumcised thus becoming eligible for "conversion" to Judaism and becoming thus proselytes. Hillel, on the other hand, accepted the "non-Jew" as Godfearers not requiring of them circumcision. Cornelius in Acts 10 is a perfect example. Thus the battle lines were drawn and this shines a whole new light upon the Acts 15 Jerusalem Council's decision to accept the "non-Jew" without circumcision thereby accepting the "non-Jew" into the Israel of God as "Godfearers". This is so important!

So, the "Law" spoken again in Galatian in reference to the "non-Jewish" believers in Galatia is the Law concerning circumcision and not the "whole of the Law" or the "many Laws that make up 'the Law'" that defines our respective Covenants with God. Thus, the negative comments in the Book of Galatians regarding "the Law" are mistakenly believed by Christians today to refer to the whole of the Law and mistakenly believed by them to have "ceased" with Christ are not referring to the whole of the Law, or should I say "Laws" of God but contextually refer to only just "one Law"; that being the Law of circumcision as applied to the "non-Jew". Thus the negative attitude of Paul toward "the Law" only refers to historically and culturally and contextually to only "one Law" contained in the 613 Laws of Moses; a Law by the way which was never part of the Laws of Noah in the first place but which was bigotedly applied by Shammai and his School of Pharisees to the "non-Jews" in hopes of keeping them apart from other Jews. Thus this negative attitude of Paul toward "the Law" was not intended to mean the whole of the Law or other Laws that comprise the whole of the Laws of Moses or the Laws of Noah (which overlap), but only the "one Law" of Circumcision which was never required of the "non-Jew" in the first place. No wonder Paul was upset. Shammai had misrepresented God to the world in his stance and made God out to be a liar and Paul was livid as we should be as well when others misrepresent God and His Word or change it or misquote it or alter it or mistranslate it on purpose or outright "invent" it. Let us not forget that circumcision by the "non-Jew" was totally voluntary on his part and if done it was his decision in order to pursue total conversion to Judaism which was attractive to many, but not to all "non-Jews" of that period. Thus today when reading the New Testament and with the typical rhetoric from the pulpits of our Gentile Churches we mistakenly believe that Paul was negative to the whole of the Law when in fact nothing could be further from the point historically, contextually, and culturally. In fact Paul knew, as all Jews knew, that obedience to the Laws of God are mankind's expected and typical response to God and His Laws in the first place for God loves us first and it is our obedience toward God which reciprocates our love for Him. Now let us go on and see what we can learn in this article and the others that follow.

To help the Christian answer the troublesome questions presented in the first article in this series correctly, and to be sure we are right with God and have the proper relationship with Him that we desire, we must interpret His word correctly (contextually, culturally, linguistically, historically, scientifically, ethically, allegorically, literally, etc.). In so doing we must never forget that this is a "Jewish book" about a "Jewish Messiah" and a "Jewish Christ" and we must study from a Jewish perspective and viewpoint if we ever hope to gather the truth. LET US REMEMBER "THE MIND OF CHRIST" IS EXPRESSED THROUGH ISRAEL AND THROUGH BIBLICAL JUDAISM AND IF WE EVER HOPE TO ACQUIRE "THE MIND OF CHRIST" THEN WE AS GENTILES MUST BEGIN OUR STUDY FROM A JEWISH MIND-SET). Thus we have presented these series of articles to help in this regard for there is more misunderstanding concerning the Book of Galatians than any other of Paul's writing. In order for us to correctly understand this material and its huge impact upon all later Roman theology and their "anti-Law" biases, or should I say Christian theology, a brief survey of the context of the book is necessary. An important part of this context includes the Law and its relationship to grace, the Judaism of the Second Temple period, and some of the possible historical circumstances surrounding Galatians.

THE LAW AND ITS RELATIONSHIP TO GRACE:

The relationship of "Covenant" to the Law is an important foundation for approaching the Law's relationship to grace. Tremendous similarities exist between the biblical covenant passages of the Law (e.g., Exodus 20ff. and Deuteronomy) and the ancient Hittite treaties appearing in the 13th and 14th centuries B.C.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that there exist between the Biblical Covenants and these Hittite treaties almost an identical structure and sequence of elements?

In order to better understand just what a Covenant is and our responsibilities to God when we are in a Covenant with the Creator we must examine this structure of Covenants if we are to correctly arrive at an understanding of Law and their role in such Covenants and in so doing get prepared for the shock of your lives.

Answer for yourself: And what is that shock? Could it be that Law and Grace are interrelated? Could it be ?

You will come to see that behind the idea of Law is the Biblical Concept and notion that LAW IS THE MANIFESTATION OF "GOD'S GRACE" as manifested by God to mankind by giving mankind the knowledge of God and His requirements upon mankind; requirements given mankind which are spelled out and manifested through the enumeration of God's Laws and Commandments that reflect our responsibility to the ONE to whom we are in Covenant. It is God's love for us that gives us the "answers" before the test; or should I say "judgment" when we die. God, knowing that mankind will be held accountable before Him give before hand the necessary information and knowledge whereby mankind can prepare himself for this judgment at his death where he stands before the Throne of God. Let us examine the concept that Law is really grace by examining the structure of Biblical Covenants as seen below. This information is very, very important to "know" and "understand" as it is foundational to all relationships with God, our "King"!

- 1. Preamble, identifying the initiator of the covenant (King); Ex. 20:1; Dt. 1:1-5
- 2. Historical prologue, specifying the previous relationship that existed between the two coventing parties: Ex. 20:2; Dt. 1:6-3:29;
- 3. Stipulations, the obligations involved both coventing parties:
  - a. general; Ex. 20:3-17; 22-26; Dt. 4-11; and specifically Ex. 21-23; 25-31; Lev. 1-25; Dt. 12-26
- 4. Arrangements for:
  - a. placing a copy of the treaty in the sanctuary of each party's gods; Ex. 25:16; Dt. 31:9, 24-26.
  - b. regular public readings of the treaty or covenant; Dt. 31:10-13.
- 5. Witnesses, invoked to witness the treaty; Dt. 4:26; 30:19; 31:28; Ex. 24:4; Dt. 31:26.

- 6. Curses and blessings, based on fulfillment of the stipulations:
  - a. blessings; Lev. 26:3-8; Dt 28:1-4.
  - b. curses; Lev. 26:14-33; Dt. 28:15-68.
- 7. Oath of obedience and ratifying ceremony; Ex. 24:1-11; Dt. 27; 29:10, 12.

Answer for yourself: What have we just described? The Biblical form of a treaty, or a Covenant? Or both?

Treaties such as these were called "suzerainty treaties" whereby the subject entered into an oath of loyalty and trust to a great King OUT OF GRATITUDE FOR BENEFITS ALREADY RECEIVED.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice I said "already received"? Think on this for a second!

Thus, the treaty (COVENANT) served as a declaration of the lordship of the King over his servant people. The PAST GENEROSITY of the King (in our case the King is our God) formed the basis for gratitude and future obedience by his subjects (the people of God).

Answer for yourself: Do you love God (the King) because He first loves you? I hope so for this is what it says. That is all we are saying here, and since you do, and since God first loved us, then we have the responsibility to obey our King! The relationship is reciprocal.

The historical prologue served as an encouragement and reminder of this. This "historical chronicle" and listing of the King's blessings toward his people was designed to inspire confidence and gratitude in his people and to encourage the people to keep their Covenant obligations through obedience of them toward their King!

Answer for yourself: Does the Bible and its many precious promises inspire your obedience to your King and God? It should and I hope so but this is hard to do when you are taught your whole life that:

Rom 6:14 14 For sin shall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace. (KJV)

But we have at times real problems with many verses in our New Testaments like the one above. Conflicting passages that abound in the New Testament should make you think the whole Christian "dogmas" and "theology" over from beginning to end as your study shows you the contradictions between Christian dogmas in this Roman New Testaments. Furthermore at times we find supposedly this Paul of the New Testament teaching the Law and Commandments of God and "good" and to be "obeyed" and and then at other times "disannulling the Law and Commandments of God"! That is why so many people see Paul as hard to understand or "schizophrenic" in what he says. The real truth of the matter as I found is that Paul's authentic Gnostic writings were corrupted and tampered with and many others were forged and penned in "his name" to reflect Rome's anti-Laws bias. No wonder there are contradictions within these writings of Paul and and these numerous conflicts between passages are so easy to comprehend once Rome and their anti-Law bias gets traced into later texts in their Roman New Testaments.

Rom 2:13 13 (For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified. (KJV)

We have read the above passage numerous times in our lives. Now read this which comes just one page later in our Book of Romans which is supposedly from the same writer:

Rom 3:28 28 Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: What is going on here?

One passage says one is "justified by doing the Law" and one says "justified by faith without doing the Law"!

Answer for yourself: What is the truth and does it matter? Has the Christian Bible been "doctored" regarding the Jewish Laws (the Laws of Noah) and can we know for sure?

Answer for yourself: Is this justification tied to only one Law, the Law of circumcision, or can a larger concept be seen here; one whereby man is justified by the doing of all the Laws of his Covenant (66 for the "non-Jew")?

Answer for yourself: Does Judaism teach back and for some 2,000 years this same message as found in Romans 2:13 and does Judaism teach today this same message; a message that "justification" before God comes from "doing the Law"? in one's life? It sure does! Is this a Divine Truth that we have missed along with editors of the New Testament which inadvertently overlooked removing the passage from Romans 2:13 from the book; a passage by the way which expressed Judaism and Jewish theology and not Roman theology when drafting their "anti-Law" gospel?

Answer for yourself: Do you remember when contrasting Gospels that the Gospel of the Jewish Christ taught Romans 2:13 but the anti-Law Roman Paul taught the Gospel of Romans 3:28?

Answer for yourself: If this passage in Romans 2:13 is the correct one then what does that say about Acts 15 and those "necessary" things in the Covenant of Noah which were once taught to Asia, Minor and the "non-Jews" there? Have you been taught the correct one in your Christian Church?

Answer for yourself: Are there "two different Pauls" and "Pauline theology" ascribed to this one person by the writers of the New Testaments that we have today? Can we eventually sort this all out and do you see the importance of this as it affects how we inherit Eternal Life, the way of the Roman Paul or the way of the Jewish Christ and the Gnostic Paul who agreed in theology regarding the Law?

As a Christian there are some of the biggest questions you will ever have to deal with in your life and are some of the biggest questions that you will every have to answer!

What we find upon serious study of the origin of the New Testament and its canonization is huge amounts of textual "tampering" and the cover-up of the Gnostic Paul and the creation of the false Paul by Roman scribes in order to denigrate the Law and use Pauline authority for such anti-nomian actions. And the whole of the Christian world walks in darkness today because of the Roman forgery of this book. We show you at Bet Emet both sides; the Romanized Paul who we expose ruthlessly in another website and the Gnostic Paul whom we redeem in another site. The time for such study of these critical issues that go to the very heart of Christian religious beliefs and conduct is up to you and make no mistake about it; they are critical issues. But if you ever want to sort out this Rubix Cube New Testament and its many contradictions which we have inherited as Christians and followers of "the Christ" in the Western Hemisphere then such study is both necessary and mandatory. If we have never been lied to by Rome then none of this would be necessary for we would have inherited the truth as children but such is not the case.

FORGERY WITHOUT LIMITS.....OUR CHRISTIAN BIBLES...AND I NEVER KNEW?

Our study is with the Book of Galatians and Galatians deals with the Law. We must keep before us at all times the core of what we are trying to teach; namely, that the Laws of God have not ceased as requirements for both Jew and "non-Jew" in their relationship to God in spite of Christian teaching to the contrary (in Galatians and other New Testament books believed to have come from this Paul) and the Roman New Testament's witness to that fact in their purposeful reinterpretation and misrepresentation of the Gnostic Paul and his stance on the Law. This is a complicated issue because this historical Paul at times actually did speak against the Law of Circumcision; a Law by the way which was never given to the "non-Jew" by God. What is confusing however is that when reading Paul and if not aware of Gnosticism and their views upon the Law then we jump to the wrong conclusions when at certain places Paul appears to no longer need these Laws and expressed ideas that he has spiritually evolved beyond these need of these Laws. In fact Paul states that if one lives "in the Spirit" he no longer has need for these Laws. What we fail to understand lacking accurate knowledge of Christian Gnosticism, the original Christianity by the way, is that there is supposed to come a time in a "believers's spiritual maturation" that he comes to an innate understanding of the God "within, the Christ within" and it is through this recognition, revelation, union, and communion" of the Divine within that he rises to a Spiritual Level where he no longer needs these "Laws" on stone to direct his Spiritual Walk or his behavior; rather, he "just knows" the will of God and lives these Laws of the Torah out in his life by letting "the Spirit Within", the "Christ Within" direct him. Thus he can attain a level of Spiritual Perfection without having to be reminded of these Laws on a daily basis like most of us. This is true Spiritual Evolution of our Divine Nature as the Creator intended. Paul expresses this concept this way:

Gal 4:19 19 My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you, (KJV)

Thus, in this way, we can come to see how this Gnostic Paul rose above the Laws written on stone and lived out before God "these same Laws" since they were written on his heart (this is the "renewed" or "new" Covenant of Jer. 31) which is so badly misrepresented in the Book of Hebrews where it is redefined as "new" as in "replaced" instead of "renewed, re-established" which we have dealt with before.

So hopefully you are beginning to see for yourself that our Christian Texts and very problematic and if we ever want to discern the "true Christ" from the "false Christ", the "true Paul from the false Paul", the "truth about the Jewish Messiah from the false Messiah of Christianity", the "truth about the Law" and the "truth about the real atonement" then we have to be ruthless in our study and investigation and evaluation of these religious texts we have inherited from Rome which are accepted unquestioningly as "inspired, infallible, and inerrant" today. Such acceptance I found in my studies both during and after Seminary to be unwarranted and disastrous for one's standing before God.

WHAT SHOULD WE KNOW ABOUT OUR CHRISTIAN BIBLES?

What comes next will be startling and upsetting to most so be prepared. What comes next helps explain the many contradicting passages in our New Testaments like Rom. 2:13 and Rom. 3:28 above. In discussing whether our New Testament is a Divine Revelation many scholars speak out with courage and have gone on record saying:

- "...Not so the New testament...There is condensation and editing; there is choice reproduction and witness. The Gospels have come through the mind of the church behind the authors. They represent experience and history..." in The Call of the Minaret, Kenneth Cragg, p 277
- "Yet, as a matter of fact, every book of the New Testament with the exception of the four great Epistles of St. Paul is at present more or less the subject of controversy, and interpolations are asserted even in these." Encyclopedia Britannica, 12th Ed. Vol. 3, p. 643
- "Besides the larger discrepancies, such as these, there is scarcely a verse in which there is not some variation of phrase in some copies [of the ancient manuscripts from which the Bible has been collected]. No one can say that these additions or omissions or alterations are matters of mere indifference" in Our Bible and the Ancient Manuscripts, Dr. Frederic Kenyon, Eyre and Spottiswoode, p. 3
- The publishers of the RSV 1971 themselves (Collins) mention on page 10 of their notes: "This Bible (RSV) is the product of thirty two scholars assisted by an advisory committee representing fifty cooperating denominations" Let us see what these 32 Christian scholars of the highest eminence backed by fifty cooperating Christian denominations have to say about the Authorized Version (AV), or as it is better known, the King James Version (KJV). In the preface of the RSV 1971 we find the following: "...Yet the King James Version has GRAVE DEFECTS.." They go on to caution us that: "...That these defects are SO MANY AND SO SERIOUS as to call for revision"
- The Jehovah's Witnesses in their "AWAKE" Magazine dated 8th September 1957 published the following headline: "50,000 Errors in the Bible" wherein they say "...there are probably 50,000 errors in the Bible...errors which have crept into the Bible text...50,000 such serious errors..."

- In the latter part of the second century, Dionysius, Bishop of Corinth says: "As the brethren desired me to write epistles (letters), I did so, and these the apostles of the devil have filled with tares (undesirable elements), exchanging some things and adding others, for whom there is a woe reserved. It is not therefore, a matter of wonder if some have also attempted to adulterate the sacred writings of the Lord, since they have attempted the same in other works that are not to be compared with these."
- Victor Tununensis, a sixth century African Bishop related in his Chronicle (566 AD) that when Messala was consul at Costantinople (506 AD), he "censored and corrected" the Gentile Gospels written by persons considered illiterate by the Emperor Anastasius. The implication was that they were altered to conform to sixth century Christianity which differed from the Christianity of previous centuries (The Dead Sea Scrolls, the Gospel of Barnabas, and the New Testament, by M. A. Yusseff, p. 81)
- Elsewhere in The Dead Sea Scrolls, the Gospel of Barnabas, and the New Testament it is said: "When the Dead Sea Scrolls were found (in about the 50's) the church took over 40 years to publish the book for the public. Why did it take them 40 years? If this was extracts from the Bible many hundreds of years old than this could be a proof that the modern day Bible is authentic. BUT, the Christian scholars must have found many conflicting verses from the Dead Sea Scrolls and the modern Bible therefore it took than over 40 years to Correct, Edit, Add, Delete and Manipulate many verse's in the Dead Sea Scrolls so that it would agree with the modern day Bibles".
- These "corrections" were by no means confined to the first centuries after Christ. Sir Higgins says: "It is impossible to deny that the Benedictine Monks of St. Maur, as far as Latin and Greek language went, were very learned and talented, as well as numerous body of men. In Cleland's 'Life of Lanfranc, Archbishop of Canterbury', is the following passage: 'Lanfranc, a Benedictine Monk, Archbishop of Canterbury, having found the Scriptures much corrupted by copyists, applied himself to correct them, as also the writings of the fathers, agreeably to the orthodox faith, secundum fidem orthodoxam.'" in History of Christianity in the light of Modern knowledge, Higgins p.318
- In History of Christianity in the light of Modern knowledge, Higgins goes on to say "In other words, the Christian scriptures were re-written in order to conform to the doctrines of the eleventh and twelfth centuries and even the writings of the early church fathers were "corrected" so that the changes would not be discovered. Sir Higgins goes on to say: "The same Protestant divine has this remarkable passage: 'Impartiality exacts from me the confession, that the orthodox have in some places altered the Gospels.'" The author then goes on to demonstrate how a massive effort was undertaken in Costantinople, Rome, Canterbury, and the Christian world in general in order to "correct" the Gospels and destroy all manuscripts before this period".
- St. Augustine himself, a man acknowledged and looked up to by both Protestants and Catholics alike, professed that there were secret doctrines in the Christian religion and that "there were many things true in the Christian religion which it was not convenient for the vulgar to know, and that some things were false, but convenient for the vulgar to believe in them."
- Sir Higgins admits: "It is not unfair to suppose that in these withheld truths we have part of the modern Christian mysteries, and I think it will hardly be denied that the church, whose highest authorities held such doctrines, would not scruple to retouch the sacred writings" The Dead Sea Scrolls, the Gospel of Barnabas, and the New Testament, M. A. Yusseff, p.83. Even the epistles attributed to Paul were not written by him. After years of research, Catholics and Protestants alike agree that of the thirteen epistles attributed to Paul only seven are genuinely his. They are: Romans, 1, 2 Corinthians, Galatians, Philipians, Philemon, and 1 Thessalonians.

And I could go on and on about this but you get the drift. Things are not as we have been told in our "simple Simon" mind-sets in our Christian Churches. We have been "dumbed-down" to believe anything and study is our only hope of deliverance where proof and facts and hard evidence can be uncovered to deliver us from the darkness of disobedience that has captured us in the name of "orthodoxy".

Answer for yourself: Could it be that the contradictory passages regarding the Law which we find in Paul and the Pauline parts of our New Testament for instance be the examples of such "changes" mentioned above? Are these alterations to these New Testament texts the reason why the original Divine Revelation of God as handed down to Israel and preserved in their Tanakh reads so different in our Christian Old and New Testaments today? Could these changes be the reason why the Jews won't accept this "Christian Messiah" let alone the New Testament's message that the Laws are ceased with this supposed Christ? Were these changes to the "status quo" by Rome as found in their alterations of these texts responsible for separating the Gentile Church from its Jewish Roots and this has rendered us ignorant of our true relationship with God as "non-Jews" because we falsely believe that we are "under grace and not under the Law"? Just how bad is our Christian Bibles forged? We at Bet Emet have developed several websites devoted to this monumental problem and I suggest when you find the time that you investigate the evidence for yourselves.

And I could go on. It is time we wake up in Christianity to what has been done to the Divine Revelation taught to the "non-Jewish" world in the first 5 centuries before Rome destroys it and almost all evidence of this earliest Divine Revelation given to the whole of mankind. Thus we can see why God preserved the Hebrew Scriptures in the Biblical faith of Judaism; these precious Hebrew Scriptures (irrelevantly called the 'Old' Testament today) which go unnoticed in Gentile Christianity today. These Scriptures of Israel stand today to remind us of God's love and protection of His people in times past, thus reinforcing our expectation that He would do the same with us if we as "non-Jews" come to love, revere, and live out His Laws in our lives as have the Jewish nation. These Hebrew Scriptures stand as major correction of Christian Bibles and their errant "theology" about so much that lies at the very heart of what Roman antisemitic Christianity teaches which we accept Sunday after Sunday in our churches never giving it a second thought. The result of our study into these problematic areas on our part should culminate in our desire to obey the Covenant stipulations and obligations given us as "non-Jews" as Acts 15 and 16 teach us and this is framed by various Laws and Commandments given by the Creator whereby if accepted and obeyed assures us of our "acceptance with God". Let us never forget that "we love Him for He first loved us!"

As love initiated the relationship between God and man, so it was to permeate the whole of its continuation. Love (in response to God's goodness as seen in man's obedience to the King's commands) and gratitude (for His love and blessings when we were yet sinners) is to infect all of life and thought under the covenant with God.

While grace is the motivation for covenant obedience, love stands as the key to the covenant relationship. The historical prologue shows this quite clearly. This is where Rome and the Constantine's of the world have failed for they loved not God nor His people, the Jewish nation. This Covenant of Laws and Commandments given mankind points to the gracious actions of the King prior to the Covenant and in initiating it, and specifies this as the foundation of the relationship between the King and his people (God and mankind). The Bible records for us the powerful demonstration of God's love to Israel as seen in both the Exodus and the Book of Deuteronomy chapter 1:1 through Deuteronomy 8:40. This had been preceded by his love to their ancestors (Dt. 4:37; 7:7-11; 10:15). As love initiated the relationship between God and man, so it was to permeate the whole of its continuation. Love (in response to God's goodness seen in man's obedience to the King's commands) and gratitude (for His love and blessings when we were yet sinners) is to infect all of life and thought under the Covenant give us with God. In fact, Deuteronomy 5-11 (the giving and receiving of the Covenant at Sinai with its stipulations and commandments) can be seen as an emphasis on whole-hearted love to God as we respond to Him in obedience which is the better than any sacrifice, with Deuteronomy 6:4-6 providing its classic expression of love and commitment to God...the Shema. This latter passage calls for exclusive devotion and commitment to God alone, a love expressed through the entire person. It is through this Covenant and its Laws and Commandments given us by our "King" that we as His subjects find a total pattern for life given by the Creator of all life, with Deuteronomy 12-25 providing the guidelines for this pattern of living (the many commandments) as we live out our relationship with God through obedience to those things He requires of us His people (again the Covenant of Noah applies to the "non-Jews" as well as the principle of Isa. 56). These chapters of Commandments provide concrete expressions of love and devotion on our part toward God and its natural consequence, love for others.

So, love, not law, forms the core of our relationship with God!

The historical pattern of the Near Eastern treaty reinforces this perception. It was not obedience to the Law which resulted in the Covenant and a relationship with God. Obedience to the Laws in our Covenant is our response to the Covenant made with us by our Creator. For the "non-Jew" this happens to be the 66 Laws contained in the Covenant of Noah found in Acts 15 which again are called "necessary" and "good to the Holy Spirit". The historical pattern begins with a miraculous deliverance, the Exodus, an example of God's grace.

Answer for yourself: What came first...obedience on our part or the grace and love of God for His people? Grace and love initiated a Covenant by which we are required to respond to this love and grace in obedience.

Following grace and love from God comes the "cutting" of a Covenant between God and His people and a relationship is formalized, again at God's initiative. In essence, then, the Covenant legally formalized an already existing relationship rather than actually establishing one. This is critically important for I hope you see that we "don't obey" to "be saved"; we obey "because God has already saved us" (THINK)!

This understanding ends forever the nonsense that the Jews did not have salvation because they did not obey the Law perfectly without breaking it or that it is impossible to obey the Law and that is why they need some Jesus. This is foolishness. This same God gave the "gift of repentance" whereby man could once again "set himself" upon the right path with God and make himself acceptable with God through renewed obedience to the Laws and Commandments given him by God in his respective Covenant.

So we should have seen by now that we don't obey to be "saved"; we obey "because we already have received" salvation. This is of paramount importance in understanding Paul and his writings on the Law. The "real Paul" was not against the Law in general; only the Law of Circumcision given the Jew which was erroneously applied to the "non-Jews" to keep them from turning to Judaism by Jews who at that time hated the "non-Jews" (like Shammai and his School of Pharisees). We need to get this right. So when mentioning "the Law" in negative terms we must understand the context and in so doing understand that Paul is referring only to the Law of circumcision as hopefully you now have come to understand.

It is the commandments that provided the guidelines in maintaining the relationship and indicated what was expected of one in Covenant relationship with God.

This is nowhere better seen than in the historical prologue of such treaties. Let us examine such a historical prologue from the Covenant as seen in Ex. 6:6-8:

Exod 6:6-8 6 Wherefore say unto the children of Israel, I am the LORD, and I will bring you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians, and I will rid you out of their bondage, and I will redeem you with a stretched out arm, and with great judgments: 7 And I will take you to me for a people, and I will be to you a God: and ye shall know that I am the LORD your God, which bringeth you out from under the burdens of the Egyptians. 8 And I will bring you in unto the land, concerning the which I did swear to give it to Abraham, to Isaac, and to Jacob; and I will give it you for an heritage: I am the LORD. (KJV)

Now please pay attention. Only after all this--the Exodus and the formalizing of the Covenant relationship--did the ordinances, commandments, and stipulations follow. The Commandments and Laws "came after relationship"! It is the Commandments that provided the guidelines in maintaining the relationship and indicated what was expected of one (mankind) in Covenant relationship with God.

Answer for yourself: Are we, the people of God, because of God's love for us, expected to respond to the love of God already show us through obedience to commandments contained in our Covenant? Yes. Is our obedience of these Law how we manifest that we "love God"? Yes!

Answer for yourself: Is it the commandments that provide the guidelines in maintaining the relationship which we have with God through Covenant? Yes. And when we fail them break this relationship we have only need to repent and return to obedience to re-establish this relationship with God! Thus we affect through our repentance and obedience our atonement and this is what the Hebrew Scriptures teach from beginning to end and what true Biblical Atonement teaches as well!

Answer for yourself: Is our obedience to commandments contained in our Covenant expected of us in order to maintain the proper relationship with God? Yes.

Our obedience to God's commandments contained in our Covenant is expected of us in order to maintain a proper relationship with God.

Answer for yourself: In essence, then, is it correct to view the concept of Covenant as a legal formalization of an already existing relationship with God rather than actually establishing one? Yes.

God's Law should be viewed as a "law code" or a manifestation on God's part whereby we, as God's people, may choose and exercise a loving response to the grace of God by obedience to those things that please Him as required by our King

Answer for yourself: Therefore, should the Torah (Law) be viewed as a law code or a manifestation on God's part whereby we, as God's people, may choose and exercise a loving response to the grace of God by obedience to those things required by our King? Without a doubt, the Torah, 613 commandments or Law, as it is negatively called, is nothing more than a gracious opportunity given to us to show our love for God by doing the things He requires of us.

Some of you may not be familiar or remember this, but in fact, the Hebrew word used for the negative term "Law" means "instruction" and "teaching." Law codes existed in Moses' time and could have served as a pattern for the biblical texts. The explicit Covenant formulation of Exodus and Deuteronomy stands as strong, direct evidence that this is a treaty or Covenant, and not a code of law. It is a declaration of God's kingship and his gracious choice of a people for Himself.

A people related to God the King through Covenant were naturally to live a sovereignly designated order of life as required by the King, for which they received instructions, the Torah, the Law...benefits bestowed, or a relationship entered, logically implies consequent responsibilities on the part of man toward God.

A people related to God the king through Covenant were naturally to live a sovereignly designated order of life as required by the king, for which they received instructions, the Torah. The designated order of life was important for good communications and an orderly relationship. When a people entered into such a Covenant relationship, they gratefully took on certain obligations, the instructions which served as a guide for the Covenant order of life. There is a basic underlying principle here; benefits bestowed, or a relationship entered, logically implies consequent responsibilities on the part of man toward God. In other words, the Torah was not given in answer to the question, "What must I do to enter into a relationship with God (or receive salvation)?"

Understanding this, let us never forget that the Torah (Hebrew Scriptures contained in commandments and ordinances) was given ONLY in answer to the question, "Now that I have this wonderful relationship with God, how can I express my gratitude and demonstrate my love to the ONE who loved me in the first place?" If only the Christian Church could understand this concept, their perspective on the Law would be totally revolutionized!

Answer for yourself: Does not the Hebrew word used for the negative term "Law" in all actuality mean "instruction" and "teaching" which is not negative but positive? Yes, it is positive and always has been in Judaism. One only has to read Psalm 119 where we find King David speaking of this Law:

Ps 119:1-16 1 Blessed are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the LORD. 2 Blessed are they that keep his testimonies, and that seek him with the whole heart. 3 They also do no iniquity: they walk in his ways. 4 Thou hast commanded us to keep thy precepts diligently. 5 O that my ways were directed to keep thy statutes! 6 Then shall I not be ashamed, when I have respect unto all thy commandments. 7 I will praise thee with uprightness of heart, when I shall have learned thy righteous judgments. 8 I will keep thy statutes: O forsake me not utterly. 9 Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? by taking heed thereto according to thy word. 10 With my whole heart have I sought thee: O let me not wander from thy commandments. 11 Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee. 12 Blessed art thou, O LORD: teach me thy statutes. 13 With my lips have I declared all the judgments of thy mouth. 14 I have rejoiced in the way of thy testimonies, as much as in all riches. 15 I will meditate in thy precepts, and have respect unto thy ways. 16 I will delight myself in thy statutes: I will not forget thy word. (KJV)

It sure does not see like he hated this Law as does Constantine and traditional Christian theology.

Answer for yourself: As a people related to God our King through "Covenant," are we expected by God to live our lives as ordered by the King? Yes.

When a people entered into such a Covenant relationship, they gratefully took on certain obligations; the instructions which served as a guide for the Covenant order of life.

Answer for yourself: Does it not stand to reason that if we are required to live a life as ordered by the King that he would give us the required instructions? Yes and God did; it is called the Torah! Giving us these Laws to tell us how to live before God ensures we are judged at death for "good" and not "bad".

Answer for yourself: Are you coming to better understand that such "required instructions" are contained in the Torah in spite of the "brainwashing" from gross misinterpretation of the Pauline literature by the antisemitic Gentile Church over the last 1,700 years? Rome only got away with it because they forged the Bible that they gave the whole Greek speaking world! I hope you see this now.

Thus the Near Eastern treaty pattern thus bears directly on one's understanding of the essence of Torah. Essentially, the great King granting the treaty says: "These are all the things I've done for you. You didn't deserve them, but I did them nevertheless. Now, because of your gratitude and love, I expect you to be faithful to me and my government. Here's how you can be faithful and demonstrate your love and loyalty; these are my guidelines." So the concept of Covenant shows that all of the Torah material must be understood as the grace of God. He, God our King, established the nation and the Covenant relationship by grace, and God our King graciously provided guidelines for expressing that relationship through love and loyalty.

Consistent with this, there are throughout the Old Testament repeated references to God's graciousness. The very first words of "the Law" (Ex. 20:2) are a recounting of grace: "I am the Lord your God, who brought you out of Egypt, who brought you out of slavery." As Moses chisels out the two replacement tablets of the commandments, God passes before Moses and proclaims His character, "The Lord, the compassionate and gracious God, slow to anger and abounding in love and faithfulness, demonstrating love to thousands and forgiving evil and sin." (Ex. 34:6-7) The Psalms speak beautifully of God's love, mercy and compassion, not man's efforts, as the basis for his forgiving sin (51:1; 25:7; 103:10-13).

Psalm 51:1 To the chief Musician, A Psalm of David, when Nathan the prophet came unto him, after he had gone in to Bathsheba. Have mercy upon me, O God, according to thy lovingkindness: according unto the multitude of thy tender mercies blot out my transgressions.

Psalm 25:7 Remember not the sins of my youth, nor my transgressions: according to thy mercy remember thou me for thy goodness' sake, O LORD.

Psalm 103:10 (KJV) He hath not dealt with us after our sins; nor rewarded us according to our iniquities. 11 For as the heaven is high above the earth, [so] great is his mercy toward them that fear him. {as...: Heb. according to the height of the heaven} 12 As far as the east is from the west, [so] far hath he removed our transgressions from us. 13 Like as a father pitieth [his] children, [so] the LORD pitieth them that fear him.

When Paul wants to provide evidence that righteousness before God is based on a faith response to God's grace (Rom. 10:6-8), he cites Deuteronomy 30:12-14.

Rom. 10:6 (KJV) But the righteousness which is of faith speaketh on this wise, ...8 But what saith it? The word is nigh thee, [even] in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is, the word of faith, which we preach;

Deut 30:12 (KJS) It [is] not in heaven, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go up for us to heaven, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it? 13 Neither [is] it beyond the sea, that thou shouldest say, Who shall go over the sea for us, and bring it unto us, that we may hear it, and do it? 14 But the word [is] very nigh unto thee, in thy mouth, and in thy heart, that thou mayest do it.

Answer for yourself: Had you noticed before now that Paul, or the Romanized Paul, in Romans 10:6 is quoting an Old Testament Scripture and not giving us any NEW information? But something is missing. What is it? What is missing in the quote in the New Testament? Did you notice that missing is the command from God that "we do it (His Word)"! Did you notice that missing is the admonition that "we do this Word from God, that we "do this Commandment" from God, that we "do this Law from God"? Is this an accident of translation or purposeful omission? Is the New Testament making sure you don't get the idea that obedience to the Laws of God are paramount in importance?

I don't think that the majority of Christians were aware that much of what we have heard preached in our churches, much of which we interpreted as new and different from the Old Testament, is in actuality the same message that God has been giving mankind since the beginning! But sadly so often it comes to us "altered" and "missing valuable points of theological instruction" intended to help perfect our lives before God. Such is the undying fruit of Gentile antisemitism of 1,700 years ago which lives in our Bibles today.

At other times (Rom. 1:17; 4:3) Paul points to the Old Testament (Hab. 2:4; Gen. 15:6) as teaching that salvation and relationship with God come as a result of faith and not law-keeping alone. The Torah and the Old Testament are full of grace. But that is not the full story. As we saw above "Law-keeping" alone is not the full message either. Both "faith" and proper response in "Law-keeping" is the whole of man's responsibility before God. One without the other is incomplete.

James 2:20 20 But wilt thou know, O vain man, that faith without works is dead? (KJV)

if we have faith, we will respond in faith to the Words of God (believing that He is) accurately by obeying properly the commandments of God

As you can see for yourself, the Scriptures that you have heard your whole life often quoted, both accurately and inaccurately in the Christian church, have reinforced the erroneous idea that we are no longer under Law, but under grace have often come from the Old Testament which teaches just the opposite of what you have heard preached from Christian pulpits. The truth of the matter is that we are obligated to both "faith" and obedience to God since we are yet "under" the Law" in our Covenants (THINK)! Those Scriptures in the New Testament that have led you to mistakenly believe that since the Jewish Christ we are under grace through faith while at the same have led you to mistakenly believe that before the Jewish Christ there was no grace are in reality Old Testament Scriptures which were never used in such a manner by "holy men of old moved by the Holy Spirit" (THINK)!

Answer for yourself: Can you now see that grace was always given to man, even in the Old Testament and in came in the form of 613 Laws for the Jews and 66 Laws for the Gentile? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Can you now see that imputed righteousness has ALWAYS BEEN GIVEN TO MAN FROM GOD in response to his faith? Can you now see that justification before God has ALWAYS BEEN ACHIEVED BY MAN BEFORE GOD BY HIS OBEDIENCE TO THE LAWS OF GOD IN HIS COVENANT? I sure hope so.

Answer for yourself: Can you now begin to see for yourself that if we have faith, we will respond in faith to the Words of God accurately by obeying properly the commandments of God? And are you aware that these Laws teach us how to worship without idolatry and blasphemy which is near impossible with traditional Christian doctrine surrounding religious beliefs attached to the Nicean Jesus, that teach us how to worship by the proper use of the tithe which not one Christian Church in America obeys correctly, that teach us how to worship according to God's appointed times and Biblical Sabbaths and Festivals and Feasts which the vast majority of Christian Churches do not observe or if they try they "reinterpret" them to make them apply to a Constantine Jesus, that teach how Jew and "non-Jew" are to become the one people of God whereby the "middle wall of partition" is broken down and much of this involves the prohibitions of eating "unclean foods" by the "non-Jews", etc? And I could go on but your eyes are beginning to open and let me remind you that these things are called "necessary" by James in Acts 15!!!

That means we will follow and observe the picture in the New Testament which teaches us that "non-Jewish" believers in God through the ministry of Jewish Christ kept and observed the Law and Commandments of God as they were their Covenant stipulations which determined one's relationship and standing with God

HAVE WE MISUNDERSTOOD PAUL'S MESSAGE IN THE BOOK OF GALATIANS? #3

We pick up where we left off and I assume that the readers are acquainted with the material contained in the previous two articles. That being so then let us continue.

The Judaism of the first century was not homogeneous. Rather, it was a rich tapestry interwoven with broad diversity of strands. Philip Sigal (The Emergence of Contemporary Judaism, vol. 1, Pittsburgh: Pickwick Press, 1980, pp. 382-383), for example, refers to fourteen different sects within Judaism in the first century: Hellenistic allegorizers; Hellenistic traditionalists; non-Hellenistic conservative traditionalists; Essenes; Therapeutae; Qumranites; Samaritans; the priestly establishment and the Sadducees; proto-rabbinic circles; am ha' aretz; tithe and purity fellowships (havurot); Hemerobaptists or morning bathers; Boethusians; and Galileans. Even within some of the groups significant variations existed, as for example, the determined debates between the Schools of Shammai and Hillel among the Pharisees. As might rightly be expected, this diversity resulted in corresponding variations in theological emphasis, a number of which Paul and the Galatians would have fit right into.

One of these emphases is the stressing of the fact that relationship with God has priority and precedence over observing the Commandments, as for example the Talmud's teaching: "Why does the section 'Hear, O Israel' precede 'And it shall come to pass if ye hearken?--So that a man may first take upon him the yoke of the kingdom of heaven and afterwards take upon him the yoke of the commandments" (Berakot 2.2). All that this is saying, however, is that we must first hear and understand God before we can obey His wishes and will correctly. The Mechilta 98a (a body of Mishnah-like material) reinforces the Talmudic concept by reminding its readers that the Torah is a means of strengthening "an on-going mutual relationship of love between God and his people;" it (the Law-Torah) does not produce it! This we saw in the second article in this series.

Answer for yourself: Did God give us the Torah-Law (the Bible) to get us into covenant with Him, or was it given to help those already in covenant with Him to respond, behave, and obey in such a way that they could be pleasing to the One to Whom they were already in covenant with?

Whether you know it or not you just read the most important question and its "answer" that you will ever have to answer in life

The Torah was given to help us strengthen our relationship with God; a relationship that already exists because we are already are in Covenant with God in the first place as the previous article has shown you.

As Sigal points out, much of modern scholarship inaccurately portrayed both first century Judaism and the relationship that exists between Judaism and Christianity. This error, he says, "is largely rooted in Christianity's misunderstanding of both Paul's and Judaism's position on faith and works.

Answer for yourself: Does the Christian church still suffer from this same problem today? Yes, you better believe it does!

Much of modern scholarship inaccurately portrays both first century Judaism and the relationship that exists between Judaism and Christianity....This grievous error...'is largely rooted in Gentile Christianity's misunderstanding of both Paul's and Judaism's position on faith and works

Answer for yourself: Having read the previous article on the Law, can you now say that you have learned a lot and now your perspective on the Law as having "passed away" has changed? I bet you can.

WAS BIBLICAL JUDAISM DEVOID OF GRACE AS CHRISTIANITY HAS TAUGHT?

A second error has been the generally simplistic conception of Judaism as 'legalism'...having no doctrine of grace."

Answer for yourself: Can you now see that such a concept that equates Judaism as a religion without grace is totally false and foreign to the Old Testament and the Torah? I bet you can.

One passage which strikingly illustrates Judaism's emphasis on grace is recited twice a week during the Tachanun portion of the daily Shacharit (morning) service, and is as follows:

For we do not present our supplications before thee because of our righteousness but because of thy great compassion. O Lord hear; O Lord forgive...Our father, our King, be gracious unto us and answer us, for we are lacking in good works; deal with us benevolently for Thy name's sake...We know that we have sinned and there is none to stand up in our behalf...we know that we have no good works of our own; deal with us benevolently for Thy name's sake. As a father has compassion on his children, so, O Lord, have compassion on us and save us for thy name's sake.

Other passages stress the importance of faith for the believing Jew; of trusting God for salvation

For example, the following is prayed during Shacharit (morning service):

*"Because we have trusted in thy holy, great and revered name, make us rejoice and be glad in thy salvation." Or as the Talmud so graphically put it (Makkot 23-24): Talmud Rabbi Salmai gave the following exposition: 613 commandments were given to Moses...then came David and made them compact into 11 commandments (Psalm 15)... then came Isaiah and reduced them to six commandments (Isaiah 33:15)...then came Micah the prophet and reduced them to a compact three (Micah 6:8)...then came the prophet Habakkuk and reduced all the commandments to one, as it is written (Habakkuk 2:4): "the just shall live by faith."

H. J. Schoeps, author of The Jewish Christian Argument, New York: Rinehart and Winston, 1963, p.41, states:

*To observe concerning this purported Jewish teaching: "Seen from a vantage point within Judaism, it is a misconception of a monstrous proportion; for all Christian polemic--and especially modern Protestant polemic against the law -misconstrues the law of the Jews as a means of attaining justification in the ## sight of God."

Answer for yourself: Contrary to what many Christians have heard from the pulpits of their Churches and which they have been taught to think, have the Jewish people and their teachers EVER considered obedience to the Laws of God as their means of justification and salvation before God? No, Judaism never has taught, not yesterday, today or ever will, that obedience to the Laws of God "saves"!

NOW...UNDERSTANDING THE ABOVE...WHAT IS PAUL ARGUING ABOUT IN GALATIANS AND WHO ARE HIS OPPONENTS?

Answer for yourself: How then are Jews justified before God? The same way we are as Christians; "for without faith it is impossible to please God."

Answer for yourself: If this is so (that Jews NEVER thought that they are saved by works but faith like Christians), then one might well ask, "Who was Paul arguing against in Galatians?"

One thing is for sure; Paul's opponents sure was not mainstream Judaism as practiced and believed by typical Jews because Judaism had never taught such a heresy as "salvation by works", yet, more than likely, you have heard this lie taught often your whole life as well as that the Jews are lost and damned to hell for they reject either reject Christian theology surrounding this Jesus and or they fail to obey the Laws "perfectly" and "break them" or that they cannot bring sacrifices or obey that Law since they are without their Temple. Such babble affirms one's total misunderstanding of the Jewish Scriptures and the salvation message in the Hebrew Scriptures!

Answer for yourself: If Paul was not writing the book of Galatians to replace Judaism with Christianity, not replacing works salvation (which we just showed you was not mainstream Judaism) with faith salvation as my church has taught me, then why did Paul write Galatians and what is its message to me today? Have I understood Paul's stance toward the "Law" correctly or have I missed it completely?

Schoeps' comment is once again pertinent:

"Paul may well be conducting a justifiable polemic against the erroneous opinions of "this or that scholar" among his...opponents (minority opinions). But he is not saying anything contrary to Holy Scripture (Old Testament). Apparently then, there were those among the diversity and variety within Judaism that made up the Jewish community of the first century (and perhaps not even a majority among the Jewish people) who missed the message of the Torah, a message of Covenant relationship and God's grace. They distorted it and transformed the observance of the Torah into a system of works, self-effort, and -achievement. They turned the grace of God and man's response of loving obedience into a means of getting right with God, or legalism and the focus of "faith for salvation" was turned into "perfect obedience for salvation". That was never the message of the Torah nor of Judaism to the world! This might be a shock to you but "legalism" was not what mainstream Judaism taught, but apparently some significant elements within it had accepted this misunderstanding, especially in relationship to the "non-Jew", and it is to this "errant opinion of the School of Shammai" that Paul speaks in Galatians. In particular as we have seen this all revolved around the "work" of "circumcision" as applied to the "non-Jew".

WHO WERE THESE JEWS THAT DISTORTED THE TORAH... AND WHAT WERE THEY TEACHING THAT PAUL OBJECTED TO?

We must go the historical events that precipitated the Acts 15 Church Council to understand the Book of Galatians correctly. The good news is that in so doing we can come to the truth behind the New Testament's negative comments on the "Law". Let us examine one example as stated in Acts 15 and later refuted by James, the pastor of the Messianic church of Jerusalem.

15:1 And certain men which came down from Judaea taught the brethren (addressing the "non-Jews" with Paul), [and said], Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved (the subject was the "non-Jews" in the Pauline outreach)

Apparently then, there were those Jews among the diversity and variety and many "sects" that made up the Jewish community of the first century (and perhaps not even a majority among the Jewish people) who missed the message of the Torah, a message of Covenant relationship and God's grace as I have shown you in the previous article. Of course you remember this as the School of Shammai and their intense hatred of the "non-Jew" as reflective in their requirement of circumcision upon adult "non-Jewish" males in spite of no requirement ever given from God that the "non-Jew" had to be circumcised "to be saved". The Covenant of Noah, the Covenant of the "non-Jew" never required circumcision of the "non-Jew". This small fragment of Jews from the School of Shammai distorted the Torah and its message and transformed the observance of the Torah as a response to God's grace into a system of works, self-effort, and achievement and into a "man-made system" of getting right with God, or better described as "legalism". Legalism was not what mainstream Judaism taught, but apparently significant elements within it had accepted this misunderstanding. But what you must understand is that they distorted the message of the Torah on purpose in order to keep these "Gentile-dogs" apart from the Jews and their religion. Such enforcement of circumcision upon the "non-Jewish" believers and converts was carried out in hopes that such a painful and dangerous surgical procedure on an adult male would be impetus enough to discourage not only their conversion and fellowship among the Jewish people but stop their families from being a part of the Israel of God. We call it racism and bigotry today. Paul knew what these Shammai Pharisees had overlooked on purpose in serving their selfish agenda; namely, that God had never required circumcision for the non-Jewish believer. By putting the Gentiles "under the law of circumcision" these Shammai Pharisees hoped to discourage the Gentile's influx into Biblical Judaism. Thus Paul's whole focus was NOT on Gentiles "not being under the Law", but only not being under or responsible to the Commandment and Law of circumcision. Let us continue on as the picture will get clearer still.

Answer for yourself: If all you read was verse one of Acts 15, and not knowing that the whole of the Book of Galatians is only about the Law of Circumcision, then would it be not be easy for you to think that men representing the whole of the religion of Judaism had come down to teach the Gentiles in Antioch, Asia Minor, that obedience to the Law (circumcision) is required for Gentile salvation; thus teaching OBEDIENCE TO THE LAW FOR SALVATION? It sure would and that is what many have done with the teachings of Paul; not understanding the specific nature of his opposition to the Law. That is what we all have done in not understanding the context and historical factors at work that defines exactly just what "Law" that Paul is dealing with and denouncing; namely the law of circumcision for the "non-Jew". Many, lacking certain information and knowledge, have supposed that Paul, when saying negative things about the Law, was condemning the whole of the Law and not addressing just the part concerning circumcision as it was applied to Gentiles by those Shammai Pharisees which wanted to limit association with the "non-Jews". It is not my intention to deal with this matter in more detail here, but Galatians is believed by many to be of the earliest of Paul's letters that reflect his "earliest" beliefs and understanding the historical context correctly then we find that Paul, the authentic Paul, never spoke against these Laws of God (in total).

Answer for yourself: Is there a later problem that we see in Paul's authentic letters that can make us think that later Paul spoke against the whole of the Law? Yes, but this is a difficult thing to come to terms with and until you understand Gnosticism, since Paul was a Gnostic, can we understand this "mind of Paul" which could at one time believe that these "Laws" are Eternal but at the same time believe that he was no longer under these Laws but has risen above them "in the Spirit". I hinted at this in an earlier article but many Gnostics were a Spiritual People who lived "in the Spirit" no longer needing the "letter of the Law" to define for them what was the will of God in their lives; to define what was "right" and what was "wrong". They lived these Laws out in their lives not having to be told or reminded of them on a daily basis like many of us. More on this can be found in the Website on the First Gnostic New Testament. Later in Paul's his life however, if he really be the author of other materials that carry his name which modern scholars today highly doubt, this concept of "not being under the 'Letter of the Law' because I live these Laws by Divine Revelation" will later evolve into grievous error in our New Testament's whereby we think that this Paul opposed these same Laws that he so clearly espoused in his earlier writings. This idea is further sanctioned by "non-Jews" who later "doctored" and "altered" the Pauline texts thereby twisting much of his writings along with their later forgery of them. These "adulterated writings" will speak against the true Biblical faith by the later Gentile Church "forgers" of later Christian history over the next centuries.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice in above quotes that I referred to a writer and authority in the matter of Biblical Law, and he stated that to consider that obedience was REQUIRED FOR SALVATION was a misconception of a monstrous proportion; for all Christian polemic--and especially modern Protestant polemic against the law misconstrues the law of the Jews as a means of attaining justification in the sight of God"? The Jews never believed this nor do they believe this today but Sunday after Sunday we hear this stuff from our pulpits. Typical Christianity has badly misrepresented Jewish Faith from over 1,700 years at present and when both in Seminary and afterward for up to 5 years in my research of Judaism I was shocked to see that the vast majority of prior suppositions toward Judaism as a "reared Christian" were wrong.

...the letters of Paul were not, at least in his earliest theology, teaching "to do away with the Law," but rather, "to show that obedience to the Law FOR SALVATION" was never necessary (historically dealing with circumcision of the "non-Jew"...especially that the Gentile need not obey the law of circumcision to be "right" with God since that particular Commandment was not given to the "non-Jew" in the Covenant of Noah...only that it applied to the Jews later in the Mosaic ordinances...but this idea of circumcision was only forced upon the "non-Jew" historically by Jews who hated the Gentiles

Answer for yourself: Did mainstream Judaism, or Messianic Judaism in the first century teach "works salvation" (regardless of what I have been taught by those in the Gentile Church who know no better)? No, evidently not in spite of what the New Testament of Rome teaches and sadly this gross misrepresentation has mistakenly influenced millions of Christians to not understand the Jewish Faith. The only regard in which this can even be considered is in relationship with the "non-Jews". No greater error can be accomplished in one's life than to believe such things and teach such things never having a through understanding of Judaism but this is done by untold numbers of Christian authors and Christian teachers across our land because they fail to know the historical context behind the writings of the "authentic Paul" as well as failing to separate out the "Pauline forgeries". If they had done then then they would have had such serious mistakes in their books.

Answer for yourself: Then why have we heard preached by the Christian Church our whole life that Paul's letters and a "belief in Jesus" set us freed from having to obey the Law for salvation, when the truth of the matter is that Judaism NEVER taught this religious doctrine themselves; but rather the opposite? Why have we never heard that obedience to the Laws and Commandments of our Covenant demonstrate our love for God and in so doing that we establish and strengthen our relationship with God?

Answer for yourself: Can you now see that the Galatian letter of Paul was not ever meant to convey that we are "to do away with the Law," but rather, "to show that obedience to the Law of circumcision "FOR SALVATION" was never necessary for the "non-Jew", and that Paul corrects only a small segment of misinformed Jews who had their theology wrong because of their racial bias? Let us never forget that the vast majority of Jews never believed in the necessity of obeying the Law "for salvation".

Answer for yourself: Then "who" taught the erroneous doctrine of "works salvation" (that you have to be circumcised for salvation) for it was being taught by some? Historically it was one man who influenced misguided and racially minded Jews some 2,000 years ago by the name of R. Shammai. A small fraction of Jews who were influenced by him were mistaken in their religious belief system, but let us not be mistaken, they were in the vast "minority," and did not represent the "majority" opinion of conservative Rabbinic scholarship that we see down through history as we have so often been taught by Gentile Christians who do not know Judaism well. Rabbi Hillel is a good example and his school of Rabbis did not support such bigotry.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that the account of Nicodemus in John chapter 3 is all about this historical issue?

Acts 15:24 For as much as we have heard, that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, [Ye must] be circumcised, and keep the law: to whom we gave no [such] commandment.

Answer for yourself: Did James teach "works salvation" (that you have to be circumcised to be saved)? No.

Gentiles do not have to be circumcised (obey the law) to be saved; but be not mistaken; since they are saved by grace through faith, their love for the God who saves them was expected to be demonstrated by their obedience to the Commandments given to them in their Covenant with God BECAUSE THEY WERE ALREADY SAVED!

Answer for yourself: Then can you now see that the teaching of these "men from Judaea" is wrong as stated by James who is the Lord's hand-picked pastor to head up the Jerusalem Church? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Can you begin to see that even some Jews erred in their understanding of their own Law as have many of the thousands of different Christian denominations by saying the Law was done away with 'totally' when I showed you it wasn't in the last Galatian's teaching?

Answer for yourself: Did this proposed "obedience to the Law" that Paul focuses upon in Galatians concern 613 Mitzvot (commandments), or was it concerned for only one law as far as the Gentiles were concerned; namely, circumcision? Only one, for the WHOLE ISSUE of the matter is that Gentiles do not have to be circumcised (obey the Law, the "Law of Circumcision") to be saved; but be not mistaken; since they are saved by grace through faith, their love for the God who saves them was expected to be revealed by their obedience to the Commandments given to them in their Covenant BECAUSE THEY WERE ALREADY SAVED!

LET US SUMMARIZE WHAT THIS MEANS TO YOU...SO FAR

Let me stop right here and bring your attention to the fact that such Laws of which I speak, the Laws that Paul never intended to abolish, dictate how God desires that you and I are to worship, how God desires you and I are to give our money to build the Kingdom of God with our tithes, which days God desires you and I keep holy and sanctify and which days you and I are not and I could go on. The sad fact is that if you are not aware of such truths of which I speak then most likely you do not adhere to such Laws and you need to be reminded that violation of the Law is sin as defined by both the Old and New Testament. It is a tragic thing for Christians to assume mistakenly that they are right with God only to find out when they die that they have lived their whole lives as Christians as "sinners" and never know it. Thus the contradiction that lies at the very whole of our Christian Bibles and our Christian live when these religious texts we accept are read closely with just a little knowledge of the context and history that surrounds such texts. In other words "slanted" antisemitic theology, which we all inherited in the Christian Church, has been responsible for years and years of sin of which you may I are not aware. It is not just some simple thing when you observe Easter, which God hates, and neglect His Passover. I have shown else where the the word for "Passover" is translated correctly throughout the whole of the New Testament but in the Book of Acts is is mysteriously translated differently and it is here we are led to believe that the early Gentile Church observed Easter when in fact it was the Passover historically. Constantine will change all of this and make sure the Roman texts reflect such changes for the "non-Jewish" world. It is no small thing when you give your Tithe to the church and your Pastor uses it in areas where the Commandments do not warrant and forbid its use and in fact dictate where it can be used "only". It is no small thing that you sanctify Sunday but break the Sabbath the day before you gather to worship God on Christianity's "day of the Sun". These Commandments are your opportunities, day after day, week after week, to reveal your love for God and demonstrate your love for God before your fellow man. Only in so doing can we be assured that our actions and behavior is the "loving" response toward your neighbor as well as God as dictated by these Law and Commandments of God.

Answer for yourself: Do you see that the Jerusalem Church gave no such commandment that a "non-Jew must be circumcised (which was an act of obedience to a commandment) to be saved? I hope so. Again we should desire to obey these Law and Commandments because we are already in relationship with God since turning toward Him and we hopefully desire to maintain that good standing with the Creator. And as stated before where we miss this so much in our Christian experience is in the way we live our lives as controlled and directed by Christian theology and teaching which departs from the teachings of the Law in the Hebrew Scriptures and in so doing sadly sets aside these "absolutes" and in there place substitutes our "tradition" or the desires of your Pastor or denomination. In so doing we "tithe", for example, but contrary to how the Hebrew Scriptures delineate and command how these "gifts" are to be used they end up being used for everything under the Sun and in so doing we make such who give these "gifts" accessories to robbery of God. The same could be said for "worship" because many Christian doctrines are, when exposed to critical study, shown to be the fruit of idolatry and blasphemy of the Name of God since they stemmed historically from antisemitic gravitations of the Early Church Fathers. When the forgery of the New Testament given us by Rome was complete then we lost the original source whereby we could discern these changes for few, if any Christians I know, compare "line upon line, and precept upon precept" the Hebrew Scriptures taken from the Hebrew Bible with the later forged Greek and English translations and the quotes taken from these forgeries that line the pages of our New Testaments. If you were to do this then you will see the falsification of the religious texts that we are taught to accept "without question". Failing to do this then we never see for ourselves these truths of which I speak. The bottom line in all of this is that we stand before God "disobedient", "idolatrous", and "unclean" never knowing this because we have been effectively "brainwashed" to believe that these "old" Laws "have ended with Christ". Rome has been a master of deception and few know it; until they embark upon serious study however.

James knew the truth about the Law of God as it applied to the "non-Jew" and his great declaration in Acts 15 is a major correction to the School of Shammai who influenced only a part of the Israel of God and moved by hatred and such bigotry they enforced the "Law" of circumcision upon the "non-Jew" to be saved. Others rose up in correction of that deviant teaching; James and Paul and the Jerusalem Council who would write "letters" in Acts 16 enforcing their decision that only the Laws of Noah are binding upon the "non-Jew" before God. Again let us not be mistaken that in these Laws of Noah are Commandments going to the very heart of our antisemitic Christian theology today and affect everything I mentioned above; namely, tithing, worship, Christology, etc. These Laws of Noah are a major correction to Gentile Christianity today as was the Jerusalem Council to the School of Shammai. It is in obeying these Laws of Noah do we begin our repentance and turn to the Kingdom of God but such is impossible without the knowledge of what we read in Acts 15 and 16 and what these Laws and Commandments of our Covenant as "non-Jews" entail.

Answer for yourself: Do you see that in the Great Commission, however, the Gentiles were expressly commanded to be "taught to obey those things which the Jewish Christ within Judaism had commanded" of his apostles and disciples?

Thus, obedience was not replaced by grace; rather, obedience is the natural response to grace. For the Christian, Bet Emet Ministries sounds an alarm for in the Christian Church today we have almost totally replaced obedience to Commandments such as the Saturday Sabbath with Sunday worship, obedience to commandments concerning the sanctification of God's Holy Days and Festivals with Greco-Roman pagan days in which the name of Jesus has been attached in order to give them "authority", and the use of God's Holy Tithe (a form of worship) has been replaced by whatever agenda your particular denomination desires in their use of these offerings. And this goes on "unnoticed" by millions who believe that these Laws have passed away for the "non-Jew".

In the Great Commission, however, the Gentiles were expressly commanded to be "taught to obey those things which Christ had commanded his apostles and disciples. Thus, obedience to Commandments was not replaced by grace; rather, obedience is the natural response of our love toward God for His grace.

Answer for yourself: Does NOT being required to obey commandments for salvation remove from us the responsibility we have as believers to "choose those things that please God" which is also manifested in our Noahide Commandments? No, it does not.

NOT being REQUIRED to obey commandments FOR SALVATION does not remove us from the responsibility we have as believers to "choose those things that please God" which are manifested in Commandments obeyed in our lives..and not broken before Him.

Answer for yourself: Now let me ask you since you better understand where Paul was coming from does not being required to obey commandments "for salvation" remove from us as "non-Jewish" believers from the responsibility we have to obey the Commandments and Laws in our Covenant because we are already saved by turning to God in faith? No, it does not.

Answer for yourself: Does not being required to obey commandments for salvation remove us as believers from the responsibility we have to obey the Commandments because we love God and we are expected in response to God to express our love for God through obedience to Him and His Word (His Laws)? No. Let us never forget this simple statement that says it all in spite of Roman theology:

John 14:15 If ye love me, keep my commandments. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Is obedience (to the tithe, Festivals, Sabbaths, etc.) really greater than any sacrifice you can bring God? Ask Abel and learn from his example

Answer for yourself: Does not being required to obey commandments for salvation remove us as believers from the responsibility we have to obey God and His Commandments because it is He who cut Covenant with us? No. Does our obedience to the Laws in our Covenant as "non-Jews", the Covenant of Noah, strengthen our relationship with God to Whom we are already in Covenant with? It sure does. We as Christians and followers of "the Christ" are not removed from our responsibility to obey our Covenant making God, and responding to Him in whom we already have relationship through faith and to whom it is expected that we will obey. Let us learn and draw closer to God with our first step; namely repentance once we have come to the truth of the matter and let us be reassured that our obedience only draws us closer to God and God to us!

LOOK AT ACTS 15 AGAIN

Acts 15:6 (KJV) And the apostles and elders came together for to consider of this matter. 7 And when there had been much disputing, Peter rose up, and said unto them, Men [and] brethren, ye know how that a good while ago God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel, and believe. 8 And God, which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as [he did] unto us; 9 And put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith. 10 Now therefore why tempt ye God, to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples (enforcing circumcision upon the "non-Jew" before he can come to the God of Israel), which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear? (like the "non-Jews" the Jews were not required to be circumcised before they turned to God in faith).

Answer for yourself: Did the apostles and elders come together to consider the matter as to how the Gentiles could be "saved" (understood at turning to God and finding His acceptance) since they had heard, as had Paul, that men "supposedly" from the Jerusalem church were teaching that Gentiles had to be circumcised to be saved (circumcised before they could come to the God of Israel)? Yes.

Notice that what James says comes long after the time for the death of this New Testament Jesus, a death mind you which we are taught changed everything; a "New Covenant" being instituted at this death and replacing and changing everything that went before. But a "thinking" believer might just see it different when thinking through what was said later by James and accepted by the whole of the "non-Jewish" world for the early centuries and which can be verified by archeology and critical historical study today. Let us see this again. We must appeal to James' ruling as the authority to settle the matter of the Law and obedience to it as applied to the "non-Jew" never forgetting that these Apostles sure did not believe that this death of Jesus changed anything in regard to the Law. We even have the New Testament witness that this James was supposedly sought out and picked personally to head up his new movement and church. I can believe a lot of things but to believe that the wrong men, or incompetent men were put at the helm of this "Jewish Council" when moved by the Spirit of God in teaching the School of Shammai to repent because of their erroneous teaching of the Covenant and Laws of Noah were somehow "wrong" is more than I can accept. To think that James and Paul went out and "did it wrong" when empowered by the Holy Spirit is more than I can swallow. Just the facts and evidence presented in these three articles on Galatians should make you wonder about other decisions and dogmas taught by these good Baptists, Catholics, Charismatics, Presbyterians, Methodists, Church of Christ, 7th day Adventists, or the other 2,000 different Christian denominations which follow this forged New Testament and who defy unbiased historical interpretation of the events we read about in our Roman New Testaments. I believe without a doubt that James is right, and if we disagree with him, then we are wrong and sin lieth at the door.

Answer for yourself: Was there much disputing about the matter of Law and its relationship to salvation of the Gentiles going on in Judaism since the Pauline outreach? Yes, you better believe it for the huge numbers of "non-Jews" desiring to turn to the real God of the Cosmos appeared instantly as a threat to the Jewish Israel of God".

Answer for yourself: Is there yet today much disputing concerning the matter of Law and its relationship to the salvation of the Gentiles among the 2,000 or so different Christian denominations? Yes there sure is.

Answer for yourself: Should we appeal to James' ruling for the authority to settle the matter once and for all, especially since he was picked personally to head up his new correction for the School of Shammai in Judaism, or should we appeal to the decisions made on the matter by the conflicting doctrines and teachings as held by the Baptists, Catholics, Presbyterians, Methodists, Church of Christ, 7th day Adventists, or the other thousands of different Christian denominations which hold differing views on various Christian dogmas and doctrines; many of which pertain to "the Law"? I believe without a doubt that James is right, and if we disagree with him, then we are wrong.

Answer for yourself: If apostolic doctrine was still being taught today (which only few do), and considering all the other movements and denominations that exist today, would you choose to identify with, fellowship with, and join the church reflecting the beliefs of the Jerusalem Council? I sure would and this hope and dream led to the establishment of Bet Emet Ministries.

Answer for yourself: Does Peter say in verse 9 that God puts no difference between the Jew and Gentile? Yes. Then understand Shammai was wrong to do so and James was right to "tear down that middle wall or partition".

Answer for yourself: What was the "yoke" that was mistakenly put on the Gentile by a few that was not put upon the Jewish fathers which they could not bear either?

Simple to see now; it was "obedience of the Commandments for salvation" instead of a "response of obedience of the Laws of God seen as demonstrations of our love for God since we have already turned to God in faith and already are saved". The Jews were never "saved" by keeping the Law and few Christians ever know this truth.

"No difference" was made between the Jew and Gentile in that neither were REQUIRED TO OBEY THE LAW TO BE SAVED, but rather, both peoples were to obey God's Laws because they had already experienced God's love and forgiveness

Answer for yourself: In the context of Acts 15, do you see that there is "no difference" between the Jew and Gentile in that neither were required to obey the Laws to be saved, but rather, both were to obey because they had already experienced God's love and forgiveness by Him revealing Himself to them as well as giving them these Laws whereby they would know what God required of them before Him? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Then will you reject Christian teaching that says that without accepting this Jesus, for example, that the Jew is going to hell and that the Jew "cannot be saved" or that the Jew, without the Temple cannot obey the Law today for salvation when you have seen for yourself that the Laws never was required for salvation? I hope so.

WHICH LAWS AMONG THE 613 WERE INTENDED FOR THE NON-JEWISH BELIEVER...ACCORDING TO JAMES?

Acts 15:19 Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them, which from among the Gentiles are turned to God: 20 But that we write unto them, that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and [from] fornication, and [from] things strangled, and [from] blood. 21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every Sabbath day.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice in reading the 15th chapter of Acts that following the decision of James that in verse 28 it states that this decision (to have the Gentiles obey only that part of the Torah-the Law that was given to all mankind in Genesis...the Laws of Noah) seemed good to not only the elders of the Messianic church but to the Holy Spirit as well? Staggering thought isn't it, especially since you have been taught erroneously your whole life that the Law passed away and you are under grace. Remember that this ruling was from the first church of the Jewish Christ!

Notice that the decision of the Jerusalem church to have the Gentiles obey &

observe only those Laws previously given to all Gentiles in Genesis "seemed good to the Holy Spirit" and was deemed as "necessary things" for Gentile inclusion in the Israel of God

Answer for yourself: Was the decision concerning which Laws were binding upon the Gentile in order for him to be included into the Jesus Movement within Israel (the church)? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Were adherence to the laws and commandments in the Noahide Covenant perceived as "good to the Holy Spirit" and were certain laws and commandments deemed as "necessary things" or "essential things" before Gentiles could be joined to this Jesus Movement? Yes on both counts.

Answer for yourself: Since this is after the death of this New Testament Jesus as depicted in this New Testament, are these things still perceived as good by the Holy Spirit and "necessary" yet today? Yes on both counts.

Answer for yourself: Did James command that the decision of this church council (that the Gentile did NOT have to obey the Law to be saved) be written down and distributed to all the Gentile churches, and along with this was included what Laws and Commandments which were considered as "minimums" which Gentiles had to adhere to in order to be joined with the Jews in the Olive Tree of Israel? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Having understood that James corrected the erroneous teaching concerning Gentiles (as well as Jews) and how the "non-Jews" were to be saved, can you now see that in the wake of that decision that he still commanded that the decrees made by him, the elders, and the Holy Spirit be written down, and that these decrees, which were to be spread throughout all Gentile lands, INCLUDED adherence to many commandments which were deemed "NECESSARY?" I hope you did for this is of major importance to you and I as Gentile believers in this "Christ" today and in his church today; regardless if you have ever heard of it or not.

Answer for yourself: Were these "necessary things" spoken after the death of this New Testament Jesus and did the responsibility of the "non-Jew" for observance of the Laws of Noah change with this presumed death of Jesus? No.

Answer for yourself: Are these "necessary things" NECESSARY today? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware what is contained in these "necessary things?" More than likely not for the Christian church does not preach obedience to the Law BECAUSE YOU ARE ALREADY SAVED, for more than likely, they preach that the Law has "passed away."

Acts 15:28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things;

Those "necessary things" were not given by James FOR GENTILE SALVATION, but seeing the work of the Holy Spirit among the Gentiles since Genesis, James and the elders saw that through Gentile obedience to these "necessary things" that the Jew and Gentile could have the middle wall of separation removed, thus allowing them to fellowship together, thereby providing a teaching atmosphere to instruct the Gentiles in the ways of God which go beyond the minimum "necessary things". They could learn to ## choose other commandments which please God as well.

Answer for yourself: If James' decision to command Gentile to do certain "necessary things" please the Holy Spirit then, does it still please the Holy Spirit today? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Should we want to please the Holy Spirit in all we believe and do? Yes, I hope your answers is "yes".

Answer for yourself: As a Gentile believer in God and "His Christ", are we exempt from these "necessary things" today? No.

Answer for yourself: Can you see that these "necessary things" were not given by James FOR SALVATION, but seeing the work of the Holy Spirit among the Gentiles, James and the elders saw that by these "necessary things" that the Jew and Gentile could have the middle wall of separation removed, thus allowing them to fellowship together, thereby providing a teaching atmosphere to instruct the Gentile in the ways of God which go beyond the minimum "necessary things?" I hope so for this opens the door to Isa. 56 and the opportunity of the "non-Jew" to acquire more mitzvot.

Acts 15:28 For it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you (Gentiles coming to faith in God through His Messiah) no greater burden than these necessary things; 29 That ye abstain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Fare ye well. 30 So when they were dismissed, they came to Antioch: and when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epistle: 31 [Which] when they had read, they rejoiced for the consolation. {consolation: or, exhortation} 32 And Judas and Silas, being prophets also themselves, exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed [them].

Although obedience to commandments was NOT put upon the Gentiles FOR SALVATION, without a doubt was obedience to "SOME" commandments definitely laid upon the Gentile for inclusion into and the grafting of the "non-Jew" into the Israel of God.

Answer for yourself: Are these law which were "necessary" long after the time for the death of this Jesus yet today "necessary" and if not then how and what occurred long after the death of this Jesus to change what has been the teaching of God ever since Sumer long before Egypt for we find these Laws of Noah back in Sumer?

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that four of the commandments spoken by James in Acts 15, verse 30, are 4 of the 7 categories of the Laws of Noah? You do now.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that the decision of James and the elders at the Jerusalem church council that required Gentiles to do "necessary things" was written and delivered to all other Gentiles in the known world for their study and adherence? I hope so.

Has anyone ever taught you in your church these "necessary things" ...The Laws Of Noah...and helped you make sure that you are in obedience to them?

Answer for yourself: Did you see that the findings within the written epistles in Acts 16 were given to the multitude of Gentiles by the decree of James? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Has anyone ever taught you in your church these "necessary things" and helped you make sure that you are in obedience to them since they affect your worship and and your giving? Probably not.

Answer for yourself: If adherence to Laws and commandments was required of Gentiles (necessary things) in order for them to belong to the church of this Jewish Christ then what church are you a member of today if you don't adhere to the same requirement? Surely, it may be "this or that" denomination or non-denomination, but it cannot be the Apostolic Church for the requirements of Gentiles HAS NEVER CHANGED. Remember dear beloved believer, these events occurred after the cross of this New Testament Jesus and set a pattern that was adhered to by the apostles and disciples, as well as Paul, as the Great Commission went into all the known world and espoused these same Laws as "necessary".

Answer for yourself: Should we be teaching the same things that the early apostles taught, since Ephesians teaches us that the church is built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, and not Baptists and Catholics? You bet!

How do you reconcile what you just learned from James and the Jerusalem Church with the Pauline statements that "we are not under Law but under grace?" Is Paul writing this...or is this being written in his name later?

Answer for yourself: Do you see the importance of obedience to these "necessary things" as our response of love toward the God who first loved us? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Are you beginning to see that we as believers should want to obey God's Law because we love God and desire to please Him? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: How do you reconcile what you just learned from James and the early church, as presented in this article, with Paul's statements that "we are not under Law but under grace?" Hard isn't it? The problem is magnified as Peter has reminded us by saying "the writings of Paul are very hard to understand and many twist them to their own destruction." Sadly, this has happened to the majority of Christianity today. We simply misunderstand what we read and it is false reiterated by our Pastors who know little more than their congregations being deficient in the necessary study to be effective leaders.

Answer for yourself: Can you reconcile and properly understand "not under Law but under grace?" Remember that we are no longer under the Law as a custodian that holds us for trial and execution since all have sinned and come short of the glory of God; however, we all are yet and will always be under the teaching and instructive aspects of the Law.

Answer for yourself: Having seen that the Law never passed away as to its teaching aspects, but only as to its judicial aspects, then don't you think you should come to a better awareness and understanding about these "necessary things" as I have shown you? You bet. Don't be surprised, but you will find many things as I did in my rigorous pursuits of the truth; for example, in just one of these four "necessary things" is the commandment for Gentiles not to worship another in the place of the Only true God and by a vote of early Church Fathers in Nicea Jesus was "made God" and we worship this Jesus in place of God in our Christian Churches. By a vote of hand this Jesus Christ was officially declare "the Son of God, only begotten of the Father . . . of the substance of the Father . . . very God of very God." There you have it. Each time we pray in his name, or venerate any other than God the Father do we we practice idolatry that goes unknown to most of us but let me reassure you God knows. Little known at the end of the life of Arius the Roman Church recalled Arius to "reverse" the prior Nicean Council's decision and nullify this "Jesus as the very God of God" but Arius, being very aged, was stricken with pneumonia in route and died. Otherwise we would not have this theology today. Time to study the history of the church and find out what really happened to make what we have today.

Answer for yourself: Can you begin to see the value of studying and returning to the Hebrew Roots of the Christian church, for much of what we have been told and allowed to do and practice is considered sin by God, and brothers and sisters, I cannot conceive that you would wish to sin once you have come to the knowledge of the truth. Thus, the reason for Bet Emet Ministries. More to follow in the next article in the series.

Definitely, these are things to rethink....and then ask ourselves..."have we been taught the truth?"

HAVE WE MISUNDERSTOOD PAUL'S MESSAGE IN THE BOOK OF GALATIANS? #4

Having previously seen three in-depth teachings concerning the Book of Galatians which has reinforced the proper understanding that we are not to "obey the Law and commandments" to "be saved" but rather that we are to "obey the Law and commandments in our Covenant" because "we are saved", let us now strengthen our correct understanding of the book even more by examining the historical circumstances surrounding the Book of Galatians a little more. This is what we should have learned up to now.

We should exert self-effort for God through obedience to His Law and Commandments that apply to us, "non-Jews", BECAUSE WE ALREADY ARE SAVED, NOT IN ORDER TO BE SAVED

In all probability, the main focus of Paul's outreach and readers were predominantly Gentiles, located in Asia, Minor, in the southern part of the province of Galatia in cities he had visited on his first journey. They had responded to Paul's previous preaching and teaching about repentance and "the Christ within" and had become his followers having come to the understanding of their existence literally as being "the Temple of God, the Temple of the Holy Spirit" in this physical plane of existence. With that understanding comes a huge responsibility corresponding to the self-awareness of just whom they are, where they had come from, and where they go when they die, and you can see that it is easily to then understand that to continue to live as heathen is contrary to the Divine Plan. Apparently, at the same time, Paul had been followed by a group of people reflecting the School of Shammai now called "Judaizers" (Shammai Pharisees) although a more appropriate term is "legalizers" who taught that the these Gentile believers who were turning to God as has the Jews had to follow and obey the whole of Torah and tradition as a means of salvation and/or spirituality and to be accepted by the Jews as co-laborers in the Israel of God. This view of the Law and its relationship to Gentiles and salvation, as we saw in the last article was an incorrect interpretation by "some" Jews of their own Law and the Covenants of God revealed in their Scriptures. Adherence to this erroneous concept, in effect, replaced God's grace in response to one's faith in God with a system based on merit and self-effort. Again let us take note that this especially suited the purpose of bigoted Jews who wished to limit connection for "non-Jews" coming to the God of Israel. The health issues and possible death served to keep the majority of "non-Jews" separated from these Shammai Pharisees. Such was never Yahweh's intention. Paul was writing to combat this dangerous teaching as mentioned before. That brings us to the correct perspective on the issue of grace and works; namely; that we should exert self-effort toward God through our obedience to the Law and Commandments BECAUSE WE ALREADY ARE SAVED, NOT TO BE SAVED.

Apparently, these legalizers claimed a connection with, and perhaps even authority from, the Jerusalem apostles, particularly James (cf. Gal. 2:6-13). Again, such was not the case however as we saw in James' denouncement of this in an earlier article. Now let us go on.

But, in all likelihood, these "legalizers" and "judaizers" were self-appointed teachers who took this mission on themselves and were not accurate interpreters of the Torah, let alone true interpreters of the Jewish Faith as seen in Gal. 2:4: "And that because of false brethren unawares brought in, who came in privily to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage."

Answer for yourself: What was the "issue" at hand concerning the Gentiles and salvation? Simply, as we have seen, whether or not the "non-Jewish" believer in God had to be circumcised "for salvation" and "in order to receive God's free salvation have to obey and be responsible for the whole of the Laws of Moses" (all 613 Laws and not just the 66 Laws contained in the Law of Noah) and by so doing make full conversion to Judaism.

Answer for yourself: What was that "bondage" that Paul referred to? The "bondage" was the false teaching and notion that Gentiles "had to be responsible for the whole of the Torah given the Jews" (beginning with circumcision). This was the "bondage" referred to by Paul. History teaches us that conversion to Judaism by the "non-Jew" requires that one enter the Covenant of the Jew and this required "circumcision, Temple sacrifice, and offerings at the Temple". This "conversion" was to be voluntary concerning the "non-Jew" but a part of Judaism historically enforced this upon the "non-Jews". It was these Shammai Pharisees who did this and in so doing barred the "non-Jew" from God without his total conversion to Judaism and thereby made it mandatory that they accept the complete 613 Laws "to be saved".

Answer for yourself: Did James, elders, and the Jerusalem Messianic Church send these men with Jerusalem authority and thereby send "legalizers" and "judaizers" with a message of bondage? No.

James understood quite well that as believers in Yahweh, both "Jew and non-Jew" one is SAVED BY GRACE THROUGH FAITH when he or she turns to God in repentant faith yet that faith must be an "active" and "living" faith that responds in the correct righteous works and deeds which are defined by the Positive and Negative Commandments and Law of God and these very same Commandments God were deemed "necessary" as man's proper response to God's grace and which are provided and defined by Him for us in His Holy Torah.

In Acts 15:1 we see that "certain men which came down from Judea taught the brethren, and said 'Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved.'" This was not the message given to James by God for the world, in fact, Acts 15:24 states "For as much as we have heard, that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, saying, 'Ye must be circumcised, and keep the Law: to whom we gave no such commandment.'"

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that James instructs us that no one from the Messianic Community within Judaism believed or held to such a teaching that one must obey the Law or be circumcised "to be saved"? I hope so.

At this critical time in Judaism it is important to know that all the normative institutions - the yeshivas (Rabbinical Schools), the synagogues, etc. - were all run by the mainstream Jews and were functioning. There was still a Sanhedrin (a Jewish Supreme Court), though its powers had been severely curtailed. Most importantly, the teachings of the rabbis and the chain of transmission remained undisturbed. The very opening of Pirkei Avot ("Ethics of the Fathers") records how the chain of transmission was maintained -- starting with Moses, going on to Joshua, the prophets, the Men of the Great Assembly and so forth. When Shimon HaTzaddik, the last member of the Great Assembly died in 273 BCE, a period began known as the period of the Zugot, meaning "pairs." From that time on, there were always two rabbis at the helm of the Jewish tradition. One was called the Av Beit Din (the head of the Sanhedrin), the other was called the Nasi (the president). These pairs are all listed in the "Ethics of the Fathers." The last pair was perhaps the most famous - Hillel and Shammai. Hillel, who came to Israel from Babylon, was very poor. The Talmud tells some interesting stories about how poor he was and how much he loved learning Torah. For example, he was so poor that he couldn't even afford the couple of grushim that it cost to enter the Beit HaMidrash, "the House of Study." So in order to learn, he would sit up on the roof and listen through the skylight. One day, he was doing this in terrible cold and became so frozen he passed out. The students down below were suddenly aware that something was blocking the light, went up onto the roof, found him and revived him. Despite his poverty, which had no impact in how much people respected his wisdom, Hillel achieved the position of Nasi; at that time, Shammai held the position of Av Beis Din. The schools of Hillel and Shammai are famous for their disputes in Jewish law. Indeed, Jewish law today generally agrees with the school of Hillel. The Talmud (Eruvin 13b) explains why:

A heavenly voice declared: "The words of both schools are the words of the living God, but the law follows the rulings of the school of Hillel."

The Talmud explains that the disciples of Hillel were gentle and modest, and studied both their own opinions and the opinions of the other school, and humbly mentioned the words of the other school before their own.

By this time around 1,300 years had passed since Sinai. The Jewish people had been exiled from the land of Israel, and upon their return faced many struggles. The influence of the Greeks, the fight against Greek domination, and the corruption of the Hasmonean rulers, all left their wounds. More recently, there was the Roman occupation and the corruption that came with Herod. As a result of this unrest, scholarship declined among the Jewish people resulting in an increasing lack of clarity. Indeed, the oral transmission process was starting to fray around the edges. The Talmud has not yet been written, but the time is coming soon when the rabbis will decide that the Oral Torah must be written down because it might become lost. A very important point to understand here is that although there were disputes, there were also red lines beyond which no mainstream, traditional, orthodox Jew ever went beyond. All the disputes were on small details, which meant that on the big details everyone agreed. But even if these disputes were small, we have to see them as bad news, because they signified not just a decline in scholarship, but even more importantly, a decline in the spiritual state of the Jewish people. This is called yeridot hadorot, "decline of the generations." The closer Jews were to Mount Sinai, chronologically speaking, the clearer things were and the easier it became to discern the Divine Truth. It's very important to understand how the Jewish people traditionally look at the transmission process. Modern man thinks that the later we get in history the more technology we have, therefore the better we are. This is not a Jewish idea in either history or spirituality or Jewish law. According to Jewish thought, ancient man was spiritually more sophisticated. And in the realm of the transmission process the closer we were to Mount Sinai, chronologically speaking, the clearer things were. But the closer the Jews were to Sinai, the more spiritual they were, and the more clearly they understood the will of God. Today, we are the furthest and for us it is a great deal fuzzier. This is why we do not have the authority to uproot Jewish law laid down by the sages who came before us. That's fundamental to the whole transmission process.

Answer for yourself: Why have I told you this history of Judaism? Simply at Sinai a "mixed multitude" of Egyptian-Gentiles and "Hebrews" stood before God at Sinai and "cut Covenant" as God's peoples; one "Hebrew-Jewish" and one "Non-Jew" and both became the Israel of God. God has always had "one people" made up of Jews and "non-Jews" and there was never a Divine Will that a "middle wall of partition" exist between them. Shammai and others would later see to it that this artificial wall be constructed by enforcing upon the "non-Jews" Laws and Commandments of such a prohibitive nature that it succeeded in keeping them from the God of Israel.

Here is something you need to hear:

A "certain heathen" comes before Shammai wanting to convert to Judaism, but only on the condition that he be taught the entire Torah while standing on one foot (in other words...what is the core teaching of the Law and Commandments of God?). Shammai beats him off with a measuring stick (reflecting his hatred of the "non-Jew"). Hillel, however, is more encouraging: "What is hateful to you, do not do to your neighbor: that is the whole Torah, while the rest is commentary. Go and learn it" (Shabbat 31a).

Answer for yourself: Have you ever heard this before? Yes, you have although you might not remember it.

12 So in everything, do to others what you would have them do to you, for this sums up the Law and the Prophets.

You see Hillel describes this Divine Axiom in the "negative" (Negative Commandments) and the Jewish Christ teaches the same time in the "positive" (Positive Commandment). This expression of Hillel and the Jewish Christ is reflective of the opposing School of Pharisees led by Hillel and which was more accepting of the "non-Jew" than Shammai and his School.

What we find here is the contrast between harsh attitude of a part of Judaism toward the "non-Jew"; an attitude that is reflected in this enforced conversion and circumcision before the "non-Jew" can be accepted by God and Israel. On the other hand we find no such requirement from the School of Hillel.

Now you see the importance even more of what James both did and said in Acts 15 and 16. James understood quite well that as believers in Yahweh, one is "saved by grace through faith in God", yet that faith must be an "active" and "living" faith that responds in righteous works which God deemed "necessary". But circumcision was not one of them. There are Covenant responsibilities (Commandments) once one turns to God in "saving faith". These again are nothing more than examples of prior Suzerain Treaties detailed in earlier articles. James knew quite well that one is to obey the Laws of his Covenant with God once turning to God in "saving faith".

Some elements of their teaching did find a responsive chord in Jerusalem among the more strictly observant (cf. Acts 15:1-5) but it is this attitude which the Jerusalem Council opposed.

Although the Book of Galatians' relationship to the book of Acts is a topic of much discussion, the council decision in Acts 15 helps to interpret the real message of Galatians (that "non-Jews" don't have to obey all of the 613 Laws of the Jews; in particular the Law regarding circumcision, but only the 66 Laws of Noah). The book has nothing to do with Jewish believers not observing Torah and tradition; the implication of the council decision is that they will follow their heritage and customs (Acts 15: 16f.) and the "non-Jews" theirs as well when filtered through the 66 Laws of Noah.

21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every Sabbath day.

It is here when "Moses is read" that the "non-Jew" will become acquainted with the in-depth teaching of each of these Laws and Commandments given him in his Covenant with God for let us not forget that these same 66 Laws are the foundation which Moses built off from at the waters of Meribah when he gave Israel the whole of the Torah. It is here in the Synagogue along with the Jew where the "non-Jew" can learn of Isaiah 56 where he can "choose other Commandments" pleasing to God whereby the "middle wall of partition" can be broken down between the Jew and the "non-Jew". Don't expect the Jew to violate Laws given him, but rather the "non-Jew" is intended to learn of other Mitzvoth that he can voluntarily accept and incorporate voluntarily in his life in this healing between these two peoples today.

Acts 15:16 (KJV) After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: 17 That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice it says "doeth" all these things which is in reference to the observance of the "non-Jew" of the Laws and Commandments of his Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah?

18 Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world. 19 Wherefore my sentence is, that we trouble not them ('non-Jews), which from among the Gentiles are turned to God: 20 But that we write unto them, that they abstain from pollutions of idols, and [from] fornication, and [from] things strangled, and [from] blood. 21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every Sabbath day.

Answer for yourself: Is Acts 15 written after the death of the New Testament Jesus? Yes. Is this the will of God long after the death of this New Testament Jesus? Did this death of this Jesus cancel the Law and Commandments as we have been taught in our Christian Churches? Evidently not. This should cause you to share these articles with your Pastor for his repentance is no less important than yours in this matter which blinds almost all of Christianity today.

Answer for yourself: Did James expect that God would see to it that the tabernacle of David, which had fallen down, would be built again? Yes. Once you understand just who this "King David" in these Hebrew Scriptures actually is then this becomes all the more important. Let me give you a hint.....think Pharaoh!

Here is another shock for you. Archeology today as well as modern scholarship shows us that this "King David" is really Thutmose III, Pharaoh of the 18th Dynasty of Egypt. In fact the Patriarchs Isaac and Jacob were as well. David's true identity is being hid by Ezra who rewrote the Hebrew Bible after the Babylon Captivity because he has to keep from these returning Jewish captives the fact that at that time Persia, conqueror of Babylon, is at war with their parents in Egypt. Failing to do that then Persia could not hope to have their allegiance and their cooperation in alerting them when Egypt might make advances through the fertile crescent in attacking Persia (the land of Israel). Keeping them in the dark served their purpose well. Now you hopefully see that it is so very, very important for us to understand that "this Tabernacle" of David is "not Jewish" but Egyptian! That is why the link between these Jews, the biological offspring of these Egyptians who married with Semites is so important. Important for you to also know is that Egyptian religion prided themselves on following the Laws and Commandments of God as well. Judaism is nothing more than the reinterpretation of Egyptian religion and their Torah and understanding of God as defined and seen through the eyes of the children of Egypt.

Answer for yourself: Where do you think Moses received his understanding of these Laws and Commandments in the first place?

Judaism carries this Divine Pattern of Worship along with God's Laws and Commandments and no less important is the truth concerning Jewish worship of God which is the handed-down as the legacy of Egypt whether you know it or not. Also important is the further corruption of this "Pattern of Worship" of the Divine by Rome due to their antisemitism. Important for us is the fact that our worship of God is wrong and vain if we fail to understand, follow, and incorporate these Laws and Commandments into our lives and relate them correctly to the teachings we have inherited from Rome about this Jesus whom Nicea made "God" in the 4th century. And that is just for starters. As stated before many of these Laws and Commandments in the Covenant of Noah forbid much of the theology and beliefs we as Christians have sadly learned erroneously from Rome surrounding their presentation of this New Testament Christ. Serious study on your parts today will show you the deception which rules supreme in Christian pulpits of today. It behooves us to return to our Jewish Roots to wash away the stain of idolatry and blasphemy that we carry as typical Christians. Now as part of your return to truth let me ask you again:

Answer for yourself: Are the Gentiles to be included in the multitudes of people who will seek after the Lord in the restored Tabernacle of David? Yes. Then you should want to know what the "truth" was back "then" long before Rome will "redefine" everything between the 3rd and 5th centuries.

AS MOSES WAS READ IN THE SYNAGOGUES ... AND NOT PAUL

At times I have to be hard on the New Testament Paul since so much of his authentic writings are forged as we have received them today. When you come to see this for yourself then you will know why at times I "defend" him and at other times "attach the false Paul". That being so let us read and discern correctly.

In fact, verse 21 is indicating that the witness provided by the Jewish believers maintaining their heritage and observing Torah is beneficial in educating these new Gentile followers in the statutes and ordinances of this Jewish religion as handed down from Egypt; expressed in that time as found in Jewish traditions and a Jewish faith since Egypt has been destroyed for 4 centuries.

21 For Moses of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the synagogues every Sabbath day.

Answer for yourself: Does James' statement, which seemed good to him, the elders, and the Holy Spirit, concerning what was necessary for the Gentile's inclusion within the Israel of God which is repairing the Tabernacle of David, include Gentile introduction to the teachings of Moses and the Law of Moses as was taught weekly in the Synagogues? It sure does. That is simply because like the Egyptian religion the Jewish faith and the teachings of Moses taught these same Divine Cosmic Laws and Commandments. Moses is teaching these Ancient Laws; many of which are known from the earliest time on this planet when God gave the first revelation to the first man and woman.

Let me add a little for your understanding. But let us not loose focus on the context at hand.

At the time when James spoke, the Judaism of Israel required circumcision for all "non-Jews" who wanted to turn to God and this was mandated by conversion of the "non-Jew" to Judaism and Sinai Faith. It would be only in the Messianic Community of James where the "non-Jew" could find total acceptance into the Israel of God without circumcision (this is reflective of the School of Hillel).

Answer for yourself: After the death of this New Testament Jesus what was the focus of the teachings in synagogues where the Gentiles were expected to go after coming to faith in God? Was it Roman Christian theology or Old Testament teachings as found in the writings of Moses?

Without a doubt those coming to faith in God were instructed in the Law of Moses and not Christian theology as seen by James' quote some 20 years following the time that the New Testament places the death, burial, and resurrection of this Jesus. That means that the earliest followers of God, both Jew and "non-Jew" met in the synagogues and learned the Torah and not a Romanized "Pauline theology" as we grew up hearing in our Churches in the Western Hemisphere. This means these Jews and "non-Jews" did not hear of the replacement of the Biblical Festivals with pagan holidays to which Jesus' name was attached, they did not hear of false atonements connected with this supposed death of Jesus, they did not hear of the substitution of Sunday for the Sabbath, they did not hear of using the Tithe for any purpose other than what God commanded, they did not hear idolatry taught in their assemblies in which this Jesus was made "the very God of God" as Constantine and the Council of Nicea will later do and enforce this teaching upon the whole of the Gentile world by their forgery of their later New Testaments.

Answer for yourself: Don't you find it strange that the assemblies of believers, the Synagogues, which James endorses for the "non-Jew", were not teaching "Jesus" as we have been but "Moses?" I bet you are or at least you should be.

Answer for yourself: Does your church teach you the Law of Moses (which includes the Laws of Noah) as we find as the example given the whole "non-Jewish" world long after this death of this Jesus which supposedly changed everything as we are taught today but yet historical evidence and close examination of the critical texts in the New Testament reveal otherwise? Probably not. More than likely your pastor, not knowing his "Jewish Roots" never heard of your Covenant; the Covenant of Noah.

Does you church teach you the Law of Moses as we find taught to the "non-Jews" in Acts? Would you want to be taught by James or the "real Paul" or your neighborhood Pastor today?

THE ACTS CHURCH WAS ZEALOUS FOR WHAT I HAVE BEEN TAUGHT "KILLS"...HOW COME?

Acts 21:20-26 appears crucial to understanding James' perspective of the council decision and Paul's outlook in Galatians.

Since the Law had not passed away for the church nor for James, its Pastor, then why have we been taught that the Law has "passed away" by multitudes of Gentile preachers and teachers who obviously teach other-wise than James and the Apostolic church did as well as Paul?

Acts 21:20 (KJV) And when they heard [it], they glorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all zealous of the law:

What a boast. And notice the time period again. Now it has been right at 30 years since the New Testament's dating for the death of this Jesus and again "nothing has changed"; the Jews revere the Law and Commandments of God and evidently for James and the Messianic Church this death of this Jesus did not alter the Law and its requirements upon "believers" in God, either Jewish or "non-Jewish".

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that almost 30 years after the time given for the death of this Jesus, which Christianity looks to as the causative event for the cessation of the Law, that those in James' Church who "believe" were still zealous for the Law! I bet you never did and this should have staggering consequences upon you and your Christian religious belief system, for almost certainly, the majority of you have attended churches that taught you the Law passed away with Jesus' death.

GUESS WHAT? THE LAW DID NOT END...EVEN IF YOUR CHURCH SAYS SO

Guess what? The Laws and Commandments in our Covenants with God will never end in spite of your Christian teaching. We have been wrong and our behaviors and conducts, when they deviated from the Law and Commandments of God are called "sin" yesterday, today, and forever. That means when your church uses your Tithe in areas not allowed by God, you are an "accessory" to robbing God for the Law specifically commands where and how and what amounts the money is to be used and does not allow such liberties taken by the vast majority of Christian Churches today in the use of such funds. That is why after studying out the Tithe for myself I could no longer tithe to my Church and I was "on staff". That really bothered the Sr. Pastor and when I confronted him on it and showed him how we erred he gave some lame excuse and told me that that was "then" and today is "now". Yes that is true but there is something else at play here; namely, the Eternal Word of God that sadly applies "only when it benefits our desires and agendas today". We can teach the Law does not apply but we sure quote Malachi when we want an offering. Even more, that means when you sanctify and make "holy" your Church's holidays at the exclusion of God's Holy Days as defined in the Hebrew Scriptures or purposefully misquote the word "Passover" as "Easter" in the Book of Acts then you have sinned and your life follows the wrong path God intended for us as "non-Jews". That means when you assemble on Sunday and not on Saturday that you break the Sabbath, and the 4th Commandment and violation of God's Laws is defined by this same New Testament as sin. Understand that the Sabbath was never given as mandatory for the "non-Jew" but Isaiah 56 and the principle of "choosing those things that please me" applies here and it is in this way that the "non-Jew" does what he can to break down this middle wall separating "Jew" from "non-Jew". The implications of what I am saying in light of Christian theology and its multitude of errors is staggering!

Answer for yourself: Is your church zealous for the same things which the church of James was zealous for? If you attend a typical Christian church your honest answer is probably not.

Answer for yourself: Did the Law "pass away" for James and the Acts Church? No. Then why should it pass away in yours?

Answer for yourself: Then why have we been taught that the Law has "passed away" by multitudes of Gentile preachers and teachers who obviously teach otherwise than James and the Apostolic church? That is a good question.

Answer for yourself: Does the Bible teach us that the church is built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets and not Charismatic Tele-evangelists, Baptists, Catholics, etc.?

Eph 2:19-20 19 Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God; 20 And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone; (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Yes, it sure does, and since we as believers are to have our belief system built upon the faith and doctrines of the Apostles and Prophets, then how can we justify our stance believing the Law has passed away when it is blatantly obvious to the careful reader it never did for the Acts Church and the whole of the "non-Jewish" world for the earliest centuries before the rise of Rome and their "replacement religion"?

The only problem now is to for us to find out just "whom" or "what" this Jesus Christ is as so frequently mentioned in the New Testament. Once we get to the bottom of this then then we have it all. Before you tell me that it is simple, that this Jesus Christ is the historical Jewish Messiah you better know that there are undeniable reasons why the Jews cannot accept this New Testament Jesus as their Jewish Messiah as well as the disturbing fact that we find the name "Jesus Christ" as far back as 10,000 B.C.E. in Egypt. As if that is not enough we find this same "Jesus Story" has been told over and over again for thousands of years from start to finish in almost ever nation and they did not teach is as the "Jewish Messiah" but they did as "the Karast" or "Christ within" each human being. This is the crux of the problem to which we must address if we ever hope of finding out the truths of God let alone discern the difference between the true Gnostic Paul and the Roman Paul and the true Jewish Messiah and the Messiah of Rome.

Answer for yourself: Whom is this "Christ", this "Jesus Christ" of whom Paul says:

Gal 4:19 19 My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you, (KJV)

Col 1:27 27 To whom God would make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles; which is Christ in you, the hope of glory: (KJV)

I have only give you a glimpse of what lies ahead of you if you take this challenge. Well that has to be a study for later time and it has to be done if you ever want to know the truth behind Rome's "literalization" of Paul's "Christ Within". You could accurately say that we have lost the truth about "Jesus Christ" going on some 1,700 years at present due to Rome's antisemitism and hatred for "the Law and Commandments of Rome".

This hatred for the Jews and Judaism, a Torah based religion, exposed Rome for the brutality that they spread everywhere they went and defined them as the enemies of God.

Now back to Galatians but before we do understand that Bet Emet Ministries has websites detailing with these most difficult studies specifically created for all to understand. Rome's lies are exposed but this is hard material but the truth and proper worship of God must come before our comfort zones.

Answer for yourself: According to the Jerusalem church council in Acts 15 where "necessary things" were imposed upon Gentiles who are turning to God to be part of the Acts Church and the Mother Church's satellite Churches in Asia where "non-Jews" would learn as Moses is preached and taught in the synagogue every Sabbath, would Paul be a good witness to these "non-Jews" of the council's decision which seemed good to the Holy Spirit, James and the elders? Do we later come to see a problem develop with the authentic Paul where he comes to teach the abolition and cessation of such Laws? Yes we do but it may not be as you might suppose and only when we come to understand "Gnosticism" can we truly understand Pauline thought in this regard and why these Laws were not longer necessary when one "lived in the Spirit". We have to really understand this Gnostic Paul if we ever hope to see why at times Paul rises above these Laws and Commandments. Again this is a study for another day.

PAUL GETS IN TROUBLE AND IS CALLED ON THE CARPET BY JAMES...THE THEOLOGY OF PAUL CHANGES OVER TIME...BUT GOD DOES NOT

Acts 21:21 (KJV) And <1161> they are informed <2727> (5681) of <4012> thee <4675>, that <3754> thou teachest <1321> (5719) all <3956> the Jews <2453> which are among <2596> the Gentiles <1484> to <575> forsake <646> Moses <3475>, saying <3004> (5723) that they ought <4059> <0> not <3361> to circumcise <4059> (5721) [their] children <5043>, neither <3366> to walk <4043> (5721) after the customs <1485>. 22 What <5101> is it <2076> (5748) therefore <3767> the multitude <4128> must <1163> (5748) needs <3843> come together <4905> (5629): for <1063> they will hear <191> (5695) that <3754> thou art come <2064> (5754). 23 Do <4160> (5657) therefore <3767> this <5124> that <3739> we say <3004> (5719) to thee <4671>: We <2254> have <1526> (5748) four <5064> men <435> which have <2171> a vow <2192> (5723) on <1909> them <1438>; 24 Them <5128> take <3880> (5631), and purify thyself <48> (5682) with <4862> them <846>, and <2532> be at charges <1159> (5657) with <1909> them <846>, that <2443> they may shave <3587> (5667) [their] heads <2776>: and <2532> all <3956> may know <1097> (5632) that those things <3754>, whereof <3739> they were informed <2727> (5769) concerning <4012> thee <4675>, are <2076> (5748) nothing <3762>; but <235> [that] thou thyself <846> also <2532> walkest orderly <4748> (5719), and keepest <5442> (5723) the law <3551>. 25 As <1161> touching <4012> the Gentiles <1484> which believe <4100> (5761), we <2249> have written <1989> (5656) [and] concluded <2919> (5660) that they <846> observe <5083> (5721) no <3367> such thing <5108>, save only <1508> that they keep <5442> (5733) themselves <846> from <5037> [things] offered to idols <1494>, and <2532> from blood <129>, and <2532> from strangled <4156>, and <2532> from fornication <4202>. 26 Then <5119> Paul <3972> took <3880> (5631) the men <435>, and the next <2192> (5746) day <2250> purifying himself <48> (5685) with <4862> them <846> entered <1524> (5715) into <1519> the temple <2411>, to signify <1229> (5723) the accomplishment <1604> of the days <2250> of purification <49>, until <2193> that <3739> an offering <4376> should be offered <4374> (5681) for <5228> every <1538> one <1520> of them <846>.

Answer for yourself: Was the accusation made against Paul that he was teaching the Jews to forsake Moses, to quit circumcising their children, and to stop obeying the traditions of the Law of Moses? Yes.

Answer for yourself: In order to ascertain the truth, is James going to give Paul a public test to visibly demonstrate his submission to the Law of Moses as the authority for his faith and practice? Yes

Answer for yourself: Is James' challenge to Paul intended to prove his obedience to the Law of Moses after the time allotted for the death of this Jesus which is believed by many today to have nullified the validity of the Law as "necessary" for both "Jew" and "non-Jew"? It sure is. Now this was not James' entire motive for as I have shown you previously that the Jerusalem Church held not such believe that the death of any man could atone for the sin of others. Yet we can we interpret from James' command for Paul to keep a public vow, a vow by the way requiring blood sacrifices and atonement offerings, that Paul's submission to James' command shows us that neither of them held any such belief that any supposed death of this Jesus had any bearing upon atonement what so ever. Yes that is what it appears if we are to understand and believe Acts 21 and the Nazarite Vow. The hard facts from the study of this part of Acts is inescapable; namely, the death of this Jesus did not negate or abrogate the Torah for the Jews or for "non-Jews" as well! That should make you wonder why the Jerusalem Church as well as Paul did not fear such a passage or teaching reflecting this blood of Jesus if atonement was believed to have been obtained by the death of this Jesus. For example:

Heb 10:29 29 Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace? (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Who is writing this Hebrews letter? How come James and Paul did not fear "treading under foot this blood of Jesus"? Did they not know what we have been taught now? How could that be? How could they continue blood sacrifices according to Numbers 6 (the Nazarite Vow) if they at the same time believed that this supposed death of this Jesus changed everything and was the final atonement of all sin as we have been taught? Is the Holy Spirit incompetent to head this movement by men who are wrong about such cardinal doctrines as "atonement"? Or has Rome changed this all and cleverly concealed these alterations in their forged texts? What are we to do with historical witness when understood properly show us that many of our cherished beliefs today about this Christ were not believed by his immediate followers? This surely should make you think harder than you ever had and stimulate your study to find out the truth behind the Roman lies.

Now...let us examine the text from Acts 21 above...

The Greek word for "forsake" from Acts 21 is as follows and note the words highlighted in "red".

Lexicon Greek 646 apostasia {ap-os-tas-ee'-ah} feminine of the same as 647; TDNT - 1:513,88; AV - to forsake + 575 1, falling away 1; 2

1) a falling away, defection, apostasy

We are guilty as Christians of apostasy and falling away from God to the degree we reject and neglect the Law and customs of Moses (understanding that the Laws of Noah are contained within them"

Answer for yourself: Was Paul accused by opponents of James' church of teaching others to fall away from God into apostasy by teaching Jews and Gentiles to forsake the Laws and customs of Moses and by teaching them to cease to obey them? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Have you unknowingly fallen away from God into apostasy because you have been taught by Gentile Pastors and teachers to forsake the Laws and customs of Moses by ceasing to observe such Laws as the Sabbath, the Festivals of the Lord, and the correct administration of God's Holy Tithe, the Laws concerning worship and idolatry, etc? And it only begins here. I hate to tell you dear brothers and sisters, but the answer to that question is resoundingly "yes, you have apostatized" if you ascribe to Sunday instead of Saturday as the Sabbath, if you observe such pagan festivals such as Easter instead of the Passover, Christmas to the neglect of Tabernacles, and if you give the Tithe to your church to administer thinking they will be "good stewards" when in reality very few Christian Churches place the Tithe in those places Yahweh has placed His name as the Bible commands. The same can be said for all doctrines making this "Roman Jesus" God in all of its aspects.

Answer for yourself: Are we guilty as Christians of apostasy and falling away from God to the degree we reject and neglect the Law and customs of Moses? Yes, when they contain the Covenant and Laws of Noah within them given to the whole "non-Jewish" world.

The Greek word for "walk" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 4043 4043 peripateo {per-ee-pat-eh'-o} from 4012 and 3961; TDNT - 5:940,804; v AV - walk 93, go 1, walk about 1, be occupied 1; 96

- 1) to walk
  - 1a) to make one's way, progress; to make due use of opportunities
  - 1b) Hebrew for, to live
  - 1b1) to regulate one's life
  - 1b2) to conduct one's self
  - 1b3) to pass one's life

Answer for yourself: Are we guilty of apostasy as Christians if we regulate our lives, or influence others, to reject, neglect, or cease obedience to the Laws and customs of the Mosaic Covenant (containing the Laws of Noah)? Yes, we do and tragically never know we have because of the erroneous teachings we get from our Christian pulpits.

Answer for yourself: Can you see that the church of Acts, even if they knew of this death of this Jesus, taught just the opposite of the accusations made against Paul (they taught as "necessary" these Laws for both "Jews" and "non-Jews" and never did away with the Law)? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Can you see that the church of Acts, after the time allotted for the death of this Jesus, taught that the Gentiles were to pass one's life in loyal submission and obedience to the Laws of Moses and Mosaic customs (again understanding that within these Laws of Moses are the Laws of Noah? Yes, I hope so (let us remember that we obey these Laws because we are saved...not to be saved!)).

Answer for yourself: Can you see that what is taught to be the "first Christian Church" taught obedience to the Law of Moses, his customs and rites not only to Jews, but through Jewish witness was to come the fulfillment of the Great Commission whereby all the Gentiles in all nations would by example be taught to observe all those things that James commanded be taught to the "non-Jewish" world? I hope so!

The first Christian Church taught obedience to the Law of Moses, the Torah, its customs and rites not only to Jews, but through Jewish witness these same teachings were to come taught through the fulfillment of the Great Commission whereby all the Gentiles in all nations would, by example, be taught to observe all those things commanded of them by God in the Covenant of Noah

1485 ethos {eth'-os} from 1486; TDNT - 2:372,202; n n AV - custom 7, manner 4, be wont 1; 12

- 1) custom
- 2) usage prescribed by law, institute, prescription, rite

Answer for yourself: Is rejecting the Law of Moses also the rejection of rites and ceremonies and Festivals since they are part of the Law? Yes, and this is all the more problematic when you see that once you possess the "keys" to interpret the New Testament correctly you can find that the "non-Jew" observed all the Biblical Festivals alongside the Jew as seen in the New Testament? We have this information and historical witness documented thoroughly on this website.

Answer for yourself: You need to read Acts 21 right now. Do you see that the test for Paul was for him to take men, buy their sacrifices, and purify himself with them, shave his head as well as theirs (ending the Nazarite vow) that all may know that those things, whereof they were informed concerning thee (that you teach that the Law has passed away since the cross) is nothing; but [that] thou thyself also walkest orderly, and keepest the law? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Did Paul continue to follow the Law after the death of this supposed Jesus? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Now for a tremendous question. Are you aware that the vow and the sacrifices Paul was offering in obedience to James' command included blood offerings and sin offerings...and all this over 25 years after this death of Jesus which Christian theology today says was the final sacrifice for sin (death of Yeshua)?

Answer for yourself: Do you think Paul would agree with the theology preached in his name today in your Church?

Answer for yourself: Did Paul teach the Gentiles to keep the Law? Yes, and "no". In the beginning of his life he took in writing the decision of the church council, that these "necessary" things must be done in order to demonstrate that the "non-Jews" had turned from idols and could only then be accepted into fellowship with the Israel of God. Only later in his life does he call the "non-Jewish" gnostic believer to live in the Spirit and in so doing one no longer needs the Laws on Stone since having the Christ "formed in you" then one lives the Laws of God on his heart which is but a Divine Copy of the Laws first written on Stone. Yes he did. This is the Gnostic Paul. There comes a time in our lives when our Spiritual maturation should be such that we become the living examples of God's Laws and we are living these Laws and applying them in our lives "by the Spirit"; no longer needed Laws on Tablets. I hope you understand but this again is another study for another day (see the Gnosticism website).

Answer for yourself: Did Paul demonstrate that he walked (regulated his life, passed on life, and conducted one life) orderly by keeping the Law after the cross? Yes, but understand what was said above. We are to grow Spiritually to a point that our lives are expressions of these Laws of God as we live out our lives day by day; no longer needed the elementary Laws of instruction as we once had to learn, but rather applying them to new situations daily and in so doing "letting this Christ within" live through us.

CAN ONE ATTAIN A STATE OF APPROVAL BEFORE GOD BY FOLLOWING THE LAWS AND COMMANDMENTS....IN SPITE OF WHAT THE GENTILE CHURCH TEACHES CONCERNING JESUS' DEATH?

Referring to the above passage in Acts 21 written well after Yeshua's death....

The Greek word for "law" is as follows: (read the definition closely)!

Lexicon Greek 3551 3551 nomos {nom'-os} from a primary nemo (to parcel out, especially food or grazing to animals); TDNT - 4:1022,646; n m AV - law 197; 197

- 1) anything established, anything received by usage, a custom, a law, a command
- 1a) of any law whatsoever
  - 1a1) a law or rule producing a state approved of God
  - _____

1a1a) by the observance of which is approved of God

- 1a2) a precept or injunction
- 1a3) the rule of action prescribed by reason
- 1b) of the Mosaic law, and referring to the context. either to the volume of the law or to its contents (and remember if you are a Gentile that within the Laws of Moses we find the same Laws given earlier in the Covenant of Noah for all mankind long before there were any "Jews")
- 1c) the name of the more important part (the Pentateuch), is put for the entire collection of the sacred books of the OT

Answer for yourself: Did Paul demonstrate that he was obedient to the rules and laws which produce a state of approval before God both before and after the cross? Yes.

Answer for yourself: How did Paul produce, in the context of Acts 21 written after Yeshua's death, a state of being "approved of God"? He brought blood sacrifices and sin offerings that reflect his Spiritual state before God. I don't expect you to understand this without a proper understanding of how the Sacrificial System and Atonement operated in the Hebrew Scriptures. Few if any Christians have ever been taught this correctly. Paul knew what we don't today; namely, that the death of another person was never and could never be an ultimate atonement for all as it would become in the thinking of others much later in the Gentile Church as they misinterpreted the writings of Paul as well as Judaism.

Are you shocked to know that Paul continued to bring blood sacrifices after the cross? Evidently he did not ascribe to Jesus' death what we have been taught...neither did James or the Jerusalem Church? Why not? Well you need to study to find out when and how and by whom "atonement" was later connected to Jesus' death...you will be surprised...that is why Judaism does not accept this teaching today...nor should we!

Answer for yourself: Did Paul demonstrate through a Nazarite blood sacrifice (Num. 6) that he was obedient to the rules and laws of the Pentateuch and the Mosaic Law (fulfill the Nazarite vow), thereby producing a state of approval before God after the cross? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Did Paul bring a blood sacrifice after the cross? Yes. (See Numbers chapter 6)

Let us now examine the word "offering" as used of the type of sacrifice Paul is recorded of making in fulfillment of the Nazarite vow in Acts 21:26.

The Greek word for "offering" is as follows:

Lexicon Greek 4376 4376 prosphora {pros-for-ah'} from 4374; TDNT - 9:68,1252; n f AV - offering 8, offering up 1; 9

- 1) the act of offering, a bringing to
- 2) that which is offered, a gift, a present. In the NT a sacrifice, whether bloody or not: offering for sin, expiatory offering

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that this offering could be bloody or not? Yes.

Answer for yourself: How do we come to the correct understanding since this occurs after the cross? See numbers 6.

Since this is a Nazarite vow, we must look at the commandments surrounding the Nazarite vow and these are recorded for us in Numbers chapter 6:

Numb 6:13 (KJS) And this [is] the law of the Nazarite, when the days of his separation are fulfilled: he shall be brought unto the door of the tabernacle of the congregation: 14 And he shall offer his offering unto the LORD, one he lamb of the first year without blemish for a burnt offering, and one ewe lamb of the first year without blemish for a sin offering, and one ram without blemish for peace offerings, 15 And a basket of unleavened bread, cakes of fine flour mingled with oil, and wafers of unleavened bread anointed with oil, and their meat offering, and their drink offerings. 16 And the priest shall bring [them] before the LORD, and shall offer his sin offering, and his burnt offering: 17 And he shall offer the ram [for] a sacrifice of peace offerings unto the LORD, with the basket of unleavened bread: the priest shall offer also his meat offering, and his drink offering. 18 And the Nazarite shall shave the head of his separation [at] the door of the tabernacle of the congregation, and shall take the hair of the head of his separation, and put [it] in the fire which [is] under the sacrifice of the peace offerings. 19 And the priest shall take the sodden shoulder of the ram, and one unleavened cake out of the basket, and one unleavened wafer, and shall put [them] upon the hands of the Nazarite, after [the hair of] his separation is shaven: 20 And the priest shall wave them [for] a wave offering before the LORD: this [is] holy for the priest, with the wave breast and heave shoulder: and after that the Nazarite may drink wine. 21 This [is] the law of the Nazarite who hath vowed, [and of] his offering unto the LORD for his separation, beside that his hand shall get: according to the vow which he vowed, so he must do after the law of his separation.

Answer for yourself: Having read Numbers 6, do you see that blood sacrifices had to be brought in fulfillment of the Nazarite vow which Paul was obedient to after the cross? I hope so. When you see this then there is no way you can come to terms with both James and Paul continuing with these "blood" offerings if some Jesus in the past had died for all mankind's sin in some "Laws ending" sacrifice!

Why would Paul bring "blood sacrifices" if the Law had been done away with by this Jesus'? Did Paul not know this? Had he missed this supposed momentous event that supposedly changed everything? Did someone, maybe God, forget to tell him or has the theology about this "Christ" changed at the hands of Rome? Paul most assuredly would not have brought such sin offerings & atonement offerings if he knew that this Jesus' death was a fulfillment of prophecy as a final atonement for his sin...don't you think? And why would this James command this be done...had somebody forgot to tell him as well?

Answer for yourself: Did Paul demonstrate that he was obedient to the rules and laws which produce a state of approval before God after the cross by bringing a blood sacrifice, thus obeying the Law of Moses after the cross? Yes. But to fully understand these "blood" offerings then one has to understand why "blood" accomplished "nothing" in such sacrifices but was only a picture of "one's Soul" which is the agent that procures the atonement long before one ever came to the Temple to offer his "Soul/blood" before God on the altar. This is but a picture of a Spiritual Dynamic going on and Christianity has never taught this correctly. It is time I do.

Answer for yourself: Why would Paul bring "blood sacrifices" if the Law had been done away with in some supposed sacrifice? Was the death of this Jesus some form of a sacrifice and how could Paul not know this? Was this death of Christ to be understood as "literal" or "allegorical" way back in the first century? Have we understood correctly what we read in our Bibles? Who was "Jesus Christ" to Paul? Was this Jesus Christ a real historical person or an allegory of the "Christ Within" which was only later "literalized" by Rome when craftily written in Rome's rewriting and editing of the first Gnostic New Testament when "the Christ" (Egypt called God within all matter the "Karast") was never to be understood as "literal person" and had never been understood this way since the beginning of recorded history? There, I gave it away for all to see. I believe that had some historical atoning death of some Jesus had taken place in Jerusalem as a fulfillment of the Hebrew Scriptures then surely James and Paul would have known it and this would have prevented Paul and James from such actions had they believed this "atoning event" was true. But evidently they did not. Our very own New Testaments, when correctly interpreted contextually and historically, shows us that we have the wrong understanding of "the Christ" as well as how God expects us to "atone" for our own sin. Judaism has taught this correctly since the beginning and Rome changed this all later and we know it not. The fact that Paul, in obeying James, brings blood sacrifices as "commanded by the Laws" shows the Law had not passed away for either of them and this fact alone testifies to us that the Law had not passed away after some supposed Jesus' death and that the Law remains today a pattern for life and conduct for believers in God.

Answer for yourself: Dear Christian, can you now see that the Law had never passed away after the supposed death of this New Testament Jesus and that we have severely misunderstood the message of Galatians in believing it has? But not only that but can you now see that it is possible to make oneself "acceptable to God" and that the Christian teaching on atonement as connected to this death of Jesus is utterly wrong? I hope so. I have used our own Christian references in looking up these Hebrew and Greek words and beneath the pulpit preaching we hear there is another whole message, the message of Judaism, that lies behind this Roman altered book that has led us astray from the will of the Creator.

WHY DO YOU SAY YOU LOVE ME AND NOT OBEY ME?

Answer for yourself: Can you begin to guess at the staggering consequences facing you since the Law has not passed away, and as Christians, we have lived most of our lives as "Lawless Believes," and every man or denomination has done, for the most part, what seemed right in their own eyes? Can you begin to see the depth of what I am sharing when we consider as Christians we have never been taught correctly about atonement either? What we find when we study is that the Gnostic Christ and true atonement go other and validate the Jewish message of 2,000 years ago and today as well. Oh how I wish that the Christian faith into which I was born had been based upon study instead of "preaching of traditions" inherited from Rome.

It is almost too scary to consider the many sins we have committed "under grace" without the guidance of God's Law which would have regulated our conduct and behavior if followed and assured that we would have lived a more pleasing life before our Creator.

Bet Emet Ministries continues to warn the Christian concerning the Law and its demands made upon one's worship of God through the correct giving of the Tithe, as well as the sanctification and observance of the many appointed times with God as commanded in this Divine Law; Commandments concerning God's Festivals and Saturday Sabbaths that apply to the "non-Jew". We must repent if we truly are believers in God and love Him more than our erroneous traditions.

Answer for yourself: Did Paul have three missionary journeys to Gentiles all over the world in fulfillment of the Great Commission in which he obeyed the Great Commission: "teach them to observe all things which I commanded you?" Yes. Did Paul teach the "non-Jews" to keep these "appointed times" like the Sabbath?

Answer for yourself: Was Paul teaching the Gentiles "to observe things commanded" or just "faith" in Christ? Did Paul expect over time that a "non-Jew" was to grow to such a Spiritual Condition that he would no longer need Laws on Tablets but begin to live the Laws of God that are implanted inside on his heart? Yes, he did.

Answer for yourself: Was Paul guilty to teaching Jews and Gentiles not to observe the Law of Moses or were these charges just lies said against him? It is not my purpose in this article to expound in detail on the above question as I do so later in my later websites, however, you need to know that there was "some" truth to the charges leveled against Paul and as reiterated by James but this has to be qualified as I stated above and is possible one when you discover that Paul was a Gnostic; a Gnostic that Rome hated but yet used this Paul to their advantage as he was the link to Jerusalem and the authority of this Christ. This brings us again to the need to understand just whom this "Christ" really was historically (allegory or literal). Thus, the need for the test of Paul's faithfulness to the Law and the Torah before others as was commanded of him by James. For let's fact it not all the common people are yet "attained initiates" and not all people are at this Spiritual maturity to know the depth of what Paul is teaching as a Gnostic. So let it be understood that historically it can be shown that Paul relaxed the Law to "non-Jews" as well as Jewish believers when in Asia Minor during his ministry. We deal with this problematic issue on our Antioch series.

Answer for yourself: Was Paul guilty of teaching Jews and Gentiles not to follow the customs of Moses? For the most part, no; however, understand that there were parts of the Torah (kosher, for instance) where Paul can be found teaching in direct conflict with the Laws of the Torah in this regard. Paul would teach the Sabbath and the Festivals to the non-Jewish believers along with the ethical commands of Hebrew Scripture, however, he would relax the kosher requirements along with nullifying one's "accepted state of acceptance before God" through faithfulness in keeping the Law. He would replace such "acceptance" connected with obedience to the Torah with his own "gospel" which was blended with "pagan mystery religions and their emphasis upon sun-gods" and all of this related to "the Christ within". This is a little much to get into here, but elsewhere on other websites do I address these most difficult issues and deal with them in detail. The irony of Acts 21 is that Paul is required to do something in response to James decree that he issued concerning Paul since it was confusing what Paul had been teaching concerning the Law. The bottom line to all of this, and I hope you will understand, is that this "gospel of Paul" which he historically preached as a Gnostic was a "secret gospel" normally reserved for initiates. There was a rule in all these "mystery religions" forbidding them to reveal the Teaching to people who were not prepared to receive it. The law of silence and discernment was strictly imposed. Thus, an Essene never tried to convert another person to any belief. "Do not give pearls to pigs for fear that they will trample them underfoot and turn towards you to devour you." Yet, Paul discerning the changing of the Age (Aries to Pisces) felt constrained to teach these hidden mysteries of "the Christ" openly to the "non-Jews" in Asia.

Col 1:26-27 26 Even the mystery which hath been hid from ages and from generations, but now is made manifest to his saints: 27 To whom God would make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles; which is Christ in you, the hope of glory: (KJV)

Now you see it. Paul was teaching metaphysics to these "non-Jews". The mysteries of Egypt were now made open to all. It is we again, like our forefathers, who have completely misunderstood the role of Law and its connection to the indwelling Christ today since given a substitute gospel by Rome. The irony of this is that Paul's gospel is not the one we hear preached today and the one he warned not to accept as the counterfeit is the one we have from our pulpits.

2 Cor 11:3-4 3 But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ. 4 For if he that cometh preacheth another Jesus, whom we have not preached, or if ye receive another spirit, which ye have not received, or another gospel, which ye have not accepted, ye might well bear with him. (KJV)

Now, back to our study in Galatians.

Answer for yourself: Were "some" of these "charges" made by the Judaizers (that Paul was teaching against the Law) in order to limit Paul's influence, since he was not teaching "obedience of the Law for salvation" to the "non-Jew" as they were (the men reported to have come from James, remember?)? Yes, I think you can see that now very clearly. However, we must look beyond the "circumcision" question to the problem of Paul teaching against the Law to the "non-Jews" and Jews in Asia. But our emphasis in Galatians deals with the circumcision question for the most part. The other problem is addressed in his other writings.

Acts 21:22-23 states: "What is it therefore? the multitude must needs come together: for they will hear that thou art come. 23 Do therefore this that we say to thee."

Answer for yourself: Can you see the importance of unity as stressed by James, and what does that say to us today when we have over two thousand conflicting and contradicting different Christian denominations with multitudes of conflicting doctrines concerning this Christ that prevents such unity? What happened to the "one Faith" of Ephesians 4:5 in light of thousands of competing variations of that "one" faith that exists today? Has every man become a "light unto himself?"

Answer for yourself: Was Paul in submission to the authority of James and the Jerusalem elders and did he respond affirmatively by preparing to bring blood sacrifices and sin offerings as James instructed and all of this long after some supposed death of this New Testament Jesus as we are taught today?

If the Christ commanded his apostles and disciples to teach the Gentiles to OBSERVE those things COMMANDED by him, and if James REITERATES these COMMANDMENTS in Acts 15 before they are written and taken to all the known Gentile world.....then WHO CHANGED THE MESSAGE and led us to believe, as we do today, that we are not under God's Laws?

Answer for yourself: Should we also be in submission to the authority of James and the Jerusalem church since it was the missionary church from which the revelation of God to the "non-Jewish" world emanated? We sure should James in Acts 21:25 reiterates the same decision made in the council of Acts 15. I want you to notice that nothing had changed: "As touching the Gentiles which believe, we have written [and] concluded that they observe no such thing (obeying the Laws to be saved), save only that they keep themselves from [things] offered to idols, and from blood, and from strangled, and from fornication." These were the "necessary things" (Acts 15:28) REQUIRED of all Gentiles for their inclusion into the early church, thus becoming grafted into Israel.

Let us summarize: Here, upon Paul's arrival in Jerusalem, James converses with him about a problem. There was a rumor that Paul had ceased to follow the traditions and taught his audience, both "non-Jew" and "Jew" to do the same. It was these Jewish disciples that were to be lights for the Gentiles to follow in faith and practice, and I am sure you see by now, that if Paul had been teaching the Jews to reject Moses and the Law that would have been disastrous for the Messianic movement. James suggests some steps to counter this invalid accusation. Paul should take several men who had made a Nazarite vow, go to the Temple, join in their vow and purification rites, and pay their expenses for the animal sacrifices. In this way he would demonstrate his commitment to and consistency with Torah and the Jewish Biblical traditions. Paul follows James' advice, and on several later occasions expresses his own unwavering commitment to his heritage and its observance (Acts 23:1,6; 25:8; 26:5; 28:17).

Acts 23:1 And <1161> Paul <3972>, earnestly beholding <816> (5660) the council <4892>, said <2036> (5627), Men <435> [and] brethren <80>, I <1473> have lived <4176> (5769) in all <3956> good <18> conscience <4893> before God <2316> until <891> this <5026> day <2250>.

Acts 25:8 While he answered <626> (5740) for himself <846>, Neither <3754> <3777> against <1519> the law <3551> of the Jews <2453>, neither <3777> against <1519> the temple <2411>, nor yet <3777> against <1519> Caesar <2541>, have I offended <264> (5627) any thing at all <5100>.

Let us examine "have I offended" in the Greek language:

According to the inspired definition for the word "Law," it is the observance of the "Law" that produces a state of approval before God...for faith without "works" (obedience) is dead!

Does good intentions or erroneous obedience please God? Or does our love for God find its expression in our obedience to what He has commanded?

Answer for yourself: Did Paul say that he had never, in his opinion, been mistaken regarding any law whatsoever, or regarding a commandment or rule producing a state of approval of God (to the best of his ability)? Yes. Again we have problem that may not have an answer and surely does not until we come to understand Gnosticism and its relationship to these Divine Laws. Paul taught the Torah and rescinded some of it at it applied to "breaking down the middle wall of partition" between the Jew and the "non-Jew" and this can be understood upon examination. But the larger picture concerning his inherited writings we have received to day or the writings attributed to him in the New Testament promote a complete "denial" of the Torah for right standing and "acceptances" before God. Paul never did this and we see that we are completely mistaken to believe that this historical Paul would have done so since he believed in his day that some supposed sacrifice of Jesus was some substitute for the Torah. I have shown you that Paul did not believe that the Torah was abolished, and at the same time I showed you that Paul did "abrogate" some of it (food laws concerning table-fellowship in the Antioch Incident). What we need to understand is that Paul did not desire the Torah to be abolished nor ever taught and the authentic Paul never believed in some death of somebody for his atonement. I have demonstrated that it was the law of Circumcision that Paul opposed since it was never given to the "non-Jew" and this same historical Paul had a different understanding of "kosher" as applied to the "non-Jew". His writings might say things to this effect after coming through Roman forgery mill over the early centuries of the Church but these writings were altered for over 400 years by the Gentile Church. It is impossible to read Paul's letters and discern "Paul's religious belief system" unless you also observe his life from the pages of the Book of Acts where it can be shown that Paul was obedient to the Torah and taught the Torah to the "non-Jews" as well. Even more so it is impossible to read Paul's letters and discern "Paul's religious belief system" unless you also have a working knowledge of Gnosticism and can discern where this Gnosticism stops and starts on the pages of the Bible we were given by Rome. This paradox has only one answer: the writings of Paul have been altered and are today "fictitious" accounts created to serve the theological positions and anti-Law bias of Rome. The only way we can be sure is to "read between the lines in the Book of Acts" and all these epistles to see if Paul was Torah obedient or if he nullified the whole thing in lieu of supposed death of this Jewish Christ. What we find is that 2,000 years ago this death of a "dying/rising" God, or this Christ was always understood ALLEGORICAL and had been since Ancient Egypt and was always applied to the "awakening of the Divine Soul to its identity and purpose" in this body of death (matter). Sadly Rome changed this 180 degrees in the earlier centuries in its hatred of the Jews and their Laws (Torah). Go and study and see this for yourself and trace the corruption of this Divine Idea and see how Rome, hating the Jews, changed the earliest "Jew" and "non-Jewish" Gnostics/Chrestians ("Chrestus" being the name for the indwelling Karst/Christ) into their aberration called Christians. And behind this all is Rome's hatred for these Divine Laws given all of mankind by the Creator.

Answer for yourself: Since Paul said he had never been mistaken regarding the laws in the Pentateuch (to the best of his ability), do you see that he could not abrogate and cancel the Law of Moses (containing the Laws of Noah) and still say he has sinned against no law perpetually? Yes I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Did Paul say that he had not been mistaken or erred considering any Law in the Pentateuch and the Mosaic Law? Yes. Paul may not of erred in his own opinion but if he relaxed the kosher commandments to the "non-Jew" then he "erred" and this is James' concern. And this goes beyond just "eating" but affects idolatry and blasphemy as well as you see when you study out each of these Laws of Noah as I did. This is a major problem worthy of a Jerusalem Council and a second recall of Paul in Acts 21 by James.

Answer for yourself: Could Paul be mistaken, when he said he never canceled or abrogated any Law in the Torah and Law of Moses, unknowing that he should have canceled them all and caused the Law to pass away? No, for I can't believe he could have been that deceived and used and quoted from the Word of God (Old Testament) so much in teaching the "non-Jews" while, all along, he secretly knew it should have been discarded. This is a very difficult issue in my opinion when seen correctly and only by adhering to the Torah can we find peace and bring harmony to these opposing camps. It goes to the very issue of the "Letter" (James) vs the "Spirit of the Law" (Paul).

Acts 26:5 Which knew <4267> (5723) me <3165> from the beginning <509>, if <1437> they would <2309> (5725) testify <3140> (5721), that <3754> after <2596> the most straitest <196> sect <139> of our <2251> religion <2356> I lived <2198> (5656) a Pharisee <5330>.

Lexicon Greek 196 196 akribestatos {ak-ree-bes'-ta-tos} superlative of akribes (a derivative of the same as 206);; adj AV - most straitest 1; 1

- 1) exact, careful
- 2) of the strictest sect: the most precise and rigorous in interpreting the Mosaic law, and in observing even the more minute precepts of the law and tradition

Answer for yourself: Did Paul say that he lived his life following one of the most strict sects within Judaism that was accustomed to rigorous adherence and interpretation of Mosaic Law? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Don't you find it rather strange that Paul would be proud of observing "the Law" (as Pharisees were known to do) if the Law had passed away? You should.

Answer for yourself: Do you not think it strange that Paul would live a life devoted to such a strict sect and yet try to abolish the Law as he was falsely accused? I would think so.

Let us look at the Pharisees for a moment.

Lexicon Greek 5330 5330 Pharisaïos {far-is-ah'-yos} of Hebrew origin cf 06567; TDNT - 9:11,1246; n m AV - Pharisee 100; 100

- 1) A sect that seems to have started after the Jewish exile. In addition to OT books the Pharisees recognized in oral tradition a standard of belief and life. Some (School of Shammai), but not all of the Pharisees (School of Hillel), sought for distinction and praise by outward observance of external rites and by outward forms of piety, and such as ceremonial washings, fastings, prayers, and alms giving; and, comparatively negligent of genuine piety. Many prided themselves on their fancied good works. They held strenuously to a belief in the existence of good and evil angels (duality of the Cosmos), and to the expectation of a Messiah; and they cherished the hope that the dead, after a preliminary experience either of reward or of penalty in Hades (grave, not Hell), would be recalled to life by God, and be requited each according to his individual deeds. In opposition to the usurped dominion of the Herods and the rule of the Romans, they stoutly upheld the theocracy and their country's cause, and possessed great influence with the common people.

According to Josephus they numbered more than 6000. Some were bitter enemies of the School of Hillel and clashed with Hillel's interpretation of the Torah and his belief system; and were in turn severely rebuked by him for their avarice, ambition, hollow reliance on outward works, and affection of piety in order to gain popularity. But let us never forget that this was only one house of Phariseism, while the other house of Phariseism agreed in principle and spirit with the Jewish Christ as modeled by Hillel and his School.

Acts 28:17 And <1161> it came to pass <1096> (5633), that after <3326> three <5140> days <2250> Paul <3972> called <4779> <0> the chief <4413> <5607> (5752) of the Jews <2453> together <4779> (5670): and <1161> when they <846> were come together <4905> (5631), he said <3004> (5707) unto <4314> them <846>, Men <435> [and] brethren <80>, though I <1473> have committed <4160> (5660) nothing <3762> against <1727> the people <2992>, or <2228> customs <1485> of our fathers <3971>, yet was I delivered <3860> (5681) prisoner <1198> from <1537> Jerusalem <2414> into <1519> the hands <5495> of the Romans <4514>.

Lexicon Greek 1485 1485 ethos {eth'-os}from 1486; TDNT - 2:372,202; n n AV - custom 7, manner 4, be wont 1; 12

- 1) custom
- 2) usage prescribed by law, institute, prescription, rite

Answer for yourself: Do you see that again Paul's testimony was that he had done nothing against the custom of his Jewish fathers (like teach against the Law)? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Having studied this paper, can you now see clearly that Paul never violated the Laws of Moses, let alone forsook them?

Answer for yourself: Can you now see, better than ever, that Paul never thought or would write anything that could be understood that he advocated replacing the Laws of God with something like grace? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Then can you begin to understand that what we have come to mistakenly understand in contemporary Christianity, that the Law has passed away, is totally alienated from what Paul actually taught, as well as what the Jewish Christ as modeled by the School of Hillel actually taught? I bet you can.

SO WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN TO ME-A CHRISTIAN IN MY CHRISTIAN CHURCH?

Answer for yourself: If the teaching aspects of the Law has not passed away (only the judicial aspects since Messiah), then are we not still "under" the perfect Law of obedience? Yes.

We at Bet Emet Ministries plead with you to share this material with loved ones that they may inherit the fullness of God's salvation by rethinking the message of preachers and the authentic Paul, thereby rightly dividing the Word of God so that they will one day not stand ashamed before God.

Answer for yourself: Since the teaching aspects of the Law have not passed away, then what right do we have to continue to utilize God's Holy Tithe in the manner most churches do as it goes to church funds to be distributed how they will (building payments, insurance, bill, utilities, car payments, dues, membership fees in organization, fancy dinners, salaries, home payments, etc), when the Torah of God SPECIFICALLY commands us that 1/3 of ALL of the Tithe is to go totally to the widows, orphans, sick, lame, blind, paralyzed, homeless, hungry, elderly, etc.? We have no right to misuse these gifts and we sin in contributing to such churches when we let them distribute God's Tithe in such ways instead of obeying the Law of the Tithe that by now you can see never passed away. Don't be deceived any longer! Study the book of the Jews, the Bible that give us our Divine Standards.

Answer for yourself: Since the teaching aspects of the Law have not passed away, then what right do we have to continue to utilize God's Holy Tithe in the manner we do when God's Law SPECIFICALLY commands us that the second 1/3 of the Tithe is to go to you for the observance and celebration of the Festivals, Feasts, and Sabbaths of the Lord as found in Lev. 23? We have no right and we sin in contributing to such churches we we let them distribute God's Tithe in such ways instead of obeying the Law of the Tithe that by now you can see never passed away. Don't be deceived any longer! We have no right and we sin in contributing to churches whose church calendars are filled with pagan holidays in which we affix the name of Jesus to make them look religious. This is Constantine's work.

Answer for yourself: Since the teaching aspects of the Law have not passed away, then what right do we have to continue to utilize God's Holy Tithe in the manner we do when God's Law and Torah SPECIFICALLY commands us that the third 1/3 of the Tithe is to go to the teaching Levite who today teaches you the Divine truths in God's Word and not this false Roman gospel we inherited. We should no longer support false teaches who have failed to study out the book from which they preach and in so doing have led you astray from the path of proper Worship of God and the proper used of the funds that build the Kingdom of God instead of some deluded Pastor's agenda. We have no right to allow ourselves to be used as pawns any longer and we sin in contributing to churches in support of pastors who deceive us because of their lack of adequate study!

HAVE WE MISUNDERSTOOD PAUL'S LETTER TO THE GALATIANS? #5

The majority of Christians today have a complete misunderstanding of the role of faith and its relationship with works. Such is obvious as when the subject of "works" is brought up most respond "I'm not under the Law I'm under grace" or "I'm saved by grace through faith and not of works."

Answer for yourself: Have you ever questioned these statements as to their accuracy as you have, more than likely, understood them as they stand alone and not as qualified or enlarged upon by other Scriptures which bring a more complete understanding? More than likely you haven't.

Answer for yourself: Are you sure that the above statements "I'm not under the Law I'm under grace" or "I'm saved by grace through faith and not of works" are entirely correct as you have understand them? Don't be so hasty to say "yes."

Answer for yourself: Do you ascribe to a "fixed" position on the issue of "faith vs. works" because you have heard the above Scriptures quoted so often by people you respected? More than likely yes.

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that "there is more than meets the eye" when considering such passages, and without a fuller understanding you may have been led to an erroneous conclusion in the matter? Most definitely.

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that sense you might lack a "fuller" understanding of the doctrine of "faith" and "works," and all the implications that go with such a statements, that you may have arrived at conclusions that cannot be supported by comparative Scriptural analysis? Most definitely.

Answer for yourself: And what if you are wrong in your religious belief system as it dawns upon you from your own personal study? What if you are shown that certain "works" are necessary as the "fruit" of true salvation, and that in reality that we are NOT saved by faith ALONE? Will you let the "full counsel" of God cause repentance in your life and conduct? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: If shown the errors in your religious belief system will you repent in the matter even though it may go against what your preacher has told you? I hope so. This is the real test for a true child of God.

Answer for yourself: Are you certain that you have fully understood "ALL" that the Bible teaches about "faith and works" or have you, like the multitudes of Christians today which "cut-out" one Scripture from their Bible and create a "full doctrine" from that one verse, been possibly incorrect in your understanding of the doctrines of "faith" and "works?" We will have to investigate the matter to be certain.

Answer for yourself: Lastly, are we guilty of neglecting other Scriptures that qualify and enlarge the meaning of the original verses given above, and in doing so, have come to erroneous conclusions concerning "faith" and "works" which God never intended for us? This is the very place I was over 15 years ago, and I would have remained there until this day based upon what I heard others say, except I began to do in-depth study of the Bible for myself to see "if these things be so." It is then that I discovered the historical deception that lies behind this Roman New Testament that we have inherited; a book by the way that can be shown to be a forgery at "key" theological positions when compared with the prior Hebrew Texts that had been cherished and revered over a thousand years prior to Rome's literary deception.

More than likely, if you are typical Christian in today's world who lacks proper Bible training, study and corresponding knowledge in the areas of archeology, manuscript comparisons, comparative religions, Gnosticism, Astronomy, etc. ; you fall into the latter category. One hour per week is not nearly enough "Bible" or study for you to "rightly divide the Word of Truth." I will, in this article, continue to show you that without faith it is impossible to please God, but also "faith alone" without the proper defined Divine "works" does not please God either! I will show you that only "faith" accompanied with "proper works" pleases God and is the only accepted fruit of our salvation.

Such incomplete understanding of God's Word on our part in these very important areas will not only deceive your thinking but your conduct and behavior as well. Such faulty belief systems will not "save" you if your faith is unaccompanied with the proper works that justify you before God. Please understand the reason Bet Emet Ministries exists. Inadequate Bible study has led multitudes to understand only a "little" of the "whole" of God's revelation to man, thus allowing man to lean on his own understanding which often leads him astray and too often into sin. Quite often that "little" may satisfy you, but we must satisfy God through proper obedience which is greater than any sacrifice we can bring.

Answer for yourself: Could our faulty religious belief system and its corresponding erroneous actions (yet done in faith) cost you eternal reward or even eternal life? Well that is a very tough question deserving of your utmost attention.

You will be surprised, like I was, at the findings of such an inquiry into "faith and works". So surprised was I, that it changed the whole course of my life while I pastored in one of the largest Charismatic churches in the Dallas-Ft. Worth Metroplex, and eventually led to my resignation a few years later. Troubled at the conflicting picture given me by Southwestern Seminary for 3 years I set out to find the truth for myself and it would take about 5 years before I was thoroughly assured by the answers that I found that I must resign my position as a Pastor on this mega-church staff and start a ministry of repentance for the Christian believer. I could no longer, having come to the knowledge of the truth through intense research and study during my pastorate, continue to be a "man-pleaser" but finally mustered the courage to be a "God-pleaser," which in my case, caused me to leave the church which would not repent of error when shown "truths" in the Bible and in history and archeology that corrected our "long cherished" beliefs, conduct, attitude, and behavior as typical Romanized-Protestant believers.

2 Tim 3:16 16 All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: (KJV) 2 Tim 3:16 16 All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: (KJV)

Answer for yourself: What is the big problem with the above passage? Well you have to discern what is Divine Scripture and what is later "additions" to these Scripture that Rome passed off as "Divine Revelation" when they re-wrote the first Gnostic New Testament. Bet you never heard this before but it is the truth and easy to see today if you crack the right books. Thus you now know that not all which appears to be "All Scripture" is really "Scripture" when looked at through the microscope of intense modern scholarship. In fact "man-made" Scripture has served Rome well and blinded the minds of millions to the Divine Truths that our Creator intended they learn during their life in this plane of existence.

With the rise of the Christian Church as an entity unto itself, a new era in the formation of the Bible had arrived. Unknown to most Christians is that here were historically in the first centuries A.D. numerous texts in circulation among the various Christian communities, including various Letters, Gospels, and Acts of the Apostles that are not included in modern Bibles. Naturally the party line parroted by the Roman Catholic Church and various Protestant sects is that all these texts were simply silly, worthless drivel (or worthless yet harmful heresy), correctly removed from the Bible by right-minded religious leaders acting on divine inspiration.

Answer for yourself: Who qualified these Biblical editors? By what authority did they make such "additions" and "corrections" and "removals" to the established revelations of old? How can we be certain today that the theological positions of the "remnant" which were discarded were not the more accurate revelation of the Divine? How can we be sure that the religious texts we inherit today in our Holy Bibles is the information that the Creator desired we have or can we prove otherwise if we study hard? Well, we can prove otherwise and we have to go no further than the boasts of the early Church Fathers as their deception that served their purposes well when they included in their writings no less of their "religious deceptions" over the "ignorant populace". Let me give you one:

"What profit has not that fable of Christ brought us!" Pope Leo X.

Originally there were roughly 25 or 30 variations of the Gospels alone, but by the time of the Muratorian Canon (180 AD), only four of these were included among the scriptures of the Bible -- Mark, Matthew, Luke, and John. It is in this time period that the antisemitism of Rome churned out their "edited" First New Testament of the Gnostic Chrestians which taught only this "Christ Within" mankind. In so doing they planted their antisemitic ideas concening the abolition of God's Divine Law by teaching this "dying/rising" God-man was external to every child of God when the Divine awakens inside them along with many texts intended to create such an idea. One in particular stands out:

Rom 10:4 4 For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth. (KJV)

These Bible forgers will make sure not to tell their audience that the word "end" in the Greek means "goal"

Thayers' Greek Lexicon and the word for "end":

5056 telos- 1) end

- a) termination, the limit at which a thing ceases to be (always of the end of some act or state, but not of the end of a period of time)
- b) the end
- 1) the last in any succession or series
- 2) eternal
- c) that by which a thing is finished, its close, an issue
- d) the end to which all things relate, the aim, purpose

What we see is this "Law" has not period of time in which it ends but rather it is eternal by the defintion of the very word itself. This Gnostic Paul is teaching that when we awaken to the God within us and the Christ that dwell within us and when we allow this Divine to teach us to be "like this Christ", or as Paul says "till Christ be formed in you" then we will accomplish the end of our Spiritual evolution and the end and purpose of our Earthly existence. Furthermore, when we understand that this Christ came not to do away with the Law but rather "correctly interpret the Law" so that mankind can live out these Laws by living out in their lives the "correct works" and not the "works taught by selfish men" then we have arrived and accomplished the aim and purpose of our Earthly existence. This understanding completely destroys Rome's New Testament and its views on the Law of God being "replaced" by some supposed historical Christ who dies to replace this Law is not the truth; in fact this "dying/rising godman" is you and me when we come to the understanding of our Divine Nature and turn from the works of the flesh to the "works of the Spirit" which are defined by these Positive and Negative Laws written on Stone (the 10 categories of the Laws of Moses which contain within them the 66 Laws of Noah). This is what Rome did not want you to know and crafted their replacement New Testament to make it appar that this Christ nullified the Law of God along with the Pauline witness when proper study and understanding will show you this was never historically the case. This is what bothers me as a Christian Pastor "who had it made" and caused me to resign my position of influence over the masses. I was teaching lies; lies that today can be proven to be by the aid of modern scholarship and archeology that are restoring these older Divine texts that Rome will try to burn out of existence and bury so that the eyes of "thinking believers" never see them and in so doing will allow the whims of Rome and their cruelty to exist for some Jesus forgives their actions. Like Constantine before them they "get away with it" for there is no Law that applies to them except their own; until they die that is and find the judgment of God upon such "Lawlessness" and "Torahlessness".

The criteria for inclusion of books in Rome's Bible were:

- The text must not contain heresy. Heresy included anything that the dominant factions within the church disagreed with or saw as a threat to their own ideology. In other words the "powers that be" got their religious views and interpretations defined as "orthodoxy" and others, like the Jewish and "pro-Torah" branches were rejected.
- The text should uphold the authority of the Apostles. By extension, any text which contradicts the alleged views of the Apostles must be discarded. But then again when we reject the "Jewish Mother Church" then how can we saw this "new gospel" or these 4 gospels out of the whole of 30 or so reflects Apostolic Doctrine when it denigrates the Laws of Moses (as well as the Laws of Noah contained in them)?
- Texts should validate and even encourage the Christian zeal for martyrdom. While the last criterion may seem a bit arbitrary and bizarre to some, it actually does make a certain sense, considering that Christianity was an underdog evangelical religion. If people shunned Christianity because it might get them killed, the religion would wither and die out. If people saw dying for the cause as exhilarating (and a ticket to Heaven), they might be more willing to sign on -- regardless of the consequences. We see this same philosophy taught to the children in the Islamic world today which teaches them that their highest calling before God is to become "human bombs".

On the other hand, some of the deleted books were written with great authenticity and contained no actual heresy, but they made the Church look bad by mixing honest doctrine with ideas that might appear foolish or shocking. For example, the First Epistle of Clement to the Corinthians (himself the first Jewish "pope") was originally included as part of official Church scripture but was later deleted -- the objection being that Clement likens Christ's resurrection to the rising of the Phoenix from its own ashes. Now here this and set down before you fall down. This might have been fine had he referenced the Phoenix as a mythological being, but instead he refers to it as a real bird that existed in the physical world. Rome was fearful that later readers might draw the conclusion that Christ and his miracles, also referenced by Clement, had no more reality than the imaginary Phoenix. It does not take a rocket scientist to understand that Clement was speaking of the "invisible Christ Within" and not historical "bird" or "Christ-man" but an allegorical concept of a Divine Reality (the Christ in you and me which must rise from its death and slumber) which is "historically real" in the heart of every child of God. Do you undersand? This is what the earliest believers in "the Christ" were taught way back then before the Roman forgery mill geared up to destroy this concept and in its place limit this "Christ" to one person to the exclusion of all. The the fruit of a Christian world that has no restraint and no Law has spilled the blood of millions all in the name of this "Jesus" for almost 1,700 years.

Answer for yourself: Was Clement a Gnostic teaching the "resurrection of the Christ" within each child of God when comparing the Christ to Phoenix and not speaking of a "literal" Christ? Wow, what a thought than can only be understood fully when one masters Gnosticism and the early Gnostic Chrestians (not Christians) and comes to the real truth concerning the Law and its role in relationship to the "Christ Within" which this authentic Paul taught and which Rome will alter in 180 A.D. when Irenaeus beleches out the replacement Second New Testament by Rome which all of a sudden has "historical genealogies" that don't agree, infancy narratives that give a supposed "historical existence" for this Christ when the earlier gospels and other writings did not. And I could go on the wool is beginning to be pulled over the eyes of the "non-Jewish" world and in so doing the magesty of God's Law is deemed "null and void" and no longer applies but is done away with this Rome's historical Christ.

The early Church was an institution rife with dissent and political factionalism. Different groups sought to put forth their own vision of Christ as officially vetted Church teaching. Later, the political and ideological entity that emerged as the official Church (and the official state religion of Rome) sought to suppress rival viewpoints and alternative perspectives. Thus many books were removed from the Bible simply for the sake of political maneuvering or spiritual small-mindedness. In fact Rome will begin burning the various great Libraries of the world to conceal this information and the beauty of the Ancients who revered God's Laws.

Ironically, as much as Church leaders (and followers) would like to believe that they were guided by the hand of God in all such decisions, one cannot help but wonder if, in reality, it is the "hand of God" that is redressing their deletions in our generation today as more and more chance archeological discoveries lead to the recovery of these suppressed scriptures and great finds like the Dead Sea Scrolls and the Nag Hammadi Library stand today as the total correction for over 1,700 years of religious deception and the Roman legacy which has led astray millions and millions of people from God's desired paths for their lives. I would hate to wake up "dead" and found out that I missed the mark my whole life as a Christian!

Writings exposing this "mind control" of Roman orthodoxy and their replacement religion where they redefined "the Christ" and cut the Torah/Law from Divine texts exist only in recovered fragments (such as Clement's letter, the Thomas materials from Nag Hammadi, etc.) and collectively these recovered fragments today hint at the Church's suppression of such doctrines which were the true foundation of the earliest followers of "the Christ Within" as taught by Paul and others; a Christ who "awakened" within the Souls of every child of God and revealed the necessity of obedience to the Laws of God and His Cosmos in order to bring harmony between God and all Creation.

The word of God is profitable, for doctrine, reproof, correction, and instruction. Ideally, that is the goal but sadly Rome has made the discernment of what is actually the Word of God much harder than it should have been. The church needs to be a "mirror image" of the Divine Truth that existed in the first century in normative and conservative Judaism as seen in the Acts 15 and 16 Jerusalem Council and in the letters written to strengthen the churches in the Gentile world. When we recover this information, and it can be done today, then brothers and sisters must repent when corrected by this Divine Truth that James mandated be taught to the whole of the Gentile world. Coming to these truths in my own life as a Pastor no less I had no recourse than to remove myself from such a situation, for when I die I will be judged by God and not the pastor of my church who has espoused antisemitic doctrines the whole of his life. I suppose the greatest test of my love for God, and His Word is to take a stand for God in which you can truthfully say "let every man be a liar, but let God's Word be true!" In taking such a stand, I come humbly before you to share "hidden" truths in the Word of God that often correct what we have been taught, heard, and often followed as "godly" examples; yet when scrutinized with the Bible and modern scholarship, can be found to be false-teachings and half-truths. Our love for God demands more and I hope you will prayerfully consider and study these things for yourself, as I did, to make sure that "you be in THE faith" and not a "renegade" which in reality is one who breaks from the mind of Christ and creates a "new religion" which opposes the Divine Plan.

HAVE WE MISUNDERSTOOD PAUL'S LETTER TO THE GALATIANS? #6

QUESTIONS TO CHANGE YOUR LIFE

It is assumed that the reader has read and understand the first five articles in this series and must do so before going on. So doing then let me ask you some very simple questions, but they are of such a nature, that they should change you life.

- Answer for yourself: Do you have the same religious belief system as did this Jewish Christ, and if you think you do then do you know where it deviated from traditional Christian religious beliefs and dogmas believed way back then before the rise of the Roman Church?
- Answer for yourself: Do you believe everything that this Jesus, who is the personification of this "Jewish Christ" believed and how can you know unless you are thoroughly acquainted with Biblical Judaism of the first century and especially what the conservative branch of Judaism, the School of Hillel, taught concerning the "non-Jews"?
- Answer for yourself: Did "this Jewish Christ" believe a certain way in some matters that you don't as yet, and again how can you know unless you have a working knowledge of first century Judaism and especially what the conservative branch of Judaism, the School of Hillel, taught concerning the "non-Jews"?
- Answer for yourself: Do you believe in things that "this Jewish Christ" would not, and if so, how can you justify it, and again how can you know for sure unless you do your own homework into these areas since your church has never taught you?
- Answer for yourself: Did "this Jewish Christ" teach and believe differently than you do in various religious doctrines as you have been taught in your current Christian Church, and if you come to the knowledge of the facts of the matter and become convinced that this Jewish Christ did for sure, then will you continue in your opposite beliefs since you believe that this manifestation of this "Jewish Christ" is the expressed image of the Father?

The honest answers to these questions will definitely alter the course of your life. The only thing lacking is your understanding in these matters of "faith" and the manifestation of such "correct faith" which unfortunately is called by such a negative term today as "works."

I plead with those who read this article that you prayerfully listen to what I have discovered over 15 years of in depth study of the Bible, both in Greek and Hebrew. The results of my study altered the course of my life and I hope that it will yours as well. I found, as you will also when you finish these articles and teachings, that as a follower of "this Jewish Christ" we are to keep the Laws of Yahweh. It is these Laws that describe in detail the "kinds of works" (called obedience to Commandments) that are acceptable to God. Such Laws dictate how we are to worship, at what times, which holy days we are to sanctify and which ones we are not, which ways and what things are to be done in God's worship, as well as laying out the ethics for our whole life; for example how we are to tithe correctly as well as how not to, etc.

When the church in Revelation was told that they had left their "first love" notice that they were not told to "hug "this Jewish Christ" or "love more," rather, they were told "GO BACK TO YOUR FIRST WORKS."

The reason for so much misunderstanding today in Christendom concerning "faith" and its proper relationship to "works" is due to our confusion when reading some of the Apostle Shaul's (Paul's) writings. Again this can be laid at the feet of Rome who tried for centuries to send a completely different message concerning the authentic Paul and his stance upon the Torah.

Some of the Apostle Paul's writings are "hard to be understood": as the Apostle Kepha (Peter) stated in II Kepha (Peter) 3: 15-16, saying-

- 15 And recognize that the longsuffering of Yahweh our Savior is salvation; just as our beloved brother Paul, in accordance with the wisdom given to him, has written to you,
- 16 As also in all his letters, speaking in them about these things, in which are some things HARD TO BE UNDERSTOOD, which those who are UNLEARNED AND UNSTABLE TWIST, as they also DO THE OTHER SCRIPTURES. to their own destruction.

APPARENT CONTRADICTIONS IN THE WORD OF GOD?

Answer for yourself: Each of us have heard sermons on one or more of the Scriptures that follow, but how many of you have heard sermons which bring into focus and balance these seemingly contradictory doctrines?

Answer for yourself: Can the conflicting and opposing Scriptures be rectified so as to bring understanding to the Church that will culminate in "correct faith" and "obedience"? Most definitely.

Let us examine just some, but by no means, "all" of the troublesome statements from the Apostle Paul found in the New Testament:

- 1). For by grace you have been saved through faith, and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God, not of works lest anyone should boast. Ephesians 2: 8
- 2). Gal 2:16 16 Knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jesus Christ, even we have believed in Jesus Christ, that we might be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law: for by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Did you know that this supposedly same Paul says just the opposite in Romans?

Rom 2:13 13 (For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified. (KJV)

What a mess we have on our hands for one minute we are told that no one is justified by the works of the Law and the other minutes we are told that only the doers of the Laws shall be justified. It would take a Psychiatrist to figure the mind of Paul out or possibly as alluded to before the authentic Paul did not write some of what carries his name. One Paul is the real Paul and one Paul is the "false Paul" but from the conflicting passages we cannot tell and must do other studies to find out which doctrine reflects the real Paul and the views of the Jerusalem Church.

- 3). What does it profit, my brethren, if someone says he has faith but does not have works? Can faith save him? James 2: 14

- 4). You see then that a man is justified by works, and NOT by faith only (James 2: 24).

Wow, it become more clean when we see it taught in the mouth of two or three witnesses. Rome's editing of these texts begins to become apparent.

Answer for yourself: Are we saved by simply having faith in "Jesus Christ" as Christianity teaches, or is there something that we must do to inherit and complete out Eternal Life as the Jews teach? It is vitally important that we understand this question as it effects our very assurance of salvation! Let me say it again.

- 5). For NOT the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified. (Rom. 2:12).
- 6). Therefore by the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight (Rom. 3:20).
- 7). Therefore we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law (Rom. 3:28).

Answer for yourself: Was it just me or did we see contradictions in some of the above verses? If you missed it then read it again.

HOW OBSERVANT ARE YOU WHEN YOU READ PAUL?

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that supposedly Paul said things 180 degrees opposite in meaning when he said a man is justified by works in Rom 2:12, yet in Rom 3:20 he states by the deeds (works) of the law will no flesh be justified?

Answer for yourself: Is this "contradiction" in the New Testament the work of the Holy Spirit which "breathes" inerrant and infallible "Scripture"? Is God confused? Who can we turn to to sort this mess out?

Noticing things like these is only the beginning for us if we desire to correctly understand the message of Paul to the Gentile church today. We must look at every little thing along the way in such study as if it were a puzzle piece given to us to construct the picture in our day and time and make inference from what we see, for as I showed you and have been saying over and over again for years our Christian texts have been worked over thoroughly by Rome and try as they may often the "truth" of the matters shines through such Roman redaction. Too often we "pick" and "choose" one particular Pauline passage and build a whole doctrine or denomination over it without considering other things that Paul and others like Moses and and the Prophets taught which, when considered, brings this "one particular Pauline passage" into questions. Such scholarship on our parts is foolish.

Answer for yourself: Is Paul schizophrenic or is Peter correct, that the writings of Paul are hard to understand? Peter is correct of course but that does not mean that we cannot understand the real Paul once we obtain the "keys" to deciphering his writings as well as discerning the real authentic Paul from the later Romanized Paul.

Answer for yourself: Is the church correct if they teach only justification by faith or is the church correct if they teach only justification by works? Neither really for we shall see one flows into the other and one without the other is "incomplete".

Answer for yourself: Could it be possible, as you are beginning to see, that it is both as James, the hand-picked pastor of "this Jewish Christ", goes on to teach us in his Epistle of James, which is conveniently shoved to the back of the New Testament, that we find the "keys" that are needed to interpret this Paul? Do we find that James is correct in saying that faith and works are necessary for a "living faith" that "saves"? I sure believe so.

SOMETHING YOU NEED TO KNOW

The Apostle Peter says that those who are "unlearned in the Scriptures" (referring to the Hebrew Scriptures) are the very ones who "twist Paul's writings to their own destruction"!

This presents us with another major problem for my studies, as well as those of modern scholarship, show us that the Greek Old Testament has equally been "worked" over by Rome during the early centuries and reads nothing like the true Hebrew Scriptures cherished by the Jews for these last two thousand years. That means we cannot trust our Christian Old Testaments or the quotes taken from them as found in the New Testament unless we first compare them with the Hebrew Scriptures as taken from either the Stone Edition Tanakh or the JPS Tanakh. I cannot tell you how many tears flowed over the months when did these studies years ago and when the implications of such studies hit me squarely between the eyes and I saw how I really looked to God having lived a "Torahless" life up to then and solely trusting in my inherited "Jesus theology" given me by my Romanized-Protestant Church.

That was me about 15 years ago when I began to look up the English words in my Bible and compare against Greek and Hebrew meanings in books like Thayer's Greek Lexicon, Vine's and Wilson's word studies. No one wants to be destroyed, but if we follow preachers who unknowing twist the Scriptures and who fail to do the necessary studies like I had up to then in my life trusting everything I heard from the pulpit, then we, also, will experience the same destruction that Yahweh has planned for ALL Scriptural LIARS! This Jewish Christ tells us "what" will befall us if we follow BLIND LEADERS, saying in Gospel of Matthew 15:14:

Matt 15:14 14 Let them alone: they be blind leaders of the blind. And if the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch. (KJV)

God also commands us to study His word, in order to show ourselves "approved" unto Him. The necessity if easily grasped in the truth that if we will study His Word (the unaltered true Hebrew Scriptures) and "not just read" His word, then we will most certainly "not be deceived" by later the Scriptural lies brought forth by Rome and the legacy of deceived preachers that fill our pulpits today! In II Timothy 2:15, we read:

2 Tim 2:15 15 Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth. (KJV)

The problem again is discerning the unaltered "Word of Truth" from the "altered Word of Truth" given us by Rome. Hard and rigorous as this study might be it can be done as I testify to doing this over these last many years.

I am confident that after you have finished reading these articles, you will no longer have any questions about "Paul's Writings" and will never again be deceived by the crafty manipulations of any false preachers either who teach an unbalanced message concerning "faith and works".

Rabbi Elazar ben (son of) Azariah said: If there is no Torah [study] there is no proper conduct; if there is no proper conduct there is no Torah [study]. If there is no wisdom there is no fear of God; if there is no fear of God there is no wisdom. If there is no knowledge there is no understanding; if there is no understanding there is no knowledge.

What a truth you just read and sadly today Christianity is built not upon study but "preaching" of these corrupted texts having never fully investigated their reliability.

Answer for yourself: Can we be sure that faith is enough to save us in the light of James 2:24 which says:

James 2:24 24 Ye see then how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only. (KJV)

This goes to the very core of our needing to understand God's Laws and Commandments which show us Whom

God is and what He "does" (Positive Commandments) and what He "does not do" (Negative Commandments). These Laws frame our Covenants with God, both Jewish and "non-Jewish". We can go out and thing we are doing "good works" for it seems right to a man but often these actions, well-intended as they might be, are condemned by these Laws as not being acceptable by God and missing the mark of true righteousness. One only has to study these Commandments regarding the Tithe to see what I mean and how week after week we can give our tithe to our Church and allow them to use that money any way they wish and in so doing we stand condemned by God as "Lawbreakers" for not assuring our gifts are used according to the Commandments which regulate their used as said by God. We give and on the surface it looks "right" but the Commandments on the Tithe forbid such use of these gifts in the manner that the Christian Church used them and we by association have "robbed God" and not known it. This is what I mean about "correct works" and "incorrect works".

Prov 14:12 12 There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death. (KJV)

I could go on for this principle strikes at the very core of Idolatry and Blasphemy as well as it related to Rome changing "the Christ" and making this Jesus "God" in the 4th century at the Council of Nicea and enforcing the worship of this "Jesus" instead of only God. This is known as the Arian Controversy and it lasted more than 60 years and it divided the Roman Empire and forever changed the face of the Christian Church. This conflict over the Divinity of "Jesus as the Christ" engaged not only theologians and dozens of ecumenical councils, including the famous Council of Nicaea, but also the masses of people who were prepared to take the fight to the streets. Arius argued that this "Jesus" was less than God and that his true role was to sever as a model of virtue to all humanity. Athanasius thought this was heresy and an assault upon Jesus himself. Between these formidable adversaries stood Constantine the Great, Rome's first Christian Emperor. Since this time Christianity has followed the decision of Constantine and his Council; namely that its participants decisively ruled that the traditions of this Jesus reflected a historical person who was both human and divine, and that he was equivalent to (literally, "of the same substance as") God the Father. This had the result of making Arianism a heresy. The Nicene Creed encapsulated this theological doctrine and in so doing equated Jesus as God. But the Laws and Commandments, let alone the teachings of Judaism forbid such a doctrine and define them as blasphemous and idolatrous. Such is the problem when we do away with Divine Absolutes revealed in God's Laws since the beginning of time.

Back to Galatians, if there is something that we need to do in order to have Eternal Life, then we need to know what it is! If we are truly sincere toward God we must find out what part "works" play in God's plan of salvation. However, we want to be sure that we don't become separated from God by trusting in our own righteousness: "You have become estranged from Christ, you who attempt to be justified by law (without faith); you have fallen from grace" (Galatians 5: 4). Simply said we need "both" and the problem again is understanding "saving faith" and "man-made faith in doctrines outside the Hebrew Scriptures" and what "works are sanctioned and forbidden" by the Laws and Commandments in these same Hebrew Scriptures given us and protected by the Jews during the times of tampering of these religious texts.

DID YOU BRING YOUR SCISSORS TO BIBLE STUDY? ABRAHAM AS OUR EXAMPLE...OF "FAITH" AND "WORKS"

Actually it is grossly unfair to take a verse from the Bible out of context and use it to prove an argument. I would encourage you to read several verses before and after those quoted that is up for discussion. Having done this, you will notice that both sides of the argument use Abraham as an example. Let's look briefly at the story of Abraham from Genesis 22.

THE STORY OF ABRAHAM

"Now it came to pass after these things that God tested Abraham, and said to him 'Abraham!;' And he said,

'Here I am.'; And he said, 'Take now your son, your only son Isaac, whom you love, and go to the land of Moriah, and offer him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains of which I shall tell you'. So Abraham rose early in the morning and saddled his donkey and took two of his young men with him, and Isaac his son; and he split the wood for the burnt offering, and arose and went to the place of which God had told him.

Answer for yourself: Now do you think perhaps that Abraham knew all along that God would not require the life of his son?

Answer for yourself: Do you think that he chopped wood, saddled the donkey and set out on his journey, knowing that he was, in some morbid way, humoring his God by pretending to be sacrificing his son?

Not at all! For the Angel of the Lord plainly said, "Do not lay your hand on the lad, or do anything to him; for now I know that you fear God, since you have not withheld your son, your only son, from me." Remember this was a test! If Abraham had been unwilling to kill his son he would have failed that test. God was testing Abraham's ability to keep the very first commandment that he was to later give to Israel. After passing this test, God, swearing by Himself, reaffirmed the promises that he previously gave to Abram before Isaac was conceived. And God did so because (note this well) "because you have done this thing, and not withheld your son, your only son, in blessing I will bless you, and in multiplying I will multiply your descendants as the stars of the heaven" (Genesis 22: 15-17). Notice specifically that because Abraham had obeyed what God had said and brought the right "work" of "obedience" before God then God blessed him. Obedience to what God said and not what "looks right" from our pulpits always gets God's attention and I am speaking about "specific obedience" that has to be measured line upon line and precept upon precept (or should I say "doctrine" upon "doctrine") that we here emanated from our Church pulpits. Only when we compare what we hear from our Christian pulpits with the unforged Hebrew Scriptures cherished by the Jews and not our worked-over Greek and English Old Testaments, can we be assured that our works and responses of "faith" are pleasing and acceptable to God!!!

ABRAHAM HAD WORKS...THE RIGHT ONES!!!

So we clearly see that Abraham had works, the "right ones" which were the only ones that God could accept. His unquestioning obedience is clear. But did Abraham have faith? Hebrews 11: 17-19 tells us "By faith Abraham, when he was tested, offered up Isaac" (notice his faith was tested in a concrete way that required obedience as a "work" or a "deed" to substantiate true faith), "and he who had received the promises offered up his only begotten son, of whom it was said, 'In Isaac your seed shall be called,' accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead, from which he also received him in a figurative sense."

Answer for yourself: According to the pattern for Abraham, God tests our faith by requiring some "particular" physical deed or action? Always and often these revolve around His Laws and Commandments written in the Hebrew Scriptures.

Abraham did have faith, and it was this faith (in the resurrection) that enabled him to do the "works." Without the faith, he could not have done the works required of him by God. Faith came first. Faith, then testing, then works, then God's approval. Let me list then in order for you to better understand how God deals with mankind.

- First: Faith
- Second: Testing
- Third: Works
- Final: Approval by God

It was faith that made him rise early, cut the wood, and set out on his journey. It was faith that caused a certain reactions or responses to God and His commandments that brought the manifestation of God's promise.

Answer for yourself: Man plays a role often for not all the promised of God are "unconditional"; many are "conditional" upon our obedience of His Laws and Commandments and if we live in a Church environment which reinforces the erroneous teaching that we are no longer "under" God's Laws then is it any wonder why we never get what we desire or ask?

Answer for yourself: Can you now see and understand more correctly the Scripture in James 2:22: "Do you see that faith was working together with his works, and by works faith was made perfect?" I hope so.

FAITH..BUT WITHOUT THE PROPER RESPONSE OF FAITH...PROPER WORKS IN THE FORM OF OBEDIENCE ...CAN WE TRULY BE SAVED?

Suppose Abraham didn't have faith in God to resurrect Isaac, and had refused to offer him up, or suppose Abraham had faith but tried to offered up the wrong son, for example, an Ishmael. Abraham, had he substituted another "work" not Commanded of him but one that "looked good" then he would have had neither faith nor works. So we should learn that works, of the "justifying" kind, are dependent on faith and the correct response to that which you exhibit faith in.

So works, of the "justifying" kind, are dependent on faith and the CORRECT response to faith which you exhibit in the obedience to the Word of God

FAITH...THAT RESPONDS IN DISOBEDIENCE INSTEAD OF OBEDIENCE

Let us look at some examples of responding in faith incorrectly:

Answer for yourself: Knowing that God commanded the tithe to be placed in only selected areas as Commanded in the Bible as seen in Laws and Commandments; for example to be used only for:

- Care for the widows, sick, orphans, lame, blind, paralyzed, mentally retarded, homeless, crippled, deaf, etc.
- The Feasts and Festivals of Yahweh-LORD and His Sabbaths;
- The Levitical teachers and ministers of Divine Truths and not errors

then are we justified as believers if we respond in faith to the Commandment to tithe by offering to God in worship an "Ishmael" tithe by giving it to churches which do not obey God in the placement of the tithe to only these areas, but rather use it in the General Fund for what they please such as building payments, utility bills, rents, insurances, fancy dinners, television ministries, car payments for the pastor, mortgage for the pastor, huge salaries for staff, etc?

No! We rob God every time we give our gifts and allow them to be used for these purposes that go against how God commanded these gifts be used in building His Kingdom.

Such erroneous responses to the Word of God which explicitly commands the way the Tithes are to be allocated does not justify...in fact it is gross disobedience and robbery of God.

Our faith is "dead" in that we had faith, we were tested to obey God, we responded in what we were told was a "righteous work" in giving to the church, yet we missed the mark not knowing the Scriptures and such disobedience by the church and those we entrust our money to cannot be accepted by God.

Matt 22:29 29 Jesus answered and said unto them, Ye do err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God. (KJV)

We end up being "accessories" to robbery of God and never know it; not until we die and are confronted by the Creator for such actions. We end up being disobedient whether we planned it or not. We must take the responsibility to make sure our gifts and worship of God in the tithe go exactly where He commands, for God is the same yesterday, today, and tomorrow and has no need to confer with "accepted Church tradition" in deciding what is and what is not obedience to His Word. I suggest, and did so myself, begin to "designate" where your offerings are to be used; ie., "benevolence" and consider giving your Tithe outside the church to areas commanded by the Scripture if your church does not comply with the Word of God.

Answer for yourself: Knowing that God commanded that His people, both Jew and Gentile, worship Him in a prescribed manner on certain "appointed days" as taught by Judaism; days which the Bible calls "Holy Days" and "Festivals of the LORD;" then are we justified if we respond in faith to the Commandments to set aside these "certain days and Sabbaths unto the Lord" but instead of celebrating and observing those required and Commanded "appointed times" by God in the Bible we set aside pagan Roman religious holidays that have had the name of "this Jewish Christ" attached to them by Rome so as to give them an "assumed authority" to those who knew no better?

No way. Our faith is "dead" in that we had faith to obey, we were tested to obey God, we responded in a "righteous work" and a "righteous deed" as instructed by Christianity, yet we missed the mark by not sanctifying the days commanded by God and therefore our worship cannot be accepted by God due to our disobedience. In speaking to a "non-Jews" the Jewish Christ says:

John 4:22 22 Ye worship ye know not what: we know what we (the Jews) worship: for salvation is of the Jews. (KJV)

Literally we as Christians ended up sanctifying Gentile pagan holidays which have been dressed up with a little "Jewish Christ" to make it look religiously acceptable. The irony of the whole affair is that the Jewish Scriptures commanded these days not be kept or observed by true worshippers of God. In fact many times in the Bible the Jews were commanded to divorce their Gentile wives if they adhered to such pagan religious days.

Answer for yourself: Do you really think you are going to be the "Bride of Christ" one day if you observe such pagan holidays in your church when the Jewish Scriptures forbid that Jews maintain marriages with such ones who would not repent of such paganism and follow the Biblical Festivals? THINK!

We must take the responsibility to make sure our worship is according to the Divine Pattern set forth by God for His people in the Bible, for our well-intentioned "works and deeds of obedience which is our faith in action," when opposite of what God commands, does not justify us before God but instead defines us as "Lawless" before God

So works, of the "justifying" kind, are dependent on faith and the correct response of obedience to what God as commanded of the "non-Jews" in His Word.

Answer for yourself: Knowing that God commanded that His people, both Jew and Gentile, to sanctify His Sabbaths (both weekly Sabbath as well as the Festivals and Feasts) and make them holy, can we expect to be justified by God if we change the Saturday Sabbath, which is the seventh day, to Sunday, which is the first day of the week, thus breaking the fourth Commandment? No way. Would the same apply to changing the Biblical Festivals, like Passover to Easter? It sure would and does!

Answer for yourself: In each of these examples, and these are only a few, what is the message? You see then that a man is justified by works, and not by faith only (James 2: 24) and those "works" are specifically defined as one's obedience to the Positive and Negative Commandments of God.

But if we do what is contrary to what God said, even if our intention is good, then we miss the mark (SIN) and our faith (although misdirected) cannot save (bless) us

FAITH WITHOUT WORKS?

But can one have faith without works? James 2:17 states ".. faith by itself, if it does not have works (REMEMBER the "works" in question are the "works" required and commanded by God as seen in our obedience to His commandments), is dead." You see the kind of faith that does not show itself with actions, deeds, or works as defined by God in His Laws and Commandments is dead faith.

Answer for yourself: Can "dead" faith save you? The answer to that is NO! Living faith expressed in obedience to what God has commanded of us saves!

Answer for yourself: Now when Paul says in Galatians 2: 16 that we are justified by faith in Jesus Christ, is Paul referring to "living" faith or "dead faith"? Of course He means genuine living faith, for the Scriptures also say that "a man is justified by works, and not by faith only." Therefore, it is by living faith, or living out our faith through obedience, that we are justified."

HOWEVER...NOT JUSTIFIED BY WORKS ALONE

The letter of James is not saying we are justified by works alone. It is however clarifying the word "faith." The epistle of James is preaching justification by faith, but is also making it very clear that "living faith" is the kind that shows itself by "obedient works." Obviously some of those to whom this letter was addressed historically, were claiming to have a faith that was not shown by their actions, for either their actions were contrary to what God said is to be done, or else they had no works at all. They were offering lip service only. James counsels these people in Chapter 1 verse 22 "But be doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving yourselves."

Answer for yourself: As Christians do we deceive ourselves if we believe the Sabbath has been changed to Sunday, that Roman pagan holidays have replaced Yahweh' Holy Days and Feast Days, and that the Tithe can be used for whatever the pastor and elders of your church decide when we have God's Holy Scriptures that teach otherwise? You bet we do.

The letter to the Galatians was not addressed to those who were servants to legalism and trying to be justified by the law. It was written to those who were trying to "turn the grace of God into licentiousness..." (Jude 1: 4). They forgot that there is a balance between "faith" and "obedient works" which is in reality the "fruit of the Spirit," also called "fruits of our faith."

WORKS OF THE LAW

On the other hand, the verses from Ephesians and Galatians were addressed to those who were being persuaded by those of the "circumcision" group (Shammai Pharisees historically) who insisted that the Gentiles be circumcised and keep the law of Moses "for salvation" which contextually meant being accepted by the Jews in the Israel of God. For this reason there is an emphasis on justification by faith and not by "works". Now the "works" referred to in Galatians are the "works of the law," and historically this referred to the problem of circumcision for Gentiles which was mistakenly required by some Shammai Pharisees for Gentiles to be "saved" and accepted along side the Jews in the Israel of God. James corrects this erroneous interpretation in Acts 15 as we have shown before.

The letter of Galatians was specifically written to those who were seeking justification by the law, not by faith. They were putting their trust in their own ability to keep the law (be circumcised which was a type of "religious work" accomplished by their free will) rather than God's ability to conform them to the likeness of Himself as they responded to their faith in God through "works" as seen in obedience to Laws and Commandments which pertained to them, which when done, led them to live like God, act like God, think like God, conduct themselves morally and ethically like God, thus becoming "Godly." The apostle Paul makes a clear distinction between the "works of the law" and "the good works of faith." He does this by using a completely different term when referring to the good works of faith. Notice in Galatians chapter 5 verse 19, where Paul lists the "works of the flesh." Then in verse 22, in contrast to the evil works of the flesh, he lists the good works of the Spirit. He distinguishes these from the works of the Law by using the term "fruit" instead of "works."

FRUIT OF THE SPIRIT

In a Christian's life then we should see the evidence of the good works of faith which is one's obedience to the Word of God, or as Paul calls it, the fruit of the Spirit which is nothing more than obedient works of the Laws and Commandments of God (both Positive and Negative). A Christian cannot be "saved" if his life does not show, to some degree, the fruit of the Spirit (obedience to God's Word as seen as the "fruit" of their "faith" which is in the final analysis obedience to the Laws and Commandments of his Covenant with God. That person is deceiving himself if he thinks otherwise and our inadequate study of our Christian Faith and the alterations of its texts sets us up to be deceived. Concerning the hatred of this sect of Jews towards their "non-Jewish" brothers James goes on to say:

1 John 2: 9 says "He who says he is in the light, and hates his brother, is in darkness until now."

THE ROLE OF WORKS

Let's look at the role of works in the Christian life. When Paul faced Agrippa, he outlined the gospel that he preached to the Gentiles in this way: "that they should repent, turn to God, and do works befitting repentance." (Acts 26.20). Paul, in addition to belief in Christ, actually preached works! And it is not surprising, because true repentance is always followed by a changed life. True conversion means turning away from a life of sin to a life of good works. Our "works" cannot be "good" if they contradict what God said He wanted done by His people.

This has startling repercussions for Christians today which, for the most part, adopt a contemporary manifestation of Christianity that is totally foreign to the Christianity (wrongly called Christianity today) that existed in the first century church which was an expression of the Torah lived out in a believer's life. By that I mean we have absolutely no right to take up the tithe as it is being done in the majority of Christian churches of this land, and use it for all that it goes for. Such well-meaning obedience and worship by sincere lovers of God is totally misdirected when compared with what the Bible teaches can commands regarding this Pattern of Worship let alone the Tithe. I strongly suggest that you study this our for yourself so that you can see these things for yourself for until you do you should not believe even me. Nothing beats your own personal study and scrutiny of the evidence as it exists today that shows you that I have not taught you in vain in these regards.

Answer for yourself: Is our faith "alive or dead" if we disobey such an important teaching as the Tithe in the Bible, even though we give to our church with good intentions? "Dead" because regardless that it looks "good" it is disobedience as to how God commanded the Tithe be given and used and this makes such giving "dead works".

Because of the "agendas" of men, the truth about the Tithe seems to never come from the pulpits. Thus we are deceived by our false teachers and therefore we likewise deceive ourselves into thinking we are practicing a "living faith" when we give to the "church." In reality, we practice a "dead faith" and without knowledge of our sin we "rob God" Sunday after Sunday because those we trusted to administer God's Holy Tithe use it in other areas not sanctioned by God in Scripture. There are "certain" areas where Yahweh places His Name and His Authority, thus signifying and defining where He desires the Tithe to go. Unfortunately, these areas lay empty (or at least partially empty) because the churches use the Tithe to finance "bigger churches" and "bigger television ministries," instead of using it for benevolence, the worship of the LORD in the celebration and observance of Festivals and Sabbaths, and the support of the functioning "Levites" today which teach the truth of the Word of God and not the compromised that have been made to the texts. Not knowing of these alterations and forgeries they spread lies unaware. Too few are fed, clothed, educated, medically treated, and taught correctly; if this was done then these actions would issue in one's "faith" being verified "by words" commanded by God instead of men. Because of such the Kingdom of God (rulership and Lordship of Christ as God's authority and representative) never becomes manifested through obedience to the degree intended by our Father in Heaven. Not only does God suffer because of our failure to respond in truth and obedience to His Word, but so do the "poor in spirit."

Paul's words in front of Agrippa were no slip of the tongue either, for in 1 Timothy 6:18 he advises Timothy to command the wealthy Christians to "be rich in good works." Again to Titus he says "I want you to affirm constantly, that those who have believed in God should be careful to maintain good works. These things are good and profitable to men." (Titus 3:8).

NOT BY WORKS BUT "FOR" WORKS

We are not saved by works alone but "for" good works.

Answer for yourself: Are you zealous for good works and by that I mean the works of God and not the works of men who misrepresent God and His Word to you? I would hope so and by now you are getting the idea.

Then in Ephesians 2:8-10 the subject is fully explained as follows:

"For by grace you have been saved through faith, and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God, not of works, lest anyone should boast. For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God prepared beforehand that we should walk in them."

Answer for yourself: Why are we created? Do the works of God (good works) and not the works of men that have caused countless numbers to replace the Commandments of God with the commandments of men as seen above.

BY WHAT MEANS?

Answer for yourself: How do we accomplish good works? How can we overcome our sinful desires?

First we need to know that the Commandments and the Law of God are 613 manifestations of "good works". Each mitzvot reveal an attribute of God. There are 248 positive Commands which reveal for us just Whom God is and what God does and 365 Negative commands which reveal to us what God is not and what God does not do. Only by faith in God who is able to give us the strength to put to death the deeds of the body by his Spirit are we then empowered to live like God and choose these things that reflect and mould God into our Souls. By so doing are we trained in God's Torah (Instruction) and thereby are assured that our actions and deeds reflect a God focused and centered life. "For if you live according to the flesh you will die: but if by the Spirit you put to death the deeds of the body, you will live" (Romans 8:13).

LET YOUR LIGHT SHINE

In summary we can clearly see that there is no contradiction in the phrase "justified by works" and "justified by faith." They both harmonize together as shown. We are saved by grace, justified by faith which shows itself in practical "manifestations" of deeds and works which are defined as acceptable by God in his Laws and Commandments which frame the Laws of Noah and the Laws of Moses (both Covenants; the Covenant of Noah being totally incorporated into the Covenant of Moses). Our obedience of these Covenant stipulations renders us "acceptable before God". When we fail God gave us the gift of repentance so that we could being the path of our Spiritual development once more. Such acts of obedience are called the "fruit of the Spirit". Literally we have are created "being" which have been created for the good works that God has prepared for us and which He defines for us in His Torah. There is no excuse for getting them wrong and no Law or Commandment is impossible if our Spirits be willing. The Fruit of the Spirit in Galatians chapter 5 cannot occur alone or in a vacuum. If you noticed, they are manifestations of practical deeds of love and righteousness, which is in and of itself, manifestations of our faith which are again defined by the Laws and Commandments of our Covenants.

Answer for yourself: Do you better understand that if your works are only "religious" (what your church tells you to do which often corrects and conflicts with Holy Scripture) and not "righteous" (what God tells you to do), then your faith is a "dead" faith (dead faith cannot save you) and not a "living" faith (living faith saves you)? I would hope so by now.

Answer for yourself: Do you better understand that if your works are only "religious" works (what your church tells you to do which often corrects and conflicts with Holy Scripture such as observing pagan holidays in "this Jewish Christ's name" and Sundays instead of the Sabbath as well as robbing God by giving to institutions that use God's Holy Tithe any way they want to and not the way God wants it used then you have a "dead" faith in these regards because you are responding in disobedience and not obedience to what the Laws of God command? I hope you do.

Answer for yourself: Do you better understand that if your works are not "religious" works but "righteous" works as seen by not doing what your church tells you to do when it conflicts with the Hebrew Holy Scriptures (such as no longer observing pagan holidays in "this Jewish Christ's name" even though your church does but turn your life to return to the Holy Festivals of Yahweh whereby you begin to celebrate and observe the Sabbaths of God, then your faith has become a "living faith" and is no longer a "dead faith?" I believe you are beginning to see the light.

Answer for yourself: Do you better understand that if your works are not "religious" works but "righteous" works as seen by your repentance and thereby not doing what your church often tells you when you find the Hebrew Scriptures commanding otherwise (such as no longer robbing God by giving to your church if the pastor does not distribute the Tithe correctly as commanded by Scripture among widows, sick, lame, blind, the observance of the Festivals, and the support of the Levitical teacher who teaches the uncompromising Word of God and he is faithful to interpret the Bible as was understood by "this Jewish Christ" in the first century), then your faith is a manifestation of a "living faith" and not a "dead faith?" I would hope you are beginning to see the big picture by now.

Let's not be frightened to respond in faith to thereby accomplish the good deeds that God requires of us: "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your "good works" (which are manifestations of God's love through you as you obey the Laws and Commandments of His Word). The result of correct obedience to the will of God through "good works" and not "religious works" will always glorify your Father in heaven." (Matthew 5:16). Man may want the glory but God deserves it! Shalom.

AS A CHRISTIAN DO YOU KNOW WHICH COVENANT YOUR UNDER? #1

In my library are numerous books on Biblical Covenants. But there is a problem with the majority of these Christian commentators when teaching on covenants.

Answer for yourself: Do you know what it is?

A common condition inherent with almost all of them is their failure to recognize the fact that the Hebrew Scriptures teach us that God's Covenants are Eternal and that each successive Covenant given by God chronologically builds upon the previous and should be considered a "continuation" of or an elaboration of prior Covenants. In other words they are linked together. Almost lost along with this fact is that the Covenant of Jer. 31, called by most the "New Covenant", has not occurred yet! I know that sounds crazy but I assure you that when you study "hard" and quit listening to people speak of things that they don't know then you have a chance to learn something that is "true" instead of more religious falsehoods. These above two facts have monumental consequences for the New Testament Christian today who believes he is in Covenant with God through this "New" Covenant.

If it can be shown that Jeremiah's "New" Covenant has not started yet but is yet future, then the credibility of the New Testament's statement to that event is seriously jeopardized and suspect. Along with that one should then be concerned as to which Covenant does the New Testament Christian find his standing with God today. Is it possible that the New Testament Christian, because of the Gentile Church's current theological positions and teachings, which are inherited over the centuries from the Roman Church, is without a Covenant with God because he denies, refuses to accept, or is just ignorant of the Biblical ways God has given the "non-Jew" to be "grafted" into the Israel of God.

Answer for yourself: Has the Gentile Christian Church, because of the anti-Semitic theologies created by the early Church Fathers, been blinded for centuries to the only way whereby God calls the "non-Jew" into covenant with Him? What are the implications for a New Testament Believer to be without a Covenant with God and falsely believe in a Covenant that is of man's design instead of God's? These are serious questions, possibly the most serious one might address in his life. The answers are forthcoming.

Scholars have written volumes developing the history of the covenants, the meaning of the covenants, the relationships between the covenants, the terms of the covenants, the recipients of the covenants, and the limitations of the covenants. Jonathan Edwards said: "There is perhaps no part of divinity attended with so much intricacy, and wherein orthodox divines do so much differ as stating the precise agreement and difference between the two dispensations of Moses and Christ." In other words there is little agreement between Denominational Positions regarding the Covenants with God! The covenants have been sifted, analyzed, broken down and built up—examined and explicated—but when the question referred to by Jonathan Edwards comes up, no answer seems to come forth, and the world of Christian scholarship falls silent or breaks forth into a confused unintelligible chatter resulting in no constructive progress toward discovery of an answer. The question appears simple enough; but upon closer examination, it reveals aspects of complexity that defy explanation, simply because the investigator usually limits his investigation of the problem to the boundaries of Gentile Christianity and their "theologies". If he is to uncover an adequate answer to his inquiries into the Biblical covenants, he must delve deeper into the history of the Covenants and examine his subject from the Jewish point of view.

Imagine my amazement over the years of in-depth study into Judaism when looking for a "Jewish Jesus" following Seminary when I found contrary to the multiple theologies in Christianity concerning "covenants" that in the history of Judaism, one finds no controversy at all regarding the covenants, no debate whatever, no subject so plainly expressed, nor issue so clearly defined, as that of the covenants. Judaism deals directly with the origins of the covenants and their entire history is entwined with their development and intimately concerned with their determination.

WHAT IS A COVENANT? HOW LONG DO THEY LAST?

Let us begin at the beginning. Before discussing the development of the covenants, it is necessary to define clearly what a covenant is. All that a covenant means is wrapped up in the Hebrew primal root word "Berit". It means simply a contract, a will, a league, a testament, or a bond. It differs distinctly and significantly from a vow. A vow may involve the participation of one party or more. Unlike a Covenant, a vow may be broken by certain conditions of revocation.

Now the Christian needs to listen very carefully to the next statement. The Covenant differs further from the vow in that the Covenant always involves more than one person and is perpetually binding by oath. A Covenant cannot be revoked, altered, or annulled, nor can a present Covenant displace a former one. A latter Covenant can enhance, extend, or complement the former, but it can never abrogate it. If the terms of a latter Covenant should abrogate or interfere with a former Covenant, the terms of the earlier take precedence over the latter.

In a Covenant relationship, the individuals involved sacrifice the distinctiveness of their own individual identities, much like the members of a modern corporation. This Covenant entity, as used in the Jewish scripture, primarily relates to Covenants between God and man. In some two hundred thirty occurrences of the word, Berit, in the Jewish Bible, over two hundred refer to the God-man relationship.

In ancient times, everyone took all the Covenants very seriously unlike today. A person initiated his Covenant with a blood sacrifice, followed by a sworn oath pledging himself fully to his agreement. Such a Covenant was so binding that men engraved its terms upon stone or cuneiform tablets. Some have been found which were cast in brass plates. To break a Covenant sealed in blood was considered not only a sin but a crime worthy of death.

A Covenant had certain definite, distinctive characteristics—its terms always expressed explicitly. There are 3 things that we need to know about all Covenants: Covenants are:

- Either restrictive or nonrestrictive
- Either conditional or unconditional. In either case, it could not be both; that is, it could not be restrictive in some parts and nonrestrictive in others.
- A Covenant's terms could not be changed, spiritualized or applied to any conditions other than those plainly stated.

THERE EXISTS SEVEN MAJOR BIBLICAL COVENANTS MADE BETWEEN GOD AND MAN

In the Bible there were seven major Covenants made between God and man. In all of these Covenants, the Eternal One was the party of the first part. Four of these Covenants were restricted to Israel, except under particular specified instances. The other three major Covenants were universal and applicable to mankind as a whole; both Jew and "non-Jew". It is my firm belief that once you, more than likely a non-Jewish Christian, study for yourself these Covenants and how they yet relate to mankind, your understanding of how you are intended to relate to God will be illuminated and any corrections necessary on your part can be made. So we begin in earnest our serious study of Biblical Covenants.

#1 THE COVENANT OF THE GARDEN OF EDEN

The first Covenant was that of Gan Eden, or the Garden of Eden. Its terms are found in Genesis 1:28-30. This Covenant gave Adam, a non-Jew, the scepter of rulership over the entire earth, and restricted both man and animal by dietary laws to a vegetarian diet. Under this Covenant, Adam had title to the whole earth, which means that all real estate and chattel belonged to him. The restriction related to a single tree, called the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil, which stood in the middle of the garden. Except for this tree, the earth and all therein were Adam's.

According to the Jewish tradition, the very same day that Adam and Eve were created, Eve committed robbery. She took fruit from the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil and thereby brought death and exile to the human family. The fruit from that tree was the only thing on earth that she could have stolen. Everything else belonged to her and Adam.

In the eschatological hope of Judaism, the life in the world to come and the primary function of the Messiah will be to restore the whole creation to the conditions under the Edenic Covenant.

The Kabbalists teach:

Somewhere there is an Adam within each of us, in need of restoration—in exile from the Garden. The aim of the Kabbalah is to restore that divine man in the medium of the mortal man. We are the laboratory, we are the workers in that sphere and space. All this is to say that there is an intimate relationship between mortal man and his spiritual counterpart. The mystery of that relationship is to be found in the ten spheres of the Adam Kadmon [the primal divine man after whose image Adam was created]. If one can learn to connect the thread dangling free from the ten spheres with the fiber of his being—if one can discover the secret opening in the base of the skull—one may begin the work of the restoration.

In Judaism, and therefore, naturally in the Old Testament, there is no concept of heaven as there is in Christian eschatology. Nowhere is there a promise to Adam, to Noah, to Abraham, to Moses, or to any of the prophets of a "piece of pie in the sky in the sweet by and by." Jewish eschatology is totally lacking a heavenly inheritance. The inheritance of the Jew in the world to come is restricted to a real estate plot in the Middle East. It concerns restoration of the land to the people in the world to come as well as restoration of the land to its former state of productive abundance. Although the Jews do not believe that they will be the only people in the world to come, they do believe that every man who responds by faith to God in whatever Covenant relationship the Eternal One has revealed to him will have a part in the life in the world to come, or the Messianic Age.

Isaiah the prophet describes this life in the world to come and the return of the world to the condition of the Garden of Eden thusly: "And there shall come forth a rod out of the stem of Jesse, and a Branch shall grow out of his roots...and righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins, and faithfulness the girdle of his reins. The wolf also shall dwell with the lamb, and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together; and a little child shall lead them. And the cow and the bear shall feed; their young ones shall lie down together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. And the suckling child shall play on the hole of the asp, and the weaned child shall put his hand on the cockatrice' dent" (Isaiah 11:1, 5-8) As Isaiah states, when the Messiah comes, even the carnivorous animals, such as the lion, the wolf and the bear, shall return to their original states of being vegetarians.

The third chapter of Genesis records not only the robbery of the fruit of the Tree of Knowledge of Good and Evil but also the drastic consequences of that theft. When Eve jerked the fruit from that tree and Adam partook of it with her, they brought a curse upon the land, upon the serpent, and upon themselves. The ground was to bring forth thorns and thistles, the serpent was to crawl on his belly, and Adam and Eve were to live a life of strenuous toil. Moreover, Adam and Eve discovered that they were naked.

When God challenged their misconduct, Adam, as human nature is even today, passed the buck to Eve. Half blaming God, he said, "That woman you gave me, she...." When the Creator challenged the woman, her reply was, "The devil made me do it." The effects of the violation of this Covenant have continued to the present: man continues to pass the buck of responsibility to someone else.

#2 THE COVENANT WITH ADAM

In Genesis 3:14-19, the second Covenant was made between God and man: the Adamic Covenant. The first promise contained in the Adamic Covenant was that the seed of the woman would restore the earth to the Edenic conditions. Meanwhile, however, many consequences would be suffered by the human family. The grief of womanhood would be multiplied: "In sorrow thou shalt bring forth children...cursed is the ground for thy sake. . Thorns and thistles shall it bring forth to thee. . . in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it was thou taken: from dust thou art and to dust thou shalt return."

This is the Adamic Covenant under which the human family has continued to live for 5,759 years as of the Christian year 1999. Under the Adamic Covenant, however, the punishment levied upon man proved to be ineffective as a corrective factor. According to the Jewish tradition, 1,657 years passed from the Adamic Covenant to the Covenant of Noah. Between these two Covenants, mankind lived in a very highly advanced civilization. In spite of such advancement, man's moral nature and God-consciousness suffered such a great decadence that civilization was finally obliterated by the judgment of the flood of Noah.

#3 THE COVENANT WITH NOAH

After the Flood, the earth no longer appeared to be the same planet it had been before. Much of the animal life that had existed in those years was destroyed. Much of the plant kingdom also ceased to exist. The earth was unable to produce with the fertility and abundance that it had before. The geophysical features were so totally changed that the family of Noah found an entirely different world when they came out of the Ark.

Genesis 8:20 to 9:17 contains the setting and conditions of the Noahic Covenant. We must remember that Noah was a non-Jew. With this Covenant, man's relationship to the earth and the animal world was changed. For the first time, God made provision for man to eat flesh. According to Jewish interpretation, the Noahic Covenant is broken down into what is called the Seven Laws of Noah. As the Adamic Covenant did not replace the Edenic, but rather complemented it with greater provisions, so the Noahic Covenant neither replaced nor annulled the Edenic and the Adamic Covenants.

Basically, the Seven Laws of Noah prohibit idolatry, fornication and murder. Under their provisions, human government was ordained of God; and capital punishment, through human government, was so ordained. Dietary changes were also stipulated in the Seven Laws of Noah. While all flesh was now permissible for food, God made a very clear distinction between the clean and the unclean animals. Noah had been instructed to take the unclean animals by pairs into the Ark. The clean animals, however, were taken into the Ark by sevens.

Under the Seven Laws of Noah, cannibalism was forbidden. Even eating flesh from an animal before it was properly slain was also forbidden. This was to prohibit man from cutting off a muscle or limb of an animal and eating it, leaving the animal to live maimed.

The eating of blood was also prohibited. Under the Noahic Covenant, an animal had to be properly killed to be used for food. Any animal that was torn of beast, died of itself, or was found dead, could not be eaten.

The Noahic Covenant, like the Adamic, is universal in scope, and is applicable to all men. It is not specifically to Israel yet Moses will reiterate it when he gives Israel the Covenant of Moses. You can say that the Covenant of Moses and the Laws of Moses are built upon the Covenant and Laws of Noah. All 66 Laws in the Covenant of Noah are included in the Laws of Moses and the Covenant of Moses.

Now this is but a summary but we will in our studies investigate more in-depth the Covenant of Noah for it is the "non-Jews" Covenant given by God long before there were any Jewish people. That is something you need to think long and hard about since this is an Eternal Covenant and in effect yet today. Besides that is mentioned twice in the New Testament by James in the Jerusalem Church and called both "necessary" and that it "seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than these necessary things" (KJV). Well that was a great beginning so let us continue.

AS A CHRISTIAN DO YOU KNOW WHICH COVENANT YOUR UNDER? #2

Let us continue our study in the Covenants of HaShem and which ones have implications today for the non-Jewish believer.

#4 THE COVENANT WITH ABRAHAM

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that Abraham was a "non-Jew" and not a Jew?

Under the Noahic Covenant of human government, the decadence of humanity in turning to idolatry was much more rapid than it had been in the 1,656 years from Adam to the Flood. Three hundred sixty-one years after the Noahic Covenant, therefore, YHWH appeared to Abraham in the twelfth chapter of Genesis and established the fourth Covenant made with mankind, called the Abrahamic Covenant. This Covenant was restricted to a particular descendancy of Abraham through Isaac and Jacob. Understand that Abraham was a "non-Jew" but his offspring would bring into existence the Jewish people. This Abrahamic Covenant separated Israel from the other nations. The specifics of the Abrahamic Covenant, as given to Abraham and confirmed to Isaac and Jacob, can be found in Genesis 12:1-3; 13:14-18; 15:1-21; 17:4-8; 22:15-24; 26:1-5; and 28:10-15. This Covenant, too, has seven facets, or sections. It would be from Judah, Jacob's son, that the Jewish people would originate. Because of this fact it is best to understand that the Abrahamic Covenant was in reality a "Jewish" Covenant.

First, it had to do with a real estate arrangement, "a land that I will show thee." Second, "I will make of thee a great nation." Third, "I will bless thee." Fourth, "I will make thy name great." Fifth, "Thou shalt be a blessing;" sixth, "I will bless them that bless thee and curse them that curse thee;" and seventh, "In thee shall all the [Gentile] families of the earth be blessed" (or better understood as "bless themselves" by imitating the actions and faith of the Jewish people).

Answer for yourself: What should we have taken notice of especially in the above paragraph?

The seventh section, and only this section, contains specific, particular provision for the Gentiles. The first six provisions of the Abrahamic Covenant were exclusively to Israel and the Jewish people and only the last section of the Abrahamic Covenant involves the "non-Jews".

The Abrahamic Covenant has certain other definite characteristics. It is a Covenant of faith. "And Abraham believed God and it was counted to him for righteousness." A Jew's relationship to God is a vital relationship of faith based on the Abrahamic Covenant. When a Jew approaches God in prayer, he makes his petitions premised on that Covenant. The Jew never approaches God in the name of Moses because his standing before God is not premised upon the Mosaic Covenant. However, when the Jew prays, he opens his prayer with these words: "God, God of our Fathers, God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob.. "

The Abrahamic Covenant is a restricted Covenant. It alienates all other nations from the economy of Israel. It is an unconditional Covenant, containing the repetition of the oath of God, who swore by his own name, saying "I will ... I will ... I will ... I will ...." This unconditional Covenant is contingent upon God's faithfulness to Israel, not in Israel's faithfulness to God (thank goodness). Despite Israel's failure, the Holy One reassured the prophets, "Yet for my Holy Name's sake, and the sake of the Covenant that I made with thy fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, I will perform."

The Abrahamic Covenant, like all other covenants between the Eternal One and mankind, is an everlasting Covenant; it can never be terminated, can never be altered, or changed or revised. The only demand made upon the Jew by this Covenant is his commitment of faith in that Covenant relationship established with Abraham, Isaac and Jacob.

# 5 THE COVENANT WITH MOSES

Four hundred thirty years after the giving of the Abrahamic Covenant, Israel requested that God reveal to them His requirements of them so that they could exercise the faith and express the standing they had through the Abrahamic Covenant. Therefore, in the Jewish year 2448, God gave Israel the Torah on Mount Sinai. This Law of God is also called the Law of Moses, because Moses himself was personified and wrapped up in the words of that Torah. Now the next statement is critically important and it a challenge to Christian theology today. The Law, or Torah, given to Moses on Mount Sinai, has never been considered by the Jews as the premise of their relationship with God. Their relationship with God is entirely premised on the Abrahamic Covenant which is "unconditional" and "Eternal".

The five books of Torah, the Pentateuch, are Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy. Moses wrote all five books of the Torah; even the passages that refer to him, he wrote in the third person, for every word of it was dictated to him by God.

The way of the Torah teaches the Jew where he came from, where he is, and where he is going. It instructs him in every minute detail of his daily life and relationship to God. In this Torah are six hundred thirteen Commandments. Of these, two hundred forty-eight (248) are positive Commandments, instructing Israel what they must do, while three hundred sixty-five (365) are negative Commandments, telling Israel what they should not do. When properly understood these Laws and Commandments are 248 things that God is and does and 365 negative things that God is not and does not do. If we every want to "be Holy for I am Holy" then we better start to look at these Covenantal Laws, both in the Covenant of Noah and the Covenant of Moses, differently than the way they have been taught by mainline Christianity.

The Mosaic Covenant strongly emphasizes the distinction of the Jew as separate from all the other nations. While the Gentiles could eat all flesh, the Mosaic Covenant restricted the dietary practice of the Jew to only certain forms of flesh. What was clean to the Gentile was unclean to the Jew. He was instructed not to worship as or with the pagans, and was commanded not to dress or conform to the Gentile standards of conduct.

Time and space took on a special dimension of holiness for the Jew. The observance of the Sabbath day was uniquely designated to Israel alone. According to rabbinic interpretation, a Gentile who observes the Sabbath is worthy of death, because he is stealing a commandment that was given exclusively to Israel. But this is really foolishness based upon centuries of Gentile persecution of the Jews along with the "non-Jews" being lax with God's Laws and a bad influence upon the Jewish people who thought it better to keep such "unclean dogs" at arms length and building "artificial fences" to separate Jew and "non-Jew" seemed to be a good idea to many of them. Thus we find occasionally such admonitions and "fences" to separate and distance the Jew for the "non-Jew". All six hundred thirteen Commandments of the Jewish Law were explicitly given to Israel alone. The Jew did not obtain salvation or a standing with God as a result of keeping the Commandments of Torah, for his standing with God was already established by faith on the basis of the Abrahamic Covenant.

Answer for yourself: Every wondered why we even have a Christian outreach to the Jews since they are already in Covenant with God since their Covenant is "unconditional" and "Eternal"? Beats me!

My New Testament tell me it is us, the "non-Jew" is born outside the Covenants of God needing the "salvation of God this is of the Jews".

Eph 2:11-12 11 Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: (KJV)

The observance of the six hundred thirteen Commandments was the exercise of that "existing" faith and standing the Jew already had with God. He did not keep the Law in order to be a Jew; he kept the Law because he was a Jew. he did not keep the Law in order to "be saved"; he endeavored to keep the Law "because he was already saved". Such is love.

The giving of the Abrahamic Covenant separated Israel from the Gentile nations. The giving of the Mosaic Covenant intensified this separation between Israel and the Gentile nations. God now had "his Holy Nation and Royal Priesthood", the Israel of God. Every section of the Commandments given to Moses began with the restrictive phrase: "And the Eternal One spake unto Moses, saying, 'Speak unto the children of Israel and command them....'"

Answer for yourself: What have we learned so far?

The Edenic, Adamic, and Noahic covenants were universal and applied to all mankind. The Abrahamic Covenant and the Mosaic are exclusively to Israel.

Under the Abrahamic and Mosaic covenants, Israel was never commanded to convert the Gentiles to their faith or religious practices. On the contrary, they were commanded explicitly not to convert the Gentiles to Judaism. If a Gentile sincerely sought to follow this faith and practice, it was the responsibility of the rabbis to discourage such a decision unless it was proved totally sincere, intelligently made, and clearly understood on the part of the convert.

The Covenant of Moses given at Mount Sinai included both the Written Law and the Oral Law. They are inseparable, and the Oral is as binding as is the Written.

This Mosaic Covenant was totally a conditional Covenant. The people of Israel, in requesting this Covenant, said, "We will do it and we will hear it." They did not say, "We will hear it then we will do it." In this request, Israel committed themselves to obey unconditionally the words of Torah. By acknowledging obedience to the Law before they heard its terms, they implied that they did not sit in judgment as to whether or not they thought a Law was good or bad, whether it was reasonable or unreasonable, whether it was logical or illogical. "We will do and we will hear." Such is great faith.

This Covenant of Moses at Mount Sinai was the total embodiment of a conditional Covenant. "This do and thou shalt live...." "Honor thy father and thy mother—that thy days may be long in the land."

Such statements as these appear connected with almost all the Commandments. In Moses' closing address in Deuteronomy 28:58-62, we find the epitome of the essence in the Mosaic Covenant as a conditional Covenant:

If thou wilt not observe to do all the words of this Law that are written in this book that thou mayest fear this glorious and fearful name, THE LORD THY GOD; Then the Lord will make thy plagues wonderful, and the plagues of thy seed, even great plagues, and of long continuance, and sore sicknesses, and of long continuance. Moreover he will bring upon thee all the diseases of Egypt, which thou west afraid of; and they shall cleave unto thee. Also every sickness, and every plague, which is not written in the book of this Law, them will the Lord bring upon thee, until thou be destroyed. And ye shall be left few in number, whereas ye were as the stars of heaven for multitude; because thou wouldest not obey the voice of the Lord thy God.

A failure on the part of Israel to fulfill the words of Torah (613 Laws) did not affect or threaten their standing before God in the Abrahamic Covenant, for the former took precedence over the latter, and the latter could not jeopardize or abrogate the former. In other words if Israel failed to keep the Mosaic Covenant (keep the sacrifices in lieu of the absence of the Temple, they are not without a valid prior Covenant with God) and in danger of damnation! They only will forfeit Gods' blessings tied to the Land of Israel!

The Torah was given to Israel in the wilderness as a premise for their conduct when they would come into the land of Israel. All those Commandments related in the acknowledgment by the people were not initiated in the wilderness, and indeed could not be obeyed until they had come into the land. Therefore, throughout the Torah appears the phrase: "When thou comest into the land which the Lord thy God divest thee' then shalt thou observe...."

Actually, in the wilderness Israel was under such a special economy that they did not so much as practice circumcision. In Joshua 5:2-9 is the account of Joshua circumcising at Gilgal the male children who were born in the wilderness.

The Covenant of Moses was the testament of Moses. Like any other will or testament, it could not be effective until the death of the testator. "For your sakes," said Moses, "I cannot enter into this land." The necessity of the death of Moses was imperative before Israel could inaugurate the fulfilling of the Torah, "when thou comest into the land, which the Lord thy God divest thee."

The terms of that conditional Covenant focused on obedience, while the penalties for Israel in failing to obey the words of Torah were an expulsion from the land and a scattering among the Gentile nations. By so doing, Israel's relationship to the Abrahamic Covenant was not affected. Their privilege under the conditional Covenant of Moses demanded such a diaspora in penalty for failure to keep the Covenant. The Diaspora, however, did not terminate the Mosaic Covenant either. The Jew in the Diaspora was still obligated to fulfill ninety Commandments. In fact, the Jew today is obligated to fulfill all the words of the Torah except those whose fulfillment are contingent upon the function of Temple worship in the land.

#6 THE NEW COVENANT FOR ISRAEL...NO IT IS NOT WHAT YOU THINK...THE COVENANT OF MOUNT MOAB

Now its get "sticky". The Abrahamic Covenant had made provision for a blessing in the land. The Mosaic Covenant we saw was basically a "conditional title deed" to the Land and the blessings of God while in the Land. Now the next statement is crucial for our understanding of the Covenants. The Mosaic Covenant at Mount Sinai made no condition or promise for a regathering of Israel from the dispersion to which it had been sentenced by the Divine judge for failing to keep the Covenant of Moses. But God's love and mercy knows no end and God will show mercy to these scattered Jews and God would, after having regathered His scattered peoples who had become assimilated by intermarriage with the heathen and who had fallen from the truths that they once had a Covenant people, have to reveal His Torah, His Laws, and His Commandments to them all over again.

Answer for yourself: What should that say to us?

What we are speaking of here is not so much a "new" Covenant as a "RENEWED" Covenant.

The confusion comes in when reading the Hebrew texts in the English of our Christian Bibles.

Jer 31:31 31 Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will make a new Covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Does Jeremiah tell us in the above verse that God is going to make a "new" Covenant with the house of Israel which we read in our English Bibles? No, no, no, he does not!

It just so happens if you look up the word for "new" as used by Jeremiah in your Hebrew lexicons and dictionaries, then you see that the English translation of the Hebrew word has sadly changed the meaning of the text and what Jeremiah had to say by 180 degrees. We will find when examining the Hebrew is that God is given nobody "anything new"; rather He is reiterating the "same Covenant" given them before.

Answer for yourself: Knowing this then does it not bring into severe question statements like this in the Roman antisemitic New Testament?

Speaking of the Covenant of Moses the writer of Hebrew wants us to believe the following concerning the Covenant and Laws of Moses:

Heb 7:22 22 By so much was Jesus made a surety of a better testament. (KJV)

Heb 8:6 6 But now hath he obtained a more excellent ministry, by how much also he is the mediator of a better Covenant, which was established upon better promises. (KJV)

Heb 8:7 7 For if that first Covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second. (KJV)

Heb 8:13 13 In that he saith, A new Covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away. (KJV)

Heb 8:13 13 In that he saith, A new Covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: What did we just see? The writer of the book of Hebrews tells the reader that the Covenant of Moses, the Laws and Commandments of God, are "faulty, they are supposedly old and waxing away, that they are ready to vanish away, that they are decaying, etc." He also tells us that God gave a "better" Covenant to replace this Covenant and Laws of Noah. The problem is that we cannot find it in the Hebrew Scriptures and the Jewish people and their Rabbis cannot either. They they nothing about it other than the "purposefully mistranslated" word "new" of Jeremiah 31 which falsely gives the wrong idea of the Eternality of God's Covenants.

Notice if you will that we get mixed signals from this same writer. In another verse the problem does not seem to be with the Covenant but with the people who fail to observe it.

Heb 8:8 8 For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new Covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah: (KJV)

And then he contradicts everything he has just said in telling us what Jeremiah said; namely, that God will make a "new" Covenant with the House of Israel and in so doing He will write the Laws and Commandments of His Covenants in the hearts of His people by writing them on minds.

Heb 8:10 10 For this is the Covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people: (KJV)

Answer for yourself: What are we missing here?

What we don't know when reading these verses over and over when being indoctrinated to an "anti-Law" bias in our Christian Faith is that behind the word "new" which we find in Jeremiah is a word loaded with hidden meanings.

The word chosen by "holy men of old" such as Jeremiah in this verse for "new" is "renewed", "rebuilt" and "repaired" and NOT "new" as in "replaced and discarded".

The Strong's number for the word "new" is 2319. We begin with Brown-Drivers-Briggs Lexicon.

Let us look at Brown-Drivers-Briggs Hebrew Lexicon to see this for ourselves:

2319 chadash- new, a new thing, fresh

This definition is somewhat nondescript so we keep looking.

Now we look at Strong's Concordance:

2319 chadash (khaw-dawsh'); from 2318; new: KJV-- fresh, new thing.

This definition is again somewhat nondescript so we keep looking. But Strong's Concordance gives us the meaning of the "root word":

2318 chadash (khaw-dash'); a primitive root; to be new; causatively, to rebuild: KJV-- renew, repair.

Answer for yourself: When you repair something, lets say a toaster, then do you throw it away in the trash and buy a brand new sparking "new one" or do you keep the "same item" and "renew" it? It is pretty obvious to a "thinking believer" what Jeremiah is saying here but we have to look at the Hebrew to get the idea correctly concerning how God looks at His Covenants and Laws and Commandments! THEY ARE ETERNAL!

Now you should have a better understanding when reading Jeremiah 31 that God is doing nothing "new" at all; rather, He is continuing to do what He has done since the beginning. "I will put My Law in their inwards parts, and write it in their hearts" (Jer. 31:33). God is putting the Torah "again" into the hearts of these people who did not know it; that part of Israel which was to be regathered as referred to in the Covenant of Moab. Therefore, if the Torah were to have such a provision for a regathering of dispersed Israel so as not to abrogate the Abrahamic Covenant, a "new" Covenant, better understood as "renewed" would be required in the Torah.

Answer for yourself: Assuming that the writer of the Book of Hebrew knew the true meaning of the word "new" as used by Jeremiah which meant "repair, renew, rebuild" then is how can he say that God's Covenant of Moses and the Laws and Commandments of God which frame this Covenant (as well as the Covenant of Noah) are "faulty, they are supposedly old and waxing away, that they are ready to vanish away, that they are decaying, etc."

Answer for yourself: How can he have the nerve to tell us that God gave a "better" Covenant to replace this Covenant and Laws of Noah when clearly Jeremiah is saying that God is 'renewing the same Covenant where the Laws and Commandments are written again on the hearts of people'?"

Answer for yourself: And if the person writing Hebrew did not know the true meaning of the word "new" as used by Jeremiah what does that say about the Holy Spirit choosing an imbecile to supposedly write for Him a Divine Revelation or do we have an "anti-Judiac" agenda here by an emerging Gentile Church? Can we find this same "anti-Judaic" agenda in other places in the New Testament? We sure can. So maybe are such parts in the New Testament not from God at all and are "false gospels"?

There is such a "new" Covenant mentioned in the Torah. That "new" testament, or "new" Covenant, was made with Israel at Mount Moab immediately before the death of Moses and it not the "New Covenant" that the New Testament describes. Moses recorded the words of that Covenant in the twenty ninth and thirtieth chapters of Deuteronomy. This new Covenant is restricted to Israel and concerns the regathering of Israel from the nations in the last days. This is not a Covenant to be made with the non-Jew or the Gentile Christian Church not matter what they say, believe, or what some of the corrupted documents of the New Testament assert.

"These are the words of the Covenant, which the Eternal One commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, "beside" the Covenant which he made with them in Horeb [Sinai]." (Dent. 29:1)

With the giving of this Covenant at Mount Moab, providing for the regathering of Israel in the last days, the clause of the Abrahamic Covenant stating, "I will give thee a land," is reaffirmed in the last days. At the same time, the new "renewed" Covenant at Mount Moab in no way infringes upon the lengthy penalty of Israel scattered among the nations as demanded by the Sinaitic Covenant for their disobedience.

Jeremiah the prophet gave a great deal of attention to the regathering of Israel in the last days. In Jeremiah 31:8-11 are these words:

Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth, and with them the blind and the lame, the woman with child and her that travaileth with child together: a great company shall return thither. They shall come with weeping, and with supplication will I lead them: I will cause them to walk by the rivers of waters in a straight way, wherein they shall not stumble: for I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my firstborn. Hear the Word of the Eternal One. O ye "Gentile" nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd cloth his flock. For the Eternal One bath redeemed Jacob, and ransomed him from the hand of him that was stronger than he. Therefore shall they come and sing in the height of Zion....

Not only did Jeremiah predict the return of Israel from the Diaspora in fulfillment of the new or "renewed" Covenant, or new testament, that God made with Israel on Mount Moab, but he also predicted the revival of Hebrew as the spoken language of modern Israel: "This saith the Eternal One of hosts, the God of Israel; As yet they shall use this speech in the land of Judah and in the cities thereof, when I shall bring again their captivity...." (Jeremiah 31:23).

In the context of the New-Renewed Covenant of Mount Moab, Jeremiah's commentary in chapter thirty-one very specifically identifies the Moabite Covenant: "Behold the days come, saith the Eternal One, that I will make a New (RENEWED) Covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah. Not according to the Covenant [at Mount Sinai] that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt. Which Covenant they break...."

Answer for yourself: Then is it apparent to you that this "New/Re-Newed Covenant of Jeremiah 31:31" is the "New" Covenant of Moab, found in Deuteronomy 29-30 and not a supposed New Testament "new" Covenant that will do away with the Covenant of Moses; but rather a "renewing" of that "very same" Covenant of Laws and Commandments which God intends to write on the hearts of these "assimilated children of Israel" who had fallen away from their "Jewish Roots"?

Answer for yourself: What are the implications of this for the "non-Jew", the Christian, in light of the fact that within these very same Laws of Moses are to be found the Laws and Covenant of Noah given to all "non-Jews"? Should we any longer believe what we read in this Roman antisemitic New Testament when we see passages like "What then? shall we sin, because we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid" (Rom. 6:15) and "For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to every one that believeth" (Rom. 10: 4) (KJV)?

This "Re-Newed Covenant" of Jeremiah 31 is an unconditional Covenant. Equally important is the fact that this "Re-Newed Covenant" of Jeremiah 31 is a restricted one. It applies only to Israel (the northern kingdom) and Judah (the southern kingdom) and not to the Christian Church who prides themselves not being under these Laws and Commandments of God. This New Covenant which promises to restore dispersed Israel to their land is one Covenant for both Israel and Judah. As in the vision of the "two sticks" in Ezekiel 37, Israel and Judah would return united and be called Israel.

This New Covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah does not include the Gentiles who are not "grafted into Israel" and whom are not "partakers of the root and the fatness thereof". It is not the "New Testament in my blood shed for the sins of many [the Gentiles]," which Jesus is made to say at the Passover by the writer of the New Testament. The New/Re-Newed Covenant, or New Testament, of Mount Moab and Jeremiah 31:31, is exclusively for Israel and Judah. It has no relationship directly or indirectly to the collection of the twenty-seven books of the Christian scriptures called the New Testament. The Christian scripture, called the New Testament, was so named by the church fathers, not by the Apostles. Neither the Christian scripture, called the New Testament, nor the death of this Jesus, has any prophetic significance in the New Testament of Israel at Moab or Jeremiah 31:31! They are entirely different. The New Testament to Israel has no dimension to the Gentile Christian, and the New Testament to the Gentile Christian has no dimension to Israel.

BUT WHAT OF THE NEW TESTAMENT AND ITS REFERENCES TO THE "NEW" COVENANT?

There are, however, two direct references in the Christian's New Testament to Israel's New Testament of Moab and Jeremiah 31:31. One occurs in Romans 11 and the other in Hebrews 8. Both of these are in the context of the future restoration of National Israel as stated above. There is no instance in the Christian scripture where these or any other covenants are "spiritualized" and applied to the Gentile or the Christian Church. Such application of these "Jewish 'New & Re-Newed' Covenants to the Gentile Church is the work of monks and replacement theology which occurred over 1700 years ago and sadly continues today undetected by normative Christians and churchgoers.

The promise of the New Covenant of Moab and Jeremiah 31 is not only unconditional but it is eternal and nonretractable. In verses 35-40, that dimension of infinity or eternality is stated: "Thus saith the Eternal One, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, which divideth the sea when the waves thereof roar; The Eternal One of Hosts is his name: If these ordinances depart from before me, saith the Eternal One, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me forever. Thus saith the Eternal One; if heaven above can be measured and the foundations of the earth searched out beneath, [then] will also I cast off all the seed of Israel for all that they have done, saith the Eternal One."

Before we proceed with the other Covenants I think it best we devote more time to this "New/Renewed" Covenant since mainline Gentile Christianity look here for their standing and foundation for their Covenant with God and we just saw that Christian "anti-Law" and "anti-Judaic theology" excludes them from being "grafted" into Israel; the "Holy Nation" and "Royal Priesthood" of God who loves the Laws of God and His Commandments. That means Christians are looking to a Covenant that does not exist for their relationship with God and are in reality without a Covenant before God since rejecting the only Covenant given them by God; a Covenant of Laws and Commandments called the Laws and Covenant of Noah which is the foundation for the later Covenant and Laws of Moses.

It can be proved, and I will continue to do such, that this imaginary Covenant of Rome's making has no bearing on the Gentile Church then the only inescapable conclusion available is that the Christian Church exists without a Covenant with God!

HAS JEREMIAH'S NEW COVENANT STARTED YET OR IS CHRISTIANITY MISTAKEN?

I choose to start this article with the listing of the many references in the New Testament that refer to Jeremiah's "new covenant". Without a doubt such wording in the New Testament leads an unthinking reader to conclude that the "new covenant" has already started.

Answer for yourself: Has it really?

Don't underestimate the importance of such an issue...for if you are wrong in this belief, then your life, which is filled with conducts and behaviors based upon a erroneous religious belief system, will cause you to sin in many areas where you might think otherwise. It is with this knowledge that I am constrained to reach out to my fellow Gentile believers with the facts of my study and research into these areas as a warning to them.

It is our contention at Bet Emet Ministries that nothing could be further from the truth. Study of the Hebrew language alone concerning the Jeremiah 31 passage will confirm that there is no such thing as a "new" Covenant; only the same Covenant of Laws and Commandments which is to be "reiterated"... not replaced as Gentile Christianity has done for 1700 years. If you have been reading our articles in the past, then you are becoming well aware and familiar with the misquotations, mistranslations, and the abundant use of the Jewish Scriptures which are taken completely out of context by the writers of the New Testament. Hundreds of examples are for your inspection on our second web site. You hopefully are becoming critical readers of the New Testament whereby you are now more equipped to read the New Testament and spot the abundant errors within it which has contributed to you believing many lies over truth during your church life.

SO HAS THE "NEW" COVENANT STARTED YET?

My friends...either it has or it has not. Now let us examine the evidence used by most Christians for believing that the "new covenant" of Jeremiah has already started as presented in the New Testament. After reading this you can see for yourself how you have been misled and deceived in believing lies. Notice if you will such a "theological position" comes from acceptance at face value of the word "new" which we saw in an earlier article really means something quite differently in the Hebrew; instead of "new" it means "rebuild, renew, repair". Not knowing the deeper understanding of the Hebrew word we fall prey to leaning on our own understanding which by the way we are warned in the Bible to not do.

*Prov 3:5 5 Trust in the LORD with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding.
(KJV)*

A little study never hurt anyone; besides it is the highest form of worship taught in Judaism. The common Christian is to be excused for they have been taught wrong by those they entrust with their spiritual growth but the Christian scholars and teachers who teach this wrong are without defense.

- Matt 26:28 28 For this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins. (KJV)
- Mark 14:24 24 And he said unto them, This is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many. (KJV)
- Luke 22:20 20 Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament (covenant) in my blood, which is shed for you. (KJV)
- 1 Cor 11:25 25 After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. (KJV)
- 2 Cor 3:6 6 Who also hath made us able ministers of the new testament; not of the letter, but of the spirit: for the letter killeth, but the spirit giveth life. (KJV)
- Heb 7:22 22 By so much was Jesus made a surety of a better testament. (KJV)
- Heb 8:6 6 But now hath he obtained a more excellent ministry, by how much also he is the mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises. (KJV)
- Heb 8:7 7 For if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second. (KJV)
- Heb 8:8 8 For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah: (KJV)
- Heb 8:9 9 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; because they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord. (KJV)
- Heb 8:10 10 For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people: (KJV)
- Heb 8:13 13 In that he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old is ready to vanish away. (KJV)
- Heb 9:1 1 Then verily the first covenant had also ordinances of divine service, and a worldly sanctuary. (KJV)

We will look at Heb. 9:1 later since the word "covenant" is not in any Greek text but is added to our Bibles to change the import of what the writer was trying to say.

- Heb 9:15 15 And for this cause he is the mediator of the new testament, that by means of death, for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first testament, they which are called might receive the promise of eternal inheritance. (KJV)
- Heb 9:16 16 For where a testament is, there must also of necessity be the death of the testator. (KJV)
- Heb 9:17 17 For a testament is of force after men are dead: otherwise it is of no strength at all while the testator liveth. (KJV)
- Heb 9:18 18 Whereupon neither the first testament was dedicated without blood. (KJV)
- Heb 9:20 20 Saying, This is the blood of the testament which God hath enjoined unto you. (KJV)
- Heb 10:16 16 This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them; (KJV)
- Heb 10:29 29 Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace? (KJV)
- Heb 12:24 24 And to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than that of Abel. (KJV)
- Heb 13:20 20 Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, (KJV)

As if that was not proof enough, we have Paul explaining why the Jewish people do not accept this "new" theology:

- 2 Cor 3:14 14 But their minds were blinded: for until this day remaineth the same veil untaken away in the reading of the old testament; which veil is done away in Christ. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Now what did we just see that the New Testament affirms? It tell us that we have a "new" Covenant today and the word is both "used" and "taught" as meaning "replaced" by this New Testament writer. We are expected to believe, and do based on just the reading of the New Testament, that there exists a "New" Covenant as defined in the New Testament that has replaced the Covenant of Moses in the Old Testament. But we saw in an earlier article that such an idea is a total perversion of the Hebrew idea expressed by Jeremiah and that makes the statements by this New Testament writer outright lies and fraudulent statements intended to deceive and billions have fallen for this down through these last two thousand years.

So you can see that without a doubt the New Testament believes and testifies that the New Covenant has already begun. The problem is that they are speaking of a Covenant that does not exist and totally negates the only one that does exist which they went to great lengths to conceal from the people by such textual forgeries and outright adulterations of the religious texts.

THE ESSENE LINK WITH THE NEW TESTAMENT

Now for a real shake up as if the above is not enough. As many of you know we at Bet Emet have for years now tried to exposed the New Testament for what it really is; a Roman propagandist document filled with both truth and error. To the uninitiated reader one cannot pick the "meat from the bones". But with study you can.

According to Martin A. Larson, a recognized Essene scholar, on page 173 of The Essene Heritage, the "epistles now attributed to James, Peter, John, and Jude, stem directly from the Essene tradition." Also, he states, that "Jude quotes directly from Enoch; and that all express a bitter opposition to Pauline teachings, and emphasize the priority of works over faith as well as proclaim the imminent Parousia." Notice also that they all (these epistles) "declare that the New Covenant is a continuation of the Old."

Dear ones it is this same Essene "theology" we read in the New Testament. The New Testament is highly apocalyptic in itself and is highly "Essenic" in many places. The writes of the New Testament expressed a belief in the imminent apocalyptic eschaton in their life times; and along with that expected Divine intervention would be the establishment not of a "New" Covenant to replace the Old whereby the Laws of Moses and Noah would be replaced, but "Re-Newed" as Jeremiah had prophesied they would be. This must be your understanding which you read the New Testament and the passages quoted above. Failure to do so will guarantee you will misinterpret every passage your read. We simply cannot read the 21st century into these documents as if they were referring to our day and time. To complicate matter worse the redactors of the New Testament has added repeatedly "words" to the passages of the Greek manuscripts such as "testament" and "covenant" to brainwash you into thinking that the "Old" Covenant with its Laws and Commandments from Noah and Moses were obsolete. This is tampering with the Word of God as spoken by Jeremiah the prophet and this should outrage you...if you only knew. Lastly, Lawrence Schiffman, another recognized scholar in Dead Sea Scroll studies, states on page 81 of Reclaiming The Dead Sea Scrolls, that "the Essenes and the Dead Sea sect were physically decimated," referring to the Roman siege of 70 C.E., as well as stating that the "extreme apocalypticism of the Essenes and their theology has been discredited". Let me say that even at that his quote is an understatement of the truth!

Answer for yourself: What should this mean to me today as a typical Christian reading my New Testament?

Let me also inject into this study a very important fact of Biblical history. The Essenes, an apocalyptic monastic movement in the first century, often connected with the Dead Sea and the Dead Sea Scrolls, were known to be called "the new covenanters". These people considered themselves the fulfillment of the "New Covenant" of Jeremiah and they were WRONG! But unlike the Gentile Church of today, they never entertained the idea that the Laws of the Covenant were obsolete and would be replaced with "grace"; they just saw themselves as the only "true Israel" of their day. When reading the ideas in the New Testament, referring to a time period prior to 70 C.E., and the hopes of Divine intervention when God would write His Laws on the hearts of both Jew and non-Jew, we must recall that it was these who wrote not of a replacement Covenant as Christians mistakenly believe they have today, but a continuation of the "Old" Covenant as shown above. Gentile Christianity is simply wrong in this issue. The hopes of the Jewish people were that in the eschaton that they believed was imminent, that the Torah would go from the Temple into all the world and that their Gentile captors would become the righteous of the nations as God's Laws would be written upon the hearts of these people as well. The world would be at peace and Eden would be endemic. So when reading the New Testament with the hope of apocalyptic Divine intervention in the hearts and minds of these "new covenanters" we must realize that the events transpiring after 70 C.E. render their whole ideas about the "New Covenant" as expressed in their writings as being, as L. Schiffman states, "totally discredited"!

If one would just look outside his window it is evident that the Laws of God are not written in the hearts of the majority of people in the world. Just look at the headlines of your newspaper in the morning for confirmation. The horror of man's inhumanity to mankind is proof positive that this has not occurred yet; especially in the United States where we cannot build prisons fast enough for our Christian nation (THINK)!

Now let us continue to investigate for ourselves if the testimony of the New Testament can be trusted in light of other facts which state otherwise.

EXAMINING JEREMIAH FOR TRUTH...YOU WANT THE TRUTH DON'T YOU?

1. Jeremiah 31:31-34—Here are the relevant quotes: "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt, which my covenant they broke. . . But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts, and will be their God, and they shall be my people. And they shall no more teach every man his neighbor, saying, Know the Lord, for they shall all know me. . . for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more. "

From this, Christians deduce that God told Jeremiah that He would make a new set of Laws, a new contract with man. They even call the New Testament the "Bris Chadasha," which is the Hebrew for "a new covenant." I have got news for Messianic Christianity; using "Hebrew terminology" and playing and dancing to Jewish music in your congregations does not mean you have the "truth". It never ceases to amaze me that many Messianic Christians use the Hebrew for the New Testament "Bris Chadasha" in their terminology never understanding what the Covenant stipulations for such a Covenant as stated by Jeremiah truly are; especially in light of their contradiction of these Covenant stipulations in their life-style. Such irony is literally blasphemy of the Name of the Lord and constitutes profanation of His Name. For that reason I cannot and do not recommend Messianic Christianity to anyone. This verse, as taken from Jeremiah, is what ostensibly legitimized the text and the concepts of the New Testament, and therefore we will begin our discussion with this passage. Understand this, if you look to Jeremiah for your authority for the "New Covenant" then you must be willing to accept and submit to all that Jeremiah states about such a Covenant. To do otherwise is a lie to the truth of Jeremiah and a deception to your own integrity as a child of God who professes to love HaShem.

IN SPITE OF WHAT THE NEW TESTAMENT SAYS.....DID YOU KNOW THAT THERE ARE PROBLEMS WITH THE CHRISTIAN INTERPRETATION THAT A NEW COVENANT HAS BEGUN?

The failure of the typical Christian to recognize the multiple forgeries within the New Testament is primarily due to their failure to know their own Old Testament Hebrew Scriptures. If the typical Christian was not a "New Testament" Christian so much but was an "Old Testament" Christian, then when reading the New Testament they would be better equipped to spot the hundreds of purposeful misquotations or the verses removed out of their original context by skillful Gentiles who were writing this document to fulfill their own religious anti-Law agenda over 1800 years ago. And make no mistake about it, when I say the Jewish and Hebrew Scriptures I mean the Jewish Tanakh, the Stone Edition Tanakh or the JPS Tanakh, and not the equally forged and corrupted Christian mistranslations of the Tanakh as contained in the Christian Bibles or other Messianic Christian bibles like the Jewish New Testament commentary by Stern. I really dislike saying "Old" in referencing the Jewish Scriptures, but for the sake of recognition I will call the Holy Hebrew Scriptures by this name since most recognize the title.

If we begin with the Jeremiah quote we find in chapter 31 verse 34 the first problem for the Christian to deal with if he wants to believe this "New Covenant" has already begun. Verse 34 states: And they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the LORD: for they shall all know Me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the LORD...

Answer for yourself: Did you catch that?

If the birth of the Christian religion really did introduce the new covenant, then there should no longer be any need for anyone to teach the word of God, "for they shall all know Me." Since, as everyone with eyes can see, the whole world does not yet recognize God, and the Christians are still trying to teach religion to the world, as are others, it is quite clear that the verse, "they shall teach no more every man, saying, Know the Lord" does not yet apply. In other words, this "new" Covenant of Jeremiah has not yet taken place yet since mankind, for the most part, lives a "torahless" life.

No matter what another document might say, even the New Testament or its supposed apostolic writers, such testimony contradicts the prophet Jeremiah and is totally invalid. The New Testament is supposed to be the climax of Biblical Judaism not the repudiation of it. If the New Testament contradicts the Old Testament then there is no truth in it. For the life of me I cannot understand how a document so full of theological holes is held to be a higher truth than the Bible Jews like this Jesus used (Tanakh) or the Prophets the Jewish people quoted. The Jewish nation did not have a problem with Jeremiah, but the clever writers and redactors of the New Testament before the canonization of the New Testament so altered the words of the Old Testament and literally put into the mouth of this Jesus "sayings" which were totally foreign to what a real Jew in the first century both believed and professed. You need to be aware of this! Comparison of New Testament manuscripts reveal such things if you would only look. But you don't know of such because of your lack of study in these areas which is reinforced by a church more concerned about "preaching" than "teaching". I bring you the news that these things have happened and challenge your study in these areas to see these things for yourself.

If you take the context of Jeremiah 31 where the "first" mention of this "New Covenant" is mentioned, and compare it to the experience of those who are professing that the "New Covenant" has already started, and started with the New Testament's depiction of the death of Jesus, then it is quite contradictory for the Christians to spend millions of dollars in their attempt to convert the world to Christianity, and to then claim that we already live under the terms of the new covenant. The evangelism of the Christian Church absolute invalidates their stance that a New Covenant has already begun. This is something few have ever considered. No, I am not against the world-wide witness to truth by the church, but such witness to Jeremiah's truth only testifies that Jeremiah is right and that the New Covenant promised by God has not begun yet. To say otherwise is again to wrestle the Jewish Scriptures to the destruction of truth. Christianity has got the cart before the horse again, and is totally wrong in this regard.

BUT CHRISTIANITY HAS AN ANSWER TO SUCH A PROBLEM

However, the Christians claim that they have an answer to this problem. They say that verse 34 ("And they shall teach no more. . .") refers to the second coming of Jesus. Verse 34, they say, will be fulfilled when Jesus returns once again to visit mankind.

Since we will have to do it eventually, this is an opportune place to thoroughly analyze the doctrine of the second coming. Since space is at a premium, let me encourage all readers to e-mail for the articles on the "second coming" and the creation of such a doctrine by the early church to try to explain away the lack of Jesus coming again before 70 C.E. as well as 135 C.E. as he said he would and as the majority of the people hoped for and expected according to the New Testament record. Necessity is the mother of invention. You will discover that whenever any really strong question, such as the one above, is asked, the standard answer is that it refers to the second coming. It therefore becomes extremely important to ascertain the validity of this claim. The success of the Christian claim or its failure rests to a very large extent on the theory of the second coming.

First of all, the Christian explanation above that verses from Jeremiah, verses 31, 32, and 33 refer to the time of around 29 A. D., and verse 34 applies 2,000 or more years later seems very forced, if not absurd. There is no indication whatsoever that this interpretation was intended. It is clearly an answer born of desperation by those having to explain the failure of fulfillment of Messianic predictions by Jesus and others as written in the New Testament.

In addition, there is a major historical dilemma which seems to explain why the doctrine of the second coming was invented. H.M. Waddams, who was the Residentiary Canon of Canterbury Cathedral in 1968, wrote a book explaining why it took so many years for the Church to get organized into a formal, organized group. His answer is that even though verses such as Matthew 24:34 may mean that Jesus is referring to a future generation (i.e., substitute "that" for "this," which of course is very forced) nonetheless most of the early Christians thought that the simple interpretation was correct. It corroborated the impressions that they had of the message of Jesus, and so they thought that Jesus would return within their own lifetime. After all, Jesus did say, in Matthew 16:28, "Verily I say unto you, there be some standing here which shall not taste of death, till they see the son of man coming in his kingdom." However, after many years went by, and the generation that lived in Jesus's generation had all died, it became rather apparent that the expected Jewish Messiah, or this Jesus, would not appear or reappear in the near future. In the absence of Jesus's return, the doctrine of the "immanent return in that generation" was therefore changed so that his reappearance was not necessarily going to be in the near future. It is sad to say but my experience in my study testifies that much of the Christian religion is merely a reaction to beliefs, customs, and unexpected developments that were accepted by or occurred to the people that lived near the early Christians. For example, many Christian holidays are revisions of early Ancient spiritual days to which a "reinterpretation" has been applied.

Thus, the doctrine of the second coming most likely arose out of a historical dilemma, and not because of the Christian claim that there is a theological dilemma which justified it.

OTHER PROBLEMS WITH THE CHRISTIAN VIEW THAT THE NEW COVENANT HAS ALREADY STARTED

Matthew 24 discusses the end of the world, and then, in verse 34, after describing all sorts of unusual prophecies, Jesus says, "Verily I say unto you, 'This' generation shall not pass, till all these things be fulfilled."

Answer for yourself: What is the key issue in the above verse?

Notice if you will the text says "THIS" and not "THAT"! The natural reading of that sentence is that the generation to whom Jesus was talking to would not pass. That is what "this generation" seems to mean—this very generation that Jesus lived among. However, the events that Jesus mentions did not occur during that generation. Look at history. In order to bolster their claims that a New Covenant had already begun Gentile Christians would later therefore claim that Jesus meant that when the prophecies begin to be fulfilled, then the generation that begins to see those events shall not pass away until they are all fulfilled. Thus, according to Christian theology, the sentence really should read, "that generation shall not pass away," which is why the Christian interpretation is forced, and was not really accepted at first. Now a new millennium has begun some 5 years ago and no Jesus on the scene. In Biblical years, a generation has come and gone since Israel became a nation in 1948. I guess it is time for Hal Lindsey to write a new book to explain away what he already has written once again that was in error. A man can make a million dollars rewriting his prophecy books. I guess I should have done that.

Again necessity is the mother of invention. Either Jesus meant what he is reported to have said (speaking to "that" generation) or else he lied. I choose not to believe that this Jewish Jesus is a liar, but the writers who put such things in his mouth. But if you will be honest the only other rational understanding is the creation of such a doctrine; and it was this new doctrine which was put into the mouth of Jesus by the early church in order to give validity to their replacement doctrines which literally are "new". But this is a far cry from a "New Covenant". Again understand when confronted with the misapplication of the Jeremiah 31 passage in order to give validity to this new doctrine which opposed Biblical Judaism, it was necessary to create a second coming and postpone it in order to allow validity for this unique Christian interpretation of the beginning of a "New Covenant". Some of the earlier followers of Jesus, both the Essenes as well as the Gentile followers who were influenced by Paul, needed to justify their religious stances which conflicted with the Torah, Moses, and the Prophets, and give validity and prophetic authority to their contradicting positions by incorrectly quoting Prophetic Jewish passages completely out of context. This was done by misapplication of Jewish Scriptures which were used completely out of context as I am showing you on the second article and other of our websites as well as adding words in the New Testament to passages such as "testament" and "covenant". If you were not quite well familiar with the Jewish Old Testament (Tanakh) then it would very easy to read a passage in the New Testament and feel it sounded "right" but in reality was completely wrong since it can be shown to have purposefully misquoted, mistranslated, and misused the Jewish and Hebrew Scripture. As you can see competence in the Jewish Old Testament and the Hebrew Scriptures, as taken from the Tanakh, is a required necessity for correctly understanding the New Testament for what it really is let alone the truths of God intended for you and me.

But we are not through yet. There are other problems.

WHICH MESSIAH ARE WE TO EXPECT?

Let us now turn to the supposed theological dilemma. There are verses which indicate that the Messiah will appear in a weak and inglorious fashion, such as Zechariah 9:9, where the Messiah is described coming into Jerusalem "lowly, and riding on a donkey." There are, on the other hand, other verses which indicate that he will appear in a mighty, glorious, and ruling fashion, such as Daniel 7:13 and 14, which describe the Messiah coming in on clouds, and "there was given him dominion, and glory, and kingdom. . ." etc. These two verses seem to be the source of the contradiction, and the Christians claim that the Jewish answer is very poor. Let us therefore compare the Jewish with the Christian answer.

The Christians quote two basic Jewish answers, and, in fact, I have not found any more than those two. One answer, mentioned by the Ibn Ezra on Zechariah 9:9, is that Zechariah refers to the Messiah that will be from the house of Joseph (who according to Jewish tradition, will introduce the Messianic Age) and Daniel refers to the Messiah from the house of David. Since the first one, the Messiah of Joseph, will be killed, according to the Talmud, as they explain Zechariah 12:10 (see Talmud Succah 52a), it makes sense to say that both verses of Zechariah refer to the same person. Since his end will be in death, his beginning will be lowly and meek. The other answer is given by the Talmud in Sanhedrin 98a. If the Jews are worthy (i.e., righteous), then the verses of Daniel will apply; if they are not worthy, then the verse of Zechariah 9:9 will apply.

Let us now look at the Christian answer. As you probably have already guessed, Zechariah 9:9 refers, according to Christian theology, to the first coming of Jesus, as does Zechariah 12:10; whereas Daniel 7:13 and 14 refer, again to Christian theology, to the second coming of Jesus. Necessity is the mother of invention once more.

There are, however, some very major difficulties with Christianity's answer concerning the two comings of Messiah. First, if you look at Zechariah 12:10, 11, 12, 13, and 14, it becomes extremely obvious that it does "not" refer to Jesus, because it says that "I will pour upon the house of David and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and supplications, and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced (Christians claim that this refers to Jesus, who was stabbed) and they shall mourn for him, as one mourns for his only son (which Christians again point to Jesus, the supposed son of God). . . In that day shall there be a great mourning in Jerusalem. . .and the land shall mourn, every family apart. . . all the families that remain. . . "

Answer for yourself: There is a big, big problem with this verse? Do you know what it is?

But Zechariah never said this! The Christian Old Testament and the Christian New Testament quote of it is a LIE! God said we are not to take away or add to His Word...remember? Well someone did! Let us see.

First of all the above quote as taken from a Christian Bible is a PURPOSEFUL gross mistranslation of Zech. 12:10-14 from the Hebrew Tanakh.

Zech 12:10 10 And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplications: and they shall look upon me whom they have pierced, and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his firstborn. (KJV)

Now contrast the above misquote when compared with the Hebrew Scriptures as taken from the 1912 Tanakh:

10 And I will pour upon the house of David, and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of supplication; and they shall look unto Me because they have thrust him through; and they shall mourn for him, as one mourneth for his only son, and shall be in bitterness for him, as one that is in bitterness for his first-born.

First of all there are only two parties involved in the Christian verse translated from Zechariah 12:10 and 3 persons involved in the verse taken from the Hebrew Scriptures. The Christian Bible rends it completely different from what the Prophet Zechariah intended. Space does not permit a full disclosure on such a mistranslation in this article so request it. Let me say in passing the Christian translation concerns only two parties, the Jews looking upon the one pierced and the Hebrew texts teaches us that the Jewish people are looking toward God concerning their brothers and sisters killed in this battle and they are mourning their dead. The Hebrew texts do not have "God" pierced or killed the way the Christian texts report. Again a false and purposeful mistranslation to help substantiate the idea of God dying for the sin of mankind in the person of this Jesus.

Answer for yourself: For a Christian who else but Jesus can be the subject of the verse in the Christian Bible? But not so in the Hebrew and if the Christian Bible had correctly translated Zech. 12:10 then neither would it as well.

But the Hebrew concerns 3 parties; the Jews looking to God concerning those of their own who were pierced and killed in the end-time battle with the Gentile powers of the world. Let us not forget that our Christian Bibles need to be accurate translations and not forgeries to make self-fulfilling prophecies. I challenge anyone to get a copy of the Jewish Hebrew Scriptures and prove me wrong on this! It simply cannot be done. The Christian New Testament and the quotes in it from the Christian Old Testament are not faithful translations of the Hebrew Scriptures from which they were to come.

Answer for yourself: What should this teach us? Well once you see this for yourself then you begin to see that our Christian "beliefs" are terribly wrong in many, many areas of our faith. You can lay this at the feet of Rome and their antisemitism and "anti-Judaic" dogmas and doctrines. Read Constantine's Easter letter to see how it all began.

If an accurate translation is not important to you, then there is no hope for you so quit reading our articles. But if you want to know the truth continue on. Understand that is such errors as this, when rehearsed and by which you and I have been indoctrinated our whole lives in the Christian Church leads you to false beliefs, sin, and literally idolatry.

Now for the sake of proving my point I will assume that the Christian translation is correct. For after all, you would most likely never had known of this until you read my article. According to the Christian mistranslation we still have a very big question that comes to mind.

Answer for yourself: If this refers to the first coming of Jesus, then what was the spirit of grace and supplication?

Answer for yourself: Where in Biblical history do we find such a spirit of grace and supplication being poured out upon the Jewish people in the wake of Jesus's death?

It never seems to have occurred! In addition, there certainly was no great mourning in Jerusalem and throughout the land by all of the Jewish families after the death of Jesus. On the contrary, since many Jews, according to the Gospels and the New Testament, encouraged the crucifixion, if anything there was a great rejoicing, rather than mourning.

Answer for yourself: Does not the Gospel of John say that Jesus came unto his own people and they rejected him? Does not the New Testament imply that the Jewish people wanted Barrabas instead of Jesus?

Thus, without any doubt, Zechariah 12:10 does not refer to Jesus because instead of grace being poured upon the Jewish people after his death, only destruction and Roman anti-Semitism was seen. Look at the subsequent history of the Jewish people and then tell me about their "prosperity" and "grace" came in the wake of the Roman war to Israel.

WHEN WAS JESUS RECOGNIZED AND ANOINTED KING OF ISRAEL BY THE PEOPLE?

Another problem is seen in the Zechariah 9:9 passage; it clearly also does not refer to Jesus: "Rejoice greatly, O daughter of Zion. . . behold your King is coming to you, he is just and having salvation; lowly, and riding on a donkey. . .and he shall speak peace unto the heathen, and dominion shall be from sea to sea, and from the river to the ends of the earth. . ." First of all, Jesus was not the King of the Jews, even if it is true that such a label was placed over his head by the Romans who crucified Jesus. According to Matthew 27:1, all of the chief priests and elders of the people wanted to kill Jesus, and the multitude (27:20) felt the same way about Jesus, according to the --- New Testament. Thus, if Matthew is correct, the Jews did not feel that Jesus was their king. If Matthew is not correct, then the New Testament is false, and the theory of the second coming and the entire Christian religion is also false. Even Josephus, who wrote his history very shortly after Jesus was supposed to have been crucified, barely makes mention of Jesus and modern scholarship teaches us today that both short references to him are later Christian interpolations and forgeries of Josephus' writings by the Christians trying to provide some historical validity to the existence of this Jesus as a historical person. Such is not to be expected if Jesus was a "King" or if he actually lived in the time declared for him in this New Testament. In Josephus' Antiquities of the Jews, Book XVIII, III, 3, there is one small, lonely paragraph about Jesus, and even that does not seem to belong there. That is why many scholars, even Christian, consider this passage in Josephus to be an interpolation (forgery) by some Christian, at a later date. In the Antiquities, Book XX, IX, 1, Josephus does mention that "the brother of Jesus, who was called Christ, whose name was James" was accused of breaking the law; this is a very meager comment to make regarding a "King" of Israel. If you desire to read more about this I suggest H.M. Waddams, The Struggle for Christian Unity, Walker & Co., PLY., 1968 p. 10. Also let me recommend Emil Schurer, A History of the Jewish People in the Time of Jesus, New York, 1961, page 211. You might also want to read The Quest for the Historical Jesus by Albert Schweitzer and the foreword by Wm. LaSor to Whiston's translation of Josephus.

Thus, the New Testament's claim regarding the existence and kingship of Jesus seems to be contradicted by itself as well as by other sources.

WHEN DID JESUS PREACH TO GENTILES?

In addition, Jesus did not "speak peace to the heathens." If you look at the end of Acts 10 and the beginning of Acts 11, it is clear that the apostles themselves were shocked that Peter preached to the Gentiles. Now, this makes sense only if they were taught this by Jesus himself. Apparently, Jesus made it quite clear that the message was to go to the Jews only. In fact, Paul said this explicitly in Acts 13:46. (See also Matthew 14:24.) So it is clear that Jesus himself never preached to the Gentiles, which therefore excludes Jesus from being the subject of Zechariah 9:10.

WHEN DID CHRISTIANITY BECOME THE WORLD'S MAJORITY RELIGION?

Lastly, the subject of the prophecy of Zechariah would have "dominion from sea to sea, to the ends of the earth." This, of course was not true then, nor is it true now. At last census, Christianity boasts only 1/3 of the world's population and this a far cry from "dominion from sea to sea". The only possible answer the Christians could give is to say that Zechariah 9:9 refers to the first coming, and 9:10 refers to the second, but this is so obviously forced that it need not be discussed. In addition, it makes the entire proof of the second coming fall due to circular reasoning.

It is therefore quite clear that the Christian answer to the apparent contradiction between Zechariah and Daniel cannot be true. I stress this because you will find it difficult to believe that they could have accepted it in the first place. If the Christian answer is clearly untrue, then, consequently, the doctrine of the "second coming" must similarly be considered to be untrue. It is simply an answer born of desperation due to the inability to answer the strong questions against Christian Biblical interpretations. Understand that I personally believe in the coming of a Messiah but reject the traditional "second" coming teachings of Gentile Christianity.

Thus, the Christian answer to Jeremiah 31, which is what started this entire discussion, must also be rejected. The new covenant has not occurred yet, and verse 34 does not refer to a "second coming."

WHAT NEW LAWS...OR REAFFIRMATION OF OLD LAWS?

In addition, the Christian approach to Jeremiah 31 rests upon one premise, and that premise must be examined. The Christian premise is that a "bris," a covenant, would include a new set of Laws. However, if you look throughout the Old Testament, you will find that "bris" does not mean a set of Laws, but rather, a creation of a bond, a creation of a closer relationship. Thus, the Christian interpretation, which justifies a new set of Laws (Christians do not keep kosher, observe the Sabbath, tithe correctly, or observe Biblical Festivals like Passover and Yom Kippur, etc.), is built on a false premise in the first place. One only need look at Genesis 9:12; God is not commanding the animals; He is creating a relationship with them. Again look at Genesis 15: 18; there is no set of Laws being commanded to Abraham or changed. Again if one only look at Deut. 7:2 God is telling His Jewish people to not create a close relationship with the pagans who lived near them. If we look to Jeremiah himself, in 22:9 we see how Israel broke their close relationship with God and worshipped other Gods instead. If it meant, because they broke the Laws, then why specify that they also worshipped other Gods? It would be as if one would say that not only did you murder, but you also robbed! Look at these verses and you will see that a "brie"—a covenant, never refers to a set of Laws, and so most Christians are really misinterpreting this issue.

Before we move on to another "proof," there is another important point to be made. It seems clear from the entire Torah that something essential is missing, because if you carefully examine it, it is not very precise at all. For example, look at the Ten Commandments in Exodus, chapter 20. It says that one should not do any work on the Sabbath—but it does not define work, and nowhere in the Torah does it explicitly define what constitutes "work."

Answer for yourself: How then does one know how to obey this law? It says "honor your father and mother"—but how does one do that?

Answer for yourself: Must a person obey his parents' wishes that he marry someone who he hates but his parents like?

Answer for yourself: Must he or she reject a job that his or her parents dislike but he or she desires it?

Answer for yourself: Must a child stand up every time a parent walks into the room?

You see, there is no real guideline here. If you say, use common sense, that does not help. Many people have a different feeling for what is "common" sense, and therefore you cannot really know if your conclusion is, in fact, the will of God. It does not make sense to claim that God commanded such vague and obscure guidelines. Even the next few Laws are unclear. "Thou shall not murder".

Answer for yourself: How do you define murder?

Answer for yourself: If the state allows a type of killing, such as ancient Greece allowing defective children to be left to die on a mountain, is that no longer murder?

Answer for yourself: Is it murder to kill an unborn child, or is it murder only if the child is born? Should 10 seconds determine if it is permissible to kill a child within a mother's birth canal or not to kill it once it exits?

This analysis can be done with virtually every law in the Torah, and so one is faced with the following choice: either God commanded obscure guidelines (and that does not seem quite God-like, since even we mortals are sure to give very precise commands to our own children), or else He defined each law, but did not put it down on paper. Jewish tradition says that the second choice is, in fact, what happened. God defined each law, and taught his definition to Noah and Moses, who in turn taught the rest of world and the Jews. This oral definition of the Torah (written law) became known as the Oral Law. In Deuteronomy 17:8-13, the Jews were also commanded that if a doubt were to arise in any area of Jewish Law, they should go to the Sanhedrin, the high court, and what the Sanhedrin interprets the law to be, will become, in fact, the will of God. (That is how the Oral Law understands those verses.

This is actually, historically, how the Jews functioned in classical times. Even the New Testament agrees that that is how the Jewish society was run; i.e., under the Sanhedrin. So now we have a basic question which is extremely basic and crucial.

Answer for yourself: If, as history and the New Testament agree, the vast majority of Jews, and the Sanhedrin, rejected Jesus as the real Messiah due to failure to fulfill necessary Old Testament prophecies, and the Sanhedrin thought that Jesus did not fit the qualifications for being a bona-fide Messiah, according to its interpretation of their own Hebrew Scriptures and Bible, then should we follow the opinion of the Sanhedrin?

This is merely a matter of interpreting Jeremiah 31 or Isaiah 53, etc., and when it comes to Biblical interpretation, we are commanded by God to follow the Sanhedrin. Once your study of the New Testament reveals to you “fulfilled” New Testament prophecies are nothing more than purposeful mistranslations, misquotations, and misapplication of Jewish Scriptures wrestled out of context to create “fulfilled contexts” will you then see for yourself why the Jews yet wait for their Messiah. I have seen this for myself and no longer can say definitely that Jesus “was” the Messiah. This person named Jesus in the New Testament simply did not fulfill the necessary prophecies according to the Jewish and Hebrew Scriptures. Fulfillment of “misquotations” and “mistranslation” does not make for a Messiah! If you continue your study you will see this and our web sites details these things for all to see.

Both the Sanhedrin as well as the majority of Jews who lived at the time of Jesus rejected him, according to Paul in Acts 13:46, and they rejected the Christian interpretations of the Bible. Without serious study you will never see these things for yourself because the “flawed” document you carry, the New Testament, only rehearses error over and over.

Answer for yourself: How, then, is any Jew permitted to accept Christian interpretation today? He simply cannot.

Answer for yourself: How, then, is any non-Jew permitted to accept Christian interpretation today? He should not as well but cannot without serious study to prove to himself the deceptions of what I speak.

Answer for yourself: Could a person also accept Christian interpretations of how to honor one's parents? Not if he knew the Hebrew interpretation.

Answer for yourself: Would it also be permitted to accept the Christian interpretation of "do not murder?" Again, not if he knew the Jewish interpretation as well as the Rabbis who consider failure to feed the poor “murder” as well. This brings into question the proper use of the tithes by the Christian Church where few is any obey God correctly in His Tithe. That means we as Tithing Christians are guilty of murder according to the Rabbinical exegesis of the Hebrew Scriptures. It is time to study and repent dear Church!

Always remember that the Church initiated the Crusades, during which thousands of Jews were killed in the name of Jesus. In addition, remember that the Church was against the shedding of blood because of the command, "Thou shalt not murder." Therefore, during the Inquisition, the Church killed thousands of Jews who had been forced to convert by burning them, sometimes alive, so that no blood would be spilled! The Christian interpretation was that it was wrong to spill or shed blood, but strangling or burning was permitted. That is one of the reasons why they burned people at the stake. It is time to study and repent dear Church!

Answer for yourself: Thus, that is the choice—who is to interpret the Bible, and that is the question—why did almost all of the Jews reject Jesus as the Messiah and the Christian interpretations of the Bible as well? For the same reasons you now see concerning the “New Covenant” and its unfaithful translation of the Hebrew Scriptures. Except for a small fringe movement within Judaism who considered themselves the fulfillment of the “New Covenant”, the Jews in mass knew better. The world had not changed. The Essenes and their apocalyptic theology was totally discredited! Their theology lives on in the New Testament and that is a shame.

Answer for yourself: Should this Essene theology in the New Testament be totally discredited as well?

You should be getting the answer to that by now.

One of the reasons for your agreement is that you are coming to see that many of the Christian interpretations of the Bible are forced, if not ludicrous, but you can decide that for yourself, so continue to read. Over time Bet Emet Ministries will analyze many more interpretations and translations from the New Testament which are not only taken out of context, but distorted on purpose. The Jews never had the concept of a second coming for their Messiah, and since it was the Jews themselves who first taught the notion of a Messiah, via the Jewish prophets, it seems quite reasonable to respect their opinion more than anyone else's. It was the Gentile Christians who were changing the status quo, and so they ought to have very substantial reasons for doing so as shared in this article. As you will see, their reasons and proofs are not substantial at all, and they therefore have yet to justify their change of the status quo. It is time someone told you the truth. But few have studied deeply enough to find such mistakes. To God be the glory for showing His remnant the truth. Repentance from a false religious belief system is in order.

SO IF WE ARE NOT UNDER A NEW COVENANT YET...WHAT DOES IT MEAN TO ME A TYPICAL CHRISTIAN?

The answer to the above question I hope will startle you. If, as I have labored to show you, that there is not yet this "New Covenant," then we are under the "Old Covenant". To believe you are under a "non-existent" New Covenant and reject the Old Covenant (containing the covenants of Noah and Moses which contained the stipulations of maintaining good standing within them), and the Laws of Noah within it which were given to the non-Jews of the world, means you are standing out side the Covenant with God! You as a Christian have no Covenant with God at all since you reject the only one given to you by God. Thanks to the Romanized Paul or pro-Pauline author of the Book of Hebrews who deceives us in this regard.

For a Jew they are responsible for 613 Commands or Laws. For the non-Jew he is responsible for 66 of them under the heading of the Laws of Noah. Of course Isaiah 56 teaches the non-Jew to "choose those things pleasing to God and to take hold of His Sabbaths." These are opportunities for the non-Jew to rise above the minimum in his relationship with God. The bottom line is that we get to, don't have to. Such is an expression of our love for God.

Within these commands are Laws regulating the worship of God in certain ways which the Christian Church as rejected. Within these commands are Laws regulating how you are to give your money and tithes which are also a form of worship of God; by in large Christianity rejects these today. Within these commands are Laws regulating sanctifying the Name of the Lord which every Christian breaks without knowing daily. Literally Christianity profanes the Name of the Lord day after day. Breaking this pattern of worship means we worship in vain since we don't follow the commandments of God for worship within the Covenant He gave us. As Christians we do your own thing outside the Covenant God gave us just like Nadab and Abihu did.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that God killed them in their first "church" service?

Under the only covenant we were given by God there is no license to worship some "new" way. Such is sin. Thanks Constantine!

Within these commands are Laws requiring the Tithe to be given a certain way and the money spent only in certain ways on certain things. Today no church follows such Laws. That means if you give you Tithe to the church and they don't obey the commands of the only Covenant in existence then you are robbing God and don't know it since you really don't have a license to do it any other "new" way. Such is sin.

Within these commands are Laws requiring certain Holy Days be observed and kept by Jews and "non-Jews" and the Christian Church not only has labeled them as "passed-away" but tragically replaced them with pagan holidays to which Jesus's name has been affixed. To adhere to a Christianized paganism is sin. Thanks Rome.

Within these commands are Laws forbidding the worship of anything or anyone other than God. The Christian Church made Jesus God in the 4th century and those who worship him are idolaters. Remember they changed the text of the New Testament documents to agree with their developing theology as charted from Catholic Church Council to Council. This is a fact. Prove it wrong...you cannot if you don't look into this for yourself and if you do then you will see how this idolatry was accomplished. Such worship of Jesus is one form of the unforgivable sin. Thank you the writer of the Gospel of John.

Answer for yourself: One last question. Have you ever read Jer. 31 closely for yourself and seen that when this "New Covenant" (RENEWED IN HEBREW) occurs that God says in Jer. 31:33: But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the LORD, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be My people?

Answer for yourself: As a typical Christian, under "grace and not under the Law according to Paul's gospel" are you perplexed how Paul could say such a thing or feel comfortable being in a "NEW" covenant which rejects wholeheartedly the Laws of God which is the context of the original Jeremiah quote?

Answer for yourself: How comfortable can you be knowing this now and that Christianity follows Paul and his gospel more than Jesus and his gospel?

Answer for yourself: Do you again see how Jeremiah is again misquoted in the New Testament over and over again, from the Gospels to Hebrews by omitting the conditions for such a Renewed Covenant or New Covenant (the adherence to the Laws of God)?

Answer for yourself: Do you realize that acceptance of Christianity's New Covenant and New Testament means in reality that you have removed yourself out from under the ONLY Covenant God made with mankind and literally makes you not one of His people?

Answer for yourself: How comfortable are you now once this information sets in and you understand the gravity of the situation? Want to go to your Gentile Church and hear more lies? I never knew any of this either until I studied my blessed assurance off! And you should know it too!

I could go on but you get the point. It is way past time you recognize that the only thing "new" under the sun is the false religious belief system which supports Christianity today. Shalom.

AS A CHRISTIAN DO YOU KNOW WHICH COVENANT YOUR UNDER? #4

Answer for yourself: Christians are constantly attesting that they are under a "New Covenant"...are they really?

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that due to their lack of scholarship that they are mistaken and have relied on emotionalism rather than textual facts from the Bible which, when recognized, dispute their claim?

In the previous articles in this series I have demonstrated that there were a series of Covenants made with mankind which God sanctioned as written in the Jewish Scriptures. If you have been an astute reader you have noticed a progression of revelation given to mankind as contained in such succession of Covenants and Covenant stipulations. Of importance to us in this pursuit of truth one should notice that within the Laws of Moses and the Covenant with Moses is contained the Laws of Noah from the Covenant of Noah which were given to the "non-Jew" since the time of Noah which is long before the first of the Jewish race. In a real way the Covenant of Noah is reiterated almost entirely in the Laws of Moses and the Covenant of Moses; although with some minor changes. Once this is understood it has startling repercussions to Christianity today which denies the validity of the Laws of Moses all the while not understanding that within them were Laws given to "ALL" non-Jews and Gentiles long before there were sons of Jacob or "Jews". And let us not forget that the Covenants of God are "Eternal". This means when reading the Old Testament or even the New Testament that if a "non-Jewish" Christian reads such references to "the Law" and thinks that they have no bearing upon the "non-Jew" and "ONLY" the Jew then he makes a critical mistake and such failure to understand such dynamics I guarantee leads to erroneous conducts and behaviors in the life of the "non-Jewish" believer and God considers much of such "behaviors" sin. This is the warning I bring and the information and facts concerning this important topic prove the point. Coupled with this, in the last article I demonstrated beyond any doubt that the "new" Covenant referenced by Jeremiah has absolutely nothing to do with what the Christian of today calls his "New Covenant". Literally the Gentile Christian church has attached the word "new" as borrowed from Jeremiah to their lawlessness of today and in reality by rejecting the only Covenant given by God to them the "non-Jewish" believer in Christianity stand apart from God without a Covenant given by God. When these facts of Biblical language and history become apparent to you, as well as when you come to grips with the facts of the credibility of the "New Testament" which gives false assurance to many by rejecting the only valid Covenants given to the "non-Jewish" believer and then substituting a Roman lie for it, then the horror of your disobedience toward God and shame of the false religious belief system which has entrapped you should bring you to your knees in tearful repentance. Such is the fruit of antisemitism! Only then can it be said of you that you are not far from the Kingdom of God. But understand being close to the Kingdom of God means a total separation from the Kingdom of Babylon's false religion as well as the Kingdom of Rome's pagan religion; both of which rejected the only true religion given by God to mankind as detailed in the Old Testament which has Covenants first for "non-Jews" and then for Jews which received a higher and progressive revelation of God. Such is the tragic consequences of "antisemitism" and the typical Christian has been mired in it his whole life whether he knew it or not.

Again, one of the main reasons you have not seen such for yourself is not only because you have failed to study in detail your faith and have taken almost everything by "faith" that heard preached and read in this book given you by Rome; never believing for one moment that you were not being taught "truth". Coupled with this also comes the failure of the Gentile Church to teach the Jewish Scriptures correctly.

JEREMIAH 31:30-33...HAS THE GENTILE CHURCH TAUGHT IT CORRECTLY?

No!!!!!!! Let me show you why. First read the passage.

[30] Behold, days are coming -- the word of HASHEM -- when I will seal a new covenant with the House of Israel and with the House of Judah: [31] not like the covenant that I sealed with their forefathers on the day that I took hold of their hand to take them out of the land of Egypt, for they abrogated My covenant, although I became heir Master --the word of HASHEM. [32] For this is the covenant that I shall seal with the House of Israel after those days -- the word of HASHEM -- I will place My Torah within them and I will write it onto their heart; I will be God for them and they will be a people for Me. [33] They will no longer teach -- each man his fellow, each man his brother -- saying, 'Know HASHEM!' For all of them will know Me, from their smallest to their greatest -- the word of HASHEM -- when I will forgive their iniquity and will no longer recall their sin.

Christians use verses 30 and 31 to 'prove' to us that God promised that the Torah will be replaced by a "New" Torah, the Christian New Testament. But the verse simply does not say that; in fact it says just the opposite! Let me prove it to you!

First of all the Strong's Concordance definition for the word used by Jeremiah..."new":

The Strong's # is 2319 chadash (khaw-dawsh');

from 2318; new:

First of all notice that Strong's Lexicon lists a root word as well as a derivative word as used in the verse at hand. First, the translation of " 2319:

KJV-- fresh, new thing.

This is too ambiguous to say the least and we learn nothing from this, but if we look at the "root" word we glean terrific knowledge...let us see.

The Strong's # for the "root" word is 2318 chadash (khaw-dash'); a primitive root; to be new; causatively, to rebuild: KJV-- renew, repair.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that the "root" word for "new" as used in Jer. 31 means "renew, repair, rebuild" and not "replaced"?

Answer for yourself: When you repair something, let's say a sofa, then do you throw it away in the trash and buy a brand new sparkling "new one" or do you keep the "same item" and "renew" it? It is pretty obvious to a "thinking believer" what Jeremiah is saying here but we have to look at the Hebrew to get the idea correctly concerning how God looks at His Covenants and Laws and Commandments! THEY ARE ETERNAL!

Answer for yourself: Does the Hebrew Scriptures mention a "renewed" Covenant in the Old Testament? It sure does.

There just so happens to be such a "new" and "renewed" Covenant mentioned in the Torah. That "new" testament, or "new" and "renewed Covenant", was made with Israel at Mount Moab immediately before the death of Moses and it is not the "New Covenant" that the New Testament describes. Moses recorded the words of that Covenant in the twenty ninth and thirtieth chapters of Deuteronomy. This new Covenant is restricted to Israel and concerns the regathering of Israel from the nations in the last days. This is not a Covenant to be made with the "non-Jewish" or Jewish Christian or the Gentile Christian Church which prides itself on being not under the Law of God no matter what they say, believe, or what some of the corrupted documents of the New Testament assert.

"These are the words of the Covenant, which the Eternal One commanded Moses to make with the children of Israel in the land of Moab, "beside" the Covenant which he made with them in Horeb [Sinai]." (Dent. 29:1)

With the giving of this Covenant at Mount Moab, providing for the regathering of Israel in the last days, the clause of the Abrahamic Covenant stating, "I will give thee a land," is reaffirmed in the last days. At the same time, the new "renewed" Covenant at Mount Moab in no way infringes upon the lengthy penalty of Israel scattered among the nations as demanded by the Sinaitic Covenant for their disobedience.

In the context of the "New-Renewed Covenant of Mount Moab", Jeremiah's commentary in chapter thirty-one very specifically identifies this "new" or "renewed" Covenant as "the Moabite Covenant": "Behold the days come, saith the Eternal One, that I will make a New (RENEWED) Covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah. Not according to the Covenant [at Mount Sinai] that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt. Which Covenant they break...."

With the giving of this Covenant at Mount Moab, providing for the regathering of Israel in the last days, the clause of the Abrahamic Covenant stating, "I will give thee a land," is reaffirmed in the last days. At the same time, the new "renewed" Covenant at Mount Moab in no way infringes upon the lengthy penalty of Israel scattered among the nations as demanded by the Sinaitic Covenant for their disobedience.

Jeremiah the prophet gave a great deal of attention to the regathering of Israel in the last days. In Jeremiah 31:8-11 are these words:

Behold, I will bring them from the north country, and gather them from the coasts of the earth, and with them the blind and the lame, the woman with child and her that travaileth with child together: a great company shall return thither. They shall come with weeping, and with supplication will I lead them: I will cause them to walk by the rivers of waters in a straight way, wherein they shall not stumble: for I am a father to Israel, and Ephraim is my firstborn. Hear the Word of the Eternal One. O ye "Gentile" nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd cloth his flock. For the Eternal One bath redeemed Jacob, and ransomed him from the hand of him that was stronger than he. Therefore shall they come and sing in the height of Zion....

Answer for yourself: Then is it apparent to you that this "New/Re-Newed Covenant of Jeremiah 31:31" is the "New" Covenant of Moab, found in Deuteronomy 29-30 and not a supposed New Testament or "new" Covenant that will do away with the Covenant of Moses or the Laws of Moses; but rather a "renewing" of that "very same" Covenant of Laws and Commandments which God intends to write on the hearts of these "assimilated children of Israel" who had fallen away from their "Jewish Roots" since being taken captive in Gentile lands?

This "New-Renewed Covenant" is one which will establish the Jer 31:31-33 in the life of the Children of God:

Her. 31:31 Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: 32 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the LORD: 33 But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the LORD, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. (KJV)

This "New" Covenant of Jeremiah 31 is all about the Laws of God being written in the hearts of God's children.

Now you should have a better understanding when reading Jeremiah 31 that God is doing nothing "new" at all; rather, He is continuing to do what He has done since the beginning. "I will put My Law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts" (Jer. 31:33). God is putting the Torah "again" into the hearts of these scattered Jewish people and offspring through intermarriages with "non-Jews"; people who did not know these Laws of God and the Covenants given them by God. This is that part of Israel which was to be regathered as referred to in the Covenant of Moab. Therefore, if the Torah were to have such a provision for a regathering of dispersed Israel so as not to abrogate the Abrahamic Covenant, a "new" Covenant, yet better understood as a "renewed" Covenant would be required in the Torah.

In the previous articles I showed how the reference to "the" supposedly "New" Covenant spoken of by Jeremiah was a reference to the Moab of Jeremiah

Well someone needs to tell the author of the Book of Hebrews because when he quotes this verse he uses a word in the Greek which does not carry the concept of "renew, repair, or rebuild" but one which carries the idea of "new" as in replaced. Such a reference in the Book of Hebrews is not the concept Jeremiah conveys and to say differently is to deceive the reader as well as "adding to and taking away" from the Word of God! You end up with the idea that you have a Covenant today of grace only which replaces the prior Covenants which contained Laws and Commandments for man's right standing with God. To say otherwise simply is not true!

And by the way this is not the end of the deceptions in the New Testament but only the beginning.

Answer for yourself: So is the view held by Gentile and Messianic Christianity correct which sees that they have a completely "new" Covenant which has replaced the prior Covenants of God which contain Covenant stipulations in the form of Laws and Commandments for right standing for God? No way and an educated reading of the New Testament will show you how the early church was still zealous for the Law and the Covenant which continued among them long after the time given in the New Testament for the death of Jesus. This death of Jesus supposedly for them did not bring them a "new" replacement Covenant as you have been taught today...see Acts 21:20 just for one example:

Acts 21:20 20 And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all zealous of the law:

Let us remember that this is around twenty-five years after Jesus' death and it is plainly evident that James, the senior pastor of the Jesus' church as well as others did not believe what we have been fed by Pauline Christianity today. See it for yourself as your study increases.

Also notice in the verses Christianity uses to claim their "new" Covenant that the Covenant Jeremiah speaks of is to be made with the House of Israel and the House of Judah. You should ask yourself when was the last time your church or Pastor preached to you a sermon on how you, as a Gentile Christian, fits into the House of Israel or the House of Judah. Probably never! I dare say if you ask a Southern Baptist, or a Catholic such a question he would not have the slightest idea of what you speak of because they find their identity within their denomination and do not consider themselves as part of "Israel". They fail to realize that not only the Old Testament, New Testament, and Biblical history teaches that "non-Jews" are "grafted" into the Israel of God, but being so related means that they are responsible to find their identity not in one of the 2,000 different Christian denominations today but in the Covenant of God as given to them in the Old Testament...the Covenant of Noah. And besides that, I find it amazing how a Gentile Christian can claim for himself such a "new" Covenant of Jeremiah when it was "ONLY" to be made with both Houses of Israel and not with foreign nations. The non-Jews and foreign nations of the world find their standing with God again in their Covenant with God and we look to the light of the world, the Israel of God, to be the repository of knowledge of God for the world. It is from Israel and their scholars we find how we, as "non-Jewish" believers, are to be accepted with God. It is time for the Christian Church to realize the light to the nations yet shines and a Hebraic understanding of the Christian faith is necessary and without it we "non-Jews" stumble in the darkness of antisemitism forged long ago by which we have lost our way. Sadly it takes our death to correct us for most find no reason to study while alive or to even question their faith. Too many good Christian people accept "the fruit of antisemitism" for Biblical truth today and only find out their errors when they die and receive a cosmic correction.

THE REST OF THE JEREMIAH PROPHECY

We have so far examined the first two verses of the Jeremiah 31 prophecy which Christians quote relentlessly for their authority to stand apart from the Covenant God gave them. However, consider the ignored half of this prophecy: verses 32 and 33. The "new" covenant of which Jeremiah speaks is not a new Torah, but that the Torah, the original Torah, and it is this "renewed" and "repaired" Torah which will be placed in the hearts of the children of God and everyone in the world will know HASHEM.

Every Christian should awake and take notice of what comes next as it has earth-shaking implications for the typical Gentile Christian.

Jer 31:33 33 But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the LORD, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts; and will be their God, and they shall be my people. (KJV)

Notice this "new" Covenant which Christians claim is their authority for their faith states that God, in this Covenant, will put HIS LAW in the inward parts of His children. Notice also that these LAWS will be written in their hearts of God's people and the consequence of this action makes one in relationship with God and such a one is called the "people" of God.

Answer for yourself: Since there are 613 Laws and Commandments in the Bible of which 66 are given to the "non-Jew" and being that what is usually called the "Ten Commandments" are in reality "categories" then can you list on a piece of paper, lets say, 25 commandments of God that are given to the "non-Jew"? Can you list 20 or 15 even? Are these Laws of God of the "New Covenant" written in your heart and if so then what are those 66 given to you? Every stop to think that this "New Covenant" has not happened for you yet?

Answer for yourself: As a non-Jewish believer, having been given the Covenant of Noah with the Laws of Noah, and as reiterated by James in the Acts 15 Jerusalem Council where he states that these were "necessary" and which "seemed good to the Holy Ghost", then I ask you how many of the 66 Laws of Noah do you know by heart and can repeat before God right now?

Answer for yourself: Has this "New Covenant", where "God puts His Laws in your inward parts, and where God writes them in your heart" your experience yet? If you cannot write these 66 Laws as the minimum Covenant stipulation given the "non-Jew" then I seriously doubt that you can claim to be part of this "New" or "Renewed Covenant". You may be part of a Catholic Church or a Protestant Church but you sure are not part of this "New Covenant" where the qualification for such a distinction is having the knowledge of God's Laws and adequate familiarity with them to both recognize and live by them in your life. As a former Christian Pastor I can remember how I used to cringe knowing these Laws of God and listen to what the Senior Pastor used to preach about Jesus which contaminated everyone who heard, accepted and "believed in" such dogmas as idolators and blasphemers of the Name of God. Besides most not accepting the mantle of the Laws of God their theology concerning this Jesus assured them that were not under this "New " or "Renewed Covenant" of God since denying the purpose of this "New" Covenant which is to write the Laws of God in their hearts and minds as well as idolatrous worship connected with this Jesus which is forbidden in both the Laws of Noah and the Laws of Moses.

Answer for yourself: Do you think this has any bearing on your relationship with God and your standing before God, or does your relationship with your denomination or your Pastor hold more weight for you?

How anyone can see this in the text for themselves and then deny it in their experience is beyond me, but I see too many people who do so. It is as if what the Jewish Scriptures, the Jewish Bible Jesus used, means nothing to them. It is as if their experience holds for them more authority for their religious beliefs than the text correctly interpreted. This is foolishness and not the actions of a "thinking" believer.

Let us examine the word used by Jeremiah in v. 33 for "law":

The Hebrew word for "law" as used in verse 33 of Jeremiah 31 is as follows:

8451 towrah (to-row') Strong's Numbers: This is the Jewish Torah (the first five books of the Hebrew Scriptures) or torah (to-row'); from 3384; a precept or statute, especially the Decalogue or Pentateuch (1st 5 books of the Old Testament) KJV-- law. law, direction, instruction

- a) instruction, direction (human or divine)
  - 1) the body of prophetic teaching
  - 2) instruction in the Messianic age
  - 3) the body of priestly direction or instruction
  - 4) the body of legal directives
- b) law
  - 1) law of the burnt-offering
  - 2) used of special law, codes of law
- c) custom, manner
- d) the Deuteronomic or Mosaic Law

Answer for yourself: Would you say that Christianity prides itself that it has the Laws of God from the first 5 Books of the Torah written in their "inward parts" and in their "heart"? If you can't name them or know them then do you really "have them"? If not then can we rightfully say that the Christians are part of the "people of God"? Since refusing the only Covenant given them by God, the Covenant of Noah which contains the Laws of God for the "non-Jew" which is also repeated in the Covenant of Moses, then is the Christian outside of the only valid Covenant given them by God and does this have any bearing to what Jeremiah says about "not being part of the people of God"? Can you see how serious this is?

What you have to remember in reading the above definitions for the various meanings for "law" in the Hebrew is what actually is contained in this "instruction, prophetic teachings, priestly instruction, legal directives, codes of law, customs, manners, and Mosaic Law". I bring your attention to the fact that this refers to the Laws of Noah which were the foundation stipulations for the non-Jew in his Covenant with God!

Answer for yourself: Don't you think it rather strange as a typical Christian which has been fed Pauline Christianity his whole life and his "gospel", instead of the "gospel of Jesus", that you find yourself under grace and not under Law today; that this "New Covenant" which you look to for your authority and standing before God reality consists of the Laws God put in one's heart which you have been told you are not under by your Pastor?

Answer for yourself: If the Christian New Testament was really the fulfillment of this prophecy, why are there so many atheists in the world when Jeremiah tells us that when this New Covenant occurs all in the world will know God? If we are under this "New Covenant" now then how do we explain that everyone in the world are not "believers" in God? How do we explain away atheists or agnostics if according to Jeremiah that when this New Covenant comes that all mankind will know God and have His Laws written in their hearts? How can you explain a world-wide Christianity that believes that Christ is the "end of the Law" as stated in Romans 10:4?

Answer for yourself: Why do Christians spend millions of dollars to missionize, if according to the New Covenant of Jeremiah which Christians claim as their present Covenant and which they believe has already started, that millions in the world have not yet come to give their lives to God and are outside of the salvation of God? Was Jeremiah lying when he spoke and wrote Jeremiah 31?

Nobody is supposed to say "Know HASHEM," because everyone will know Him, according to verse 33. It seems that the missionization of the Christian Church is one of the greatest witnesses against the beginning of the Covenant of Jeremiah let alone the doctrine of the Christian Church which prides itself not being under the Law.

Answer for yourself: How can you continue to profess you are a "New" Covenant believer when you see such evidence to the contrary?

Answer for yourself: How can this New Covenant be in effect today with such facts witness against it?

NECESSITY IS THE MOTHER OF INVENTION FOR THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

The Christian may attempt to answer that verses 32 and 33 are talking about the second coming of Jesus yet future, but it's absurd to say that there is at least a 2,000 year gap between verses 31 and 32. There is no indication of this gap in the text, quite the opposite, in fact. It appears as one prophecy. The Christian answer is illogical, and born of desperation.

Understand that it's okay for the Bible to predict an event to happen 2,000 years later. The issue is splitting a prophecy to try to make it fit "your theology". The prophecy of verse 32 continues in verse 33, and the entire prophecy should happen at once. Christians, when confronted with such conflicts within their religious belief system maintain that verse 32 was fulfilled thousands of years ago, but verse 33 is yet to be fulfilled. There is no reason to assume that God intended these 2 verses to be different prophecies, separated by 2,000+ years. This same ploy of desperation is again employed in handling the difficult 70 Weeks of Daniel Chapter 9.

WHAT ARE WE TOLD TO EXPECT: NEW LAWS OR NEW RELATIONSHIP?

Secondly, verses 31 and 32 of Jeremiah chapter 31 do not speak of a new Torah, but a new 'Briss' (or 'Brit' in other Hebrew dialects).

Jer 31:31-32 31 Behold, the days come, saith the LORD, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah: 32 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day that I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was an husband unto them, saith the LORD: (KJV)

Let us examine the Hebrew meaning for the word "Covenant" in the above verse: The word in Hebrew is "beriyth" or "briss", but also remember that we have already seen that "new" means "renewed, rebuilt, repaired".

The Strong's # is 1285 beriyth (ber-eeth'); from 1262 (in the sense of cutting [like 1254]); a compact (because made by passing between pieces of flesh): - confederacy, [con-] feder [-ate], covenant, league.

- 1) covenant, alliance, pledge
  - a) between men
  - 1) a treaty, an alliance, a league (man to man)
  - 2) a constitution, an ordinance (monarch to subjects)
  - 3) an agreement, a pledge (man to man)
  - 4) an alliance (used of friendship)
  - 5) an alliance (used of marriage)
  - b) between God and man
  - 1) an alliance (used of friendship)
  - 2) a covenant (divine ordinance with signs or pledges)
  - 2) (phrases)
  - a) covenant making
  - b) covenant keeping
  - c) covenant violation

Answer for yourself: What is strangely lacking from this Hebrew definition for "Covenant"? Give up?

Answer for yourself: What do we see here? Is God giving mankind a "New Law" or "New Commandments" or removing Law, nullifying Law, suspending Law, or ending Law as the New Testament alludes? Not on your life. What is being mentioned by Jeremiah is a "New Relationship" between God and mankind!

There is not one mention of the Law or Laws of God in this "New Covenant"!

A Briss is not a set of laws, but a treaty, an agreement, a Covenant. If the word was intended to mean 'Torah,' the word 'Torah' would have been used in verse 32. It was not! We never find the word Briss to refer to Torah/Laws/Commandments. God is not giving anyone "NEW LAWS" OR "CHANGING LAWS" OR "ABOLISHING LAWS"!!!!!!!!!!

Answer for yourself: So is God telling us through Jeremiah that He is rescinding the previous Law or Laws to give us "new" ones or the "lack" of them? Not at all. To attribute that this is the meaning of the passage goes great injustice to the revelation of God through the prophet Jeremiah. In fact to do so is to create a new religion other than that given to all mankind by God and this is exactly what Gentile Christianity has done whether you know it or not!

Dear one, you just read for yourself that God is "renewing" and "reestablishing" and "repairing" the SAME COVENANT containing the SAME Laws which when observed by mankind brings an acceptable relationship between man and God. God is giving mankind a "second chance" to keep and observe the Laws contained in the Covenant of Moses which they had broken and which in God's mercy was offered again at Moab and which were "reiterated" by Moses. This, when accepted by Israel, a mixed multitude of "Jews" and "non-Jews" establishes a "New Relationship" between mankind and God; an acceptable relationship. God is "replacing" NOTHING! Rome did that already and you have fallen victim to such deception.

CHRISTIANITY OF COURSE DISAGREES....BUT IT IS WRONG!

According to the Christian 'proof,' Briss must mean Torah. You need to recognize that if Briss could mean something else, like 'treaty,' there is no longer a proof from here to their New Testament. Understand that in order to live by a "new" set of laws whereby you live by grace and not by Law, then it becomes necessary to replace the first Law given by God in order to have a "new" Law that replaces it. Thus the need to define "bris" as law instead of relationship and Gentile Christianity does just that; just read some Christian commentators.

Let me conclude this short article with a summary statement. If, as Christianity professes, that we are under a New Covenant, understand that nowhere within it, according to Jer. 31, are the Laws of God replaced with new laws whereby the older Laws have ceased to be required by God. The only thing is this, and this I hope will shock you: this "new" relationship God desires to have with His people is one whereby they observe and keep the laws of God which are written on their hearts (heart in Hebrew is the mind), and I found it rather hard to keep the laws of God in my mind while in a church because they were never taught or at other times that they had "passed away and replaced by grace".

Answer for yourself: How is it possible that God writes His Laws on our hearts and minds yet we don't know them or ever have heard of them before?

Notice the Hebrew word for "heart" in Jeremiah 31:33 is Strong's # 3820:

3820 leb-

the inner man, the mind, the will, the heart, understanding the inner part, the midst

- 1) the midst (of things)
- 2) the heart (of man)
- 3) the soul, the heart (of man)
- 4) the mind, knowledge, the thinking, reflection, the memory
- 5) inclination, resolution, determination (of will)
- 6) the conscience
- 7) the heart (used of moral character)
- 8) as the seat of the appetites
- 9) as seat of the emotions and the passions
- 10) as the seat of the courage

Notice again that God is to write the Laws of His Covenant on the mind of the believer. That means that one who is under this "New" Covenant of Jer. 31 would be expected to have the knowledge of the Laws of God in his respective Covenant both in his knowledge and mind.

Answer for yourself: Do you possess this knowledge? If you don't then what kind of "New" thing are you involved in if at all? Do you know these 66 Laws is the only Covenant given you by God which James in Acts 15 says "seemed good to Holy Spirit" and were "necessary" for the "non-Jews" who were turning to God?

Answer for yourself: Is it possible that James was wrong for he did not see in time the emergence of Catholicism and Protestantism or Baptist churches, Lutheran churches, and Methodist churches which will rely on this corrupt anti-Law New Testament instead of the Bible he used, the Holy Hebrew Scriptures?

The fact that few don't even know that they are under the Covenant of Noah and not the "New" Covenant of Jer. 31 testifies to the failure of the implementation of Jeremiah's New Covenant for the non-Jew. Right now you should stop and ask yourself before God how many of the 66 Laws of Noah do you know and observe. If you are embarrassed by your answer then it is time for you to begin a serious study of your faith to make sure you don't die and stand before God ashamed, which you will do unless you discover the truth about your relationship with God and cast off the lies.

Matt 5:19 19 Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. (KJV)

You better not be found by God teaching that His Laws "passed away" or that they "ended with Christ" or that we are "not under the Law, but under grace" for if you do then expect the above. It has your name written all over it!

Not only that but I found myself brainwashed repeatedly by being continually taught that we were no longer under the law, but under grace. Yet all the while we as Pastors reassured the people that they are under a "New" Covenant with God, when the stark reality of it to me today, is that ignorantly we repudiated the ONLY COVENANT which Gentile mankind ever was given by God which assured our acceptance by God. We, due to our failure to study the texts and origin of our Christian faith, end up not only nullifying the Laws of God as contained in the Covenant of Noah but sadly teaching others to do the same. God forgive us. And this primarily can be blamed on a New Testament which continually and purposefully misquotes, mistranslates, and takes the Jewish and Hebrew Scriptures out of context in order to pervert the truth whereby they appeal to Jewish Prophetic authority incorrectly for credibility for their false doctrines. May God forgive us for not loving Him more whereby we study sufficiently to see these tragic mistakes which capture good people who love God, but in the sad and final result, make them law-breakers as well as covenant-breakers and literally render them without a valid Covenant before God. You may be in Covenant with your church or Pastor but not in Covenant with God and you need to know this before you die and meet your Covenant Creator.

Don't you want to know the truth before you die?

It sure looks to me like God never intended to replace His Covenant with His people but only to renew it by writing the Laws of God on the hearts of believers and in so doing "restore" His desired relationship with them, for "renewing" this Covenant restores relationship with God and man. This "renewed" covenant has not been written on the hearts of all men yet, mainly because of the vast numbers of Christians world-wide numbering in the billions who teach contrary to the Word of God and don't espouse the Law at all, but rather operate counter productively to God by denying His Law and advocating instead that "they are no longer under the Law (Covenant renewed ...remember?) but under grace". May God forgive us for hindering the Kingdom of God coming to all mankind.

Answer for yourself: Now do you think that the New Covenant has really began yet? Better reconsider.

Answer for yourself: Then to what covenant should the Gentile Christian look for his relationship with God?

I have already told you if you have been listening. Shalom.

HAS THE "NEW" COVENANT OF CHRISTIANITY REPLACED THE "OLD" COVENANT YET? WILL IT EVER?

Interesting question if I might say so. We have thus far seen that the Covenants of God are "eternal" and that even the word Jeremiah used for "new" meant repaired, renewed, restores, rebuilt and not "replaced". Over and over again we have witness to the fact that the Words of God are eternal and must agree with the Jewish Christ when he said:

Matt 5:18 For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled. (KJV)

Let us say again that it is this "Law" which is composed of Covenant stipulations from both the Covenant of Noah and the Covenant of Moses which are themselves comprised of individual Laws and Commandments for both "non-Jew" and Jew. This is a fact I have demonstrated to you beyond any doubt so we must deal with it even if it opposes our current Christian belief system.

Now let us look at a recurrent truths throughout the Bible that attests to the fact that God's Word and His Covenants are Eternal. Here are some verse which show that the covenant of God will never end no matter who interprets the New Testament in English thereby misunderstanding the Greek under the English or regardless of Catholic Church Councils and their perverted doctrines which have been handed down to us today as "Protestant" doctrines. I challenge you to read the following verses and then answer them with "no that is not true!"

- (Ecc 13:14) "Whatever God decrees shall be forever; nothing shall be added to it nothing shall be taken away."
- (Is 40:18)" The word of the Lord shall stand firm forever"
- (Num 19:21) "and it shall be law for all time"
- (Num 15:14)". . .There shall be one law for you and for the Ger (Convert), it shall be a law for all time throughout the ages."
- (Num 15:21) "You shall make a gift to the Lord from the first yield of your baking, throughout the ages"
- (Ex 31:16) "The Israelites people shall keep the Shabbat, observing the Shabbat throughout the ages as a covenant fro all time."
- (Dt 4:2) "Every word which the I command you. You shall observe and do Thou shalt not add unto it nor diminish it"
- (Ps 119)... "The whole psalm"

- (Dt 4:40) "Observe His laws and commandments, which I enjoin upon you this day, that it may go well with you and your children after you and you may live in the land that the Lord your God is assigning to you for all time."
- (Num 15:23) "All that the Lord commanded you by the hand of Moses from the day that the Lord gave commandments and onward throughout your generations."
- (Ex 12:17) "And you shall observe the (commandment of) Unleavened bread . . .you shall observe this day throughout your generations as an ordinance forever."
- (Is 49:14) " But Zion says, The Lord has forsaken me, and my Lord has forgotten me. Can a woman forget her sucking child, that she should not have compassion on the son of her womb? Yes, even they may forget, but I will not forget you".
- (Mal 3:6) "For I am the LORD, I change not; therefore ye sons of Jacob are not consumed."

Answer for yourself: Were you able to answer "no that is not true" to any of the above passages?

Answer for yourself: Did you notice what all the above passages have in common? Well each one stressed the "Eternalness" of God's Word which changes not. When God makes a Covenant He makes a Covenant forever. This is seen in Acts 15 when the followers of Jesus made reference to the Laws of Noah for the non-Jews where were becoming to faith in God through the ministry of Paul who was preaching "Christ crucified". Twenty-five years after the death of Jesus his followers were still appealing to the Laws of Noah for non-Jewish believers. Evidently James, the pastor of the Jerusalem Assembly, as many of the people who attended there, did not believe that the death of this Jesus, nor his assumed resurrection changed anything let alone the Covenants of God. These believers in Acts 21:20 were yet zealous for the Law and the Covenant stipulations long after Jesus' death.

*Acts 21:20 20 And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all zealous of the law:
(KJV)*

Answer for yourself: Did you catch the historical fact that around 30 years after the depicted death of Jesus in the New Testament that the Pastor of the Jerusalem congregation as well as other Jews in Jerusalem that numbered in the thousands were zealous "for the Laws" of God?

Notice they did not have a belief in Pauline theology nor did they believe that they were no longer under the law but under grace. Let us face it; these first Jewish follower of "the Christ" knew him and his teaching much better than Paul who never met him and only referred to just 2 of Jesus' teachings in all of his epistles.

Answer for yourself: Now, in light of these passages don't you think, as a "New" Testament Christian you better begin a diligent study of your Covenant or lack of one and finally be able to know the truth from error... especially before you die and meet your Covenant maker?

AS A CHRISTIAN DO YOU KNOW WHICH COVENANT YOUR UNDER? #6

We finished the prior article proving beyond a shadow of doubt that the Word of the Lord is eternal and lasts forever. That means that the Covenants of God are "Eternal" as well. Let me refresh our memory by quoting only two verses on this subject:

(Ecc 13:14) "Whatever God decrees shall be forever; nothing shall be added to it nothing shall be taken away."

(Is 40:18)" The word of the Lord shall stand firm forever"

If you remember we have stated previously:

- That one's place in God's plan is established on the basis of Covenant and that the Covenant requires as the proper response of man his obedience to its commandments.
- We have repeatedly shown you the fallacies of the Christian's belief that he is under any "New" Covenant and shown you that the Covenant of Jeremiah 31 refers to a "Re-Newed" and "Re-Established" Covenant which requires the writing of the Laws of God and His Torah on the minds and hearts of its adherents in order for man to enter into an acceptable relationship with God.
- We saw that man's acceptance of and modeling of these Laws and Commandments of God in his life causes an acceptable relationship between man and God.
- In reality the Christian in under the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah and does not know it because of the erroneous and shallow teachings of the Gentile Christian Church. Not knowing the "non-Jew's" Covenant before God only advances Christianity's false teachings which causes its devotees to live a life of continued disobedience to God's Covenant stipulations; thereby without knowing causing him to live in sin because his "anti-Law" Christian religious belief system and life-style violates and breaks many of God's Covenant stipulations for the "non-Jew" without him even knowing.

The Christian's failure to study in detail his faith and its origin and the validity and reliability of the religious documents that support Christian dogma and doctrine has robbed the Christian of his ability to read the Bible with understanding; discerning truth from error. This failure of possess the adequate knowledge of the Christian faith and the differences between it and the Jewish faith from which it broke some 2,000 years ago is responsible today for the status quo where Christians are blown by "every wind of doctrine" and gullible for every new "movement" of "this and that" which comes along. This failure again to know the truths of Judaism and how the "non-Jews" once deviated from it has caused the "non-Jewish" believer in God and the Gentile Christian to fail to recognize important "signposts" in the New Testament; like Acts 15 for example, where the Jerusalem assembly endorses as "necessary" and as being "good to the Holy Ghost" that "non-Jewish believers" in God are required to observe these Laws of Noah in order to be included into the

"Israel of God". There are 66 Law of Noah given to the "non-Jew" as his Covenant before God. Many of these Laws of Noah given by God to the "non-Jewish" believer are broken continually by the "non-Jewish" believer by just following a typical Christian's religious belief system and they never know. Such is the fruit of Rome's antisemitism some two thousand years ago when they broke from their "Jewish Roots".

Acts 15 follows long after the New Testament's depiction of the crucifixion of Jesus. Take notice then that the presumed death of Jesus had no bearing on the Covenant of Noah and its Covenant requirements for Gentiles. James still says, long after the death of Jesus, that "this" Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah are "necessary" and "seemed good to the Holy Spirit". This Covenant of Noah had, at that time, existed for thousands of years previously as James, the head pastor of the Jerusalem Church, reiterates these Laws as "necessary" for the "non-Jewish" believers turning to the God of Israel and he does not abolish or change any of them.

The Christian Church of today for the most part is totally in the dark about what I have just shown you. Yet if we paid attention to the Covenant of Noah and were familiar with its 66 subsets of Laws in detail then when we read the Old Testament and if we were aware to concern ourselves with references to the "non-Jew" in this text then we would begin to see a "pattern"; we would more easily see "bridges" between these Old Testament references and Covenant stipulations of the Covenant of Noah. Added with this is the ability of and example of "non-Jew" believers in God going beyond the "minimum" requirements of this Covenant of Noah and "choosing" those things pleasing to God contained outside the Covenant of Noah which lay alone in the Covenant of Moses (see Isaiah 56). This has major implications today since the Jew and the "non-Jew" are to be united as the peoples of God. The Torah is the "common ground" for this unity to occur. Later we will see how this principle works in detail as I will present to you the problem at Antioch as we see how Paul was failing to teach the Laws of Noah correctly to his Gentile followers and was severely rebuked by the men from James as recorded by himself in Galatians 2. Understand that this incident of Paul's deviation from God's Covenant stipulations to the Gentiles precipitated the Acts 15 Council where James made his ruling that the "non-Jews" were to be taught the Covenant of Noah along with its laws for inclusion into the Israel of God and all this was done long after the New Testament's depiction of Jesus' death.

Answer for yourself: Do you believe Ecc 13:14 when it states "Whatever God decrees shall be forever; nothing shall be added to it nothing shall be taken away"?

Answer for yourself: Do you believe Is 40:18 when its says "The word of the Lord shall stand firm forever"?

Then if you do let us look in-depth before going on in our study of Covenants at some of the examples of "non-Jews" in the Old Testament and how God expected they relate to the Israel of God an ultimately to Him. What is important for you to discern as you read the following is if these example were changed by the death of this Jesus but if not then you should ask yourself if your faith causes you to practice the same today.

Answer for yourself: Is Acts 15 your experience?

Remember as well that James attests in Acts 15 that the Laws of Noah and the Covenant of Noah had not changed twenty-five years after Jesus' death, and this being so, has important implications as you read the following examples of "non-Jewish" believers in the Old Testament.

A LITTLE BACKGROUND BEFORE WE START

A "Gentile" is a term signifying a "non-Jew", who is not a "son of the covenant" and is only subject to the seven Noachide Laws.

Once a Gentile came to the understanding of the one true God, he would turn from idols and worship the God of Israel. These were the "God fearers", who accepted certain basic Jewish obligations along with the Noachide precepts. According to this, idolatry, shedding of blood, and grave sexual sins were forbidden to Gentile believers. These were originally the Noachide precepts accepted also by the Synagogue on which the Gentiles were obliged. Let me remind you that we see in Acts 15 (at least 25 years after the death of Jesus) the admonition for the Gentiles to adhere to Noachide Laws to be accepted in the believing community of Israel. It is logical that the Apostolic Church of Jerusalem should accept the view of the Synagogue on the conditions which Gentiles needed to fulfill in order to be saved. It can be easily shown that the fulfillment of other commandments of Judaism were not prohibited to Gentiles. On the contrary, the Noachide precepts were only seen as the minimal condition for Gentiles to be recognized as God-fearers. These were so understood by the God-fearers themselves, who were attracted to the Jewish way of life and accepted many Jewish commandments without becoming full proselytes (circumcision, Sabbath, festivals, etc). This was also the attitude of Christian God-fearers, as may be seen from the Epistle to the Galatians; many of them wished to observe as many Jewish precepts as they could. This did not please Paul but that is too bad. It is evident that, while the leadership of the Mother Church decided to lay no burden upon the Gentile believers beyond the Noachide precepts, it did not object to their voluntarily observing more (Col. 2:16-17).

Col 2:16-17 16 Let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of an holyday, or of the new moon, or of the sabbath days: 17 Which are a shadow of things to come; but the body is of Christ. (KJV)

Among the figures of the early Church who instructed Gentile Christians to observe more precepts than these essential ones in the Covenant of Noah was Peter, as we know from Paul's criticism of him for demanding that Gentiles live like Jews (Gal. 2:14).

Gal 2:14 14 But when I saw that they walked not uprightly according to the truth of the gospel, I said unto Peter before them all, If thou, being a Jew, livest after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews? (KJV)

Here is where the problem lies and is shadowed even in the Noahide movement today. Rather than interpreting the apostolic decree as a minimum, Paul saw in the Noachide precepts the maximal obligations of Gentile Christians. Rather than Peter being incorrect, a more comprehensive understanding of the Bible (Isaiah 56) reveals Paul to be incorrect. But the view presented in the Roman New Testament is slanted by Rome's antisemitism to say the least and is historically inaccurate as we will see in our Antioch studies which are soon to follow.

The liberation of Gentile Christianity from the yoke of Jewish commandments was a necessary step in order for "non-Jewish" believers in the God of Israel to become a Gentile religion, separate from Judaism. It is impossible to know whether Paul was aware that by his "Gospel" he helped to achieve this aim in that he does not speak explicitly about the necessity of separating Christianity from its Jewish roots and he never says that this was his intention, but it is clear that in fact such was his historical role. Paul taught that the Jewish way of life had no validity for Christians, but the Mother Church in Acts felt differently. For Christian God-fearers it was not easy to accept Paul's demand; the complete rejection of Jewish precepts was for many Gentile Christians a painful operation. But if the host of Gentiles who were turning to the God of Israel were to ever become a "world religion", separated from Judaism, then they had to become "free from the Law". Only a Christian free from the law could separate himself from Judaism.

With the rise of Christianity the teachers of Israel sought to distinguish between the heathens of the past and those Gentiles who were subject to religious values and morality. The very term "ger tzedek" (righteous gentile) stands for the gentile who turned from idols and made a sincere conversion to the faith of Judaism in the first century. Such a person was respected and welcomed by the Jewish community. The "ger tzedek" submitted to circumcision, immersion, and brought a sacrifice to the temple. Upon completion of such, he was considered as "one born in the land." He was a "convert"; a proselyte.

There are two other terms for righteous Gentiles:

- Ger Hashar, and
- Ger ToShav.

In the Bible the Ger Hashar is seen as "the stranger in the gate", and the Ger ToShav was known as "the stranger in the land." These also accepted the faith of Israel (ethical and moral monotheism) and were immersed, but withheld themselves from circumcision. Such "Righteous Gentiles" had a place in the world to come, and it was believed that in the age of the Messiah all Gentiles would come to recognize the one true God according to Zech 14:9.

Once the Ger Tzedek was accepted as a Jew, he was entitled to all the privileges that Jews born into the faith enjoyed. Such converts to Judaism were numerous before the rise of Gentile Christianity. Within Palestine and outside, wherever Jews came into contact with pagans, Judaism held a strong attraction. It was expected of the Gentile that given enough time, he would develop from the Ger Hashar to the Ger Tzedek (full convert).

The later development of Christianity offered the attraction of monotheism and at the same time imposed fewer restrictions on its new adherents that did Judaism. Commencing with the fourth century, when Christianity became the official religion of the Roman Empire, Jews were restricted in their own worship and were no longer permitted to continue their missionary activity and we find the conversion of the Ger Hashar and Tzedek dwindling. In spite of the peril to Jews and proselytes alike, we read throughout history of various instances where Christians joined the ranks of the oppressed Jews.

Now let us look at examples of how "non-Jews" were expected to relate to Israel and God as delineated in the Old Testament, the "ONLY" Bible a Jew like this Jesus would have used.

ALIENS-THE GENTILE IN SCRIPTURE:

Let us gain a better understanding how Gentile believers "fit" with God's plan for Israel.

1616 ger, gare; or (fully) geyr, gare; from 1481; prop. a guest; by impl. a foreigner:-alien, sojourner, stranger. ^ gur. See 1482. It is important for comparison to understand that the alien was a Gentile who lived in and among Israel.

THE ALIEN-GENTILE IS LOVED BY GOD (The implication is that he is chosen).

Deuteronomy 10:14-22 To the LORD your God belong the heavens, even the highest heavens, the earth and everything in it. Yet the LORD set his affection on your forefathers and loved them, and he chose you, their descendants, above all the nations, as it is today. Circumcise your hearts, therefore, and do not be stiff-necked any longer. For the LORD your God is God of gods and Lord of lords, the great God, mighty and awesome, who shows no partiality and accepts no bribes. He defends the cause of the fatherless and the widow, and loves the alien, giving him food and clothing. And you are to love those who are aliens, for you yourselves were aliens in Egypt. Fear the LORD your God and serve him. Hold fast to him and take your oaths in his name. He is your praise; he is your God, who performed for you those great and awesome wonders you saw with your own eyes. Your forefathers who went down into Egypt were seventy in all, and now the LORD your God has made you as numerous as the stars in the sky.

Psalms 146:1-10 Praise the LORD. Praise the LORD, O my soul. I will praise the LORD all my life; I will sing praise to my God as long as I live. Do not put your trust in princes, in mortal men, who cannot save. When their spirit departs, they return to the ground; on that very day their plans come to nothing. Blessed is he whose help is the God of Jacob, whose hope is in the LORD his God, The Maker of heaven and earth, the sea, and everything in them--the LORD, who remains faithful forever. He upholds the cause of the oppressed and gives food to the hungry. The LORD sets prisoners free, The LORD gives sight to the blind, the LORD lifts up those who are bowed down, the LORD loves the righteous. The LORD watches over the alien and sustains the fatherless and the widow, but he frustrates the ways of the wicked. The LORD reigns forever, your God, O Zion, for all generations. Praise the LORD.

THE ALIEN OBSERVED THE FESTIVAL OF PASSOVER...DOES YOUR CHURCH?

Exodus 12:48-49 "An alien living among you who wants to celebrate the LORD'S Passover must have all the males in his household circumcised; then he may take part like one born in the land. No uncircumcised male may eat of it. The same law applies to the native-born and to the alien living among you."

Numbers 9:14 "'An alien living among you who wants to celebrate the LORD'S Passover must do so in accordance with its rules and regulations. You must have the same regulations for the alien and the native-born."

Answer for yourself: Is this "non-Jew" in Israel following the precepts of Isaiah 56? He sure is!

The alien (Gentile) was allowed to celebrate Passover if all males in his household were circumcised. He Had all the same rules and Laws of God apply to him that the Israelites had!

Answer for yourself: What should this teach us?

We see from this the overlapping Laws of God were often the same for the "non-Jew" and the Jew although they had different Covenants! The "alien" did not "have to" observe the Passover; he "gets to" if we want to learn more about the God of Israel!

THE ALIEN-GENTILE OBSERVED THE FESTIVAL OF UNLEAVENED BREAD:

Exodus 12:14-20 "This is a day you are to commemorate; for the generations to come you shall celebrate it as a festival to the LORD--a lasting ordinance. For seven days you are to eat bread made without yeast. On the first day remove the yeast from your houses, for whoever eats anything with yeast in it from the first day through the seventh must be cut off from Israel. On the first day hold a sacred assembly, and another one on the seventh day. Do no work at all on these days, except to prepare food for everyone to eat--that is all you may do. "Celebrate the Feast of Unleavened Bread, because it was on this very day that I brought your divisions out of Egypt. Celebrate this day as a lasting ordinance for the generations to come. In the first month you are to eat bread made without yeast, from the evening of the fourteenth day until the evening of the twenty-first day. For seven days no yeast is to be found in your houses. And whoever eats anything with yeast in it must be cut off from the community of Israel, whether he is an alien or native-born. Eat nothing made with yeast. Wherever you live, you must eat unleavened bread."

This is very important to notice. God commands of both the "Jew" and the "non-Jew" to not eat any unleavened bread during this 7 days Festival of Unleavened Bread. You can see that eating yeast during Hag HaMatzah (Festival of Unleavened Bread) was not permitted by God for the Gentile believer.

Answer for yourself: Do you eat leaven bread during the Passover week? If you do then someone has failed to teach you properly and you are disobedient to the Laws of God according to the Torah. For we see the picture of the "non-Jew" in this text shows us that a "pattern" is developing on how the "non-Jew" is to both related to God and the Jewish people, the Israel of God.

THE ALIEN-GENTILE WAS REQUIRED BY GOD TO OBSERVE THE DAY OF ATONEMENT:

Leviticus 16:29-31 "This is to be a lasting ordinance for you: On the tenth day of the seventh month (Yom Kippur-Day of Atonement) you must deny yourselves and not do any work---whether native-born or an alien living among you--Because on this day atonement will be made for you, to cleanse you. Then, before the LORD, you will be clean from all your sins. It is a Sabbath of rest (for the alien as well) and you must deny yourselves; it is a lasting ordinance.

Answer for yourself: Did you, as a "non-Jewish" believer in God, fast, not work, or observe the Day of Atonement last year, and if not, why not as it is a "lasting ordinance" for the "non-Jew"? Is God's Word forever and are His Covenant stipulations forever?

THE ALIEN-GENTILE WAS REQUIRED BY GOD TO OBSERVE THE SABBATH:

Exodus 20:8-11 "Remember the Sabbath day by keeping it holy. Six days you shall labor and do all your work, But the seventh day is a Sabbath to the LORD your God. On it you shall not do any work, neither you, nor your son or daughter, nor your manservant or maidservant, nor your animals, nor the alien within your gates. For in six days the LORD made the heavens and the earth, the sea, and all that is in them, but he rested on the seventh day. Therefore the LORD blessed the Sabbath day and made it holy.

Exodus 23:12 "Six days do your work, but on the seventh day do not work, so that your ox and your donkey may rest and the slave born in your household, and the alien as well, may be refreshed.

Deuteronomy 5:12-15 "Observe the Sabbath day by keeping it holy, as the LORD your God has commanded you. Six days you shall labor and do all your work, But the seventh day is a Sabbath to the LORD your God. On it you shall not do any work, neither you, nor your son or daughter, nor your manservant or maidservant, nor your ox, your donkey or any of your animals, nor the alien within your gates, so that your manservant and maidservant may rest, as you do. Remember that you were slaves in Egypt and that the LORD your God brought you out of there with a mighty hand and an outstretched arm. Therefore the LORD your God has commanded you to observe the Sabbath day.

Answer for yourself: What is God saying here?

Thus the Gentile, although not officially given the Sabbath in the Laws of Noah, was expected and required to rest on Shabbat. Notice I said "required" and it is "expected" of him if again there is to common ground between the "Jew" and the "non-Jew" so that they can become the one people of God, the two sticks in Joseph's hands becoming "one".

Answer for yourself: Is this again a proper place to see the principle of Isaiah chapter 56 at work in the life of the "non-Jewish" believer in God? It sure is!

Answer for yourself: Has your Church taught you to keep the Sabbath or have they substituted the day of the Sun for it; Sunday for the Sabbath and told you something silly like "Jesus changed it" when a quick study of the history of Christianity will show you that in the fourth century Constantine changed the Sabbath to Sunday?

THE ALIEN-GENTILE HAD TO BRING HIS SACRIFICE TO THE SAME PLACE AN ISRAELITE DID:

Leviticus 17:8-9 "Say to them: 'Any Israelite or any alien living among them who offers a burnt offering or sacrifice And does not bring it to the entrance to the Tent of Meeting to sacrifice it to the LORD--that man must be cut off from his people.

Answer for yourself: Understand that sacrifices were a form of worship and are you aware that "non-Jews", by looking at our prior examples, appear to be following the same "Pattern of Worship" as did the Jews up until the early fourth century until prevented by Rome on penalty of death?

Answer for yourself: Could it be possible that certain ways of worship were mandated by God for both the Jew and the "non-Jew" as they both were expected by God to observe the same "Pattern of Worship" in this world which was a "Pattern of Worship" in Heaven above? Do you know what this "Pattern of Worship" given to both Jew and "non-Jew" entailed and do you care if you observe it or not, or are you perfectly satisfied in worship according to your "new" replacement Covenant and traditional antisemitic Roman and Protestant Christianity? Is God satisfied since He never gave it to you but in reality such a "replacement" worship can be found to have its roots in the deviation of Roman Christianity from Biblical Judaism and the "Pattern of Worship" which they taught for both Jew and "non-Jew"? Ooohh that is bad and you better know about this before you die.

THE ALIEN-GENTILE WAS FORBIDDEN TO EAT BLOOD-NOAHIDE LAWS:

Leviticus 17:10-14 "Any Israelite or any alien living among them who eats any blood--I will set my face against that person who eats blood and will cut him off from his people. For the life of a creature is in the blood, and I have given it to you to make atonement for yourselves on the altar; it is the blood that makes atonement for one's life. Therefore I say to the Israelites, "None of you may eat blood, nor may an alien living among you eat blood." "Any Israelite or any alien living among you who hunts any animal or bird that may be eaten must drain out the blood and cover it with earth, Because the life of every creature is its blood. That is why I have said to the Israelites, 'You must not eat the blood of any creature, because the life of every creature is its blood; anyone who eats it must be cut off.'"

Answer for yourself: When was the last time you had communion in your church whereby you partook of the body and blood of Jesus?

Answer for yourself: Maybe you are not a Catholic, and only take such in a symbolic manner, but again are you aware that such an event like Christian Protestant communion again finds its roots in "literalized" pagan mystery religions where the devotees of pagan gods "literally" eat their body and drank their blood in order to take into them the strength and attributes of their false gods? What was "allegorical" for the Ancients, that God poured out His life and "blood" for mankind, was never to be understood in any other form than that of the Descent of the Soul into matter, flesh of mankind. Perverting this metaphysical dogma later "literalized" Christians under the teaching of Rome has "literalized" this Spiritual event and we end up eating the "body and blood" of the God in a cannibalistic fashion. We have lost so much truth it is not funny. I have never cease to wonder how a Jew like this Jesus, who distanced himself from blood which makes one unclean, would ever use such references for himself when he knew perfectly well that such were customs of the heathen and his Bible commanded in Jer 10:2 "Thus saith the LORD, Learn not the way of the heathen..." And this does not explain how Jesus would expect other pious Jews to follow him in such an abomination.

THE ALIEN-GENTILE WAS REQUIRED TO BE "CLEAN" BEFORE GOD:

Leviticus 17:15-16 "'Anyone, whether native-born or alien, who eats anything found dead or torn by wild animals must wash his clothes and bathe with water, and he will be ceremonially unclean till evening; then he will be clean. But if he does not wash his clothes and bathe himself, he will be held responsible.'"

Answer for yourself: Does it not amaze you that what you thought only applied to the Jews such as "uncleanness" also applied to "non-Jews" as well and did you ever expect that such requirements came from overlapping laws contained in the Laws of Noah for all "non-Jews" which were later restated in the Laws of Moses for the Jews? Again this is the common ground that allows both Jews and "non-Jews" to become one and the middle wall of partition between them to be destroyed. But as long as we don't study our way of this mess and our forged religious documents given us by Rome then we personally affront God by contributing to the maintaining of this artificial separation of the Jew and "non-Jew" and assure that our lives contribute to rasing this middle way of partition in our lives and faith as well.

THE ALIEN-GENTILE WAS NOT TO MURDER..ESPECIALLY CHILDREN:

Leviticus 20:1-8 The LORD said to Moses, "Say to the Israelites: 'Any Israelite or any alien living in Israel who gives any of his children to Molech (INFANT SACRIFICE) must be put to death. The people of the community are to stone him. I will set my face against that man and I will cut him off from his people; for by giving his children to Molech, he has defiled my sanctuary and profaned my holy name. If the people of the community close their eyes when that man gives one of his children to Molech and they fail to put him to death, I will set my face against that man and his family and will cut off from their people both him and all who follow him in prostituting themselves to Molech (WHAT DOES THAT SAY FOR NON-INVOLVEMENT BY THE CHURCH IN THE "HOT" ABORTION ISSUE LET ALONE FOR MANY CHURCHES WHO ADVOCATE A PRO-CHOICE STANCE?). Too many Pastors are afraid to touch such a topic because it might offend someone who gives them money...and I speak from experience on this issue believe me as my previous "Sr. Pastor" felt some topics were too hot to handle and he might lose the Tithe!" "I will set my face against the person who turns to mediums and spiritists to prostitute himself by following them, and I will cut him off from his people." "Consecrate yourselves and be holy, because I am the LORD your God. Keep my decrees and follow them. I am the LORD, who makes you holy".

THE ALIEN-GENTILE WAS TO BRING THE SAME BURNT OFFERING AS THE ISRAELITE:

Leviticus 22:17-20 The LORD said to Moses, "Speak to Aaron and his sons and to all the Israelites and say to them: 'If any of you--either an Israelite or an alien living in Israel--presents a gift for a burnt offering to the LORD, either to fulfill a vow or as a freewill offering, You must present a male without defect from the cattle, sheep or goats in order that it may be accepted on your behalf. Do not bring anything with a defect, because it will not be accepted on your behalf'".

Answer for yourself: Again did you notice the "same" laws for both Jew and Gentile again although they have different Covenants yet these Covenants often contain the same Covenant stipulations?

Answer for yourself: Do you see a "PATTERN" developing before you face? Has God shown us the secret that James recognized in Acts 15 where the "Jews" and "non-Jews" must come together and be the one people of God in fulfillment of the Prophets to the glory of God and this was done by mandating these "necessary Laws" for the "non-Jews" who were turning to God from idols. Now you can understand why this "seemed good to the Holy Spirit". I have got a flash for you; don't expect the Jews to stop obeying their Torah and live as a Christian who has neglected the Sabbath their whole lives or sanctified Rome's substituted "holy day" instead of the Biblical Festivals; it is the Christian Church who must REPENT and fall on their knees and confess the horrible sin of antisemitism and hatred toward the "light of the world", the Jewish people and their Rabbis, who yet today show the world that "salvation is of the Jews" and always has been for it is they, and they alone today, who carries this "PATTERN OF WORSHIP" handed down from the foundation of the world as seen as far back as Ancient Egypt some 10,000 years B.C.E. where the true message of "Salvation" and "Worship of God" was uncorrupted by the "agendas of men".

THE ALIEN-GENTILE WAS NOT TO BLASPHEME GOD'S NAME OR TAKE THE LORD' NAME IN VAIN:

Leviticus 24:10-23 Now the son of an Israelite mother and an Egyptian father went out among the Israelites, and a fight broke out in the camp between him and an Israelite. The son of the Israelite woman blasphemed the Name with a curse; so they brought him to Moses. (His mother's name was Shelomith, the daughter of Dibri the Danite.) They put him in custody until the will of the LORD should be made clear to them. Then the LORD said to Moses: "Take the blasphemer outside the camp. All those who heard him are to lay their hands on his head, and the entire assembly is to stone him. Say to the Israelites: 'If anyone curses his God, he will be held responsible; Anyone who blasphemes the name of the LORD must be put to death. The entire assembly must stone him. Whether an alien or native-born, when he blasphemes the Name, he must be put to death. "'If anyone takes the life of a human being, he must be put to death. Anyone who takes the life of someone's animal must make restitution--life for life. If anyone injures his neighbor, whatever he has done must be done to him: Fracture for fracture, eye for eye, tooth for tooth. As he has injured the other, so he is to be injured. Whoever kills an animal must make restitution, but whoever kills a man must be put to death. You are to have the same law for the alien and the native-born. (FOCUS ON THAT VERSE FOR A MOMENT) I am the LORD your God.'" Then Moses spoke to the Israelites, and they took the blasphemer outside the camp and stoned him. The Israelites did as the LORD commanded Moses.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that the Laws of Noah and the Covenant of Noah are explicit in how the "non-Jew" is to worship and live before God in order not to commit this "blasphemy of the Name of God" and that James, knowing this, said that this is "necessary" for all "non-Jews" and that is "seemed good to the Holy Spirit"? No wonder!

Numbers 15:14-16 For the generations to come, whenever an alien or anyone else living among you presents an offering made by fire as an aroma pleasing to the LORD, he must do exactly as you do. The community is to have the same rules for you and for the alien living among you; this is a lasting ordinance for the generations to come. You and the alien shall be the same before the LORD: The same laws and regulations will apply both to you and to the alien living among you.'

Answer for yourself: Did we just see that the same law (TORAH) applied equally to both Israelites and aliens (the "non-Jews")? We sure did! Is this because these "necessary" Laws and Commandments in the Covenant and Laws of Noah are repeated in the Laws of Moses? YOU GOT IT! The middle wall of partition is beginning to crumble in our "indoctrinated" minds as we continue to study.

1 Tim 2:4 4 Who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth. (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Again did you notice the "same" laws for both Jew and Gentile again although they have different Covenants yet these Covenants often contain the same Covenant stipulations?

What will be horrifying to you to see is that as a Christian you blaspheme God name regularly because of the failure to be taught correctly the Laws of Noah and how to observe them; both in observance of the positive commandments and the refraining from the breaking of the negative commandments within the Covenant of Noah. This is many cases concerns the proper worship of God and traditional Christian "theology" about Jesus, particularly from the Gospel of John, infects all who believe this as "idolators" and "blasphemers" before God. This I am sad to say, according to Judaism, is the unforgivable sin and we carry the same of such ignorance and false worship with us our whole lives and at our last breath at our death do we pay the ultimate price, our lives, which God required for such a horrible sin. Oh, how I wish I had been taught this truth before I fell into such antisemitic ignorance as a young man and a young Christian. We will deal with each law in detail in the future on the Noah Website so hold on as I prepare this year to present you fully with each of your Covenant stipulations whereby you can be certain of your relationship with God. Repentance brings forgiveness for all sins or ignorance except the sins of blasphemy which I mentioned above, we have to wait for this and carry the shame of this as a reminded that truth is precious.

THE ALIEN-GENTILE IS TREATED EXACTLY LIKE THE ISRAELITE CONCERNING UNINTENTIONAL OR INTENTIONAL SIN:

Numbers 15:22-31 "'Now if you unintentionally (ACCIDENTALLY FAIL TO OBEY .. POSSIBLY BY IGNORANCE) fail to keep any of these commands the LORD gave Moses-- Any of the LORD'S commands to you through him, from the day the LORD gave them and continuing through the generations to come-- And if this is done unintentionally without the community being aware of it, then the whole community is to offer a young bull for a burnt offering as an aroma pleasing to the LORD, along with its prescribed grain offering and drink offering, and a male goat for a sin offering. The priest is to make atonement for the whole Israelite community, and they will be forgiven, for it was not intentional and they have brought to the LORD for their wrong an offering made by fire and a sin offering. The whole Israelite community and the aliens living among them will be forgiven, because all the people were involved in the unintentional wrong.'"But if just one person sins unintentionally, he must bring a year-old female goat for a sin offering. The priest is to make atonement before the LORD for the one who erred by sinning unintentionally, and when atonement has been made for him, he will be forgiven. One and the same law applies to everyone who sins unintentionally, whether he is a native-born Israelite or an alien.'"But anyone who sins defiantly, whether native-born or alien, blasphemes the LORD, and that person must be cut off from his people. Because he has despised the LORD'S word and broken his commands, that person must surely be cut off; his guilt remains on him.'"

Answer for yourself: Since sacrifices are a form of worship, again did you notice the "same" laws for both Jew and Gentile concerning how to worship God although each have different Covenants yet these Covenants often contain the same Covenant stipulations concerning worship?

THE FOREIGNER-THE GENTILE IN SCRIPTURE:

1 Kings 8:37-43 "When famine or plague comes to the land, or blight or mildew, locusts or grasshoppers, or when an enemy besieges them in any of their cities, whatever disaster or disease may come, And when a prayer or plea is made by any of your people Israel--each one aware of the afflictions of his own heart, and spreading out his hands toward this temple-- Then hear from heaven, your dwelling place. Forgive and act; deal with each man according to all he does, since you know his heart (for you alone know the hearts of all men), So that they will fear you all the time they live in the land you gave our fathers. "As for the foreigner who does not belong to your people Israel but has come from a distant land because of your name-- For men will hear of your great name and your mighty hand and your outstretched arm--when he comes and prays toward this temple, Then hear from heaven, your dwelling place, and do whatever the foreigner asks of you, so that all the peoples of the earth may know your name and fear you, as do your own people Israel, and may know that this house I have built bears your Name.

We need to learn about this "stranger" and its implications for the "non-Jewish" believer now.

5237 nokriy, nok-ree'; from 5235 (second form); strange, in a variety of degrees and applications (foreign, non-relative, adulterous, different, wonderful):-alien, foreigner, outlandish, strange (woman).

Deuteronomy 14:21 Do not eat anything you find already dead. You may give it to an alien living in any of your towns, and he may eat it, or you may sell it to a foreigner (ger). But you are a people holy to the LORD your God. Do not cook a young goat in its mother's milk.

We see things a little different here in "some instances". Notice here the Covenant stipulations differ between the Jew and the "non-Jew". They are not always the same, but again overall the vast majority of Laws contained in the Covenant of Noah are reiterated at Sinai in the Laws of Moses.

Exodus 12:45 45 A foreigner and an hired servant shall not eat of it (Passover) [unless circumcised] (concerning the Passover).

Deuteronomy 15:3 3 Of a foreigner thou mayest exact [hold him to the repayment of a loan after 7 years]: but [that] which is thine with thy brother thy hand shall release [not allowed to collect repayment of a loan to a Jew after 7 years];

Isaiah 56:3 3. Neither let the son of the foreigner, that hath joined himself to the LORD, speak, saying, The LORD hath utterly separated me from his people: neither let the eunuch say, Behold, I [am] a dry tree.

Isaiah 56:6 6 Also the sons of the foreigner, that join themselves to the LORD, to serve him, and to love the name of the LORD, to be his servants, every one that keepeth the Sabbath from profaning it, and taketh hold of my covenant;

Answer for yourself: What should we take strong notice of here?

Notice that the "non-Jew" could "join himself to the LORD" and notice in this instance he goes beyond the Laws of Noah which does not require observance of the Sabbaths and acquires a higher mitzvot of observing these Sabbaths. As stated before we as "non-Jews" are not limited to observe the minimum requirement of our Covenant, but can demonstrate our love for God by taking into our life as many Laws and Commandments as possible; for each Covenant stipulation or commandments observed is how we show our love for God and strengthen our relationship with Him.

Ezekiel 14:7 7 For every one of the house of Israel, or of the foreigner that sojourneth in Israel, who separateth himself from me, and setteth up his idols in his heart, and putteth the stumblingblock of his iniquity before his face, and cometh to a prophet to inquire of him concerning me; I the LORD will answer him by myself:

Answer for yourself: Again did you notice the "same" laws for both Jew and Gentile again although they have different Covenants yet these Covenants often contain the same Covenant stipulations (keeping the Passover for instance)?

Deuteronomy 17:14-15 When you enter the land the LORD your God is giving you and have taken possession of it and settled in it, and you say, "Let us set a king over us like all the nations around us," Be sure to appoint over you the king the LORD your God chooses. He must be from among your own brothers. Do not place a foreigner (ish) over you, one who is not a brother Israelite (NOTICE WHO IS TO HAVE RELIGIOUS AUTHORITY IN GOD'S EYES....the Jews...."salvation is of the Jews")!

THE STRANGER-THE GENTILE IN SCRIPTURE:

This "stranger" is somewhat different too (this is our nokree).

According to Brown-Driver-Briggs Hebrew Lexicon: 5237 nokriy- foreign, alien a) foreign b) a foreigner (substantive) c) a foreign woman, a harlot d) unknown, unfamiliar (figuratively)

Deuteronomy 15:1-5 At the end of every seven years you must cancel debts. This is how it is to be done: Every creditor shall cancel the loan he has made to his fellow Israelite. He shall not require payment from his fellow Israelite or brother, because the LORD'S time for canceling debts has been proclaimed. You may require payment from a foreigner, but you must cancel any debt your brother owes you. However, there should be no poor among you, for in the land the LORD your God is giving you to possess as your inheritance, he will richly bless you, If only you fully obey the LORD your God and are careful to follow all these commands I am giving you today.

Deuteronomy 23:19-20 Do not charge your brother interest, whether on money or food or anything else that may earn interest. You may charge a foreigner interest, but not a brother Israelite, so that the LORD your God may bless you in everything you put your hand to in the land you are entering to possess.

So there are differences as we see.

THE GOD-FEARER-GENTILE & MONOTHEISM IN SCRIPTURE:

The Strong's # for "Godfearer" is 4576: sebomai, seb'-om-ahee; mid. of an appar. prim. verb; to revere, i.e. adore:-devout, religious, worship.

Let me preface that it was these "strangers," "foreigners", and "aliens" who we have seen are called by another name in the New Testament and are called God-Fearers in the New Testament. THIS IS VERY IMPORTANT TO SEE!

Answer for yourself: Why is this important to see?

Simply because by making this connection we can begin to see the continuation of the "Pattern of Worship" overlapping the Hebrew Scriptures and the New Testament; and mind you, this "Pattern of Worship" hold true long after the death of this New Testament Jesus which tells us again that this death of Jesus "changed nothing" by the examples we see in the New Testament. No one at this time, the early and later first century say any reason for "changing" Biblical Judaism or is worship of God not how the "non-Jews" are to come to God. The "ONLY" thing that changed is that the "non-Jews" were no longer required to be "circumcised" but that was never required of them in the first place by God; only by Israel when they wanted to keep these "non-Jews" apart from themselves. That is why the Acts 15 ruling is so very, very important in breaking down this middle wall of partition between "Jews" and "non-Jews".

By examining these examples in depth, we can see more correctly what is required for us today as a Christians.

Ecclesiastes 8:12 Although a wicked man commits a hundred crimes and still lives a long time, I know that it will go better with God-fearing men, who are reverent before God.

Acts 2:1-13 When the day of Pentecost came, they were all together in one place. Suddenly a sound like the blowing of a violent wind came from heaven and filled the whole house where they were sitting. They saw what seemed to be tongues of fire that separated and came to rest on each of them. All of them were filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak in other tongues as the Spirit enabled them. Now there were staying in Jerusalem God-fearing Jews from every nation (GENTILE CONVERTS FROM EVERY NATION) under heaven....

Acts 10:1-8 At Caesarea there was a man named Cornelius, a centurion in what was known as the Italian Regiment. He and all his family were devout and God-fearing; he gave generously to those in need and prayed to God regularly. One day at about three in the afternoon he had a vision. He distinctly saw an angel of God, who came to him and said, "Cornelius!" Cornelius stared at him in fear. "What is it, Lord?" he asked. The angel answered, "Your prayers and gifts to the poor (alms) have come up as a memorial offering before God..."

Acts 13:26-31 "Brothers, children of Abraham, and you God-fearing Gentiles, it is to us that this message of salvation has been sent...

Acts 13:46-51 Then Paul and Barnabas answered them boldly: "We had to speak the word of God to you first. Since you reject it and do not consider yourselves worthy of eternal life, we now turn to the Gentiles. For this is what the Lord has commanded us: "'I have made you a light for the Gentiles, that you may bring salvation to the ends of the earth.'" When the Gentiles heard this, they were glad and honored the word of the Lord; and all who were appointed for eternal life believed. The word of the Lord spread through the whole region. But the Jews incited the God-fearing women of high standing and the leading men of the city. They stirred up persecution against Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them from their region. So they shook the dust from their feet in protest against them and went to Iconium.

Acts 17:1-4 When they had passed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Thessalonica, where there was a Jewish synagogue. As his custom was, Paul went into the synagogue, and on three Sabbath days he reasoned with them from the Scriptures, explaining and proving that the Christ had to suffer and rise from the dead. "This Jesus I am proclaiming to you is the Christ," he said. Some of the Jews were persuaded and joined Paul and Silas, as did a large number of God-fearing Greeks and not a few prominent women.

Acts 17:16-17 While Paul was waiting for them in Athens, he was greatly distressed to see that the city was full of idols. So he reasoned in the synagogue with the Jews and the God-fearing Greeks, as well as in the marketplace day by day with those who happened to be there.

We say earlier that "Ger toshavs" were Gentiles who chose to worship the God of Abraham without making a full commitment to Judaism. They did not become circumcised nor did they keep the full Torah but they instead lived by the Noachide commandments! Ger Toshavs were known as "God- fearers". An Old Testament example would include Naaman the Syrian. Cornelius, called in the New Testament "a man who feared God" was actually a Ger toshav.

If we start to read the New Testament with this in mind, I suggest it starts making more sense and some of the apparent contradictions begin to disappear. If it is possible to have salvation without keeping the full Torah (as I believe Judaism--perhaps unconsciously--taught by instructing the Ger toshavs to keep only 7 basic commandments), then it follows that the message of the New Testament, once recognized, holds the same view: thus, the Commandments to be kept varied with the background of the person:

The native-born Jew, or the Gentile Ger tzedek who voluntarily converted to Judaism, underwent circumcision (as did Timothy), and undertook to observe the full Torah.

The Ger toshav Gentiles who were not required to make a full conversion to Judaism to become likewise the Israel of God were to be "God-fearers" in Judaism. That being so they were relieved of the requirement to keep the full Torah and observed a simple combination of the Noachide laws, and eventually the 10 Commandments which in principle embody all 7 of the Noachide commandments, though the strict Sabbath command was not enjoined upon the Gentile believers. The teaching of Isaiah 56 offered this voluntarily to them to observe.

Thus, we can now reconcile many passages that seem to inconsistently jump around between a pro-Torah/anti-Torah sentiment by understanding that the writers were addressing different issues to different sorts of converts, and acknowledging that the various believers did not keep the same commandments! This is how Paul can legitimately rebuke the Galatians for observing the Torah--not because the Torah has passed away (in the sense that the Jews were to cast its cultural and moral precepts aside and abandon their cultural identity), but because of their mistaken belief that they would go to Heaven by the "works of the Law" instead of faith--yet at the same time circumcise Timothy, tell the Jews in Corinth not to become "uncircumcised", refer to the Law to back up his theology, and himself take a Nazirite vow to prove he was not repudiating the Law in Acts 21. This also reveals how the Gentile Christian understanding that we are "freed from the Law" apparently swept through the church in a manner that resulted in the skewed belief that the entire Law applies to no one. In actuality, the Gentiles were never meant to keep the whole of the Torah, thus--for them--that was a truth, albeit a misunderstood truth. The error has been in extending this truth to a point where the Law has been relegated to something "bad" that we should be glad we're relieved from observing, and that those who keep it are "Judaizers" or "bound by works".

David Flusser, in his book Judaism and the Origins of Christianity, asserts that these God-Fearers accepted certain Jewish obligations, at least the so-called Noachide precepts. Flusser further emphasizes that the Noachide precepts were only seen as a minimal condition for Gentiles to be recognized as God-Fearers; and that while the mother church decided to lay no burden upon the Gentile believers beyond the Noachide precepts, it did not object to their voluntarily observing more. It should be noted that when we say all that was required of these ancient believers was to keep the Noachian commandments and these quite often overlapped with the Laws of Moses (66 of them did).

WHAT HAVE WE TRIED TO SHOW YOU WITH THE PREVIOUS SCRIPTURAL ANALYSIS?

TODAY'S NON-JEWISH BELIEVER; THE CHRISTIAN IS GRAFTED INTO THE ISRAEL OF GOD AND HAS NO STANDING BEFORE GOD APART FROM HIS COVENANT WITH GOD...WHICH HAPPENS TO BE THE COVENANT OF NOAH CONTAINING THE LAWS OF NOAH

The Gentile, after turning from idols and repentance (as a sign of his faith in the One God of Israel), and after following immersion in the Mikvah (baptism), was grafted into Israel as Paul would later tell us. But this did not begin with Paul as it had always been this way!

Eph 2:11-12 11 Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; 12 That at that time ye were without Christ (the knowledge of God in their souls), being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: (KJV)

The repentant Gentile believer chose God and His Torah. He chose to become "chosen". Since he is now within the "Israel of God", then these commandments given to "Israel" called the Laws of Moses contain within them the Laws of Noah and yet today applies to the Gentile Christian who repents of "idols" and turns to God in faith and repentance.

Answer for yourself: Is that your understanding and has your church taught this or are you hearing of this for the first time in your life today?

The tragedy of the matter is that the Contemporary Christian Church has not studied to know who they are nor what is required of them by God.

They are included in the House of Ephraim; they are Israel and they don't recognize it. They think there are Baptists, Methodists, Catholics, etc.; but God shows us that there is one plan for all "non-Jews" and that this plan did not alter at all following the time of the New Testament Jesus as the New Testament reveals. Many of the Commandments of God as seen in the Torah, the Law, as mentioned in both the Old Testament and New Testament are for the "non-Jew" and frame his Covenant before God; they are not just the Jew born in the land! And this means it is for the Christian as his obedience or disobedience to these Covenant stipulations relate to his standing before God!

AS A CHRISTIAN DO YOU KNOW WHICH COVENANT YOUR UNDER? #7

LET'S MAKE SURE WE UNDERSTAND ARE NOT CONFUSED ANY LONGER:

We have covered a great deal of material up to now about Covenants. I believe at this time a quick review is in order before we go on.

A "Gentile" is a term signifying a non-Jew, who is only subject to the seven Noahide Laws. Once a Gentile came to the understanding of the one true God, he would turn from idols and worship the God of Israel. These were the "God fearers", who accepted certain basic Jewish obligations along with the Noachide precepts. This picture is verified over and over again by the New Testament if you know what you are looking for. According to this, idolatry, shedding of blood, and grave sexual sins were forbidden to Gentile believers. These were originally the Noachide precepts accepted also by the Synagogue on which the Gentiles were obliged. Let me remind you that we see in Acts 15 (at least 25 years after the death of Jesus) the admonition for the Gentiles to adhere to Noachide Laws to be accepted in the believing community of Israel (it was James as leader of the Jerusalem church who referred back to the Noahide Laws in addressing the question of Gentile salvation). It is logical that the Apostolic Church of Jerusalem should accept the view of the Synagogue on the conditions which Gentiles needed to fulfill in order to be saved and accepted in the "family of Israel". It can be easily shown that the fulfillment of other commandments of Judaism were not prohibited to Gentiles. On the contrary, the Noachide precepts were only seen as the minimal condition for Gentiles to be recognized as "God-fearers". These were so understood by the uncircumcised "God-fearers" themselves, who were attracted to the Jewish way of life and accepted many Jewish commandments without becoming full proselytes (Sabbath, festivals, Tallith, etc). This was also the attitude of Gentile Christian "God-fearers", as may be seen from the Epistle to the Galatians; many of them wished to observe as many Jewish precepts as they could. We need to understand right now that Paul was not opposed to non-Jews voluntarily observing "Jewish" commandments over and above the Noahide minimum like the Sabbath for instance; he was opposed to only one "Law" being put upon the non-Jews and that was that the commandment of circumcision which was imposed on non-Jews for inclusion into the Israel of God by bigoted Jews who hoped that such a procedure would cause the non-Jew to rethink his decision and they would not have to have social or religious contact with them. Paul knew such a commandment was never a part of the Covenant of Noah given to all Gentiles and was purposely used by bigoted Jews and it was this bigotry which enraged Paul and kept many non-Jews from drawing close to the Creator. His Galatians epistle is against the law of circumcision only and we need to realize that Paul was not against the non-Jews acquiring other mitzvot as the pattern of the New Testament shows. It is evident that, while the leadership of the mother Church in Jerusalem decided to lay no burden upon the Gentile believers beyond the Noachide precepts, it did not object to their voluntarily observing more (Col. 2:16-17). Among the figures of the early Church who instructed Gentile Christians to observe more precepts than these essential "Noahide" ones was Peter, as we know from Paul's criticism of him for demanding that Gentiles live like Jews

(Gal. 2:14). Rather than interpreting the apostolic decree of Gentiles adhering to the Laws of Noah as a minimum, Paul would later change in his views after the Antioch incident and would see in the Noachide precepts the maximum obligations of Gentile Christians. Rather than Peter being incorrect, a more comprehensive understanding of the Bible reveals Paul to be incorrect. You will see this when we study the Antioch incident next in this series.

THE CONFUSION THAT SURROUNDS PAUL'S TEACHINGS:

Paul remarks in a letter to the Corinthians (1 Cor. 7) that the circumcised (Jews or converted Gentiles) should not remove the marks of circumcision, nor should the uncircumcised (Gentiles become Jews) circumcise themselves. Wait a minute. Paul contradicts himself (like a lot of preachers today). In Galatians 5 he says "if you Gentiles get circumcised" and then he says "don't do it", as if he cannot make up his mind on the issue. Dear one when you begin to draw a line down the middle of a sheet of paper and write out the sayings of Paul you will be amazed at how a great number of Paul's sayings are directly in opposition to each other. If you have not seen this for yourself then I suggest you begin to look for them for your inability to see them so far does not invalidate the FACT that they exist and they exist in abundance in the New Testament. This is just one of the problems I have with the New Testament for if a document is truly inspired and inerrant and given by God as the New Testament is touted, then God is not schizophrenic and has the ability to carry a clear and concise thought. Paul cannot!

In Acts 16 Paul circumcised his disciple Timothy.

Answer for yourself: Timothy was not a Jew was he? If he was a Gentile why bother, right?

This contradiction of Paul is very puzzling.

Answer for yourself: Sadly many have incorrectly interpreted Paul as teaching that circumcision was abandoned with the coming of Christ, but was it?

Acts 16 is over 20 years after Jesus' death and we find that Paul is still circumcising!

Answer for yourself: Evidently we have failed to understand properly, so what is the clear truth of the matter?

Jesus and his Apostles did not wish to destroy the Torah (Law) from Israel, God forbid; for it is written so in Matthew 5:17, Jesus having said, "Do not suppose that I have come to abolish the Torah. I did not come to abolish, but to fulfill. I tell you this: So long as heaven and earth endure (do they yet exist today?), not a letter, not a stroke, will disappear from the Torah (the Law) until it is achieved. If any man therefore sets aside even the least of the Torah's demands, and teaches others to do the same (the majority of Pastors who preach the contemporary Christian message as well as Paul or a "pro-Pauline" writer later), he will have the lowest place in the Kingdom of Heaven, whereas anyone who keeps the Torah, and teaches others so, will stand high in the Kingdom of Heaven."

It never ceases to amaze me that the vast majority of Christianity today follows Paul instead of the teachings of the Christ; they follow the "least" more than the "greatest". The witness for Paul being "least in the Kingdom of God" comes not only from his doctrines as taught in the New Testament but also from James, the head of the Jerusalem Church, who informs us in Acts 21:21: "And they are informed of thee [Paul], that thou teachest all the Jews which are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, saying that they ought not to circumcise their children, neither to walk after the customs". Dear ones this is historically accurate as will be proven to you beyond any shadow of a doubt when we look at the Antioch problem for it is here that Paul, having previously needed the Jerusalem's Church authority for "his" gospel, completely severs himself off from the Jerusalem Church and literally become a renegade among the "non-Jews" in an attempt to build a ministry to prove the validity of his apostleship to those in Jerusalem who yet considered him dangerous and not "apostolic" material at all.

Bet Emet Ministries teaches Gentile and Jewish commitment and observance to the Torah, not because we desire to be "high" in the Kingdom of God, but because we love God and His Word, and would never think of destroying it by misinterpreting it or failing to study to arrive at the correct meaning of these truths for the people of God today.

It is therefore exceedingly clear that the Jewish Christ (depicted as Jesus in the New Testament) never dreamed of destroying the Torah or the Laws and Commandments of God as have the majority of churches today that carry his name but substitute "another Gospel", the Gospel of Paul for the true Gospel of Jesus (the message of the Christ of God).

WHAT TO DO WITH TIMOTHY?

In reality Paul does not contradict himself because of his circumcision of Timothy, for the latter was the son of a Jewish mother, and a Gentile father (Acts 16), and Paul knew that the child of a Jewish mother is considered a "full Jew", even if the father should be a Gentile. Paul thus acted entirely in accordance with the Halakhah (interpretation of Jewish Law) by circumcising Timothy. This would be in line with his position, following the Jerusalem Council of Acts 15 in 50 A.D., that no longer will Gentile believers be required to "become fully converted Jews through circumcision" in order to be accepted into Israel; that the Gentile believers could now remain as "uncircumcised God-Fearers" and be accepted fully by the Jews (1 Cor 7, Acts 15). Gentiles no longer had to "convert and be circumcised" to be a part of Judaism and become "fully Jewish by circumcision" for inclusion with equal standing within the Israel of God.

The Gentiles as "God-Fearers" were to also be accepted as grafted into Israel (as demonstrated by Cornelius in Acts 10 who was a "God-Fearer" and who had not yet been circumcised). It is important to note that as a "God-Fearer", Cornelius in Acts 10 yet observed the Noahide Laws, honored the Sabbath (over and above the minimum requirement of his Covenant), and ate kosher (proper killing, dressing and preparation of animals intended for food as well as the removal of all blood...again over and above his Covenant stipulations). The baptism of Cornelius into the Holy Spirit as had been the Jews earlier in Acts 2 some 17 years earlier during the Festival of Pentecost was the evidence needed to convince the Jerusalem church that the middle-wall of partition was being removed between Jews and "unclean Gentiles". From this we learn that obedience to the Noahide Laws, without circumcision (to remain only as a "God-Fearer" and not fully convert to Judaism), was no longer to be a barrier between the "unclean Gentiles" and the Jews. For example, table fellowship at the Shabbat (Sabbath observance) and the Festivals could now be shared together! This was understood from Peter's vision in Acts 10 concerning "unclean foods" which the Lord cleansed (symbolic of cleansing of men, and not the animals designated as unclean in Leviticus). We will later see Peter eating with uncircumcised Gentiles in Antioch; he learned the lesson. Shammai's "Eighteen Measures" (one of which commanded Jews not to eat or enter into the homes of Gentiles-remember Shammai hated Gentiles) was overturned by God with the revelation at Cornelius' home. God corrects Shammai and those that followed his teaching. Peter's vision of the unclean foods represented the "unclean Gentiles" which God had cleansed; the vision was not meant to tell Peter that God had cleansed the "unclean foods". Let us not confuse this issue as have millions.

HOW DOES GOD VIEW YOU TODAY IN SPITE OF WHAT YOU KNOW OR DON'T KNOW?

Timothy had to be circumcised since he was Jewish (because his mother was Jewish) and, therefore, was required to observe all the commandments of the Torah (613). Gentiles who observe the Noahide Laws are forbidden to observe "ALL" the Torah like a Jew is required, unless they desire to be circumcised and identify totally with the Jew and his Torah (full-conversion); if so then they are no longer "God-Fearers" but have become full-fledged Jews and undertake all the 613 Commandments. Following Immersion into Israel (after circumcision & mikveh called baptism) the Gentile is no longer considered a "Gentile", he is now Jewish (either partly or completely depending upon circumcision). Today such a sacred rite has been perverted by almost all of Gentile Christianity and made to do more with church membership than grafting into the Israel of God! All non-Jews who become circumcised following immersion were bound by all the commandments (613) as "full-coverts" to Judaism. Understanding the immersion process is crucial for the Christian; once you are immersed into the Israel of God, you emerged from that watery womb and tomb as a Born-Again "God-Fearer" who is grafted into Israel. You became "Israel" and are a Spiritual Jew (regardless if you were aware of it or not). You are not considered a "partial-Jew" unless you are uncircumcised. If you are circumcised you are then considered a "Full-Jew"!

Answer for yourself: Did you hear that? Of course that was back then and today just because one is circumcised at birth as a matter of routine has no bearing on such a "decision" to convert. That is why today when a "non-Jew" wants to "convert" to Judaism the Rabbi pricks the end of the male's penis to draw blood as a symbolic "circumcision" as a notation of one's conscious decision and pseudo-circumcision.

The majority of you set in your churches thinking you are "Christians" or "Baptists, Methodists, Catholics, etc.) and God's Word says you are "Jewish" (children of Abraham) and are the Israel of God. You have not replaced Israel, your denomination is not in competition with Israel; when you first believed in God you became a part of believing "Israel". You are not a Baptist or a Methodist or a Catholic;...you are part of Israel! Now is the time that you begin to go by the Bible more than your denominational doctrine.

Either way as part of Israel you are obligated to observe the Torah (that part of the Laws of your Covenant that refers to you) and, because of your lack of study, you have let your unlearned pastors and teachers tell you repeatedly that you are "under grace" and "not under Law." You are under both! I just showed you that a proper understanding of immersion and a proper understanding of the teachings of this Jewish Christ as Jesus from the Jewish perspective of Jewish rites which tell you otherwise. These were Jews who gave us these truths and they better than any can explain their meaning. You can either accept them or reject them; but to rely upon your experience as a correction for Biblical truth is not advised!

Now, let me ask you as a Christian an important question.

Answer for yourself: Who are you going to believe; your pastor, your Gentile Church, your experience or the message of Jesus?

Answer for yourself: With such an obligation to the "Christian" who now becomes aware that he is either "part-Jewish" (Judaism is not a race but a religion; the religion of Jesus) what are you to do concerning the Commandments which are addressed to you in your Covenant...the Covenant of Noah?

Answer for yourself: What will you now do since you have seen for yourselves the pattern in the Old Testament as well as the many examples in the New Testament where Jew and "non-Jew" had the same law regarding observance of the Festival of the Passover, Hag HaMatzah (Festival of Unleavened Bread), HaBikkurim (First Fruits), Shavuot (Festival of Pentecost), Rosh HaShannah (Jewish New Year), Yom Teruah (Festival of Trumpets), Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement), and Sukkot (Festival of Tabernacles) but yet different Covenants before God?

Surely you should want to begin to observe and keep them according to Scripture. Failure to do so goes completely against the "Pattern of Worship" of God given to both Jew and "non-Jew"!

ARE YOU BEGINNING TO SEE THE LIGHT?

Christian scholars have assumed from certain passages in the Gospels that Jesus wished to give a new Torah to take the place of the Torah of Moses. I want you to understand that Jesus could not unless he sinned for such an action would be considered the breaking of many Commandments.

Matt 5:17-19 or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfil. 18 For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass from the law, till all be fulfilled. 19 Whosoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whosoever shall do and teach them, the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. (KJV)

It would be well for these Christian scholars to again read the above verse and look at early Jewish history in the early centuries to see how such ideas are but folly and foolishness.

Answer for yourself: How could Jesus have then said explicitly that he came only to fulfill the laws of the Covenant?

The truth of the matter is that Jesus and the "Jewish Christ" never came teaching doctrines contrary to Judaism in some preemptive abolishment of Judaism, but only that he came to re-establish the religion for "lost sheep of Israel" which at that time included many assimilated Jews from the captivities who had literally become "Gentiles" from pagan influence and who at that time were spread throughout the nations. His message was one of repentance and return to the roots of their ancestor's faith; not to follow a new one as sadly what has happened with Gentile Christianity. His message was to reestablish from that time onward the faith that God had given from the beginning of time to the world-Noahidism and the Laws of Moses which built upon them! Let us not forget that this religion was not new, but actually ancient; it being the observance of the Seven Commandments of Noah, which were forgotten purposefully by Shammai and his students as they wanted to keep the "non-Jews" at arms length through enforced circumcision upon "non-Jewish" males. Such men like Shammai were influencing the people of Israel in Jesus' day; thus the Jewish Christ taught that it is not for those who are well that he came to instruct but those who need a physician and who are sick; sick with hatred for the Gentiles whom God loved and to whom He had called Israel to be a light unto in order to show them the Torah (the Noahide Laws) and their true Covenant with God. God had intended for the Gentiles to be redeemed all along. Jesus came for the "lost sheep of the house of Israel"; who had lost their way. These truths were not only for them, but the Gentiles as well. It is important to understand that as there were "people who were lost" in Israel, there were others like the Essene Menahem and the Hillel Pharisees who had not "lost their way" and needed little if any correction by Jesus!

DO YOU REALLY UNDERSTAND THE GREAT COMMISSION?

The Jerusalem assembly, in fulfillment of the Great Commission, established these Seven Commandments anew (Acts 15 (the decree of the Laws of Noah as "necessary" for the "non-Jews"), Acts 16 (letters sent to Asia, Minor, to enforce this decision of the Laws of Noah as "necessary" for the "non-Jews" and Acts 21 (the mission of Paul to the "non-Jews" which was supposed to enforce these Laws of Noah but sadly were being compromised by Paul to some degree)). However, those born as Jews (with Jewish mothers), or those Gentiles who were immersed and circumcised as "full-converts" to Judaism (Ex. 12:49; one law shall be to him that is home-born, and unto the stranger) are obligated to observe all 613 of the commandments of the Torah without exception.

For the uncircumcised Gentile God reserved the Seven Commandments which they have always been obligated to fulfill. It is for that reason that they were forbidden pollution of idols, fornication, blood, and things strangled (Acts 15). The Jerusalem Assembly also forbade them circumcision (to do so would mean full conversion) and the Sabbath observance (exactly like the Jews observed it). The mandatory observance by "God-Fearers" was similar, but not exactly alike the Jewish observance.

This may sound so different from what your traditional Christian message has been, but your Christian message is incorrect if it does not agree or line up with the Apostle's Doctrine. Maybe this does not matter to you at all, and if not, then you should check your heart! All of what I have shared with you is in accord with the law and custom of the Torah, as expounded by the Jewish sages, the true transmitters from Moses at Sinai, and understood by the Jerusalem Assembly in the first century (they sit in Moses' seat...listen to what they say). Our understanding today is incorrect if it violates the truths as the "Christ" teaches us and as his "disciples" taught in the first century in Biblical Judaism. We do not know more about salvation than Biblical Israel. It was to the Hillel Pharisees (not Shammai) Jesus referred to in Matt. 23 who set in Moses' seat and to whom we are to listen for correct doctrine. We are not to follow the examples of any leaders if they do not line up with the Apostle's Doctrine of Acts 2:42. This teaching on immersion and conversion is Apostolic Doctrine as Jesus taught his disciples, and any other interpretation other than his is NOT correct. We are not to follow any Pharisee's examples unless they live what they preach (that means the Pharisee Preachers of today who fail to teach and live the truth of Apostolic Doctrine)! Jesus tells us not to follow them unless they agree with him (which happens to be Hillel Phariseeism)! Good advice.

This same admonition is given in Deut. 17:8 ff., where the authority to teach and lead the people were given to the religious leaders God put over the people of "Israel". These occupy Moses' seat.

*Deut 17:8-13 8 If there arise a matter too hard for thee in judgment, between blood and blood, between plea and plea, and between stroke and stroke, being matters of controversy within thy gates: then shalt thou arise, and get thee up into the place which the LORD thy God shall choose; 9 And thou shalt come unto the priests the Levites, and unto the judge that shall be in those days, and inquire; and they shall shew thee the sentence of judgment: 10 And thou shalt do according to the sentence, which they of that place which the LORD shall choose shall shew thee; and thou shalt observe to do according to all that they inform thee: 11 According to the sentence of the law which they shall teach thee, and according to the judgment which they shall tell thee, thou shalt do: thou shalt not decline from the sentence which they shall shew thee, to the right hand, nor to the left. 12 And the man that will do presumptuously, and will not hearken unto the priest that standeth to minister there before the LORD thy God, or unto the judge, even that man shall die: and thou shalt put away the evil from Israel. 13 And all the people shall hear, and fear, and do no more presumptuously. (KJV)

I will leave the repercussions of this and the matter discussed about "Moses' Seat" for you to ponder. But I dare think that the Crystal Cathedral, Tulsa, or TBN would be "Moses' Seat".

Answer for yourself: Do the Baptists, Methodist, Catholics, Assemblies of God, or any other denomination or non-denomination occupy Moses' seat? No.

The Catholic and Protestant denominations are far from being Jewish and in fact the majority of their doctrines are anti-Jewish or should I say anti-Biblical. Salvation is of the Jews according to Jesus. Do you dare tell him he made a mistake?

It was these Sages and Pharisees who said that it is forbidden to circumcise a Gentile who does not accept upon himself the yoke of "ALL" the Commandments. In America male babies are circumcised apart from the truths of God's Word (we are commanded to circumcise on the 8th day and not within the first 2-3 days of a newborn's life) and thus their circumcision would not apply. That means circumcision that does violate Scripture does not automatically make you a "full-fledged" Jew. You are still a "God-Fearer". Identification with Israel is by faith and free will. You must choose to stand at your personal Sinai and say to God "I will do all that you say".

Answer for yourself: Do you want to obey God? Do you want to honor His Name with your life? Going to churches that teach error does not accomplish anything. It is bondage just like Egypt!

Answer for yourself: Have you ever been to Sinai? Will you ever go? Have you chosen to return to your Egypt of ignorance and false traditions and false religion that amount to idolatry? This is what I uncovered doing these Hebrew studies and tracing the "pictures" in the original languages of my Bible and taking notice of the purposeful alterations in the Christian texts.

The Sages likewise said that the Gentile is commanded NOT to "fully" observe the Sabbath as does the Jew (yet he is to remember and keep it). Acts 20:6 recounts for us the Gentile believers and how they were taught by Paul to remember and keep the Sabbath. It is here we find under Paul's instruction the Gentile Church keeping Jewish ordinances well over thirty years after Jesus's death.

Acts 20:7-8 7 And upon the first day of the week (Saturday sundown at the end of the Sabbath..the Havdalah ceremony", when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow; and continued his speech until midnight. 8 And there were many lights in the upper chamber, where they were gathered together. (KJV)

Let us not forget that "evening and morning" is the first day so the day for the Jew and God begins at sundown and not at midnight as Rome has taught us. So here we find Paul teaching "non-Jews" in Asia, Minor, to keep and observe the Sabbath. Once you study the Havdalah Service to close the Sabbath Day you will understand the saying "many lights" that were in the upper chamber. Glory...the "Pattern of Worship" of the "non-Jew" yet lives and can be restored to us today with a little hard study and knowledge.

Answer for yourself: What would later change this pattern? You have to look at Constantine who hated Jews and who single-handedly destroyed this "Jewish Pattern of Worship", a Biblical Pattern I might add, for the whole "non-Jewish" world.

As far as the Gentiles ("God-Fearers") were concerned, they were not commanded to observe all the Torah (the 613 mitzvot). The Gentile "God-Fearers" did not have to accept all the 613 mitzvot and are not enjoined to observe all of the 613 commandments. However, it is completely different as far as Jews are concerned, for they became obligated to fulfill the Torah because God delivered them from the bondage of Egypt to be the people of His possession. Therefore they and their children became subject to it forever and so are those Gentiles who make full-conversions to Judaism.

Answer for yourself: Since this is the condition that existed with the Jerusalem Assembly some 25 or more years following the time of the reputed Jesus of the New Testament then how could this understanding be changed? Should it not be the "truth" as it exists today regardless of what Rome will later do to "destroy" this Divine understanding for all "non-Jewish" believers in the God of Israel?

WHAT IS THE BOTTOM LINE ON THE MATTER?

It should be easy to see that the example of the New Testament Jesus and his Apostles never meant to abolish the Torah of Moses from one who is born a Jew. Likewise, did Paul write in his letter to the Corinthians (1 Cor 7) that each should adhere to the faith in which each was called. They therefore acted in accordance with the Torah by forbidding circumcision to Gentiles, according to Halakhah, as it is forbidden to one who does not accept the yoke of the commandments (all 613 would mean conversion to Judaism whereby then one would be obligated to all 613). They knew that it would be too difficult for the Gentiles to observe all the Torah of Moses especially living in "non-Jewish" settlements and lacking background in the Jewish Biblical faith. Let us not forget that the Gentiles never had the Revelation of the Torah at Sinai, the Ark of the Covenant, the Tabernacle, the Two Tablets, the prophets, or the Temple & Tabernacle services as were given to Israel. The Gentile's only experience was that they were strangers from the Covenant promises of Israel, aliens for the commonwealth of God's people, without hope and without God in the world.

Eph 2:12 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: (KJV)

The rabbis thus took the Gentiles the revelation of God and instructed them not to be circumcised unless they wished to be fully converted to Judaism (this had no bearing upon immersion since it was required for "partial" as well as "full" conversion). But this does not negate the "Laws and Commandments" given to the "non-Jew" long before the Covenant of Moses. Therefore, it would suffice that the Gentiles observe the Seven Noahide Commandments, as commanded upon them through the Halakhah from Moses at Sinai. This was the minimum requirements for inclusion into Israel and the minimum requirements of the "non-Jew's" Covenant with God.

An ancient Rabbi named Emden was correct; the "Jesus Movement" brought a double kindness into the world. One the one hand, it strengthened the Torah of Moses majestically:

Acts 21:20 20 And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and said unto him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all zealous of the law: (KJV)

Acts 21:20 states that many thousands of Jews were believers in "the Christ" and zealous for the Torah (Law); this was over 30 years after the supposed death of Jesus and presumed resurrection. The ministry of the Jerusalem Assembly helped return the "children of Israel back to their Fathers; the Patriarchs and their faith" and thus fulfill Malachi's prophecy.

On the other hand, the Jesus Movement did much good for the Gentiles. The Christ obligated his Apostles to fulfill the Great Commission by taking the Gentiles (as a minimum) the Seven Commandments of Noah so that they should not be as the beasts of the field and continue to live their lives as pagans and animals. He also bestowed upon them ethical ways, and in this respect he was much less stringent with them (66 laws) than the Torah of Moses was for the Jews (613). It is not necessary to impose upon Jews many such ethical practices, since they have been obligated to the yoke of Torah since Sinai. Israel took the oath at Sinai and are already trained in proper practice and nature of the Second Tablet of the Law (ethical monotheism and the horizontal relationships man-to-man). It would be for Paul to constantly correct, reprove, teach Apostolic Doctrine, and instruct the Gentiles in his travels since it was to his audience he would write "you are strangers from the Covenant promises, aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, without hope and without God in the world".

If Christians would study they would understand what I have detailed in this teaching. No longer would the Church be allowed to erroneously teach the abolishment of the Torah of Moses along with the Laws of Noah if the people in the pew would elevate their Biblical knowledge. Such would be impetus for the Pastors to study more and get off the golf courses. Such sin and false doctrines and foolishness would cease.

Because of these errant "supposed" scholars, hatred has increased toward the Jews who are blameless of any guilt concerning Jesus's death and proceed innocently to observe their Torah with all their heart (intellect), soul (dedication and commitment to action) and might (resources and property). The leaders of the Churches of Jesus Christ should study to learn correctly for themselves before they lead their people into sin and astray from the will of God for their lives. The Jew is the brother of the Christian. Ephraim (the grafted-in Gentile) and Judah make up Israel. As members of the Christian faith, how good and pleasant it might be if you would observe what was commanded to you by your first teachers, sent directly to you by God and His true message, and not the message that antisemitic Christianity has created these last 2000 years.

AS A CHRISTIAN DO YOU KNOW WHICH COVENANT YOUR UNDER? #8

After devoting considerable time and space to the discussion of Jeremiah's "New/Re-Newed" Covenant it is time once again to continue with our study into the Seven Covenants of YHWH in hopes of determining which Covenant the Christian finds his standing. The purpose of this study is not only to ascertain the above to help the "non-Jewish" Christian Believer better understand how he is to relate to the God of the Universe and take upon himself such Covenant stipulations in order to be more pleasing to Him. Now let us turn to the last Covenant given in the Bible.

#7 THE COVENANT WITH DAVID

The Davidic Covenant was the seventh covenant of the Jewish scriptures and the final covenant made with ancient Israel. Messianic expectation in the Abrahamic the Mosaic and the Moabite covenants was vaguely suggested but was not a dominant issue. The Davidic Covenant, however, is the stimulus of the Messianic hope of Israel.

Israel had no king from the Jewish year 2488, the year of their entrance into Eretz Israel, until the anointing of Saul, three hundred twenty-six years later. Saul reigned forty years. David reigned at Hebron for seven years before his kingdom was fully established in the Jewish year 2854. This was about nine hundred years before the Common Era. David, too, reigned for forty years. Only after his kingdom was established and the Davidic Covenant was ratified did Messianic speculation become a prominent theme in Israel's eschatological expectation.

Nathan, the prophet, in II Samuel 7:4-17, spoke the words of the Davidic Covenant. Developing their messages from that covenant, many of the prophets spoke in detail of the kingdom of the Messiah, the days of the Messiah and the Messianic Age.

According to the Messianic expectation of Israel, the Messiah will come from the line of David's descendants. The tribe of Judah had been designated as the regal tribe by the patriarch Jacob in the prophetic blessings of his sons in Genesis 49:8-12: Judah, thou art he whom thy brethren shall praise: thy hand shall be on the neck of shine enemies; thy father's children shall bow down before thee. Judah is a lion's whelp: from the prey, my son, thou art gone up: he stooped down, he crouched as a lion, and as an old lion; who shall rouse him up? The scepter [regal staff] shall not depart from Judah, nor a law-giver from between his feet, until Shiloh [the peace giver] come; and unto him shall the gathering of the [Gentile] people be. Binding his foal unto the vine, and his ass's colt unto the choice vine; he washed his garments in wine and his clothes in the blood of grapes. His eyes shall be red with wine, and his teeth white with milk.

This prophecy by Jacob that Judah would be the regal house of Israel was made in the Jewish year 2255. It lay dormant without any particular fulfillment until Nathan expressed the Davidic Covenant at the beginning of the reign of David six hundred years later. Thereafter, Messianic speculation and expectation grew rapidly. The division of Israel into two kingdoms, the moral decadence of those kingdoms, the Babylonian captivity, and the struggle in the reestablishment of Judah made the hope of the Promised One of David even more urgent. The coming of the Romans and the oppression of the Edomite dynasty of the Herods sharpened the Messianic consciousness to a keen edge.

Answer for yourself: What did the Jews of the first century expect the Messiah, the regal son of David, to be and to do?

Answer for yourself: How, if at all, did their Messianic expectation differ from the traditional view of Judaism today concerning the person and work of the Messiah?

First:

- The Messiah would be human.
- He would be a descendant of David, and he would be from the City of David, Bethlehem of Judaea.
- He would make his appearance in a regal form. He would be a triumphant king!
- He would arise as did David out of the ranks of the common people.
- The Messiah would appear at a particular time and in a particular situation. His appearance would come at a time of great distress and trouble. He would reveal himself at a dark time when the nation of Israel would be on the brink of destruction.
- The Messiah, the Son of David, would appear and redeem the nation from gross oppression forced upon them by alien powers (the Gentiles). He would destroy all those oppressors. He would purge the land of Israel from apostate rule and religious hypocrisy.
- He would bring again the Shekinah Glory to the Temple.
- The law of Torah would once more rule the land.
- He would avenge the people of Israel and destroy the Gentile nations which had sought the destruction of the people and nation of Israel.
- He would establish an unprecedented era of peace on earth. The nations would learn war no more. Peace and justice and righteousness would reign upon the earth.
- In the days of the Messiah, the dead would be raised.
- Israel would receive its full inheritance from the Nile River in Egypt in the south to the Euphrates River in the north.
- The earth would be filled with the knowledge of the Eternal One as the waters cover the seas. The Messiah would restore the whole earth and all mankind to its perfect state under the Edenic Covenant.
- That Messiah would never die, but he would live forever and ever, ages without end. Of his kingdom, there would be no end. He would reign forever and ever.

These are the expectations of the Davidic Covenant with all its developments through the prophets. This is what the Jews of the first century expected the Messiah to do and to be. This is what traditional Judaism today expects in the person and work of the Messiah. The Jews have never, they can never, they will never accept anyone as Messiah who does not meet these expectations and performances.

Answer for yourself: Has this happened yet? No, it awaits fulfillment today.

NOW YOU HAVE SEEN THE EVIDENCE

These seven covenants are the covenants of the Jewish scripture. They express the promises of God to Israel and the expectations Israel has of his God. The Edenic, the Adamic and the Noahic covenants are universal and are to the Gentiles. Outside of Conversion to Judaism, the Christian has to find his "identity" with God in these and only these covenants. It does not take a rocket scientist to understand that the Edenic and Adamic Covenants today were specific and not applicable to the non-Jewish believer. This means that the non-Jewish believer today, the Christian and the Muslim for example and all other non-Jews find their relationship and standing with God ONLY through the Covenant of Noah. For the Christian to maintain that he has a relationship with God apart from the Covenant of Noah along with its 66 laws and commandments is ludicrous if not downright dangerous. To do so means you stand outside the Covenants of God! It means you reject the only Covenant you have and find your standing before God based on man-made theology which contradicts the Jewish Scriptures! This is the legacy of anti-Semitic Rome who recorded such ideas within the New Testament which is a document they "finalized" and altered almost beyond recognition. Israel is involved in these covenants only in a restricted sense. The Abrahamic, the Sinatic, the Moabic, and the Davidic are primarily to the separate people of Israel. The Gentile nations or individuals are involved only in a restricted measure to these covenants of Israel.

Answer for yourself: At this point, a vital question arises demanding an answer: What did Jesus mean when he said, "This cup is the New Testament [or New Covenant] in my blood shed for the sins of many"?

Answer for yourself: To which of the seven covenants was he making reference? Or, was he making reference to any of the former covenants?

Answer for yourself: Was the New Testament spoken of by Jesus an entirely separate economy from any of the former?

Answer for yourself: If it was a separate economy from the seven covenants of Israel's scripture, what is its relationship to them?

Answer for yourself: Or did Jesus even say "new" although the Bibles you buy today has such a wording?

Answer for yourself: Can it be shown from archeology and examination of the Greek New Testament manuscripts that "new" was added to these passages by the Monks as they continually created new "theologies" not taught in the Jewish Scriptures nor accepted by the Jerusalem Church? It sure can!

Answer for yourself: Have you ever looked in a good study Bible to the footnotes that tell you that the word "new" is not in the best and oldest manuscripts?

The above example of adding "new" to the corners and margins of existing Greek manuscripts whereby later it was included in the "text" as if God breathed is just another in a long series of examples of Gentile theologians creating a "replacement religion" which was given to unsuspecting Gentiles who knew no better having not been equipped with the knowledge of the Jewish Scriptures. In other words we follow in Christianity today a false religion that is diametrically opposed to the faith and religion of a Jew like this Jesus.

REPLACEMENT THEOLOGY AND THE VALIDITY OF THE GENTILE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Replacement theologians paint one big sign on the Jewish Bible and call it the "Old Testament." This implies, naturally, that it is antiquated, abrogated, obsolete, done away with, and destroyed. For all practical purposes for the Christian "non-Jewish" believer the "Old Testament" is replaced by the "New Testament." The Gentile theologians have treated the "Old Testament" with great disrespect like a piece of old clothing fit for throwing away. These Gentile theologians use the Jewish scripture only to rip off a part here and there, modify it to their own designs, and use it to make functional their theology of the "New Testament" which can be shown easily to be diametrically opposed to what Jesus both believed and practiced as a Jew. In other words lies are mixed in with truths in the New Testament and without training and education on your part you most likely cannot tell the difference when reading it. Thus you come away from the New Testament with a mixture of truth and lies which leads you to incorrect beliefs which influence your actions. The bottom line is that this becomes sin in many cases because such conduct violates the commandments of God which are the founding blocks of your Covenant and which assure your right-standing before God.

In ripping off or stealing parts from the Jewish canon, these Gentile Christian Replacement Theologians took the words "Israel" and "Jews," reinterpreted them with new spiritual interpretations, and attempted to pass them off as "True Israel" and "True Jews" as designations of the Church and the Christians.

The theologians took pleasure in calling the ancient people of Jacob "old," "fleshly," "earthly," or "natural Israel." They considered the Jews of the Old Testament heritage as no more purposeful than other discarded clothes lining the street outside a goodwill container.

Replacement theologians not only discarded the people of the covenants of Israel, they also reduced the holy, immutable, eternal covenants of oath to mere vows which could be revoked by official Church dogmas and "bulls". Any benefits found in those covenants were ripped off and applied to the Church. Christianity and Christian theology became the new vehicle of divine revelation, a vehicle made from selected parts from the Jewish Old Testament.

The tools used in making this modification were the terms of Greek logic and mythology as well as the content of Greek philosophy. Pagan words and pagan definitions totally alien to Jewish thoughts were substituted for rabbinic concepts. Foreign terms such as incarnation, theophany and trinity were introduced into the new system. These pagan mythological clichés became the dogmatic expression and credo of the new religion.

Every field of systematic theology was affected by this replacement concept. The concept of the Jewish God of the Old Testament was treated as a legalistic God of wrath and judgment. He was contrasted to the new God of the Christian New Testament, who is a God of love in Jesus. The Law of Torah became a bitter, vulgar and obsolete thing, while the sweet Christian love could create holy wars, crusades, the Inquisition, and pogroms. That sort of "Christian love" is ludicrous and sickens the minds of men not filled with hatred for the Jewish people.

The anthropology of replacement theology wiped out all suggestion of the Jews as a chosen or separate people. In this new order, Jesus did away with Israel as separate from the Gentile nations. The Jews became not only like all other peoples, they were relegated to a subhuman class. Much of the Gentile Church's propaganda against the Jews consisted of direct quotes from Christian literature and liturgy. The Chosen People are the Christians, not the Jews.

To illustrate how perverted the logic of Christian anthropology became, the Jew who converted to Christianity had to deny his Jewishness. At his baptism, he vowed to renounce Judaism and all its "heresies." After his baptism he was told that he was no longer a Jew, but was now a Christian. In many cases he was forced to change his name from a Jewish to a Christian one. He had to give up the observance and sanctification of the Sabbath for the day of the Sun. His Biblical Festivals were replaced with pagan holidays only "re-worked" to which Jesus's name was attached.

After these renunciations of his Jewishness, these Jewish converts to Christianity began to study the catechism which taught that the pagan Gentiles who become Christians became true spiritual Jews. The logic of Christian anthropology is more a double inversion rather than a simple conversion. The Jew who became a Christian became a Gentile, while the Gentile who became a Christian became a Jew. Such metamorphosis is nowhere to be found in nature (or in the scriptures).

THE TRUE MESSAGE OF SALVATION OF THE BIBLE CHANGES IN THE NEW TESTAMENT....HOW CAN THAT BE SINCE GOD CHANGES NOT?

The soteriology of replacement theology deals with replacement doctrines of salvation. In this concept Jesus came to be the Savior of Israel. Israel, accordingly, rejected the Savior and crucified him. In this crisis, the "God" of Christian love quickly put the pieces of this tragedy into a new plan, producing the crisis theory of the Gospel of salvation made available to everyone.

The church, instead of Israel being a light unto the nations for salvation, soon became the object of this salvation through dogmas, sacraments, or other institutional demands. As time passed, multiple varieties of doctrines developed in the various denominations, many of which conflicted and contradicted the doctrines of others. Unity in the doctrines of Christ was impossible with over 2000 different Christian denominations which have over 2000 different ideas about Jesus. Most of the Good News propagated by the missionaries today is to convert other Christians to their own denomination's "salvation," while they admittedly declare "millions have never heard the Gospel."

In all the various Christian salvation messages, there are only two classes of people in this world and in the world to come. There are the saved and the lost. The definition of who the "lost" are is determined by to whom you speak. The saved are those who accept a given particular message of a "particular" denomination over that of another. The Catholics have a different salvation message from the Baptists, they both differ from the Church of Christ, etc. Those who do not obey the various particular interpretations of the Gospel are the lost. More than anyone else, the Jew is treated as lost, blind, stubborn and damned. The "God" of Christian love has put all of his eggs in one basket now—the Christian church.

In 1973, over one hundred forty denominations decided to drop all doctrinal differences and join hands in the "Key '73" project. One single objective was in focus. "Let us reach the whole world with the Gospel message in the next decade." The Key '73 program spelled out its own failure. The problem was that the one hundred forty denominations could not agree on what the Gospel really is. If Christianity cannot define and agree on the "Gospel of Jesus Christ which is the power of God unto salvation," how could they ever agree on anything?

Soteriology, the doctrine of salvation, is the most emphatic and important section of Christian theology. This is especially true in evangelical Christianity. Yet, in this very field, that same Christian theology finds its greatest weakness. If you have not noticed that New Testament is full of two competing and conflicting "Gospel" dealing with inheriting Eternal Life...one Gospel as taught by Jesus and one as taught by Paul and neither agree with each other. One is true and one is false. Likewise there are two different messages on how to inherit "Eternal Life"; again one by Jesus and one by Paul and they are contradictory.

Answer for yourself: Have you ever noticed this? If not, e-mail us for the articles and we will show it to you beyond any doubt.

Ecclesiology is the study of community or church. Since salvation is only in the Gospel of Jesus Christ, according to replacement theologians, the only true community of God would be the Church. Denominational plurality finds its strongest expression in ecclesiology. It erased the distinction between soteriology, or salvation, and ecclesiology, or the church. The church and salvation became synonymous. Cyprian, in the fourth century was first to say that "there is no salvation outside the Bishop (the Catholic Church)". His ideas continue today. "Our church is the one and only true religion"; "Our church is the pillar and ground of the truth"; "Our church is the body and bride of Christ; other Christians may be in heaven, but they will only be friends of the bridegroom—we are the true church"; "God raised up our church to call all the true believers out of the apostate churches in our city." These quotations and other statements, such as "the plain truth," "facts you need to know about God's will for your life," "our denominational distinctives," are common to the vast majority of Christian organizations throughout the world. At the same time, they all deny the community of Israel, the Jewish people, the light to the nations given by God. Israel has no place in the economy of God, according to strict replacement theology.

If the Christian believes that the Church is the only true community of God, and that his particular denomination enjoys a special favor in that economy, he finds himself experiencing a great difficulty in recognizing the legitimacy of other Christians being on equal standing without a compromise of his own denominational distinctives. It would be totally foreign for him to accept the idea that Israel had a community relationship with God completely separate and apart from his own.

When, however, the Christian makes the discovery that not only Israel has a place in the economy of God, but his standing before God is dependent on him being grafted into and part of the Israel of God whereby he accepts and attempts to live by his Covenant stipulations, the Covenant of Noah, then it will revolutionize his attitude toward, and his relationship with, Jewish people, with his neighbor Christians, with the study of the Bible, with himself, and with God. Ecclesiology made no allocation for a plural community either in this world or in the world to come. Such a shame. Shalom.

LESSONS TO BE LEARNED FROM THE OLIVE TREE "THEOLOGY" OF PAUL

Paul, or should I say "the real Paul" of the New Testament is a very complicated study. In fact it took me two different websites to deal with the "false presentation" of Paul in one website and the "real Paul" in the Gnostic-Christian website. But this important study into the real presentation of Paul in the New Testament is another study that must wait for another day. What is before us now is the vision and scope of Paul's Divine Revelation concerning the whole of mankind as intended by God. Paul saw a united brotherhood of all men and women regardless of sex, race, religion, creed, etc. This is a breath of fresh air in our day with so many "isms" breeding hatred and suspicion between this intended brotherhood of mankind. Paul uses the analogy of a "tree" to teach a Divine Lesson in which all nations of the world needs to hear today and he did it using the analogy of a simple "tree".

THE IMPORTANCE OF THE OLIVE TREE FOR THE CHRISTIAN TODAY...IN LIGHT OF THE PLIGHT OF THE NON-JEWISH CHURCH

The most conspicuous use of the image of a tree in the Bible is the use of the olive tree which we find in Romans 11 where Paul describes the relationship between Israel, or should I say the Jewish people and God's ancient and ongoing covenantal relationship with the Jewish people and the newly emerging Gentile Church.

One of the most remarkable trees on earth is the olive tree and living in the Western Hemisphere we are not very familiar with the olive tree because they don't grow near where we live. However, if we lived in the lands of the Bible this would not be our experience because the olive tree is one of the most important of all the trees because it has been a source of food, light, hygiene and healing to these Biblical nations for thousands of years.

When looking at photographs of Israel, we often see olive trees which are found covering the terraced mountainsides in the Galilee, Judea and Samaria. They are beautiful and actually breath-taking to look at with their unique gnarled and twisted trunks and evergreen tops. Just looking at them you cannot help being grasped by a sense of beauty, strength, durability, and eternity that sets them apart from so many other trees. As with other common symbols in Israel, these unique characteristics of the olive tree was recognized by the Ancient writers of the Bible and chosen for this very purpose to be a "picture" of sorts that can teach mankind Divine Lessons concerning God, Israel, and the "non-Jew" and his relationship to both God and Israel.

These olive trees as found in Israel were always plentiful around the countryside and are known for their tenacity, durability, and ability to survive against all odds. You might get the idea of "Eternity" by looking at the age and durability of these olive trees for they, through allegory, speak a Divine Message to those with ears to hear.

They grow in almost any conditions; on terraced hills or in valleys, in rocky or fertile soil. They can thrive in great heat with a minimum of water, and are virtually undestroyable. Some grow from root systems 2,000 years old, yet the olive producer has to wait fifteen years for his first good harvest. If you remember it was an olive leaf that a dove from Noah's ark brought to Noah. "Then the dove came to him in the evening, and behold, a freshly plucked olive leaf was in her mouth; and Noah knew that the waters had receded from the earth" (Genesis 8:11).

What we need take notice of is that whatever else perished in the flood waters, the indestructible olive tree was still alive. At least since the time of Julius Caesar, one of the universal emblems of peace has been that of the olive branch.

LESSONS FROM THE PSALMS CONCERNING THE OLIVE TREE

Primarily, the olive tree symbolizes faithfulness and steadfastness. This becomes very important in light of how the Gentile Christian Church has not remained faithful and has not stood fast in holding to and observing the Word of God as was given to them originally by the Jewish people as well as the Jerusalem Assembly as seen from the study of Acts 15. By this I mean the Divine Message sent throughout the world teaching these "non-Jews" the "necessary things" required of them by God in order to be "accepted into the Israel of God" and "be saved". Over the centuries the Gentile Christian Church has made many changes to both the Old Testament and the New Testament which flat out contradicts and conflicts with many of the teachings of the Law, the Prophets, and the Writings as found in the Hebrew Tanakh. In other words they literally "added to and took away from the Word of God" and most Christians don't know this because they have falsely believed the Bible they have in their possession which they inherited from Rome never once ever comparing the verses in their Christian Bibles with those in the Jewish Bibles. If they had then they would have been startled, like myself, to see these hundreds and hundreds of "purposeful changes" made to the Hebrew texts by Rome in order to ensure that the "non-Jew" looks not to Judaism and Jerusalem for Divine Instruction but to Rome instead. Archeology today and modern scholarship show us without a doubt today that what I am saying is the absolute truth. A Christians has only to find the courage to look into this disturbing study. If you want to find ample evidence for the above charge you need look no further than our web site which will reveal to you the hundreds of errors of which I speak (<http://messianicprophecy.netfirms.com>). So if we are to be faithful and steadfast to the Divine Message that God gave Israel for the "non-Jewish" world then we must know what the "truth was" back then and then compare it with the supposed "received truths" which we are taught today by Roman Christianity and its Protestant offspring. Peter addresses the issues of what I speak: "

2 Pet 1:12

12 Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present

truth.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice the little word "present" in the above verse?

As you read and study this series of articles you will see for yourself that the "present truth" of which Peter spoke was changed since the earliest parts of the second century when we find the beginning for the emergence of the Roman Church. In reality we do not follow the faith of this "New Testament Jesus" of whom we read in our New Testaments as Christians today and never know it because our New Testaments contain so many passages that have been altered to misrepresent Judaism and what Judaism teaches about the "non-Jew". Without knowing of these alterations and changes the reader is unaware that what he is reading is often a gross deviation from what God intended the "non-Jew" of the world was to learn in light that this same New Testament teaches us that "salvation is of the Jews" (John 4:22). Very few Christians, since having not done these types of studies, fail to know the true unreliability of this Christian Bible we inherited from Rome. This will become more clear to you as we proceed. Let us continue to look at the Olive Tree.

Psalms 52:8 says, "But I am like a green olive tree in the house of God; I trust in the mercies of God forever and ever."

No matter what the conditions: hot, dry, cold, wet, rocky, or sandy, the olive tree will live and produce fruit. It is said that you can never kill an olive tree. Even when cut down or burned, new shoots will emerge from its roots. This scripture passage reminds us that no matter the conditions of life, we should remain steadfast as the olive tree in the presence of God.

Psalms 128:3 says, "Your wife shall be like a fruitful vine in the very heart of your house; Your children like olive plants all around your table."

The analogy of your children being like olive plants all around your table would tell the ancient Bible reader that his offspring would be plentiful, hearty, and even dutifully responsive to the parents. All you have to do is look at almost any olive tree and you will see as many as ten or more new tree shoots growing up out of the root system around the tree. Psalms 128:3 would have been a comforting and faithful promise from the Lord!

THE OLIVE TREE AND THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH...THE METAPHOR OF ROMANS 11 WHICH WE IGNORE

Let us look at the metaphor of Romans 11 as it described the relationship of the non-Jewish believer with not only God but the intended relationship that he is to have with God's Israel. Christians are simply the wild branches grafted in among the natural (Israel) branches (Rom. 11:17).

Rom 11:17 17 And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, were grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree; (KJV)

Answer for yourself: Can you see that Christians are simply, as described by this verse, types of wild branches grafted in among the natural branches of the Jewish Israel (Rom. 11:17) in order to "became a partaker with them of the root and fatness of the olive tree" (11:17)?

The most striking use of the image of the olive tree in the Bible is in Romans 11 where Paul describes the relationship between Israel (the Jewish people and God's ancient and ongoing covenantal relationship) and the Church. In fact, the entire three chapters of Romans 9-11 are focused on this topic and culminate with the olive tree image. Please take time to read this passage. It is evident from Scripture, as well as from nature, that the root (Jewish Israel) supports the branches (Gentile Christians), and not vice versa (11:18). In this position, there is no room for pride or the notion that we Christians have replaced Israel (the Jewish people or their religion), or that God rejected His own Word in the Hebrew Scriptures (the Old Testament). Historically, the Church has not honored these passages as it not only boasted against the Jewish people (the natural branches), but severely persecuted them to the point of death. Often, the Church has lacked even the most basic understanding of their Hebrew roots but this is not the sole reason for such treatment of Israel; bigotry and racial hatred lie at its very core.)

Paul tells us the olive tree represents Israel in its purest expression of faithfulness and steadfastness as seen both God's commitment to His covenants and promises to His Jewish people, and theirs to Him. Those who turned away from that relationship were broken off. Christians are simply the wild branches grafted in among the natural branches (Rom. 11:17) to "became a partaker with them of the root and fatness of the olive tree" (11:17), which God established. It is evident from Scripture, as well as from nature, that the root supports the branches, and not vice versa (11:18). In this position, there is no room for pride or the notion that we Christians have replaced Israel (the Jewish people) as many Christians teach and believe, or that God rejected His own word and promises made in the Hebrew Scriptures (the Old Testament) to the Jewish people. There is no room for boasting, arrogance or antisemitism, as the Church has been prone to do, as both the natural branches and the engrafted wild branches only remain by faith (Rom. 11:18-21). Instead, there should only be Godly fear (11:20) and thankfulness for the Lord's great mercies to us (11:33-36), as well as an attitude of love and mercy towards the Jewish people who are "beloved for the sakes of the fathers." After all, it is through Israel and His covenant people that God gave us everything that Christians hold spiritually dear! Take note! There is only one tree, not two, and we as Christians and non-Jewish followers of the Jewish Christ are these "wild branches" have been privileged to drink in new life from the cultivated, established tree.

That tree dear one is Judaism!

Historically, the Church has not honored these passages as it not only boasted against the Jewish people (the natural branches), but severely persecuted them to the point of death down through the Middle Ages. Often, in so doing the people as well as the leaders of this Roman Church has lacked even the most basic understanding of their Hebrew roots, and is so doing , have not recognized that we cannot fully grasp who we are as "part of Israel" without acknowledging these Jewish roots. As a result, the historical Church has sadly perpetrated outrageous acts towards the "natural branches" (the Jewish people) during the Crusades, the Inquisition, the Pogroms, and even in the formulations of the teachings that became a religious justification for Hitler's Final Solution of the so-called "Jewish problem" in the Holocaust. Instead of mercy toward the Jewish people Christianity we showed contempt.

ARE WE HONORING OUR SPIRITUAL HERITAGE AND OUR JEWISH ROOTS IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH?

The prophet Isaiah said:

"Look to the rock from which you were cut and to the quarry from which you were hewn; look to Abraham, your father, and to Sarah, who gave you birth" (Isaiah 51:1-2).

After all, it is through Israel and His covenant people that God gave us everything that Christians hold spiritually dear! Christianity did not spring forth from a vacuum. It sprang from the highly developed religious tradition and culture of ancient Israel. In fact if you have taken the time to read the articles in this Website up to now then you saw how I showed you, the reader, over and over from examples taken from the Old Testament, that the "non-Jew" kept with the Jew these Biblical 7 Festivals, kept the Sabbath with the Jew, read the Torah with the Jew, and participated with the Jew in God's "Pattern of Worship". It is all too easy for us Gentiles to forget this all-important fact but more sadly we were never taught this in the Christian Church. Rome made sure of that and Constantine sealed it with his infamous Easter Letter.

Now its gets sticky because of the presentation of the Jewish Christ in the New Testament.

IMPORTANT DISCLAIMER:

It is important for the reader to understand that in this website, in comparing first century Judaism and their religious beliefs with later antisemitic Christianity and their presentation of the Jewish Messiah along with the unveiling of the historical truths concerning the non-Jewish "believer" in the first century, I will use a "literal-historical" approach to the "Jesus Story". After all that is how we all grew up in Christianity in the first place. If you have studied our other websites then you know that "the Christ" can be interpreted from 3 different perspectives down through recorded history: "mystical", "mythological", and "literal-historical". Only after one has spent a considerable time in dedicated and scholarly studies in such areas as Biblical Judaism, the Jewish Messiah and true Messianic prophecy as taken from the Hebrew Scriptures and not the later forged texts of Rome, manuscript evidences, the history and origin of the Roman New Testament, the Gnostic Paul vs the Roman Paul, the Essenes and their "literal godman", Gnosticism, Egyptian religion and the ancient "Jesus Story", Comparative religion, and Astrotheology can one fully understand and be certain which two of the above three methods of interpretation of "the Christ" are accurate and factual. That being said understand that Judaism and the Jewish people have never accepted nor believed in the New Testament "Jesus" as depicted in the New Testament?

Answer for yourself: Do you know why? Have you ever read the reasons and arguments presented by the Jewish people and their Rabbis as to why they cannot and do not believe in our Christian Jesus? Are you aware of the host of factual reasons and evidences that exist that bring our simple "Jesus Story" under the microscope of great doubt as Rome handed it down over the centuries. And these arguments and facts from modern scholarship and archeology strike at the very core of the "historical Jesus" question and the findings are alarming if not earth-shaking to the typical Christian.

I have devoted my life these last twenty years to find the truth behind the "Jesus Story" and have come through such difficult and emotionally trying studies to the truths behind this "Jesus Story" and I will leave all such conclusions to the reader based upon the facts and evidences that he obtains through examination of these studies. Again for purposes of comparing Judaism vs Christianity and the implications that this holds for the non-Jew and "Godfearer" we adopt in this website and for all studies in this website a "supposed" "literal-historical" interpretation of "the Christ" as well as the Jesus of the New Testament. Only in so doing can we adequately contrast the truths of Judaism vs the emergence of later Christianity and their conflicting and opposing theologies which both oppose and contradict the truths of their mother faith. In this chronological comparison of "beliefs" as seen through the eyes of this "supposed literal-historical" Jesus as the Jewish Messiah we are able to trace and see clearly through the eyes of Israel and the Jewish people the many Divine Truths handed down the corridors of history from nation to nation since the beginning of recorded time and see the earliest Divine revelations of God given mankind and sadly observe their gross alterations at the hands of antisemites and Roman Christianity; Divine Truths given in the beginning of mankind by our Creator which were intended for both "Gentiles" and "Jews" as well. Yes, the "Olive Tree" allegory and its Divine Intent go all the way back to the beginning of mankind. I will let you be the judge of the results of such studies and leave to the reader to draw the necessary conclusions as we attempt to compare Jewish and Christian theological perspectives all the while dealing with the New Testament Jesus as the oracle for these "Divine Truths" and in so doing approach the "Jesus Story" in such studies in a "literal-historical" manner in order for such an accurate comparison to be done effectively. One more thing needs to be said in preparation for our studies.

When one undertakes a diligent study into all facets of recovering the Jewish Roots of Christianity and the Hebraic Heritage of Christianity one often uncovers "hidden truths" concerning this cherished Jesus as the depicted Jewish Messiah which you wished you had never heard or learned so let me say right up front that the material on "this" website is definitely "strong meat". If you don't want the truth then this website, as well as many others by this Ministry, is not for you. In your studies on this website plus others offered by this ministry you will encounter things that will challenge your mind and emotions on all levels as you learn the difference between the truth and fiction, fable and reality, the Jewish Messiah and the presentation of the false Christian Messiah, the true Jesus Christ and the false Jesus Christ, the truth that lies behind the teaching of a historical Jesus as opposed to Mystical Christ of the earliest "Chrestians". Yes, I didn't misspell it. These are just some of the things which we will study and you will learn about as we see how Rome "reinterpreted" this Jewish Christ and in so doing kept these many truths of Judaism from the "non-Jew" of history (you today). You will come to see what was the religious belief system concerning this supposed "literal-historical" Jesus and "the Jewish Christ" as it existed up until the 3rd century as taught by the earliest "Chrestians" (not Christians) before the emergence of the Roman juggernaut we recognize today as Orthodox Christianity has been tragically altered almost beyond belief today. Expect the gamut of emotions ranging hurt, anger, and tears as you uncover the greatest deception of all mankind; namely, the replacement religion of Western Christianity which took the place of the Jewish faith which offered a place for believing "non-Jews" to be grafted into the "Olive Tree of Israel" in the first two centuries before being counterfeited and replaced in the 3rd century with a paganized Judaism which we call Gentile Christianity today. Such deception is foisted upon us today by a document touted to be "inspired, infallible, and inerrant, but when examined scholarly is found to be far from such an assessment on all counts. Of course by that I mean the New Testament. You will come to see for yourself the forgeries and purposeful misquotations, mistranslations, and verses taken out of context within the Canon of the New Testament when compared with the true Hebrew Scriptures. You will see how not only these Hebrew texts were forged, purposefully misquoted and mistranslated in order to be inserted into our Christian Bibles as a "replacement religion" but as well how a substitute "religious belief" system was given to the non-Jewish world by the efforts of antisemitic Roman Christianity. Along with this expect to see the truth concerning the canon of the New Testament and the biased selection and deletion of religious texts used by the early church after Rome took charge. You will come to see how the problem began with the Essenes at Qumran and culminated with Rome and it's antisemitism. If you have the courage to look for yourself into these deceptions regarding fulfilled Messianic prophecy recorded in your New Testament along with the truth about unfulfilled Messianic prophecy and the "Jesus Story" then I challenge you to "think" through the information on this and other websites from our ministry as you come to see the New Testament for what it really is - an antisemitic filled book created by the anti-Judaism of the early Roman Religious Establishment intended to lead you away from true Biblical faith and the true faith of "the Christ" (Biblical Judaism/Jewish Christianity as it existed in the first three centuries). My prayers are with you and you have nothing to fear from recovering the truth concerning the Hebrew Roots of Christianity. Your personal Exodus from falsehood to HaShem's truth is about to begin! Baruch Hashem! Craig M. Lyons M.Div.

Having said this then we can proceed by looking at this New Testament depiction of this Jesus and armed with knowledge from Judaism from other studies we see this "Yeshua" presented to us today and his "Jewishness" should probably shock most Christians given that fact that have so little in common with this depiction. For example, we know from scripture that a woman once came to him and touched the tzit-tzit, or fringes, of his garment (Luke 8:44). He wore the garments of Jewish tradition, just as many orthodox Jews do today, fulfilling the commands of the Law (Deut. 22:12).

We sometimes forget that even our Bible is an almost totally Jewish book. Yeshua, in his ministry, dealt exclusively with Jews and was very hesitant about ministering to Gentiles (Mark 7:24-30). By his own confession, He admitted coming specifically to the house of Israel (Matt. 15:24), and he even commanded his disciples not to go to Gentiles (Matt. 10:5).

Answer for yourself: What should the above statement teach us?

That it is ludicrous for Gentile Christians to think they have replaced or supplanted Israel in light of those Scriptures; in fact, it is a warning to us who are grafted into Israel to live "like Israel" and not like "Gentile-Pagans."

With the conversion of Emperor Constantine in the early fourth century, and the subsequent "Christianization" of the whole Roman Empire, this anti-Semitic trend of the emerging Gentile Church became crystallized. The Church moved rapidly to rid itself of all Jewish trappings. For example, the Christian holiday of Easter was divorced from its Jewish origins in the Passover; Saturday (Sabbath), the biblically prescribed day of rest and worship was changed to Sunday; Pentecost was disassociated from Shavuot, etc., as the Church attempted to cast off the influence of "this odious people" (as the Jews were described by some Church leaders).

Yeshua, as the depiction of the Jewish Christ of the nation of Israel said:
"Think not that I came to destroy the Law and the prophets...I came not to destroy them but to fulfill them!" (Matt. 5:17-18)

Answer for yourself: Are you living like Israel if you keep "Sunday" for your Sabbath when both the Bible and Israel observe Saturday as the Biblical Sabbath and have done so since the giving of the Laws of God?

Answer for yourself: Are you living like Israel if you keep Greco-Romanized pagan holidays to whom the monks of the Middle Ages attached the name of "Jesus", thereby Christianizing paganism and replacing the Hebrew Festivals of the LORD with pagan days? Are you aware that in so doing they were destroying the Ancient Pattern of Worship given mankind in the beginning of time?

Answer for yourself: Are you living like Israel by giving your tithe to churches who use it for whatever agenda their particular denomination requires, when the Bible specifically commands that the tithe be given specifically to widows, orphans, sick, lame, blind; as well as to be used on the celebration and observance of the Festivals and Sabbaths which, more than likely in your church, are different from what the Old Testament commands and which the texts can be shown to reveal; namely that both the Jew and the "non-Jew" were to observe these days together?

It was from this "Jewish - Hebrew" perspective that the Jerusalem Assembly, headed by James, began to reach out to the world of the Gentiles in Acts 15
and 16

Likewise, the earliest "church", and I use that word loosely, was a Jewish congregation and remained so until the inclusion of great number of Gentiles over the next generations as seen in history and in the later chapters of the Book of Acts. This movement taking the "Covenant of Noah" to the Gentile world was headquartered in the Jewish capital, Jerusalem, and was presided over by Jewish leaders.

God is "the same yesterday, today, and forever" (Heb. 13:8). As Christians, we should see that this Jesus, as depicted in the New Testament, epitomized the Law and the teachings of the prophets as the living Word of God. And yet, so many of us know so little of the Tanakh, the Hebrew Scriptures and in its place accept a New Testament that teaches that this "Jewish Christ" is the "end" of the Law when we saw above in the quote from Matthew 5:17-18 that no such thing is in the mind of the Jewish Christ! You have to look at antisemitic Rome to find "the end of the Law".

Christians refer to these Jewish writings as the "Old Testament" as though the term "old" means it is of little value when compared with the "new." Yet, without the "old," the "new" loses much of its meaning, and it is often misinterpreted or not fully interpreted. When we do this, we are missing out on much that God has for us in His Word.

Paul even commended the Corinthian "Gentile" believers in I Cor. 11:2
because they kept the "ordinances" which he had brought them (the Greek word for "ordinances" means "appointed times" and refers to Hebrew Festivals) WOW!!!!

As the young Gentile Church fought for its life against Roman persecution without and heresies from within, all this sadly tended to lead the Church toward exclusivism and into taking a stand against its Jewish roots. It was from this "Jewish/Hebrew" perspective that the Jerusalem Assembly and the Jewish nation began to reach out to the world of the Gentiles. Gentiles would now be able to receive the Jewish Scriptures, to heed the Jewish prophets, and to sing the Jewish Psalms. As Paul went out with the Acts 15 decree and its message, he was careful to stress that the message was emanating from Jerusalem and Israel. He encouraged Gentile saints to collect funds for the needy in Jerusalem (I Cor. 16:2-4); he referred difficult doctrinal decisions to Jerusalem and to the Jewish elders there (Acts 15:2); his journeys usually began or ended in Jerusalem. He even gave the Gentile church an example of keeping Jewish feasts in Jerusalem (Acts 20:16). Paul even commended the Corinthian Gentile believers in I Cor. 11:2 because they kept the "ordinances" which he had brought them (the Greek word for "ordinances" means "appointed times" and refers to Hebrew Festivals).

Answer for yourself: Can you see that this message, the "original Gospel and good news" which went into all the world to the masses of pagan Gentiles continued adherence to Jewish "ordinances?" You certainly need to for this is what the truth was in the "beginning" before the rise of antisemitic Rome and Constantine.

Answer for yourself: Does your experience as a Christians contain adherence and observance of such Jewish ordinances? It should if you want to be true to what God and His Christ desired for all those who accept him and follow him as Lord.

The apostle Paul did something else as he ministered among Gentiles. He stressed the importance of keeping the right attitude toward Israel and the Jewish people. That attitude was to be one of humility (Rom.11:20), mercy (Rom. 11:31) and kindness, even to the point of stressing an obligation in sharing material gifts with the people of Israel (Rom. 15:27). It was a wonderful ideal. But, in time, Paul's exhortations began to go unheeded.

There were many factors which brought about the vast chasm which exists today between Israel and the Christian Church. The two unsuccessful wars fought by the Jews against the Romans in AD 70 and in AD 133-135 undoubtedly did much to strain relations, since the early Church refused to help their Jewish brothers in these wars. Instead, in AD 70, the Church fled to Pella, across the Jordan River, following the warning of Matthew 24:16, believing the end of the world was at hand. The very vulnerability and isolation of the early Church also might have contributed to their sense of separation from those who began to persecute them.

Finally, the early Church Fathers certainly did not help the situation, since many were openly anti-Semitic.

The almost immediate result of such a "Replacement" theology was the outright persecution of Israel by the Church.

A theology generally termed as Triumphalism began to be in vogue. The same theology has persisted to this day, occasionally finding renewal under different names, including Replacement Theology. Basically, this belief proclaims that God is finished with the Jews; that Christianity has indeed replaced Judaism and that the Church is the true Israel. This theology is universally applied to all the scriptural blessings to the Church, and all the curses applied to Israel.

To show the fallacy of this theology read Rom. 9-11, and wherever it reads "Israel," everywhere it reads "Israel," replace it with the words, "the Church." You will quickly see how erroneous is this theology. Israel is Israel, even in the New Testament. And, when the Gentile Church is included in that concept, we are given that position by virtue of "grafting in," "adoption," "partakers," and being "made near;" never by replacement.

Of course, the almost immediate result of such a "Replacement" theology was the outright persecution of Israel by the Church. This malady has persisted through most of the 2,000 years of Christian history, contributing even to the Nazi Holocaust. It is surprising for most Christians to learn that Hitler only put into practice what the Church in Europe had believed and taught for centuries.

Gentiles (Christians) are to be a part of God's plan, but not the "whole plan" to the exclusion of Israel

Even today, after this awful disaster, anti-Semitism abounds in the Church as seen in its many Gentile doctrines and religious beliefs that have replaced the Apostolic doctrines which the original church "continued steadfastly in.". An example of this is seen in the fact that many otherwise loving Christians are suspicious of "those Jews."

I see many pastors and parishioners that are happy to visit Israel and see where Biblical history first hand, but they utterly no interest in the miraculous and prophetic renewal of the Jewish state, which is now in progress. Perhaps this is an expression of the ultimate in anti-Semitism, the denial that the Jewish people have any place in God's plan today let alone their own land.

RECOVERING OUR SPIRITUAL HERITAGE AND OUR INTENDED INHERITANCE IN THE CHRISTIAN CHURCH

What we see prescribed in the Bible is a far cry from what we see in the Church today. We see that God had purposed from the outset that Gentiles (Christians) are to be a part of His plan, but not the whole plan to the exclusion of Israel. We receive glimpses of this program of God as far back as Father Abraham. God promised the patriarch that he would be the father of multitudes of goyim (peoples, nations, Gentiles...Gen. 17:4), and that all nations would be blessed in him (Gen. 12:3). This theme is carried on in the descendants of Abraham. We see it particularly in Joseph, who was married to a Gentile woman in Egypt. This woman just happened to be the daughter of the Pharaoh. Joseph married "the throne" and this is important for the later Hebrew Pharaohs of Egypt in the 18th Dynasty and the rise of Moses and King Tutankhamen.

One of Joseph's children, Ephraim, is very, very important for he and his offspring was destined to become one of the most numerous and powerful tribes in the later Northern Kingdom and in fact Ephraim, himself, was to become one of the Hebrew Pharaohs of Egypt. The blessing upon the head of this little Jewish lad was very important.

Answer for yourself: What was this blessing?.

Gen 48:19 19 And his father refused, and said, I know it, my son, I know it: he also shall become a people, and he also shall be great: but truly his younger brother shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become a multitude of nations [Gentiles] (KJV)

The blessing is astounding as made to a Hebrew, a Jew. Simply, it says that he would be the father of multitudes of Gentiles and "non-Jews" (Gen.48:19). After all his children, mind you, come from an Egyptian mother, the daughter of the Pharaoh. We have a "mixed multitude" right here; no longer a pure blood line of Hebrews but a "non-Jewish" blood line!!! (THINK).

Much later, Ephraim (the people) were dispersed into the nations by God's judgment upon Northern Israel, and along with the other nine "lost tribes" Israel will be "seeded" among the nations of the world ever further "genetically". The dispersion of these so called "Jews", but whom in reality many were "mixed multitudes", among the nations and their effect upon nations, and their recovery and restoration to their land still remains a mystery too great for us to fathom in this one short article.

But yet we see the same theme picked up again in the woman Rahab, who was saved from the doomed city of Jericho and allowed to join with the people of Israel; and again as the prophet Isaiah describes the Messiah of Israel, called the "Root of Jesse." It is said that this Messiah would "stand as a banner for the peoples (Gentiles); the nations will rally to him, and his place of rest will be glorious" (Isa. 11:10). But perhaps we see the theme of Gentiles being joined to Israel most clearly in Ruth the Moabitess, who was not only allowed access into Israel, but who became the great grandmother of King David.

"Where you go I will go, and where you stay I will stay.
Your people will be my people and your God my God"
(Ruth 1:16)

The beautiful story of Ruth and her acceptance of the "faith once given to the saints", the same Divine Truths given in the beginning to Egypt and which these Hebrews accepted while in Egypt, expresses for us most clearly what a proper attitude toward Israel should be. These Jewish people carry the greatest and most uncorrupted Divine Truths ever given mankind in the beginning of mankind which we find in Ancient Egypt. In fact, Ruth woman seems to illustrate in her life most all the fruit of the Spirit mentioned by Paul in Galatians 5:22-23. She was truly devoted to her Israelite mother-in-law. She loved her with a deep love and commitment which led her to forsake her own heritage and even her country, in order to be with Naomi. When Ruth arrived in Israel it was not with a feeling of superiority as many Christians have today. Instead, "she bowed down with her face to the ground..." (Ruth 2:10). She was willing to abase herself to a position lower than a servant girl (2:13). Her attitude was one of continual mercy and generosity as she shared her meager gleanings with Naomi (2:18).

The life of Ruth was also marked with obedience (3:5), kindness (3:10), holiness (3:10), discretion (3:14), and true love, faithfulness and commitment to Israel (4:15). Ruth said to Naomi, "Where you go I will go, and where you stay I will stay. Your people will be my people and your God my God" (Ruth 1:16).

Perhaps in Ruth's life we get a visual example of what the engrafting into the olive tree of Romans 11 is all about. It is time that we, the Church, put aside our arrogance and in humility understand what it means to be that wild olive branch graciously grafted in by God to receive from Israel those everlasting covenants (plural), promises and hopes by which we have been "made near" to (Eph. 2:11-13) -- lest we be broken off for our arrogance and boasting.

Let us honor our roots and show love and mercy to God's natural branches! Now, we are ready for the second article in this series.

THE NON-JEWISH CHRISTIAN...A FELLOW CITIZEN OF ISRAEL WITH THE JEW

In reading a book recently entitled The Day America Told the Truth, by James Patterson and Peter Kim, I ran across a survey in which people were asked to rank 73 occupations for their honesty and integrity. Americans said that the four sleaziest ways to make a living in America are: drug dealer, organized crime boss, TV evangelist, and prostitute. Notice that prostitution was considered a more "honorable way to make a living than TV evangelism.

Answer for yourself: How could Christianity evolve into something that would allow such to occur?

The involved study that follows will thoroughly answer that question to your satisfaction.

The Rabbinic Sages were often heard saying "Kol hatchalot kashot;" which is Hebrew for "all beginnings are difficult." Fostering the renewal of Gentile Christianity to its Judaic roots after being estranged from it for nearly two millennia, is no exception. Just as physical birth and spiritual growth involve pain, so too the revitalization of Gentile Christianity. Today, more than at any other time, there is a sense of urgency within the Gentile Church to understand in Hebraic terms its faith and calling. While the Rabbinic Sages maintained that all beginnings involve difficulty, they also insisted that the greater the degree of hardship, the greater the reward. In this case, continuity with the Olive Tree will bring the life, power and stability that the Gentile Church so desperately needs in our world today.

As Gentiles, we should long for a deeper and more fruitful relationship with the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and with Israel. We should long to be restored and reconciled to the Olive Tree of the Israel of God.

The purpose of this document is to provide Gentile Christians in multitudes of various denominations with a basic overview of the story of the Olive Tree of Israel as it has developed historically and theologically over the last two millennia. It is hoped that it will serve as a simple resource from which you can glean a better understanding of and appreciation of the condition of the Gentile Church which originally was conceived within Yeshua's Movement within Judaism in the first century. It is hoped that this study will act as a catalyst for further study and the development of a sincere desire for not only a understanding the Jewish roots of Christianity, but serve as a source of Biblical illumination that will lead the Gentile Christian to a more Biblical obedient life-style which is pleasing to our Creator who imparted these Divine Revelations to the Ancients who fathered the Jewish race and who carry these Divine Revelations in the most intact form on the planet today. Ultimately, it is hoped that many will re-evaluate their existing religious belief system in view of the new facts that will not only be presented but which will illuminate and challenge the disobedience of the Gentile Church to these earliest Divine Revelations as it exists today. It is my hope that your congregational life in your existing church will be affected in such a positive manner that you will begin to adjust your lives and begin to fully engage yourself in the rich heritage and life of the Olive Tree of Israel. Lastly my prayer for you is that together we can begin to believe, practice, observe, and celebrate all that being "engrafted" into the Olive Tree of Israel offers us.

Rom 11:16-25 16 For if the firstfruit be holy, the lump is also holy: and if the root be holy, so are the branches. 17 And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, wert grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree; 18 Boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee. 19 Thou wilt say then, The branches were broken off, that I might be grafted in. 20 Well; because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not highminded, but fear: 21 For if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee. 22 Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God: on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off. 23 And they also, if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be grafted in: for God is able to graft them in again. 24 For if thou wert cut out of the olive tree which is wild by nature, and wert grafted contrary to nature into a good olive tree: how much more shall these, which be the natural branches, be grafted into their own olive tree? 25 For I would not, brethren, that ye should be ignorant of this mystery, lest ye should be wise in your own conceits; that blindness in part is happened to Israel, until the fulness of the Gentiles be come in. (KJV)

INTRODUCTION: EXAMINATION OF THE OLIVE TREE

Of Israel, Jeremiah the prophet wrote,

The Lord called you a thriving Olive Tree, with fruit beautiful in form, (Jeremiah 11:16).

Hosea the prophet said,

Israel's splendor will be like the Olive Tree, (Hosea 14:6).

David, King of Israel, declared,

I am like a green Olive Tree flourishing in the house of God, (Psalms 52:8).

Paul uses this symbol of the living and growing Olive Tree to show that the destinies of faithful Jews and Gentiles are inextricably bound together.

Answer for yourself: Why is this so important to understand for the Christian Church?

Paul's analogy of the Olive Tree represents the proper relationship between the Jewish people and Gentile believers in the God of Israel. In Paul's mind, Gentile believers, find their true identity ONLY in connection with Israel, the Jewish people, and the Covenants of God. Paul implies that Gentile believers are spiritually fed, sustained and supported by their relationship with Israel, the true Olive Tree.

Answer for yourself: Paul, a "converted" Gentile, now considered a "Jew" following his conversion and who yet maintained his Roman citizenship, preaching to Greeks and Gentiles, selected what as the example to illustrate the Gentile's being grafted into the people of God as seen in Romans 11-26? The Olive tree.

Answer for yourself: What did the prophets Jeremiah and Hosea use to compare the people of God in Jeremiah 11:16 and Hosea 14:6? The Olive Tree.

Answer for yourself: Paul uses what symbol to illustrate the intertwined destinies of faithful Jews and Gentiles who come together in the one faith in Yahweh? Olive tree.

Answer for yourself: In Paul's mind, Gentile believers find their true identity only in connection with what other people of God? Israel.

Answer for yourself: Paul implies that Gentile believers are spiritually fed, sustained and supported by their relationship with the true Olive Tree. To what nation of people did he refer? Israel.

Answer for yourself: Did Paul teach that the Gentile Christian Church supports Israel or did he teach that Israel supports the Gentile Christian Church? Israel supports the Gentile church.

Answer for yourself: Does Paul imply that Israel is spiritually fed, sustained and supported by their relationship with the Christian church or did he say that the Christian Gentile church is supported and finds its support in Olive Tree of Israel? The Christian Gentile church is supported by Israel. We need to get this and get this idea correctly now!

Paul used the image of the Olive Tree because of some of its most remarkable features. It is a tree with extreme longevity, easily outliving all other fruit trees (notice the symbolism of Eternal Life). The tree is hearty and grows for centuries. In Israel, Olive Trees fall into three categories: very young trees (those planted 50 years ago), moderately young (50 to 300 years old) and mature trees, some of which grow from root systems 2000 years old. No matter what the conditions: hot, cold, dry, wet, rocky or sandy soil, the Olive Tree will live and produce fruit. Its most remarkable characteristic is its tenacity and long life. It is said that you can never kill an Olive Tree. Even when cut down, or burned, new shoots will emerge from the root (Psalms 128:3). Again, this parallels the history of the Jewish people who, because of anti-Semitism and anti-Judaism have been persecuted repeatedly by Gentile nations, wars, and invasions; yet continually outlive their captors. Nations that conquered and subjected Israel to repeated slavery are not to be found in the world today, yet Israel survives as a testimony to the eternal plan of God for Israel.

The Mount of Olives in Jerusalem is a testament to this longevity, where trees hundreds of years old can be found. In Matthew 26:36 Yeshua retreated to pray after the Passover meal to a place where abundant Olive Trees and an Olive press were located. It was called Gethsemane, or in Hebrew "gat shemen." The Hebrew term for press is "gat" and the word for oil is "shemen," thus "gat-shemen" or Gethsemane.

Herein lies Israel's likeness to the Olive Tree. Their longevity as a culture, is a derivative of their unique faith, tradition and commitment to Torah. Their understanding of God and His relation to their lives and history, gave them a sense of identity, destiny, and mission which in turn, sustained and enabled them to withstand hostile forces of assimilation and disintegration. It becomes obvious, why Paul, uses the Olive Tree image to illustrate the unity between Israel [the cultivated Olive Tree] and Gentile believers [wild olive branches]. Although denied by much of Gentile Christianity today, the most important point is that Gentiles apart from Israel [the Olive Tree] have no prospects of life [spiritual blessings] which is found in the rich sap of the life-giving root of the Olive Tree.

Answer for yourself: How can I say this? How can I make such a statement? Well the New Testament and Judaism teach the same things. Notice the Biblical description of the "non-Jew" if you will:

Eph 2:11-12 11 Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world: (KJV)

Answer for yourself: What was the rationale of the prophets and the Apostle Paul in choosing Israel to be likened to the Olive Tree? Its long life which is often related to "Eternality" or "Eternal Life" or should I rather say "salvation".

Answer for yourself: Although denied by much of Gentile Christianity today, is the most important point for understanding by the Gentile Christian is that apart from whom [the Olive Tree] the Gentile believer has no prospects of life [spiritual blessings] which is found only in the rich sap of the life-giving root of the Olive Tree of Israel? Yes.

THE ROOT OF THE OLIVE TREE

The roots of the Olive Tree are extremely sturdy and are the reason why the tree is able to thrive in terraced hills or valleys, rocky or fertile soil. The roots run deep and allow the tree to produce fruit in great heat with a minimum of water. Some have argued that the root in Paul's analogy represents the Messiah or his Messianic movement. But this view confuses the expression root of Jesse (Isaiah 11:10) or root of David (Revelation 5:5) with Paul's root of the Olive Tree (Romans 11:17b). David Bivin, in his The Identity of the Root of the Olive Tree in Romans 11, published in Jerusalem by the Jerusalem School of the Study of the Synoptic Gospels, states that the context of Sha'ul's letter supports the conclusion that the root represents the Patriarchs in general and Abraham in particular.

God's sovereign plan in history was to establish his covenant with mankind through a man called Abraham. He was a semite, a descendant of Noah's son Shem (Genesis 11:10-32).

The Patriarch Abraham was the first person to be identified as a "Hebrew" (Genesis 14:13). The Jewish people trace their ancestry to Abraham as the father (root) of the nation of Israel (he literally was a "non-Jew"). It was Isaiah who proclaimed God's word, Look to the rock from which you were cut...look to Abraham your father (Isaiah 51:1,2). When God called Abraham he promised he would give the land of Canaan to his offspring (Genesis 12:7, 13:14, 17:8). He further promised that he would have numerous descendants (Genesis 12:2, 13:16, 15:5) and as we saw earlier when we come to Judah we find these offspring are "Jews" and when we come to Ephraim we find that these offspring are "non-Jews"? Did you catch that? The people of God will be BOTH "Jews" and "Non-Jew" in the same family of God; some with different Covenants but with overlapping Covenant stipulations that will allow sufficient overlap that there can be common ground in order that both the branches in Joseph's hand can be "ONE" as in the one people of God.

- Gen. 12:2 And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing:
- Gen. 13:16 And I will make thy seed as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, [then] shall thy seed also be numbered.
- Gen. 15:5 And he brought him forth abroad, and said, Look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if thou be able to number them: and he said unto him, So shall thy seed be.
- He also promised that All gentiles on earth would be blessed through his seed (Genesis 12:3, 18:18, 22:18).
- Gen. 12:3 And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed.
- Gen. 18:18 Seeing that Abraham shall surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth shall be blessed in him?
- Gen. 22:18 And in thy seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because thou hast obeyed my voice
- Kefah [Peter] acknowledged that his fellow Jews were physical descendants of Abraham, and heirs of these promised blessings (Acts 3:25).

- Acts 3:25 Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, saying unto Abraham, And in thy seed shall all the kindreds of the earth be blessed.
- In Paul's mind, the Gentile believers in Yahweh were also heirs, partakers and sharers of Yahweh's promises as spiritual descendants of Abraham (Galatians 3:7,8,14).
- Gal. 3:7 Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham. 8 And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, [saying], In thee shall all nations be blessed.

Now for a big theological question.

Answer for yourself: Is the "good" news given to Abraham concerning the death and resurrection of a supposed "literal-historical" Jesus or that all Gentile nations will have the opportunity of spiritual blessings in that they will have opportunity to come to Yahweh in faith as had the Jews; thus being blessed?

Gal. 3:14 That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith.

1 Peter 1:21 Who by him (the Jewish Christ) do we believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God.

Now we come to an even bigger question and that concerns the identity of this "Jesus Christ" of whom Paul speaks in Gal. 3:14 as well as to whom Peter refers having "been raised" from the dead in I Peter 1:21.

Answer for yourself: Is our understanding of "Jesus Christ" the same understanding of "Jesus Christ" as was held in the first century? Did these who wrote these passages believe in a "literal-historical Jesus Christ" or could this "Jesus Christ" have been an allegory expressing the "Soul of God in matter encased in human flesh"? Before you say "literal-historical" you better set down for a huge revelation. As strange as it might sound the second meaning is the correct one. So bear with me as we "chase a much needed rabbit" at this junction of our study.

In early Christianity there were many alternative views that claimed to have authority over one another. Hundreds of rival teachers all claimed to teach the "true doctrine of Christ" and denounced all others as frauds. All claimed to represent "the authentic tradition". Jesus himself was the only authority they all recognized (Elaine Pagels, The Gnostic Gospels, pg 7). One of these alternative views was Gnostic Christianity, which gained popularity in the second century. The term Gnosticism comes from the Greek word gnosis, meaning "knowledge". This knowledge is knowledge of participation, knowledge of union and salvation. It is existential knowledge in contrast to scientific knowledge (Paul Tillich, A History of Christian Thought, Simon and Schuster, Inc. New York, NY. 1968, p. 33). In trying to reconcile the existence of "evil" as well as "good" coming from one Eternal Soul, many in this dualism assumed that the creation of the world was bad and that its creator, Yahweh, the Old Testament God of the Jews, was an evil being since "evil" exists in the Creation. The God of Gnostic Christianity, however, was a benevolent and loving being, superior over Yahweh (Monk, Robert, and Joseph Stamey, Exploring Christianity: An Introduction. Prentice-Hall, Inc. Englewood Cliffs, NJ. 1984, p. 40). This God was God the Father, Jesus' Father, the "real" God. The theory that this "Jesus" rose from the dead is the fundamental element of the Christian faith. The idea that this event occurred in one unique historical moment is a central theme to the orthodox position. What makes this so ordinary is not the claim that Jesus' friends had seen him after his death, but that they saw a human being. The orthodox position states that as Christ rose bodily from the grave, so every believer should anticipate the resurrection of the flesh (Elaine Pagels, The Gnostic Gospels, pg 4). Some New Testament accounts insist on this literal view of the resurrection and the orthodoxy of the second century insisted on it as well, rejecting all others as heretical. Luke 24:34 states that "the Lord has risen indeed, and has appeared to Simon Peter!" Whatever the truth of this claim, in all honesty we can't verify or disprove it on simply historical grounds since we were not there to see it happen. The many falsifications to the Hebrew texts as used in the New Testament bring great concern to such a supposed "literal-historical" view; had it been actually a "literal-historical" event then all this deception and subterfuge to create such a "literal" event would not have been necessary. In light of such numerous forgeries and the inclusion of conflicting genealogies over the next centuries as we find in the Book of Matthew and Luke reside us to the fact that all we can say is that this is much doubt as to the actual "historical-literal" existence of a "Jesus Christ" let alone the archeological evidence that finds the name of "Jesus Christ" existing in Egypt some 10,000 years B.C.E. Yet Peter claimed that the resurrection happened and generations after him continued to believe him, and still do. But the nature of this "resurrection" is in doubt as it appears more and more so as we study that Peter was speaking of an allegorical "awaking" of the Divine Soul in mankind as the "resurrection of the Christ".

For the Gnostic Christian, however, the person who experiences the resurrection does not meet Jesus raised back to life in physical form. He encounters God's Christ on a spiritual level, such as dreams, ecstatic trances, visions, and spiritual illumination (Elaine Pagels, The Gnostic Gospels, pg 5). The Gnostic Christian rejected Luke's theory along with Matthew's concerning a "physical-literal" resurrection of some man believed to be the Jewish Christ. According to them, the literal view of the resurrection was argued to have occurred in the past and because of this it was called the "faith of fools" (Ibid. p. 11). The Gnostics insisted that the resurrection symbolized how Gods Presence through His mediator (the Christ) between the pure Energy/Spirit invisible realm and matter or the visible physical realm could be experienced through God's Christ in the present. To them, it was not literal seeing that mattered; rather, it was spiritual vision. This spiritual vision of the resurrection, in whatever form it took, was the moment of enlightenment – a person could be "resurrected from the dead" right now.

Col 1:26-27 26 Even the mystery which hath been hid from ages and from generations, but now is made manifest to his saints: 27 To whom God would make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles; which is Christ in you, the hope of glory: (KJV)

Eph 5:14 14 Wherefore he saith, Awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. (KJV)

This means with proper instruction then Christians could begin to see the God and the Christ within themselves and "receive the resurrection while they live" (Elaine Pagels, The Gnostic Gospels, pg 12). Gnostics believed that taking the literal view was ignorant.

What interested these Gnostics far more than past events attributed to the "historical Jesus" was the possibility of encountering the risen Christ in the present; both Jew and "non-Jew" They alleged that the risen Christ continued to reveal himself to certain disciples, representing how Christ's presence could be experienced individually in the present moment. And this occurs for the "believer" when his Soul is "awakened from the dead" of their earthly focus and existence and in so doing reorients his focus on "Above" and not "beneath". For Christians who wanted to know and experience Christ this meant by "faith" they could experience God and His Christ "now" and "within" themselves.

Gal 4:19 19 My little children, of whom I travail in birth again until Christ be formed in you, (KJV)

As we but touch on the "Gnostic Christ" all the more important is that we recover the Divine Truths not only of Gnosticism but Judaism as well and that cannot be done unless we as Christians and followers of the Christ realize the importance for our self-awareness that we are "grafted" into the Olive Tree of Israel. This was impressed upon me when reading a great book entitled The Pagan Christ: Recovering the Lost Light, Thomas Allen Publishers 2004. Tom Harpur, the author of the Pagan Christ, has undergone a spiritual re-awakening (the Christ within) and believes that the information revealed within his book represent "one of the most far-reaching tragedies in history." His findings are echoed today by modern scholarship and archeology which prove that he is right. Harpur, (a columnist for the Toronto Star, a Rhodes scholar, and a former Anglican priest and professor of Greek and new Testament at the University of Toronto) suggests that during the third and fourth centuries C.E., the Christian Church, "either deliberately, in a competitive bid to win over the greatest numbers of the largely unlettered masses, or through willful ignorance" took a "literalist, popularized, historical approach to sublime truth.” In so doing they separated from the Olive Tree of Israel and Rome prided themselves in this as shown in Constantine's Easter letter. Mythological stories that were originally supposed to be regarded as allegory and metaphor for higher Divine Truths became mistakenly transformed into false historical fact and the “Christ of the myth became a flesh and blood person identified with Jesus.” Central to the tragedy is the idea that Christ was originally supposed to come “in man,” and that “the Christ principle was potentially in every one of us,” instead, this idea was changed to reflect “the exclusivist teaching that the Christ had come as only one man.” Harper's work is largely based off the earlier work of Godfrey Higgins, Gerald Massey, and Alvin Boyd Kuhn and as you read this book you realize that “much of the civilized West has been based upon a ‘history’ that never occurred,” and the Christian Church is “founded on a set of miracles that were never performed literally.” The Pagan Christ deals largely with the work of these three scholars, particularly Kuhn (1880-1963) and uses his texts as the basis of its analysis. For a world that reset its calendar to year zero at the supposed birth of this supposed literal-historical Jesus Christ, the implications of Harpur's revelations are truly immense. According to Harpur, the term ‘pagan’ is “almost totally misunderstood today.” In fact, it was simply adopted by “emerging Church authorities to denote all who were not orthodox Christians.” Harpur claims that the pagans were “persecuted, decied, killed, and ultimately utterly vanquished by the Church,” because they “held views of ‘the Christ within’ that the Church was to plagiarize blatantly – and then cover up with book burnings, anathemas, and murder.” After detailing the harsh treatment of Pagans by the Christian Church, Harpur quotes Northrop Frye's (1912-1991) chilling description of Christianity as “a ghost with the chains of a foul historical record of cruelty clanking behind it.” I in my own studies up to the time I read Harper's book tend to agree with Harper when he says surprisingly, instead of diminishing his faith, these revelations, now rightly understood, seem to have actually strengthened it. The author claims that “the allegorical, spiritual, mythical approach to the Bible and to Christian faith” solves the enigmas of Scripture and that Bible stories now “come alive with amazing new freshness, believability, and power.” To that I say a rousing "Amen". The idea of “the Christ within,” like the other religious symbols Harpur describes are “Jungian-style” archetypes in our human psyche, “implanted deeply by the Creator” in our very Souls and belonging to us “uniquely as human beings, however they are named”.

Harpur notes that during ten years of university training for the Anglican priesthood, “the similarities that existed between Christian beliefs and the earlier Pagan religions were always quickly passed over in seminary as ‘foreshadowings’ of the Good News proclaimed by the New Testament.” That was exactly my experience in Seminary. Furthermore, during roughly ten years as a professor of the New Testament and Greek at the University of Toronto, “few, if any of the exact Egyptian parallels to the Gospel writings” examined in the Pagan Christ “ever came into” his view. For Harpur, the supremacy of Christianity and “its superiority over other religions was seldom, if ever, seriously challenged.” For Harpur, the translation of the Rosetta Stone by Champollion in 1822, and the resulting translation of texts such as the Egyptian Book of the Dead, the Pyramid Texts, the Amduat, and the Book of Thoth, provide “irrefutable proof that not one single doctrine, rite, tenet, or usage in Christianity was in reality a fresh contribution to the world of religion.” For the author, all myths, including those associated with the Christ, are derived from an original archetype that came from ancient Egypt! And let me remind you the Jews are the biological offspring of these Egyptians in their intermarriage with the Semitic nations around them. The author notes that “there is nothing the Jesus of the Gospels either said or did—from the Sermon on the Mount to the miracles, from his flight as an infant from Herod to the Resurrection itself—that cannot be shown to have originated thousands of years before, in Egyptian Mystery rites and other sacred liturgies such as the Egyptian Book of the Dead.” This resurrection of the "Karast" or the "Christ" become very clear that we are speaking of the arising to a Spiritual Awareness in mankind of both his Divine nature and Divine duty before God and his fellowman.

Answer for yourself: Is there an ongoing Church conspiracy? Yes.

According to Harpur and a host of modern scholars today, “Not only did the early Christians take over almost completely the myths of and teachings of their Egyptian masters, mediated in many cases by the Mystery Religions and by Judaism in its many forms, but they did everything in their power, through forgery and other fraud, book burning, character assassination, and murder itself, to destroy the crucial evidence of what had happened.” Simply said Rome destroyed the Jewish and thereby the Egyptian roots of the only religion that mankind was ever to have known.

For Harpur, the only difference “between the Jesus story of the New Testament and the many ancient myths depicting what seems the identical combination of concepts and characteristics” was that “nobody among the ancients, prior to the full-fledged Christian movement, believed for one moment that any of the events in their dramas were in any way historical.” For Harpur, The Gospels (or the stories of the ‘life’ of Jesus) are “a somewhat garbled and fragmentary copy of an Egyptian prototype who was a purely dramatic figure portraying the divinity in man.” Over the twenty years of my serious study I confirm exactly what he says and all the more reason that in restoring these truths we must begin as Christians and followers of the Christ to begin restoring the Jewish Roots of the Olive Tree to which we as "non-Jews" are to find our Spiritual Life.

Answer for yourself: Now can you see more clearly the importance as to why God worked mightily through the Jerusalem Council and James who commanded in the working out of the Great Commission that the Torah be taken to the Gentile in order that their faith and hope might be in the God of Israel and not the God of Rome?

Answer for yourself: Sha’ul’s letters supports the conclusion that the root of the Olive Tree represents the Patriarchs in general and who in particular? Abraham. Now what are we to do when we find out that archeology teaches us today that Abraham and the Patriarch were later to be Egyptian Pharaohs and the fathers of the later Jewish race which left Egypt?

Answer for yourself: God's sovereign plan in history was to establish his covenant with mankind through what man and what people? Abraham and this was done through Egyptian history that culminated with the 18th Dynasty and the Hebrew Pharaohs.

Answer for yourself: When God called Abraham he promised him in the Abrahamic covenant that besides the Jews, what group of people on the earth would be blessed through his seed (Genesis 12:3, 18:18, 22:18). Gentiles and it is these Gentiles that number 2.5 billion people who sadly comprise the whole of antisemitic Gentile Christianity today.

Answer for yourself: In Paul's mind, the Gentile believers in God were also heirs, partakers and sharers of God's promises as spiritual descendants of whom (Galatians 3:7,8,14)? Abraham.

Answer for yourself: According to James, those who display Abraham's faith and deeds are Abraham's what (James 2:23)? Seed.

Answer for yourself: To understand correctly how the Gentile Christian Church is to relate to the Israel of God we must begin with what epistles in the New Testament? Ephesians, Romans, Galatians. And must these be understood correctly with an unbiased depiction of history? They surely must.

Answer for yourself: Paul, the Apostle to the Gentile states that the Gentiles, like you and me, have been quickened or made alive in a spiritual sense by whom because our sins and trespasses had separated us from God? The Christ within and not some supposed "literal-historical Jesus" of Rome's later invention.

1 Peter 1:21 Who by him (the Jewish Christ) do we believe in God, that raised him up from the dead, and gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God (notice he did not say that one's faith need be in "Jesus").

If according to Peter you believe in God today because of this Jesus or the Jewish Christ and his ministry through the Jewish people of Israel which fostered a movement from within Biblical Judaism to the non-Jewish world whereby the non-Jew could come to the saving knowledge of the God of Israel then let us continue to search for deeper meaning as to our status in the Covenanted People of God who find our credibility and acceptance in the Olive Tree of the Israel of God. Shalom.

SPIRITUAL UNION OF THE GENTILES WITH ISRAEL-THE DYNAMICS OF EPHESIANS CHAPTER TWO EXPOUNDED

To understand correctly how the Gentile Christian Church is to relate to the Israel of God we must begin with the writer of the Ephesian epistle of whom the vast majority of scholars believe was the Apostle Paul. Paul, the Apostle to the Gentiles states that the Gentiles, like you and me, have been quickened or made alive in a spiritual sense by Yeshua because our sins and trespasses had separated us from God.

THE STATUS OF THE GENTILE-PAGAN ACCORDING TO PAUL

Let us notice in Ephesians 2:1-22 that Paul was speaking to Gentile Ephesian converts (like you and me) who had turned from a life of sin, and had turned to obeying Yahweh. In Ephesians 2:1-2, KJV, we read: I And you [hath he quickened!], (Gentiles) who were dead in trespasses and sins; 2 Wherein in time past ye walked (before your repentance, faith in one True God) according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit (of the world) that now worketh in the children of disobedience.

Please note that Ephesians 2:1 says that these converts "WERE" (past tense) cut off from Yahweh, God, having no hope.

WHY WERE THE GENTILES CUT OFF FROM GOD?

Answer for yourself: Just what separates one from Yahweh? Given up? Read on please.

The Scriptural answer to what separates one from God is found in Isaiah 59:1-2 KJV:

I Behold, YAHWEH'S hand is not shortened, that it cannot save, neither His ear heavy, that it cannot hear: 2 BUT YOUR INIQUITIES have separated between you and your FATHER, and YOUR SINS have hid His face for you, that HE WILL NOT HEAR.

Notice, the Apostle Paul says that these Ephesian Gentiles "were in times past" disobedient and that they were NOT "disobedient" at the time he was speaking to them. And, when they "were disobedient toward God", they were cut off from Yahweh, as all habitual sinners are!

Answer for yourself: What is sin? Remember that the New Testament defines "sin" as the breaking of Yahweh's Law, as I John 3:4 clearly states:

4. Whosoever committeth sin transgresseth also the LAW: for sin is the transgression of the LAW.

Answer for yourself: Do you realize that if the Laws of God (Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah found in the Torah) are not valid today, then we are not sinners, since I bet you didn't.

Answer for yourself: Does not Yahweh teach us that if we say "we have not sinned" then we are liars? Thus, the Law is valid today in spite of parts of the Roman New Testament which advocate something different.

Answer for yourself: If I John 3:4 is a New Testament Scripture, then how is it possible that "sin" can be defined as "transgression against the LAW" if, as many Christian churches teach, the Law has passed away and we are no longer under the Law but under grace? It is not possible. Thus you can now easily see that the teachings you have heard since childhood declaring that the Law has passed away and that we are "under grace only" are not only inaccurate, but sinful teachings that have deceived you and led many of you into sin by faulty conduct and behavior as a Christian whereby often we break these Laws and Commandments often out of just ignorance of them, let alone willfully.

Answer for yourself: Let us notice in Ephesians 2:1-22 that Paul was speaking to whom...Gentile believers or Jewish believers? Gentile believers like you and me.

Answer for yourself: Are you beginning to view God's Law in a somewhat more positive light since you see that the Law has not passed away? I hope so but this will become abundantly clear as we continue to read this series of articles.

Before these Gentile Ephesians turned to God in obedience to Him (obedience to the Commandments in the Torah reflecting their respective Covenants thus ceasing sinning in their conduct and behavior), they previously had lived in the "way of this world" (flesh), and not the "Way of Yahweh".

The Apostle Paul then continues speaking to the Ephesians, saying in Ephesians 2:3-5, KJV:

3 Among whom also we all had our conversation (our manner of life) in times past in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh and of the mind, and were by nature the CHILDREN OF WRATH, even as others. 4 But Yahweh (God), Who is rich in mercy, for His great love wherewith He loved us, 5 Even when we were dead in SINS,....

Before, these Gentile "Ephesians" had lived in sin. The death penalty, which is exactly "what" one earns for committing sin, as Romans 6:23 says ("the wages of sin is death") hung over them, just as it does for anyone who "practices sin". Let us remember transgression of the Law is defined as "sin" in the New Testament. Only those who turn FROM sin, turn FROM breaking the Law, and turn TO God in OBEDIENCE to Yahweh's Every Word" will be given the gift only God can give...Eternal Life! We will be given access to the Tree of Life!

As we Read in Isaiah 59: 1-2, it is OUR SINS (INIQUITIES) that separate us from God.

59:1 Behold <2005>, the LORD'S <3068> hand <3027> is not shortened <7114> (8804), that it cannot save <3467> (8687); neither his ear <241> heavy <3513> (8804), that it cannot hear <8085> (8800): 2 But your iniquities <5771> have separated <914> (8688) between <996> you and your God <430>, and your sins <2403> have hid <5641> (8689) [his] face <6440> from you, that he will not hear <8085> (8800). {have hid: or, have made him hide}

Lexicon Hebrew 5771

- 1) perversity, depravity, iniquity, guilt or punishment of iniquity
- 1a) iniquity
- 1b) guilt of iniquity, guilt (as great), guilt (of condition)
- 1c) consequence of or punishment for iniquity

Answer for yourself: Does the New Testament teach the same thing?

Matt 7:22-23 22 Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? 23 And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity. (KJV)

This same English word is defined in Strong's Concordance in the New Testament in Matt. 7:23 as "those not submitted to Jewish LAW") and it is our breaking of God's Law, that cuts us off from God.

These same Scriptures tell us that the reason God will not listen to someone, is because they are a sinner and they practice sin. For your information this is the same word used by the Jewish Christ in Matt. 7:23 where he tells "many" who come to him expecting "acceptance" to depart from him because they practice iniquity (Strong's number 458 & 459 meaning "the practice of not submitting to Jewish Law".

23 And <2532> then <5119> will I profess <3670> (5692) unto them <846>, <3754> I never <3763> knew <1097> (5627) you <5209>: depart <672> (5720) from <575> me <1700>, ye that work <2038> (5740) iniquity <458>.

Now take a second to make the connection of these two words which we have just seen; one above from the Old Testament and one below from the New Testament and think to yourself if God is saying the same things in both Testaments. I will give you a clue; He is.

Lexicon Greek 459 (root word)

- 1) destitute of (the Mosaic) law
  - 1a) of the Gentiles (notice this carefully)!!!!!!
- 2) departing from the law, a violator of the law, lawless, wicked

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that the root work stresses that this injunction especially applies to GENTILES? Could this be the Gentile Christian? Does the New Testament teach that "non-Jews" and Gentiles who are ignorant of and violate these Laws of Moses thereby showing contempt for God's Laws will be told to depart from Him in the world to come? Yes it surely seems that they are. Remember that as shown in many previous websites these Laws of Moses contain the same 66 Laws of Noah which make up the Covenant of Noah for all "non-Jews" and which is called "necessary" for all "non-Jews" by James in Acts 15.

Answer for yourself: Is transgression of the Law of Moses yet considered sin in the New Testament even though the New Testament also records the death of this Jesus which is supposed by many Christian theologians to have made the Law obsolete and as we hear "passed away"? Definitely yes.

Answer for yourself: Please note that Ephesians 2:1 says that these converts "were" (past tense) cut off from God, having no hope because something had separated them from God. What does Isaiah tell us in 59:1-2 that separated the Gentiles from God? Our iniquities, our sin which is transgression of the Laws of God.

Answer for yourself: The New Testament, in I John 3:4, defines "Sin" as what?

Transgression of, violation of, and ignorance of the Mosaic Laws.

Answer for yourself: Does Matt. 7:21 teach us in the New Testament that those who are without the Law, or who are ignorant of the Law, or who violate the Law, or who are destitute of the Mosaic Law (equally understood as applying to "non-Jews" and the Laws of Noah) are to be told by God's Christ to depart from him? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Does Matt. 7:21 teach us in the New Testament that those who depart from the law are "wicked?" Yes. That sure is a sobering thought that God considers those who violate His Laws, either wilfully or ignorantly, "wicked".

Answer for yourself: Does Matt. 7:21 teach us that if we are ignorant of the Law, thereby showing our contempt of it, should we expect to likewise hear "depart from me" from His Christ in the world to come? Yes.

Answer for yourself: If your church has taught you that the Law has passed away, thus making you destitute of the Law of Moses, should you expect that God's Christ will one day tell you to depart from him as well? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Do you realize that if the Law of God (Laws of Moses-Torah) is not valid today, then we are not sinners? Is that possible since that God teaches us that if we say "we have not sinned" then we are liars? Forgive the repetition but we can never learn this good enough.

Answer for yourself: If I John 3:4 is a New Testament Scripture, then how is it possible that "sin" can be defined as "transgression against the Law" if the Law has passed away and we are no longer under the Law but under grace? Obviously for the New Testament church the Laws of Moses had not passed away, and within them are contained the Laws of Noah which are the stipulations and responsibilities for the Covenant given to the Non-Jews according to Acts 15 and other places.

Answer for yourself: Before the "non-Jews" were taught of the God of Israel and the necessity of their repentance from violating His Laws they wilfully or ignorantly lived in SIN. What did one earn for committing sin which is defined in the New Testament as transgression of the Law? Death and separation from God.

Answer for yourself: Romans 6:23 says "the wages of sin is death" and death hung over all men, just as it does for anyone who "practices sin" and lives apart from repentance. Then is it a true statement that only those who turn "from sin, turn from breaking the Law, and turn to God in obedience to God's Every Word" will be given the Gift only God can give...Eternal Life? Yes.

Answer for yourself: What is it that a Christian does not understand when reading this above question? Namely, as I found upon years of study, many, many Christian dogmas and religious doctrines and "beliefs" are in direct violation of the Laws of Moses and the Laws of Noah thus rendering such a one a habitual sinner quite often in ignorance for he knows little if anything as to what these Positive and Negative Commandments require of him. Being told his whole life that the "Law is ended with Christ" and that the "Laws has passed away" then he pays little if any attention to all but the most simplest of these Laws which are required by our society to maintain social order. The bottom line as I found upon years of study is that I was a Christian Pastor guilty of many of these Laws just because I believed "doctrines" created by Rome concerning the Christ of their invention. I was, according to these Laws of the Torah, an idolator and blasphemer for starts and that is because I had accepted the traditional Christology of Jesus as taught by traditional Christianity. THINK!

Answer for yourself: Do you find it difficult to believe that this is the same word used by this Jewish Christ in Matt. 7:21 where he tells "many" who come to him expecting "acceptance" to depart from him because they practice iniquity (Strong's number 458 & 459 meaning the practice of not submitting to Jewish Laws)? Hopefully, now seeing the hidden truth, you will reevaluate what you have been taught and begin to compare your Christian beliefs with what the Torah teaches about what God accepts and cannot accept concerning not only our "beliefs" but our "actions upon them".

NOW FOR A BIG QUESTION

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that many of these laws which the Christian has been told has passed away, laws within these "Mosaic Laws" intended for non-Jewish and Gentile "believers," are commandments instructing non-Jewish believers how to worship properly and how to give their tithe properly; something that few churches I have seen has right or obeys correctly?

Answer for yourself: Are you now aware that our failure to heed these commandments is sin and that our "strange fire" and false worship given to God instead of these selected commandments which should be obeyed in our worship of the Creator both displeases and hurts Him?

Answer for yourself: Can you begin to see the importance of identifying with Israel who has always revered the Covenant Law instead of organizations (Churches) that teach the Law has passed away? I hope so.

Please understand that before the Word of God was given to the Gentile People as a whole, they were, as we saw, cut off from God. Before this, ONLY the Tribes of the Children of Israel were given God's Laws, which GUIDED one to faith and obedience, thus culminating in God's SALVATION. But that was to change in Acts 15. Let us look at some of the events that led up to Acts 15 and the Noahide decree for all "non-Jews" by the Jerusalem Assembly headed by James.

AN EXAMPLE FOR ALL TIME-CORNELIUS OF ACTS 10

It is impossible to read and understand correctly the New Testament without some basic background knowledge in such areas as culture, politics, language, literature, and religion. It just so happens when we read of Cornelius in Acts 10 that almost all of Jewish evangelism to the non-Jew was ceased. Converts were accepted but no longer were the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah being taught or preached to the "non-Jew" as their way of Salvation. Such was the bigotry and hatred of the Jew to the "non-Jew" in the first century. God's message of Repentance, Conversion, and Salvation was not being preached to the Gentiles largely because of the influence of R. Shammai and his School of Pharisees. Through the effort of Paul and James a large part of Israel will repent and go into all the world whereby they would literally "teach" the non-Jew to observe those things in the Law which God had given them and required of them. Not only would the Apostles scatter following the persecutions in Israel but Paul would make three such journeys to the non-Jews with the Laws of Noah as well as invitation to enter into the Covenant of Noah.

Acts 11:18 When they heard these things, they held their peace and glorified God, saying, Then hath God also to the NATIONS (GENTILES) granted REPENTANCE UNTO LIFE.

Acts 11:34 Then Peter opened his mouth, and said, Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: 35 But in every NATION (word means Gentiles; according to Baalam's prophecy Israel is never to be counted among the nations, thus he is referring to ALL GENTILE NATIONS) he that "feareth Him" and "worketh righteousness" is accepted with Him (this is true Biblical SALVATION for all mankind).

Notice this verse mentions both FAITH and OBEDIENCE TO THE LAWS OF GOD THAT CULMINATES IN RIGHTEOUS WORKS...FOR SALVATION

Notice this statement by the Apostle Peter was the response to previous revelation that the Gentiles could be accepted by God if they responded in faith (feared Him) and practiced righteousness (understood as obedience to faith that culminated in good works which was the accurate response to faith). This largely came about because of the Second Pentecost that occurred with Cornelius in Acts 10 when Peter and men came to his house. When Peter was addressing Cornelius, a Roman centurion who knew not Hebrew, a miracle occurred as it had in Acts 2 some 17 years earlier when the ears of these "Gentile Converted Jews" were opened and they experienced the reverse of the Curse of Babel and they were given understanding of Peter as he spoke Hebrew. Now we see the same thing happening before Peter which he witnessed before with the Jews but this time it occurred with a "lowly dog"; a Gentile who was not a Convert to Judaism and who had not been "born again" according to the strict Jewish interpretation of the word. Thus, the Divine Revelation that was imparted to Peter whereby he no longer could consider Gentiles as "second class people"; rather he now understood that in every Nation Gentiles who came to faith in God and "feared God" and performed "works of righteousness" which are manifestations of both the Positive and Negative Commandments were "accepted with God" as he believed already that all Jews were. Thus the two peoples of God, Jews and "non-Jews" are one in the mind of God. It was time for Israel to repent of their bigotry toward the "non-Jew" and take him the message that Israel already understood as to how to become "acceptable with God" and that was through obedience to the Laws and Commandments of God. Acts 15 is now right around the corner!

God is not a "Respecter of persons." Only those who revere Him (by obeying His word, and who working out practical deeds of righteousness) by practicing and obeying God's Commandments, Laws, Statutes, and Judgments in their daily lives, are accepted by God.

Before God opened the "Way of Salvation" to the Gentiles, it was considered unlawful [according to Shammai's 18 articles], even to "the Believers" (who were then all Hebrews, by the way), to rub elbows with the Gentiles. However, this "artificial separation" was not an Ordinance from God or part of the Written Law, but from the oral teachings of Rabbi Shammai, and others, who hated Gentiles and was one of the leading Torah scholars of the day. We find this ordinance as stated by Peter in Acts 10:28, KJV: "...it is an unlawful thing for a man who is a Jew to keep company, or come unto, one of another nation..."

But God never says this in the whole of the Torah or Tanakh. According to "these" man-made ordinances attributed to Shammai, it made no difference that any Gentile might "be practicing righteousness" as Cornelius (a gentile) was doing in Acts 10:1-2, KJV:

10:1 <1161> There was <2258> (5713) a certain <5100> man <435> in <1722> Caesarea <2542> called <3686> Cornelius <2883>, a centurion <1543> of <1537> the band <4686> called <2564> (5746) the Italian <2483>

[band], 2 [A] devout <2152> [man], and <2532> one that feared <5399> (5740) God <2316> with <4862> all <3956> his <848> house <3624>, which <5037> gave <4160> (5723) much <4183> alms <1654> to the people <2992>, and <2532> prayed <1189> (5740) to God <2316> always <1275>.

The word translated 'devout' in Acts 10:2 is word #2152 in Strong's Greek Dictionary: the word 'eusebes', and means: well reverent, pious.

Lexicon Greek 2152 2152 eusebes {yoo-seb-ace'} from 2095 and 4576; TDNT - 7:175,1010; adj AV - devout 3, godly 1; 4

1) pious, dutiful

Answer for yourself: Acts 10:1-2, KJV states: Cornelius...a Centurion of the Italian Band. He is called "a devout" man and one that "feared" God with all his house. The word translated "devout" in Acts 10:2 is word #2152 in Strong's Greek Dictionary: the word "eusebes", and means: well reverent, pious. In other words, Cornelius, a Gentile after the death of this Jesus, was making himself holy by keeping what? The Commandments of God that applied to him as a "non-Jew".

Answer for yourself: Only "living by" the holy Laws and Commandments of God makes one "holy" because it separates the obedient person from the majority of mankind who do not obey the LORD. If one lives any other "way," then he lives in "what" since he transgresses the Law? Sin.

In other words, Cornelius was making himself holy unto God by keeping the Laws of God! Only "living by" the holy Laws and Commandments of God makes one "holy" because it separates the obedient person from the majority of mankind who pay little mind to the Laws of God. One only needs to look at the fruit of our nation and our crime rate to see this. If one lives any other "way," then he lives in sin and God then, correctly, considers that person to be a sinner. God, assuredly, is no "respector of persons", so even if a Gentile obeys Him, then that Gentile is "accepted by Him". God has proven this through the instructions He gave through Moses, saying previously in Exodus 12:48-49, KJV:

48 And when a stranger <1616> shall sojourn <1481> (8799) with thee, and will keep <6213> (8804) the Passover <6453> to the LORD <3068>, let all his males <2145> be circumcised <4135> (8736), and then let him come near <7126> (8799) and keep <6213> (8800) it; and he shall be as one that is born <249> in the land <776>: for no uncircumcised person <6189> shall eat <398> (8799) thereof. 49 One <259> law <8451> shall be to him that is homeborn <249>, and unto the stranger <1616> that sojourneth <1481> (8802) among <8432> you.

The above passage, since it included circumcision, refer to "conversion" of the "non-Jew" to Judaism. Cornelius was not circumcised, but yet was "accepted" by God as were full-converts since they both "feared" God and "worketh righteousness." The only difference would be their Covenant responsibility: the full-convert would be responsible for all 613 like the Jew whereby the Godfearer, like Cornelius, would only be responsible for the Covenant of Noah with its 66 Commandments.

The word translated 'stranger' in this verse is word # 1616 in Strong's Hebrew Dictionary: the word "ger", and means: foreigner, alien. This is the Gentile like you and me!

Lexicon Hebrew 1616 01616 ger {gare} or (fully) geyr (gare) from 01481; TWOT - 330a; n m AV - stranger 87, alien 1, sojourner 1, stranger + 0376 1, stranger + 04480 1, strangers + 0582 1; 92

- 1) sojourner
- 1a) a temporary inhabitant, a newcomer lacking inherited rights, ie. Gentile
- 1b) of foreigners in Israel, though conceded rights

Answer for yourself: Did the text of Exodus 12:48 say that there is ONLY ONE LAW for both Jews and Gentiles? Sure did! Now you see how the Laws of Noah are the very foundation for the Laws of Moses to which Moses elaborates when giving Israel a "higher law" as God's new "Holy Nation and Royal Priesthood" for the whole world.

Answer for yourself: In Exodus 12:48-49 (KJV) it states that when a stranger shall sojourn with thee...ONE LAW shall be to him that is homeborn, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among you. Notice both the Gentile and Jew have only one Law, thus they shared the SAME what? Covenants. Let us never forget that the Covenant of Noah is the very foundation on which the later Laws of Moses are built.

We need to stop and understand that within the Laws of Moses, taken as a unit, within them are Covenant stipulations and laws that are for the non-Jew according to the Laws and Covenant of Noah. This are again assumed and added to for the Jew where the 66 are added to thereby culminating in 613 for the Jew, but again within them are the 66 for the non-Jew's relationship with God.

Answer for yourself: The word translated 'stranger' in this verse is word # 1616 in Strong's Hebrew Dictionary is the word "ger", and means what? Gentile.

Now, let all of this sink in especially in light of what you have been taught in your Christian Churches which goes great injustice to the Divine Revelation in this Bible we have but which is not obtainable without serious study.

Let us continue our study in Ephesians in the next article.

WILD OLIVE BRANCHES-GENTILES GRAFTED INTO ISRAEL...DO YOU "LOOK" LIKE ISRAEL?

Maybe some of you remember in junior high school in your science classes studying plants and grafting into the stem of a plant a "twig" from the plant or possibly another plant related to the primary plant. In doing so you grafted into a plant a "foreign" plant and the two became one. This new "implanted foreign" plant would take hold and grow and use the food of the mother plant for its nutrients. Soon we have a healthy "engraft" which took on the visible characteristics of the mother plant. This is exactly what Paul is saying to the Christian Church today. If we are grafted into Israel we should resemble Israel. Whether we do or not is for you to decide after you continue your study into these areas.

Now the Apostle Paul, in his epistle to the church at Ephesus, was speaking to the Gentile-Ephesian "believers" (wild olive branches who have been grafted into Israel), who were strangers before Yahweh's Word was delivered to them.

FROM STRANGERS TO FELLOW CITIZENS OF ISRAEL

When the Gentiles came to faith in God (Yahweh), they were no longer "strangers"! They had accepted Yahweh's Holy Laws as well as Yeshua's religion which contained laws and commandments, which they had broken in times past, and they were given the opportunity to be JUSTIFIED through faith in and obedience to the Laws of Yahweh. In Ephesians 2:19, KJV:

19 Now <3767> therefore <686> ye are <2075> (5748) no more <3765> strangers <3581> and <2532> foreigners <3941>, but <235> fellowcitizens <4847> with the saints <40>, and <2532> of the household <3609> of God <2316>;

- 1b) the association of another in citizenship
- 1b1) a fellow citizen, fellow countryman

Answer for yourself: As fellow citizens with Israel (Gentile believer), does the word in the Greek Scriptures mean we are in union with the Jews? Yes. Is that your practical experience in your life and in your Church? If not then what is wrong?

Answer for yourself: Does the Bible that we accept as the supreme authority for faith and practice of our faith say that Gentiles like you and I who come to faith in the God of Israel attain the same citizenship with others in Israel, thus calling us fellow citizens of Israel? Yes.

Answer for yourself: As Gentiles who have been received into the fellowship, commonwealth, and communion of the saints of Jewish Israel, are we considered as fellow-citizens of Israel and the people of God? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Are fellow citizens of the "same nation" (both Jew and Gentile) under the same "Laws of that nation"? We sure are! Does this conjure up in your mind what we saw in the last article; namely that the Laws of Noah are the very foundation for the later Laws of Noah given to the nation of Israel as God's "Holy Nation and Royal Priesthood"? It sure should! The analogy is perfect. (THINK)

Answer for yourself: As Gentiles, who have come to faith in the One God of Israel through the endeavors of a repentant Israel following the Jerusalem Assembly in Acts 15 then did these "non-Jews" think at that time that they belonged to a "separate religious affiliation" from the Israel of God or did they understand that they were to identify, as did the Jews, with the Israel of God since they were grafted into the same religion as the Jews, only with slightly different responsibilities and covenants, thereby making them "fellow citizens of Israel"? That should be easy; they did not think that they had created a new religion. Rome will do that later. This explains why history and archeology records for us today that for almost 5 centuries large groups of "non-Jew" kept the Sabbath with the Jews, observed the Passover with the Jews, observed Unleavened Bread with the Jews, observed Shavuot (Pentecost with the Jews), observed Rosh HaShannah, Yom Kippur and Tabernacles with the Jews as well as attended synagogue with the Jews where both people partook of the "Pattern of Worship" given all man by God in the beginning of time. In Christianity today we don't follow such a pattern let alone God's Holy Days which teach the true message salvation to the whole world.

Answer for yourself: Now the Apostle Paul was speaking to the Ephesians (wild olive branches who had been grafted into Israel), who were strangers before Yahweh's Word was delivered to them to which they repented and began obeying the Laws and Commandments of God that pertained to them. When they received Yahweh, they were no longer "strangers"! They had accepted Yahweh's Holy Laws, which they had broken in times past, and they were given the opportunity to be "justified" through repentance and obedience to the Commandments of God as found in the Torah. In Ephesians 2:19, they are no longer called strangers because they had become what? Fellow citizens of Israel who were repentant "believers" in the God of Israel.

Answer for yourself: These Gentile believers were equals citizens with who in the Israel of God, and of the household of God? The Jews

Answer for yourself: Are fellow citizens who are of the same nation (both Jew and Gentile) under the same Laws of that nation? Yes of course.

Answer for yourself: Sadly, today the vast majority of Christian Churches find their identity in their denomination or non-denomination and do not see themselves as a part of what? Fellow citizens of Israel.

Answer for yourself: By failing to recognize that as Gentiles we are part of Israel, most Christians identify with their denomination and non-denomination. This is in direct opposition to the Scriptures in the New Testament as well as those of the Old Testament which clearly instructs that the believing Gentile finds his position in the Household of God as part of whom along with the Jews? Fellow citizens of Israel.

Answer for yourself: What was the denomination of the church which was led by James in the first century which took the Great Commission unto the world? It was Biblical Judaism, and this may startle you, but if you were to research the topic like I and multitudes have, you will see that believing Gentiles like you and me kept the Saturday Sabbath, the Biblical Feast days well into the fourth century and 5th century until they were forbidden upon death by Gentile paganism in the Christian Church/State of Rome. This is the fruit of Constantine.

Answer for yourself: As we have seen, can you now understand why there was to be "one Law" for the Jew born in the land and the stranger (Gentile) that lived among them? I hope so.

Answer for yourself: Did the Apostolic church set the correct example by not promoting numerous "sects" and "denominations" with multitudes of conflicting doctrines, statutes, and commandments like we see today in Christianity with over 2,000 different denominations? They sure did for they knew that there is only "one faith".

Let us continue with Ephesians 2:6 as we see our Biblical position as Gentile believers:

- 6 And hath raised [us] up together, and made [us] sit together in heavenly [places] in Christ Jesus:
- 7 That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace in [his] kindness toward us through Christ Jesus.
- 8 For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: [it is] the gift of God:
- 9 Not of works, lest any man should boast.
- 10 For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them. ordained: or, prepared}

Take notice of the change that follows in the thought processes of the Apostle Paul where he contrasts what we were before coming to faith in the God of Israel and His Laws and what our standing is now since coming to faith in Yahweh.

11 Wherefore remember, that ye [being] in time past Gentiles in the flesh (before faith, repentance and acceptance of the Covenant given to Gentiles with its corresponding Laws and Commandments within the Torah), who are called Uncircumcision (it was customary for all Gentile males to remain uncircumcised) by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands (the Jews);

Notice again the previous condition of all Gentiles (called the "uncircumcised") who had never converted to Judaism and were without faith "in" and knowledge "of" Yahweh.

Then we read in Ephesians 2:12, KJV:

12 That AT THAT TIME you were without Christ (the mediator of Divine Truth through Israel), being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the COVENANTS OF PROMISE (plural),

12 That <3754> at <1722> that <1565> time <2540> ye were <2258> (5713) without <5565> Christ <5547>, being aliens <526> (5772) from the commonwealth <4174> of Israel <2474>, and <2532> strangers <3581> from the covenants <1242> of promise <1860>, having <2192> (5723) no <3361> hope <1680>, and <2532> without God <112> in <1722> the world <2889>:

- 2) a state or commonwealth
- 3) citizenship, the rights of a citizen

Answer for yourself: Being aliens to the commonwealth of Israel, the Gentile had no rights of citizenship. However, following coming to the faith in the God of Israel and understanding his Covenant responsibility did the Gentile believer in Yahweh become "fellow citizens with the Jews of Israel" or "Christians separated from the Jews of Israel" ? I will let you figure that one out.

We may be called "Christians," but the Bible informs us that God calls us "Israel."

Let us examine the Greek word for "stranger":

- 2) to make a covenant, to enter into a Covenant with one,

These disobedient Gentile-Ephesians were "strangers" to the citizenship of Israel, as well as to the Covenants of Promise BECAUSE THEY WERE ESTRANGED BY DISOBEDIENCE TO THE LAWS OF God

The Lordship of Christ is only valid to the degree you submit to his rule in your life and that means obedience to His Father's Laws that pertain to you. Read for yourself the Blessings for obedience to GOD'S LAWS and the Cursings for disobedience to GOD'S LAWS, which are recorded in Deuteronomy 28:1-24 and Deuteronomy 29:15-19 for your instruction.

Let us summarize and notice that because of the outreach of the Jerusalem Assembly:

- Gentile "believers" were no longer aliens from the commonwealth of Israel
- Gentile "believers" were no longer strangers from the covenants of promise (remember the Abrahamic covenant has promised that through Abraham all the nations (Gentiles) would be blessed (with the opportunity of eternal life)
- Gentile "believers" no longer lived without hope of life after death
- Gentile "believers" no longer lived without the knowledge of the True God of all life as the Covenant of Noah along with the Laws of Noah were extended to them for their acceptance

Answer for yourself: Does Yahweh wish the Jew to pattern himself after the Gentile or the Gentile after the Jew? In the Bible it is always the Gentile who is to follow the Jew for salvation is of the Jew, and will always be of the Jew.

Ephesians 2:13-14:

13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ (let us understand that through the death of Yeshua was catalyzed the taking of the Torah to the Gentile world, whereas before his death, no attempts were being made to give eternal life to the Gentile world).

Please notice that in verse 14 that the Gentile and the Jew had come into unity and the middle wall of separation between Jew and Gentile that consisted of such things as hatred, misunderstanding, prejudice, conflicting beliefs, doctrines, and religious rituals and ceremonies had been removed in order that both Jew and Gentile could find harmony in unity in the worship of God.

Answer for yourself: Let me ask you: does that condition of mutual acceptance and unity between Jews and Christians exist today in your church or in this world?

Answer for yourself: Where can you find this today? Why and how did we lose it since it is evident that it existed in the first century?

Answer for yourself: Does Yahweh wish the Jew to pattern himself after the Gentile or the Gentile after the Jew? I have to ask this again because it is so important and should help your approach to what you read in this "mixture" of truth and error we inherited in Rome's New Testament. You will have that answer after you finish these articles.

TWISTING SCRIPTURES TO OUR DESTRUCTION

The Book of Ephesians chapter two and verse 15 states:

- 15 Having abolished in his flesh the enmity, [even] the law of commandments [contained] in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man, [so] making peace;
- 16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain the enmity thereby:

(thereby: or, in himself)

- 17 And came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh.
- 18 For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father.
- 19 Now therefore ye are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellowcitizens with the saints, and of the household of God;
- 20 And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner [stone];

Time for side bar when reading the above passage. I could write pages and pages on the above passage and the Ancient understanding of the "cross of Christ" and the "crucifixion of God". Suffice it to say that for thousands and thousands of years, long before Rome will "literalize" the "Christ Story" as their "Jesus Story", the Ancients of many nations had a common understanding of the Cosmos. By that they understood that our Creator is literally in all things that exist and this God dies "in an allegorical sense" when He limits Himself and confines Himself within matter. We find this concept expressed in various ways; one of the most enlightening for our purpose is the one describing God pouring out "his blood" over and over again but it was never "real blood" but His very life and energy when this God becomes limited to this physical realm in which we exist with all its sins and suffering and pain. In this way the Ancients describe this God as "dying" for mankind since in flesh this God resides as well. Notice we are speaking about Science but again the concept is expressed in a religious manner. In an allegorical sense then God "dies" that man might live. There are volumes and volumes of these accounts of God "dying" that not only exist hundreds and hundreds of years before the first century but well after it as well. You only have to know to look and where to look to find them and then you read this "Jesus Story" on a Divine mystical level that was cherished by almost all nations in the history of our planet. But never was this Christ of God limited to one person as we have it today; rather God in Christ is housed within each child of God. Along comes Rome and in the 2nd through the 5th century they "literalize" and "carnalize" this story and limit this "Karst", as we see in Ancient Egypt, to "the Christ" contained in one supposed historical person. But we know from modern scholarship that this concept of "God in matter" or "God and His Consciousness in flesh" is true but we also know that before Rome and their radical interpretation in this one book that they gave the world the whole of the Ancient World never believed in this limitation of the Christ to just one person. But they understood this "cross in the Heavens" whereby the Sun "awakened from death" and understood how the Sun, as an image of God's Energy and life, was arising from the crossing of the ecliptic and celestial equator each Spring at the Vernal Equinox. This was God "rising from the dead" in order that man might life again having suffered the ravages of winter. We know today that the real Paul is the Gnostic Paul and that he never believed in or wrote of a literal Jesus Christ but rather his whole corpus of revelation to the "non-Jew" concerns their awaking to their Divine Nature and God's Christ "within them". The parallel to the Cosmic example is perfect. The story of the "Karst", or "Christ" is to be our story. So with that understanding we need when reading these passages from this one book to look under what is being said and see the glory of God's mediator to man, His Christ, which carries the Mind of God to us. And this only can be done by seeing the original allegory instead of some supposed "historical-literal" account. This explains in the above passage the later "literalized" reference of this fleshly example of a supposed death of God's Christ on a physical cross as we find in the passage. Of course we are only concerned with God's limitation to this flesh and our bodies to which we call "human life" but you hopefully get the point. Now let us go on and look at an idea in that passage which is true and by that I mean the unifying of the two peoples of God; Jew and "non-Jew".

Possibly there is no greater error in Scriptural interpretation than the twisted Scriptures we inherited from Rome today than Ephesians 2: 15-16 where we find that multitudes "claim" that this Jesus "nailed the Law of Commandments to the cross" thereby giving mankind (the Gentile church) freedom from the LAW! That dear ones is what Rome desired; a Lawless God who never would judge their atrocities done in the name of their Jesus Christ. Thus Rome must do away with the Jewish Law which judges their actions as sin before God. But we don't get the truth from them; rather a jumble of confusing texts which are designed to lead us to a "literal understanding" but yet there are others in this same New Testament which teach an opposing "allegorical" understanding of this same "Christ". Such a mistaken understanding of this Jesus and this cross is because we know very little about astronomy for God was believed to die yearly on the Cross of the ecliptic equator and celestial equator of the Earth as the Sun moved from the Southern Hemisphere to the Northern Hemisphere each Vernal Equinox and such "death and rebirth of life" from the death and ravages of winter was seen in the awakening Spring and the reflowering of Nature and replenishing of the food chain that sustained man's life. Thus God has "crossed" or been "on the cross" of the intersection of these two planes which form a "cross" and His death meant "new life" to man as this Sun, a picture of God and His life-energy, arose upon the Northern Hemisphere once again. Rome will take this Astronomical allegory known for thousands and thousands of years and reinterpret it and teach it to the world as a false "historical-literal" teaching that will serve their political purposes. Now all of this is lost when reading this New Testament since are are not taught what lies behind these 2000 year old or older passages. But this fact is addressed on our Astronomy website. For now we must limit our focus to the Greek and Hebrew of these texts because our English Bibles contain added words which were never there in the Greek Scriptures which influence our reading to perceive incorrectly that God's Law was abolished. If you will begin to study for yourself instead of trusting that your preacher has preached to you I promise you that you will come to many Bible truths that have for too long been overlooked or purposefully shrouded in purposeful confusion. If you will do this then you would discover what I did that completely altered the direction of my life and should alter yours as well if you are a true lover of God who gave His Divine Revelation to Israel and not Rome.

HOW COME THE CHURCH HAS MISSED THIS?

I guess you could blame this on a severe lack of study outside of the traditional Christian rhetoric. But even in Seminary I saw things that I knew I needed to investigate. I did while others did not because I had to know why things did not add up when God is not the Author of confusion.

Today the vast majority of Christian Churches find their identity in the denomination or non-denomination and not as a part of Israel. This is in direct opposition to the Scriptures in the New Testament as well as the Old Testament which clearly instructs that the Gentile finds his position in the Household of God as part of Israel along with the Jew. The reason for so much misunderstanding today in the Christian Church concerning their relationship with the Israel of God is because there have been words "added", in this case, to Ephesians 2:15-16 (as well as other passages in the New Testament) which have TWISTED THE MEANING OF THE GREEK SCRIPTURES thereby falsely leading multitudes to believe the Law has passed away! Following is a copy from the King James Version, with the added words underlined:

Ephesians 2:

- I5 Having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make In himself of twain one new man so making peace;
- I6 And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body by the cross, having slain the enmity thereby:

LET US BE CAREFUL WHEN WE STUDY

As you can see from a close and careful reading of Ephesians 2:15-16 that the translators of the King James Version, by the use of added words to the texts, purposefully, with the intent of falsify, deceived this world into "thinking" that this Jesus came to do away with the Law as we shall more clearly see later in this article! If we read the above Scripture and "include" the words "even" and "contained" we come to the conclusion that Jesus abolished in his "literal" flesh the law, commandments and ordinances through this death on the cross. But dearly beloved "even" and "contained" are added to the Greek manuscripts before translating into English by the publishers of our Bibles.

Take time to read this text of the New Testament and ## leave out the ITALICIZED WORDS and listen to the new meaning it brings to your awareness

Dear child of God, these word are not in the Greek texts recovered from ages of antiquity by archeologists. But by these “additions” by men “who want you to know their anti-Law theology” we are unsuspectingly led astray from the real message God intended us to have.

If you remove these two "added" words we find that the ONLY THING ABOLISHED IS THE "ENMITY." More on this later when I explain this but for now let us continue with Ephesians.

Answer for yourself: As you can see from a close and careful reading of Ephesians 2:15-16 that the translators of the King James Version, by the USE of ADDED WORDS, PURPOSELY, with the INTENT TO FALSIFY, deceived THIS WORLD into "thinking" that Jesus came to do what in regards to the Law? Nail the Law to the cross which he did not. This is evident if you do the following:

- Study Gnosticism to find the earliest teaching of "the Christ" as an allegory in the earliest centuries and by the earliest "Chrestians" before there were Roman Christians
- Study Astronomy to find these Ancient allegorical concepts of the Divine and His message in the Cosmos above our heads that He imparts through His meadiator..."the Christ" in all matter which includes us as God's children (God's consciousness in us). We call it "that still small voice".
- Study the words in their original language in the New Testament which exist in other places in the same book which often contradict such a teaching found here in Ephesians 2:15-16

Answer for yourself: If we read the above Scripture and include the words "even" and "contained" and take a "literal-historical" understanding of "the Christ" then we come to the conclusion that Jesus abolished in his flesh the law, commandments and ordinances through the cross and his historical death. But dearly beloved "even" and "contained" is added to the Greek manuscripts before translated into English. If you remove these two "added" words we find that the only thing abolished (given this interpretation) is not the Law but what? It is called "enmity" or hatred toward the Law by the Gentiles, since now they could come to saving faith without the need for circumcision as an adult male, and so goes the husband and father, so went the family. We have discussed this historical situation that existed in Israel in other articles where Israel compelled the "non-Jew" to undergo circumcision in hopes that such a radical and life-threatening procedure to an adult male would be cause enough to keep them away from Judaism and social and religious association with the Jews. This of course was not the idea held by all Jews in Israel as seen in the Acts 15 Council and their decision to accept the "non-Jew" without circumcision and this is what makes James' decision so crucial in Jewish-Gentile relations at this time.

Answer for yourself: Since Paul is believed to have written the book of Ephesians, and taught Yahweh's LAWS to these same Ephesians (chapter 6:2-3) well after the time of this supposed Jesus' death and presumed resurrection, would Paul teach that these same Laws were "'nailed to a cross", and not to be kept? The answer is, definitely not as we shall see.

BE ON ALERT FOR ITALICIZED WORDS IN YOUR BIBLES

First, I would like to remind you of the fact that when one reads the Greek Scriptures (the New Testament) and finds WORDS IN ITALICS, that means: the italicized words have been added to the Scriptures in translation which were not there in the original Greek texts! In other words, it was not given by God, was not in the Greek manuscripts, and is not intended to be added to the context for often it so often completely alters the true meaning of the passage and we are led into error and sin without knowing it by such placement of italicized words. Such we find ins the erroneous teaching that the Law has passed away with this death of this Jesus. This is just such the case in Ephesians 2:15-16: The added words in these Scriptures in the King James Version have deceived millions of people for hundreds of years! Let us investigate once again Ephesians 2:15-16, KJV, [added words bracketed]!

SO NOW WE SEE MORE CLEARLY

Ephesians 2:15-16

15 Having abolished in his flesh the ENMITY [hatred toward something] (EVEN) the law of commandments (CONTAINED) in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man, (so) making peace;

16 And that he might reconcile both unto Yahweh in one body by the "cross", having slain the ENMITY [hatred toward something] thereby.

Answer for yourself: What was abolished by the Cross (understood to mean the death of Jesus)?

Understand the Jews loved the Law and did not hate it. The hatred toward the Law by the Gentiles is taught by our New Testaments to have been supposedly canceled by the death of this Jesus on a physical cross and that subsequent to his death his followers would go into all the world thereby reaching the "non-Jewish" peoples of the world with the message of monotheism and the resulting responsibilities necessary for those coming to God to obtain salvation. Well this is partly true; in this time period part of Judaism will no longer require circumcision of the "non-Jew" as a requirement for inclusion into the Israel of God. No longer was the Gentile forced to "convert" and undergo circumcision to receive God's gracious gift of salvation. Circumcision had been used as a tool by Jews who hated Gentiles to discourage their coming to God and they used it effectively as they wished to have little or no contact with them since considering them unclean and not worthy of Eternal life (one only needs to read the accounts of Shammai to understand this situation). Circumcision was used to prevent the non-Jewish adult male from making conversion to Judaism. As an infant circumcision was no big thing as the baby carries the mother's antibodies against infection which lasts up to six months in the baby's blood. But for an adult this was a real problem as many died of the procedure due to infection. Now understand that by removing such an obstacle as circumcision for an adult male then the "death penalty" for transgression of the Law was removed for the "non-Jew" as he could now repent and come to saving faith without the need for circumcision. Not all of Israel was ecstatic over such actions taken by the Messianic community of Israel. It was even a slow procedure for the Apostles themselves as it literally took years and persecution to get them to respond in this manner. But no longer were the non-Jew kept from salvation as the Messianic part of Israel repented and began once again to be a "light to the Gentile" by directing them to God without all the excess baggage which had up to that time had effectively been used to prevent the conversion of the non-Jewish world. Now though faith, repentance, obedience, and observance of the Covenant of Noah along with its Commandments and Covenant stipulations, the "non-Jew" would have the "death penalty" which stood over his life removed. The sad part of all of this is that our New Testament ties all of this to a supposed death of a physical human being on a wooden cross and supposedly this event was the catalyst that moved his believers to reach out to the "non-Jews".

Answer for yourself: How can we be certain that there was a human Jesus who died on a cross in Jerusalem 2000 years ago? Can we? Well, today we can know for sure but not without a lot of study in several areas. It will take several books and many hours of research to adequately deal with this problem. Our websites have and the evidence and facts are there for all to see. Let me say that you must become competent in several areas to be certain of the truth behind this "Jesus Story" and his supposed death for mankind on a wooden cross. I understand that not all of my readers have undertaken such a study but here is where you have to begin to find the truth about this whole thing:

- You must become skilled in recognized manuscript forgery and purposefully mistranslated, purposefully misquoted, purposefully lifted out of context passages and pure Scriptural invention of texts to find the truth about this Jesus let alone the later nullification of God's Laws for mankind. It is here you find the purposeful misrepresentation of all Messianic Promises that we find in the Hebrew Scriptures as they are twisted to fit the later developing Roman "Jesus Story".

- You must become skilled in the study of the Essenes for it is here where we find the first purposeful mistranslations and corruptions of the Hebrew Scriptures as they were translated into the Greek which is the backbone for all later English Bibles and New Testament quotations. In so doing you will find how they remake the human Jewish Messiah into a their Angel-Messiah, or "godman" which lays the foundation for Rome's later transfiguration of the Jewish Messiah as well.
- You must become skilled in the understanding of the solar sungods and their stories for they are but personifications of this Gnosticism and their lives are later adapted and "literalized" to fit the evolving Roman "Jesus Story". Your study will hopefully show you that behind them all that these sungods were never "literalized" gods or godmen but rather they are stories and myths told that capture the Divine Truths of man's Soul and its incarnation, life, death, and rebirth to be experienced by every child of God that make up mankind.
- You must become skilled in Gnosticism and the Ancient's understanding of God in matter and how this God mediates His creation through His "Christ". This really is a study in science and physics as told by the Ancients who expertly understood the working of the Cosmos like few do today. It is here you come to understand how God is teaching the Ancients of the presence of His Soul in man, His Presence in man and its responsibilities to his Creator and His Laws.
- You must become skilled in Astronomy to understand how the "Jesus Story" has been told for thousands of years as the personification of the movement of the Sun through the Zodiac and related constellations. You will find there through the movement of the orbs of Heaven as taught through myths and allegories the story which only later becomes "literalized" in the "Jesus Story" as found in the Gospels. It is here you find the "dying-god" story told through the movement of the Sun throughout the equinoxes and solstices which later is "literalized" in the Roman "Jesus Story". Again behind the movements of these orbs you must come to see that they portray again the same story mentioned so often above; namely, the story of the Soul in man, its incarnation, its life, its struggles, and its later death and rebirth.

Having done this then you see a unity through it all; that God is teaching man through the stories of Divine men that he is Divine and called to a higher purpose as God's life on earth. In this story we find a "second birth" that follows a death while we are yet alive. This is the "birth" of Christ in us. But behind it all is the story of the death and rebirth of God as He comes to tabernacle in His creation; man being the ultimate of His creation.

Col 1:26-27 26 Even the mystery which hath been hid from ages and from generations, but now is made manifest to his saints: 27 To whom God would make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles; which is Christ in you, the hope of glory: (KJV)

If you do these studies and do them well then you know when reading passages like Ephesians 2:15-16 is not about a literal death of some human Jesus Christ but rather Rome's attempt to sell the Gentiles the Jewish Messiah after they have transformed him into a Gentile Messiah for the masses. Thus, the death spoken of here is not "historical" but allegorical as we confirmed through the studies mentioned above.

Answer for yourself: Having seen for yourself the truth about these added words when you look in you own Bibles and now understanding that the Greek Scriptures do not contain them then have our Christian Pastors and Teachers been correct in their interpretation and their preaching or have they committed a grievous error and led you into sin (rejection of the Law and your covenant stipulations as "non-Jews") without your knowledge? You be the judge!

Yahweh's Law, however, is not the "enmity" slain as mentioned in the profane verse in Ephesians but rather hatred "for or toward something". History records that in Judaism the "hatred for the Law", in particular the Law of Circumcision, which was unfairly commanded of the "non-Jew" by R. Shammai and his School of Pharisees, was destroyed primarily not because of some death of some man on a wooden cross but rather by the repentance of a large part of Judaism as seen in Acts 15 and the ruling of James at the Jerusalem Council.

Paul has plainly told us this in Romans 2:13, Romans 3:31, Romans 7:7, and Romans 7:12.

Romans 2:13

For NOT the "hearers" of the Law are just before Yahweh, but the "DOERS OF THE LAW" will be justified.

Answer for yourself: Did Paul teach "doing the Law" for justification after some presumed cross and crucifixion of some Jesus which supposedly occurred year earlier which we are told in Ephesians did away with the Law? He sure does. This should make you think and recognize that SOMETHING IS WRONG HERE! How could Paul say such contradictory statements? Did someone forge parts of the New Testament in his name?

Romans 3:31

Are we then "doing away with the Law through faith? By no means! Rather, *we ESTABLISH the Law!

Answer for yourself: Did Paul abolish or establish the Law in the Gentile churches (like yours) in Rome before or after the cross? The Law was established in Paul's preaching definitely after the cross! One only has to read Paul's references to the Commandments of God in his epistles to see this.

Romans 7:7

Shall we therefore "say that the Law is 'sin'? NO! By no means! But to the contrary, I did not know sin (transgression of The Law) except through the Law, for I did not know lust, unless the Law had said (in Exodus 20:17 and Deuteronomy 5:21) Do not covet."

Romans 7:12

Therefore the LAW is HOLY, and the COMMANDMENTS holy, and Just, and Righteous.

Answer for yourself: Did Paul say this before or after the Cross of this Jesus which supposedly destroyed the Law? Definitely after!

Answer for yourself: Did the Jews love the Law or hate the Law? They loved the Law.

Answer for yourself: Then who do you suppose hated the Law (having not grown up with it and understood it properly like you and me)? The Gentiles for the reasons given above and by that I mean Rome who wished not to be constrained by these Laws of God and the Commandments of God which called their government and its actions "sin".

The Apostle Paul taught The Ten Commandment Law to the Ephesians, as proven by Ephesians 6:2-3, which says:

- 2 Honor your father and mother, which is the first Commandment with a promise:
- 3 That it may be well with you, and you may live long on the earth.

The LAW to honor one's father and mother, in order that your days may be long upon the land, is Commandment Number Five of The Ten Commandments, found in Exodus 20:12, and repeated in Deuteronomy 5:16.

Notice that the Apostle Paul was not teaching the "abolishment" of The Commandments (correctly understood as the ten categories that organized all the Laws of God underneath these 10 headings), or he would not have been teaching the Ephesians to obey the 5th Commandment!

This is made all the more difficult because Paul tells us in Romans that the "Law is holy, just and righteous."

Answer for yourself: So "what" was the "enmity" that Paul said was "abolished" if it is not the LAW?

To understand, we must look at the status and situation of the Gentile in first century Israel.

WHAT IS THE "ENMITY" WHICH WAS ABOLISHED & WHY IS IT VERY IMPORTANT FOR THE CHRISTIAN TODAY?

In Ephesians 2:15-16 we find the Greek word which is translated as "ENMITY". This word comes from the Greek word "echthra", word #2189 in Strong's Greek Dictionary, which is a derivative of word #2190 which means "hostility toward something":

Thus, the word ENMITY in Ephesians 2:15-16, should have been WRITTEN: enmity TOWARD something or enmity TO something.

A Critical Lexicon and Concordance To The English and Greek New Testament, by Ethelbert W. Bullinger, Zondervan Publishing, Grand Rapids, MI., pps. 250-251, corroborates the FACT that the word ENMITY means: OPPOSITE TO, hating another, and adverse to Him:

As stated before the "enmity" destroyed was the hatred of the "non-Jew" toward the Law of Circumcision and not the whole of the Torah or the Laws of Noah given the "non-Jew" for Eternal Live.

I bet that is a real revelation to most of you, especially considering you have been taught to hate the Law since you were children in Sunday school.

Historically, the non-Jews of the world were brought to God without the obstacle of circumcision, therefore making "peace" between the Gentile and the Jews thus making the two peoples "one"; thereby breaking down the middle wall of opposition and separation between them. Now it was possible that both the Jew and the non-Jew would love the same thing: both the Jew and "non-Jew" could now love the Laws of God together. The Laws of Noah are so simple that any "non-Jew" could easily live by them and most already were if they were righteous beings like Cornelius.

THE NATURAL BRANCHES & THE WILD OLIVE BRANCHES OF THE "OLIVE TREE" OF ISRAEL

In the Apostle Paul's analogy, root (Greek=riza), is described in three ways.

- First it is holy (Greek=agias) (Romans 11:16b). The word agias, according to the Theological Dictionary of the New Testament by W.B. Erdmans, translates "holy" as meaning to be separated or set aside for God's unique purpose. Paul says that as the root is holy (Jews) but so are the branches ("non-Jews"). Because God sanctified Abraham, his descendants, both physical and spiritual, are also set aside for God's purposes.
- Second, the root is the source of the fatness, (piotetos) or nourishing sap that flows from the root and gives life to the branches of the tree (Romans 11:17b). Likewise, the spiritual blessings found in the COVENANTS (more than one) made with the Patriarchs are promised to each member of Abraham's family, both physical and spiritual descendants (by this I mean the Gentile believers).
- Thirdly, the root is said to support (Greek=bastazo) the branches. The word bastazo means to support, bear up, or give life. This is best seen in Luke 11:27 where bastazo is used for the womb, suggesting the protection, nourishment and life support on which the new life is utterly dependent (remember this is to be understood in the relationship of the "non-Jew" with the people of God...the Jews).

In context where bastazo is used, it implies the submission of the one who receives support. The meaning of Paul's admonishment to remember is that it is not you, the Gentiles, who support the root; rather it is the root, the Jews, that supports you (the Gentiles). Paul is saying that Israel supports the Church, the Jew supports the Gentile. Such phraseology describes the proper attitude required of Gentile believers in regard to their place in the family of God. The attitude of the Gentile is one of humble submission and grateful appreciation toward the Patriarchs (the root), toward Israel (the Olive Tree), for the spiritual blessings of the covenants (nourishing sap) and toward the Jewish people (the Natural branches). Paul's use of the word "bastazo" implies the "submission" of the engrafted branch (Gentile believers) and not "replacement or dominion" of the Gentiles or the Gentile Church over Israel and the Jews.

THE CURRENT DECEPTION...REPLACEMENT THEOLOGY

However, modern Gentile Christian theology teaches one of two approaches in dealing with the relationship between Gentile Christianity and the Israel of God. The older and better known is generally called replacement or covenant theology and has resurfaced today as kingdom now or dominionism; reconstructionism, and in England, restorationism.

Under any name, it defiantly (and quite successfully) has persuaded Gentile Christians to believe they are the NEW or TRUE Israel, having replaced OLD Israel as God's people. This terrible heresy and abominable teaching is spread from coast to coast in spite of the hundreds of references that can be quoted in the Tanakh [Old Testament] in which God himself eternally binds himself to the Jewish people, ie. "For this to Me is like the waters of Noah: as I swore that the waters of Noah nevermore would flood the earth, so I swear...my LOYALTY SHALL NEVER MOVE FROM YOU, nor my covenant of friendship be shaken." (Isaiah 54:9,10) or in the New Testament, ie. "God has not forsaken or rejected His people Israel. May it never be...for the gifts and calling of God are irrevocable.. (Romans 11;1,29).

Replacement theology has inspired Gentile Christianity to reject its Judaic root, and has striped the Church of its Hebraic faith and practice. However, Paul teaches that firmly supported by the richness of the Olive Tree, Gentiles have no room for the spirit of arrogance, pride or self-sufficiency that currently characterizes much of Gentile Christianity (Romans 11:20). Unfortunately, from the second century to modern times Gentile believers have tended to view their existence independently of Israel. But Paul warned, that the attempt to exist independently of the Olive Tree, is not consistent with the concept of the later emerging Gentile Church as determined in the mind of God, and risk being "cut off". (Romans 11: 19-22).

THE TWO BRANCHES OF THE OLIVE TREE:

Paul's analogy there are two types of branches partaking of the life of the giving sap of the root of the Olive Tree. The Natural Branches represent faithful Jews who were still faithful to monotheism and the faith of the Bible and had not rejected, or worse, replaced the faith of Abraham with Greek Hellenistic Religion and Paganism which had spread throughout the world and threatened the very existence of Israel in the first century. These Natural Branches are the physical descendants of the Patriarchs, and physical heirs to the promises of God made through His covenants. It is in this understanding that the Gentile Church has made a grievous error in judgment since few today are aware of the historical and cultural facts that surround the Scripture, which if were known, give an entirely new understanding and meaning to the text.

THE MISUNDERSTANDING OF ISRAEL BEING "CUT OFF"

Now listen carefully. For too long we have assumed that the natural branches of the Olive Tree of Israel were cut off for unbelief concerning the identity of Yeshua [Jesus] as Messiah as taught by Paul, which is not the case, for Paul was using typical teaching methods of Rabbinic teaching when in Romans referencing Obidiah 1:12-18 [using "rhemez" where he refers backward to something that already occurred] where "cut off" referred to the invasion and exile of Israel in which other family members of Israel (Esau/Moab-brother of Jacob) looked on, gloated, and even took advantage of the misfortune of their "brothers and sisters." Paul was warning the Gentiles (who had come to faith in God and acceptance into the family of God like Esau) to not act accordingly if Israel (the other children of God) were once again to experience such judgment and disaster (prophetic of 70 C.E. with destruction of the Temple and the exile of Israel which lasted until 1948 C.E.).

Nowhere was Paul was referring to Israel or part of Israel being cut off for not accepting what would become the later "theology" concerning this Jesus as we have been taught today.

Let us not forget that Israel, in part, as described in Rome's New Testament is depicted as having accepted the ministry of this Jesus, for the Roman New Testament even tells us that the religious establishment supposedly feared the popularity of Jesus because "all men everywhere will follow" him. Little known by most Christians is the fact that in Israel in this troubling time Israel was following "many" Messiahs and anyone who promised them deliverance over their Roman oppressors. Any "Messiah" will do.

Answer for yourself: How could some Jews be "lost" supposedly before the New Testament's depiction of the "coming" of Jesus if the rejection of belief "in him as Messiah" was the determining criteria that determined if these Natural Branches were “cut off or not”?

You should easily see that the question about the supposed identity of this Jesus was NOT the determining factor in determining if individual Jews were "lost" or not.

ONE OR TWO OLIVE TREES?

The unnatural or Wild Olive Branches represent believing Gentiles, who when grafted into the tree of Israel (by turning from idols and paganism to serve the ONLY living God) also become descendants and partakers of the promises of God. Both types of branches are partakers of ONE Olive Tree, not two olive trees! There is only one Israel, not two. The wild Olive branches (believing Gentiles in the first century, as today), have been grafted into the Israel of God through faith in the God of Israel (Ephesians 2:13), so that they are now included in the commonwealth of Israel. But they are NOT, as Replacement Theology would have it, a “New Israel” that replaces the “Old Israel.” Let me make one thing clear. Whether it be Jesus or Jonah, any Jew who brought the "non-Jew" knowledge of the God of Israel, His Covenants, faith, repentance, obedience to the Commandments of God, etc., was acceptable. There would be no difference as seen in the ministry of the Apostles, for example, because the important thing is that such "saving" knowledge be brought to the "non-Jew". The identify of the messenger is not the critical issue; the message is.

Nor do the two branches, believing Jews and Gentiles, constitute a “new tree, a new Israel.” The “cut off” or unfaithful branches too are still identifiable as Israel even though they do not have the living sap of the tree flowing through them. For God is miraculously preserving them, so that instead of dying out, as detached branches normally do, they are able to be grafted back in by faith (Romans 11:23,24). As David Stern instructs, in his Messianic Jewish Manifesto, on page 56, he states that unfaithful Jews are those which are compared to pruned branches who drifted away from the Law, the Torah, and Sinai faith only to accept Greek Hellenism and Paganism instead. Faithful Jews (natural branches residing in Torah faith), and believing Gentiles (wild olive branches who accepted the faith of Jesus and the Laws of Noah along with the Covenant of Noah) each have their own kind of ongoing participation in the “ONE” Israel. This fact needs to be taken seriously in any correct theology of Israel and the Church.

Because of the temporary hardening of some of the unfaithful Jews and their acceptance of Hellenism in the first century, Gentile believers have the opportunity to become a part of Israel. God's justice has separated the unbelieving branches, but God's kindness and mercy has made it possible for Gentiles to have the opportunity for Eternal Life. Because of this, Paul warns that the grafted branches should not be conceited, but come to God through His mercy, gaining value only as they are connected with the life giving sap of the Olive Tree. Yet, Gentile Christianity, since its emergence from the Olive Tree in the fourth century under the heavy influence of Rome, has never seriously heeded Paul's warning (Romans 11:20-21).

Instead of partaking of the rich tradition and heritage of its Jewish root, Gentile Christianity has taken for itself the very position of the Olive Tree! They believe they have REPLACED ISRAEL which is blasphemous! One only needs to read some of the early Church Fathers to see the case in point. I suggest you read Justin Martyr's Dialogue with Trypho The Jew to begin such a study for it is filled with "Replacement Theology" and this was written in 150 C.E. and was the very first major literary work by "non-Jews" in this area (although one finds the incipient idea in Ignatius' letters penned around 110 C.E.).

"Behold then the kindness and severity of God; to those Jews who fell, severity, but to you Gentiles, God's kindness, If you continue in His kindness, otherwise you also will be cut off" (Romans 11:22).

The engrafting process (faithfulness to the one God of Israel through obedience to His commandments), has made it possible for Gentile believers to share in the life and power of the root (Israel). As Gentiles come to have a right relationship with God, and humbly accept the God of the Jewish people and a Jewish Book written by Jews as the revelation of this God, they participate in Covenant promises made to the Jewish people whereby they naturally share in the Jew's rich heritage, as well as their culture. Let us never forget that the Bible is a Jewish book and it cannot be read and understood and explained unless we are prepared to become Jews with Jews. This is the essence of the Olive Tree Connection. This is the essence of the Olive Tree Congregation.

THE HISTORY OF THE OLIVE TREE:

We do not believe that Paul ever expected that his warning to the "non-Jewish" world about spiritual arrogance, pride and self-sufficiency would largely go unheeded. However, only a century after he wrote his warning, Gentile Christianity virtually severed itself from its Jewish root.

Answer for yourself: How was it possible that an all Jewish movement within Judaism, could detach itself, and flourish as a new, separate, self-sufficient religion which rejected it's Hebraic Roots within two generations?

Answer for yourself: How do we understand the appalling rootlessness of modern Gentile Christianity in regard to its Jewish origin?

The answers are found in the history of the Olive Tree, a history few Gentile Christians are aware of.

THE TRANSFORMATION OF THE OLIVE TREE...A TRULY SAD STORY

The story of the Olive Tree is a tragic one. The following analysis will show that the separation between Gentile Christianity and the Jewish people as it has developed over the last 2000 years, is completely out of God's will, the worst schism in history. It is our challenge to participate in what the Sages called, tikun-ha-olam, literally, fixing up the world, or repairing it. Such activity according to Rabbinic teaching will hasten the coming of the Messiah. This is what Kefa [Peter] is referring to when he encourages believers to live Godly lives and thus hasten the coming of the day of God, (2 Peter 3:12).

Although the Olive branch has long symbolized peace (Genesis 8:11), it is both ironic and tragic, that while the figure Paul uses in Romans 11 depicts the joining of two peoples to worship and serve the God of Israel, the relationship between Jew and Gentile has been characterized by division. Abba Hillel Silver, in his Where Judaism Differed, pp. 96-98 show us that historically, the transformation of the Olive Tree unfolded in three stages:

- The first stage began with 27 AD and ended around 50 A.D. with the convening of the Jerusalem Council of Acts 15. The literature of Matthew, Mark, Luke (Synoptic Gospels) and the epistle of James (Jacob) are representative of the Messianic Community, perceived as a sect within Judaism (Acts 24:5). They continued to pray in the temple (Acts 3:1) and worship through study of Torah in the Synagogues (Acts 13:14).
- The second stage began with Paul's the mission to the Gentiles. The epistles of Paul characterize the period and emphasize the role of Torah in the salvation of the Gentiles. The period expands from 50 AD to 90 AD. During this second phase, Gentiles came to believe in the God of Israel through the missionary efforts of the Messianic Community of Judaism and Israel. Now comes a real shocker for the Christian Church today. The first-line of Gentile converts in the first century were admonished to obey the laws of the Covenant made with Noah (Noachide Laws) and were expected to continue study of the Torah (Law, Prophets, Writings with special emphasis on the Laws of Moses) within the synagogue structure (Acts 15:19-21).

- The third stage is characterized by the literature of John and spans from 90 AD to 150 AD. During this period the foundation was laid for the eventual incorporation of the concepts of the Orphic mysteries, Greek mythology and mystery religions of the Greco-Roman world into the theology of Messianic Judaism which today has evolved into Contemporary Gentile Christianity. This "religious-pagan" synthesis contributed to the eventual anti-Judaic perspective of the Gentile church and the final separation between Jew and Gentile and thus the stunting of the Olive Tree. Abraham Heschel said, "The vital issue for the Gentile church is to decide whether to look for its roots in Jerusalem and consider itself an extension of Judaism, or to look for its roots in pagan Hellenism and consider itself as an anti-thesis to Judaism".

Answer for yourself: As a Gentile believer in the God of Israel, has your church every taught you the Laws of Noah?

Answer for yourself: As a Gentile believer the God of Israel, has your church taught you the Laws of Moses or have they most likely taught you the "Law has passed away"?

Answer for yourself: Have you every thought of yourself [as a Christian] a "sect" or part of Biblical Judaism?

Answer for yourself: Are you aware of "any" beliefs you have accepted since childhood as part of your Christian faith are in reality "additions" to the "faith of Jesus" which a typical Jew like this Jesus would have never accepted since they violate much of the Torah and the Prophets of the Old Testament?

Answer for yourself: Could you be practicing a modified form of a "literalized" Sun-Worship every Sunday and not know it?

Answer for yourself: If you have, what does God think of the matter? You only need read the Torah to find out.

THE BIRTH OF THE JEWISH-MESSIANIC COMMUNITY: 27-50 A.D.

Although Christianity claims to be a historical religion, in which the understanding of the eternal God emanate supposedly from a first century Galilean Rabbi, traditional Christianity is pre-occupied NOT with the words and deeds of this depiction of the Jewish Christ within the Israel of God but rather the Essene Cosmic Godman's (called the Christ) eternal pre-existence and his promise of eternal salvation. This comes straight out of "literalized" Solar myths:

Here is where Gentile Christianity in all of its traditional and modern forms differ from the Kingdom movement initiated by God's Israel in the context of first century Judaism. As will be shown, Christianity, with its emphasis on Platonic dualism and other-worldliness, evolved as a SYNTHESIS between the Greco-Oriental religions of the Roman empire and the practical Judaism which Israel both believed and practiced.

A JEWISH MESSIAH

The life, words and deeds of this Jewish Christ and His message through Biblical Judaism reveal the Divine Ideas of God for all mankind as expressed through the medium of a "representative man" deeply rooted within the Hebraic culture and Jewish faith. I recommend Geza Vermes' Jesus the Jew which describes the "Jewishness of Jesus" in detail. Here is where it gets tricky again since already we have mentioned that proper understanding of this Christ as depicted in our New Testament is best understood as a Divine Allegory rather than a supposed "literal-historical" account. Given this as an undeniable fact upon study let it be now that that "allegorically" the New Testament reveals that this Christ came as a "Jew" to this world; he was born of Jewish parents (Matthew 1:16), and circumcised the eighth day according to the Torah (Luke 2:21). As a youth he celebrated Passover (Luke 2:41-43) and learned Torah within the Synagogue and was even found on one occasion discussing halakah (interpretation of Torah) with the Sages in Jerusalem at the early age of twelve (Luke 2:46,47). When he began his ministry, he did so within the Synagogue system, and by doing so he kept Sabbath observance (Luke 4:16). About ninety percent of the teachings of this Jewish Christ can be paralleled by rabbinic literature and reveal a strong resemblance to the Pharisaic teaching found with the Synagogues of Israel. This Christ is depicted as an observant Jew, participating in the Feast of Passover (Matthew 26:15-18), Hannukah or Feast of Dedications (John 10:22), Feast of Unleavened Bread (Luke 22:1) and the Feast of Tabernacles (John 7:10). What is amazing and frightening is that there are modern scholars who have made attempts to deny the Jewishness of this "Jesus as the Christ" and thus justify much of the antisemitism perpetuated by the Church in its history. An example is Freidrich Delitzch; noted Old Testament scholar, who denied the Jewish origin of Christianity and the Jewishness of Jesus.

To further substantiate the thoroughness of the Jewishness of God's revelation to the world through this Jewish Christ we find that he was addressed as Rabbi (Mark 9:5) but considered himself to be a prophet in the Jewish tradition (Luke 13:33; 4:25; Mark 6:4). Jesus taught as one who had authority, (Mark 1:22), that is not as the Rabbis taught in accordance with the authority of the academies, but as a prophet would have taught on direct authority from God. The people who heard and understood the words of this Christ saw and understood this Christ to be a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people (Luke 24:19). During his earthly visitation in Israel, this Christ importantly considered himself called only to the lost sheep of the house of Israel (Luke 24:19). Later he commanded (the Great Commission) that the Torah (God's instruction and commandments) be taken to all the "lost sheep of Israel" who, in that day had become literally Gentiles through intermarriage with "non-Jews" following the captivity of Northern Israel some 800 years previous (Matthew 28:28). This was literally in fulfillment of such passages as Micah 4:1-3. Let us never forget that within this "Gentile" melting pot through out the world were multitudes of Abraham's ancestors whom were taken captive in the Assyrian Captivity which had become totally assimilated with other Gentile nations, thereby losing their heritage and their faith. It was to these "lost sheep" of Israel that this Christ called Israel to reach out toward in the Great Commission when he commanded the "Torah" be taken to them, thus providing the opportunity for them "who had been cut off by their unbelief" to be "grafted" back into Israel through repentance and faith.

THE CHURCH OF THIS JEWISH CHRIST: A CONGREGATION PATTERNED AFTER JEWISH VALUES AND CEREMONIES

The Jewish Messianic movement within Judaism looked at the Torah as sacred and eternally binding upon themselves and all who would join them (including the Gentiles). Particularly, since this Jewish Christ specifically taught that Torah was to be observed, and anyone who taught men not to, would be least in the family of God (Matthew 5:17-19).

Matthew 5

- 17. Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill.
- 18 For verily I say to you, Till heaven and earth shall pass away, one jot or one tittle shall by no means pass from the law, till all be fulfilled.
- 19 Whoever therefore shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven: but whoever shall do and teach [them], the same shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.

That is a frightening Scripture for the contemporary Gentile Christian church today who teaches that the Law has passed away and that we are under "grace" only and absolved of our responsibility to obey the "Laws of Moses". The first believers in the teachings of this Jewish Christ and the message brought to and through Israel to the world saw no contradiction between their loyalty to Judaism and their belief in a Jewish Messiah (Acts 16:3; 18:18; 21:20-26). Messianic identity was not a "saving" doctrine then nor is it now! Christianity has failed yet to see this.

Answer for yourself: Have you ever taught others that we "are no longer the Law but under grace"?

Answer for yourself: In doing so, do you see that you have taught others that they are not obligated to obey the Law, thus giving them erroneous direction that they are not required to obey the Law?

Answer for yourself: Are you "least" in Christ's kingdom, and if so, don't you desire to be "great" for him instead?

Acts 16

3 Him would Paul have to go forth with him; and took and circumcised him (commandment) because of the Jews who were in those quarters: for they all knew that his father was a Greek.

Acts 18

*18. And Paul [after this] tarried [there] yet a good while, and took his leave of the brethren, and sailed from there into Syria, and with him Priscilla and Aquila; having shorn [his] head in Cenchrea: for he had a vow (obeyed the Law of the Nazirite).

Acts 21

*20 And when they heard [it], they glorified the Lord, and said to him, Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are who believe; and they are all zealous of the law:

- 21 And they are informed concerning thee, that thou teachest all the Jews who are among the Gentiles to forsake Moses, saying that they ought not to circumcise [their] children, neither to walk after the customs.
- 22 What is it therefore? the multitude must needs come together: for they will hear that thou art come.
- 23 Do therefore this that we say to thee: We have four men who have a vow on them;
- 24 Take them and purify thyself with them, and pay their expenses that they may shave [their] heads: and all may know that those things, of which they were informed concerning thee, are nothing; but [that] thou thyself also walkest orderly, and keepest the law.
- 25 As concerning the Gentiles who believe, we have written [and] concluded that they observe no such thing, except that they keep themselves from [things] offered to idols, and from blood, and from strangled, and from immorality (4 of the 7 categories of the Laws of Noah as mentioned earlier).
- 26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day purifying himself with them entered into the temple, to signify the accomplishment of the days of purification, until an offering should be offered for every one of them. [Notice that this was long after the Cross and Paul and others of the Messianic Community were STILL OBSERVING THE LAW].

Just a quick note. It was in this "vow" that Paul, upon James' command, brought blood sacrifices for atonement and sin offerings long after the time of the supposed death of Jesus which is again supposed to be the final atonement for sin and let me also say it was approximately 25 years following the supposed death of this Jesus. That should make you wonder why these men, James and Paul and the Jerusalem Church did not believe in some Jesus' death as the "final sacrifice" for sin as the author of Hebrews instructs and as Roman Christianity has taught for some 1800 years. That should make you wonder if we as Christians have been taught the truth concerning atonement (SELAH).

IS THIS INFORMATION "NEW" OR "OLD"?

The "New", or more correctly stated the "Re-Newed" Covenant was viewed as being fulfilled as a covenant promised to the House of Israel and Judah (Jeremiah 31:31), and not a "New" Covenant given to Gentile believers that replaced one of God's previous covenants which are all eternal and everlasting. The promise of the New Covenant was not abrogation of Torah, but the writing of the Torah on the hearts of men of faith. Gentile believers should take note that the New Covenant was promised to Israel, not Rome or Athens (Gentiles) (Hebrew 8:8-13). in this "renewed" same Covenant as before God was to write His same Laws upon the hearts of His people anew and within His people, the Israel of God, was a place for the "non-Jewish" believer who was to have these same Laws and Commandments, respective of his unique Covenant, written upon his heart as well. Nothing God every said can pass away or be nullified no matter what the New Testament says.

Hebrews 8

8 For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the days come (still future), saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant (unconditional) with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah:

9 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt (conditional covenant); because they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord.

10 For this [is] the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord; I will put my laws into their mind, and write them (LAWS) in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people: {put: Gr. give} {in: or, upon}

11 And they shall not teach every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest.

Answer for yourself: As a Christian, who is grafted into the Israel of God, can you honestly say that this "New" Covenant has begun already for you in light of the condition that God will "put His laws into the minds" and hearts of His people? This is rather strange considering that the vast majority of Christian Churches that follow Rome's Christ and its false Pauline theology prides themselves that they are not under the Law.

Answer for yourself: Is this "new" covenant made with Baptists, Catholics, Presbyterians, Lutherans, or with the people of Israel? You were to be Israel long before any man-made denominations were ever started.

Answer for yourself: Can these "Baptists, Catholics, etc. be considered apart of Israel and be partakers of this covenant when their dogmas and doctrines oppose and conflict the Jewish Scriptures and the religious beliefs of Israel (ie. replaced the Sabbath with Sunday, replaced the 7 Biblical Festivals with pagan holidays to which the Roman Church attached the name of this Jesus, changed the tithe, pagan Christology, etc.)?

Answer for yourself: Since this "new", or better stated in the Hebrew as "renewed" covenant was to be made with Judah (Jews) and Israel (those descendants from the northern ten tribes), where do we as Gentile believers fit in, and can we not have God Laws written in our minds and hearts and still be a part of Israel?

Answer for yourself: As Gentile believers whom are grafted into Israel, are we given as Christians the authority to change the Laws concerning such things as the Sabbath, the Biblical Festivals, or righteous giving as dictated by the very own laws which are to "written on our hearts?"

Answer for yourself: If you claim to find where the Bible gives you the authority to do away with what Jesus both believed, observed, and taught, will you please inform me for I have studied for over 20 years and have yet to find such authority?

HOW CAN WE KNOW GOD AS VERSE 11 PROMISES?

I John 2:3-4 states: And hereby we do know that we know him (Yahweh), if we keep His commandments. He that saith, I know him and keepeth not His commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.

The early disciples who followed the message of God's Christ found this compatible with their continued observance of Sabbath, the festivals, circumcision and the dietary laws.

There remained such Jewish Messianic fellowships containing both Jews and Gentile believers until the fourth century.

Because of the development of the anti-Semitic and anti-Judaic attitude of the Gentile Church, it became impossible for these early remnants of Israel's outreach to the "non-Jews" to flourish. Ignatius, in his Letter to Magnesians 10:3, (written during the second century) wrote, "it is monstrous to speak of Jesus Christ and practice Judaism."

With such typical animosity by "non-Jew"ish leaders, orthodox Gentile Christianity made it impossible for any such Messianic community to remain true to the message of the Jewish Christ and the message of Israel to the "non-Jew"

Likewise, Judaism, because of the persecution and animosity it was receiving from emerging Roman Christianity, found no place for these messianic Jews either. Besides that, the missionizing of the "non-Jewish" world by the Jews would be severely curtailed. However, it should be noted that there were Rabbis like Simon the Pious and Simon ben Lakkish who defended the Messianic Jews and thought they should be included within the framework of the Jewish community of faith.

SO WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN TO ME-A CHRISTIAN IN MY CHRISTIAN CHURCH?

Answer for yourself: If the teaching aspects of the Law has not passed away, then are we not still "under" the perfect Law of obedience? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Since the teaching aspects of the Law have not passed away, then what right do we have to continue to utilize God's Holy Tithe in the manner we do as it goes to church funds to be distributed how they will (building payments, insurance, bill, utilities, due, membership fees in organization, fancy dinners, etc), when the Law SPECIFICALLY commands us that 1/3 of ALL of the Tithe is to go totally to the widows, orphans, sick, lame, blind, etc? We have no right and we sin in contributing to agencies if we let them distribute God's Tithe in such ways. These Laws are the very details of our Covenant before God and to neglect or disobey is sin. Don't be deceived any longer!

Answer for yourself: Since the teaching aspects of the Law have not passed away, then what right do we have to continue to utilize God's Holy Tithe in the manner we do when God's Law SPECIFICALLY commands us that the second 1/3 of the Tithe is to go to you for the observance and celebration of the Sabbath and Feasts of the Lord as found in Lev. 23? We have no right and we sin in contributing to churches whose church calendars are filled with pagan holidays in which we affix the name of Yeshua to make them look religious?

Answer for yourself: Since the teaching aspects of the Law have not passed away, then what right do we have to continue to utilize God's Holy Tithe in the manner we do when God's Law SPECIFICALLY commands us that the third 1/3 of the Tithe is to go to the teaching Levite who today teaches you the truths in God's Word, and not to false teaches who have taught you to rob God? We have no right and we sin in contributing to churches in support of pastors who deceive you because of their lack of adequate study!

Answer for yourself: Since the teaching aspects of the Law have not passed away, then what right do we have to continue adhere to and observe our Gentile Church's calendar of holidays to the neglect of the Seven Biblical Festivals which can easily be shown to have admonitions concerning the "non-Jews" inclusion?

We at Bet Emet Ministries plead with you to share this material with loved ones that they may inherit the fullness of God's salvation by rethinking the message of preachers and Paul, or those who corrupted his writings, thereby rightly dividing the Word of God that they will one day not stand ashamed before God.

THE ENGRAFTED OLIVE TREE BEGINS TO SPROUT A MIXTURE OF FRUIT-HEBRAISTS AND HELLENISTS

Although the initial Messianic Community was Jewish, it was not monolithic. The Messianic Community in Jerusalem, was initially composed of two distinct groups (Acts 6:1). One group was the Hebraists. These were Hebrew speaking Jews, most of whom were native to Israel. They were firmly committed to Torah and the Jewish way of life. Being committed to the Jewish traditions they maintained close ties to the Temple. The other group was the Hellenists. These Jews were Jewish in matters of faith but adopted Greek language and customs. The Hellenists were primarily Jews from the diaspora and had ties to the Greco-Roman world. The term "diaspora" is a term referring to any place outside Israel where Jews lived. After the martyrdom of Stephen, a Hellenistic Jew, a great persecution was unleashed (Acts 11:19-21), primarily against the Hellenist wing of the Messianic Community. As a result they were scattered throughout Judea and Samaria (Acts 8:1). This persecution of the Hellenistic Jewish believers led to the evangelization of Gentiles.

EVANGELIZATION OF GENTILES

Philip is a case in point since he was a Hellenistic Jew (Acts 6:5) and traveled northward to Samaria, then Gaza, Azotus and Caesara evangelizing Gentile proselytes and God-fearers (Acts 8:4-40). Because the Hellenist were less Hebraic in orientation, it was easier for them to relate to Gentiles. At the same time, it laid the foundation for a Gentile community who was less Hebraic in orientation. For the most part, the Hebraic wing of the early Messianic faith community remained in Jerusalem and grew to number tens of thousands, all zealots for the Torah (Acts 21:20). Until 135 AD, the Jerusalem faith community of believers appears to have made up of almost exclusively of Hebraists. Besides the persecution from the Sadducean priests (Acts 4:17ff), there was one other crisis confronting the early Messianic community. That question was not which Jews could belong to the Spirit enlightened community (Joel 2:28,29), instead the primary issue was whether Gentiles could, upon repentance of sin, belong to a totally Jewish community, and if so, what were the requirements?

THE TRANSITION OF THE OLIVE TREE (50 to 90 AD)-THE MISSION TO THE GENTILES

The faith and ethical values of the Jewish people were never monopolized by them. They were offered to all humanity. Israel's covenant with God was ultimately a covenant with all mankind. I have given you as a covenant to the Gentiles, as a light to the Gentile nations (Isaiah 42:6). All men, regardless of race or status, were welcome to faith in God. Judaism was never to be a self-enclosed society or separatist religion. Let not the Gentile (Hebrew=nochri, foreigner) who joins himself to the Lord say, "The Lord will surely separate me from His people ...I will bring Gentiles to my Holy Mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer...for my House shall be called a House of prayer for all nations." (Hebrew=goyim, gentiles) [Isaiah 56:3,7].

Biblical passages like Isaiah 2:2-4 and Micah 4:1-3 indicated that there would be a time when Gentiles would come in great numbers to join themselves with the Jewish people and believe in the ONE God of Israel. You should find this rather strange since today Christianity is bent upon converting every Jew in the world to Christianity, thereby effectively eradicating the true faith of Yeshua from the planet!

Isaiah 2

- 2 And it shall come to pass in the last days, [that] the mount of the LORD'S house shall be established on the top of the mountains, and shall be exalted above the hills; and all nations [Gentiles] shall flow to it. {established: or, prepared}
- 3 And many people [Gentiles] shall go and say, Come ye, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.
- 4 And he shall judge among the nations [Gentiles], and shall rebuke many people: and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. {pruninghooks: or, scythes}

Answer for yourself: Don't you find it rather strange that in the future the "Law" will go out from Zion, yet many teach that the Law has no validity today or else is "passed away"?

Micah 4

- 1. But in the last days it shall come to pass, [that] the mount of the house of the LORD shall be established on the top of the mountains, and it shall be exalted above the hills; and people [Gentiles] shall flow to it.
- 2 And many nations shall come, and say, Come, and let us go up to the mountain of the LORD, and to the house of the God of Jacob; and he will teach us of his ways, and we will walk in his paths: for the law shall go forth from Zion, and the word of the LORD from Jerusalem.
- 3 And he shall judge among many people [Gentiles], and rebuke strong nations afar off; and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruninghooks: nation shall not lift up a sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. {pruninghooks: or, scythes}

A similar passage is Zechariah 8:21-23:

21 And the inhabitants of one [city] shall go to another, saying, Let us go speedily to pray before the LORD, and to seek the LORD of hosts: I will go also. 22 Yea, many people and strong nations shall come to seek the LORD of hosts in Jerusalem, and to pray before the LORD. 23 Thus saith the LORD of hosts; In those days [it shall come to pass], that ten men shall take hold out of all languages of the nations, even shall take hold of the skirt of him that is a Jew, saying, We (the non-Jews) will go with you (the Jews): for we have heard [that] God [is] with you.

Notice the passage ends with In those days (days of the Messiah) ten men (Gentiles) from the Gentile nations speaking every language will take hold of the garment [talit-prayer shawl] of a Jew saying, "Let us go with you for we have heard that God is with you." Moreover, the prophet Isaiah declared that God's gates were not to be opened exclusively for the Jews, but says, open the gates that the righteous Gentiles (Hebrew=goy) which keeps faith may enter in (Isaiah 26:2).

Answer for yourself: What faith is Isaiah talking about? Is he speaking of Protestant, Catholic, Methodist, Baptist, Church of Christ, etc., or could he possibly be referring to Messianic Judaism? The answer is obvious.

The Rabbis themselves came to believe that Israel should not be conceived only as a nation of Jews, but also as a kehal Adonai (Deuteronomy 23:4) or congregation of God co-extensive with the nation, but not excluding the righteous Gentiles in the world. This is reminiscent of Paul's use of the phrase the Israel of God (Galatians 6:16) or the Commonwealth of Israel (Ephesians 2:12).

It was inevitable that the Jewish Messianic Community begin to reach out to Gentiles, although Hellenistic Jews found this easy, the Hebraics did so reluctantly at first (Acts 10:28) but eventually accepted it as part of God's prophetic plan (Acts 10:17,18). The first Gentiles to be reached were Jewish proselytes (Acts 6:5) and Gentile God-fearers (Hebrew= yir'e shamayim) (Acts 10:1,2). The Jewish proselyte was a Gentile who took upon himself the "yoke of the LORD," ie., accepted the full obligation of the Jewish way of life, including circumcision, 613 Commandments, and total identification with the Jewish people. The conversion required circumcision, baptism and then sacrifice. They became the foundational core for the Gentile church which evolved through the missionary efforts of Paul and others (Acts 13:16; 16:14,43; 17:4,17; 18:7).

But not all non-Jews became proselytes to Judaism. The Gentile God-fearer accepted monotheism and practiced some, though not all, of the traditions, customs and laws of Israel's faith (Laws of Moses). For the Gentile believer in the first century the Law had not passed away! His spiritual status was in no way regarded as inferior to that of a full fledged Jew, at least in God's eyes. "The righteous among the Gentiles will have a portion in the world to come" according to the Tosefta Sanhedrin 13:2. The minimum requirements for fellowship with Jews were the laws of Noah: prohibitions of idolatry, murder and eating meat with blood in it, and sexual immorality.

However, as more and more Gentiles became associated with the Jewish Messianic faith community, the place of the Jewish Law and instruction, that is the Torah, in the lives of the Gentiles became a critical issue.

THE PLACE OF THE TORAH IN THE MESSIANIC ASSEMBLY IN THE FIRST CENTURY

The Jewish sages believed that the Torah was given in public, openly, in a free place. For had Torah been given in the land of Israel, the Israelites would have said to the Gentiles in the world: You have no share in it. But since it was given in the wilderness, publicly and openly, everyone willing to accept it could come and accept. The responsibility of the Torah was regarded by faithful Jews not as a burden at all, but as a wholesome discipline. The purpose of Torah was to increase personal Godliness and as an aid in the process of sanctification.

There has been a great misrepresentation of what Torah actually means. It is not law (Greek=nomos) which leads to legalism as believed by many modern Gentile Christians. Torah is a compendium of moral instruction, a rule of life for all men, a pattern of behavior, a way revealed in the life of a people through prophets and sages which, when faithfully followed, leads to the well-being of the individual and society. Dear Christian please give a hearing to what is said next. The LAW (TORAH) was never meant to be a way to salvation but always a way of sanctification while in this world. This is a startling statement for the Christian to come to terms with for he has been taught incorrectly his whole life that the Jews believed that they could merit Eternal Life by "KEEPING THE LAW." Nothing could be farther from the truth, in fact further reading on this issue is recommended in A. Cohen's Everyman's Talmud, pp. 149-158. What Paul and others rejected was the use of Torah, including the laws and commandments, as a prerequisite for Gentiles entering the community of faith; in particular one special Commandment. I speak of the Commandment of circumcision used by bigoted Jews to keep the non-Jewish "dogs" at arms-length. This issue has been covered satisfactorily in prior articles in this series. Paul's argument was that the true sign of belonging to the seed of Abraham is not only physical but spiritual as well (Romans 2:28,29). This view is nothing new, in fact, it is the teaching of the Torah (Deuteronomy 10:16), and the prophets (Jeremiah 4:4) and of Judaism. The Jews have always believed that election and ultimately salvation was possible because of God's mercy rather than human achievement (see E. P. Sanders' Paul and Palestinian Judaism by Fortress Press, p. 422). The Jews never believed that salvation was secured by the works of the Torah (see Pinchas Lapide, Paul; Rabbi and Apostle, (Minneapolis: Augsburg, 1984, p. 37-39). To the extent that Gentile Christianity propagates this view, it is guilty of bearing false witness.

THE GENTILE BELIEVER AND THE TORAH

Messianic Jews in the early faith community could not agree on any one position concerning the relationship of the Jewish Torah to Gentile believers. Let us look at four positions shown in the Bible.

1). Some were absolutely opposed to the Torah altogether (like we see today).

These were one wing of the Hellenistic party and unfortunately this view is espoused in the great majority of Christian churches today. It may surprise you, considering the contradictions that constantly comes from the mouth of Paul concerning the Law and the Torah in the New Testament, but Paul in places refutes this notion that once a Gentile comes to a right standing with God by faith he no longer has an obligation to Torah, but rather is free to establish the Torah and the Law in his life:

Do we nullify the Torah by this faith, Cod forbid! Rather we establish the Torah (Romans 3:31).

Paul emphasized that the Torah is Holy, and the commandments Holy, righteous, and good, (Romans 7:12).

Paul delighted in Torah (Romans 7:22) and recognized it as necessary (1 Timothy 1:8), and even built his theology on the Decalogue (Romans 13:8-10).

All of Paul's negative statements concerning the Torah should be understood in the context of those who tried to use conformity to Torah as a basis for self righteousness and achieving salvation when it has always been a free gift from God as an expression of His mercy and grace. Coupled with this is Rome's later inclusion anti-Law theology written into Pauline works which are known forgeries today.

That is why Paul himself obeyed the Law and maintained Torah as an observant Jew even AFTER his joining the Messianic faith community (Acts 16:3. 18:18; 21:20-26; 20:16).

To Paul, the Torah was a means of sanctification or walking with God (Ephesians 4:17f), a way of life, but he bitterly opposed the use of Torah as a requirement for salvation (Galatians 2:15). The failure to recognize the intent of Paul's writings in these areas have, in my opinion, been the major stumbling blocks that trips up most Christians when they read the Bible.

2). A second group, composed of Gentile believers practiced the moral code of Judaism but did not participate in any ceremonial laws.

The result, as seen in Christianity by the replacement of Biblical Festivals with pagan holidays, can easily be refuted by a careful reading of the New Testament where we easily see Paul instructing Gentiles to keep the Sabbath and the Festivals (1 Cor 11:2, Col. 2:16-18, Gal. 4:8-11, Acts 20:7-8).

3). Another group, even stricter, held to the whole teaching of Torah except circumcision.

4). But the most legalistic group of Jews and Gentile converts have been called Judaizers and were members of a small sect within the much larger Pharisaic party. They held that a Gentile must first become a Jew, submitting to circumcision, baptism and sacrifice, before joining the Messianic faith community (Acts 15:1,5). It was to these that James responded in the Acts 15 Church Council decision of 50 C.E.

THE JERUSALEM COUNCIL IN 50 C.E.

The time had come for the Jewish Messianic faith community to come to a decision on the Gentile question. They struggled with the issue: "Should Gentiles be required to enter the Messianic community in the same manner as Gentile proselytes entered Judaism (circumcision, baptism, and sacrifice)"? The decision reached by James and the Messianic Synagogue was that Gentile believers were to be viewed in the same manner as God-fearers were in Judaism.

God-Fearers were not required to be circumcised, but instead were included with the congregations of God, (Hebrew=Kahal Adonai), through faith in the God of Israel. The Minimum requirements for fellowship with Jews and the Israel of God were the observance of the Laws of Noah.

The laws of Noah enumerated in Acts 15 forbid Gentile believers in God:

- (1) to participate in idolatry by eating food offered to or polluted by idols, (
- (2) eating meat of strangled animals, or meat which the blood had not been drained in a kosher manner,
- (3) shedding of blood or murder, and
- (4) sexual immorality which characterized pagan Gentile society. These Noachide laws resemble the three capital sins of idolatry, bloodshed and fornication, for which a Jew was required to choose death, before allowing himself to be coerced to transgress. Further, the Noachide Laws are identical to the Jerusalem Council's final decision (Acts 15:23-29). Salvation for Jew and Gentile alike was by God's grace through their faith in the God of Israel. The Jew had always had faith in God from the beginning, but the Gentile [strangers from the covenant promises, aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, without hope and without God in the world] was introduced to God [through the Great Commission] by the teachings of Yeshua's Apostles as they extended salvation to them through the taking of the Torah to the "Lost Sheep of Israel" scattered around the world. Primarily to Abraham's seed, now assimilated and transformed into Gentiles, did the Word of God go first (to the Jew first), next to the Greek (Gentiles).

But the Gentiles were expected to observe the minimum (or essentials, Acts 15:28) of the Noachide laws in order to maintain fellowship with the Messianic Jews. Notice that these Noachide Laws are called "NECESSARY" in Acts 15 by the Jerusalem Council [Acts 15:28]! These sins were the most offensive to Jews (Israel) and it was believed that if the believing Gentiles maintained these minimum requirements, then harmony and unity could be maintained within the Messianic faith community, now composed of Jews and grafted-in Gentiles [in other words fellowship would not be hindered]. Ya'akov [James] assumed that Gentile converts, whether former God-fearers or Proselytes, carried with them an attraction and love for synagogue worship and the Jewish way of life [Torah] since the Jewish way of life was an expression of the Bible and its commandments. It was expected that the believing Gentiles would continue in the study of Torah within the Synagogue on the Sabbath. That is why Ya'akov [James] reminds them, Moses from ancient generations has in every city those who proclaim him [his teaching], since it [Torah] is read in the synagogues every Sabbath (Acts 15:21). Like the God-fearers in Judaism, the Messianic Gentile was allowed to participate in the customs, traditions and Biblical feasts, as was the pattern seen in the Old Testament. It was not until much later, after the battle lines between Gentile Christianity and Rabbinic Judaism had been drawn, were believers forbidden, by Judaism and Christianity, to share in the rich heritage of the Jewish way of life.

Undoubtedly, the Hebraic wing of the Messianic community thought Gentiles would become eager to accept and follow further Jewish obligations as they proceeded in learning. This is supported by the document called the Didache (Greek=teaching) circulated among the Messianic Gentiles between 90 and 120 AD. The Didache was a first century church manual, containing the teaching of the twelve Apostles of the mother church or congregation in Jerusalem. In Didache 6:1-3, there is an indication that all members [both Jew and believing Gentiles] of the Messianic faith community [Church] were expected to make the Torah an essential part of their life.

See that no one leads you astray, from this way of the teaching, since such a one's teaching is Godless. If you can bear the full yoke of the [Torah] of the Lord, you will be perfect. But, if you cannot, then do what you can! But about food: undertake what you can, but keep strictly away from what is offered to idols, for that implies worshipping dead Gods.

You should easily see the similarity with the ruling of James in Acts 15.

THE OLIVE TREE OF ISRAEL AND FACTORS THAT CAUSED IT TO DIVIDE DURING THE EARLY CENTURIES OF THE CHURCH

THEOLOGICAL AND POLITICAL CONFLICT: 50-90 A.D.

The question of the place of the Torah, was not the only challenge the early Messianic faith community [Church] faced. They were a pluralistic and diverse group made up of conservative (Pharisaic) Jews, Hellenistic Jews (Greek-speaking), Moderate Hebraists, Gentile Proselytes, Gentile G-d-fearers, and converted pagans. There was the challenge of unity in the midst of such diversity. There were several factors that contributed to the unity of this body:

- First, they still defined themselves in the context of the Jewish community.
- Second, all factions believed in the sacred scriptures of Israel, which were written in Hebrew and not the adulterated Greek text called the Septuagint.
- Further, all the Messianic community clung to the belief of the Messiahship of Yeshua and held his words and deeds central in their teaching in spite of the prophecies not being fulfilled as of yet. There was yet time for that as the Essenes taught a second coming of their "Teacher" and applied that to Jesus following his death.
- Finally, each individual held to a common experience of enlightenment or revelation from the Spirit of G-d (known in Hebrew as Ruach HaKodesh). This baptism of the Holy Spirit as it is known in Gentile Christianity has little to do with the Hebraic or biblical teaching of the promise of Ruach Ha Kodesh. (Joel 2:28; Matthew 3:11). From the Hebraic perspective, Ruach HaKodesh implies a level of enlightenment which involves clarity of understanding, an enhancement of perception, an awareness of the spiritual, and often a complete change of personality. The Ruach HaKodesh provides the believer with clear unequivocal perception, where he can actually receive instruction from G-d, which would otherwise not be possible.

Despite the internal challenges, there were external challenges as well. From 50 to 70 AD, there was continued persecution from the Sadducean priesthood of the Temple complex who viewed this Messianic movement of Yeshua as a threat to their spiritual influence in Jerusalem. The Sadducees held to a strict interpretation of Torah, especially as it pertained to the priesthood and Temple. They did not accept the halakah of the Pharisees or their belief in the resurrection (Joachim Jeremias, Jerusalem in the Time of Yeshua, Philadelphia: Fortress Press, 1981, p. 228ff).

In Jerusalem, the Sadducean party of Judaism were primarily responsible for the acts of mob violence, imprisonments, arrests and martyrdom (Acts 4:1,2; 5:17,18; 7:1; 8:54-60).

In the diaspora, the Pharisaic party of Judaism saw the movement being led ## by Paul as a threat to the synagogue and observance of Torah

All these forms of persecution acted as a wedge between Judaism and the Messianic faith community [Church].

By 66 AD, the Zealots (organized Jewish terrorists determined to remove Roman authority by military conflict) had gained considerable influence among the people of Israel. The Zealots, through fanatic nationalism, committed the majority of Israel to end Roman rule, and bring salvation to the people, through the power of the sword. The Roman response was ruthless. In 70 AD the Romans leveled Jerusalem, destroyed the Temple complex except for the western wall. An estimated three million Jews, men, women, and children lost their lives through starvation, torture and murder. Although many of the Messianic community died in Jerusalem, a large contingency fled to Pella in Perea. They fled in obedience to Yeshua's prophecy: When you see Jerusalem being surrounded by armies, you will know that its desolation is near, then let those in Judea flee to the mountains (Luke 21:20,21). However the flight of the Messianic Jews and their failure to support the Zealot movement against Rome, became another wedge in the gradual separation of Judaism and the Messianic community [Church]. The stigma of betrayal and treason remained with the Messianic community from 70 to 90 AD, especially in the minds of the orthodox leaders.

The destruction of the Temple in 70 AD and conquest of Masada in 73 AD marked the end of the Zealots, Sadducees, and Essenes in Israel. The Pharisees and the Messianic believers in Yeshua (Nazarene/Essenes) were the only remaining constituents of Judaism. Between 70 and 90 AD, Judaism was somewhat in disarray and as a result the Messianic movement flourished. The historian Eusebius of Caesarea reported that a succession of 15 Messianic Jewish bishops served in Jerusalem until the second Jewish revolt against Rome in 135 AD (Eusebius, Ecclesiastical History, translated by G. A. Williamson, Minneapolis; Augsburg Publishing House, 1965, 4.5.1-4)..

The Messianic movement [Church] was measurably successful, so much so that the Pharisaic Rabbis gathered at Yavneh in 90 AD to discuss the matter. The primary objective of the Rabbis that gathered at Yavneh was the protection and preservation of Judaism (non-Messianism vs Messianism). The Rabbis restructured it and in doing so, laid the foundation for what became known as modern Rabbinic Judaism today. The rituals of the Temple were transferred to the home. Acts of righteousness replaced the sacrificial system of the Temple, and the synagogue became the place where Temple ritual was standardized into the order and liturgy of the synagogue service.

The Birkat HaMinim or Heretic Benediction was also composed at Yavneh in 90 AD. Although the original document has never been recovered, a later version reads:

For apostates let there be no hope, and the dominion of arrogance do thou speedily root out in our days; and let heretics (Hebrew=minim) perish in a moment, let them be blotted out of the book of the living and let them not be written with the righteous."

Whether or not the prayer was originally directed at Jewish or Gentile believers in Yeshua is a subject of much debate. Regardless, it did act as a type of liturgical instrument to force Messianic Jews and Messianic Gentiles out of the synagogue. The Gospel of John, written during this time, may reflect some of the animosity believers were developing against the orthodox Jewish community claiming expulsion from the synagogue (John 9:22; 12:42; 16:2). This was but another wedge in the separation of the two remaining faith communities in Israel. By 90 AD, the foundation was firmly laid for the eventual separation of fellowship between Jews and Gentiles, Judaism and Gentile Christianity.

The final straw in the ongoing theological and political struggle between Judaism and Christianity occurred in 135 AD. Simon Bar Kokhbah (Hebrew=son of a star), led a military revolt against Rome. He was proclaimed as the long awaited Messiah by Rabbi Akiba, the most respected scholar of the time. He appealed to a text from Torah, A star will come out of Jacob, a scepter will rise out of Israel (Numbers 24:17). The remnants of the Jewish believers in Yeshua refused to fight, primarily doing so would have seem they were acknowledging the Messiahship of Bar Kokhbah. For them, Yeshua was the Messiah, the only Messiah. The orthodox Rabbinic community made a clear statement by supporting Bar Kokhbah. That is a denial and rejection of Yeshua's Messianic movement and allegiance to its own Messianic movement, led by its own charismatic military leader. Any remaining hope Messianic Jews had for their fellow Jews believing in Yeshua had come to an end. The battle line between synagogue and church was drawn.

One other point should be made, after the end of the war in 135 AD, the Jewish nation was destroyed, the Romans leveled Jerusalem, plowed it under, and built a new city called Arelo Capitolia. The Romans built a temple to Jupiter on the site of the Temple Mount and the Emperor Hadrian populated the Jewish Holy City with Greek speaking pagans. But most important, he banned all Jews from the city on the threat of death.

At this point, the Jewish Messianic mother Church ceased to exist. The leadership of the movement of Yeshua was now shifted to Rome, the leading center for Gentile Christianity

THE TRANSFORMATION OF THE OLIVE TREE... 90 TO 150 AD: THE EMERGENCE OF GENTILE CHRISTIANITY

History records for us that Jews as well as non-Jews who looked to Yeshua as Messiah fellowshiped together and attended Orthodox synagogues as late at 400 A.D. Although there is evidence that Messianic Jews (a term which refers to a Jew who believes in the Messiahship of Yeshua yet maintains his Jewishness, ie. observes Torah, and identifies with the Jewish way of life) and Messianic Gentiles (a term which refers to a Gentile who believes in the Messiahship of Yeshua and identifies himself with the Jewishness of Yeshua and identifies with the Jewish way of life) attended Orthodox synagogues in Jerome's day (AD 400), the separation between Judaism and Gentile Christianity seems to be essentially complete by the second century (150 AD). By the time of Justin Martyr (160 AD) a new attitude prevailed in the Gentile believing community [church] evidenced by its appropriating the title "/Israel/" for itself. It would do you well to get a copy of Justin's Dialogue with Trypho and read it to see for yourself how Justin repeatedly denies the promises made by G-d to Israel and appropriates them to the Gentile Church.

WHAT HAPPENED TO THE OLIVE TREE AND THE GENTILES WHO CUT THEMSELVES OFF FROM THE ISRAEL OF G-D?

What is staggering for the church to understand today is that before 150 AD, Gentile believers identified themselves in terms of continuity with the Jewish people and as an extension of the Olive Tree of Israel.

You may need to read that again slower! In other words, for over 150 years the Gentiles who were recipients of the Great Commission and the "Good News" that circumcision was no longer required to come to G-d, felt apart of Israel and followed the religion of Yeshua...Biblical Judaism where the non-Jew had a place within it. However, there was the obvious conclusion that Rabbinic Judaism would never accept the Messiahship of Yeshua. For a Christian unfamiliar with the changes made to the Old Testament in the Christian Bible it would seem that the "Jews" were blinded as Paul would state, however, once one comes to the knowledge of how the "prophecies and the Prophets" of the Jewish Scriptures have been terribly altered, purposefully mistranslated and misquoted to make it seem as if Jesus is "fulfilling" prophecies on every page of the New Testament, then there is good reason why the Messiahship of Jesus was doubted by those who knew the Jewish Scriptures well. Simply said, the Prophets and the Jewish prophecies were not fulfilled by Jesus. One can manipulate them, as have been done to make "false fulfillments" and attribute them to Jesus, but that is a far cry from the truthful fulfillment of the Prophets which go lacking today. At the same time the Messianic Community was composed of less and less Jews and dominated by Gentiles. This situation was ripe for the loss of truth and that is exactly what has happened to the Christian Church of today.

The tragedy of such a situation is that the Messianic Community was NOW composed of Gentiles whose philosophy and experience was not Hebraic, but Hellenistic

THE GENTILE'S REINTERPRETATION OF YESHUA IN THE FASHION OF PAGAN G-DS

Listen dear brother and sister, it was this imbalance led to continual animosity against anything Jewish and a reinterpretation of Yeshua, in light of Greek mythology and the mystery religions of the Greco-Roman world (Gilbert Murray, The History of Christianity in Light of Modern Knowledge, 1929, p. 77-78). If space was not at a premium I would list for you hundreds of books detailing the paganization of Biblical Judaism by the Essenes and the Gentile Church of Rome. I refer you to our other websites where a book list is given detailing the above to anyone's satisfaction:

<http://www.faithofyeshua.faithweb.com>.

<http://paganizingfaithofyeshua.netfirms.com>

<http://www.bennoah1.callijeo.com>

One example of this "Hellenistic" reinterpretation is seen in Justin Martyr's First Apology where Yeshua is first fashioned to be like Greek g-ds:

"If any Greek objects that Yeshua was crucified, this is common with the sons of Zeus, as you call them...If we declare that he was born of a virgin, he had this in common with Perseus. When we say he healed the lame, the paralytic and those born blind and raised the dead, we seem to be speaking of the deeds of Asclepius..." (Justin Martyr, First Apology of Justin., in Early Christian Fathers, Philadelphia: Westminster Press, 1953, p. 255-257).

Answer for yourself: Although this information is new to most of you, can you now begin to see how a Jewish Rabbi was to be fashioned after Greek g-ds?

Answer for yourself: Can you now begin to understand the amount of compromise that has infiltrated contemporary Gentile Christianity and which remains today unnoticed by all but serious students of Christian History?

In addition, Gentiles who entered the Gentile Church, unlike proselytes who entered Judaism, did not have the barrier of adult circumcision and regulations of Jewish law. Gentiles seem to find it more attractive to join the now Gentile dominated Church where they could maintain and incorporate their prior Gentile and pagan religious and cultural beliefs, than the Jewish Rabbinic movement of Judaism which cherished the Laws of G-d for faith and practice.

The growth of Gentiles within the Messianic movement compromised more and more the Jewishness of the movement [Jewish only being defined as a people who adhered to a true Biblical expression of the Bible and who would not compromise or assimilate with pagan religion and culture]

After the Apostles died, the next generation of leaders were Gentile, especially in the great intellectual and spiritual centers of growth, like Alexandria in Egypt, Antioch in Syria, Rome in Italy and Byzantine in the East. After the second war with Rome, the once all Jewish Messianic movement of Yeshua, was now predominately Gentile.

It was under this newly formed Gentile authority that the truths of G-d's Word would be changed and corrupted. This evil Gentile Christian influence survives today in the vast majority of Christian Churches and goes undetected by the vast majority of good Christians today...I used to be one of them...until I began serious study of my faith.

THE CHANGE OF THE SABBATH ON SATURDAY TO THE LORD'S DAY ON SUNDAY

Between 90 and 150 AD, the observance of the Sabbath became an issue within the now Gentile Church, much as the observance of Torah was for the early Jewish Messianic Community between 27 and 50 AD. Before 90 AD, the believing community (both Jew and Gentile) remained in the Synagogue, despite persecution. However, with the rise of Rabbinic Judaism after 90 AD, no place was found in the synagogue for the believers of Yeshua. The Gentiles began to establish their own houses of worship. The early Messianic movement observed the Sabbath, but in time began to acknowledge Sunday as a unique day (Matthew 28:1). Not understanding Hebrew, the Gentile Christian church reasoned that "In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week" meant Sunday morning as dawning which occurred around 6 A.M. or thereabouts. When we read this passage we fail to understand that the word "day" [in italics] was added to the manuscripts thus imposing an incorrect understanding that it must be early in the morning (you only need to check the scholars and good books on New Testament manuscripts to see the evidence for yourself as I have). In reality, in Jewish reckoning of time, "the first of the week" is in reality Saturday evening at dusk since the "dawning" of new days always begins at 6 PM at the close of the day (according to Jewish reckoning of time...evening and morning was the first day). In the Gentile world, Sunday was already established as a Roman Holy day tied to the worship of the Sun and the father of the gods, Jupiter. It was only natural that Gentile Christians, who had an affinity for Sunday from their pagan past, accept Sunday as their day of Worship (after all they were already accustomed to this day since childhood). As early as 115 AD, Ignatius, bishop of Antioch, wrote to the Magnesians instructing them to live for the Lord's day, and no longer for the Sabbath (Ignatius of Antioch, Letter to the Magnesians, 9:1.) Shame on him!

The Gentile dominated church was now taking opposing positions from both the Bible and Judaism, from both the faith and religion of Yeshua; not on theological grounds, but primarily because it distinguished and separated themselves from the Jews, Judaism and Israel. Such was the hatred and anti-

Semitism of the Gentile Church for the Jews and anything Jewish (which just happened to be Biblical as well)

There is evidence that the early Jewish Messianic believers met in the synagogues for Sabbath, then met again as believers in Yeshua on Saturday night, which in the Jewish weekly calendar marks the beginning of the first day of the week. These early believers, both Jew and Gentile, gathered around the Havdalah ceremony which officially ended the Sabbath and began the new week. Notice dear brother and sister in Christ, we see Paul teaching Gentile believers like you and me to observe the Havdalah ceremony in Acts 20:7:

"And upon the first of the week (remember we are talking about 6 PM Saturday evening), when the disciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow (morning-dawn); and continued his speech until midnight (that means the "first of the week" occurred before midnight!). And there were many lights in the upper chamber, where they were gathered together."

Answer for yourself: Don't you want to be taught the same things Paul taught in fulfillment of the Great Commission?

Answer for yourself: When was the last time your church taught you about the spiritual significance of the Havdalah ceremony, or had you participate in one, let alone teach you to keep and observe the true Sabbath of G-d?

Answer for yourself: Can your pastor say as Paul did that he has not failed to preach to you the “full council of G-d?”

It is customary in a Havdalah Service that everyone have his own candle which is ignited from the main candle of the service. You can easily see that since it was night that illumination was necessary and their lights were easily detected in the upper chamber (many lights in the upper chamber).

Please notice that as early as 115 AD Ignatius admonished Gentile believers to be careful, to observe a single Eucharist (Ignatius, Letter to Philadelphians, 4:1). The implication is that Gentile believers were meeting with Messianic Jews on Sabbath or at the time of the Havdalah ceremony instead of Sunday as late at 115 A.D. This enraged many of the anti-Semitic Gentile leaders of the Church and the viscous attacks on Jews and the Sabbath began to escalate. Ignatius of Antioch lead the propaganda against the Sabbath with such statements as If we (Gentile believers) go on observing Sabbath [in the context of Judaism], we admit that we never received grace (Ignatius, Letter to the Magnesians, 8:1).

Answer for yourself: Can you believe he would say such a thing when Isaiah commends the non-Jews for keeping the Sabbaths of the Lord in Isaiah 56?

Answer for yourself: Can you now begin to understand that with such Christian Gentile leadership it is no wonder we have lost the Hebraic foundations of our faith given by the Apostles and Prophets?

In the letter to Diognetus, the Sabbath, once declared to be a blessed day, made Holy by G-d (Genesis 2:1), now in the minds of the Greek Gentile Christian Church fathers became a mere "superstition" of the Jews. This, despite the fact that at no time did Yeshua's teaching violate, abrogate, transcend or spiritualize the Sabbath. Instead he determined parameters of acceptable Sabbath observance. Yet the Greek Gentile Christian Church fathers were more interested in distinguishing themselves from Israel, the Jewish people, and Judaism than understanding the importance of the Sabbath day in the mind of G-d.

Answer for yourself: How does it feel to come to the realization that you have been deprived of your religious heritage by men who hated the Jews so much that they changed the very faith that was given by G-d to both the Jews and the non-Jews?

*This is what the Lord says; maintain justice and do what is right, for my salvation is close at hand and my righteousness will soon be revealed:
Blessed is the man (Jew and Gentile) who keeps the Sabbath without desecrating it... Gentiles who bind themselves to the Lord and serve Him, to love the name of the Lord, all who keep the Sabbath without profaning it and who hold fast my covenant, these will I bring to My Holy Mountain and give them joy in my house of prayer...for my house will be called a house of prayer for all Gentiles (Isaiah 56:1-3,6-7).*

By choosing Sunday over the Sabbath as their day of worship, the Gentile Church rejected the very essence of the Biblical-Jewish experience. This move to Sunday worship made it difficult, if not impossible, for the orthodox Jews to give any serious consideration to the message of Yeshua. Paul viewed the engrafting of the Gentiles as the catalyst (Greek-parazeilao) which would draw the unbelieving Jews to Yeshua. Instead of provoking them to jealousy, such arrogant decisions as the abrogation of the Torah and the changing of the Sabbath, among many other things done by the Gentiles, only made the Jews suspicious.

Answer for yourself: What are you to do now you know the truth?

THE "NEW GENTILE ISRAEL" EMERGES

Paul's warning to Gentile believers (wild olive branches) in Romans 11:17-24 was soon forgotten in the second century. By 150 AD, the Church of Yeshua which he was to build (Matt. 16:18) had become essentially Gentile and it concluded that it no longer needed the support of the root of the Olive Tree.

Answer for yourself: Don't you find almost unbelievable that the Church that Yeshua was building was replacing the Sabbath (4th Commandment) with pagan days, replacing the Festivals of the LORD with pagan days, and replacing righteous giving to the widows and orphans, subsidizing the Sabbath and Festival observances, with insurance premiums, rent, remodeling programs, staff salaries, giving to building projects to house rebels who rejected the faith of Yeshua, etc.? What presumption!

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that the same goes on in your church if the tithe collected does not go toward the areas commanded by Scripture and in the right proportion and the Commandments of G-d warrant? I guarantee you your Pastor and church does not follow the tithing commands; more than likely they don't even know they exist.

Answer for yourself: Are you aware that you, if you are a traditional Christian, rob G-d Sunday after Sunday by giving to such an institution which misuses the funds of G-d, all the time claiming that by not giving to them "you rob G-d"? In reality they have a "new" revelation that allows them to do so...there is only one problem..such is disobedience and sin, and their ignorance of the truth or wilful denial of it make you an accessory to the robbery of G-d.

But during the second, third and fourth centuries a new spirit of arrogance and supersessionism arose in what now had become Gentile Christianity. Although Paul insisted that G-d did not reject his people or his covenants with them by stating that the gifts and callings of G-d are irrevocable; yet the Gentile Christians insisted that they were the New Israel and had replaced a G-d-forsaken Jewish Israel.

Answer for yourself: Where did the Gentile get such an idea that he had replaced Jewish Israel?

In his Dialogue with Trypho The Jew Justin Martyr emphasized that what was of old and had belonged to Israel was now the property of the Gentiles. Thus, we have the formation of Replacement Theology where by all that was promised to Israel now belongs to the Gentile Church which is practicing paganism. This is preposterous! The Jewish scriptures he declared are not yours [Jews], but ours [Gentiles] (Justin Martyr, Dialogue with Trypho, a Jew, 29:2).

THE DECEIVING OF MILLIONS...AND THE COUNT CONTINUES

By severing itself from its Jewish root, the Gentile Christian Church (due to its leaders who deceived millions of good people only wanting to love and follow G-d) was forced to redefine itself in non-Jewish terms. This can be seen in many significant changes the Gentiles made:

- Yeshua became Jesus.
- The word Christianity, was derived from the Greek word christos, itself a rendering of the Hebrew word mashiach or Messiah.
- Yeshua was no longer believed by many to be the Messiah, he was now the "Christ".
- The Messiah thus became Jesus Christ the Son of G-d eventually, G-d the Son.
- New Covenant life became the Spirit, then the paraclete and ultimately, G-d the Holy Ghost.
- The Tanakh became the "Old" Testament.
- The Israel of G-d became the Holy Church.
- Torah became the Pentateuch.
- The Tehillim became the Pslater.
- Mary became the Mother of G-d. And on and on it goes!

THE GENTILE CHURCH REJECTS JEWISH LAW .... BUT ... CREATES THEIR OWN

For all its antinominism (anti-Law), and its claim to be an institution of pure faith in rejecting the legalism of Judaism, the Gentile Church itself soon came to have its own laws. It first developed ceremonial laws and gradually codified them into canons of religious and ecclesiastical practices:

- baptism,
- the Eucharist,

- the sacraments,
- communion feasts patterned after pagan worship days,
- fasts,
- penance and unction,
- priesthood and confession,
- ecclesiastical regulations and privileges, tithes, pilgrimages,
- shrines,
- incense and vestments

...a halakhah as legalistic and burdensome as that of the Scribes and Pharisees. The idea that the Greek, and Latin fathers after them, had of building a Church on pure faith did not succeed!

THE LOSS OF THE TRUE ANOINTING...G-D IS NOT PLEASED

The greatest injury to the Messianic movement of Yeshua was the inability of the Gentile church to continue moving in the supernatural. As it severed itself from its Jewish root, its ability to heal the sick, raise the dead, open the eyes of the blind, and deliver the demon oppressed (the mentally ill) diminished. G-d had promised Jeremiah that if Israel, who was commissioned to be a light to the Nations, became corrupted spiritually by the very ones they were sent to, then He would do to His people what He had once done at Shiloh...the Ark of the Presence of G-d left the people of G-d. This is our curse today. We have no power and read the book of Acts only as history instead of our experience. Loud music is called the anointing in place of verifiable miracles. I ought to know; I pastored in such churches for over ten years. G-d is sorely displeased with us and what we have allowed to happen to the faith once given to the saints.

Likewise, the Gentile church gradually awarded its responsibility to feed the hungry, clothe the naked, visit the imprisoned, help the outcast to their Government sponsored institutions (Albert Nolan, Jesus before Christianity, New York: Orbis Books, 1989). Today salvation comes from the welfare check instead of G-d's people in personal relationships with those needing assistance. We literally hire the government to do our witnessing for us. What a shame for it is failing terribly! We have allocated our G-d given responsibilities to the impersonal government instead of getting personally involved in the lives of others where the fruits of the Ruach HaKodesh could operate in testimony of G-d's Word.

What remains today of Gentile Christianity is an undisciplined, self-serving, unbelieving and powerless institution which is divided into over two thousand denominations each with its own set of conflicting and contradicting particular doctrines, dogmas and rituals with little agreement among them

We at Bet Emet Ministries plead with you to share this material with loved ones that they may inherit the fullness of G-d's salvation by rethinking the message of preachers and Paul, thereby rightly dividing the Word of G-d that they will one day not stand ashamed before G-d.

HAS THE GENTILE'S CONTEMPT FOR THE JEWS ROBBED YOU OF THE TRUTH FAITH OF G-D?

At the end of the twentieth century, Yeshua is being viewed more favorably by Jews than at any other time in history. As the substance of Yeshua's teachings are studied in their Hebraic context, there is an ever increasing realization that he essentially never broke with Judaism or intended to initiate another religion. What becomes evident as one studies the synoptic gospels is that it was those who followed him, and reinterpreted him (Gentile believers) who broke from the Torah, Judaism and the Jewish community. What the Jew rejects of Yeshua is not Yeshua himself, but the portrait of him created by the Church as one who abolished the Law and at the same time enshrined him in doctrines, dogmas and ritual patterned after pagan g-ds. In reality, it is the Christ of faith, and not the Jesus of history, that the Jew rejects. This is the only picture of Yeshua that the Gentile Church both knows and propagates. It is the only portrait that the church has ever presented to the Jew. Most Christians today are unaware of the sad record of antagonism and hatred that the Church of history has conducted toward the Jew. It was in Yeshua's name during the eleventh century (1096) that the crusades were initiated to liberate the Holy land from the infidel Jew and Muslim. The result of the crusades left thousands of Jews and Arabs who refused baptism murdered in the streets and the land was raped and plundered. It was in his name during the twelfth and thirteenth centuries that the Torah and other rabbinic literature was seized and along while the synagogues were burned. During this period the Jew was expelled from England in 1290, from France in 1306 and from Spain, Germany and Austria decades later. It was in his name during the fifteen (1492) century that the church conducted the inquisition where Jews were forced to convert to Christianity in public or face torture and burning at the stake. It was in his name during the seventeenth century, during the Polish revolt against the Cossacks that thousands of Jews caught in the middle were murdered or enslaved. It was in his name during the nineteenth century that the pogroms of czarist Russia caused the murder of thousands of Jews and millions of others to flee as refugees to Europe and America. The final solution came in the twentieth century when the holocaust left six million Jews murdered at the hands of Nazi Germany while the church as an institution did little to prevent it. Is it no wonder that the Jews reject Yeshua who supposedly is represented by his body, the Church on earth.

The Christian must realize that all these atrocities were not spontaneous events, but rather the fruit of the seeds of hatred and discrimination sowed early in the development of the Replacement Theology of the Gentile church.

In the second century, Justin Martyr argued in his Dialogue with Trypho, that the Jew justly suffers when his homes or cities are burned with fire and when he is left desolate and forbidden access to Jerusalem. In the third century the church father Origen wrote in his work known as Against Celsus, (2.8), all these calamities they [the Jews] have suffered, because they were a most wicked nation, which although guilty of many other sins, yet has been punished so severely for none, as for those that were committed against our Jesus.

Here is the sick reasoning that persecution and discrimination against the Jew is justified because of their sin of rejecting Yeshua. Again I must say a Gentile Jesus must be rejected by the Jew. A paganized Jesus must be rejected by the Jew. The Jew, faithful to the Torah and HaShem has not recourse to reject such a pagan manifestation of a Jew. Most of the literature of the Church during the second and third century is permeated with the contempt, ridicule and mockery of the Jew. In the Epistle of Diognets the Jew is mocked for his obedience to the Mosaic commandment of circumcision when he writes that the Jew views the mutilation of the flesh as a proof of election, as if they were, for this reason beloved of G-d. Despite the fact that this is exactly what Paul teaches in Romans eleven. Other so called Church Fathers, continue in what is called the adversus Judaeos tradition. Of particular interest is Tertullian who wrote Against the Jews, Hippolytus who wrote, Expository Treatise Against the Jews, and Cyprian who wrote, Three Books of Testimonies against the Jews. Each of these writings have one objective, to promote the condemnation of Jews and the negation of all that is Jewish. In the fourth century, the Roman emperor Constantine declared every Roman citizen a Christian, regardless of his beliefs and practices. The Church was immediately flooded with pagan and heathenistic religions. At the same time, around 340 CE it became a criminal offense to participate in Judaism. Several decades later, the Synod of Laodicea forbade Christians from sharing meals and fellowship with Jews. All those who did were declared heretics. In 350 AD, any Jew who came to faith in Yeshua was required to separate himself utterly from his Judaism, the Jewish people and his heritage. A confessional, forced upon Jewish converts to Catholicism in the 4th century, is characteristic of the anti-judaic attitude of the Gentile Church:

"I renounce all customs, rites, legalisms, unleavened breads, and sacrifice of lambs of the Hebrews, and all the other feasts of the Jews, sacrifices, prayers, aspirations, purifications, sanctifications and propitiations, and fasts, new moons and Sabbaths and superstitions and hymns and chants and observances and synagogues, and the food and drink of the Jews; in one word, I renounce absolutely everything Jewish, every law, rite and custom. And if afterwards I shall wish to deny and return to Jewish superstition, or shall be found eating with Jews or feasting with them, or secretly conversing and condemning the Christian religion instead of openly condemning their vain faith, then let the trembling of Cain and the leprosy of Gehazi cleave to me, as well as the legal punishments to which I acknowledge myself liable. And may I be anathema in the world to come, and my soul be set down with Satan and the devils (Taken from Profession of Faith, Church of Constantinople; from Assemani, Cod. Lit. I. page 105. as cited in James Parks, The Conflict of the Church and the Synagogue, New York: Atheneum, 1974, pp 397-398).

Answer for yourself: Dear Christian did you hear that?

Jewish converts to Christianity were forced to accept anti-Semitic and anti-Judaic beliefs that conflicted directly with what the Bible stated!

This may be hard for the Christian of today to believe but by 380 C.E. Ambrose, the bishop of Milan, praised the destruction of synagogues and Jewish literature as an act that was well pleasing to G-d. The great Christian orator, John Chrysostom, released eight sermons he entitled, Homilies against the Jews before the end of the fourth century. Chrysostom attacked the Jews in a most ungodly manner, evidently attempting to persuade Gentile Christians from seeking a fuller knowledge of their Jewish roots. His messages were filled with crude, irrational statements with almost demonic wisdom.

Many I know, respect the Jews and think that their present way of life is a venerable one. This is why I hasten to uproot and tear out this deadly opinion... the synagogue is not only a brothel and a theater; it also is a den of robbers and a lodging for wild beasts...when G-d forsakes a people, what hope of salvation is left? When G-d forsakes a place, that place becomes the dwelling of demons...the martyrs especially hate the Jews, for they love so deeply the one who, by them [the Jews] was crucified (John Chrysostom, Adversus Judaeos 1.3.1; 1.4.1. Translation from The Fathers of the Church: Saint John Chrysostom, vol 68, Washington: Catholic University of America Press, 1979).

In his homilies, like others before him, Chrysostom argued that because the Jews had killed Christ, G-d had rejected them, condemned them and destroyed their Temple, synagogues and literature. Thus the charge of deicide, that the Jews killed Christ in the minds of the so called Church Fathers, justified their hate, animosity and persecution of the Jew.

Chrysostom wrote, If someone had killed your son, could you stand the sight of him or the sound of his greeting? Wouldn't you try to avoid him as if he were a evil demon, as if he were the devil himself? The Jews killed the son of your Master. will you so dishonor him as to respect and cultivate his murderers-the men who crucified him? (D. S. Wallace-Hadrill, Christian Antioch: A Study of Early Christian Thought in the East, Cambridge: Cambridge Press, 1982).

It is no wonder that the Jewish view of Yeshua was quite negative, to their minds his new religion was their worst nightmare. With such contempt in mind, the gospel known in Greek as euangelion became known in Hebrew as avengilyon which means wicked scroll.

Many Christians have argued that this was all done under the auspices of the Catholic church and that reformation theology changed things. Sadly, this is not the case. The reformers were just as anti-Judaic as any of the men before them, perhaps even more so.

It was the German Reformer Martin Luther who wrote, What then shall we Christians do with this damned, rejected race of Jews? Since they live among us and we know about their lying and blasphemy and cursing,...we cannot tolerate them...Let me give you my honest advice. First, their synagogues or churches should be set on fire... Secondly, their homes should likewise be broken down and destroyed... Thirdly, they should be deprived of their prayerbooks and Talmuds... Fourthly, their Rabbis must be forbidden under threat of death to teach any more... Fifthly, you ought not, you cannot protect them, unless in the eyes of G-d you want to share all their abomination... Sixthly, they ought to be stopped from usury... Seventhly, we ought to drive the rascally Jews out of our system. To sum up dear princes and nobles who have Jews in their domains if this advice of mine does not suit you, then find a better one so that you and we may all be free of this insufferable devilish burden-the Jews!

Martin Luther's On the Jews and their Lies, written in 1543, became the religious justification for the perpetual dehumanization of the Jews. Although the term "anti-semitic" was not used until 1873, the concept was in practice for nearly two millennia. It was Wilhelm Marr who watered the seed planted by Martin Luther declaring that the Jews as a race were beyond salvage and destined to corrupt the pure Aryan German nation. Regrettable as it may seem, it was in fact these and other anti-semitic literature to which the Nazis appealed and carried out a better solution through the use of gas chambers and crematoria.

Even the Christian heroes of the twentieth century, like Dietrich Bonhoeffer were found victim to the same hatred, distortions and prejudices ingrained in the Church. In 1939 he wrote, Now the measures of the state towards Judaism in addition in a quite special context for the Church. The Church of Christ has never lost sight of the thought that the chosen people, who nailed the redeemer of the world to the cross, must bear the curse for its action through a long history of suffering.

THE SHALLOW THEOLOGY OF THE GENTILE CHURCH

What puzzles many Jews today, is if Yeshua's death was decided beforehand in the plan of G-d, and contributed to the salvation of the Gentiles, then there is no one against whom the charge of deicide can be rightfully be charged, except G-d Himself. They point to passages such as Romans 8:32 where Paul admits that G-d did not spare his own Son, but gave him up to benefit us all. Or passages like John 10:18 where Yeshua claims, No one has taken my life away from me, but I lay it down on My own initiative. I have authority to lay it down and I have authority to take it up again. This commandment I received from the Father.

The truth of the matter is that the anti-Judaic attitude of the Church has only recently even been condemned by Church leaders and that somewhat reluctantly. The Theologian Rosemary Ruether wrote in 1974, The anti-Judaic root of Christianity cannot be torn out until the Church's Christology is rid of its negation of the ongoing validity of the Jewish faith. Possibly anti-Judaism is too deeply embedded in the foundations of Christianity to be rooted out entirely without destroying the whole structure. We may have to settle for the sort of ecumenical good will that lives with theoretical inconsistency and opts for a modus operandi that assures practical cooperation between Christianity and Judaism.

Shortly before his death, Pope John XXIII courageously recognized the guilt and shared responsibility of Christians for their role in anti-semitism both in a spiritual and secular sense. He wrote, We acknowledge now that many centuries of blindness have covered our eyes so that we no longer see the beauty of Thy chosen people and no longer recognize in its face the features of our first born brethren. We acknowledge that the mark of Cain stays on our foreheads. For centuries long Abel has lain in blood and tears because we forgot Thy love. Forgive us the curse that we unjustly pronounced on the name of the Jews. Forgive us for in cursing them we crucified thee for the second time. For we knew not what we were doing.

Despite this attempt to acknowledge centuries of wrong, Christians, Protestant and Catholic alike, continue to condemn anything Judaic and refuse to even consider the value of their Hebraic heritage.

The centuries of contempt, have not drawn the Jews any closer to acknowledging the contributions of Yeshua. They have a hard time reconciling the teachings of Yeshua with the practice of the Church. The Jewish view remains one of rejection of his Messiahship, primarily because as a messianic movement it did not meet their expectations, nor fulfill the Prophets, as in fact all such movements in their history have failed to do. From the Jewish perspective, the new world order expected by Yeshua never materialized, the appearance of Yeshua did not bring the end of the age. But there is an increasing awareness that Yeshua's teachings for the most part abandoned by the Church, do in fact lie within the Judaism of his day (Albert Nolan, Jesus Before Christianity, New York: Orbis Books, 1989, p.3-9).

And there is at least the acceptance that his teachings do differ from what the Gentile Church has understood them to mean (David Bivin and Roy Blizzard, Understanding the Difficult Words of Jesus, Austin: Center for Judaic Christian Studies, 1983, p. 105-117).

A realization that because the Church rejected everything Jewish, that they in essence rejected the historical Yeshua himself.

THE THEOLOGY OF THE OLIVE TREE

When Paul used the analogy of the Olive Tree, he had in his mind the principles and prophecies concerning the place of Gentiles in the days of the Messiah. He saw the mission to the Gentiles as a fulfillment of the Hebrew prophets. He saw the engrafting of the Gentiles as a further stage of the development of his ancestral religion...Biblical Judaism. It was not Paul who wanted to create a "new religion," although his teachings on the Torah are very problematic at various places in the New Testament. It would be pagan Rome which would take, alter, and distort much of what he wrote, let alone alter the oral traditions and texts to create their own brand of religion patterned after Sun-Worship. What makes it so sad is that this is attributed to Jesus, first by the Essenes and later by Rome who relied heavily upon creative theology patterned after paganism and the mystery religions.

WHY DOES G-D SAVE GENTILES ANYWAY?

It was the plan of G-d to work through Israel to declare His glory among the Gentile Nations (Psalms 96:3). The Talmud records that G-d earnestly desires that people from among the Gentiles repent and share in His blessings, The Holy One, Blessed be He, bids the Gentiles of the world repent so that He may bring them near beneath His wings. (Numbers Rabbah 10:1) The following analysis will discuss the principles, prophecies and purposes for G-d engrafting Gentiles into the Olive Tree.

GUIDING PRINCIPLES FOR THE ENGRAFTING OF THE GENTILES INTO ISRAEL

The analogy of the Olive Tree used by Paul is based on three guiding principles concerning the Gentiles, found in the teachings of the Jewish Sages and the Tanakh [Old Testament].

- First, unlike Gentile Christianity, the predominant objective and hope of the people of Israel was not the conversion of the whole world to Judaism, but conversion of the whole world to believe in the one G-d (MONOTHEISM). It was not the intent of Israel to establish a universal religion to which all true believers must belong and wherein alone salvation could be found. Biblical Judaism should be viewed as a way of life not as a religion. Rabbi Johanan (150 AD), the founder of the Academy of Tiberias and a chief compiler of the Palestinian Talmud, declared, Anyone who repudiates idolatry is a Jew (Megillah 13a).

The Sages agreed, He who rejects idolatry acknowledges the whole Torah (Kiddushin 40a). Hence, even a Gentile who believe in and lives the Torah is equal to the High Priest. (Sifra to Leviticus 18:5). Paul, essentially says the same thing when he wrote, For he is not a Jew who is one outwardly; neither is circumcision that which is outward in the flesh. But he is a Jew WHO is one inwardly; and circumcision is that which is of the heart, by the spirit, not by the letter; and his praise is not from men but from the G-d (of Israel) (Paul's letter to the Romans 2:28,29).

- Secondly, the Rabbis taught that belief in the One G-d of Israel would lead Gentiles to the obedience of faith. This obedience of faith was expressed by reducing all of Torah into the commandment "You shall love the Lord your G-d, with all your heart, and with all your soul, and with all your mind...and you shall love your neighbor as yourself; on these two commandments depend all of Torah and the Prophets" (Matthew 22:36-40). Thus in principle, the Rabbis looked for the day when the Torah would be observed by all mankind (Perashim 87b).

Please pay attention to what comes next; especially if you attend churches which teach that the Law has passed away and that Yeshua has fulfilled the Law and that mankind is no longer under Law but grace!

They Rabbis took note of such passages as Leviticus 18:5 from which they taught, it is not written that G-d's commandments and statutes are destined for the priests, Levites and Israelites. It is rather said, "You shall keep my statutes and my ordinances which mankind (Hebrew=Adam) shall all do" (Sifra to Leviticus 18:5). In 2 Samuel 7:19, the Torah is not given only to priests, Levites and Israelites, but rather, This Torah is for mankind. It is in this context that one can understand Paul's comment in Romans 2:13, it is not the hearers of the Torah who are just before G-d, but the doers of the Torah will be justified.

- Thirdly, the covenant that G-d gave to Israel was in the mind of the prophets destined to be a covenant with all mankind, I have given Israel as a covenant to the Gentiles, as a light to the [Gentile] nations (Isaiah 42:6). Thus Gentiles who believed and obeyed the G-d of Israel would share in the promises and blessings of the G-d of Israel. Hence Paul's view that Gentiles, wild olive branches, who are grafted into the Olive Tree by means of their faith in G-d, are Jews in a spiritual sense, and thus are entitled to the promises found in the life-giving sap of the root of the tree (Jewish Israel).

These three guiding principles concerning Gentiles, [i.e. that G-d is not only the G-d of the Jews but also of the Gentiles, that those who believe in G-d will in principle obey the Torah, and those Gentiles who believe and obey G-d will then share in the promises of G-d] are interwoven throughout Torah and the Prophets and formulate the basis for Paul's theology of the Olive Tree.

THE PROPHETIC WORD CONCERNING THE ENGRAFTING OF ## THE GENTILES

In the Prophets, these three principles are expanded into at least seven discernible predictions concerning the place of the Gentiles in the days of the Messiah and how they relate to the G-d of Israel, to the Torah of G-d, and the Covenants of Promise.

- Gentiles will share their material wealth with Israel (Isaiah 45:14; 60:6-16; 61:6, Micah 4:13, Zephaniah 2:9, Tobit 13:11) see Romans 15:27.

Answer for yourself: Do you or your church give part of the tithe to the Jewish poor? Let us remember what Yeshua said in Matt 25:40 40: "And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Let me remind you that Yeshua's brethren were Jewish!

- Gentiles will bow their knee in worship of G-d, and accept the King Messiah (Isaiah 11:10-12, 49:23, 45:14,23, Micah 7:17, 1 Enoch 90:30, Psalms 117:1) see Romans 14:11.
- Gentiles will come to the light of Israel's Torah (Isaiah 49:66, 51:4, 2:2, Micah 4:1) see Romans 2:19.

Answer for yourself: Again how can Isaiah, Micah, and even Paul be speaking the truth when the vast majority of mainline Christianity today teaches that the Law has been replaced by grace and we need not worry with obedience to the Laws of G-d?

- Gentiles will be added to Israel and thus be saved (Isaiah 45:22, 56:6-8, Zechariah 2:11, 8:20-23 Tobit 14:6,) see Romans 11:17.

Answer for yourself: Did Isaiah and Zechariah and Tobit prophesy intend to say that the Gentiles will be saved by being included with G-d's people in the Israel of G-d, and if they were wrong, why didn't at least one of them say that the Jew would be saved by being converted to the Gentile Church and its theology?

- Gentiles will be evangelized by Israel and they will worship the G-d of Israel from Sabbath to Sabbath and participate in the feasts of Israel (Isaiah 66:22,23) see Romans 11:25,26.

Answer for yourself: Don't you think it rather odd that just the reverse is being done for the most part; that the Christian Church is trying to convert the Jews to Christianity instead of themselves repenting of their false beliefs and being truly grafted into the Israel of G-d where the truths of G-d have never been replaced as has been done in Gentile Christianity...take the Sabbath right here for an example?

- Gentiles will submit to the will of the G-d of Israel (Isaiah 45:22, Zephaniah 3:8) see Romans 12:1,2.

Answer for yourself: How could the Gentiles of Isaiah's day obey 45:22 and "draw near to HaShem from all the ends of the earth and be saved" without all the Gentile theology which had at that time not been decided or created which would later be required to be "believed" to be saved?

- Gentiles who alienate themselves against Israel will be judged and punished (Micah 5:10-15, Zephaniah 2:10ff, 1 Enoch 91:9, Ben Sira 36:7) see Romans 11:22.

Answer for yourself: If you have read just a little of our materials from Bet Emet you should be very unsettled at the above verses as it has been shown to you over and over that Christianity as it stands today is TOTALLY ALIENATED from Israel and the truths once held dear to the saints. So what are you to do?

The Biblical text indicates that in the revelation of the Prophets, Gentiles have no hope apart from repentance and faith in the G-d of Israel, obedience to the principles of the Torah of G-d and claiming the promises of the Covenants.

No where is there a prediction that the Gentiles would replace the people of Israel as the people of G-d. In fact, just the opposite is true, only those Gentiles who identify with the G-d of Israel, the Jewish people, their instruction [Torah], and the Jewish Messiah, are entitled to any expectation of a place in the world to come. All others who alienate themselves from Israel can only expect G-d's judgment.

FUNDAMENTAL REASONS FOR THE ENGRAFTING OF THE GENTILES

The Biblical text reveals two main reasons for G-d providing salvation to the Gentiles. The first is His desire for a people who call upon His name from among the Gentiles. This is a main point in the theology of the Olive Tree in the mind of Sha'ul [Paul] when he writes that G-d not only calls a people from among the Jews, but also from among the Gentiles (Romans 9:24-25 from Hosea 2:23). His expectation is that Gentiles who come to faith in the G-d of Israel through the ministry of Yeshua will rejoice and praise G-d for His mercy (Romans 15:8). The subsequent worship and praise of the G-d of Israel by those Gentiles who have come to the faith that leads to obedience (Romans 16:26) would then inspire unbelieving Jews to return to their own root. This is the second reason Sha'ul [Paul] gives for G-d offering salvation to the Gentiles. He writes, salvation has come to the Gentiles, to make them [unfaithful Jews] jealous. The word jealous is the Greek word parazeilao and literally means to come along side and to ignite. What is expected by Sha'ul [Paul] is that believing Gentiles will act as a catalyst for the salvation of unfaithful Jews and thus all Israel will be saved (Romans 11:26). Although Gentile Theologians found others, these are the only theological reasons Rabbi Sha'ul gives for the salvation of Gentiles. For us, it is the inspiration for a new movement of G-d and the motivation for the establishment of the Olive Tree Congregation.

THE TWO HOUSES OF ISRAEL...EPHRAIM AND JUDAH

G-d is the "G-d of Israel," and His people are "the people of Israel." Thus, the identity of the people of Israel is extremely important for the Christian and the Christian church:

How we define "Israel" determines how we interpret Scripture

How we view "Israel" sets the course for the path we take as we walk through the Word. In fact, the "identity of Israel" will determine if you, a believer in G-d, will consider that you are to obey both testaments in your Bible or not. In other words, whether you consider yourself "Israel or not" will determine if you let the Law of G-d apply to you or not. Your definition of Israel governs your interpretation of Yahweh's end-time plan for His people: It rules who we believe those people to be. Therefore, it is crucial that we ask ourselves:

Answer for yourself: Where did you learn about "Israel"?

WHO TOLD YOU ABOUT ISRAEL? DID THEY TELL YOU THE TRUTH?

Answer for yourself: Were the ones who taught you about the relationship between the Christian Church and Israel building on a Scriptural foundation of truth or denomination rhetoric?

A recent edition of the Encyclopedia of American Religions listed 1,586 different faiths in the United States--which number only continues to increase. Since this book is not current it is estimated by many that today there are over 2000 different Christian denominations. Each of these religions in some way differs from the others, yet each claims to have the truth!

Answer for yourself: What is the truth? Do you know truth from error?

Answer for yourself: Do one or more of these 1,586 faiths have "the truth" and "the faith once given to the saints", or at least sufficient truth so their members won't be misled by lies and the father of lies?

Answer for yourself: If so, which one, or ones has the truth that Yeshua would approve of if he were to attend?

Answer for yourself: Does your church qualify as having "the faith" of Yeshua or are you yet looking to find the truths you read in G-d's Word as they are lived out by a community of people which are dedicated to the Bible as their only source and authority?

We must be concerned about the consequences of being deceived by errors and misconceptions, for lies bring captivity and death, while truth brings freedom and life (John 8:21,32,44; 2 Timothy 2:26). With such high stakes riding on what we believe, we must ask ourselves serious questions.

Answer for yourself: Is what you hear Sunday after Sunday the truth even though it often conflicts with what you read in the Bible?

Answer for yourself: Is what you have come to believe true and would Yeshua agree with it or take fault with what you have been taught to believe?

Answer for yourself: Is the foundation on which you are building your understanding of G-d and Israel one of truthfulness or men's traditions?

In his book, Ten Philosophical Mistakes, Mortimer J. Adler, America's foremost philosopher, explores the ten major errors in the development of modern thought, and he examines the serious consequences these errors have had in our everyday lives. He explains how the errors came about, and what we can do to avoid their snare. Adler takes on Locke, Hume, Rousseau, Hobbs, Marx, and a host of other post-16th-century thinkers, pointing out that: Their common and disastrous mistake was to invent new kinds of wisdom which was used to continue building on faulty foundations.

For, they all failed to go back to ground zero and to begin to build on ancient and original truths!

Let me say that again.

For, they all failed to go back to ground zero and to begin to build on ancient and original truths!

In other words, the philosophers did not tear down the faulty structure far enough, they did not get to a solid foundation of original truth. This has been the major problem facing religious studies; in particular the study of the New Testament and Gentile Christianity today.

Adler begins his book by quoting a 4th Century B.C. observation made by Aristotle:

"The least initial deviation from the truth is multiplied later a thousandfold."

Adler also paraphrases the words of Thomas Aquinas:

"Little errors in the beginning lead to serious consequences in the end."

Adler himself says: "Instead of retracing the steps that lead back to their sources in little errors at the beginning, modern thinkers have tried in other ways to circumvent the result of the initial errors, often compounding the difficulties instead of overcoming them" (Ten Philosophical Mistakes, MacMillian Publishing, NY, NY, pages xiii, xv).

Answer for yourself: Do Christian theologians suffer from the same disastrous mistake?

Answer for yourself: Did they invent new kinds of wisdom not built on original truths?

Answer for yourself: If so, do their errors compound our problems?

The answers call for a resounding, "Yes! Yes! Yes!"

The Christian Church has never recovered from its early doctrinal divisions and theological mistakes. Especially crippling are the mistakes made over the identity of Israel, for they blind us to a full understanding of Yahweh's plan for the whole house of Israel.

The truth is, initially, all of Yeshua's followers were physical Israelites who belonged to a sect of Judaism (Acts 28:32). Further, these Israelites had children. But somehow, somewhere along the way, we ceased to consider their physical descendants as physical Israelites. And, the "early Church" broke away from Judah and became a "Gentile Church."

Answer for yourself: How did this happen?

Answer for yourself: What caused these changes?

EXPULSION FROM THE SYNAGOGUE

We have touched on this in an earlier article but I think it best to reiterate somewhat at this point. An oversimplified answer is that it began when believers in Yeshua were put out of the synagogues (John 9:22; 12:42). This exclusion was escalated when Rome sought to subdue Judea in the first century. After the Roman destruction of the Temple, some of the people of Judah began to develop and follow what was later called "Rabbinic Judaism." Others followed "the Way" (Acts 24:14), which ultimately developed into the "Westernized Christianity" of today. Also, in the second century, those of "Rabbinic Judaism" declared a man named Bar Kochba to be Messiah, one who would bring deliverance from their oppressors. Those who followed Yeshua could not endorse this false Messiah, nor his battle. Therefore, their Jewish brothers labeled them as traitors, or meshumed, and again put them out of the synagogues. Earlier, because the Jewish people put up a tremendous fight against mighty Rome, "anti-Jewishness" became rampant among the Romans. Roman converts gave vent to their ugly anti-Jewish attitude in their theology, and began to separate themselves from things considered "Jewish." The more they separated themselves the less they were persecuted by Rome and the less they were known as a "Jewish sect." Ultimately, the Roman converts outnumbered the Jewish Believers, and the Church traded their Hebrew orientation for one rooted in paganism, and so Rome became the seat of power for the Greco/Roman Westernized Christianity of today.

Answer for yourself: The result?

Judah cut the Church off, and so the Church likewise cut herself off from Judah--the more she was cut off from her roots, the more rootless, Gentilized, and paganized she became--and the more pagan she became, the more Judah continued to cut her off. On and on the story goes, like the proverbial dog chasing its tail

LITTLE ERRORS LED TO SERIOUS CONSEQUENCES

Initial deviation from absolute truth by the Early Church has been multiplied a thousandfold. Even the slightest retaliatory anti-Jewish errors made in the beginning have lead to serious consequences in the end: Today, the Church produces rootless children--children bored beyond belief with her elementary teachings--children who see through the lies of her often grossly distorted theologies.

Due to her separation from her Israelite roots, physically, the Church became rootless, which led her to excess emphasis on the "Spiritual Israel" title, which aided in blinding her to the truth of her physical Israelite roots, and to more of the dog chasing its tail syndrome (Isaiah 8:14; John 2:22; Romans 11 :25).

THE UNCHANGEABLENESS OF GENEALOGY AND OF THE GRAFTING PROCESS

To stop chasing ones tail, and to build a solid foundation in ones understanding of Israel, one must tear down the faulty structure to a point of absolute truth. And, the truth is rather simple. What an individual believes, or fails to believe, has absolutely no effect on the facts about their biological descent! Faith, or a lack thereof, does not and cannot change the actual identity of your grandfathers. True, the punishment for certain sins was to be "cut off" from the people of Israel, yet, the sinner did not cease to be a biological Israelite. Yahweh's call on the people of Israel is a call to be His "witnesses." and, it is a call that is "without repentance." Though an Israelite can be a "bad witness," he remains nonetheless a "witness," meaning he continues to be a biological Israelite (Numbers 15:30; Deuteronomy 11:26; Zechariah 8:13; Romans 11:20-29). Further unbelieving Israelites can be grafted back into the living Olive Tree of Israel (Romans 11:23). Before you think all "unbelieving Israelites" lived back in the first century I would hope you could widen your perspective to include today as many who are "Israel" today in G-d's eyes are terribly disobedient and unbelieving as well because they have accepted a modernized form of "Hellenism" by adopting and believing in the current Christian brand of Replacement Religion. Little honestly has changed for the Gentile.

This truth about the unchangeableness of ones genealogy and their ability to be grafted in again, applies to the people of Judah and to the scattered sheep of the Northern Kingdom--to those destined to become the lost sheep of the house of Israel (Hosea 1-2; 8:8; Amos 9:9). For, Yahweh said the Ephraimites would become a "melo goyim," or, a "fullness of Gentiles" (Genesis 48:19).

THE CHRISTIAN'S CONNECTION TO EPHRAIM

Understanding that as Christians we are connected in some way to Ephraim, it becomes clearer when we understand that the ten Tribes of Israel (called Ephraim) in the Bible, were captured and dispersed into all the nations by Assyria in the 8th century B.C. It was through this that these deported "Jews" in-bred with Gentiles and furthered the spread of Monotheism to all the world. "Unless a seed falls to the ground and dies it abides along, but if it dies, it bears much fruit". This is exactly what happened, for out of the "death" of Ephraim came "life and hope" to the Gentiles. This laid the foundation for the success of the mission of the Apostles and others which would go into all the world at a later date with the Covenant of Noah for the non-Jew. As Ephraimites, we understand this to be part of the foundation and promise of our inheritance as a part of Israel. That's right, as part of Israel. Having begun our repentance in studying and correcting our erroneous beliefs, we now can see the truth of who we are as potential Israelites. We must understand that only Yahweh knows for sure if "Ephraimite blood" is in our lineages and heritages, but be not mistaken, it is in many. Thus the link to Israel. Having come to this understanding it is easy to understand Jeremiah as he cries out in 31:19:

"Surely after that I was turned, I repented" (of false beliefs and religious practices learned from the Gentiles during exposure as captives.

Answer for yourself: Have you? This is one of the reasons we study our Hebrew Roots).

LOST TRIBES...ONLY LOST AS TO THEIR TRUE IDENTITY...JUST LIKE US

Also, as many ancient Rabbi's taught, Yahweh determined that these scattered Israelites would "one day experience a second birth that would once again make them the people of Israel." Alfred Edersheim, in his study of Rabbinical thought regarding the lost tribes, concludes :

"As regards the ten tribes there is this truth underlying...that, as their persistent apostasy from the G-d of Israel and His worship had cut them off from His people, so the fulfillment of the Divine promises to them in the latter days would imply, as it were a second birth to make them once more Israel" (Life and Times of Jesus the Messiah, page 15).

These "lost" tribes of Israel were not lost in the sense that we will find them on some as yet uncharted island. Rather, they were lost as to their identity--which "lostness" was part of their punishment (Hosea 1:9-11; 8:8; Romans 9:26). Orthodox Rabbi Isidor Zwirn says that in gathering the so-called Gentiles, Yeshua was actually preserving the whole house of Israel.

Further, Yeshua's first followers were physical Israelites, and they numbered in the tens of thousands. Surely this vast host of first century followers results in millions of physical descendants being in the Church today.

Also, to His original followers, Yahweh has added myriads of so-called "Gentiles." However, many, if not the majority, of these Gentiles are undoubtedly physical Israelites! They are the manifestation of G-d's promise in Amos and Hosea: To gather the scattered descendants of Israel (John 10:16; Ezekiel 34:11).

REQUIREMENTS NECESSARY TO BE CONSIDERED "GRAFTED INTO ISRAEL"

As to any actual foreigners who might join themselves to Yeshua's original followers and for any wild olive branches that he might be grafting back into the cultivated tree, the laws for joining the House of Israel applied to them: Yahweh decreed three things one must do to be recognized as a physical Israelite:

- 1) Be circumcised
- 2) Observe Passover
- 3) Sojourn with the Israelites

Once they fulfilled these requirements, there were called "natives of the land." G-d even warned converts not to see themselves as separate from His people Israel (Exodus 12:48-49; Leviticus 19:34; Numbers 9:14; 15:15-16; Isaiah 56:3-8).

Exod 12:48-49

- 48 And when a stranger shall sojourn with thee, and will keep the passover to the LORD, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him come near and keep it; and he shall be as one that is born in the land: for no uncircumcised person shall eat thereof.
- 49 One law shall be to him that is homeborn, and unto the stranger that sojourneth among you.

Lev 19:34

34 But the stranger that dwelleth with you shall be unto you as one born among you, and thou shalt love him as thyself; for ye were strangers in the land of Egypt: I am the LORD your G-d.

Num 9:14

14 And if a stranger shall sojourn among you, and will keep the passover unto the LORD; according to the ordinance of the passover, and according to the manner thereof, so shall he do: ye shall have one ordinance, both for the stranger, and for him that was born in the land.

Num 15:15-16

- 15 One ordinance shall be both for you of the congregation, and also for the stranger that sojourneth with you, an ordinance for ever in your generations: as ye are, so shall the stranger be before the LORD.
- 16 One law and one manner shall be for you, and for the stranger that sojourneth with you.

Isa 56:3-8

- 3 Neither let the son of the stranger, that hath joined himself to the LORD, speak, saying, The LORD hath utterly separated me from his people: neither let the eunuch say, Behold, I am a dry tree.
- 4 For thus saith the LORD unto the eunuchs that keep my sabbaths, and choose the things that please me, and take hold of my covenant;
- 5 Even unto them will I give in mine house and within my walls a place and a name better than of sons and of daughters: I will give them an everlasting name, that shall not be cut off.
- 6 Also the sons of the stranger, that join themselves to the LORD, to serve him, and to love the name of the LORD, to be his servants, every one that keepeth the sabbath from polluting it, and taketh hold of my covenant;
- 7 Even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer: their burnt offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon mine altar; for mine house shall be called an house of prayer for all people.
- 8 The Lord GOD which gathereth the outcasts of Israel saith, Yet will I gather others to him, beside those that are gathered unto him.

When Yeshua reiterated the Re-Newed Covenant in Israel at the last supper before the Passover, he made mention to these Laws and emphasized circumcision of the heart and not of the body, and his requirement for sojourning is with Covenant Israelites (Jeremiah 31:33; Hebrews 7:12; Romans 2:29; 1 Corinthians 5:7; Hebrews 10:25). It will be the Apostle Paul which will teach the Gentile explicitly how to sojourn with Covenant Israel by being grafted into Israel by faith in the G-d of Israel. Thus, "so shall the stranger be before the LORD...one law and one manner shall be for you and or the stranger-Gentile that sojourneth with you (in covenant with Israel and G-d).

No where in Paul's mind was even the remotest possibility that one day the Gentile church would literally turn upon its "Jewish-mother-church" and persecute her out of existence!

Sadly, that is exactly what has happened and the Gentile Christian has truly lost her "identity."

Since the first believers were physical Israelites, any who joined them also became physical Israelites (including in-grafted Gentiles). They were and are today, "New" (Renewed) Covenant Israelites: they are physical Israelites being called to abide by a spiritual covenant (Ephesians 2:11-19).

THE TWO HOUSES....TWO LIES

After King Solomon's death, the house of Israel was divided into the two houses of Ephraim and Judah. Though Ezekiel speaks of the day when Yahweh will make the "two sticks" that represent them, "one stick in His hand" (Ezekiel 37:15-28), presently, the house of Israel remains divided today: Ephraim, the fullness of Gentiles, the Congregation of the First-born, the Church; and Judah, those of the rabbinical Judaism of today (Jer. 3:16-18; 50:4-5, 20; Zech. 8:3, 7, 13; 9:13, 16; 10:5-6; 14:3,9; Hosea 1:11; Ezek. 37:22-26).

This divided house of Israel believes two lies:

1) The lie believed by the Jewish people is:

We need not consider Yeshua as a great teacher among the Jews of the first century; for you cannot reclaim Yeshua and remain Jewish!

2) The lie believed by the Church is:

We are spiritual, rather than physical, descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob! Further, the matter of physical descent is not important!

Believing these lies has resulted in Jewish people cutting off those whom she should rightfully be calling her own. Presently, it causes terrible hardship for Jewish people who want to embrace their Jewishness, their people, and be open-minded about Messianic possibilities of the first century. Because of what Rome has done to a Jewish Jesus any consideration of why the prophecies were not fulfilled in the first century received little thought, and with that, who the Messiah in waiting could have been.

Regarding the Church, she does not see that to believe anything less than the full truth about the identity of the physical Israelites is to be blinded by a lie, and, that her "little error," has "led to serious consequences in the end."

It resulted in a Church that is sitting on the street corner, waiting for a Rapture Elevator-an Elevator that will come and take them away from it all. But, in reality, as part of the people of Israel, they are called to stay and to be part of the solution by repairing this sin-stained world. Sadly, they have not rightly discerned the G-d's plan of salvation.

Both houses cheat themselves by believing the above two lies, for these lies hinder Yahweh's reunion plan, and, only a reunited Israel will be manifested as the sons of G-d. Only they will achieve the promised victory over evil (Ezekiel 37; John 17; I Samuel 17:45; Isaiah 11:13-14; Obadiah 1:18; Zechariah 9:13).

Today, six thousand years from Adam, four thousand years from Abraham, and two thousand years from Yeshua, G-d's people have not yet experienced the full manifestation of their sonship (Romans 8:19).

WHY NOT? WHEN WILL IT HAPPEN?

Their sonship will be manifested only after Ephraim "comes to know himself," and after he shakes off "the sins of paganism of his youth" (Jeremiah 31:18-19). When Ephraim "comes to know himself," he will exchange the lie he believes for the truth. When he shakes off the lie, then his "jealousy will depart." Then, he will be redeemed from the mistake of building on a faulty foundation. When these changes come to pass, then, Judah will begin to recognize him as a true brother (Isaiah 11:13).

Israel has not experienced the fullness of its long promised victory, because Yahweh promised that victory to a united people! They will not experience this victory in fullness as long as they are divided! For, a "house divided against itself cannot stand," and the invincible army of Isaiah 11 speaks of a reunited house. The King of Kings will reign over a reunited and sinless Israel (Mark 3:25; Isaiah 8:14; Jeremiah 33:24; Ezekiel 37:15-28).

OUR CONCEPT OF ISRAEL GUIDES US THROUGH LIFE

In summation, our concept of Israel becomes the map we use to navigate our voyage to our eternal destiny. Our opinion about the identity of Israel becomes the rule book we use to discern both who the players are, and Yahweh's game plan for the players. It is therefore vital that we exchange the lies we believe about Israel for the truth. For, only then can we begin to understand His Divine Plan for the whole house of Israel. And, only when we understand that plan will we be building on a sure foundation.

BET EMET'S HISTORY

In 1994, Craig and Mary Lyons officially established Bet Emet Ministries. Our goal is to gather and develop materials that would aid Christian believers in understanding both their Hebrew Roots and their Jewish brethren.

In the early Nineties, following more than a decade of studying and declaring the rich Jewish/Israelite heritage of Christianity, G-d began to broaden our vision. Through study of the Scriptures we saw that while all Jews are Israelites, not all Israelites are Jews. We saw that in Scripture there were, and there still are, two Houses of Israel. We saw that the "stick of Judah and the sons of Israel his companions," which speaks of the Jewish people, and "Joseph, the stick of Ephraim and all the house of Israel, his companions," which speaks of the Church (Genesis 48:19; Isaiah 8:14; Ezek. 37:15-28) are to become one stick. It is the hope and vision of Bet Emet Ministries that after twenty-seven hundred years of being a scattered people, hidden from view, the Ephraimites begin "to know themselves" (Hosea 1-2, Jeremiah 31:18-19). But such people of G-d reunited is impossible until the Jewish people re-evaluate their Messianic failure as a people and their responsibilities to the non-Jews; likewise, such a re-united people is also impossible until the Gentile Christian Church repents of their pagan doctrines and dogmas and returns to their Jewish Roots.

Yahweh said: "Israel is My son" (Exodus 4:22). Therefore, to be His son is to be Israel. However, for centuries, the two houses of Israel, Ephraim and Judah, Christians and Jews, have denied each other. Both lay claim to the title of Israel while denying the other the right to it.

The teachings of Bet Emet Ministry is helping Ephraim and Judah to see themselves, and the roles they have played--without denying either house. It encouraged, and continues to encourage, the true Believers in the Church to recognize themselves as Ephraim, and to love their brother, Judah. It encourages both peoples in the truth that our Father is going to bring forth a remnant from both houses--and that He will unite them as an invincible army!

It is our hope that we may be of encouragement to many to begin to walk in the glory to which the Father has called them.

Presently, neither house has experienced a full manifestation of their sonship: And, "The creation waits in eager expectation for the sons of G-d to be revealed" (Romans 8:19, NIV).

Both Judah and Ephraim (Christianity) wait because heirs first must know who they are, what their birthright is, and their legal right to it, before they can fully possess it. Full possession of our inheritance will come to pass only when Ephraim sees the truth that he too is part of Yahweh's Divine plan. When the Church sees that he is the "other" house of Israel, it will bring about a change in his character, and he will behave differently toward Judah. Judah, in turn, will see and respond to this change. Then, and only then, will both houses come together (Isaiah 11:11-14; Ezekiel 37:24; Romans 11:11).

THE TRUTH LIES BETWEEN TWO EXTREMES...

The Apostle Paul was commissioned to tell G-d's people about their "inheritance" (Acts 26:18). Today, we at Bet Emet seek to proclaim the truth about that inheritance to the whole house of Israel. We seek an end to the ancient Ephraimite/Judahite war. And, we work to unite the two sticks, to make them one in the hand of the Father.

In its inception Bet Emet Ministries helped to establish the fact that Jews could reclaim a Jewish Jesus as a great Rabbi and teacher and still be Jewish, and we helped the Church begin to see the truth about their roots as part of the people of Israel. So now, we seek to awaken the people of Ephraim, that Ephraim might once again be a "mighty man" (Zechariah 10:7), and that the two houses may be reunited.

The world desperately needs a world-wide manifestation of the sons of G-d. We need to have the Greater Son of David return and restore His Kingdom to Israel (Acts 1:6). But, the King will only rule over a reunited house.

You can pray for fulfillment of Ezekiel 37:19-23, Isaiah 11:10-15, Zechariah 10:5-10, for us, and the ministry of Bet Emet.

For those of you who do help, we ask that the Father who sees in secret openly reward you, and that He empower you to build your house on a firm foundation—one that can never be shaken.

In this latter day, G-d is revealing His threefold plan to reunite the two houses of Israel, Ephraim and Judah. He will use this reunited people to fulfill an ultimate goal—that of bringing heaven to earth (John 17). To accomplish this, according to Isaiah 11:11-14, and Ezekiel 37:15-28, the Lord will:

Identify Ephraim, reunite Ephraim and Judah and restore the Kingdom to Israel, and usher in Messiah's return.

Answer for yourself: Who will G-d use to execute this plan?

Scripture and history are clear. G-d uses, and works with man in fulfilling biblical prophecy. And, in the manner of reuniting His nation, He has placed the responsibility of reconciliation on Ephraim (Isaiah 11: 11; Romans 11: 11-15).

A CALL TO EPHRAIMITES...HIDDEN IN THE CHURCH

G-d is whistling for Ephraim. He is strengthening those who answer His call by removing the blindness regarding their identity—that they may again be like mighty men (Zechariah 10:7-12, Romans 11:25). Father is giving them a "knowing" deep within their being that they are Israelites, it is like the "knowing" they have regarding their personal relationship with the G-d of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. This "knowing" is changing their lives, causing them to see the need to walk in righteousness—as Israelites (Isaiah 27:9). It is giving them an even deeper love for their brother, Judah.

In the forefront of this regathering are those who realize the Father would use them to accomplish His Divine Mandate For Ephraim. Thus, they do:

Instruct others whom the Father is awakening—about their identity, and their responsibility, as the other house of Israel. These "forerunners" realize this most important of jobs will be accomplished- one Ephraimite at a time. They also know their seemingly unimportant accomplishments will ultimately result in the...

Reunification of the two houses of Israel—These "forerunners" realize this integral reunion will only be accomplished by a people who are walking in true righteousness. And, that a truly righteous people will result in...

The coming of Messiah, and restoration of the kingdom to Israel.

Answer for yourself: Maybe you should ask yourself how you can help in this grand scheme of things...how can you help bring this to pass? Simply by taking one little step by seeking how this message should change your personal walk with G-d. Perhaps sharing with a friend. Little steps. Steps that will result in righteousness, and in the coming of Messiah our King. Shalom.

WHERE DID GENTILE CHRISTIANITY GO WRONG AND WHEN?

Reviewing the history of the Olive Tree over the last two millennia reveals how after being grafted into Israel, the Gentile Church forsook its Jewish heritage and severed itself from the Jewish culture which gave it birth and meaning. Rabbi Sha'ul warned that we should continue in what we had learned and come to believe in the context of our Hebraic beginnings (2 Timothy 3:14).

2 Tim 3:14 14 But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them;

Paul tells Timothy to "continue" in what he has learned.

The Greek word for "continue" is:

3306 meno-

- 1) to remain, abide
- a) in reference to place:
  - 1) to sojourn, tarry
  - 2) not to depart
    - a) to continue to be present
    - b) to be held, kept, continually
    - c) in reference to time: to continue to be, not to perish, to last, to endure; used of persons, to survive, live
    - d) in reference to a state or a condition: to remain as one, not to become another or different
- 3) to wait for, to await one

Notice with me that Timothy was told to "not depart", "to endure", "not to become different" from what he already knew concerning his faith. Since the New Testament had not be fully written and the Church Councils had not yet convened to create more "Replacement Theology" it is very evident that Timothy was to continue in the faith which had once been given to the saints...Biblical Judaism whereby non-Jews like Timothy were grafted into the Israel of G-d and were partakers of the Sabbath, the Biblical Festivals, the existing atonements, etc. He was not to change to another faith or substitute another for what he had learned from his Jewish teachers.

The Greek word for "learned" is as follows:

3129 manthano- to learn, to be appraised

- a) to increase one's knowledge, to be increased in knowledge
- b) to hear, to be informed
- c) to learn by use and practice, to be in the habit of, accustomed to

Again we see Timothy, a non-Jew, was told to continue and not depart from the current knowledge he possessed that shaped not only his religious belief system but the practice of his faith. And since Gentile Christianity did not exist as of yet it is so simple to see Timothy as a G-dfearer practicing the Laws of Noah under the Covenant of Noah as was handed down and instructed by his Jewish teachers.

Let us also remember that this was written to Timothy who had a Greek father and a G-dly Jewish mother, Eunice (Acts 16:1, 2 Timothy 1:5). The Tanakh [Old Testament] was his heritage and he was raised on its teaching [Torah] (2 Timothy 3:15). Sha'ul instructed Timothy and urged him to hand down this heritage to faithful men without compromise.

However, the historical record reveals how as Yeshua's movement moved westward, it became less an less Hebraic an more and more Hellenistic and thus it began to assimilate and be led astray by strange teachings (2 Timothy 3:1-14). The following analysis will address three definite philosophical areas where the Gentile Church is in need of correction and redirection by restoring its Hebraic and Biblical roots.

HEBRAIC UNITY OR HELLENIZED DUALISM? THE LARGEST QUESTION THE GENTILE CHURCH HAD TO ANSWER...AND IT ANSWERED INCORRECTLY!

Platonic Dualism

Greek Platonism holds that there are two worlds: the visible, material world and the invisible spiritual world. The visible, phenomenal, or physical sphere of existence is in opposition to the invisible, conceptual or spiritual sphere of existence. The physical world is imperfect and the source of evil and thus inferior to the spiritual world. The soul of man is trapped within the confinement of a material body which is evil. The soul thus abhors the body with all its needs and desires and seeks to be released to return to the spiritual world from which it came. To the average Gentile Christian this sounds very familiar and quite pleasing to the ear, but it is not Hebraic, nor is it Biblical! Origen, considered the father of Christian Theology, was a Platonic Philosopher. It was Origen, who took this dualistic concept and built into Christian doctrine the whole cosmic drama of the soul. The influence of Origen's platonic philosophy on the evolution and formation of Christianity is, unfortunately, sadly underestimated. The results of Platonic dualism has caused many strange teachings to persist in the Gentile Church throughout its history, most of which still remain, in various degrees, contextually and culturally ingrained in the belief systems of Gentile Christians.

Asceticism

One such derivative of Platonic Dualism is the concept of asceticism. Although this life-style, is a stark departure from the Jewish norm found in scripture, it is still present in various forms in the Church today. Asceticism results in the debasement of life. The enjoyment of the present life is rejected for the general mortification of the flesh. Anything that brings physical enjoyment in the world is evil, an indulgence, and a hindrance to the cultivation of one's spiritual life. From the second century to the time of the Reformation, Gentile Christianity was overwhelmingly ascetic in outlook and thus increasingly extolled self-denial, poverty and celibacy. Even marriage was disapproved, at best it was tolerated as a concession to human frailty. It was Origen during the third century who declared that three sacrifices were pleasing to G-d, a martyr death, voluntary celibacy, and an abstinence from sexual intercourse on the part of married persons (G. P.

Fisher, A History of Christian Doctrine, Philadelphia: Fortress Press, 1978). also Philip Schaff, History of the Christian Church, vol II, Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1910).

These ideas and practices, stimulated by Hellenistic concepts and behavior in the pagan world gave rise within Gentile Christianity to numerous organizations and institutions which were foreign to Hebraic thinking: hermits and hermitages, monks and monasteries, Nuns and Convents, religious orders, itinerant beggars, saints who lived in caves, cemeteries and solitary places [the Stylites] like trees [Dendrites] or lived carrying chains [the Catenati] or even individuals who ate grass like cattle [the Hebdomandari]. All these foolish attempts at reaching a state of G-dliness could have been avoided by Gentile Christianity. If it had remained faithful to the G-d of Israel, they would have recognized that G-d had already given instruction on the way man should live on this earth. That way is expressed in His Torah. The Torah is filled with optimism and the promise of life if obeyed. It rejects all forms of dualism and is based on an unshakable belief in the justice, mercy and righteousness of G-d. The Torah does not encourage scourgings, macerations, mortifications, fasts, or self-denial. The Torah does not seek to destroy the desires of the human heart, but to direct them toward G-d. In the eyes of the Jewish Sages, the whole world is seen, not as evil, but good. Man himself is not a spirit trapped within an evil body but rather a living soul, where spirit and body are in dynamic unity. Although the Sages dwelt upon the spiritual condition of man, they never belittled the value and significance of the human body in glorifying G-d. From the Hebraic perspective, the human body is a masterpiece of G-d's created order, meant not to be abused, but rather seen as the means of enjoying that created order. Everything in the world was created by G-d who designed it with humanities best interest at heart. Man is encouraged to enjoy all that the creation has to offer so long as it is in context of a right relationship with the Creator. Man was never encouraged to flee the world, but engage himself fully in it, and thus experience the love, fellowship and saving power of G-d. A fundamental weakness in Gentile Christianity is its focus on the never ending pleasures of the world to come instead of maximizing the importance of this short-lived opportunity to enjoy G-d's creation, glorify G-d in this world, right now!

Fate And Predestinationism

The idea that man is not free and that his life is governed by FATE is also a derivative of Greek philosophy that crept into the theology of Gentile Christianity.

The idea of fate, led the Greek and Latin Church Fathers to develop an elaborate theology for the concept of predestination. Biblical Judaism knows no predestination, such as one finds in the theology of Augustine, Luther or Calvin. Israel knows of no doctrine of Election, according to which G-d, from the beginning of time, chose certain men for everlasting life while condemning others to eternal death. G-d's choice of Israel [the Olive Tree] for a unique covenant and mission did not consign any other people to moral disability or deprive anyone of status of any present or future reward. On Israel, collectively, G-d only bestowed the privilege and responsibility of spiritual leadership. The Greeks were led to fatalism by what they saw and experienced. The phenomenon of death was inevitable, unpredictable and awesome. They could not explain the apparent discrepancy of man's conduct to his allotted position and condition on earth. They concluded that man's life was ordered by an unalterable fate determined either by his irrevocable past, original sin, the alignment of stars and planets or some deity beyond the reach of man's prayers. Man must accept and suffer his fate. However, the Torah of G-d, proclaims the liberating Hebraic unity of moral self-determination and moral-responsibility.

See, I have set before you this day life and good, death and evil...therefore choose life! (Deuteronomy 30:15-20). From the Hebraic perspective, man is allowed to follow the road he wishes to pursue. G-d did not create man to be a helpless creature of passive receptivity but capable of deliberation, decision and action. To function as a moral being, man had to be endowed with free will, and consequently with the capacity for evil and disobedience. These are the conditions of being human. Although there are paradoxes in life, those paradoxes should never cast man down. The Jewish Sages resigned themselves to the impossibility of reconciling the theological and philosophical dilemmas between the relationship of G-d's sovereign will and man's moral freedom. Akiba declared, Everything is foreseen, yet free will is given to man. G-d's ability to know, in no way violated man's free will to determine his conduct.

Marriage And Family

One of the main areas where Greek Dualism affected the Gentile Church is in its view of marriage and the family. The historical record is rife with Hellenistic thinking that twisted the Hebraic concept of marriage. The modern world is paying an unbelievable price for rejecting the Hebraic view of marriage and exchanging it for the Hellenistic view rooted in Platonic Dualism. The Greek, and Latin Fathers after them, viewed the human body as inferior to the spirit, something evil, its desires and pleasures to be shameful and indecent. Gentile Christianity viewed anyone who was celibate, living under a vow of chastity as somehow closer to G-d. Jerome in the 5th century wrote, He who loves his own wife too ardently is an adulterer. Augustine in the 5th century said that the Jews would have preferred to fulfill G-d's commandment to be fruitful and multiply without indulging in intercourse. He taught that they did so only reluctantly out of a sense of duty. This theme was picked up by Thomas Aquinas in the 13th century who declared, every carnal act done in such a way that generation cannot follow is a vice against nature and a sin ranking in gravity to homicide. Martin Luther during the Protestant Reformation did little to effect any change in the denigrating view of marriage. He wrote, No matter what praise is given to marriage, I will not concede to nature that it [marriage] is no sin (Quoted in David M. Feldman, Marital Relations, Birth Control and Abortion in Jewish Law, New York: Schocken Books, 1968, p. 24).

Such false teachings are seen even today, for even in the twentieth century Pope Pius XII viewed anyone who gave marriage a preference in principle over virginity should be severely censured in the Church. Out of this Dualistic view of the physical and sexual side of humanity, the doctrine and dogma regarding Mary, the mother of Yeshua arose. The immaculate conception, her perpetual virginity, and her bodily assumption, all arose out of a Gentile Church, which adopted a Greek dualistic worldview, where the human body and its functions were associated with sin and evil. By means of the theology of the virgin birth Mary was kept from original sin through the immaculate conception. She had to be preserved from the evil of sexual relations and childbirth, primarily because they were viewed as shameful and indecent. Therefore, the Gentile Church declared the brothers and sisters of Yeshua (Matthew 13:55-56; 12:46-50) were cousins or children of Joseph from a previous marriage. Thus Mary was never stained with original sin and remained a perpetual virgin all her life. Since she never sinned, it was then necessary to preserve her from bodily death and decay. The Gentile Church declared her bodily assumption into heaven. These views were possible only because the Gentile Church severed itself from its Jewish root which was determined in G-d's mind to be its support.

- The theological and philosophical views of marriage and the family as taught by the Gentile Church has for nearly two millennia been based on Hellenistic Dualism and not the faith of Yeshua (Biblical Judaism) This has resulted in a distortion of the Hebraic or Biblical view of marriage. Torah affirms the dignity and purity of the marriage relationship in several distinct ways. First, the Torah declares that the institution of marriage is good. It clearly sets standards for sexual decency outside of marriage, and sanctified the sexual relationship only within the context of marriage. The views of the Sages were built on verses like He who finds a wife finds what is good and receives favor from the Lord (Proverbs 18:22). From the Hebraic perspective it is the first of the 613 commandments [mitzvah] found in the Torah. A man was allowed to defer marriage only until he found a woman suitable for him.
- Second, Children are a gift from G-d and are directly attributed to G-d's blessing. Contrary to the view of the Greek and Latin Church fathers, marriage and family was viewed as a holier state than celibacy. In fact, singleness was frowned upon and it should not be surprise anyone that there is no word in Biblical Hebrew for bachelor.
- Third, the need for companionship is fulfilled only in the relationship of marriage. Genesis 2:18 states, It is not good for man to be alone. The Sages declared, He who reaches the age of twenty and has not married spends all his days in the thought of sin. Thus from the Hebraic perspective, the essence of marriage is togetherness. The marriage of man and woman is the only way the Biblical injunction to leave and cleave (Genesis 2:24) can be fulfilled. The very content of marriage, the bond and the relationship which results are seen as a covenant between the Man, Woman and G-d.
- Fourth, it is only through marriage of man and woman that the uniqueness of maleness and femaleness can be experienced. From the Hebraic view, marriage is a union whereby male and female are matched with their Creator and thus form a unique oneness. One of the vital functions of marriage is the ezer kenegdo which only woman can provide for the man. It is the power and ability to complement the man and thus complete the likeness and image of G-d as one flesh (Genesis 2:18,20,24). This is one of the fundamental reasons why homosexuality or any other perversion of the created order is so deadly to the image of G-d.

- Finally, in the Hebraic perspective, love is only possible within the marriage relationship. This is taught because the Sages believed that one did not marry for love. From a more Hellenistic view, the modern west emphasizes the need to marry the person that you love rather than learning to love the one that you marry. But in the mind of the Sages, love was to bloom after the wedding ceremony. The difference between the Hebraic view and the Hellenistic view has been expressed We [Jews] put cold soup on the fire, and it becomes slowly warm. You (Gentiles) put hot soup on a cold plate, and it becomes slowly cold. It is this very emphasis on the need for love to grow warmer and to mature after the couple are joined that undergirds the Hebraic concept of marriage.

Hellenistic Dualism Instead Of Hebraic Unity

The Gentile Church went wrong when it exchanged the view of Hebraic Unity for Hellenistic Dualism. We, as engrafted Gentiles of the Olive Tree, must view ourselves and our world not dualistically but in terms of dynamic unity and oneness with G-d. We must restore our Hebraic life-style which fully engages us in the world and sees life as good and a gracious gift of G-d. We must enjoy the created order in all ways which do not transgress the moral law and which do not impair spiritual growth. We must become aware that our unity with G-d enables us the freedom of moral determination and moral responsibility. Finally, we must revitalize the Hebraic view of marriage and family. Marriage and family is not an inferior way of life, but when experience in oneness with G-d, it is the only way of life. Celibacy was utterly rejected by biblical and rabbinic teaching. Those who refused to marry and bear children were regarded not only as having violated the first mitzvah of procreation, but also as if they had shed blood and diminished the image of G-d from the world, since man is created in his image. The rabbis taught, No man without a wife, neither a woman without a husband, nor both of them without G-d (Genesis Rabbah 8:9 and Babylonian Talmud, Yev. 62b,63a).

THE ESSENCE OF G-D'S SALVATION...WHAT IS TO BE THE FOCUS: THIS WORLD OR THE WORLD TO COME?

The fixation upon heaven must be brought back into balance with the Hebraic view of the importance and significance of life in this world. The Greeks dichotomized the cosmos and thus considered meditation on the spiritual world as superior to man's life and work in this physical world. The Gentile Church assimilated this view and in doing so diminished the Hebraic view of what is truly spiritual, the meaning of salvation and the concept of faith.

Gentile Christianity today gives expression to a pallid kind of ascetic, otherworldly spirituality. To be spiritual usually connotes otherworldly piety. We have been taught that the spiritual person is one whose mind is set on heaven, on prayer and meditation, denying the present pleasures of this world, for the joys of the life to come. A spiritual person is one who denies himself and who does not engage himself in this world, but rather spends his days communing with G-d, contemplating on the eternal mysteries of the hereafter. A truly spiritual person is one who is consumed with winning souls for the kingdom of heaven, even at the expense of family and friends and livelihood. This view of spirituality is based on the Greek understanding of the psyche or soul. The Greeks understood the psyche to be the spiritual, immortal part of man. At death, it is the soul which escapes the burden of the human body as well as the evil world below. Consequently, man should occupy his time, talent and resources only with things pertaining to heaven.

However, the Hebraic view is expressed by Paul who never conceives the salvation or redemption of the soul of man apart from the redemption of the body and the world in which he lived (Romans 8:21-23). He sees man not as an incarnated soul, but as a dynamic unity of spirit and body which has become a living soul (Genesis 2:7). Thus in the Hebraic view, spirituality was not an introverted attempt at finding G-d, but meant to be fully engaged, with every fiber of ones being, spirit and body, in empowered and passionate and inspired service to G-d and humanity. Thus the Hebraic perspective declared everything as theological. There is no distinction between what is sacred and secular in life. Life is a unity! It is all a part of G-d's domain in which He is interested. This is evidenced in the Hebraic worldview of life (1 Corinthians 10:31). They Jews taught that man should bless G-d for every moment of life experience, whether good or bad. They Jews taught, It is forbidden for a man to experience anything of this world without a benediction, and if anyone enjoys anything of this world without a benediction he commits a sacrilege. Thus in the Hebraic view of life, man is to pray without ceasing, that is to acknowledge G-d upon hearing good news and bad news, when smelling the fragrance of flowers or the stench of death, when eating food or in want of food, in the presence of thunder, lightning, rainbows, and all other experiences of the created order. He is even to bless G-d for the ability to urinate. Thus in the Hebraic perspective life itself is spiritual. One's faith is the way he lives. It is not defined as religion, or a system of ethics, codes of conduct, ideology, doctrine, dogma, ritual or creed. Life is a pilgrimage in which one walks with G-d. It is not a life of melancholy, but a life of joy, fellowship, community, celebration, excitement, enthusiasm and adventure. This is what the Olive Tree offers the Gentile.

The Greek world view understood the concept of salvation to revolve around the idea of escaping or being delivered out of this life and this world. This appeals to many who see the world only in terms of violence, poverty, hunger, disease, despair and death. The Hebraic view, emphasized by Yeshua himself, was that G-d and His Kingdom rule was available in this world. Salvation is not escape, but the ability to know G-d's presence and power in this life and in this world, even though it is a decaying and dying world (Timothy L. Smith, Evangelical Christianity and American Culture, in A Time to Speak: The Evangelical-Jewish Encounter, Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1987, p. 70-72). The Hebrew verb yasha means to save or to deliver, and the noun yeshu'ah means salvation. This word is never used in the Biblical text or in the literature of the Rabbinic sages, in the sense of escape to heaven. Rather, it is used in the sense of being liberated or delivered from evil. It is often used in passages which convey the idea of G-d's liberating power that breaks the bondage of earthly oppression and sets people free. This is in fact the perspective spoken by Yeshua in Matthew 25:31-46 when he establishes the criterion of his judgement in the last days. It is not escape from the world that he expects but rather our involvement in the liberation of the oppressed (Matthew 25:35,36). Because, as Gentiles, we have been grafted into the Olive Tree, salvation has come to us. However, when we view the modern world we see that the Greek view of salvation has influenced the Gentile Church to such a degree, that it appears hopeless and powerless in the face of a world consumed with lawlessness, violence, poverty, hunger, sexual perversion, disease, despair and death. For the most part, the Gentile Church has been content to hear its homilies, sing its hymns, baptize its converts and pray for the rapture, safely behinds its Church walls. This is not the SALVATION that Yeshua taught or gave his life for.

The Gentile Church's view of salvation is directly attributed to its view of faith. Most Gentile believers understand faith as an activity of the mind. In other words, faith is what one believes. It is thus understood largely as a matter of intellectual assent. However, this understanding of faith is derived from the Greek word for faith, pistos, not from the Hebrew concept of faith, emunah. From the Hebraic perspective emunah is faithfulness, or trustworthiness or more specifically, steadfastness (A. Cohen, Everyman's Talmud, New York: Schocken Books, 1975, p. 77-79). Faith is more than conviction, it is confidence. It is the capacity to enter life with courageous expectation. It is more than believing in ones heart, it is stepping out in life to act on that belief. Thus from a Hebraic perspective, faith is not measured by what you know about the world to come, but what you do in this world (James 2:17). The Gentile Church is in desperate need of restoring the Hebraic perspective of faith. Only with faith properly restored, and the understanding of salvation in proper perspective, can the wild olive branches that were grafted into Israel, have any hope of pleasing G-d in real Spiritual terms. Only by being properly grafted in, accepting the nourishing Hebraic root, does the Gentile Church have any hope of ever living up to its calling.

THE INDIVIDUAL OR THE COMMUNITY?

Finally, the Gentile Church went wrong philosophically when it adopted the view that rugged individualism and private Christianity is superior to the corporate life of the community of faith. One of the main characteristics of contemporary Gentile Christianity is the view that believers can work and operate on their own, without any accountability to anyone. The community-centered focus of Yeshua's movement has been replaced by and large by a rugged, individualistic kind of faith. Protestantism in particular has so stressed the freedom of conscience before G-d, the individualistic priesthood of the believer, the imperative of private devotions, the right to interpret the Scriptures in one's own way, the priority of private confession of sin directly to G-d, and the encouragement of independent parachurch organizations that what has resulted is a type of self-sufficient, almost monastic mentality.

However, in the Biblical text, one of the most important aspects of faith is the belonging and accountability of the individual to the corporate body. In addition, the individual is always thought of in the context of the collective group, whether it was family, tribe or nation (Abba Hillel Silver, Where Judaism Differed, London: Jason Aronson, Inc., 1987, p. 111-113)

This corporate solidarity was reinforced by the fact that the entire community, past, present and future members, was viewed as a unity. They were a living whole, a single entity composed of many individuals (John 17:23). G-d's covenants were made, not just with those generations at the time, but with all future generations as well (John 17:20,21). The Hebraic perspective of community is best understood in the word mishpachah, which means family. It is not just the immediate family members of father, mother, children, but also uncles, aunts and cousins. In addition, each individual mishpachah sees itself related and in solidarity with every other mishpachah in the world (Matthew 12:46-50). This provides stability and ensures survival. Although, Gentile Christians often use the concept of family to express the relationship of congregational life, it is rarely understood in a Hebraic sense, nor does it usually prove to be an experience of togetherness that ensures congregational stability or survival.

If the Gentile Church would have remained engrafted into the Olive Tree, they would have maintained the concept of community. There is an ever increasing need for congregations to offer the support that community can give. In a world of alienation, discouragement, frustration, people often handle life independently and alone. However, in these last days, it is doubtful that anyone will be strong enough to make it through life in solitude and alone. Community, when rightly engaged, offers a collective of friends and love ones to help sustain and uphold people in time of serious illness, financial failure, or unexpected times of trouble.

Shalom to all.

BOTH HOUSES OF ISRAEL HAVE STUMBLER OVER YESHUA AND HIS JEWISHNESS #1

Answer for yourself: What is the relationship between Jesus and Jewishness?

Some think that Yeshua was a deceiver of the Jewish people and responsible for much of the suffering among the Jewish people since the first century. Dr. Samuel Sandmel, professor at Hebrew Union College, states, however, that "Yeshua, by the standards of first-century Judaism, was in all probability a good and loyal Jew" (We Jews and Yeshua, New York: Oxford University Press, 1973). Others say: he was a good rabbi; he was a prophet; he was a misguided leader of a Jewish rebellion against Rome; he was a sectarian ascetic, perhaps a member of the Essenes.

This is an amazing catalogue of responses. But despite this divergence of opinion, to many people one thing seems certain: if a Jew becomes a follower of Yeshua (becomes a Christian) he is no longer considered a Jew and forfeits any claim to Jewish identity. The same can be said for Gentiles who become followers of Yeshua; having come to faith in G-d through Yeshua; for it is more often than not that he is indoctrinated in "Gentile-religious" practices which replaced a Jewish-oriented faith of the first century which was both modeled and commanded by Yeshua.

Yet the facts of history are clear. Jesus (Yeshua) himself was a Jew. His original name was Yeshua. Yeshua derives from the Greek language and is simply an anglicized version of Yeshua. In keeping with the sense of the original context of Yeshua's life and teaching, I will refer to him as Yeshua.

Not only was Yeshua a Jew, but so were all of his first followers. A wealth of evidence is available to support this statement; e.g., Acts 21:20 and the summary of evidence from Eusebius and Josephus given in Hugh Schonfield's The History of Jewish Christianity (New York, 1933), especially chapter 3. The whole movement for the first several years of its existence was a movement within Judaism. When I share with others this fact, it often "blows their mind" to find out that all of the early followers of Yeshua were "orthodox practicing Jews;" and were so until the Jerusalem Council of 50 C.E. (almost 20 years later)!

Yet we are told today, and our experience testifies, that if one is a follower of Yeshua, any claim to Jewish identity is lost and forfeited and thus replaced with Gentile "trappings". Our original question concerning the relationship between Yeshua and Jewishness has led us to a great paradox:

How can it be that one who follows a Jew named Yeshua (all of whose original followers were Jews and practiced Judaism) is no longer Jewish in even the smallest regards as to celebrations, observances, and religious beliefs?

Answer for yourself: Can we unravel the mystery of Yeshua and Jewishness? I believe we can if we examine the documents of the history of the first few centuries of the common era.

THE FIRST FOLLOWERS OF YESHUA WERE JEWISH

The original followers of Yeshua believed that through the life and teaching of Yeshua, they found the clearest exposition of life with G-d (Luke 24:32; Acts 2:32; Matthew 5-7). They perceived a deeper purpose for their lives, forgiveness and even the certainty of everlasting life with G-d.

The decades during which this movement first prospered were filled with turmoil. The mighty Roman empire ruled over the nation of Israel. In the most difficult times the Jewish people often looked for the coming of the Messiah, the descendant of King David. At his coming they were to be delivered from all oppression. The world kingdom of peace would prevail. It is not surprising then that under the heavy hand of Rome messianic hopes and speculations were nurtured in many sectors of the population (Floyd V. Filson, A New Testament History (Philadelphia: Westminster, 1964, pp. 49-57). Many political messiahs sought to overthrow the yoke of Rome. An example would be Judas the Galilean whose revolt ended in crucifixion. For a balanced appraisal of the situation I recommend Oscar Cullman, The State in the New Testament (New York: Scribner, 1956), pp. 14ff. The followers of Yeshua believed that they had found the one who would eventually return and set up the long-awaited messianic kingdom.

Meanwhile, they occupied themselves with the task of spreading the life-giving message of their master among the people of Israel. They were busy encouraging a spiritual renewal in the Jewish community. The Jewish people have known other renewal movements in their history, but none were like this one. There are some important parallels, however. For example, the Hasidic renewal movement, like the early movement for Yeshua, caused much opposition among the established leadership, but gained great support among the common people. The Baal Shem Tov also was both praised and maligned. The followers of Yeshua hoped to prepare the way for Messiah's reign by their preaching and new way of living; the Hasidic movement had similar overtones.

The movement for Yeshua provoked much controversy, as did many first-century movements in the Jewish community. Yet no scholar of repute questions the fact that this was a Jewish movement; the evidence is too strong. Josephus, the first-century Jewish historian, describes James, the leader of the Jerusalem following, as a loyal orthodox Jew who was greatly respected by his fellow countrymen (Josephus, Antiquities, XX, 9:1...a first-century Jewish history). This reference is universally acknowledged as accurate. Josephus seems to be writing his history to give a favorable impression of his people to Roman circles. Though Josephus is maligned for his desertion of the war effort ( he was a Jewish general), his history reflects positive Jewish motivations. There would be no reason to picture James in this light other than the fact that it was the case.

A wicked high priest, wishing to eliminate James's disturbing moral presence, had him murdered. However, the righteous moral influence of James was so great that the orthodox Pharisees protested to the governor, and this wicked priest was deposed. Such was the high esteem for James in the Jewish community (Eusebius, Ecclesiastical History, 11, 23...an early fourth-century history).

The book of Acts describes the Jewish followers of Yeshua in these terms up to thirty years following the cross: "You see, brother, how many thousands there are among the Jews of those who have believed; they are all zealous for the law" (Acts 21:20). We know from other records of history that the communities of Jewish followers of Yeshua after biblical times remained Hebraic, biblical-law-keeping communities in most cases (Irenaeus, Adv. Haer. (Against the heresies), 1, 26 (an early second-century work). Jewish heritage and identity was part of following Yeshua even after his cross and passion for both Jews as well as Gentile believers.

Answer for yourself: How is it, then, that Jewish followers, as well as Gentile followers of Yeshua are no longer to be concerned with "Biblical" as well as "Jewish" manifestations of the faith of Yeshua?

Answer for yourself: When did this paradoxical switch occur?

Momentous events within Yeshua's movement changed the course of history.

FROM A JEWISH MOVEMENT TO AN ANTI-SEMITIC GENTILE CHURCH...HOW COULD THIS HAPPEN?

One of the astounding facts of this early history was that the leaders of the movement for Yeshua became convinced that Gentiles were to be given the opportunity to respond to the message of G-d's salvation. Extraordinary events created this conviction.

Simon, one of the head disciples, had a vision (Acts 10) that convicted him of G-d's love and salvation were to be offered to Gentiles without requiring them to become Jews in the full (conversion which required circumcision), Torah-abiding sense. Paul, a student of Rabbi Gamaliel 1, was miraculously touched by G-d and commissioned to bring the message of Yeshua to Gentiles (Acts 9, 13). This prompted, among the followers of Yeshua, a council of leaders which discussed gentile participation in the movement. After deliberation, the leaders adopted an open-door policy toward Gentiles. Mainline Judaism was untouched by such events!

Jews, they decided, are called to a specific task; Gentiles, however, are not necessarily called to be Jews. Gentiles could be considered accepted by G-d and one with Jews in faith through the legacy of Yeshua's ministry if they followed the basic way of life taught by him. This is parallel to the Jewish notion that the Noahide commands were incumbent upon all peoples (Genesis 9; see also Schonfield, A History Of Jewish Christianity, pp. 28-29 for summary).

Some rabbis did not believe that righteous Gentiles were called to follow all of the Jewish law but only those Noahide principles. Some did not. Yet the Jerusalem Council said, in effect, that there could be two wings of the movement of Yeshua—a loyal Jewish wing and a Gentile wing. Each group was to consider the other as accepted by G-d. Neither was to seek to dissolve the other wing into its culture. There could be unity without uniformity; oneness and diversity. Jews were still called to be Jews, but Gentiles were not asked to take upon themselves the whole of Israel's calling as a people, but only that part which pertained to them as Gentiles as G-d declared since Genesis when the Covenant with Noah was given by G-d.

The issue before the council was the social form of the movement. It is clear from the Scriptures that Yeshua's followers were to reflect the unity of Jews and Gentiles in a common "faith.: Table fellowship was the greatest image of this unity. This point is well made by John Yoder in The Politics of Yeshua (Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1972). Yoder explains, "The heresy Paul was struggling against was not that Jewish Christians continued to be committed to keeping the law; Paul was quite tolerant of those who held to such a conviction. He went out of his way to share their ritual faithfulness when in Jerusalem. Nor was it their thinking that by keeping the law they would be saved, for the Jewish Christians did not believe that. The basic heresy he exposed was the failure of those. . . to recognize that since the Messiah had come the covenant had been broken open to include the Gentiles." Ritual laws were not to prevent Jews and Gentiles from showing that they were brothers by eating at a common table (Marcus Barth, "Jew & and Gentiles: the Social Character of Justification in Paul," Journal of Ecumenical Studies, Spr. 68).

In Jewish areas, the congregations were predominantly Jewish, in Gentile areas predominantly Gentile. In areas of mixed population congregations were mixed. All these forms were natural and perfectly valid. There was no quota system for maintaining proportions. This validity remained as long as actions were taken to show unity and acceptance of the others in their various styles of practice and calling. "Paul's great concern for the contribution being collected, largely from Gentiles, for the Jewish believers in Jerusalem reflects this unity (I Corinthians 16:1-4; 2 Corinthians 9).

This decision was a great spur to the movement of Gentiles who maintained a belief in Yeshua. Soon Gentile followers of Yeshua outnumbered Jewish followers. However, the leadership of living disciples kept the movement in accord with the basic decision of Acts 15. Unfortunately this understanding was soon lost. The period from 60-90 C.E. has been designated by one scholar as the tunnel period of biblical history (S. G. F. Brandon, The Fall of Jerusalem and the Christian Church (London: S.P.C.K. 1951). Brandon's point is that events of great importance were taking place and we have little source material from the period. When the dust of war and tragedy settled, the situation had drastically changed.

THE EARLY GENTILE CHURCH AND THEIR BIASED -ANTI - SEMITIC WRITINGS STILL INFLUENCES US NEGATIVELY TODAY

The Gentile followers of Yeshua gradually began to understand Yeshua in non-Jewish ways. Though Yeshua and all his first followers were loyal Jews, Jewish practice and identity came to be considered antithetical to what was then dubbed "Christianity." The word Christianity was derived from Christos, a Greek translation of the word Messiah. Both mean "anointed." The New Testament was written in Greek because it was a universal language. However, this created a gap between the church and its original Hebraic roots. Besides the terrible problem of the purposeful mistranslations and misquotations in this Greek translation of the Jewish Scriptures whereby numerous verses had been altered to reflect the Essene belief in a cosmic "messiah" instead of a "Davidic messiah," we have also the passages in the New Testament condemning general hypocrisy among religious leaders and these were now interpreted as a condemnation of all things Jewish by the Gentile church.

The fall of Jerusalem to the armies of Rome (70 C.E.) was incorrectly taken as further proof to these Gentiles of G-d's rejection of the Jewish nation and encouraged them to intensify their rejection of the value of Jewish practice and identity. This is the central, valid point of Brandon's book. Incorrectly, the Gentile church came to see itself as the new, true Israel which had replaced the old nation. The claim of the nation was completely dismissed. Israel as a nation was finished, rejected! This was not biblical theology, for Paul had declared that the "gifts and the call of G-d are irrevocable" (Romans 11), and that Israel is "beloved for the sake of their forefathers." This anti-Jewish theology by the Gentile Church, or what one writer has called the "Christian anti-Jewish polemic," caused great ambivalence to the Scriptures which Christians called the Old Testament (Rosemary Ruether, Faith and Fratricide, The Theological Roots of Anti-Semitism, New York: Seabury Press, 1974, pp. 117-139). Ruether's book provides a superb summary of these points with thorough documentation.

THE EARLY CHURCH FATHERS REJECT THE JEWISHNESS OF YESHUA AND THE EARLY CHURCH

Consequently, Gentile church fathers of the next centuries spoke of Jews and Judaism with great disdain. Though they were men of wisdom, their vision was not free of blind spots. A few tragic examples reflect the direction of the institutional church.

The Epistle of Barnabas at the end of the first century speaks negatively of Jewish biblical practice (Epistle of Barnabas IV a late first-century pseudonymous work). H. L. Ellison says concerning this epistle, "Already the so-called Epistle of Barnabas, which may go back to the last decade of the first century, uses such language about the Jews, Judaism and the Law, as to make any effective contact between the two sides virtually impossible. As soon as it had the power the Church did its utmost to defeat G-d's purpose. It persecuted and bullied, thereby automatically putting itself in the wrong. It spread the vilest calumnies about the Jews" (H. L. Ellison, The Mystery of Israel Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1966, p. 82).

Ignatius of Antioch in the same century is clear also concerning the uselessness of Jewish things (Ignatius, To the Philadelphians, VI, I an early second-century letter). Request our article from Bet Emet and I will share with you how hatred toward the Jews were espoused wholesale by the earliest non-Jewish writers who considered themselves followers of Yeshua.

Justin Martyr in his Dialogue with Trypho speaks in the most condescending terms to his Jewish opponent. Justin could not understand why Jewish followers of Yeshua were maintaining their biblical-cultural identity and practice. They will not go to hell for it, he said, but it is not good. He did not understand that this was their way of expressing their faith in G-d and their mode of perceiving His meaning. Justin thought the coming of Yeshua eliminated these things (Justin Martyr, Dialogue with Trypho. Note the general tone of these early second-century dialogues).

Practices developed by the Gentile church were seen as pagan by the Jews. Nothing in the church enabled them to see that Yeshua was the Jewish Messiah for nothing in the church appeared to be Jewish. Ellison states that the church "scandalized them by apparently worshipping images and giving honor to mortal men and women which should have been reserved for G-d alone" (Ellison, pp. 82-83).

Statutory aids to worship, the veneration of saints and of Mary (who was the mother of a gentile g-d named Yeshua) summarize how Jews perceived the church. Loyal Jews could see no sense in being followers of Yeshua in this context.

Even though Judaism was the original context of the faith, the Christian polemic against Jews and Jewish practice continued. With Bishop Ambrose the theological polemic was translated into external acts (James Parkes, The Conflict of the Church and the Synagogue, New York: Atheneum 1969, pp. 166-167).

To burn a synagogue was no sin, for the Jews were said to have rejected Yeshua. (This overlooked the great company of Jews who were followers of Yeshua, and in any case, provided no justification for burning synagogues.)

Augustine explained the continued existence of the Jewish community as being only for the purpose of witnessing to the truth of Christianity. The reprobate state of the Jews would prove that the church alone was true Israel (Augustine, Tract against the Jews 6(8)).

The most viscous anti-Semitic attack by the Gentile church comes from St. John Chrysostom. Chrysostom was upset because many Christians in Antioch frequented the synagogue seeking to understand their faith through its Jewish roots. This had to be stopped for, according to Chrysostom, Christianity eliminates the value of Jewish practice and identity. To wean Christians from such practices, he painted a picture of the Jews as veritable devils. His eight sermons against the Jews are remarkable for their poisonous hate.

All of this would have been only a manifestation of religious bigotry had it not been for another momentous change: the emperor Constantine became a Christian and soon made Christianity the official state religion. The wedding between church and state translated religious bigotry into economic and social sanctions. James Parkes's research in this area is outstanding. He catalogues the history of legislation in the first eight centuries of the common era. The church-controlled state maintained this posture of discrimination of the Jews for fifteen centuries.

The images of the "insidious Jew" were the images that prepared the way for Auschwitz. Nazi leaders defended themselves by saying that they were following in this tradition of the institutional church. The church could not understand this because, though it had sought to lower the value of the Jewish people, it had not pursued the implication that the Jews had no right to exist. Since the institutional church had attributed to the Jew no positive value, there was no church tradition which could off-set Hitler's onslaught.

In fairness we must mention those individual Christians who stood outside of this tradition of death. In their close walk with Yeshua they gained a deep love for Jewish people and risked their lives for their Jewish friends. Sadly, this has always been a small minority of "Righteous Gentiles."

Some have stated that the origin of this attitude was the early Jewish persecution of Christians. Although there was fierce persecution against Jewish followers of Yeshua, Jewish persecution of Gentile Christians is now considered by the most competent scholars in the field as an unwarranted assumption. There were some minor incidents, but these were nothing in comparison with the hate received (Accounts are found in Ellison, pp. 82-84; Parkes, chapter 4; and Ruether, chapter 3, especially 180-181).

The irony of all this is that the disciples of Yeshua opened the door to anti-Jewishness by adopting a liberal policy to Gentiles. They were allowed into the movement without being forced to take upon themselves a full Jewish identity. This freedom from cultural restriction spurred the growth of the Gentile wing of the movement. Though Judaism was the original identity and way of life in the movement, the Gentile majority took over the helm and would not allow Jewish identity within it. During the inquisition in sixteenth century Spain, those of Jewish origin who claimed to follow Yeshua were burned at the stake for having Passover seders. The great vision of a Jewish and a Gentile wing of one movement, each accepting the other without dissolving the other was lost.

THE NAZARENES

Answer for yourself: What happened to the great Jewish wing of the Yeshua movement?

Known to historians as the Nazarenes or Ebionites, Jewish followers of Yeshua broke from the Gentile wing and were branded as heretics by the Gentile church because they maintained Jewish loyalty. Today many texts are replete with such stances of bias as the truth has been lost through history by many.

Even earlier the "Nazarenes" (Messianic believing Jews in Yeshua as the long awaited Messiah) were estranged from their very own Jewish community. There were several reasons for this. Put simply, however, the majority of the leaders of the Jewish community rejected the Nazarene viewpoint. Through the influence of these leaders who did not ascribe the title of Messiah to Yeshua, the Jewish community as a whole did not follow nor accept Yeshua as their Messiah. It is a fact that after the death of Yeshua the Jewish prophecies relating to the long-awaited Messiah stood yet unfulfilled. He had not come because nothing had changed. This bears much study and we at Bet Emet have many articles on such events which help explain the rejection of Yeshua by mainline Judaism as its Messiah. There are valid points for this "rejection" that need to be understood by followers of Yeshua today. Personally I believe, sine the vast majority of the world has centered around Yeshua to this day and because the knowledge of G-d went into the Gentile world in Yeshua's name, that more than likely Yeshua will be the coming Messiah, but as I have stated elsewhere this is just a "hunch." But these points of rejection by mainline Judaism need to be understood in all fairness because not only do our Jewish brothers still await the fulfillment of the Jewish Scriptures and the coming of Messiah, the Christian awaits for his coming and the fulfillment of them as well. For those interested I recommend Hugh Schonfield's book The Passover Plot which makes a case for Yeshua being the Messiah but yet not fulfilling the many Messianic Prophecies expected of "the" Messiah. It has helped me more than you know to deal with the tension between expected prophecies unfulfilled and the centrality of this man from Nazareth in the history of mankind.

THE MESSAGE IN THE BOOK OF ACTS

The beginnings of this side of the story are also to be found in the book of Acts. The Nazarene movement reaped the anger of part of the Jewish community basically for two reasons. First, the community found it difficult to believe that the Messiah could come without setting up the world kingdom of peace as the Hebrew Scriptures prophesied. In fact, this was not done by Yeshua while he lived, but the adoption of the Essene's second coming of their Teacher of Righteousness was later applied to Yeshua and today Christians likewise hope for a second return of Yeshua in which the "lion will lay down with the lamb." Because leaders were divided on the concept of "two Messiahs" the people were misinstructed concerning their Messiah. Also, the shameful death Yeshua suffered was incompatible with the common concept of Messiahship. The Nazarene Jews argued that according to Scripture the Messiah would suffer before reigning as King as seen in Daniel chapter nine where Messiah is to be "cut off." Not all agreed. The debate still rages today.

Second, the Nazarene movement stole the Gentile proselytes from the synagogue. There were many Gentile pagans — "G-d-fearers" — who saw that Judaism was superior to the pagan religions. Through the work of the Pharisees (predecessors of the rabbis), they attached themselves to the synagogue. They were not willing, however, to become fully Jewish (conversion) by undergoing a Mikveh bath, circumcision and taking upon themselves the full yoke of the Jewish law (613 Laws and Mitzvoth when as "G-d-Fearers" they had only 66). When the Nazarenes offered them the same moral and ethical values they appreciated in Judaism without requiring adoption of the whole of Judaism, Gentiles came in droves to the Nazarene side, for circumcision (a main hindrance in conversion) was not required by the Messianic community (Nazarenes) for full fellowship with G-d and His people. But, this was nothing new, for such had been decreed since Genesis with the Laws of Adam and the Laws of Noah, however, the ruling Pharisee party headed by R. Shammai so "hated" Gentiles that no efforts to proselytize them was being made during the days of Yeshua. And if any attempt was to be made at all, then "full-conversion" with circumcision was mandatory by Shammai. Such surgical procedures on grown men, with their attendant infection and often death, was not welcomed by the vast majority of pagans and was a chief hindrance in their coming to the G-d of Israel, thus relegating them to remain as pagans which ensured their loss of "eternal life" once they die. Yeshua and the Nazarenes came to reject such traditional treatment of the non-Jew and revived the ancient teaching: through acceptance into Covenant by G-d through the Laws of Noah the non-Jews need no longer suffer circumcision for inclusion into the people of G-d as intended by Shammai and other Jews who hated Gentiles. Yeshua and events after his death, which were yet attributable to him, opened the door for salvation and inclusion of the non-Jews into the Israel of G-d through his followers' ministry. Beginning with Paul, and later including the Apostles, the evangelization of the Gentile world was begun in earnest following the Church Council mentioned in Acts 15. It was in the aftermath of Yeshua' death and believed resurrection that the mission to the non-Jewish world was begun. In a way you can see Paul saying that they are "saved" by the blood (death) of Yeshua.

Now understand what most do not today. These non-Jews were "saved" not by some miracle attached to the red blood cells of Yeshua, but by his death which literally catalyzed a movement from within a previous Gentile hating Judaism that would not accept them. Thanks to Yeshua and his legacy through his followers no longer would Judaism lift up obstacles such as adult circumcision that had previous precluded non-Jew's acceptance into the Israel of G-d by those like Shammai and other Jews who both hated and were bigoted toward non-Jews.

Still, these two sources of tension were not fatal to the relationship between the Nazarenes and the larger Jewish community. There were after all many rival sects within the Jewish community, yet the Nazarenes continued to make headway. The more orthodox in practice among them were not excluded from the Jewish community and the synagogue. Other events proved to be tragically divisive.

THE 70 C.E. WAR AND THE FURTHER SEPARATION OF THE FOLLOWERS OF YESHUA

The first Jewish revolt against Rome (70 C.E.) was a stunning defeat. Not only were Jewish hopes of independence snuffed out, but reconciliation between Nazarene Jews and the larger Jewish community became an unlikely dream. Many Nazarenes did not fight for Israel in this revolt. A minor reason for this was probably that the teaching of Yeshua produced pacifistic tendencies. The major reason was that Yeshua had predicted the fall of Jerusalem. He counseled his followers to flee for safety when they saw Roman armies approaching (Luke 21: 20-22; Matthew 24:15-20). Though the Nazarenes pleaded that they were loyal Jews (and had left Jerusalem in obedience to Yeshua), they were branded as traitors. While some of the people became Nazarene Jews because of the prophecy of Yeshua, the leaders of the Jewish community became hostile. Soon after, the prayer condemning heretics—with Nazarenes and the followers of Yeshua primarily in mind—was added to the eighteen benedictions which is the standard central prayer of the synagogue service (Schonfield, pp. 40-46, 60-63, 88ff). Schonfield's history of the break between the church and the Nazarenes, and the Nazarenes and the larger Jewish community has not been surpassed. See also Parkes as quoted from the first article, pp. 106-115.

Perhaps in time these wounds would have healed. But there was no time. In the 130s of the common era another revolt against Rome was led by Bar Cochba and this time supported by the Nazarene Jews. They intended to show their loyalty to Israel! They may have thought that this was the final battle leading to the return of Yeshua and his worldwide reign. During the revolt, the venerated rabbi, Akiba, proclaimed Bar Cochba to be the Messiah. The Nazarenes thereupon pulled out of the revolt since believing Yeshua was the Messiah expected to return. Yeshua alone was Messiah for them. Bar Cochba massacred those who did not give him unquestioned loyalty (see Parkes, p. 93, and Justin Martyr, First Apology, chapter 31, 6).

The Nazarene Jews were not exceptions. Again they were branded as traitors despite Akiba's responsibility for his mistake. Jewish tradition retains no honor for the ruthless Bar Cochba, yet the Nazarene Jews were not accepted back into the community.

The Nazarene Jews were thus ostracized by both the Jewish community and the Gentile church. The synagogue surpassed all rival sects and orthodox rabbinical Judaism became the Jewish view. Church-synagogue relations deteriorated through the centuries, for both had rejected the only bridge of understanding—the Nazarenes.

The same is true today, for the hope for the synagogue is not the Gentile church, but the Messianic Gentile assemblies that are springing up everywhere today who have studied enough to know the errors of the Gentile Church and no longer follow such sinful ways. Bet Emet is one such hope. As the church and the synagogue became established in highly defensive postures, neither learned from the other. Nazarene Jews still gained some adherents but, largely ignored, they slowly dwindled until Mohammed destroyed their last communities. Through debate and persecution, the theologies of both Jews and Gentiles were honed into sharper opposition.

The synagogue rejected, and still rejects the Gentile image of Yeshua projected by the church, and the Gentile Christian Church rejected a Jewish view of Yeshua. Both houses of Israel have stumbled over the Messiah in fulfillment of prophecy.

Answer for yourself: How can we expect the Jew to listen to the Christian message when we tell him of a Jew named Yeshua who changed the Sabbath to Sunday, thus violating the Fourth Commandment, who made non-existent the Festivals of the LORD which were proclaimed "forever" by His Father, and who sanctions the perversion of the tithe as practiced by the vast majority of Gentile Churches today who build more television stations than feed and clothe people, and who has a Greek g-dman as the center of all of the whole movement which is little more than personified Sun-Worship?

THE GENTILE CHURCH NEEDS TO HEAR THIS..AND HEAR IT CLEARLY

Let us never forget that Matt. 25 defines plainly that after the coming of Messiah the nations who had not "followed the true message of G-d" will be judged during the "sheep and goats" judgment. Notice if you will the criteria of judgment. It is not on whether they "believe in Yeshua," "believe in some kind of Osiris atonement connected with Yeshua's death," "are under the blood of the lamb or the bull" and not if they "built more television stations and spread the Gospel" (if you have ever studied a little comparative religion then you know of what I speak).

It is truly shocking to learn the truth, but the nations will be judged worthy of eternal life if they fed the poor, gave drink to those thirsty, took in the homeless, clothed the naked, visited the sick, and visited those in jail.

Answer for yourself: Is this the salvation message you have heard preached in your church?

Notice that these are not called "lost" as the church would call them today, but "righteous" by Yeshua and, to top it off, he will tell them "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

Notice these were not the "bride" taken in the rapture, but those "unbelievers" who remained, yet practiced the "faith of Yeshua" better than many "church-folk" today who are led to give their money to build bigger churches, higher steeples, gyms, and television stations which, which sadly for the most part, teach just the opposite of what Yeshua said mattered for "eternal life."

Reference Matt. 19 about "what must I do to inherit eternal life" along with Matt. 25 and begin to practice the "faith of Yeshua" instead of Gentile one which only "believes in him." Such is the true salvation message of Yeshua and all of Judaism. It has never changed and never will! Don't wait until you die to find that out!

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE JEWISHNESS OF YESHUA...WHO HAS IT?

This tragic story, as mitigated by some good Biblical monotheism, though often in a form unpalatable to Jews, was spread to Gentile lands by who else, other Gentiles. Despite the alteration of Yeshua and his faith by the Gentile Church, the Bible was a good and powerful influence in many cultures. The progress of the last two centuries in science can be traced to biblical roots. This point is well-known and has been argued by W. F. Albright, Herbert Butterfield and Alfred North Whitehead in many of their works.

When the Scriptures became available and were known in the major languages, pagan practice, superstition and magic decreased. Even pagan influences in the church were greatly eliminated through the Reformation, which stressed knowledge of the Bible.

But yet between Israel and the Gentile church misunderstanding remained.

Answer for yourself: Was there an event at the root of the church-synagogue conflict that neither fully comprehended, resulting in tragedy?

I believe there was. This event was the life, death and believed resurrection of Yeshua. A true understanding of Yeshua as a loyal Jew who loved his heritage would be an antidote to anti-Semitism; this understanding is needed by church and synagogue. The church would then appreciate Jewish people, never seeking to assimilate them into the larger Gentile community or convert them to their pagan ways or their pagan godman. The synagogue could find in Yeshua the true son of Israel and the personal embodiment of the meaning of the Torah. A bridge between church and synagogue can be made without dissolving the distinctive of either. To clarify these concerns, let's look at last at Yeshua himself.

THE MEANING OF YESHUA...WHAT DID HE REALLY ACCOMPLISH

For the nation of Israel the first century of the common era was a volatile period. Many false messiahs fomented revolt against the hated Roman oppressor, leading time and again to mass crucifixions. Into this turbulent scene came Yeshua.

The records of Yeshua in the New Testament (although erroneous in context) claim his Davidic descent (Matthew 1: Luke 3). He is the one who is presented who will be Messiah. Yet it soon becomes quite clear that his purpose at this time of visitation differed from common conceptions of what the Messiah would do as taught by the Prophets and expected by the people. According to prevailing ideas the Messiah would destroy the enemies of Israel and set up a Jewish-dominated kingdom of peace. The very word Messiah inspired revolution. As Yeshua did not come to start a revolution, he was reluctant to use the term Messiah because of these connotations. Thus Yeshua chose a more neutral phrase, son of man, which he could fill with his own content.

Answer for yourself: Since the true Jewish Prophecies were not fulfilled in or after the life of Yeshua, then what did he really accomplish?

Careful examination of the records reveals several of Yeshua's purposes. One was to teach the "truth." As the great rabbi, Yeshua interpreted the Torah in its true, essential meaning. He emphasized the issue of the motives of the heart and not merely the external act. The Torah was the instrument with which he uncovered the underlying motives that led to violations of G-d's standards.

Speaking on the command against murder, for example, he said, "You have heard that it was said to the men of old, 'You shall not kill; and whoever kills shall be liable to judgment.' But I say to you that everyone who is angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment (Matthew 5:21)." In relation to oaths he said, "I say to you, Do not swear at all, either by heaven, for it is the throne of G-d, or by the earth, for it is his footstool, or by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great King. And do not swear by your head, for you cannot make one hair white or black. Let what you say be simply "Yes" or "No"; anything more than this comes from evil (Matthew 5:34-37)."

In other words, complete honesty is the standard of G-d. A true motive of righteousness needs no oath to assure honesty.

Continuing, Yeshua spoke of sexual purity, saying, "You have heard that it was said, 'You shall not commit adultery.' But I say to you that everyone who looks at a woman lustfully has already committed adultery with her in his heart" (Matthew 5:27-28). The problem must first be handled at this level. Concerning revenge he said, "I say to you, Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, so that you may be sons of your Father who is in heaven; for He makes his sun rise on the evil and on the good, and sends rain on the just and on the unjust. For if you love those who love you, what reward have you? Do not even the tax collectors do the same? And if you salute only your brethren, what more are you doing than others? Do not even the Gentiles do the same? You, therefore, must be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect (Matthew 5:44-48)."

With the Torah, Yeshua stressed that vengeance is G-d's business and not our personal right (Deuteronomy 32). He taught, as does the Torah, that if even our enemy's ox has fallen under its load we should help. Yeshua drew out the implications of this teaching and repeated the Torah's call for perfection (Leviticus 17).

All of Yeshua's teaching emphasized a return to G-d for forgiveness and an urgent plea for a change of heart. He taught and lived the way of love. Only as people act out of a motive of love that is not self-serving is there hope. In compassionate love Yeshua healed the sick, associated with the social outcast, and even died a cruel death with forgiveness on his lips (Luke 23:34). This was Yeshua, the supreme teacher.

Yeshua was also the supreme prophet in the great tradition of the Jewish prophets. To the sinner, the troubled and the needy he offered love and forgiveness (John 4; Matthew 8:10-13). To the religious hypocrite he thundered biblical prophetic denunciations. He was concerned to establish a simpler, spiritual Torah Judaism that would be applicable to all people. The religious leaders at that time often despised the common people because they could not live up to the rigorous demands of the ritual tradition ("For example, the tradition concerning the 'am ha aretz' (the people of the land, that is, commoners) is reflected in the Bible in John 7:49 and various Talmudic passages).

Yeshua condemned this attitude and spoke for a simplified spirituality with depth. It would be applicable to farmers, artisans and traders, not just to full-time students. Yeshua spoke with authority and never rejected the validity of the Torah, for he said, "Think not that I have come to abolish the law and the prophets; I have not come to abolish them but to fulfill them. For truly, I say to you, till heaven and earth pass away, not an iota, not a dot, will pass from the law until all is accomplished. Whoever then relaxes one of the least of these commandments and teaches men so, shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but he who does them and teaches them shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven (Matthew 5:17-19)."

Yeshua also came to fulfill the meaning of man being created in the image of G-d. Scripture teaches that, more than any animal, plant or even the whole material creation, human beings, created in G-d's image, are supposed to reflect the nature and character of the Creator. We are to reflect this image in wise rulership over the earth, in love, and in the active exercise of our moral capacity. But according to the Bible, all people have fallen far short of G-d's standards of perfection (Psalm 14:1-3; 53:1-3; Romans 3:23); all have turned to selfish ends instead of godly ends; all worship created things—money, success, power and security—instead of the Creator. People are fallen, separated from G-d, alienated. In the words of the prophets, the covenant has been broken and G-d has become distant, hidden. We do not sense G-d's reality and purpose in our lives.

In Yeshua, we see the true meaning of the image of G-d, undiminished and unmarred. We see in him what all of us are meant to be like. In his love, compassion, justice and mercy, we also see what G-d is like. This is how he is the son of man and the true image of G-d. Indeed, he is the meaning of G-d focused in human form. This is the true message of incarnation if there be one.

What I say next will anger almost every Christian. The same could be said for many great Rabbis, Prophets, and righteous men of Israel!

The prophet Isaiah glimpsed the truth of an "anointed's" divine nature when he said, "Unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given and the government shall be upon his shoulders and his name shall be called Wonderful-Counselor, Mighty G-d, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government there will be no end, and upon the throne of David. . . to establish it ... for evermore" (Isaiah 9:5-6). This idea is attributed to any who claim to be an anointed sent by G-d, whether Hezekiah or Yeshua.

Yet amazingly, Yeshua said he came to die. He lived out the true meaning of Judaism. He loved and celebrated the feasts—the celebration of Pesach was one of his last acts before his death. And he even used Pesach symbolism to describe the meaning of his death for us: Yeshua, realized that the Kingdom of G-d would be postponed and that he would suffer the death of all who taught it and contributed efforts to establish it in light of the conflict with the then-existing Kingdom of Rome. Israel was not worthy of the Kingdom at that time as her repentance and lack of love for all men disqualified her from accepting her eternal role in the salvation of all mankind. Just refer back to Shammai's ideas concerning the non-Jews. G-d could not reward them for such hatred and bigotry. Repentance was not wholesale. Yeshua saw that in his rejection in Galilee when he sent out the 12 and the lack of testimony of the repentance of the people along with the shallowness of their reports upon their return. Yeshua realized that if he did not succeed among those who knew him best, what chance would he have when he would take the same message to Judah and Jerusalem. Yeshua came to an understanding that his purpose at this time was not to be used as G-d's agent for the establishment of the long-awaited, worldwide kingdom of peace. Rather, through his death he would open the way for fallen people (non-Jews as well as Jews) to turn back to G-d. Centuries before Yeshua, the prophet Isaiah explained it best:

G-s's anointed messenger (call him or them "Messiah," as part of the Israel of G-d), is a suffering servant: He (the Jewish nation which includes the Messiah when he comes) was despised and rejected by men; a man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief; and as one from whom men hide their faces, he was despised, and we esteemed him not (Isaiah 53:3).

He, as a part of the Nation of Israel, is an innocent sufferer: And they made his grave with the wicked and with a rich man in his death, although he had done no violence, and there was no deceit in his mouth (Isaiah 53:9).

He, as a part of the Nation of Israel, is a willing sufferer: He was oppressed, and he was afflicted, yet he opened not his mouth; like a lamb that is led to the slaughter, and like a sheep that before its shearers is dumb, so he opened not his mouth (Isaiah 53:7).

He, as a part of the Nation of Israel, suffers for the sins of Israel: By oppression and judgment he was taken away; and as for his generation, who considered that he was cut off out of the land of the living, stricken for (because of) the transgression of my people (Isaiah 53:8)?

He, as a part of the Nation of Israel, is the sin-bearer and the means of redemption: But he (the nation from whom the Messiah will come) was wounded for our transgressions, he was bruised for our iniquities; upon him was the chastisement that made us whole, and with his stripes we are healed. All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned everyone to his own way; and the Lord has laid on him the iniquity of us all.... He poured out his soul to death; and was numbered with the transgressors; yet he bore the sin of many, and made intercession for the transgressors (Isaiah 53:5-6, 12).

He, as a part of the Nation of Israel, saw that his death is followed by resurrection: When he makes himself an offering for sin, he shall see his offspring, he shall prolong his days; the will of the Lord shall prosper in his hand; he shall see the fruit of the travail of his soul and be satisfied (Isaiah 53:10-11).

For a fuller understanding of the nation of Israel as the Suffering Servant and the role of Messiah within it, I suggest you get and read our series of articles on Isaiah 53 and then all will be made plain for you once you understand the correct interpretation of Isaiah 53. The Gentile Church today lacks such an understanding thus they read into Yeshua's death concepts not intended by G-d or given by G-d through Isaiah the prophet.

WHAT SHOULD THIS MEAN TO YOU TODAY?

Answer for yourself: So what should this mean to you personally?

Well, G-d respects man's power of choice, and so in this age all Gentile peoples have an opportunity to turn back to G-d through the legacy of Yeshua's work. The Law, especially as seen through the teaching of Yeshua, and others, shows us that we have fallen far short of G-d's perfect standard. Only perfection will be acceptable to G-d (Leviticus 17; Matthew 5) so that none of us can possibly approach G-d on the basis of our own good works (Mitzvoth) alone. G-d has provided another way of approach called Teshuvah ("repentance") in the Jewish tradition. Repentance is turning from sin to G-d. In Teshuvah we depend upon G-d's forgiveness alone (Psalm 51).

In the accounts of Yeshua's death at the hands of Rome and through the plotting of corrupt collaborationists in the Jewish state, we see the terrible results of human evil. All of us are implicated in the dilemma of sin which led to the death of G-d's anointed as well as all other of His "anointed servants" over history. G-d has sent many and has in our day as well if only we would hear His voice within the voice of others. We deserve to suffer and die for our own sins. Yeshua was sinless; he did not deserve to die. But that can be said for many other messengers that G-d has previously sent. Yet the good news of the mercy of G-d is that when we own up to our own sin and turn from it, then G-d accepts and forgives us. Through our spiritual union with G-d through the legacy of Yeshua and his followers who, because of his death and believed resurrection, took the Covenant of Noah into all the world, we receive a covenant with G-d, are given new hearts (Jeremiah 31:31-34; Ezekiel 36:25-27) and are considered righteous by G-d. This was the clear message of Isaiah. Thus peace and fellowship with G-d are established through repentance and faith in G-d.

There is wonderful good news in the teaching of the Scriptures. They teach that if we return to G-d on this basis, he will become a reality in our lives. His Spirit, the Ruach haKodesh will abide with us. As we live according to G-d's will by the power of his Spirit, our prayers will be answered. As we fellowship with the creator G-d who is love and justice and follow his will revealed in the Scriptures, we will begin to love all people.

Beneath all the conflicts between the church and the synagogue we can now glimpse the true meaning of Yeshua. The meaning of Yeshua is good news—a Jewish message for all the world (both Jew and Gentile). As Yeshua's earliest followers were Jews, so Jews today continue to be Jews and to live lives of biblically consistent Judaism. Likewise, our identity as Gentiles is not lost in any way because we are grafted into Israel; rather than lost, it is fulfilled in the deepest sense. We know G-d! We know of His gracious offer of His Covenant to the non-Jew and no longer make up our own! He loves us and has forgiven us! And perhaps, G-d willing, Messianic Gentile followers of Yeshua (Bet Emet Ministries as well as others who know and appreciated the Jewishness of Yeshua) can be that bridge of understanding between the Gentile church and the Jewish synagogue that will unite them, without destroying either.

The paradox of Yeshua and Jewishness is solved when we see the meaning of Yeshua. It is a paradox born of fear and prejudice which is best laid to rest. If you decide to be a follower of Yeshua, then understand that means adopting a Biblical life-style and this called by no other name than "Jewish." Find a fellowship of other like-minded followers, or start your own, and grow in the study of the Scriptures (For further reading: Basic Christianity by John R. W. Stott (Downers Grove, IL: Intervarsity Press, 1971), Christianity Is Jewish by Edith Schaeffer (Wheaton, IL: Tyndale Publishers, 1975), and The Lord from Heaven by Leon Morris (Downers Grove, IL: Intervarsity Press.). Seek to live from this day forward for G-d and follow His Torah. Test every spirit by the Word (Torah-the Bible Yeshua used), and that includes those you esteem as your spiritual leaders. If what they teach is contradicted by the Jewish Scriptures and the Jewish Bible (not the corrupted Christian Bibles), then find a place which will teach you the truths of G-d's Word without compromise, for the way is narrow, and few that be shall find it. Shalom.

TEACHING THE RELIGION OF YESHUA AND THE LAWS OF NOAH...IS THIS JUDAIZING?

Whenever people have attempted to restore the Jewish or Hebraic root of their faith, the cry of Judaizing is heard. The non-Jewish believers who have a heart felt and sincere call to return to the Jewishness of Yeshua should not be intimidated by Gentile Christians or traditional Jews who reject the notion that such a return is impossible. The authority for such a return is found in both the Tanakh and the New Testament documents. Gentiles who have come to believe in the G-d of Israel through the ministry of Yeshua and his followers have been, by G-d, grafted into Israel, made partakers of the commonwealth of Israel, made heirs to the promises of the covenants, and sharers in the rich heritage and tradition of the Jewish people. Believers should be free to identify with Yeshua, the Jewish Messiah, and celebrate their Olive Tree connection!

JUDAIZING THE BIBLICAL TEXT...TO WHAT WAS PAUL REFERRING?

The Biblical text has little to say about Judaizing. The only reference in the Tanakh [Old Testament] is found in Esther 8:17. Here the Hebrew verb, yahad is used of those Gentiles in Persia who adopted the Jewish way of life out of fear of Esther's decree which allowed the Jews to avenge themselves on their enemies (Esther 8:13). The Septuagint (Hebrew translation of the Old Testament into Greek) uses the Greek word Ioudaizo and adds to the verse that the Gentiles were circumcised and actually converted to Judaism. In the New Testament Ioudaizo is usually translated to live as the Jews and actually occurs only in Galatians 2:14. Here Paul opposed Judaizing. What one fails to realize is that Paul spoke only against enforcing the commandment of "circumcision" upon the non-Jew and never intended anyone to connect with his anti-Judaizing comments any of the other commandments. The whole of Galatians spoke only about one commandment and one commandment only; namely, circumcision. One must remember that circumcision was never given to the non-Jew in the Covenant of Noah nor in the Laws of Noah (Galatians 2:21). Although the ritual and ceremonial aspects of Torah are not binding on Gentile believers for salvation, it is questionable that Gentiles can ever understand their faith and calling without the observation of them.

THE JEWISH HERITAGE OF THE GENTILE CHURCH

It is one thing for a Gentile to feel he is bound by halakhah (to obey the commandments of the Bible concerning Festivals and Sabbath and other rituals, ceremonies and customs of the Jewish people because he is already "saved"), and another thing, for one to feel compelled as a necessary part of one's Christian experience, to observe Sabbath, eat kosher foods and participate in the Biblical Festivals in order "to be saved." However, the Jewish Messianic Community in Acts 15 never imposed these Jewish practices on Gentiles as an obligation "FOR" Gentile salvation, but be not mistaken dear reader, the obligations to keep the festivals, customs, ordinances, holy days, and Sabbaths were definitely imposed by James, the Lord's brother and head-Pastor of Yeshua's church as 'necessary' for Gentiles since they are becoming "saved." It is here we encounter James teaching us that adherence to the Laws of Noah (Noah Covenant with all Gentile mankind) is yet binding upon the Gentile who turns from idols to receive through faith in and the ministry of Yeshua the G-d of Israel. Before we can continue, we must have a thorough understanding of the Laws of Noah as they pertain to the Gentile believer in the Christian church. True today is that the vast majority of Gentile believers know little or nothing about the Laws of Noah, but that does not change the fact that they exist as given by G-d and that before G-d the non-Jew will be held accountable for keeping and observing them.

THE SEVEN LAWS (MITZVOT) OF THE SONS OF NOAH

It is quite clear from the Bible that G-d has ordained a separate and unique covenant with all mankind as He has made a special and unique covenant with the Jewish people. The covenant that G-d has made with all Gentile nations is not to be found in the perverted misinterpretations of a Gentile Church which has rejected the teachings of the original church of Yeshua (a totally Jewish institution for it's first seventeen years and which continued in Jewish faith until 325 C.E.). It is this "Jewish church" which was built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets which has become today a church built upon Roman Catholicism, Reformation theology, and upon the Charismatic Gentile misinterpretations of Hebraic Scriptures. Such fallacy that believes that a "New" covenant was given to replace an "Old" covenant is a total perversion of Yeshua's own words as recorded for us in Matt. 5:17ff: "Think not that I am come to destroy the Law, or the prophets: I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill." Remember, this is in the "red" of your Bibles.

"New," as understood in "New Covenant," refers to a "RE-NEWED" prior covenant, not to a replacement of a prior covenant or a substitute for a previous covenant

To interpret any differently is a perversion of the Biblical text and creates literally a new religion, and Yeshua warns us that he has not come to destroy the Torah (Law), also known as the Old Covenant. We must be careful for blasphemy is the fruit of such misinterpretation of Scripture. These are such unfortunate terms that were chosen to express such a wonderful concept from G-d, but we have totally misunderstood the dynamics involved in the ministry of Yeshua.

What so many Gentiles fail to understand is that G-d's covenant with mankind started with Adam (himself a Gentile and not a Jew) in the Garden of Eden. According to Jewish tradition and Oral Law (called "Mishnah" and dating back prior to Moses), G-d had given to Adam, and later to Noah after the flood, certain basic laws of universal morality which were to be observed by all of Adam's (and later, Noah's) descendants.

These universal laws came to be known as the laws of the Benei Noah (i.e. children of Noah, since after the flood we are all Noah's children). Jews have, for the most part, never sought to covert Gentiles to Judaism, for there were never was a need to. Gentiles have their own covenant and path to G-d by faith in G-d and resultant obedience and observance of the commandments that G-d gave them. This was and still is the message of Yeshua in our Bibles. We should re-read our own Bibles and look for the "verbs" in Yeshua's discourses, and listen to what he tells and commands to be done, and quit listening to the 1500 different denominations when they preach and teach us to do anything that is opposite to or in violation to what Yeshua says in the New Testament Scriptures.

This knowledge is nothing new. Even the original Christians knew this! It is we, the contemporary church of today, who have forgotten what the original Church of Yeshua both believed and practiced for salvation. When I say "original" church I mean those Jews and Gentiles of the first two-three centuries, who came to faith in Yeshua as the Messiah of Second Temple Judaism and his message. The church of Yeshua, as it exists today, as well as during it's long history, has, for the most part, rejected anything Jewish in nature. Thus, little study was done in Hebrew or very little effort expended to understand the Scriptures from a Hebraic perspective, both Old Testament and New Testament. We have forgotten that Yeshua is a Jew and he spoke Hebrew and taught from a Jewish perspective. The fact that Yeshua is a Jew seemed to have little bearing on his message to us today. How unfortunate for the church today because they have failed "to let Yeshua's mind be in them...which is a Jewish mind". This has been for well over 1700 years a tragic mistake, for which we still suffer the consequences today.

JAMES...THE LEADER OF THE MESSIANIC COMMUNITY ... APPOINTED BY YESHUA

James, the leader of the Yeshua Messianic Movement within Judaism at that time was asked regarding Gentiles who were listening to their "gospel", if these Gentiles who were accepting the message of Yeshua and his invitation had to convert to Judaism in order to be accepted as grafted into Israel. James rightly said to them (Acts 15) that all these Gentiles had to do was certain "essentials", and he proceeds to list a basic form of the laws of Benei Noah. Please notice also that James also says these "necessary things" also seemed good to the Holy Spirit as well (Acts 15L28)!

Answer for yourself: Did you catch that? The Laws of Noah seemed good to the head of the Messianic church as well as to the Holy Spirit as the answer as to how Gentiles were to become a part of believing Israel! Thus they were grafted into Israel and Paul would refer to this very thing later in the New Testament Scriptures.

An important fact we must understand is that "Christianity" at that time, while a "Messianic sect" within Judaism, and not apart from it, had not yet turned idolatrous as it has today. The Yeshua Messianic Movement, as it evolved and changed over the centuries under Gentile influence, began to claim that "it only" was the "true Israel". This new message ("another gospel" as was warned by Paul and as preached today), found its strength in Roman Catholicism and in the Reformation Protestant church. Such damnable doctrines surfaced as we confront today such as that pernicious error which teaches that the "church" is the "New Israel", and as "the church" has replaced natural Israel in the plan of G-d. This is blasphemous!

The message of such churches is the "inclusion of the Gentiles" into a "new" covenant with G-d, as if they did not possess one already. In ignorance, the Gentile Christian church has for centuries wanted to avoid any knowledge of the "Benei Noah" (sons of Noah) covenant that G-d has had with the Gentiles for thousands of years, even before there was a Jewish people. Such an ancient covenant would abrogate the Christian position of having to reach out to the Gentiles, claiming they (the Gentile) had no other avenue to G-d or relationship with G-d outside of the New Testament and the acceptance of Yeshua and the latest theology created about him.

Dear Christian, G-d's Word is G-d's Word, regardless of Christian misinterpretations. The Word of G-d must be our authority, whether Jew or Gentile. As Christians, we have failed to adhere to this cardinal principle when it comes to interpretation of our Bibles, and unfortunately let our Church's denomination and its doctrine stand above the Bible as our authority. Shame on us! We must learn to study to find out the truth about the words of our Bibles!

The Christian Church, to this day, holds itself to be the "replacement" for the Jewish people and therefore, the definer of right and wrong for the Gentile (and the Jew). The last time I read Matt. 23 I believe that Yeshua says that the Pharisees (of whom he is one) are to sit in Moses's seat and not Gentiles. Though this "replacement" nonsense is clearly exposed in the Bible for the falsehood that it is, many sincere Gentile believers are still deceived into believing it. It is to these sincere Gentiles first that we at Bet Emet, as well as other similar ministries, as well as the Jewish community, have an obligation by Torah (law, instruction, teaching of G-d) Law to educate them in what G-d truly (and not falsely) said and demands of them.

THE LAWS OF NOAH...IN THE NEW TESTAMENT ALL ALONG

The laws of the Benei Noah (sons of Noah), although originating with Adam, are conveniently recorded in the Talmud (Jewish commentary) and expounded upon in Maimonides's Mishneh Torah, the great codification of Jewish Law written in the 12th century. This is required learning for every Jew. For as it is known, the children of Israel (Benei Yisrael) have the obligation to be a "nation of priests", this means to be teachers and educators. The children of Noah, Benei Noah (i.e. all Gentiles) have the obligation to learn these laws and practice them.

Only in this way does a Gentile draw close to G-d and fulfill his/her spiritual purpose here in this world. Faith in G-d with incorrect responses and obedience to G-d's commandments does not please G-d!

Answer for yourself: What level of spirituality can be achieved by the righteous children of Noah?

To begin with, they are the ones who are called the "righteous Gentile." Of them, the prophet Elijah has said (Tana D'evi Eliyahu, Rabbah 9), "Heaven and Earth will bare witness to me, be it a man or woman, Jew of Gentile...all can receive the Holy Spirit. It all depends upon one's actions." For further elucidation on these commandments I recommend The Path Of The Righteous Gentile by Rabbi Haim Clorfene published by Targum Press (Feldheim) and "The Seven Laws of Noah" by Aaron Lichtenstein, published by Berman Books.

MAIMONIDES (RaMBaM), AND HIS MISHNEH TORAH

First of all I must say that I own the Misneh Torah and it is one of my most cherished books as it delineates all the mitzvot and the rationale behind them and explains why G-d gave them to mankind. Possibly it might be my most favorite set of books I own and I have well over a thousand books in my library.

Maimonides, in his epic work Mishneh Torah, in the Laws of Kings 9:1, teaches us concerning the Laws of Noah:

"Six precepts were commanded to Adam:

- The prohibition against worship of false gods.
- The prohibition against cursing G-d.
- The prohibition against murder.
- The prohibition against forbidden sexual relations.
- The prohibition against theft.
- The command to establish laws and courts of justice.

To Noah G-d added:

- The prohibition against eating the flesh from a living animal.

Thus, there are seven Mitzvot" (commandments).

Again quoting from the Law of Kings 8:10 he states:

"Our teacher Moshe (Moses) was commanded by G-d to compel all the peoples of the earth to accept upon themselves the laws given to the descendants of Noah."

Again quoting:

"This obligation, to teach all the peoples of the earth about the Laws of Noah, is incumbent upon every individual in every era. The Jews must serve as "a light to the nations" (Isa. 42:6) teaching them (the Gentiles) the Seven Mitzvot (laws) and instructing them in proper behavior...Similarly, the Chatam Sofer (Choshen Mishpat, Responsum 85) writes that it is a mitzvah (commandment) to guide the Gentiles in the service of G-d."

For whatever reason, teaching Gentiles the universal laws of the children of Noah has not been practiced in earnest since the days of the Second Temple. During the long exile of the Jewish people among the Christians and the Moslems, who both falsely claim to be the legitimate heir to the title "the chosen people of G-d", the Jews experienced extreme persecution from both Christians and Moslems for observing the truth of their own Torah. Even more so would the Jews have suffered persecution if the Jews had hounded the Gentiles and shared with them the truth of the Torah which was, in reality, the responsibility of the Jew. Now that HaShem (G-d), in His mercy has returned the Jewish people to their homeland, we again find the Jewish people have the strength to take on the Gentiles and compel them to give up their idol worship religions and purge Christianity of its paganism. This might not sound like the most liberal of "live and let live" philosophies. But nowhere does Torah teach us to "live and let live". The Jewish people, as well as Gentile "G-d-fearers" (Acts 10) who have come to the truth concerning the faith once given to the saints, have an obligation to "shine the light" of HaShem's (G-d's) truth on error and deception. If this means we have to expose the falsehoods of the world's religions, then we are obligated to do so. At no time more so than in this generation are there so many Gentiles who have left their former religions and are seeking the real truth.

Answer for yourself: Where will they turn?

We, both Jews and Gentile "G-d-fearers" who have come to the faith of Yeshua, instead of a faith-in Yeshua, have been given this opportunity in our day and time to fulfill our obligation as teachers and "priests", to teach other Gentiles the experiential truth of the one and only G-d! This we do in preparation of the coming of Mashiah (Messiah). One of the groups leading this great effort are the world-wide sh'li'him (disciples) of Lubavitch. I support and applaud their endeavors.

Isaiah 42:6 calls G-d's people to be a light to the nations (Gentiles). Today, the Gentiles are embedded in deceit and false teachings in the majority of the Christian churches of our land. We, who understand and practice the faith of Yeshua, both Jews and "G-d-fearers", must be a light to the nations of the world and the Christian church. This applies particularly to the present age, where there is far greater communication between Jews and Gentiles than every before. Many Jews and Rabbis are taking advantage of this phenomenon. We, as repentant, teachable, and enlightened Christians, must observe our obligation and engage other Gentiles, in heated debate if necessary. Halakha (proper interpretation of the Torah-the teaching of G-d) demands that we go on the offensive and compel the Gentiles to abandon their idolatry. This is not an option; this is Halakha!

Rather than be influenced by these paganized Gentiles that comprise the majority of contemporary Christian churches of today, we must utilize our freedom of communication to convince the Gentiles to accept their Seven Mitzvot (categories of commandments).

LET US LOOK AT THESE SEVEN MITZVOT

"The Seven Mitzvot are by no means a narrow field of study. Rabbi Meiri (Sanhedrin 59A) states that most elements of the Torah are included within them (Are you not surprised?). For example, in order to observe the prohibition against the worship of false gods correctly, one must become aware of G-d's unity. Accordingly, a number of contemporary Sages have suggested the translation of certain basic Chassidic and Kabbalistic texts into English with the intent that they be studied by Gentiles."

My own experience has taught me that when Christians are exposed to the true meanings of the words of our Bibles, as understood in their original language, original culture, and with a correct historical understanding, many quickly abandon their false beliefs and began to repent and "do" what the Bible really says and commands. It is a shame so few Christians study the Bible in the original languages today; the fruit of failure in study produces error, deception, false doctrines, idolatry, and the practice of robbery of truth from G-d's people within the Churches that bear G-d's name!

SEFER MITZVAH HASHEM: (BOOK OF THE COMMANDMENTS OF GOD):

It is forbidden for a Jew to cause a Gentile to violate one of the seven commandments of the children of Noah, because it is written, "You shall not place a stumbling block before the blind" (Lev. 19:14) therefore it is appropriate for all Israel to be aware of them. This is good advice to the Christian Church as well. Therefore I am writing down the seven laws of the children of Noah. All of them are to be found in Sanhedrin 56, and in the Mishneh Torah, Laws of Kings, chapters 9-10.

Let me preface that as before with the Ten Commandments, we have actually ten categories in which 613 Commandments are grouped categorically. Likewise here we have 7 categories comprising 66 individual commandments thus comprising the Laws of Noah. The following are the summarizations of the 7 categories.

Law #1:

The Gentile is warned not to practice idolatry. RaMBaM (Maimonides) clearly writes in the Laws of Idolatry, Chapter 9, Halakha 4 that Trinitarian Christianity is idolatry. This means that the Jews, as well as Monotheistic Christians (of whom there are too few!) have the obligation to go on the offense and (lovingly, if possible) guide the Christian population to recognize their hollow inheritance, the actual inception of this Gentile-Pagan idea into a Jewish faith, and the truths about the Council of Nicea where this idea gained acceptance in 325 C.E. in protests of the majority of "Christianity" at that time. It is time to come back to G-d in truth. In my personal opinion, I believe that most Christians have "their hearts in the right place," it is their heads that have been "tossed to and fro" by such false doctrines. We must not place a stumbling block before the blind and allow this to continue. We are commanded by Halakaha to stand against such false teachings and reveal the truth to all nations.

Law #2:

The Gentile is warned not to curse G-d. If this is violated, one is guilty. This is true whether one cursed G-d using His Name or one of the terms used to refer to Him. According to the Holy Zohar (III, 273A), "HaShem (G-d), Torah, and Israel are one." In my opinion, the one who cursed the Torah, either the Oral Torah (Oral Law) or the Written Torah (Written Law) violates this commandment. Many a Gentile, violates this commandment, and is not even aware of his sin. While alleging love for G-d, the majority of Gentiles in the Christian churches of today express great contempt towards the Talmud and Judaism. We fail to realize that the Talmud is the embodiment of the Oral Torah (Oral Law), given at Mt. Sinai and often spoken of by Yeshua in the New Testament. Being that HaShem (G-d) and His Torah are one, therefore the Gentile who curses or otherwise maligns the Talmud and the Jewish religion is guilty of violating this commandment, the same as if he was cursing G-d. But even more damaging, if possible, is the sin and guilt incurred by the Gentile Christian who believes and espouses that the New Testament has replaced the Old Testament (Torah). Never was such a more damnable doctrine devised than the one which denigrates the Old Testament, and teaches that the New Testament has replaced the Old Testament. Along with this evil Replacement Theology, as held by the majority of the Christian churches today, is the added guilt that we have violated the law of Noah in this regard, for G-d and Torah are one. How can we replace G-d with such a substitute? Therefore, the Christians who believes and espouses or maligns the Old Testament (the Bible Yeshua used) is guilty, the same as if he was cursing G-d.

Law #3:

The Gentile is warned not to commit murder. If a Gentile kills another, even a fetus in its mother's womb, he is subject to capital punishment as far as G-d is concerned. Abortion is defined as murder by universal law. Therefore those who perform abortions have the legal definition as murderers.

Even more startling, the rabbis teach that if you misuse the tithe, or fail to tithe, or incorrectly tithe, you are not only guilty of stealing from G-d and His people, but such sin is considered murder as well as it leads to the demise of G-d's people. Are you your brother's keeper? G-d considers that you and I are!

Capital punishment for murder is a commandment of G-d. G-d may have ordained this as a deterrent or for some other reason. One thing however is clear, we cannot second guess G-d's Divine morality. Our courts today may not follow G-d's commandments in this area, and we may interpret their leniency and grace as G-d's will, but to do so violates G-d's Word. We have been lulled asleep for the most part as Christians today because of the lack of study of G-d's word, and we lean upon our own understanding in these areas. There is a way that seems right with man, but the end-result is not of G-d.

Law #4:

The Gentile is warned not to partake in forbidden sexual unions. These are forbidden relations that a Gentile is warned not to violate: one is forbidden to have a sexual affair with one's mother, the wife of one's father, a married woman, the sister of his mother, and a member of the same sex (homosexuality) and an animal. Specifically this means a man with another man. Homosexuality is thus considered a crime against the universal laws of nature. On an interesting note, lesbianism is not clearly pointed out in this regard. Even in Jewish Law, whereas lesbianism is absolutely forbidden, its penalty is less than that for homosexuality.

One would be guilty of this sin in relationships with one's mother even if she was raped by his father, or if his father had relations with her only once. Regardless, she is his mother. Regarding the wife of one's father, one is guilty even after the death of one's father. Regarding a married woman, one is not guilty until one has relations with her in the natural manner after she has been intimate with her husband. However, a woman who is engaged or who has performed a marriage ceremony but who has not yet been intimate with her husband, one is not guilty over, for it is written, "and she has been intimate with her husband." (Ber. 20:3). All this refers specifically to a male Gentile and a female Gentile.

If however a male Gentile has sexual relations with a female Jew, whether in the natural way or in an unnatural way, he is guilty. If the female Jewess was engaged, the Gentile (who has relations with her) is stoned to death as would be a Jew. If the Gentile was to have sexual relations with a Jewess after her wedding ceremony, but prior to her being intimate with her husband, he is executed by hanging as would be a Jew. If the Gentile has relations with any other Jewess who is not a virgin, the penalty is death by decapitation, as it would be if the Gentile violates a married Gentile woman. The Gentile who has relations with a member of the same sex or with an animal is guilty regardless if the act was performed with an adult or child.

Law #5:

The Gentile is warned not to commit theft. There is no difference between stealing from a Gentile or stealing from a Jew. One who cheats or steals money, kidnaps someone (steals a life), does not pay due wages, or fails to pay due wages promptly, etc....even a worker who takes a lunch break when he should be working; all of these are guilty of violating this law of Noah. All of these are to be included in the definition of a thief. One is guilty of even the slightest monetary amount. If a Gentile steals something of the least monetary value, and another Gentile comes along and steals that from him, they are both liable.

Law #6:

The Gentile is warned not to eat a limb from a living animal, whether it be domesticated or wild. When an animal is slaughtered, even after its wind pipe and jugular vein have been severed, all the while that animal kicks, its flesh and meat which has already been removed for "food" are forbidden to the Gentile as the "limb from a living animal". One is guilty for this whether it be a domesticated or wild animal, clean or unclean.

Law #7:

The children of Noah have been commanded regarding judges. Gentiles are required by G-d to place judges and magistrates in each and every town so as to make judgments regarding the six commandments listed above. These Gentile courts must warn the people. A Gentile who violates one of these laws is executed by the sword (decapitation). It is for this reason that all the inhabitants of Shechem were subject to the death penalty. Shechem stole Dinah from the House of Jacob. Everyone in town saw and knew what he did, yet no one judged him or held him accountable for his actions.

A Gentile can be executed on the word of one witness, one judge, without warning, and by evidence given by a relative. It is this section of Halakha that justifies Baruch Goldstein taking lives in the Hebron mosque. The Moslem population (Gentiles) of Hebron have continually expressed its hatred of Jews and the inhabitants of the town have committed and have been sympathetic to the committing of acts of violence against Jews. Since that town of Hebron has not established judges to punish the anti-Israeli perpetrators of violence and terrorism, the entire town therefore became collaborators in the guilt of the perpetrators. The entire population therefore become subject to collective punishment. Baurch Goldstein acted as the single witness to this fact. He judged by what he saw, and acted as an executioner and in total compliance to the letter of the Torah. As unpopular as it might be by modern Gentile moral standards that have replaced the Torah with "grace alone", Baruch Goldstein was acting in compliance with the written will of G-d in the Torah (negatively called today "the letter of the law"). Let us never forget we must have an authority, and such is the Torah; it sits in judgment upon us, we do not sit in judgment upon it by erroneously applying our emotions or our experience upon it! Goldstein executed righteous justice, based upon the Bible, on a guilty population. This is the correct view according to the Torah (Law of Moses) and the universal laws of Benei Noah and the covenant of Noah, no matter what man's courts may decide today which do not follow G-d's Torah!

Understand that it was these "Laws of Noah" which were required for non-Jews to adhere to for inclusion into the Israel of G-d as delineated by James in Acts 15. If that was not enough, it is recorded for us that these laws "seemed good" to the Holy Spirit as well. Lastly James, the pastor of the Jerusalem Church, informs us that these Laws of Noah are "necessary". This is a lesson the Christian Church needs to heed especially when taking into account the perverse teachings within the New Testament which leads one falsely to conclude they are not under the Laws of G-d any longer. Shalom.

RABBI HILLEL AND THE GENTILE'S SALVATION

Tradition records for us three heathen who appeared before the two leading rabbis of their time, Hillel and Shammai (both contemporaries of Yeshua in the first century) for the purpose of coming to the G-d of Israel through "conversion". The first potential convert was interested in accepting only the written law's authority, but not the oral tradition; the second, and most famous, asked to be taught the entire Torah (the main essence of the religion of Yeshua) while standing upon one foot, while the third aspired to become a convert so that he might attain the office of high priest. Shammai rebuffed them and drove them off with a "builder's measuring rod" harshly, while Hillel's gentleness and patient instruction won them over to the faith of Yeshua. Hillel and Shammai flourished during the era of the Second Temple, or end of first century B.C.E. and the beginning of first century C.E., and were contemporaries of Yeshua.

LET US TAKE A CLOSER LOOK...TO UNDERSTAND WHAT WE JUST READ....

Shammai's actions are rather baffling. He scolded the first heathen and had him removed from the premises whereas the latter two were repulsed with a "builder's measuring rod". Many have believed that Shammai was either in the building business or a carpenter by trade. This is all the more puzzling since one of Shammai's favorite teachings was (Avot 1:15) "to receive all men with a cheerful countenance." Was it generally his practice to use his building rod on those he disagreed with?

And Hillel's instruction to the famed second heathen defies comprehension. To his request to be taught the entire Torah while standing on one foot, Hillel replied, "What is hateful unto thee, do not do unto thy neighbor-this is the entire Torah; the rest is commentary." This negative metaphoric contraction of the 613 commandments of the Torah finds no counterpart in Talmudic literature. Two interpretations exist today: 1). G-d is referred to in scripture as "neighbor" or "friend," or 2) that the prohibitions of theft, adultery and "most commandments" of the Torah can be classified in this vein. Later commentators adopted the more literal view that Hillel was referring to the Golden Rule, love thy neighbor as thyself (Lev. 19:18), but his reference to it in a negative form was in order to incorporate certain halakhic principles into the teaching.

TWO TYPES OF "GRAFTING OF GENTILE BELIEVERS INTO ISRAEL" EXISTED IN ANCIENT TIMES...THE GER TZEDEK & GER TOSHAV....& THE LAWS OF NOAH

Gentiles were grafted into Israel as either a "Ger Tzedek" or a "Ger Toshav."

The Ger Tzedek accepted all 613 commandments of the Torah, and after circumcision and or ritual immersion, was recognized as a full Jew.

The Ger Toshav obligated himself only to the Seven Noahide Commandments, after which he was permitted to settle in the Land of Israel, and the Jewish community became liable to see to his economic well-being.

Judaism considers the Seven Noahide Commandments to be the cornerstones of all religion and civilization, having been incumbent upon the human race since the time of Adam. Judaism accepts the opinion today of Rabbi Hillel (a contemporary of Yeshua) that a non-Jew who accepts these Commandments as divinely ordained and practices them is considered one of the Hasidim (righteous ones) of the Nations, and merits a share in the World to Come. Judaism has always viewed other religions from the perspective of whether or not they conform to the Noahide Commandments.

According to Exodus 23:33, idolaters were not permitted to live in ancient Israel, lest they cause the people to sin. If a Gentile wished to settle there, he would appear before three learned men, accept the Noahide Laws, and would then be permitted to settle with the status of the Ger Toshav. Convert #2 sought this Ger Toshav status from Hillel. When he inquired to be taught the entire Torah while standing on one foot, he was not jesting; he was referring to the Seven Noahide Commandments, which can easily be imparted in a brief span of time (as one stands on one foot). Hillel's reply to "thy neighbor," was referring to the second party involved which was understood to represent G-d, one's fellow man, and the animal world as well. Hillel was actually offering a brief synopsis of the Noahide Commandments.

A CLOSER LOOK AT RABBI SHAMMAI AND HIS VIEWS ON GENTILE SALVATION

Rabbi Eliezer ben Hyrcranus, a leading sage of the first century A.D., was a member of the School of Shammai. He held the opinion, as did Shammai his teacher, that a Gentile who observes the Noahide Commandments does NOT merit a share in the World to Come. This was also the stance of the School of Shammai and was prevalent in Israel before the time of the death and resurrection of Yeshua. It would a direct result of Yeshua's ministry that this situation would change.

Unlike Shammai, Hillel and his students maintained that righteous Gentiles merit salvation just as Jews do (Hillel, like Yeshua, accepted the teachings connected with the Laws of Noah), and it was their hope that a mission to the Gentiles could avert the destruction of their land and win G-d's approval, thus influencing G-d to repent of the destruction prophesied in Daniel chapter nine (now you understand another reason for Hillel's and Yeshua's support for a Great Commission to take the Gentiles the Torah). Bet Shammai (the school of Shammai) however looked down upon the Gentile world, holding that NOT even the most righteous Gentiles could merit a share in the World to Come. Shammai believed the Gentiles deserved "eternal separation from G-d" and no attempts should be made to alter their destiny. The Jewish people and their teachers have since declared Bet Shammai's views to be null and void, as did the Heavenly Voice toward the close of the first century (just the way G-d spoke at Yeshua's immersion). Shammai and his students from the School of Bet Shammai were indeed the Pharisees and priests that Yeshua of Nazareth and Paul of Tarsus had to contend with within the pages of our Bibles, and not the Hillel Pharisees. Paul the Apostle's insistence that Gentiles be admitted into the early Messianic Jewish Church was based on Bet Hillel's (School of Hillel) position that righteous Gentiles merit salvation. Let us not forget that Paul had studied under Rabban Gamaliel the Elder, a grandson of Hillel where he received such instruction! Now you can better understand that the anti-Jewish passages contained in the New Testament were directed against the Shammaites, and not the Judaism which followed Bet Hillel, or even today which follows the instruction and interpretations of Hillel. Yeshua was closer to Bet Hillel positions than Bet Shammai's positions as recorded in the New Testament.

When each of these three heathen in our story requested Shammai to instruct them concerning the Noahide Commandments, Shammai would have advised each that a Ger Toshav, Ger Hashar or even an observant Noahide, received no reward in the afterlife. It was this figurative "measuring rod" (his erroneous interpretations of Torah which in this instance taught obedience without immortality) that repulsed the Gentile. The allusion to the tool is not to be taken literally. Shammai would use the same "measuring rod" on the third heathen, by advising him that a Ger Tzedek (a full-convert) had no rights to the high priesthood. Hillel gently pointed out that any Jew not born as a Kohen (descendent of Aaron) was similarly not entitled to the office.

In the case of the first convert, who expressed an interest in the written law only and not the Oral Law or tradition (a Sadducean position-like the Christian church of today) was a blatant act of heresy. Therefore one can understand another reason that Shammai threw him out. Hillel's (who believed in the Oral Law as well) gentleness won him over.

The gratitude of the two Ger Tzedeks and the "one-footed" Ger Toshav to Hillel are expressed in the Talmud's concluding comment:

"Some time later the three met in one place; they said, Shammai's impatience sought to drive us from the world, but Hillel's gentleness brought us under the wings of the Shekhinah (Divine Presence)."

Thus we can conclude that the term "conversion" was to be understood as the transformation of a pagan into an observant Noahide who observed the Seven Laws of Noah as seen by James' insistence in Acts 15

A FIRST GREAT COMMISSION AND MISSION TO THE GENTILES BY THE HASIDIM

Moses obligated the Jews to spread the knowledge of the Noahide commandments to all mankind. A well known statement of Hillel states (Avot 1:12), "Be thou of the disciples of Aaron, one who loves peace, pursues peace, loves mankind, and draws them nigh to the Torah." Hillel was alluding in this quote to a movement to spread knowledge of the Noahide Commandments to all mankind (Gentile Torah). What better way could one show love for all mankind than to try to bring personal salvation to the Gentiles through faith and observance of the Noahide Laws? With that understanding it is not surprising that Hillel acts as he does with the three heathen men as he explains to each what the Torah expected of them as observant Noahides.

Yeshua exceeds Hillel in that he desires that his followers, as Hasidim of the Nations (righteous Gentiles), do even more than the required minimum (Laws of Noah). Such is seen in Yeshua's positive statement: "do unto others as you would have them do unto you," which when observed, goes far beyond the minimum observance of the Seven Laws of Noah. Hillel thus lays the halakhic groundwork for the salvation of all mankind, and Yeshua concurs. Historically such an outreach to the non-Jewish nations was undertaken by Hillel and various Essenes in 20 B.C.E. in hopes of averting the destruction of the Temple as prophesied by Daniel.

THE "SECOND MISSION" TO THE GENTILES...THE GREAT COMMISSION OF MATTHEW 28

Yeshua would later command his Apostles to go into all the world and make disciples of all nations (the Gentiles). Inherent in this is the commandment for the Gentiles of all nations to adhere to the Laws of Noah as the basic minimum that G-d required for the gift of eternal life. It is in this message that a Gentile becomes a "G-d-Fearer", is immersed in Yeshua's name and identifies with his G-d, and is "Born-Again". He now is no longer a Gentile but is a "new-creation" and has become a citizen of the Israel of G-d. He has the option to later convert fully (circumcision) to the religion of Yeshua if he so desires.

Once a Gentile came to the understanding of the one true G-d, he would turn from idols and worship the G-d of Israel. Such Gentiles were the "G-d fearers", who accepted certain basic Biblical and Jewish obligations along with the Noachide precepts. According to this, idolatry, shedding of blood, and grave sexual sins were forbidden to Gentile believers. These were originally the Noachide precepts accepted also by the Synagogue on which the Gentiles were obliged. Let me remind you that we see in Acts 15 (at least 25 years after the death of Yeshua) the admonition for the Gentiles to adhere to Noachide Laws to be accepted in the believing community of Israel. James, the pastor of the Jerusalem Church, calls these Noachide Laws and Commandments "necessary" and mentions as well that they seemed good to the Messianic believers as well as the Holy Spirit in Acts 15. For me this puts Divine approval of the decision of the Church Council to impose these "necessary" things upon the non-Jews for acceptance into the Israel of G-d. It is logical that the Apostolic Church of Jerusalem should accept the view of the Synagogue on the conditions which Gentiles needed to fulfill in order to be saved. It can be easily shown that the fulfillment of other commandments of Judaism were not prohibited to Gentiles. On the contrary, the Noachide precepts were only seen as the minimum condition for Gentiles to be recognized as G-d-fearers. These were so understood by the G-d-fearers themselves, who were attracted to the Jewish way of life and accepted many Biblical and Jewish commandments without becoming full proselytes (Sabbath, festivals, etc). This was also the attitude of Christian "G-d-fearers", as may be seen from the Epistle to the Galatians; many of these Gentile believers wished to observe as many Jewish precepts as they could. It is evident that, while the leadership of the Mother Church decided to lay no burden upon the Gentile believers beyond the Noachide precepts, it did not object to their voluntarily observing more (Col. 2:16-17). Among the figures of the early Church who instructed Gentile Christians to observe more precepts than these essential ones was Peter, as we know from Paul's criticism of him for demanding that Gentiles live like Jews (Gal. 2:14). Rather than interpreting the apostolic decree as a minimum, Paul saw in the Noachide precepts the maximum obligations for Gentile Christians. Rather than Peter being incorrect, a more comprehensive understanding of the Bible reveals Paul to be incorrect (see Isa. 56 where G-d is pleased that the non-Jewish believer goes beyond the minimum).

SEPARATION IS INEVITABLE

The liberation of Gentile Christianity from the responsibility to the Biblical and Jewish commandments was a necessary step in order for Christianity to become a Gentile religion, separate from Judaism. It is impossible to know whether Paul was aware that by his "Gospel" he helped to achieve this aim in that he does not speak explicitly about the necessity of separating Christianity from its Jewish roots and he never says that this was his intention, but it is clear that in fact such was his historical role. Paul would later teach that the Jewish way of life in many aspects would have no validity for Christians, but the mother Church in Acts felt differently. For Christian "G-d-fearers" it was not easy to accept Paul's demand; the complete or partial rejection of Jewish precepts was for many Gentile Christian "G-d-Fearers" a painful operation. But if Christianity was to become a world religion it had to become "free from the Law". Only a Christian free from the law could separate himself from Judaism and embark upon a path that rejected the very tenants and foundations of Biblical Judaism; the religion of Yeshua.

FULL CONVERSION AND THE GER TZEDEK

With the rise of Christianity the teachers of Israel sought to distinguish between the heathens of the past and those Gentiles who were subject to religious values and morality. The very term "Ger Tzedek" (righteous gentile) stands for the gentile who turned from idols and made a sincere conversion to the faith of Yeshua in the first century. Such a person was respected and welcomed by the Jewish community. The "Ger Tzedek" submitted to circumcision, immersion, and brought a sacrifice to the temple. Upon completion of such, he was considered as "one born in the land." He had full status as a Jew.

PARTIAL CONVERSION AND THE GER HASHAR/GER TOSHAV

There are two other terms for righteous Gentiles: Ger Hashar, and Ger Toshav. In the Bible the Ger Hashar is seen as "the stranger in the gate", and the Ger Toshav was known as "the stranger in the land." These also accepted the faith of Israel (ethical monotheism) and were immersed, but withheld themselves from circumcision. Such "Righteous Gentiles" had a place in the world to come, and it was believed that in the age of the Messiah all Gentiles would come to recognize the one true G-d according to Zech 14:9.

LETS MAKE IT EASIER STILL SHALL WE?

Once the Ger Tzedek was accepted as a Jew, he was entitled to all the privileges that Jews born into the faith enjoyed. Such converts to Judaism were numerous before the rise of Christianity. Within Palestine and outside, wherever Jews came into contact with pagans, Judaism held a strong attraction. It was expected of the Gentile that given enough time, he would develop from the Ger Hashar to the Ger Tzedek (make a full conversion to Judaism). The later development of Christianity offered the attraction of monotheism and at the same time imposed fewer restrictions on its new adherents than did Judaism. Commencing with the fourth century, when Christianity became the official religion of the Roman Empire, Jews were restricted in their own worship and were no longer permitted to continue their missionary activity and we find the conversion of the Ger Hashar, Toshav and Tzedek dwindling. In spite of the peril to Jews and proselytes alike, we read throughout history of various instances where Christians joined the ranks of the oppressed Jews once they had been shown and taught the truth.

TRINITARIANISM AND NOAHIDISM...WHAT IS THE TRUTH FOR THE CHRISTIAN?

Judaism ruled that Trinitarianism is not to be considered an idolatrous practice if adhered to by a Gentile, whereas it would be so if practiced by a Jew. The above opinion was rendered by R. Jacob Tam; an outstanding twelfth century Tosafist and grandson of Rashi. R. Tam expressed such a concept as within the idea of "Shittuf" (belief in G-d the Father, along with an additional deity). Such a belief is permitted to Gentiles (Christians) without them being considered idolaters by Jews and Judaism.

Traditional Christians believe in the divinity of Yeshua, and many have even sought to convert Jews to this belief. This is not allowed for a Jew as it constitutes gross idolatry before HaShem. Gentile Christianity needs not make Jews idolaters by spreading their own corrupt theologies. In this regard we can find only two occasions where Yeshua is asking Jews to believe in him as the Son of G-d (notice I did not say as G-d the Father or G-d the Son):

- 1). When healing a blind man in John 9:35.
- 2). Before raising Lazarus from the dead in John 11:26.

A blind man was considered by the Talmud to be the equivalent of a dead person, and this had halakhic implications (a blind person was exempt from all the Commandments of the Torah). Thus he is exempt from the commandment requiring him to believe in only "one" G-d. It is believed that Yeshua is introducing an halakhic concept here, namely, that Shittuf (Trinitarianism) is permitted in order to save a Jewish life (both the blind man and Lazarus were considered dead, exempt from idolatry as understood by normal Judaism, and could now believe in Yeshua as G-d's Son for healing and life after death). For although the Talmud rules that a Jew must give his life rather than practice idolatry (murder and sexual immorality as well), Yeshua would have interpreted this to apply to actual idolatry (worship of sun, rocks, fertility cults, etc.), or at least a lesser form of it. Such a belief in a second deity is permitted to Gentiles in Judaism, despite the Noahide Laws and their ban on idolatry. The ban on idolatry in Noahidism accepts Shittuf (it allows the belief in Yeshua as G-d). Let me also note that the Messiah of G-d has a beginning and no end where as G-d has no beginning and no end. G-d created from Himself the Spirit of the Messiah before the foundation of the world to act as the redemptive aspect of G-d to man! This anointing has come upon many but on Yeshua I believe unlike any other.

At the same time we must remember that even some Christians do not interpret Yeshua's references to himself as the Son of G-d, as an allusion to his divinity or equality with the Father.

WHO WERE THE LOST SHEEP OF ISRAEL?

In Matthew 10:5 Yeshua informs us that he came to preach "only to the lost sheep of Israel." We can now understand that he wished his fellow Jews to accept Bet Hillel's view that Gentiles too merit salvation. Much Jewish suffering could have been avoided, including the Temple's destruction in the first century, had the Shammaites abandoned their hatred of the outside world and accepted Yeshua's message of love for G-d and your neighbor (the Gentile).

We can even see in Yeshua's statement to his disciples in Matt. 28:19 (the Great Commission), that following his death, they are to "make disciples of all the Nations (Gentiles).

In this we see Yeshua's love for the Gentile. Again Yeshua is negating the views of Bet Shammai (which had poisoned the people of Israel with hatred for the non-Jews (Gentiles) after Hillel's death), while actually confirming Bet Hillel's position that the Gentiles too merit that the message of salvation be given to them.

BIRD'S EYE VIEW OF EARLY CHRISTIANITY...A JEWISH FAITH

Such a restoration of the Early Church's Belief System as taught and handed down by Yeshua reveals to us what "true Christianity" is to be all about. Gentile converts to Yeshua's movement within Judaism were first taught the "Noahide Laws" which consisted of laws on idolatry, blasphemy, unchastity, bloodletting, robbery, eating the flesh of still-living animals, and courts of justice.

Every Gentile entering the Yeshua Movement was obligated to obey the Noahide Laws. In addition they adhered to the Ten Commandments. Besides remembering and keeping the Sabbath observance, they refraining from riotous living, they supported the Temple with the Temple 1/2 shekel tax (notice this is a "usage tax" and is not the tithe), and they observed and kept the Festivals of the Lord. They were not required to be circumcised, but they were required to observe the laws of Kosher and refrained from eating unclean foods in order to not become an obstacle that would prevent worshipping with the Jews and sharing Sabbath meals where they both partook of the Lord's Supper together, as well as share the Feasts and Festivals.

JESUS' TEACHINGS ON THE GENTILE'S SALVATION

The Noahide Commandments are the Commandments given by the Torah to the Gentiles (first given to Adam and later given to Noah), which according to rabbinic tradition and the First Church Council in Acts 15:17-19 and Acts 15:28-29 (which was headed up by James, the Lord's brother and head of the Jerusalem church) were given by G-d to Gentiles like Adam and Noah, that if obeyed, will be rewarded with eternal life! According to rabbinic teaching & Acts 15 (which Yeshua believed and would have agreed with himself), those Gentiles who observe these precepts are assured their share in the World to Come, regardless of what fanciful interpretations were later to be invented by both the Catholic & Protestant churches and most probably heard in your modern churches. Yeshua was and is a Jew. He never ascribed to Baptist, Methodist, Catholic, Assembly of G-d, Church of Christ, or Mormon church doctrine. He believed and taught the truth as received from his Father in Heaven.

The Christian must come to an understanding that the religion of Yeshua (Judaism) has always recognized two different religious codes:

1. the 613 Laws and precepts given to the Jews following their liberation from Egypt, and
2. the earlier Noahide system of legislation for all mankind.

DID YESHUA INTEND TO REPLACE OR ABOLISH JUDAISM AND START A NEW RELIGION?

The eighteenth century Talmudist Rabbi Jacob Emden wrote a letter that has been discovered which states:

"Yeshua never intended to abolish Judaism, but only to establish a new religion for the Gentiles based upon the ancient Noahide Commandments transmitted by Moses on Mount Sinai."

Let me say that Emden more correctly should have said "RE-ESTABLISH" for the Gentiles the religious foundations that had previously been given by G-d to the Gentiles since the Garden of Eden and Sinai. Emden stressed in his letter that Yeshua brought about a "double blessing" to the world, by strengthening the Torah of Moses and at the same time removing idolatry from the midst of the Gentiles. Unfortunately, Emden's thesis in the letter never gained a substantial following by fellow Jews. The most obvious reason would seem to be the frequent harsh statements made by Yeshua against the rabbis and Jews of his time (Matt. 23). This chapter in Matt. 23 has seldom been correctly interpreted by the Christian Church because the church, for the most part, lacks the facts & information concerning the historical, religious, and political background surrounding Yeshua's statements which are necessary to correctly understand such a chastisement of a particular "sect" within the Pharisees, and not the Pharisees as a whole! Yeshua was not condemning the Pharisee movement, for he was proud to be one, especially a Pharisee belonging to ## the School of Hillel. Yeshua was not replacing Judaism with Christianity!

Emden helps us understand the original intentions of Yeshua and Paul as he analyzes the beginnings of Christianity. According to the Jewish rabbi, Yeshua and his Apostles, which were later sent by Yeshua to the Gentiles acted entirely within the Halakhah (correct and accepted Jewish law) in re-creating and re-establishing the religion G-d had previously given to the Gentiles which was based on the Noahide Commandments (the basic seven Noahide Laws consist of prohibitions against idolatry, blasphemy, killing, stealing, sexual sins, eating the limb of a living animal (cruelty to animals), and the imperative to establish courts of justice). According to the Jewish Talmud and Tosefta, those Gentiles who observe these statutes are considered to be of the Hasidim (pious ones) of the Nations and merit a share in the World to Come. Even within the Alenu prayer which is prayed by Jews and "G-d-Fearers" every Sabbath, it states "May all inhabitants of the earth recognize and know....". This means the Gentiles. This prayer for Gentiles is another proof that the will of G-d is for Gentiles not to perish but have everlasting life. In the Mishnah (the Oral Law), in Pirke Avot 4.1 it states: "Every assembly that is for the sake of Heaven will in the end be established." Christian assemblies are for the sake of Heaven, yet I must sadly inform you that they have accepted "IN PART" the Noahide Commandments, but not totally! G-d had given them all to the Gentiles!

THE "FIRST" GREAT COMMISSION...NO...IT IS NOT WHAT YOU THINK

Yeshua and Paul were acquainted with the Essene authors and their Scrolls. Many passages in the New Testament bear striking similarity to the Scrolls (see my previous newsletter about Yeshua and the Secret of the Dead Sea Scrolls). A comprehensive overview of the writings and materials available to us today reveal the Essenes to have been extremely pious Jews who scrupulously followed the Torah (the instruction and teaching of G-d, more commonly called the "Law"), whereas Yeshua and Paul are by many portrayed incorrectly as having forsaken their Jewish origins and replaced the Torah with a new religion-Christianity. This never happened; at least not by Yeshua! At least this is the general picture one is presented with; and one will not be able to see through it without diligent study. But this premise goes against Emden's letter. A Christian should know that the Talmud records for us that Moses commanded the Jews to spread the knowledge of the Noahide commandments to all mankind! Did you hear that? G-d commanded Moses to spread the knowledge of the Covenant with Noah and its requirements to all Gentiles in the world. Judaism acknowledges this "Gentile Covenant for Salvation" as from G-d since the time of Mount at Sinai. The questions we have to ask ourselves is this:

- Does history record for us such an ambitious attempt to bring the Noahide Laws to Gentiles, and if so, who was behind it and when did it occur?"
- Were the pious Essenes the ones who attempted such a mission to the Gentiles in the generation preceding Yeshua's birth?
- Did Yeshua and Paul, through their ministries, follow in the Essene's footsteps and try to bring to fruition what the Essenes began in the generation before their birth?
- Where do the Gentiles correctly fit into the teachings of Yeshua and Paul?

As Christians, we must constantly search for the correct interpretations of such an event if we are to correctly understand the Bible and its message to the Gentile and his salvation.

WE NEED TO STUDY THE HISTORY OF THE CHURCH

A passage in the Jerusalem Talmud records for us:

"Menahem the Essene and 160 Essene disciples left the Jewish community"

(remember not all Essenes lived in & around the Dead Sea) "about 20 B.C. on a mission to the Gentiles to take the "world" the Noahide Covenant, thus assuring obedient and observant Gentiles a place in the World to Come."

This Menahem served as a vice-president of the Sanhedrin under the sage Hillel who was the Nassi (President of the Sanhedrin) some thirty years before Yeshua's birth. The Mishnah makes quite clear that Menahem subjected himself totally to Hillel's authority (who loved the Gentiles), thus establishing a link between the Essenes and Hillel (who was a conservative Pharisee). Also of importance is the link between the two camps (Essenes & Pharisees) in that they were both known as "Hasidim." Menahem the Essene left Hillel's Sanhedrin for his mission to the world and was then replaced by the sage Shammai (who did not like the Gentiles). Shammai succeeded him as vice-president, probably about 20 B.C., and the influences of Hillel began to be replaced with those of Shammai.

STILL MORE QUESTIONS THAT NEED ANSWERS

- Was Menahem forced out by Shammai and his followers?
- Did Hillel's disciples join Menahem in his mission to the Gentiles?
- Did later rabbis approve of Menahem's mission to the Gentiles?
- Did Shammai lend his support to the Gentile mission or did he discourage the Jews from being a light to Gentiles?
- In the time of Yeshua did the teachings of Hillel or Shammai have influence over the people of Israel and direct the course of the nation?
- Which of these two Pharisee schools supported Yeshua and which did Yeshua rebuke in Matt. 23?
- Was Yeshua against all the Pharisees?

THE STORMY RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN HILLEL AND SHAMMAI

The first disputes regarding the Oral law (that was passed down for some 1700 years from Moses at Sinai) took place at this time between the sages and students of Hillel and Shammai (beginning about 20 years prior to Yeshua's birth). Their respective schools (Bet Hillel and Bet Shammai) were to clash over 350 times on issues of the Oral Law during the next hundred years. Nor were these always minor disputes for even once the Zealots connected with Shammai massacred and killed many of the Pharisees. The issues between Bet Hillel and Bet Shammai went to the very core of what Judaism stood for (and what Yeshua stood for). One of the major areas of contention was Judaism's attitude toward salvation of the Gentiles.

Answer for yourself: What side would Yeshua agree with?

The Schools of Shammai and Hillel both accepted all of the commandments contained in the five "written" books of the Torah (Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, and Deuteronomy). But the written law of Moses is too brief to be applied to practical issues of everyday life, and it was accepted that G-d also gave an oral and more detailed tradition was originally given to Adam, then to Noah, and finally handed down to Moses at Sinai. The debates of Bet Hillel and Bet Shammai centered on this oral tradition.

This oral tradition was passed down by Moses and it was forbidden to be set to writing. It was this Oral Law that later caused controversy among the rabbis; especially Bet Shammai and Bet Hillel. Finally, out of fear it would be forgotten due to all the persecution of Judaism and the deaths of its leaders at the hands of Gentiles, the sages permitted it to be committed to writing. The first major works were the Mishnah (200 A.D.) and the Tosefta (4th century), followed by two Talmuds; the Babylonian Talmud and the Jerusalem Talmud (5th century). The Babylonian version is more popular than the Jerusalem Talmud. Also at this time, books of homilies known as Midrash began to appear. The two major commentaries to the Babylonian Talmud are those of Rashi and the Tosefta. Why did I mention these works? The Mishnah, Talmud and Tosefta are the works of primary interest and authority when researching the Jewish law and tradition that surrounded Yeshua and his teachings in the first century.

G-D CHOSE HILLEL'S INTERPRETATION FOR ALL TIME....A VOICE FROM HEAVEN

The School of Shammai came upon the Jewish scene 20 years before Yeshua's birth, and flourished for around 100 years. After the destruction of the Temple in 70 A.D., the seat of the Sanhedrin was relocated to Yavneh, where the Halachah (accepted interpretation of Jewish Law) of the School of Bet Hillel became once again the established Halachah (accepted interpretation for all issues of Jewish law). Also at this time it is recorded by the Rabbis that G-d, in a "bat kohl" spoke from Heaven and a Heavenly Voice was heard declaring the Law was to be from that time forward decided in favor of the interpretations of the School of Bet Hillel. Since that time all Jewry has accepted the teachings of Bet Hillel.

HOW COULD YESHUA REPLACE WHAT G-D APPROVED?

Now listen closely. Yeshua's debates with the Pharisees recorded in the New Testament were actually disputes with the Pharisees representing the School of Shammai and NOT the School of Hillel. Yeshua adopts the views of Hillel on "all" matters of halachah (interpretation) except on the matter of divorce, where he sides with the School of Shammai (strict interpretation). At the time of Yeshua the interpretations and teachings Bet Shammai were influencing Jewish life and institutions more than Hillel's, and it was this way for almost 100 years. Through Shammai's teachings Israel was "loosing her way." Hillel had died when Yeshua was 13-14 years old, and Hillel's influence in Israel was rapidly being replaced with the contemporary teachings of Shammai. Yeshua (who accepted and agreed with Hillel) and Shammai (and Shammai's many students) were to clash continually! The Shammai Pharisees (and not the Hillel Pharisees) were responsible for handing over Yeshua to the Chief Priest, and Sadducees and Romans for crucifixion, and this was a violation of Jewish Law. Couple this with the relationship the Shammaites had with the Sadducean Zealots in the priesthood, little wonder that the Chief Priests (Sadducees) capture Yeshua and hand him over to the Romans to be crucified. Notice that the Hillel Pharisees (whom the majority of the people supported and followed) had nothing to do with Yeshua's crucifixion (it was they who warned Yeshua to flee for his life in Luke 13:31). When you read Matt. 23 you cannot help but see Yeshua chastising the Pharisees; but what we fail to notice is that there were many sects within Phariseeism and Yeshua says "Pharisees who"....indicating that many were not to be included in his rebuke of the insincere Pharisees. Yeshua took odds with the Shammaite Pharisees, not the Hillel Pharisees!

The Christian Church's failure to understand this has led them to erroneously believe that Yeshua was rejecting his own religion rather than calling for repentance within it!

WE MUST UNDERSTANDING THE TIMES OF THE BIBLE IF WE ARE EVER TO GLEAN TRUTH

The Jewish people knew from ancient prophecy that their Temple in Jerusalem would be destroyed by the Gentiles (Dan. 9). Bet Hillel believed that reaching out to the Gentiles (since historically Israel had failed to be "a light unto the Gentiles" and had thereby violated the Second Tablet of the Law which carries the more severe punishment for its violation) was the correct approach to possibly avoiding the coming destruction. Hillel and his students maintained that righteous Gentiles merit salvation just as Jews do (Hillel, like Yeshua, accepted the teachings connected with the Laws of Noah), and it was their hope that a mission to the Gentiles could avert the destruction of their land and win G-d's approval, thus influencing G-d to repent of the destruction prophesied. Bet Shammai however looked down upon the Gentile world, holding that NOT even the most righteous Gentile could merit a share in the World to Come. Shammai believed the Gentiles deserved "hell" and no attempts should be made to alter their destiny. The Jewish people and their teachers have since declared Bet Shammai's views to be null and void, as did the Heavenly Voice toward the close of the first century (just the way G-d spoke at Yeshua's immersion). Shammai and the Bet Shammai were indeed the Pharisees and priests that Yeshua of Nazareth and Paul of Tarsus had to contend with within the pages of our Bibles, and not the Hillel Pharisees. Paul the Apostle's insistence that Gentiles be admitted into the early Messianic Jewish Church was based on Bet Hillel's position that righteous Gentiles merit salvation. Let us not forget that it is recorded that Paul had studied under Rabban Gamaliel the Elder, a grandson of Hillel where he received such instruction! Now you can better understand that the anti-Jewish passages contained in the New Testament were directed against the Shammaites, and not the Judaism which followed Bet Hillel, or even today which follows the instruction and interpretations of Hillel.

UNDERSTANDING YESHUA AND PAUL

Yeshua and his disciples, especially Paul, warned all men everywhere not to "destroy" the Torah of Israel. A Jew is not permitted to leave his Torah, for Paul wrote in his letter to the Galatians Chapter 5 (remember Galatians was written to Gentiles) "I, Paul, say to you that if you (writing to Gentiles) receive circumcision (along with immersion that makes you a Jew), the Messiah will do you no good at all" [the opportunity to become part of the Israel of G-d without circumcision will be available to you since it will be through Yeshua's ministry that the Laws of Noah, which did not require circumcision, were to be taken to the non-Jewish world. I will deal with the meaning of that last phrase in more detail in a future newsletter. But for now, Paul goes on to say "You can take it from me that every man (Gentile) who receives circumcision [conversion] (whether a Jew by birth or a converted Gentile) is under obligation to keep the "entire" Torah" (613) [this is simply because when a non-Jew underwent circumcision he was making "full conversion" whereby he would be obligated for the whole 613 Commandments anyway]. Paul is teaching us that a Gentile (like you and me) who is immersed in repentance and who is circumcised [makes conversion] is obligated to keep the entire Torah! Did you hear that?

Answer for yourself: What about Paul and his teaching that the Law is passed away? It must now be obvious that Paul never intended for that to be your understanding; he never said that! Our problem is that we misinterpret the teachings of Paul not having a proper background necessary to understand correctly what he is saying. Let us begin with what happens when we are "Born-Again".

WHAT DID "BEING BORN AGAIN" MEAN TO YESHUA? THEN SHOULD I NOT AGREE WITH HIM? JOHN 3 AS YOU HAVE NEVER SEEN OR UNDERSTOOD IT BEFORE

Before going on we must address a very important question: What happens when I am Born-Again? In answering this we must deal with a very important issue that is often overlooked. When a Gentile turns from idols, repents, and accepts the faith of the One G-d of the Universe, he identifies with G-d. As Gentiles we identify with G-d through the one he sent to reveal Himself ; namely Yeshua and his ministry which brought the non-Jews of the world the knowledge of G-d, Torah, and Israel. Sadly, however, by the time Yeshua came knocking on your door he had been completely altered whereby he no longer was a Torah observant Jew, but rather came dressed like Zeus and Constantine. As Christians you were taught that you were buried into the likeness of Yeshua's death, and raised in newness of life through identification with G-d through the mikvah bath (water immersion). Christians call it baptism. A more correct understanding is that the non-Jewish believer in G-d (in the act of repentance and faith) literally stands at his own Sinai, is immersed and repents of sin and begins a new life with G-d as did his Gentile forefathers (the Egyptians are a type and shadow of Ephraim, the other house of Israel) and says, like the Jews of old did, "All that the Lord has spoken we will do" (Ex. 19:8). Notice that the Bible say "all" the people said it at Sinai (this included the mixed-multitude of Gentiles and Jews together)! Included in that group were a mixed multitude of Gentiles along with Jews/Semites that teaches us a very important lesson for our lives. At Sinai both Gentiles and Jews/Semites confessed adherence to the Covenant offered by G-d. G-d had previously instructed that they "wash their clothes", which is an idiom for immersion in water of their bodies (this was their Born-Again experience with the G-d of Israel). This might be startling to you but the concept in the Gospel of John, chapter three, concerning being "Born-Again" is not the invention of Yeshua. Being "Born-Again" is a Jewish concept that has existed since the Garden of Eden and Adam. Now hear this...this immersion and repentance from sin is to be repeated throughout one's life. Examples in scripture that the children of Israel were "Born-Again" repeatedly (immersed and attained a new-heightened status before they met with G-d) are before each Sabbath, each Feast and Festival, following repentance of sin, and for a lady, after her menses on a monthly basis before she could return to her husband's bed. Yeshua was immersed repeatedly in his life, yet the only one recorded for us is the one immersion the day before he observed the Yom Kippur Festival (Day of Atonement). Being "Born-Again" is not a concept originated by the Gentile church. It is a Jewish concept! Amazing! As the repentant person entered into the immersion bath (this "watery womb" and "watery tomb") he would then emerge as if "Born-Again" from a watery grave and a watery womb (with a re-newed status before G-d). He is then considered a new creation (2 Cor. 5:17)! If you were Jewish you would have been instructed correctly concerning the mechanics of Biblical Immersion (being Born-Again) since you were a child, and would not have to be like many Christian Gentiles who have not had the truth concerning such an important doctrine, not to mention is resultant responsibilities of obedience to Torah. It is startling that such a Jewish concept is considered the backbone of the Christian faith and the Christian fails to have the correct understanding regarding immersion and being Born-Again as Yeshua understood it. As believers we should have understood it correctly from the beginning, which we have not. A Gentile entered into the watery tomb and watery womb and emerged, no longer considered a Gentile, the old things have passed away (his condition of being a Gentile), behold G-d made all things new (he now is a part of Israel)! He was now considered a citizen of the Israel of G-d! Upon emerging from the watery tomb in which he was "Born-Again" he had the status of a Jew. He became Israel! He was considered as if he had always been Israel, for he had no past and it was forbidden to bring up his past for it was as if he had always been Israel.

ARE YOU TRULY GRAFTED INTO ISRAEL OR NOT?

The Gentile, after turning from idols and repentance (as a sign of his faith in the One G-d of Israel), and after following immersion in the Mikvah (baptism), was grafted into Israel as Paul would later tell us. The repentant Gentile believer chose G-d and His Torah. He chose to become "chosen". Since he is Israel, then these commandments given to "Israel" now apply to the Gentile Christian who considers himself a follower of Yeshua, his teachings, and His G-d. Is that your understanding? It was Yeshua's understanding and still is his today. The tragedy of the matter is that the Contemporary Christian Church has not studied to know who they are. They are included in the House of Ephraim; they are Israel. The Commandments of G-d as seen in the Torah are for them, not just the Jew born in the land!

LET US BE SURE WE UNDERSTAND EACH OTHER

A "Gentile" is a term signifying a non-Jew, who is NOT a "son of the covenant" and is only subject to the seven Noachide Laws. Once a Gentile came to the understanding of the one true G-d, he would turn from idols and worship the G-d of Israel. These were the "G-d fearers", who accepted certain basic Jewish obligations along with the Noachide precepts. According to this, idolatry, shedding of blood, and grave sexual sins were forbidden to Gentile believers. These were originally the Noachide precepts accepted also by the Synagogue on which the Gentiles were obliged. Let me remind you that we see in Acts 15 (at least 25 years after the death of Yeshua) the admonition for the Gentiles to adhere to Noachide Laws to be accepted in the believing community of Israel (it was James as leader of the Jerusalem church who referred back to the Noahide Laws in addressing the question of Gentile salvation). It is logical that the Apostolic Church of Jerusalem should accept the view of the Synagogue on the conditions which Gentiles needed to fulfill in order to be "saved" and accepted in the "family of Israel". It can be easily shown that the fulfillment of other commandments of Judaism were not prohibited to Gentiles. On the contrary, the Noachide precepts were only seen as the minimal condition for Gentiles to be recognized as "G-d-fearers". These were so understood by the uncircumcised "G-d-fearers" themselves, who were attracted to the Jewish way of life and accepted many Jewish commandments without becoming full proselytes (Sabbath, festivals, Tallith, etc). This was also the attitude of Gentile Christian "G-d-fearers", as may be seen from the Epistle to the Galatians; many of them wished to observe as many Jewish precepts as they could. It is evident that, while the leadership of the mother Church in Jerusalem decided to lay no burden upon the Gentile believers beyond the Noachide precepts, it did not object to their voluntarily observing more (Col. 2:16-17). Among the figures of the early Church who instructed Gentile Christians to observe more precepts than these essential "Noahide" ones was Peter, as we know from Paul's criticism of him for demanding that Gentiles live like Jews (Gal. 2:14). Rather than interpreting the apostolic decree of Gentiles adhering to the Laws of Noah as a minimum, Paul saw in the Noachide precepts the maximum obligations of Gentile Christians. Rather than Peter being incorrect, a more comprehensive understanding of the Bible reveals Paul to be incorrect.

GET IT CORRECT PAUL ...OR DON'T TEACH IT AT ALL

Paul remarks in a letter to the Corinthians (1 Cor. 7) that the circumcised (Jews or converted Gentiles) should not remove the marks of circumcision, nor should the uncircumcised (Gentiles become Jews) circumcise themselves. Wait a minute. Paul contradicts himself (like a lot of preachers today). In Galatians 5 he says "if you Gentiles get circumcised" and then he says "don't do it", can't he make up his mind?

Answer for yourself: In Acts 16 Paul circumcised his disciple Timothy. Timothy was not a Jew was he?

Answer for yourself: If he was a Gentile why bother, right?

This contradiction of Paul is very puzzling.

Answer for yourself: Sadly many have incorrectly interpreted Paul as teaching that circumcision was abandoned with the coming of Yeshua, but was it?

Acts 16 is over 20 years after Yeshua and Paul is still circumcising!

Answer for yourself: We have failed to understand properly, so what is the clear truth of the matter?

Yeshua and his Apostles did not wish to destroy the Torah (Law) from Israel, G-d forbid; for it is written so in Matthew 5:17, Yeshua having said, "Do not suppose that I have come to abolish the Torah. I did not come to abolish, but to fulfill. I tell you this: So long as heaven and earth endure (do they yet exist today?), not a letter, not a stroke, will disappear from the Torah (the Law) until it is achieved. If any man therefore sets aside even the least of the Torah's demands, and teaches others to do the same (the majority of Pastors who preach the contemporary Christian message), he will have the lowest place in the Kingdom of Heaven, whereas anyone who keeps the Torah, and teaches others so, will stand high in the Kingdom of Heaven."

Bet Emet Ministries teaches Gentile and Jewish commitment and observance to the Torah, not because we desire to be "high" in the Kingdom of G-d, but because we love G-d and His Word, and would never think of destroying it by misinterpreting it or failing to study to arrive at the correct meaning of these truths for the people of G-d today.

It is therefore exceedingly clear that Yeshua never dreamed of destroying the Torah as have the majority of churches today that carry his name but substitute "another Gospel" for the true Gospel of Christ.

WHAT TO DO WITH TIMOTHY?

Paul does not contradict himself because of his circumcision of Timothy, for the latter was the son of a Jewish mother, and a Gentile father (Acts 16), and Paul knew that the child of a Jewish mother is considered a "full Jew", even if the father should be a Gentile. Paul thus acted entirely in accordance with the Halakhah (interpretation of Jewish Law) by circumcising Timothy. This would be in line with his position, following the Jerusalem Council of Acts 15 in 50 A.D., that no longer will Gentile believers be required to "become fully converted Jews" to be accepted into Israel; that the Gentile believers could now remain as "G-d-Fearers" and be accepted fully by the Jews (1 Cor 7, Acts 15). Gentiles no longer had to "convert" to Judaism and become "fully Jewish" for inclusion with equal standing within the Israel of G-d. The Gentiles as "G-d-Fearers" were to also be accepted as grafted into Israel (as demonstrated by Cornelius in Acts 10 who was a "G-d-Fearer" and who had not yet been circumcised). It is important to note that as a "G-d-Fearer", Cornelius yet observed the Noahide Laws, honored the Sabbath, and ate kosher (proper killing, dressing and preparation of animals intended for food as well as the removal of all blood). The baptism of Cornelius into the Holy Spirit as had been the Jews earlier in Acts 2 during the Festival of Pentecost was the evidence needed to convince the Jerusalem church that the middle-wall of partition was being removed between Jews and "unclean Gentiles". From this we learn that obedience to the Noahide Laws, without circumcision (to remain only as a "G-d-Fearer" and not fully convert to Judaism), was no longer to be a barrier between the "unclean Gentiles" and the Jews.

For example, table fellowship at the Shabbat (Sabbath observance) and the Festivals could now be shared together! This was understood from Peter's vision in Acts 10 concerning "unclean foods" which the Lord cleansed (symbolic of cleansing of men, and not the animals designated as unclean in Leviticus). Shammai's "Eighteen Measures" (one of which commanded Jews not to eat or enter into the homes of Gentiles-remember Shammai hated Gentiles) was overturned by G-d with the revelation at Cornelius' home. G-d corrects Shammai and those that followed his teaching. Peter's vision of the unclean foods represented the "unclean Gentiles" which G-d had cleansed; the vision was not meant to tell Peter that G-d had cleansed the "unclean foods". Let us not confuse this issue.

HOW DOES G-D VIEW YOU TODAY KNOWING THIS?

Timothy had to be circumcised since he was Jewish (because his mother was Jewish) and, therefore, was required to observe all the commandments of the Torah (613). Gentiles who observe the Noahide Laws are forbidden to observe "ALL" the Torah like a Jew is required, unless they desire to be circumcised and identify totally with the Jew and his Torah (full-conversion); if so then they are no longer "G-d-Fearers" but have become full-fledged Jews and undertake all the 613 Commandments. Following Immersion into Israel the Gentile is no longer considered a "Gentile", he is now Jewish (either partly or completely depending upon circumcision). All who become circumcised (converted) following immersion are bound by all the commandments (613). Understanding the immersion process is crucial for the Christian; once you are immersed in faith and repentance, and you identify with Israel, you emerged from that watery womb and tomb as a Born-Again "G-d-Fearer" who is grafted into Israel. You became "Israel" and are a Spiritual Jew (regardless if you were aware of it or not). You are not considered a "partial-Jew" unless you are uncircumcised. If you are circumcised you are then considered a "Full-Jew"!

Answer for yourself: Did you hear that?

The majority of you set in your churches thinking you are "Christians" and G-d's Word says you are "Jewish" (children of Abraham) and are the Israel of G-d. You have not replaced Israel, you became a part of Israel. You are obligated to observe the Torah (that part of the Law that refers to you according to your Covenant stipulations) and, because of your lack of study, you have let your unlearned pastors and teachers tell you repeatedly that you are "under grace" and "not under Law." You are under both! I just showed you that a proper understanding of immersion and the teachings of Yeshua & Paul tell you otherwise. Now, let me ask you as a Christian an important question.

Answer for yourself: Who are you going to believe; your pastor or Yeshua and Paul?

Answer for yourself: With such an obligation to the "Christian" who now becomes aware that he is either "part-Jewish" or "fully-Jewish" (Judaism is not a race but a religion; the religion of Yeshua) what are you to do concerning the Commandments which are addressed to you requiring your obedience to the Shabbat (Sabbath), Pesach (Festival of the Passover), Hag HaMatzah (Festival of Unleavened Bread), HaBikkurim (First Fruits), Shavuot (Festival of Pentecost), Rosh HaShannah (Jewish New Year), Yom Teruah (Festival of Trumpets), Yom Kippur (Day of Atonement), and Sukkot (Festival of Tabernacles)?

Surely you should want to begin to observe and keep them according to Scripture. Failure to do so is sin!

IS IT BEGINNING TO MAKE SENSE?

Christian scholars have assumed from certain passages in the Gospels that Yeshua wished to give a new Torah to take the place of the Torah of Moses. He could not do such a thing unless he sinned.

Answer for yourself: How could Yeshua have then said explicitly that he came only to fulfill it?

The truth of the matter is that Yeshua never came to abolish Judaism, but only to re-establish the religion for the Jews and the Lost Sheep of Israel (assimilated Gentiles from the captivity of Northern Israel). In the unique situation we find in the first century this referred from that time onward the faith that G-d had given them from the beginning-Noahidism! Nor was this religion new, but actually ancient; it being the observance of the Seven Commandments of Noah, which were forgotten purposefully by Shammai and his students in their bigotry toward the non-Jews. Such men and ideas were influencing the people of Israel in Yeshua's day; thus Yeshua came not for those who are well but those who need a physician and who are sick; sick with hatred for the Gentiles whom G-d loved and to whom He had called Israel to be a light unto to show them the Torah (the Noahide Laws). G-d had intended for the Gentiles to be redeemed all along. Yeshua came for the "lost sheep of the house of Israel"; who had lost their way and purpose for the truths that they had been entrusted with. These truths were not only for them, but the Gentiles as well. It is important to understand that as there were "people who were lost" in Israel, there were others like the Essene Menahem and the Hillel Pharisees who had not "lost their way" and needed little if any correction by Yeshua!

WHAT REALLY HAPPENED WITH THE GREAT COMMISSION?

Yeshua's Apostles, in fulfillment of the Great Commission of their master, established these Seven Commandments anew (Acts 15, Acts 21). However, those born as Jews (with Jewish mothers), or those Gentiles where were immersed and circumcised as "full-converts" to Judaism (Ex. 12:49; one law shall be to him that is home-born, and unto the stranger) are obligated to observe all 613 of the commandments of the Torah without exception.

Answer for yourself: Are you a circumcised Gentile Christian who has been immersed in Yeshua's name and "Born-Again" into Israel? Then that means you!

For the uncircumcised Gentile G-d reserved the Seven Commandments which they have always been obligated to be adhered to and fulfilled by non-Jewish believers. It is for that reason that they were forbidden pollution of idols, fornication, blood, and things strangled (Acts 15). Yeshua's Apostles also forbade them circumcision (to do so would mean full conversion) and the Sabbath observance (exactly like the Jews observed it). The mandatory observance by "G-d-Fearers" was similar, but not exactly alike the Jewish observance.

This may sound so different from what your traditional Christian message has been, but your Christian message is incorrect if it does not agree or line up with the Apostle's Doctrine. All of what I have shared with you is in accord with the law and custom of the Torah, as expounded by the Jewish sages, the true transmitters from Moses at Sinai, and understood by Yeshua of Nazareth in the first century (they sit in Moses' seat...listen to what they say). Our understanding today is incorrect if it violates the truths as Yeshua understood them. We do not know more about salvation than Yeshua. It was to the Hillel Pharisees Yeshua referred to in Matt. 23 who set in Moses' seat and to whom we are to listen for correct doctrine. We are not to follow the examples of any leaders if they do not line up with the Apostle's Doctrine of Acts 2:42. This teaching on immersion and conversion is Apostolic Doctrine as Yeshua taught his disciples, and any other interpretation other than his is NOT correct. We are not to follow any Pharisee's examples unless they live what they preach (that means the Pharisee Preachers of today who fail to teach and live the truth of Apostolic Doctrine)! Yeshua tells us not to follow them unless they agree with him! Good advice. This same admonition is given in Deut. 17:8 ff., where the authority to teach and lead the people were given to the religious leaders G-d put over the people of "Israel". These occupy Moses' seat.

IT IS TIME TO GET SERIOUS ABOUT WHAT WE LEARNED

Answer for yourself: Do the Baptists, Methodist, Catholics, Assemblies of G-d, or any other denomination or non-denomination occupy Moses' seat? No. The Catholic and Protestant denominations are far from being Jewish. Salvation is of the Jews according to Yeshua.

Answer for yourself: Do you dare tell him he made a mistake?

It was these Sages and Pharisees who said that it is forbidden to circumcise a Gentile who does not accept upon himself the yoke of "ALL" the Commandments. In America male babies are circumcised apart from the truths of G-d's Word (we are commanded to circumcise on the 8th day and no within the first 2-3 days of a newborn's life) and thus their circumcision would not apply. That means circumcision that does violate Scripture does not automatically make you a "full-fledged" Jew. You are still a "G-d-Fearer". Identification with Israel is by faith and free will. You must choose to stand at your personal Sinai and say to G-d "I will do all that you say".

Answer for yourself: Do you want to obey G-d? Do you want to honor His Name with your life?

Going to churches that teach error does not accomplish anything. It is bondage just like Egypt!

Answer for yourself: Have you ever been to Sinai? Will you ever go? Have you chosen to return to your Egypt of ignorance and false traditions and false religion that amount to idolatry?

The Sages likewise said that the Gentile is commanded NOT to "fully" observe the Sabbath as does the Jew (yet he is to remember and keep it). Acts 20:6 recounts for us the Gentile believers and how they were taught by Paul to remember and keep the Sabbath. It is here we find the Gentile Church keeping Jewish ordinances well over thirty years after Yeshua's death.

Answer for yourself: What would later change this pattern?

As far as the Gentiles ("G-d-Fearers") were concerned, they were not commanded to observe all the Torah (the 613 mitzvot). The Gentile "G-d-Fearers" did not have to accept all the 613 mitzvot and are not enjoined to observe all of the 613 commandments. However, it is completely different as far as Jews are concerned, for they became obligated to fulfill the Torah because G-d delivered them from the bondage of Egypt to be the people of His possession. Therefore they and their children became subject to it forever and so are those Gentiles who make full-conversions to Judaism.

LET US PUT IT ALL TOGETHER NOW

It should be easy to see that Yeshua and his Apostles never meant to abolish the Torah of Moses from one who is born a Jew. Likewise, did Paul write in his letter to the Corinthians (1 Cor 7) that each should adhere to the faith in which each was called. They therefore acted in accordance with the Torah by forbidding circumcision to Gentiles, according to Halakhah, as it is forbidden to one who does not accept the yoke of the commandments (all 613). They knew that it would be too difficult for the Gentiles to observe the Torah of Moses. Let us not forget that the Gentiles never had the Revelation of the Torah at Sinai, the Ark of the Covenant, the Tabernacle, the Two Tablets, the prophets, or the Temple & Tabernacle services as were given to Israel. The Gentile's only experience was that they were strangers from the Covenant promises of Israel, aliens for the commonwealth of G-d's people, without hope and without G-d in the world.

The rabbis thus took the Gentiles the revelation of G-d and instructed them not to be circumcised unless they wished to be fully converted to Judaism (this had no bearing upon immersion since it was required for "partial" as well as "full" conversion). It would suffice that the Gentiles observe the Seven Noahide Commandments, as commanded upon them through the Halakhah from Moses at Sinai. This was the minimum requirements for inclusion into Israel.

Rabbi Emden was correct; Yeshua brought a double kindness into the world. On the one hand, he strengthened the Torah of Moses majestically. Acts 24:20 states that many thousands of Jews were believers in Yeshua as Messiah in the first century and zealous for the Torah (Law); this was over 30 years after Yeshua's death and resurrection. The ministry of Yeshua helped return the "children of Israel back to their Fathers; the Patriarchs and their faith" and thus fulfill Malachi's prophecy.

On the other hand, Yeshua did much good for the Gentiles (provided they do not turn about his intent as they please, as some foolish ones have done because they did not fully understand the intent of the authors of the Gospels and epistles). Yeshua obligated his Apostles to fulfill the Great Commission by taking the Gentiles (as a minimum) the Seven Commandments of Noah so that they should not be as the beasts of the field and continue to live their lives as pagans and animals. He also bestowed upon them ethical ways, and in this respect he was much more stringent with them than the Torah of Moses. It is not necessary to impose upon Jews such extreme ethical practices, since they have been obligated to the yoke of Torah since Sinai. Israel took the oath at Sinai and are already trained in proper practice and nature of the Second Tablet of the Law (ethical monotheism and the horizontal relationships man-to-man). It would be for Paul to constantly correct, reprove, teach Apostolic Doctrine, and instruct the Gentiles in his travels since it was to his audience he would write "you are strangers from the Covenant promises, aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, without hope and without G-d in the world".

If Christians would study they would understand what I have detailed in this teaching. No longer would the Church erroneously teach to abolish the Torah of Moses and Yeshua. Such sin and foolishness would and should cease.

Because of these errant scholars, hatred has increased toward the Jews who are blameless of any guilt concerning Yeshua's death and proceed innocently to observe their Torah with all their heart (intellect), soul (dedication and commitment to action) and might (resources and property). The leaders of the Churches of Yeshua should study to learn correctly for themselves before they lead their people into sin and astray from the will of G-d for their lives. The Jew is the brother of the Christian. Ephraim (the grafted-in Gentile) and Judah make up Israel. As members of the Christian faith, how good and pleasant it might be if you would observe what was commanded to you by your first teachers, sent directly to you by Yeshua, with his message, and not the message that Roman anti-Semitism has created these last 2000 years.

THE SEVEN LAWS OF NOAH...AS SEEN BY RABBI MAIMONIDES...WITH COMMENTARY

The following, as delineated by Maimonides, is a detailed listing of the "subsets" of commandments contained in the laws of Noah. Notice, if you will, that some of the commandments are "-" (negative mitzvot) and some "+" (positive mitzvot). I listed them specifically as they were compiled by Maimonides in relation to both his listing of the "positive mitzvot" as well as the "negative mitzvot." Detailed study, understanding, implementation, and practice of such commandments will ensure you, the Gentile, of being a "Righteous Gentile" in the Olam Haba (the world to come). Faith without works is dead! Make your calling and election certain by using these laws of Noah as not only a plan for life, but as an assurance that your life is pleasing to G-d.

Oh, by the way, it is not as easy as it looks, for when you study, you find a wealth of information beneath each commandment. For instance, as stated earlier in this article, how many of you were aware that misappropriation of the tithe is considered by the rabbis not only to be stealing but murder as well?

Let us study to show ourselves approved! Shalom!

Having understood this article so far, it is easy for you to understand that in the eyes of many in the Gentile world, then, Gentiles who feel drawn to the Jewishness of Yeshua, and drawn to observe or participate in the Hebraic way of life are seen INCORRECTLY as Judaizing. However, Gentile believers in Yeshua, should be free to establish the Torah as a way of life that is pleasing to G-d (Romans 3:31). Utilizing G-d's commandments and the insight, wisdom and understanding of the Jewish Sages, to aid oneself in the process of sanctification, should not be viewed as Judaizing. The fear usually expressed is that Gentiles who make attempts at restoring their Hebraic roots are in danger of falling into legalism by trying to obey G-d's commandments. What most Gentile believers fail to realize is that Torah is not just laws and commandments, it includes the wisdom and instruction needed to live life pleasing to G-d. In addition, what a surprise when Gentiles learn that Torah has only 613 commandments, while the New Covenant, the so-called covenant of grace, places 1050 commandments on the Gentile believer. G-d has not abandoned the idea of law, but rather has provided the faith that leads to obedience (Romans 16:26). When a Gentile believer, establishes morals and ethics based on the Biblical values of the Torah, and implements social and spiritual ideals that are Hebraic in orientation, that is not Judaizing. If a Gentile chooses voluntarily to conform, not to the culture of the world system, but rather participate in the celebrations and customs that are both Jewish and soundly biblical, it is not Judaizing. Being bound to observance as a means of establishing self righteousness is far different from practicing meaningful biblical customs and festivals in order to celebrate G-d's righteousness.

To those in the modern Gentile Church concerned about the dangers of Judaizing after nearly 20 centuries of anti-semitic and anti-Judaic attitudes, we pose these questions:

- Is it Judaizing to understand the life and teachings of Yeshua in their historical and Hebraic context?
- Is it Judaizing to seek to reconstruct certain aspects of the first century Jewish milieu in order to properly understand the New Testament documents?
- Is it Judaizing to find personal fulfillment by adopting a perspective of G-d and History that emerges from the Hebrew prophets?
- Is it Judaizing to have an affinity for Jewish patterns of study, worship and celebration of life?
- Is it Judaizing to be participants in the promises, covenants and inheritance of G-d's Olive Tree? Is it Judaizing to bless and identify with Yeshua's people and the land of Israel?
- Is it Judaizing to establish the principles of Torah through the power of faith and the Spirit of G-d? Is it Judaizing to restore the Hebraic view of marriage and family at a time when the marriage institution is being destroyed?
- Is it Judaizing to be grafted into the Olive Tree, as a wild olive branch freely participating in the life giving sap of the root of the tree?
- Is it Judaizing to find ones spiritual identity and purpose in connection with the Olive Tree?

To each of these we would answer an emphatic NO!

THE VISION OF THE OLIVE TREE CONNECTION-BET EMET MINISTRIES

The present modern world is characterized by lawlessness. This lawlessness is directly attributed to the attitude that there are no absolutes. Convictions, principles and values are only relative. How is this possible in a country where the gospel/ has been proclaimed since its inception as a nation. Simply put, any gospel/ that declares that man has been saved by faith without at the same time declaring his obligation and responsibility to obey G-d's laws and commandments in the context of his sanctification is doomed to failure (Francis Schafer, The Great Evangelical Disaster). Gentile Christianity, particularly the Protestant tradition has promoted the theology of absolute freedom through the doctrine of justification by faith. However, freedom without any sense of law, obligation or responsibility leads first to lawlessness then violence and ultimately chaos. Any family, community or society where every man is free to choose what is right in his own eyes will end in conflict. Unity and harmony is maintained only when there are boundaries that are acknowledged and observed. The value of Torah, in the Hebraic perspective, is that it provides those boundaries, absolutes, values and principles which when followed lead men to life not death. The promise of the New [RENEWED] Covenant made to Israel, was not the abrogation of Torah, but the writing of Torah in the minds and hearts of men of faith so that they would do Torah and thus preserve the quality of life promised by G-d for themselves and their children. Since 1960 our culture has seen a 560 percent increase in violent crime, 400 percent rise in illegitimate births, a quadrupling of the divorce rate, a 200 percent increase in teenage suicide, and nearly half of all children live in single parent homes. But this is only the beginning of moral decay if our culture continues to reject the instruction of G-d...His Laws! It must begin with the revitalization of the Gentile Church. It must be revitalized, by regrafting itself in its Judaic root and restore the Hebraic view of morality, decency and integrity as defined in G-d's Torah. In the final analysis, it becomes a question of conformity and identification.

Answer for yourself: Does the Gentile Church continue to contextualize itself with the culture of the world and maintain the current traditional, nominal and unprincipled life-style that has resulted? Or do we identify with G-d's way of life as expressed in Torah?

G-d's way is designed to sustain and advance life, not escape or transcend it. G-d's way of life is anchored in the practical needs of man and it is fully responsive both to his instincts and his aspirations. G-d's way is a devotion to morality, decency and integrity. The source of this devotion is G-d himself. The motivation is love for G-d and man who is created in the image of G-d.

CONCLUSION: THE OLIVE TREE AND THE CHRISTIAN'S PLACE AS BEING GRAFTED INTO THE VINE

Although the foundation of G-d's house was Judaic [Hebraic thought and culture], it has been constructed with primarily Hellenistic [Greek thought and culture] building materials. The question that must be asked is whether once the house has been built what do we do? Do we just add on to the existing structure as so many do? Do we refurbish the interior and the exterior or do we tear down the house and build again upon the foundation laid by G-d? Many say it is impossible to turn the clock back and restore the full Jewish roots of the early Kingdom Movement of Yeshua to the Gentile Church. They are convinced that the Gentile Church is so De-Judaized and that it is such a product of the Gentile world and culture that it can never be completely reformed. Although there are many obstacles, the primary one is ignorance. That is where we must begin. There are sufficient areas where the Gentile Church has neglected its Jewish heritage to its own detriment. It is these areas that must be initially addressed and the proper Hebraic teaching offered.

IDENTIFYING WITH OUR JEWISH ROOTS

As one looks at the Gentile Church, it becomes obvious that the Church suffers from an identity crisis. We simply do not know who we are. Although many proposals as to our identity have been offered over the last 2000 years, we are unable and unwilling to agree on which movement, what denomination or schism best identifies our relationship to G-d and each other. Not knowing who we are has led to the insecurity of not knowing what we believe. Our faith and practice has been redefined time and time again, only to be redefined by cultural standards which defy accurate historical understanding. We need to refocus upon Paul's analogy of the Olive Tree. We must accept that apart from the root of the tree we have no hope of identifying ourselves. History has taught us that if we continue to sever ourselves from the Olive Tree we are subject to our own imaginations, ideas and conclusions as to what our faith and practice should be. But if we will restore ourselves to the Olive Tree, then we will find our true identity, the identity that G-d intended for engrafted [believing] Gentiles. We will find continuity with the Patriarch Abraham and the Jewish people, with the Jewish prophets, the Jewish Messiah, and the rich heritage and instruction of the Jewish Sages. However, one cannot approach the subject of returning to our Judaic root in a purely academic manner. One may begin there, but it must evolve into something deeper within the inner man. This has been described as having a Jewish heart. It is a personal, living fire burning within (Jeremiah 20:9). It includes a profound and abiding appreciation for Hebraic thought and culture, a revelation that one's deepest spiritual identity is with a Jewish Lord and that salvation is from the Jews (John 4:22). It requires the repentance of pride and arrogance which has for nearly 2000 years caused barriers to be built between the Olive Tree and cheap imitations. Mankind is naturally stubborn and has an affinity for prejudice. No one likes to admit they are wrong, for it takes much more moral courage to face historical and theological truth, than to maintain the status quo. However, we must repent and be revitalized in these last days before the coming of Messiah.

The general condition of the Gentile Church can be likened to the soil of Israel in the month of September. During the hot summer months the land receives no rain. By fall the ground is hard packed and parched, the roots of vegetation begin to wither. This lifeless setting anxiously awaits the early Fall rains to revitalize the withered roots and to enable the hard ground to be broken and become productive again (Hosea 10:11-12). In the same way, the Gentile Church is in need of revitalization. Its roots long for reviving. But the drought of pride, arrogance and self-sufficiency make it almost impossible for this to happen. The roots of the Olive Tree run deep, they are able to provide the nourishment and stability the Gentile branches need for abundant life.

There are many terms used today to identify Gentiles who have come to faith in G-d through the legacy of Yeshua. Historically, they were identified as Christians in Antioch as recorded in Acts 11:26. They were also identified as Nazarenes in Acts 24:5 which in Hebrew is Notzrim. In addition they were called followers of the way (Acts 9:2; 19:9,23; 22:4; 24:14). Perhaps a modern term which would to some degree distinguish the cultural and nominal religion known today as Gentile Christianity, would be Messianic Gentile. A Messianic Gentile is one who accepts the Biblical concept of the coming of G-d's anointed messenger to implement the Kingdom of G-d on the earth. Today, traditionally most non-Jewish believers maintain a faith in the Messiahship of Yeshua, and claims to be his disciple [talmidim] and thus identifies with his Jewishness. Tragically this "religious belief system" is hollow and devoid of so much truth and facts pertaining to the true Jewish prophecies it is not my intent in this article to address the matter. Let it suffice to say that one day the Messiah will come and the true Jewish Scriptures will be fulfilled. Then we shall know his name. But before that will ever happen the Christian need to regain a sense of need for restoring the Jewish roots of his faith and practice since he practices, knowingly or unknowingly, a form of "Replacement Religion" which is offensive to both G-d and His anointed.

AS GENTILES WE MUST UNDERSTAND THE ROLE OF THE TORAH

As talmidim [disciples] of Yeshua our view of Torah must be restored to reflect his view of Torah:

Do not think that I came to abolish the Torah or the Prophets; I did not come to abolish, but to fulfill [To bring to a greater understanding] For truly I say to you, until heaven and earth pass away the smallest letter or stroke shall not pass away from the Torah, until all is accomplished. Whoever then annuls one of the least of these commandments, and so teaches others, shall be called least in the kingdom of heaven; but whoever keeps and teaches them, he shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven. (Matthew 5:17-20)

Woe to Torah-teachers [scribes] and P'rushim [Pharisees]! You pay your tithe of mint, dill and cumin; but you have neglected the weightier matters of the Torah justice, mercy and trust. These are the things you should have attended without neglecting the other matters of Torah. (Mat.23:23)

The Torah-teachers [scribes] and the P'rushim [Pharisees] sit in the seat of Moses [meaning they have authority to determine how to apply the Torah in specific instances] So, whatever they tell you, take care to do it. (Matthew 23:2,3)

Gentile Christianity hardly knows what to do with Torah or how to fit it in with the New Testament documents. The most urgent task of theology today is develop a proper perspective of Torah. In the last thirty years, Christian Theologians have made serious and important efforts to correct the misunderstanding of the Torah (W. D Davies, Paul and Rabbinic Judaism, Philadelphia: Fortress Press, 1980; Daniel P. Fuller, Gospel and Law: Contrast or Continuum, Grand Rapids: Eerdmans, 1980; Hans Huebner, Law in Paul's Thought, Edinburgh: T T Clark, 1984; E. P. Sanders, Paul, and the Law and the Jewish People, Philadelphia: Fortress Press, 1983).

The need is so great because Gentile Christianity, with its anti-Jewish bias, misunderstood many of Paul's writings and concluded that the Torah is no longer valid. In misunderstanding the usefulness of Torah, it created a major impediment to a clear understanding of its faith and caused a barrier to be built between Gentile Christianity and the Jewish people. Sadly because of this the Laws of Noah, properly understood as the non-Jews' Covenant responsibilities before G-d, are either ignored or never known...that is until we die and find out our religious "denominational" belief systems were wrong!

An answer to the fundamental question: "Did the ministry of Yeshua end the law?", must be sought. Consider Romans 10:4, which states in a typical translation, For Christ is the end of the law for righteousness to everyone who believes. Consequently, because of this passage alone, most Gentile believers conclude that Christ [Jesus as believed to be the Messiah by most Gentile Christians] terminated the Torah. However, the Greek word translated "end" is "telos" which does not mean termination but rather the goal or purpose of something. The attention to and faith in the Law and the Commandments of G-d is the goal and purpose toward which the Torah aims, the logical consequence and result of observing the Torah out of genuine faith, as opposed to trying to observe it out of legalism in order to "earn" eternal life by obeying the Law without every sinning which is impossible.

An answer must also be sought that will bring understanding to the terms "under the law and works of the law". Most of Gentile Christian theology concerning the Torah is based on a misunderstanding of the two Greek phrases found in Paul's letters. The first is upo nomon, it appears ten times in Romans, 1 Corinthians and Galatians, and is usually translated under the law. The other is erga nomou, found with minor variations 10 times in Romans and Galatians, translated works of the law. Gentile Christian theology usually takes the first to mean within the framework of observing the Torah and the second one acts of obedience to the Torah. This understanding is wrong! Paul did not oppose the observing of Torah, which is evidenced by the fact that even though he believed in Yeshua as Messiah, he still maintain his Torah observance as a Jew (Acts 16:3, 18:18; 21:20-26, 20:16). We should understand erga nomou as legalistic attempts to observe particular Torah commands, and upo nomon as any subjection to a system that results from perverting Torah into legalism. It is important to note that in context where upo nomon is found, there is a clear element of subjection and oppressiveness that comes from legalistic observance. But in 1 Corinthians 9:20 he does not use erga nomou when referring to his relationship with Christ, there it is ennomos Chnstou or legally bound to Messiah.

Galatians 3:10-13 also has presented numerous stumbling blocks to the Gentiles having a proper understanding of the status of the Torah. A proper Hebraic translation should help clear the intent of Sha'ul:

For everyone who depends [for salvation] on legalistic observance of Torah commands [erga nomou-the LAW] lives under a curse, since it is written, "Cursed is everyone who does not keep on doing everything written in the scroll of the Torah." [Deuteronomy 27:26] Now it is evident that no one comes to be declared righteous by G-d through legalism [nomos] since 'The person who is righteous will attain life by trusting and being faithful' [Habakkuk 2:4]

Furthermore, legalism [nomos] is not based on trusting and being faithful, but on a misuse of the text that says, 'anyone who does these things will attain life through them,' [Leviticus 18:5]. Jesus' death, in a certain way, delivered believers from the curse (the curse is that the soul that sins..it shall die) pronounced in the Torah by becoming cursed on our behalf (he died for us); for the Tanakh says, "Everyone who hangs on a stake comes under a curse." [Deuteronomy 21:22-23]

This is address in other articles in this website.

The curse of the law is not the curse of having to live within the framework of Torah, for the Torah is itself, good and holy. Nor is it the curse of being required to obey the Torah but lacking the power to do so. Rather it is the curse pronounced in the Torah itself for disobeying it. The point is that if anyone, Jew or Gentile, uses the Torah in a legalistic way in order to establish their own self-righteousness, then the curse will apply. For Paul such an approach to the Torah is already disobedience. In the Tanakh [Old Testament] obedience is required, but it is always to emerge from faith (David H. Stern, Messianic Jewish Manifesto Jerusalem: Jewish New Testament Publications, 1988, pp. 125-146).

Restoring a more proper understanding of Torah and implementation of its principles in the life of Christian believers will be a major ingredient in defining who Gentile believers are in the context of the congregation of the Olive Tree of Israel.

MAIMONIDES AND THE MISHNAH TORAH...THOUGHTS ON THE LAWS OF NOAH

Maimonides, in his epic work Mishnah Torah, in the Laws of Kings 9:1, teaches us concerning the Laws of Noah:

"Six precepts were commanded to Adam:

- 1. The prohibition against worship of false gods.
- 2. The prohibition against cursing G-d.
- 3. The prohibition against murder.
- 4. The prohibition against forbidden sexual relations.
- 5. The prohibition against theft.
- 6. The command to establish laws and courts of justice.

To Noah G-d added:

- 7. The prohibition against eating the flesh from a living animal.

Thus, there are seven Mitzvot" (commandments).

Again quoting from the Law of Kings 8:10 he states: "Our teacher Moshe (Moses) was commanded by G-d to compel all the peoples of the earth to accept upon themselves the laws given to the descendants of Noah."

Again quoting: "This obligation, to teach all the peoples of the earth about the Laws of Noah, is incumbent upon every individual in every era. The Jews must serve as "a light to the nations" (Isa. 42:6) teaching them (the Gentiles) the Seven Mitzvot (laws) and instructing them in proper behavior...Similarly, the Chatam Sofer (Choshen Mishpat, Responsum 85) writes that it is a mitzvah (commandment) to guide the Gentiles in the service of G-d."

For whatever reason, teaching Gentiles the universal laws of the children of Noah has not been practiced in earnest since the days of the Second Temple. During the long exile of the Jewish people among the Christians and the Moslems, who both falsely claim to be the legitimate heir to the title "the chosen people of G-d", the Jews experienced extreme persecution from both Christians and Jews for observing the truth of their own Torah. Even more so would the Jews have suffered persecution if the Jews had hounded the Gentiles and shared with them the truth of the Torah which was, in reality, the responsibility of the Jew. Now that HaShem (G-d), in His mercy has returned the Jewish people to their homeland, we again find the Jewish people have the strength to take on the Gentiles and compel them to give up their idol worship religions and purge Christianity of its paganism. This might not sound like the most liberal of "live and let live" philosophies. But nowhere does Torah teach us to "live and let live". The Jewish people, as well as Gentile "G-d-Fearers" (Acts 10) who have come to the truth concerning the faith once given to the saints, have an obligation to "shine the light" of HaShem's (G-d's) truth on error and deception. If this means we have to expose the falsehoods of the world's false religions, then we are obligated to do so. At no time more so than in this generation are there so many Gentiles who have left their former religions and are seeking the real truth. Where will they turn? We, both Jews and Gentile "G-d-Fearers" who have come to the faith of Yeshua, instead of a faith-in Yeshua, have been given this opportunity in our day and time to fulfill our obligation as teachers and "priests", to teach other Gentiles the experiential truth of the one and only G-d! This we do in preparation of the coming of Mashiach (Messiah). One of the groups leading this great effort are the world-wide sh'li'him (disciples) of Lubavitch. I support and applaud their endeavors.

Isaiah 42:6 calls G-d's people to be a light to the nations (Gentiles). Today, the Gentiles are embedded in deceit and false teachings in the majority of the Christian churches of our land. We, who understand and practice the faith of Yeshua, both Jews and "G-d-Fearers", must be a light to the nations of the world and the Christian church. This applies particularly to the present age, where there is far greater communication between Jews and Gentiles than every before. Many Jews and Rabbis are taking advantage of this phenomenon. We, as repentant, teachable, and enlightened Christians, must observe our obligation and engage other Gentiles, in heated debate if necessary. Halakha (proper interpretation of the Torah-the teaching of G-d) demands that we go on the offensive and compel the Gentiles to abandon their idolatry. This is not an option; this is Halakha! Rather than be influenced by these paganized Gentiles that comprise the majority of contemporary Christian churches of today, we must utilize our freedom of communication to convince the Gentiles to accept their Seven Mitzvot (categories of commandments).

LET US LOOK AT THE SEVEN MITZVOTH..THE SEVEN COMMANDMENTS

"The Seven Mitzvot are by no means a narrow field of study. Rabbi Meiri (Sanhedrin 59A) states that most elements of the Torah are included within them (Are you not surprised?). For example, in order to observe the prohibition against the worship of false gods correctly, one must become aware of G-d's unity. Accordingly, a number of contemporary Sages have suggested the translation of certain basic Chassidic and Kabbalistic texts into English with the intent that they be studied by Gentiles." My own experience has taught me that when Christians are exposed to the true meanings of the words of our Bibles, as understood in their original language, original culture, and with a correct historical understanding, many quickly abandon their false beliefs and began to repent and "do" what the Bible really says and commands. It is a shame so few Christians study the Bible in the original languages today; the fruit of such a failure guarantees error, deception, false doctrine, idolatry, and the practice of robbery of truth from G-d's people within the Churches that bear G-d's name no less!

SEFER MITZVAH HASHEM: THE BOOK OF THE COMMANDMENTS OF G-D

It is forbidden for a Jew to cause a Gentile to violate one of the seven commandments of the children of Noah, because it is written, "You shall not place a stumbling block before the blind" (Lev. 19:14) therefore it is appropriate for all Israel to be aware of them. This is good advice to the Christian Church as well. Therefore I am writing down the seven laws of the children of Noah. All of them are to be found in Sanhedrin 56, and in the Mishnah Torah, Laws of Kings, chapters 9-10.

Law #1: The Gentile is warned not to practice idolatry.

RaMBaM (Maimonides) clearly writes in the Laws of Idolatry, Chapter 9, Halakha 4 that Trinitarian Christianity is idolatry. This means that the Jews, as well as Monotheistic Christians (of whom there are too few!) have the obligation to go on the offense and (lovingly, if possible) guide the Christian population to recognize their hollow inheritance, the actual inception of this Gentile-Pagan idea into a Jewish faith, and the truths about the Council of Nicea where this idea gained acceptance in 325 C.E. in protests of the majority of "Christianity" at that time. It is time to come back to G-d in truth.

In my personal opinion, I believe that most Christians have "their hearts in the right place," it is their heads that have been "tossed to and fro" by such false doctrines.

We must not place a stumbling block before the blind and allow this to continue. We are commanded by Halakaha to stand against such false teachings and reveal the truth to all nations.

Law #2: The Gentile is warned not to curse G-d.

If this is violated, one is guilty. This is true whether one cursed G-d using His Name or one of the terms used to refer to Him. According to the Holy Zohar (III, 273A), "HaShem (G-d), Torah, and Israel are one." In my opinion, the one who cursed the Torah, either the Oral Torah (Oral Law) or the Written Torah (Written Law) violates this commandment. Many a Gentile, violates this commandment, and is not even aware of his sin. While alleging love for G-d, the majority of Gentiles in the Christian churches of today express great contempt towards the Talmud and Judaism. We fail to realize that the Talmud is the embodiment of the Oral Torah (Oral Law), given at Mt. Sinai and often spoken of by Yeshua in the New Testament. Being that HaShem (G-d) and His Torah are one, therefore the Gentile who curses or otherwise maligns the Talmud and the Jewish religion is guilty of violating this commandment, the same as if he was cursing G-d. But even more damaging, if possible, is the sin and guilt incurred by the Gentile Christian who believes and espouses that the New Testament has replaced the Old Testament (Torah). Never was such a more damnable doctrine devised than the one which denigrates the Old Testament, and teaches that the New Testament has replaced the Old Testament. Along with this evil Replacement Theology, as held by the majority of the Christian churches today, is the added guilt that we have violated the law of Noah in this regard, for G-d and Torah are one. How can we replace G-d with such a substitute? Therefore, the Christians who believes and espouses or maligns the Old Testament (the Bible Yeshua used) is guilty, the same as if he was cursing G-d.

Law #3: The Gentile is warned not to commit "premeditated" murder.

If a Gentile kills another, even a fetus in its mother's womb, he is subject to capital punishment as far as G-d is concerned. Abortion is defined as murder by universal law. Therefore those who perform abortions have the legal definition as murderers. Because of the failure of our politicians as well as many of the ministers of this land we have allowed "pro-choice" to replace the sanctify of life in our country. Our only recourse is repentance, confession, and an contrite heart as many need forgiveness in this area of their lives. Glory be to G-d that He is merciful and forgiving.

Even more startling, the rabbis teach that if you misuse the tithe, or fail to tithe, or incorrectly tithe, you are not only guilty of stealing from G-d and His people, but such sin is considered murder as well as it leads to the demise of G-d's people. And I dare say that I have not as of yet found one church in this land that teaches their people to tithe correctly. We address this terrible problem at other places on this website. Are you your brother's keeper? G-d considers that you and I are!

Capital punishment for murder is a commandment of G-d. G-d may have ordained this as a deterrent or for some other reason. One thing however is clear, we cannot second guess G-d's Divine morality. Not all of our states or our courts today may not follow G-d's commandments in this area, and we may interpret their leniency and grace as G-d's will, but to do so violates G-d's Word. We have been lulled asleep for the most part as Christians today because of the lack of study of G-d's word, and we lean upon our own understanding in these areas. There is a way that seems right with man, but the end-result is not of G-d.

Law #4: The Gentile is warned not to partake in forbidden sexual unions.

These are forbidden relations that a Gentile is warned not to violate: one is forbidden to have a sexual affair with one's mother, the wife of one's father, a married woman, the sister of his mother, and a member of the same sex (homosexuality) and an animal. Specifically this means a man with another man. Homosexuality is thus considered a crime against the universal laws of nature according to the Laws of Noah. On an interesting note, lesbianism is not clearly pointed out in this regard. Even in Jewish Law, whereas lesbianism is absolutely forbidden, its penalty is less than that for homosexuality.

One would be guilty of this sin in relationships with one's mother even if she was raped by his father, or if his father had relations with her only once. Regardless, she is his mother. Regarding the wife of one's father, one is guilty even after the death of one's father. Regarding a married woman, one is not guilty until one has relations with her in the natural manner after she has been intimate with her husband. However, a woman who is engaged or who has performed a marriage ceremony but who has not yet been intimate with her husband, one is not guilty over, for it is written, "and she has been intimate with her husband." (Ber. 20:3). All this refers specifically to a male Gentile and a female Gentile.

If however a male Gentile has sexual relations with a female Jew, whether in the natural way or in an unnatural way, he is guilty. If the female Jewess was engaged, the Gentile (who has relations with her) is stoned to death as would be a Jew. If the Gentile was to have sexual relations with a Jewess after her wedding ceremony, but prior to her being intimate with her husband, he is executed by hanging as would be a Jew. If the Gentile has relations with any other Jewess who is not a virgin, the penalty is death by decapitation, as it would be if the Gentile violates a married Gentile woman. The Gentile who has relations with a member of the same sex or with an animal is guilty regardless if the act was performed with an adult or child.

Law #5: The Gentile is warned not to commit theft.

There is no difference between stealing from a Gentile or stealing from a Jew. One who cheats or steals money, kidnaps someone (steals a life), does not pay due wages, or fails to pay due wages promptly, etc....even a worker who takes a lunch break when he should be working; all of these are guilty of violating this law of Noah. All of these are to be included in the definition of a thief. One is guilty of even the slightest monetary amount. If a Gentile steals something of the least monetary value, and another Gentile comes along and steals that from him, they are both liable.

Law #6: The Gentile is warned not to eat a limb from a living animal, whether it be domesticated or wild.

When an animal is slaughtered, even after its wind pipe and jugular vein have been severed, all the while that animal kicks, its flesh and meat which has already been removed for "food" are forbidden to the Gentile as the "limb from a living animal". One is guilty for this whether it be a domesticated or wild animal, clean or unclean. Again we see G-d's concern for all forms of life since it, in the final analysis, is the Divine spark that gives life to all things. It goes without saying inherent in this commandment is compassion at its very core.

Law #7: The children of Noah have been commanded regarding judges.

Gentiles are required by G-d to place judges and magistrates in each and every town so as to make judgments regarding the six commandments listed above. These Gentile courts must warn the people. A Gentile who violates one of these laws is executed by the sword (decapitation). It is for this reason that all the inhabitants of Shechem were subject to the death penalty. Shechem stole Dinah from the House of Jacob. Everyone in town saw and knew what he did, yet no one judged him or held him accountable for his actions.

A Gentile can be executed on the word of one witness, one judge, without warning, and by evidence given by a relative. It is this section of Halakha that justifies Baruch Goldstein taking lives in the Hebron mosque. Some within the Moslem population (Gentiles) of Hebron have continually expressed its hatred of Jews and the inhabitants of the town have committed and have been sympathetic to the committing of acts of violence against Jews. Since that town of Hebron has not established judges to punish the anti-Israeli perpetrators of violence and terrorism, the entire town therefore became collaborators in the guilt of the perpetrators. The entire population therefore become subject to collective punishment. Baurch Goldstein acted as the single witness to this fact. He judged by what he saw, and acted as an executioner and in total compliance to the letter of the Torah. As unpopular as it might be by modern Gentile moral standards that have replaced the Torah with "grace alone", Baruch Goldstein was acting in compliance with the written will of G-d in the Torah (negatively called today "the letter of the law"). Let us never forget we must have an authority, and such is the Torah; it sits in judgment upon us, we do not sit in judgment upon it by erroneously applying our emotions or our experience upon it! Goldstein executed righteous justice, based upon the Bible, on a guilty population. This is the correct view according to the Torah (Law of Moses) and the universal laws of Benei Noah and the covenant of Noah, no matter what man's courts may decide today which do not follow G-d's Torah!

AN IRONIC PARADOX

Just the opposite of what is taught today did Yeshua accomplish on the Cross. Instead of ABOLISHING THE LAWS, HE REALLY PROMOTED THE LAW (THE LAWS OF NOAH TO THE GENTILES [through the Great Commission whereby his followers took the Laws and Covenant of Noah into all the world] although not realized in full at the time of Yeshua's death, but UNDERSTOOD COMPLETELY BY JAMES (HIS HAND-PICKED PASTOR) AT THE ACTS 15 CHURCH COUNCIL IN 50 A.D.). It would take 20 years for it to happen, but when it did, the flood-gates were opened for Gentile inclusion and acceptance into the Israel of G-d.

Now, in way of review, let us read these Scriptures, NOW CORRECTLY TRANSLATED AND UNDERSTOOD, LEAVING OUT THE ADDED WORDS:

15 Abolishing the ENMITY; (the hatred and opposition to the Law, the Commandments, and the Ordinances), through His own flesh, in order to create in himself one new man from the two; making peace,

16 That would reconcile both in ONE BODY TO YAHWEH through the sacrifice...having KILLED THE ENMITY through himself.

Answer for yourself: Since Yeshua' death, in a rather ironic way as mentioned above, abolished the hatred and opposition toward the Law which was held by non-Jews since forced circumcision of adult males was made mandatory before they could come to G-d and would be accepted by the Jews of the first century, then why do you most likely have such opposition toward the Law in your belief system or hear it preached by multitudes of preachers today?

Because that is all you have every heard and have not studied the subject for yourself. Neither has your preacher!

Ephesians 2:15-16 NOW AGREES perfectly with all the other Scriptures of Yahweh, which command His People to Keep His Laws. In Romans 8:6-7 we again read about ENMITY and Yahweh's LAW, which says:

6 For to be CARNALLY MINDED is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace.

7 Because the CARNAL MIND is ENMITY AGAINST-bitterly opposed to-YAHWEH: for it is not subject to the Law of Yahweh, nor indeed can be.

Answer for yourself: Are preachers who teach the LAW has passed away considered carnally minded by G-d? Sure are!

The writings of Paul in Ephesians 2:15-16 and in Romans 8:6-7 are in perfect accord with his writings in Romans 3:31, which says:

Are we then doing away with the Law through the faith? BY NO MEANS! Rather, we ESTABLISH THE LAW!

The Apostle Shaul would never "say" that Yahweh's Laws were abolished! It was his teaching, that: "The Law is HOLY, and the Commandments Holy, and Just, and Righteous," saying this in Romans 7:12. It is way past time to understand the message of Paul in his critical remarks against the Law; the Law OF CIRCUMCISION, was not binding upon the non-Jew for G-d's acceptance, but many of the bigoted Jews of the first century used such a "commandment" against the non-Jew to keep them apart from themselves and the rest of Judaism.

Of course, all YOU have to do to translate Ephesians 2:15-16 CORRECTLY, is just to take OUT the words that have been added to it by DECEIVING, LYING translators...who had CARNAL MINDS, and who had ENMITY AGAINST (hatred and opposition TO) Yahweh's Laws. That's right; many of the men who print today's Bibles have such theological biases that they cannot even be honest with the Greek text. Yeshua abolished that enmity; that hatred and opposition to Yahweh's Laws for the non-Jew, through his death and the resulting mission to the non-Jewish world where the Covenant of Noah and the Laws of Noah were taken to the "lost sheep of Israel."

Then we read in Ephesians 2:12, KJV:

12 That AT THAT TIME you were without the Messiah, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the COVENANTS OF PROMISE,

Answer for yourself: "At that time"...what TIME was the Apostle Paul speaking of to these Ephesians?

As Ephesians 2:2 says: "at the time they were walking in DISOBEDIENCE TO THE LAWS OF GOD."

These DISOBEDIENT Ephesians were "strangers" to the citizenship of Israel, as well as to the Covenants of Promise BECAUSE THEY WERE ESTRANGED BY DISOBEDIENCE TO THE LAWS OF GOD. Yahweh only makes a COVENANT with those who OBEY HIM. Read for yourself the Blessings for obedience to GOD'S LAWS and the Cursings for disobedience to GOD'S LAWS, which are recorded in Deuteronomy 28:1-24 and Deuteronomy 29:15-19 for your instruction. These Ephesians might have been members of a church but were not in Covenant relationship with G-d if they lived outside of their Covenant and its requirements. What about you?

SO WHAT IS THE BOTTOM LINE?

Ephesians 2:11-18, CORRECTLY INTERPRETED tells us:

11 Therefore, remember that in times past you were Gentiles; who are called The Uncircumcised by those who are called The Circumcision made in the flesh by hands

12 Remember that at that time you were without Messiah, being aliens outside the citizenship of Israel, strangers to the covenants based upon promises, having NO HOPE and WITHOUT YAHWEH in the world.

13 But now, in Yeshua [because of his death and the message of the Covenant of Noah and Laws of Noah being brought to you], you who were once far off, have been BROUGHT NEAR THROUGH the blood of Messiah [remember the death of Yeshua catalyzed a movement to the non-Jew from within Judaism whereby the Laws and Covenant of Noah was taken to them].

14 For He is our peace, Who has MADE BOTH ONE [remember both Jew and non-Jew now shared many of the same commandments as the Laws of Noah are contained within the Covenant and Laws of Moses], and has broken down the dividing wall separating us

15 Abolishing the ENMITY [HATRED TOWARD [THE LAW OF CIRCUMCISION BY THE NON-JEW...NO LONGER BEING REQUIRED TO BE CIRCUMCISED WHEREBY THEY OFTEN DIED AS ADULTS], the hatred and the opposition to the Law, the Commandments, and the Ordinances, through his own flesh (the mission to the world...remember?), in order to create in Himself ONE NEW MAN [the combined stick of Ezekiel...the Jew and non-Jew together, representing all of humanity, worshipping the same G-d in the same way according to the pattern for the world], from the two; making peace, (remember the relinquishing of enforced circumcision of the non-Jew).

16 That would RECONCILE both in ONE BODY TO YAHWEH through the sacrifice...having KILLED THE ENMITY THROUGH HIMSELF [after Yeshua's death his followers would in Acts 15 and 16 begin an outreach to the non-Jews of the world whereby the Laws and Covenant of Noah would be taken to the non-Jewish nations... and in so doing bring balance to the Kingdom message whereby Paul's gospel would be "corrected" and brought in line with the truth as taught by the Jerusalem church].

17 And he came and preached peace to you who were afar off, and to those who were near:

18 Because through him [Yeshua's death and mission by his followers] we both have access to the Father by ONE SPIRIT.

See and UNDERSTAND that the carnal mind is AGAINST Yahweh's Laws! It is BITTERLY OPPOSED TO THEM! Therefore, the "ENMITY" THAT WAS DESTROYED BY THE CROSS IS NOT THE LAWS OF YAHWEH THEMSELVES-as the carnal minded, worldly, LYING preachers would have YOU to believe. The "ENMITY" THAT WAS DESTROYED BY THE CROSS IS THE HATRED AND THE OPPOSITION TOWARD YAHWEH'S LAWS-which the Carnal Mind harbors.

Answer for yourself: Will you allow this information to work in your heart and mind to destroy the lies you accepted as truth from well meaning preachers who knew no better? Will you repent of this false doctrine that destroyed the manifestation of your love for G-d...obedience to His word? Please understand, that you probably obey many of His Laws without even knowing, but in the Body of Christ today is rampant paganism masquerading as righteousness. We at Bet Emet call upon you to reconsider the pagan message of "Christology" as taught today, the Sabbath commandment, the multitude of commandments concerning the Festivals of the Lord, as well as the commandments concerning both how and where you are to Tithe, let alone the many commandments regarding "how" we are to worship our Creator?

Multitudes of Commandments in these areas are broken Sunday after

Sunday in churches across our land and few know, or seem to care enough to find out if their worship is in vain; let alone offensive to G-d. Only you can answer that question for yourself!

GETTING RID OF OUR BRAINWASHED AND CARNAL MINDS

So "how", then, does Yahweh rid one of a CARNAL MIND? The answer is found in Hebrews 10:16-17, which says:

16 (In Jeremiah 31:33) This is "the" COVENANT that I will RENEW with them after those days, says Yahweh, I will PUT MY LAWS into their hearts, and in their minds I will WRITE THEM.

17 Then He says (in Jeremiah 31:34): Their sins and iniquities I will remember no more (WHY?...because having G-d's laws in our minds and hearts, and having a heart of love toward G-d, we will want to obey His Commandments as a lifestyle....this is loving repentance that atones for our sin and G-d then remembers no more).

Yeshua teaches us in Matt. 5:20, saying:

For I say to you: Unless your righteousness exceeds the righteousness of the scribes and Pharisees, you will certainly NOT enter the Kingdom of Yahweh.

Yeshua came teaching His Father's LAWS...he did NOT "teach" the "commandments of men", as Matt. 15:9 says, which was literally quoted from Isaiah 29:13:

But in vain they do worship Me, teaching as doctrines the commandments of men.

Answer for yourself: Have you worshipped your G-d and Father in vain, and possibly not known it, by obeying the commandments of your church and pastor where they conflict with the Bible instead of the Bible over your church? Are you even aware when you did it? Do you still? Will you stop?

And the Apostle Paul did not "teach" the "commandments of MEN" either...the "Commandments" of those who "teach" that Yahweh's Laws are "done away with" as the LYING preachers, who misunderstand Paul, would like for YOU to continue to "believe"! After all, if you are Tithing incorrectly, for example, ...who prospers...your preacher who uses G-d's money for the General Fund and personal ambition, or the sick, lame, blind, widow, orphans, etc? The Apostle Paul OBEYED the Laws of Yahweh and taught others to OBEY Yahweh's Laws.

It is not my intention to look deeply in this article into "Paul's gospel," but as it evolved over his life it changed, or at least the New Testament records such a change. Maybe he is responsible or maybe words were put into his mouth, but the fact remains is that if one looks at the whole of Paul's message there is contradictions abounding. The truth of the matter requires involved study and research which we cannot do here but has been done elsewhere in our sites. So on the surface my remarks about Paul only involve his comments about the Law of Circumcision and his "early" ministry before such changes took place as it would seem to his mind that he came to the conclusion later that the death of Yeshua had nullified the Law totally. James and the other apostles, let alone the Jerusalem church, never advocated or taught such heresy.

Answer for yourself: After all did he not say..."let every man be a LIAR...BUT LET GOD'S WORD BE TRUE?"

That is our quest. To recover the truth among the many alterations of documents which make this whole thing so confusing. To do this we must look at men like Maimonides and other conservative Rabbis, like Yeshua, and find for ourselves what they taught and in so doing we recover and capture the mind of "Christ."

shalom.

DESTRUCTION OF THE OLIVE TREE THROUGH CHRISTIAN ANTI-SEMITISM AND REPLACEMENT THEOLOGY

"Marvel not, my brethren, if the world hate you." (1 John 3:13 KJV)

I'm heavy in heart today as I write this newsletter. Over the last few months I have collected further proof that hatred still exists in this world; not just in the world of narrow bigotry and small minded hatred, but in people of the kingdom of G-d who call themselves Christians. In study last night, I ran across no fewer than five web sites calling for the genocide of the Jewish people, and one of them was made by Evangelical Christians.

HOW COULD THIS BE?

Answer for yourself: What erroneous teachings have led people who look to Yeshua as their example to imitate and Savior cause them at the same time to propose such horrendous actions be taken against his own people...the Jewish people and Israel?

Honestly there are several reasons. Let me begin with one which few of you are aware. A long time ago, a bizarre forgery was made called "The Protocols Of the Learned Elders Of Zion", a document which purports that Jewish bankers and politicians were the tools of a conspiracy to conquer the world and enslave the Gentile races. That anyone could have believed such a document was true still amazes me. That anyone believes it today, and has established web sites full of quotes to "back it up" frightens me. Oh G-d in heaven forgive them. That Christians who should know better are assisting in this proposed genocide of the Jewish people frightens me even more.

Answer for yourself: Have any of these Evangelical Christians that read "The Protocols" noticed that the only Hebrew word in the entire document is "Goyim" (Hebrew for Gentiles)?

Answer for yourself: Have they noticed that not one Rabbi or Rebbe is quoted in it?

Answer for yourself: Have they noticed that not anything is quoted as coming from Jewish Responsa, the Talmud, the Mishna, or Mishnah Torah, or even Dvar Torah?

Answer for yourself: Have they never noticed that the majority of the "Protocols" expressly violate the teachings in the Jewish Torah, Talmud, and Mishnah, let alone the teachings of such great men like Rambam, Vilna Gaon, and the Baal Shem Tov?

Answer for yourself: How can Christians truly believe that this document is genuine?

Please don't misunderstand me, for the authors of these Anti-Semitic Web sites quote Jewish sources to prove its genuineness; unfortunately, all of the quoted sources were made before the forgery of "The Protocols" was made.

Answer for yourself: How then can it be believed, especially by Evangelical Christians? How can Christians allow such "racial propaganda" to influence them in such away as to culminate in violence?

The "Protocols" were used sixty years ago to excuse the planned Genocide of the Jewish people, in conjunction with the writings of Martin Luther. Scholars try to tell us now that Hitler never planned to destroy the Jewish people until late in the war; yet his own writings and quotes from others show he was deadly serious about it even back in his early days in Vienna. This is a subtle form of "Revisionism History", which says the Holocaust never happened. I've seen many videos and pictures of Jewish people with numbers tattooed on their bodies (don't tell me they all decided to go to the same tattoo parlor one day and get sequential serial numbers tattooed on them) which is in itself a violation of Torah commandments (which a Jew would never submit to unless under duress).

Answer for yourself: What happened to six million to eight million Jews?

Answer for yourself: Who were all those bodies found at Bergen-Belsen, Dachau, Aushvitz?

Answer for yourself: How do you discount millions of eyewitnesses (German, French, Greek, Hungarian and Polish civilians, British, Russian and American soldiers and POW's, Gypsies, Freemasons, Jehovah's Witnesses, and Jews themselves)?

Answer for yourself: Had they had mass hallucinations?

Answer for yourself: How do you discount the confessions of Eichmann and Hoess, let alone the tons of documentation found, and miles of film, much of it done by the Nazis themselves? Science fiction? I doubt it.

I'm ashamed that people can be so blind, after witnessing in our own lifetimes such atrocities. I've heard of no less than three genocidal attempts (Falashim in Ethiopia, Muslims in Serbia, and Rwanda) in my own lifetime. And people still tell say that the Jews are paranoid because nobody's going after them again because they are too obvious a target. My response was, "Would you bet your life on it? They have to." No other people in the world has so many damning texts, such as the "Protocol" forgeries, as well as numerous Christian writings from such anti-Semitic Early Church Fathers as Luther, Origen, Augustine, Chrysostom, and others. I'm ashamed at times when driving down the street when I see a Ford, which was created by a man who was an Anti-Semite, especially when I read on the Christian web page a quote from Henry Ford supporting the "Protocols".

Answer for yourself: How can bigots call for a second extermination when they don't believe the first happened? Come On!

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN CHRISTIANS ARE ANTI-SEMITIC?

Many Christians I know of are deeply wounded merely at the suggestion that evangelical Christians could be anti-Semitic. But facts are facts and our denial of them doesn't change them. As a Pastor for over ten years I am convinced that the vast majority of Christians today know very little about the Bible and its production. Let alone few ever read books on the Bible or the Canon. Most seem to think it just dropped out of Heaven and read and believe everything in it without question. They read over multiple passages in the New Testament that are filled with hatred for the Jews never questioning why a Jewish writer would be anti-Semitic. That takes the cake; an anti-Semitic Jew. If Christians had read extensively on the production of the New Testament they would find what others like myself have discovered; namely, that the documents cherished today as "G-dbreathed" were crafted mainly by non-Jews in Alexandria, Egypt, and Rome, Italy over the centuries culminating its final collection in 380 C.E. Besides this, it can be demonstrated by archeology today that the documents comprising the New Testament were continually altered and "fixed" as the Catholic Church continued its separation from Biblical Judaism and the documents were made and "created" and "added to" to reflect the latest Catholic theology as it was decided in their successive Church Councils. As the Gentile Church's split with Judaism widened the documents increased in their anti-Semitic and anti-Judaic content. This my friends is easy to prove...you only have to look into it. Most have not and won't when encouraged to do so. Most Christians have a deadly philosophy of religion; they believe that they cannot be wrong because the Holy Spirit leads them into truth according to the writer of the Gospel of John.

Answer for yourself: If that is so in all cases explain to me why 80% of Christendom today prays to Mary (THINK)!

It is this New Testament, along with productions like "Protocols" that have deceived the Christian today who is devoid of study. Because of that the Christian today accepts the dogmas and doctrines espoused in the New Testament without personal investigation as to if Yeshua and his followers really believed such things in their lives. If one were to devote 6 months to in-depth study of what I am saying he would see for himself that what I am saying is true. The horror of the whole matter is that because of this anti-Semitic replacement theological doctrine created and crafted by Rome almost the entire Christian Church for the most part, is without a Covenant with G-d. Most Christians today are totally ignorant of the Covenant of Noah, reject the Covenant of Moses which built upon Noah's as being "under the Law", and looks to the "New Covenant" which in reality has not begun yet. Anyone who seriously reads Jer. 31 slowly in context knows without a doubt that the "New" Covenant is made with the Jews and not the non-Jews and that the Laws of G-d are written in the hearts of G-d's people. And if one studies it in detail you find that "New" as spoken of by Jeremiah means "Re-Newed" and not "replaced." So in fact the covenant that Christians look toward in reality does not exist yet; at least not yet until the Christian repents of his Replacement Theology and Pauline Theology and returns to the Olive Tree of Israel where the Laws and Commandments of G-d become a pattern for his life. Such is the irony of the matter and we have the anti-Semitic doctrines of Rome to blame. Sadly we reinforce these false beliefs the more we read the New Testament without being able to discern the truths from the lies.

THE ORIGIN AND IDENTITY OF THE PEOPLE OF G-D

Let us briefly look at the biblical evidence for the origin and "identity" of the people of G-d.

"Now the LORD had said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto a land that I will show thee: And I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and thou shalt be a blessing: And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee: and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed. (Gen 12:1-3 KJV)

"And I will establish my covenant between me and thee and thy seed after thee in their generations for an everlasting covenant, to be a G-d unto thee, and to thy seed after thee. And I will give unto thee, and to thy seed after thee, the land wherein thou art a stranger, all the land of Canaan, for an everlasting possession; and I will be their G-d." (Gen 17:7-8 KJV)

"And G-d said unto Abraham, Thou shalt keep my covenant therefore, thou, and thy seed after thee in their generations. This is my covenant, which ye shall keep, between me and you and thy seed after thee; Every man child among you shall be circumcised. And ye shall circumcise the flesh of your foreskin; and it shall be a token of the covenant betwixt me and you. And he that is eight days old shall be circumcised among you, every man child in your generations, he that is born in the house, or bought with money of any stranger, which is not of thy seed. He that is born in thy house, and he that is bought with thy money, must needs be circumcised: and my covenant shall be in your flesh for an everlasting covenant." (Gen 17:9-13 KJV)

"And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee: Behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation. But my covenant will I establish with Isaac, which Sarah shall bear unto thee at this set time in the next year." (Gen 17:20-21 KJV)

"And G-d heard their groaning, and G-d remembered His covenant with Abraham, with Isaac, and with Jacob." (Exo 2:24 KJV)

Now pay close attention:

Isa 56:1-8 1 Thus saith the LORD, Keep ye judgment, and do justice: for my salvation is near to come, and my righteousness to be revealed. 2 Blessed is the man that doeth this, and the son of man that layeth hold on it; that keepeth the sabbath from polluting it, and keepeth his hand from doing any evil. 3 Neither let the son of the stranger, that hath joined himself to the LORD [this is the engrafting of the non-Jew into the Israel of G-d], speak, saying, The LORD hath utterly separated me from his people: neither let the eunuch say, Behold, I am a dry tree. 4 For thus saith the LORD unto the eunuchs [the non-Jews] that keep my sabbaths, and choose the things that please Me, and take hold of my covenant; 5 Even unto them will I give in mine house and within my walls a place and a name better than of sons and of daughters: I will give them an everlasting name, that shall not be cut off. 6 Also the sons of the stranger, that join themselves to the LORD [the engrafting of the non-Jew to the Israel of G-d] to serve him, and to love the name of the LORD, to be his servants, every one that keepeth the sabbath from polluting it, and taketh hold of my covenant; 7 Even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in my house of prayer: their burnt offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon mine altar; for mine house shall be called an house of prayer for all people. 8 The Lord GOD which gathereth the outcasts of Israel saith, Yet will I gather others to him, beside those that are gathered unto him. (KJV)

Without a doubt the Covenant of G-d was made with Abraham and was passed down through his offspring culminating with the Jewish people; but within this Covenant structure was a place for the non-Jew to keep the Sabbath and the Festivals and acquire obedience to other mitvoth as well. It is to these people the non-Jews will be allowed to be merged as Paul describes in the New Testament. What is of importance to the non-Jew is the requirements and qualifications necessary for inclusion into the Israel of G-d. We deal with this issue in a separate section on this very website.

WHAT IS THE COMMON THREAD? SIMPLY...OBEDIENCE AS THE PICTURE OF YOUR LOVE FOR G-D

Since Noah ALL the Covenants established are with the descendants of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob and NOT WITH GENTILES! The non-Jews have their own Covenant...the Covenant with Noah. The Children of Jacob are the Jews. Even if you look at Jer. 31 the Covenant is "Re-Newed" with the House of Israel and the House of Jacob. Now pay attention. G-d in His infinite love for mankind gave His creation the ability to attain blessings from Him in response to their obedience. In the beginning Adam had only one commandment: "not to eat from the tree of good and evil". Adam broke the commandment and hence in the eyes of G-d was viewed as totally evil. G-d, not wishing to view his creation as such, multiplied the commands given to man with the knowledge that if man broke one or two commandments there would be many more that he kept and thus would never be forced again to view mankind as totally evil. If you understood this then you would see that G-d multiplied the commandment in the Covenant of Noah and even gave more with the Covenant of Moses. The non-Jew is given the Covenant of Noah with 66 commands and these are not optional. However, Isaiah in chapter 56 teaches us that the non-Jew can choose things that please G-d over and above the minimum commands given in the Laws of Noah and can acquire mitzvot (bringing into one's life-style the observance and obedience of other commandments) within the Covenant of Moses. The more obedience to the commands of G-d one undertakes in his life the more he merits the blessings of G-d as well as demonstrates his love for HaShem.

ARE ALL THE CHILDREN OF ISAAC BLESSED THROUGH THIS COVENANT?

No, only the children of Jacob. Jacob was the child of promise and not Esau. It is interesting that in the Talmud Esau is referred to "Esau-Edom" which is a reference to the peoples of Edom. The grandson of Esau would be the founder of the city of Rome, and it is from Rome we get Replacement Religion today in Christianity. This is symbolic of the eternal conflict between the Jews and Judaism and the Gentile's Christianity. I don't know about you but as a Christian to be considered as "Esau" is not comforting.

To reiterate Jacob is symbolic the Jewish people and ONLY the Jewish People (all thirteen tribes: Judah, Dan, Naphtali, Levi, Simeon, Manasseh, Ephraim, Zebulun, Asher, Gad, Issachar, Benjamin, and Reuben were to carry this special blessing from HaShem. All are Jews, because the halakhic ruling about Maternal descent had not been established yet).

The Jews, and all who join themselves to them (this SHOULD be the Christian's position) were to be included in the people of G-d. This includes Evangelical Christians, because according to Romans, they are engrafted into the true vine of Israel (or at least they were supposed to be). This makes it all the more important that a Christian not harbor anti-Semitic teachings, religious doctrines and dogmas, or beliefs; even subconsciously. Even more so it is all the more important that the Christian not believe that he has taken the place of Israel before G-d. This is of major importance in light of the conflict and contradicting dogmas within the New Testament which lead the unsuspecting non-Jew to conclude such in error.

Has The Gentile Christian Church Become The "New Israel," With Physical Israel Inheriting Only The Curses While The New Gentile "Spiritual Israel" Inheriting The Blessings?

I find no biblical evidence of this; indeed, the opposite. Let us examine the Biblical evidence and settle the matter once and for all:

"I say then, Hath G-d cast away his people? G-d forbid. For I also am an Israelite, of the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin. G-d hath not cast away his people which he foreknew. Know ye not what the scripture saith of Elias? how he maketh intercession to G-d against Israel, saying, Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine altars; and I am left alone, and they seek my life. But what saith the answer of G-d unto him? I have reserved to myself seven thousand men, who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal." (Rom 11:1-4 KJV)

"I say then, Have they stumbled that they should fall? G-d forbid: but rather through their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealousy. Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminishing of them the riches of the Gentiles; how much more their fullness?" (Rom 11:11-12 KJV)

"For if the first-fruit be holy, the lump is also holy: and if the root be holy, so are the branches. And if some of the branches be broken off, and thou, being a wild olive tree, wert grafted in among them, and with them partakest of the root and fatness of the olive tree; Boast not against the branches. But if thou boast, thou bearest not the root, but the root thee. Thou wilt say then, The branches were broken off (due to Hellenism and the rejection of true Jewish faith), that I might be grafted in. Well; because of unbelief they were broken off, and thou standest by faith. Be not high-minded, but fear: For if G-d spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee." (Rom 11:16-21 KJV)

DO YOU THINK THAT YOU CAN BE IMMUNE TO THE PENALTY OF GEN. 12:3?

Paul states in Rom. 11:21 "take heed lest he also spare not thee." This is the penalty you risk for anti-Semitism and anti-Judaic beliefs based on Gentile propaganda as found in Rome's New Testament. This is including replacement theology! Does it not say, "And I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee (Gen. 12:3)?

This line refers to the Jewish people! "Behold therefore the goodness and severity of G-d: on them which fell, severity; but toward thee, goodness, if thou continue in his goodness: otherwise thou also shalt be cut off. And they also, if they abide not still in unbelief, shall be grafted in: for G-d is able to graft them in again. For if thou wert cut out of the olive tree which is wild by nature, and wert grafted contrary to nature into a good olive tree: how much more shall these, which be the natural branches, be grafted into their own olive tree?" (Rom 11:22-24 KJV)

"For the gifts and calling of G-d are without repentance." (Rom 11:29 KJV).

And most importantly, "What advantage then hath the Jew? or what profit is there of circumcision? Much every way: chiefly, because that unto them were committed the oracles of G-d. For what if some did not believe? shall their unbelief make the faith of G-d without effect? G-d forbid: yea, let G-d be true, but every man a liar; as it is written, That thou mightest be justified in thy sayings, and mightest overcome when thou art judged." (Rom 3:1-4 KJV).

But still I hear a lot of this:

"For he is not a Jew, which is one outwardly; neither is that circumcision, which is outward in the flesh: But he is a Jew, which is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter; whose praise is not of men, but of G-d." (Rom 2:28-29 KJV), and...

"There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus." (Gal 3:28 KJV)

"Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all." (Col 3:11 KJV).

I tell you to please read the entire verse!

These verses are about spiritual rebirth, not physical rebirth! Such as...

"Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds; And have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge after the image of him that created him: Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all." (Col 3:9-11 KJV)

"For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Christ Jesus. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." (Gal 3:27-29 KJV).

Only in the rebirth (born from above) and the mikveh (immersion following ## one's repentance) is there no difference between Jew and Gentile in the Israel of G-d

By G-d gracious plan the believing Gentiles have been grafted into the true vine! Again Isaiah the prophet teaches us in chapter 56:3: "Neither let the son of the stranger, that hath joined himself to the Lord, speak, saying, The Lord hath utterly separated me from His people".

This means G-d never intended that the non-Jew be separate from His people Israel as well as He never intended that non-Jewish believers would end up with a Replacement Religion which is anti-Semitic to its core which contains numerous conflicting beliefs and doctrines as has happened in Gentile Christianity today

OFTEN FORGOTTEN VERSES

"And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments. He that saith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him." (1 John 2:3-4 KJV).

"Whosoever hateth his brother (just look at the hundreds of anti-Semitic doctrines and dogmas in the Christian theological think tank) is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." (1 John 3:15 KJV)

"If a man say, I love G-d, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love G-d whom he hath not seen?" (1 John 4:20 KJV)

CONCLUSION

"But and if that evil servant shall say in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming; And shall begin to smite his fellowservants (the Jews), and to eat and drink with the drunken; The lord of that servant shall come in a day when he looketh not for him, and in an hour that he is not aware of, And shall cut him asunder, and appoint him his portion with the hypocrites: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth." (Mat 24:48-51 KJV)

"When the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory: And before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats: And he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left. Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: For I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in: Naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me. Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungered, and fed thee? or thirsty, and gave thee drink? When saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? Or when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee? And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren (Yeshua's brethren are the Jewish people), ye have done it unto me. Then shall he say also unto them on the left hand, Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels: For I was an hungered, and ye gave me no meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me no drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me not in: naked, and ye clothed me not: sick, and in prison, and ye visited me not. Then shall they also answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee an hungered, or athirst, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister unto thee? Then shall he answer them, saying, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it not to one of the least of these, ye did it not to me. And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal." (Mat 25:31-46 KJV)

I frankly confess that I have been greatly shocked as a result of my study and examination of Anti-Semitism, especially at what I found that originated and continues under the guise of Christianity. I deem it to be my duty as an honorable man to make amends for the wrong done to the Jews as fellow men and brothers by Anti-Semitic and Anti-Judaic Christianity by asking their forgiveness for the harm that both I and my forefathers have unintentionally and intentionally committed as typical Christians when we accepted Anti-Semitic doctrines taught to us without our personal inquiry to substantiate them. The sad fact is that I had failed to study for myself to see if "these things be so." After spending time in study of the Bible, language, history, etc., I quickly learned for myself that what I had been hearing in "sermons" was just denominational rhetoric and not fact! Thus, convicted of my sin of bigotry against the Jewish people, I have devoted my life to the discovery and return of the Hebraic Roots of the Early Church, by retracting so far as lies within my power the offensive charges laid on the Jewish people by well-meaning, but poorly informed Christians. Besides that, I am happy to give the Jewish people the unqualified assurance that henceforth they may look to me for friendship and good will. Shalom.

ARE ALL MODERN DAY CHRISTIANS DESCENDED FROM THE LOST TRIBES OF ISRAEL?

NO!

- First of all, this is IMPOSSIBLE to prove.
- Secondly, this would be a form of replacement theology by indicating a PHYSICAL link to the lost tribes by ALL modern day Christians.

However, the covenant that G-d made with Avraham/Abraham was both physical AND spiritual. Spiritually, it tells us that all non-Jewish believers in G-d have, in one way or another, come to saving knowledge of G-d, through Yeshua's death and the ministry that it catalyzed; and are thereby heirs to the covenant that G-d made with Avraham/Abraham (Galatians 3:16,29). Without this mission to the world to bring the knowledge of G-d and His Covenants to the non-Jews no telling where the non-Jewish believer, in particular the Christian, would be in his relationship with G-d today. But, the covenant that G-d made with Avraham was PHYSICAL also. The Bible tells us how that covenant that G-d made with Avraham was passed to Isaac, Jacob and the children of Jacob. The PHYSICAL descendants of Avraham became a nation at Mount Sinai when G-d made a covenant with them. Again, you need to understand that within this Mosaic Covenant was the reiteration of the Covenant of Noah with its corresponding Laws and Commandments which, when obeyed, brought the believer into Covenant fellowship and acceptance with G-d.

In Genesis 12:3, G-d spoke these words to Avraham/Abraham: "And I will bless them that bless you, and curse them that curse you and in thee shall all the FAMILIES of the earth be BLESSED". In Hebrew, the text reads: "VENIVRECU bakah kol MISHPACHOT ha-adamah".

Here the word, "VENIVRECU" is translated in most English texts as "will be blessed". But the usual word for "will be blessed" is YIVRECU not VENUVRECU. The word VENIVRECU is found in only two other places in the Torah. These two places are as follows:

- Genesis (Beresheit) 18:17-18: "And the Lord said, shall I hide from Abraham that thing which I do, Seeing that Abraham will surely become a great and mighty nation, and all the nations of the earth VENIVRECU in him"

The same promise is repeated in Jacob and his descendants.

- Genesis 28:14: "And thy seed shall be as the dust of the earth, and thou shalt spread abroad to the west and to the east, and to the north and to the south: and in thee and in thy seed VENIVRECU all the FAMILIES of the earth".

In five places in the Talmud and other Jewish writings, the word VENIVRECU is also translated as

GRAFTED or INTERMINGLED (Mishna Kelaim 7:1, Sotah 43a, Rashbam to 28:14, Chizkuni, Da'as Zekeinim and quoted by Tur)

Therefore, Genesis 12:3, should read: "And I will bless them that bless you, and curse them that curse you and in thee shall all the families of the earth be blessed (GRAFTED OR INTER-MINGLED)"

This is what Paul was talking about in Romans 11:13-26.

If you take these words LITERALLY, then at some point in time, EVERY FAMILY in the earth will be GRAFTED or INTERMINGLED from the seed of Abraham. In the New Testament, the FULLNESS of this GRAFTING is called "the fullness of the times of the Gentiles".

HOW WAS THIS TO BE ACCOMPLISHED? WE NEED TO UNDERSTAND WHO THE LOST SHEEP OF ISRAEL REALLY ARE

Answer for yourself: But how was it possible for the seed of Abraham to be grafted into EVERY FAMILY in the earth? The answer is through assimilation of the 10 Northern tribes into all the world following their captivity.

In Hosea 1, G-d gives a judgment upon the Northern Kingdom (10 tribes) because they desired to assimilate with the people around them rather than being a separated people unto G-d as G-d had instructed in the Torah. To symbolize this judgment upon the Northern Kingdom who desired to assimilate with the people around them and therefore committed spiritual whoredom, G-d instructs Hosea to marry a whore named Gomer. From this marriage, Hosea 1 mentions three children being born. They are as follows:

- #1) Jezreel --- meaning "G-d will sow or scatter" (Hos 1:4)
- #2) Lo-Ruhamah --- meaning "No mercy" (Hosea 1:6)
- #3) Lo-Ammi --- meaning "Not my people" (Hosea 1:8-9)

G-d will sow or G-d will scatter means "assimilation into the Gentile culture and peoples". "No mercy" and "not my people" is a Biblical way of saying that G-d was going to cut the Northern Kingdom from the covenant that He made with Abraham and then to Abraham's descendants at Mount Sinai. After G-d pronounces this judgment, He then makes an AMAZING statement:

Hosea 1:10: "Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass that in the place where it was said unto them, "Ye are not my people" there it shall be said unto them, Ye are the sons of the living G-d"

Hosea 1:6-10 is associated with believers in Yeshua (Christians) in 1st Peter 2:5,10

"Ye also as lively stones, are built up a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to G-d by Jesus Christ ... which is time past WERE NOT A PEOPLE (Hosea 1:8-9) which had NOT OBTAINED MERCY (Hosea 1:6), but now have obtained mercy".

Therefore, the Northern Kingdom is linked to Christianity...WOW!

Because the Northern Kingdom was "cut off" from their covenant with G-d, in order to reunite the Northern Kingdom back into the covenant relationship with G-d again, G-d had to offer the Northern Kingdom a new (RENEWED) covenant. This is spoken in Jeremiah 31:31,33:

"Behold the days come, says the Lord, that I will make a new (RENEWED) covenant with the house of Israel (Northern Kingdom) AND with the house of Judah (Southern Kingdom) ... But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel: After those days, says the Lord, I will put my TORAH in their INWARD parts and write it (THE TORAH) in their hearts, and will be their G-d and they shall be my people (Hosea 1:10) .... fulfilling G-d's covenant with Avraham/Abraham.

31 Behold, the days <3117> come <935> (8802), saith <5002> (8803) the LORD <3068>, that I will make <3772> (8804) a new <2319> covenant <1285> with the house <1004> of Israel <3478>, and with the house <1004> of Judah <3063>: 32 Not according to the covenant <1285> that I made <3772> (8804) with their fathers <1> in the day <3117> [that] I took <2388> (8687) them by the hand <3027> to bring them out <3318> (8687) of the land <776> of Egypt <4714>; which my covenant <1285> they brake <6565> (8689), although I was an husband <1166> (8804) unto them, saith <5002> (8803) the LORD <3068>: 33 But this [shall be] the covenant <1285> that I will make <3772> (8799) with the house <1004> of Israel <3478>; After <310> those days <3117>, saith <5002> (8803) the LORD <3068>, I will put <5414> (8804) my law <8451> in their inward parts <7130>, and write <3789> (8799) it in their hearts <3820>; and will be their G-d <430>, and they shall be my people <5971>. 34 And they shall teach <3925> (8762) no more every man <376> his neighbour <7453>, and every man <376> his brother <251>, saying <559> (8800), Know <3045> (8798) the LORD <3068>: for they shall all know <3045> (8799) me, from the least <6996> of them unto the greatest <1419> of them, saith <5002> (8803) the LORD <3068>: for I will forgive <5545> (8799) their iniquity <5771>, and I will remember <2142> (8799) their sin <2403> no more.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that this "new" covenant was to be made with Israel and Judah and nowhere is the Gentile Christian Church mentioned?

NOTICE THE WORD TO WHICH CHRISTIANS REFER WHEN SPEAKING OF THE "NEW" COVENANT

Lexicon Hebrew 2319 02319 chadash {khaw-dawsh'} from 02318; TWOT - 613a; adj AV - new 48, new thing 4, fresh 1; 53

1) new, new thing, fresh

Let us refer to the "root" word for even greater meaning:

Lexicon Hebrew 2318 02318 chadash {khaw-dash'} a primitive root; TWOT - 613; v AV - renew 7, repair 3; 10

- 1) to be new, renew, repair
- 1a) (Piel)
  - 1a1) to renew, make anew
  - 1a2) to repair
  - 1b) (Hithpael) to renew oneself (understood as repentance and resultant obedience)

Answer for yourself: As Christians are we to better understand that we have a "new" or "renewed" and “repaired” covenant instead of a "newly replaced Covenant" with G-d today? Definitely we need to understand it as a Renewal of an existing Covenant and not a replacement of an existing Covenant.

Answer for yourself: If you REPAIR or MAKE ANEW ANYTHING (lets say a coffee pot for instance) do you discard it and throw it away and REPLACE IT with another, or do you RETAIN IT and bring it into a new condition of use?

Answer for yourself: Are we to understand the covenant for Christianity today to be a replacement covenant or a renewed or repaired covenant which already exists? Definitely we do not have a “new” covenant which REPLACES anything that already existed when Jeremiah wrote his letter.

Answer for yourself: If we as Christians are in a “renewed” and “repaired” covenant then do we have the right to teach or be taught that our relationship with G-d has REPLACED the covenants that previously existed with Israel or that the Christian Church as replaced Israel? NO!

Answer for yourself: Have we forgotten that as Gentile believers in G-d through Messiah we have been GRAFTED INTO ISRAEL AND HER COVENANTS? It seems we have.

Answer for yourself: If we say we are in a “new” covenant as Christians which has REPLACED the prior covenants that exists with Israel, in fact have WE not in reality excluded ourselves from the ONLY COVENANT truly given to us by G-d? (dwell on this a moment and you should be scarred to death! ...Remember that you have now seen for yourself the word used in Jer. 31 is REPAIR and RENEW and NOT REPLACED).

Answer for yourself: If you have established your “own” covenant with G-d or cling to “one” given to you by mistaken teachers that has REPLACED the covenant G-d RENEWED FOR YOU, then what possibly awaits you come judgment day when you stand before Him and try to defend yourself and the covenant of man’s making that has REPLACED G-D’S COVENANT which has always been a RENEWAL OF EXISTING COVENANTS PREVIOUSLY MADE WITH ISRAEL AND JUDAH? You have only to read Matthew 7:21-23 to get the answer for the word “iniquity” in the KJV holds the key. More on that later.

Answer for yourself: Are you becoming more aware that the REPAIRED COVENANT and the RENEWED COVENANT to which you have been engrafted as believers in G-d through Messiah Yeshua contain commandments and ordinances concerning your observance and celebration of Biblical Festivals and Sabbaths and NOWHERE contain commandments and ordinances commanding your celebration and observance of pagan worship days which have been “Christianized” in a deceptive attempt to REPLACE the real expression of your COVENANT with G-d?

Answer for yourself: Lastly, in this “new” covenant which Gentile Christianity has embraced, did you notice that G-d’s whole intention was to put His LAW in our INWARD PARTS and our HEARTS?

33 But this [shall be] the covenant <1285> that I will make <3772> (8799) with the house <1004> of Israel <3478>; After <310> those days <3117>, saith <5002> (8803) the LORD <3068>, I will put <5414> (8804) my law <8451> in their inward parts <7130>, and write <3789> (8799) it in their hearts <3820>; and will be their G-d <430>, and they shall be my people <5971>.

Lexicon Hebrew 8451 08451 towrah {to-law'} or Torah {to-law'} from 03384; TWOT - 910d; n fAV - law 219; 219

- 1) law, direction, instruction
- 1a) instruction, direction (human or divine)
  - 1a1) body of prophetic teaching
  - 1a2) instruction in Messianic age

- 1a3) body of priestly direction or instruction
- 1a4) body of legal directives
- 1b) law
  - 1b1) law of the burnt offering
  - 1b2) of special law, codes of law
- 1c) custom, manner
- 1d) the Deuteronomic or Mosaic Law

Answer for yourself: Do you attend a church where ANYTHING from the above definition is taught to you? When was the last time your Pastor taught you that you were under "the Law" and exposed the deception in the New Testament or at least explain the horrible history of its canonization (see our website which deals with this subject in detail... <http://geocities.com/faithofyeshua>)? If not, you should begin to seek out those who have studied the Bible enough to teach you the truth in stead of denomination rhetoric.

Answer for yourself: Do you as a Christian attend a church which teaches the Mosaic Law and Torah, and endeavors to put G-d's Holy Torah and Laws into your heart and mind by lifting it up for our example and instruction for life, or does your church like most teach that the Law has passed away today and that we are no longer under the Law but under grace?

Answer for yourself: Have we possibly misunderstood what Paul was meaning when he wrote his letters over 2000 years ago? Has anyone told you yet how much that is "Pauline" in the New Testament was constantly written and altered and added to up and through the first several centuries of the Gentile Church? Misunderstanding abounds and few, if any, know the history and truth of the matter today. Therefore, millions of Christians are led into deception because both they and their teachers have failed to understand the very Hebrew language which Paul wrote in, as well as the UNIQUE conditions that existed in his time that were the catalyst for the writing of his epistles, let alone all the adulterations to the documents we call the New Testament today.

NOW LET US LOOK AT MATT. 7:23 ...THIS SHOULD SCARE YOU IF YOU ARE A TYPICAL CHRISTIAN

23 And <2532> then <5119> will I profess <3670> (5692) unto them <846>, <3754> I never <3763> knew <1097> (5627) you <5209>: depart <672> (5720) from <575> me <1700>, ye that work <2038> (5740) iniquity <458>.

Answer for yourself: Have you attended church your whole life but find yourself today basically ignorant of the Law and thus in violation of it most likely because you have never been taught these deep truths of the Word of G-d as I have showed them to you?

Answer for yourself: Have you lived your whole life in a condition of being “without the Law” because you have not been correctly taught?

Answer for yourself: Could the Bible be correct [as I have shown you the words] when it says that we are unrighteous because we transgress the Law because we are basically ignorant of it?

Answer for yourself: Has your church brought you to a place where you are basically destitute of the Mosaic Law (notice especially GENTILES)?

Answer for yourself: Have you ever considered yourself “wicked” as G-d does because of your beliefs about His Law which contradict what the Bible teaches? Well, G-d does! It is time to repent dear brother and sister in Christ and find those who know G-d and His Word well enough to teach it correctly. We at Bet Emet Ministries are not the only ones with this knowledge today.

Answer for yourself: Having now understood the word “iniquity” and that Yeshua will tell “many” to depart from him in the judgment day because they “work iniquity”, dear brother and sister in Christ could that be you because what you have been taught is in error and led you into a life-style which is displeasing to G-d and Yeshua? There is no other answer as I have shown you what the Biblical words mean behind our English. Let us never forget that Yeshua is a Jew and if we try to understand only the English of our Bibles without referring to the original languages we can not be assured we have the actual words and meaning Yeshua intended we have.

Answer for yourself: Instead of a love and esteem for the Law of G-d, have you been given by your pastors and teachers a general contempt for the Law in that you have come to believe that the Law has passed away because it supposedly “kills” and is bad and is not to be studied or even taught?

Answer for yourself: Isn't it about time you begin to develop study skills you can use in your Bible study which will make your “calling and election” certain?

NOW LET US CONTINUE....

Jeremiah 31 is written to Ephraim (Jer 31:20) as Ephraim is a term for the Northern Kingdom. Because Ephraim was "cut off" from G-d's covenant with Avraham, G-d had to establish a new (RENEWED) covenant to bring the Northern Kingdom back into covenant relationship with Him.

According to the Torah, if one had lost or sold their inheritance (as the Northern Kingdom did by committing spiritual whoredom and G-d "cut them off" from His covenant), a near kinsman could come to redeem that which was sold or lost (Leviticus 25:25). Since the Northern Kingdom was already "cut off", this redeemer could only come from the house of Judah or the Southern Kingdom. For this reason, Yeshua had to be a Jew from the tribe of David (so that he could be King) and from the house of Judah so that he could bring redemption to those in the Northern Kingdom who had assimilated and lost their inheritance. While doing so, all those non-Jews who would believe in G-d through Yeshua's ministry would have redemption also. Therefore, the GRAFTING is spiritual AND physical.

The assimilation of the descendants of Abraham (the Northern Kingdom) began when Assyria conquered the Northern Kingdom in 721 B.C.E (Before the Common Era). Over the process of time, all of those people who were originally from the Northern Kingdom would be GRAFTED or INTERMARRY into ALL the FAMILIES of the earth. This assimilation is not yet complete but we are VERY close. This assimilation had been for over 2,700 years. When this assimilation is COMPLETED, then G-d will begin to gather the EXILES for ALL the NATIONS of the earth. G-d will unite the house of Israel (those assimilated into Gentile culture) with the house of Judah (the Jews) in the land of Israel. This is spoken of in Ezekiel 37:15-28. When this gathering of the EXILES takes place, it will be a sign to the nations of the world that the Messiah is about to visit the earth.

G-d is preparing people like yourselves ALL over the WORLD and is giving them a JEWISH HEART and returning them back to the Hebraic/Jewish heritage by giving them a love for the Jews (their brothers) and a love for the land of Israel and a love for the Torah (keeping the sabbath the Biblical festivals, the tithe properly, as well as many other Commandment which the non-Jew decided to take upon himself personally in his attempt in repairing this world). The turning of the hearts of G-d's people in recent years is SUPERNATURAL and is to prepare us not only to understand G-d and the ways of His kingdom but to prepare us for the redemption in the last days from all the nations of the earth back to the land of Israel. This is a Biblical explanation why the heart of the members of this ministry desire to STUDY and LEARN about the rich Hebraic/Jewish heritage.

Then, G-d's LITERAL promise to Abraham will be fulfilled such that G-d will GRAFT or INTERMINGLE Abraham's seed into ALL the families of the earth.

Answer for yourself: So, are ALL Christians the PHYSICAL descendants of the house of Israel or the Northern Kingdom? NO!

Answer for yourself: Are SOME Christians the PHYSICAL descendants of the house of Israel or the Northern Kingdom? YES! But you cannot physically prove if YOU are or not with genealogy records.

Without a doubt, those from the Northern Kingdom from the house of Israel who began to intermarry with the Gentile nations around them eventually received and accepted Christianity as their faith. They cannot be Jews because you are only recognized as a PHYSICAL Jew by the Jewish people if your parents are Jewish. Therefore, these people really are "assimilated Israelites into Gentile culture". The Jewish people who have kept their Jewish identity are Jews who are Israelites who have not assimilated into Gentile culture.

CHRISTIANS ARE BRETHREN WITH THE JEWISH PEOPLE

Answer for yourself: Has anyone got this figured out yet? We, as non-Jewish believers in G-d, are BRETHREN with the Jewish people !!!!

Groups such as those espousing British Israelism and white supremacy have used this GRAFTING and the truth of the Northern Kingdom being assimilated into Gentile culture as a PERVERSION and TWISTING of the truth by promoting replacement theology. Since MOST people have only heard the PERVERSION and TWISTING of this truth, talking about the assimilation of the Northern Kingdom into Gentile culture is AUTOMATICALLY viewed with skepticism and with the thought of replacement theology. Just because groups have taught PERVERSION does not mean that there is not a Biblical truth concerning the TRUE assimilation of the Northern Kingdom into Gentile culture in its PROPER Biblical context.

As we at Bet Emet Ministries have just taught, G-d's covenant with Abraham is BOTH physical and spiritual. The Jews are PHYSICAL descendants of Abraham. Therefore, the Jews ARE STILL a people chosen by G-d. The "church" has NOT replaced the Jews. In Jeremiah 31:35-37, G-d makes a promise to the JEWISH people that He will ALWAYS have a covenant with them. Jeremiah 31:35-37: "Thus says the Lord, which gives sun for the light by day and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, which divides the sea when the waves thereof roar, the Lord of Hosts is his name: If those ordinances depart from before me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nations before me forever"

Therefore, G-d's covenant with Abraham is BOTH physical AND spiritual. Physically, the Jews are still G-d's chosen people and G-d still has a covenant with them. Physically, the descendants of Abraham from the Northern Kingdom will one day be FULLY assimilated into Gentile culture so that ALL families of the earth will have a physical descendant back to an original descendant from the Northern Kingdom (but cannot be proven with genealogical records).

Spiritually, all those who have faith in G-d through Yeshua's ministry are grafted into the promise that G-d made with Abraham. This would include BOTH physical Jews and physical non-Jews.

Answer for yourself: Are ALL those who are PHYSICALLY descended from the Northern Kingdom Christians? NO! Only those who have come to faith in G-d through Yeshua's ministry (typically called Christians).

In closing let me say that a "Jewish heart" DOES NOT mean that you are automatically descendant from one of the Northern Tribes. A "Jewish heart" is a SUPERNATURAL feeling because of what the Ruach HaKodesh (Holy Spirit) is doing IN you. A "Jewish heart" is SPIRITUAL.

SO WHAT DOES ALL THIS MEAN TO ME-A CHRISTIAN IN MY CHRISTIAN CHURCH?

I cannot answer for you but I sure can for me. Knowing only this it stands to reason that if you are grafted in the Israel of G-d, consider yourself a child of G-d, fellow brethren with the Jewish people, spiritual and possibly physical descendants of the Northern Tribes, then it is impossible to have conflicting doctrines and dogmas, let alone anti-Semitic religious beliefs, as the cornerstone of your religious belief system and still maintain you are the Israel of G-d.

It is impossible to be in relationship with G-d outside of the Covenants G-d made with mankind, yet all the while claiming you have something "new" but yet which is without Biblical foundation. Claiming a "New" covenant for yourself when it can be shown that such a "Re-Newed Covenant" of Jer. 31 has not begun yet, stands you outside of the saving Covenants with G-d. You might fool yourself but you don't fool G-d. Living apart from G-d through man-made covenants assures you of destruction. All this because you failed to study and accepted everything you were taught without your personal investigation. You literally end up as a Covenant-breaker outside the grace of G-d when you die; yet you were a member in good standing in your Christian Church and were friends with the Pastor and his wife. Because of your acceptance of Christianity's "New" Covenant, which can be traced to a non-existent covenant at present, you have refused the only salvation G-d made available to you and chosen to to walk in the way of "iniquity" as Yeshua warns us about in Matt. 7. Christianity exists today for the most part in a condition whereby it denies the Law, is ignorant of the Law, violates the Law, and Yeshua calls such conduct "wickedness" in Matt. 7 as I have shown you. Being destitute of the Law of Moses, which is the elaboration of the Laws of Noah, guarantees once the standing of "wickedness" before the throne of G-d in the World to Come. From such Yeshua teaches us he commands they depart. I don't know about you but I and my family don't plan to be in that number.

It is with much passion and hope I inform my readership of these truths in hopes they will discern truth from error and began a whole-hearted repentance from the lies and untruths of Gentile Christianity today and return to the faith once given to the Saints....true Biblical faith as manifested in Biblical Judaism whereby the non-Jew by faith and obedience is grafted into the life-saving sap of the Olive Tree of Israel.

BREAKING DOWN THE MIDDLE WALL OF PARTITION... RETURNING TO G-D'S TRUE SALVATION AS SEEN IN THE BIBLICAL FESTIVALS

It has always been G-d's intention to break down the middle wall of partition separating Jew and Gentile, thus uniting both Jew and Gentile as one with Him. It is G-d who is to be the Savior of the Gentiles (Isaiah 11:10, 42:6; Acts 2:39; Ephesians 2:11-18).

Isa. 11:10 And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek; and his rest shall be glorious. {glorious: Heb. glory}

Isa. 42:6 I the LORD have called thee in righteousness, and will hold thine hand, and will keep thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, for a light of the Gentiles;

Acts 2: 39 For the promise is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, [even] as many as the Lord our G-d shall call.

Eph 2:11 (KJV) Wherefore remember, that ye [being] in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; 12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without G-d in the world: 13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. 14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition [between us]; 15 Having abolished in his flesh the enmity, [even] the law of commandments [contained] in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man, [so] making peace; 16 And that he might reconcile both unto G-d in one body by the cross, having slain the enmity thereby: {thereby: or, in himself} 17 And came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh. 18 For through him we both have access by one Spirit unto the Father.

In the Old Testament (Hebrew Scriptures) G-d provided a written record of the Messiah to enable the Jewish people to recognize Him when He appeared. Yeshua of Nazareth is thought by many to be this this Messiah. The answer to that question is not as easy as it seems. We have on another site detailed factual information and presentation of this difficult issue which Jews and non-Jewish believers cannot seem to agree on. I suggest you look into the matter if you desire but this is not the issue of this article. Yet, even though many Jews of the Second Temple ear in the first century C.E. hoped and believed that Yeshua was to be manifested as the Messiah and fulfill the Jewish Scriptures, the powerful Jewish Temple leadership (Sadducees) rejected Yeshua as Israel's Messiah not only for themselves but officially for the people of Israel.

Ironically, the Gentiles of the world, through the ministry of the followers of Yeshua would embraced him as Israel's Messiah. As the apostle John wrote, "He came to his own and his own did not receive him. But as many received him, to them he gave the right to become children of G-d, to those who believe in his name." (John 1:11-12).

These Gentile followers of Yeshua experienced a spiritual new birth and became part of a company of people called "Israel." The Apostle Paul teaches us that Gentiles, who turn from idols to serve the living G-d, are grafted into Israel by faith; thereby becoming "fellow-citizens" with the saints.

THE GREAT SEPARATION BETWEEN JEW AND NON-JEW

Following the destruction of the Temple in 70 C.E., the assembly of Gentile Messianic Believers (Church) became more "Gentilized" under the influence of Rome and lost much if not all of the "Jewish Roots". Thus Jews and Christians began to go their separate ways. It wasn't long before Yeshua's Church was flooded with Gentile unbelievers who embraced the "Messianic-Christian faith" but never had a background in the Jewish faith. It is these Gentile "converts" who lacked the foundations of Torah and who would not accept the Jewish customs. These Gentile "converts" would forget one important thing: Jewish often meant BIBLICAL! Because of this lack of understanding of the Jewish faith, and distrusting things that are often different, these Gentile "converts" brought their hatred and bigotry against the Jews with them into this new Jewish faith. About the same time, some of the genuine Gentile Christian leaders developed a faulty theology that created an anti-Semitic mentality in the Gentile Church that further divided the Christian world from the Jews. These early anti-Jewish declarations laid the foundation for the tragic future of Jewish Christian relations that would see the Gentile Church lose sight of its Jewish roots and persecute the Jews down through the centuries.

G-D IS DOING A NEW THING IN OUR DAY...SHALL WE NOT SEE IT?

But in these last days, G-d is doing a marvelous thing. He is breaking down the walls of hate and misunderstanding that have divided the Jews and Gentile believers. He is sovereignty pouring out His Spirit on thousands of Jews to prepare them for the coming of the Messiah. At the same time, G-d is stirring in the hearts of Christians a holy love for the Jewish people and awakening them to the Jewish roots of their Christian faith.

Many Christians are realizing that the origin of our faith is Jerusalem, not Athens, Rome, Geneva, Wittenberg, Aldersgate, Azusa Street, Springfield, Nashville, Tulsa, etc.

As a result, Christian Churches around the world are reaching out to the Jewish people in their communities, singing songs from the Old Testament, rediscovering their Jewish roots and celebrating the Jewish Feasts. It is clearly G-d's appointed time to reconcile Jew and Gentile, binding us together by His Spirit.

THE CELEBRATION OF THE BIBLICAL FESTIVALS BY THE NON-JEWISH BELIEVER

Because of the prophetic season in which we are living, many Christian Churches are realizing that it is proper, good and pleasing to the Lord to celebrate the Jewish Feasts of Passover, Pentecost and Tabernacles (Romans 14:5-6). Not only that but when we study the original languages of the Bible, both Greek and Hebrew, we find that these Festivals are not merely suggested for the Gentiles to observe, but expected and commanded! [see Have We Misunderstood Paul and The Law].

THERE A NUMEROUS BENEFITS THAT ARE BEING EXPERIENCE BY CHURCHES WHO KEEP THE FESTIVALS

Some of these are:

- 1. Better understanding of the Bible
- 2. Rediscovery of the Jewish roots of Christianity
- 3. Fuller comprehension of G-d's plan of redemption
- 4. Deeper revelation of Yeshua
- 5. Greater insights into G-d's prophetic seasons
- 6. Clearer and more powerful teachings through visual aids
- 7. Discovery of the Biblical Church calendar.

Answer for yourself: What Church that desires more of G-d would not want these benefits!

You can realize them in your own congregation by celebrating the Feasts.

GETTING STARTED WITH THE PASSOVER

Historically, Passover marks the national liberation of the Hebrews from Egyptian slavery. Pesach, the Hebrew name of the feast literally means "the lamb". G-d instructed each family to take an unblemished year-old male lamb to their home on the tenth day of the first month, Nisan. This corresponds to the months of March and April. They were to examine the lamb for four days to see that it was perfect. On the fourth day at twilight (the beginning of the fifth day), they were to kill the lamb and take some of the lamb's blood and place it on the two doorposts and the lintel of their house. On the first Passover, the avenging angel of G-d killed every first born male throughout the land, from Pharaoh, to slave, to camel. The angel would "Passover" those homes that protected themselves by placing the blood of a lamb on their doorposts and lintels.

Today the Feast of Passover is celebrated by Jewish people and many Christian churches around the world with a Passover Seder which commemorates the liberation from Egyptian slavery which is a picture of G-d's salvation. This is a picture of the salvation provided by G-d to those who believe His Word and respond to it in faith and works. The Passover Seder is a meal with special foods, practices and Scripture readings. The Passover Seder commemorates the liberation from Egyptian slavery, in accordance with G-d's instructions (Lev. 23:1,4, Exodus 12:14,24-27).

Lev. 23:1 And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, ....

Lev. 23:4 These [are] the feasts of the LORD, [even] holy convocations, which ye shall proclaim in their seasons.

Exod. 12:14 And this day shall be unto you for a memorial; and ye shall keep it a feast to the LORD throughout your generations; ye shall keep it a feast by an ordinance for ever.

Exod. 12:24 (KJV) And ye shall observe this thing for an ordinance to thee and to thy sons for ever. 25 And it shall come to pass, when ye be come to the land which the LORD will give you, according as he hath promised, that ye shall keep this service. 26 And it shall come to pass, when your children shall say unto you, What mean ye by this service? 27 That ye shall say, It [is] the sacrifice of the LORD'S Passover, who passed over the houses of the children of Israel in Egypt, when he smote the Egyptians, and delivered our houses. And the people bowed the head and worshipped.

UNLEAVENED BREAD

Hag ha-Matsot, the Festival of Unleavened Bread (Ex. 12: 15). This stems from the commandment to eat unleavened bread (MATSAH) and the prohibition against eating HAMETS or leavened food, in commemoration of the Israelites' hasty exodus from Egypt when they had time to prepare only unleavened bread. While the prohibition against hametz applies to the entire festival, the commandment to eat matsah applies, strictly speaking, to the first night only. One needs to understand that after one receives the gift of salvation from HaShem which is by grace only, then he is obligated to "cast out the leaven" from his life. Leaven is used as a metaphor for "sin" in the Bible and it is understandable that after one comes to G-d then he needs to clean his life up in response to G-d's gracious gift of salvation. Thus "unleavened bread" in the next step for the Bible believer after his salvation experience.

THE FEAST OF PENTECOST

The Feast of Pentecost is celebrated on the sixth day of the Hebrew month of Sivan. This corresponds to the months of May and June on the Gentile calendar.

Historically, the main activity on the Feast of Pentecost was the presentation of a wave offering to the Lord, two loaves of baked bread with leaven (Lev. 23:15-21). The wave offering expressed the Hebrews' dependence on G-d for the harvest and their daily bread. This was a thanksgiving offering. Not only that but it is a picture of the people of G-d; two loaves representing the Jew and the non-Jew as the peoples of G-d.

Later when the Jews were dispersed among the nations, the Feast of Pentecost lost its primary significance as a harvest festival and was celebrated as a memorial to the time when G-d gave the law at Sinai. It is this "Law" which is given to both the Jew and the non-Jew through the various Covenant's of G-d. This is because the Jews have traditionally believed that G-d gave the law to Moses on the Day of Pentecost (Ex. 19:1,11).

Exod. 19:1 In the third month, when the children of Israel were gone forth out of the land of Egypt, the same day came they [into] the wilderness of Sinai.

Exod 19:11 And be ready against the third day: for the third day the LORD will come down in the sight of all the people upon mount Sinai.

The Day of Pentecost did not originate with Christianity, but it is the day when the Jews would be in Jerusalem to celebrate the Feast and the giving of the law (understood at their Covenant responsibilities).

From Luke's account in Acts 2 we see the marvelous timing of G-d. Thousands of Jews had journeyed to Jerusalem to celebrate the Feast of Pentecost. It was then that the followers of Yeshua waiting in the upper room were filled with the Holy Spirit. They then began to worship G-d in foreign languages that were spoken and understood by the Jewish pilgrims. There was such a loud noise accompanying this experience, that it attracted the attention of the Jewish visitors who went to see what the commotion was all about. Peter then stood up and preached a bold sermon to this Jewish crowd.

This outpouring of the Holy Spirit was taking place on the very day when the Jews were offering the two wave loaves to G-d and celebrating the law symbolizing their dependence on G-d. One wave loaf symbolized the Jews and the other the Gentiles who would also receive the Holy Spirit in like manner as recorded in Acts 10.

It is this Spirit of the L-rd which is given to empower the child of G-d, now saved, and "cleaned up from his sin through repentance and obedience to the commands of G-d," to live the victorious life over sin. It is this "anointing" which empowers the child of G-d to live the mitzvoth and the commands of G-d. Even Yeshua said his yoke was easy. G-d made it so easy for us if we will lean upon Him and His power in us that enables us to live a Torah obedience and love filled life.

THE FEAST OF TABERNACLES (SUKKOT)

The last major feast on the Jewish calendar is Tabernacles. It is celebrated in the Fall in the Jewish month of Tishri, which corresponds to the month of September/October on the Gentile calendar.

The Feast of Tabernacles came at the final ingathering of the harvest season. The fruit of the land had been reaped so the people could rest from their labors. It was a time of great rejoicing and was celebrated from the fifteenth to the twenty-first. Then on the twenty-second (the eighth day), there was a special Sabbath which was a day of rest characterized by further rejoicing (Lev. 23:33-41).

Levi 23:33 (KJV) And the LORD spake unto Moses, saying, 34 Speak unto the children of Israel, saying, The fifteenth day of this seventh month [shall be] the feast of tabernacles [for] seven days unto the LORD. 35 On the first day [shall be] an holy convocation: ye shall do no servile work [therein]. 36 Seven days ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD: on the eighth day shall be an holy convocation unto you; and ye shall offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD: it [is] a solemn assembly; [and] ye shall do no servile work [therein]. {solemn...: Heb. day of restraint} 37 These [are] the feasts of the LORD, which ye shall proclaim [to be] holy convocations, to offer an offering made by fire unto the LORD, a burnt offering, and a meat offering, a sacrifice, and drink offerings, every thing upon his day: 38 Beside the sabbaths of the LORD, and beside your gifts, and beside all your vows, and beside all your freewill offerings, which ye give unto the LORD. 39 Also in the fifteenth day of the seventh month, when ye have gathered in the fruit of the land, ye shall keep a feast unto the LORD seven days: on the first day [shall be] a Sabbath, and on the eighth day [shall be] a Sabbath. 40 And ye shall take you on the first day the boughs of goodly trees, branches of palm trees, and the boughs of thick trees, and willows of the brook; and ye shall rejoice before the LORD your G-d seven days. {boughs of goodly trees: Heb. fruit of, etc} 41 And ye shall keep it a feast unto the LORD seven days in the year. [It shall be] a statute for ever in your generations: ye shall celebrate it in the seventh month.

The primary activity during this feast is the building of booths or shelters (Sukkah). G-d commanded the Hebrews to build shelters to live in during the Feast as a reminder of how He cared for them during their wilderness wanderings and the fact that they were pilgrims passing through this life (Lev. 23:42-44).

Levi 23:42 (KJV) Ye shall dwell in booths seven days; all that are Israelites born shall dwell in booths: 43 That your generations may know that I made the children of Israel to dwell in booths, when I brought them out of the land of Egypt: I [am] the LORD your G-d. 44 And Moses declared unto the children of Israel the feasts of the LORD.

The shelters were loosely constructed and decorated and the roof covered with branches. This allowed the Hebrews to see through the roof into heaven and be reminded of an even greater rest and rejoicing when Messiah would rule on the earth. Thus, the Feast of Tabernacles symbolizes the Messianic age.

The Feast of Tabernacles has such universal significance in G-d's redemptive program, that He requires all nations to go to Jerusalem to celebrate this feast in the world to come (Zech. 14:16).

Zech. 14:16 And it shall come to pass, [that] every one that is left of all the nations which came against Jerusalem shall even go up from year to year to worship the King, the LORD of hosts, and to keep the feast of tabernacles.

I, as well as the untold multitudes in the various Messianic Ministries of the world, rejoice to see the many thousands of Gentile believers which are returning to the Biblical Roots of their faith in this day and time as a sign of the prophetic season in which we are living.

WHAT SHOULD THE BIBLICAL FESTIVALS MEAN TO THE CHRISTIAN?

I am aware that many teach that the Festivals were fulfilled in the life and ministry of Yeshua. Much of that understanding is taken from the Gospel of John and other passages in the New Testament. It is not my intent here to discuss such a matter, but when one undergoes a serious and intensive study of the New Testament as compared with the Old Testament for accuracy one is saddened by the gross misapplication of Old Testament passages, mistranslation of Old Testament passages, and the hundreds of Old Testament passages taken out of context in the New Testament which are purposefully manipulated such to proved "false proofs" that Yeshua fulfilled the Old Testament prophetic passages and the Biblical Feasts. I used to believe that as well from reading the New Testament, but after years of serious study, where I compared line upon line of Old Testament Masoretic text from the Jewish Scriptures and not the "altered" Christian Old Testaments with New Testament text, I see the error of my previous religious belief system. I had put my faith in the wrong document. The bottom line for now is that we cannot be certain that Yeshua was the Messiah or will be the Messiah when he comes. I have my personal reasons to believe that when Messiah appears he probably will be Yeshua, but to twist the Old Testament and do great injustice to G-d's Holy Word in order to "force" an interpretation or to make it look as if Yeshua fulfilled the Old Testament when this message was presented to non-Jews of the first century who knew no better, is no longer an option for me. Time will tell if Yeshua will ultimately fulfill the prophecies of Moses and the Prophets and be the legitimate Messiah of Israel. If you find it hard to believe what I just said, then I suggest you purchase only one book and be awakened to the serious flaws in the Christian Bible and the New Testament which has so severely been "added to and taken from" by the Roman Church over the centuries: Antisemitism In The New Testament by Lillian Freudmann. Read it and you will never be sorry and then you will not be able to question what I say or write.

IN SUMMARY...G-D'S TRUE PLAN OF SALVATION

Having said that, then let me explain G-d's true plan of salvation as seen in the Biblical Festivals as taught in the Bible Yeshua used...the Holy Tanakh:

- G-d makes His salvation available through faith as pictured in the physical salvation of Israel from Egypt at the Passover where G-d passed over those who responded to Him in faith and obedience. Works accompany such belief for if the Israelites had not responded accurately to their faith and failed to apply the blood to their door then they would likewise had died.
- Once we are saved at Passover one comes to Unleavened Bread as it is time to get the "leaven" (picture of sin in the Bible) or sin out of our lives. This is a sanctification whereby we make ourselves through repentance and obedience to the Word of G-d acceptable vessels for G-d's Spirit to inhabit. G-d's Spirit comes to such a one in the fulfillment of Pentecost.
- We then leave the first harvest season during the year and encounter the dry period as symbolized by the whole of life of mankind. Once we are saved, cleansed, and filled with G-d's Spirit, we are equipped to live out our lives where we must deal with the good and the bad as we encounter them in life. Sometimes life is hard as seen in the dry season following Pentecost; yet we have the Spirit of HaShem to comfort and sustain us.
- The next Festival is Rosh HaShannah which symbolizes our death at the end of our life. It is appointed for man to once die and then the judgment which is also a second part of Rosh HaShannah.
- After the resurrection at Rosh HaShannah and the judgment and reward for believers as well as non-believers, then one awaits final atonement at Yom Kippur.
- The only thing lacking is the eternal dwelling of the Spirit of G-d with mankind at the Festival of Tabernacles. This is the eternal Sabbath where G-d and man are one.

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that not only did the above plan of YHVH'S salvation make sense, but Yeshua's name was not mentioned once?

This is only a summary to say the least of what the Biblical Festivals reveal...the Plan of Salvation of G-d. And if you noticed, this plan is very understandable to the Jew and non-Jew without trying to "force" Yeshua to fulfill passages that yet remain unfulfilled. Sadly the Christian Church has not heard this message and yet it is the very core of the whole of the Bible Yeshua used! So sad!

It is these Biblical Festivals, correctly understood as given above, which will further enable the Jew and the non-Jew to become one in expectation of the coming of the Messiah.

More about the festivals when your see that section on the website. Shalom.

WHO IS EPHRAIM AND COULD IT BE ME?

Answer for yourself: Who is Ephraim?

Such a simple question, however, as with other Bible concepts, there are levels of understanding and mysteries and mounds of hidden truths about G-d and G-d's plan for the Gentiles attending those levels.

The first book of the Hebrew Bible, "Bereshit", or Genesis explains that Ephraim is the son of Joseph and his Egyptian bride Asenath (notice she is a Gentile), who happened to be a daughter of the priest of On (notice they had a pagan religion). On was a capital city, known as Heliopolis in the Greek language and Beth-Shemesh in Hebrew (the house of the SUN). Notice "Sun worship" was the main religion of the pagans. Notice also, that as Joseph married into a pagan family which had a false religion, many of G-d's children are likewise in relationships with the world as well as religion that mixes G-d's truth with pagan beliefs; tragically most are not aware of it. Joseph's wife was an Egyptian (Gentile), and the daughter of the high priest that served the chief "god" of Egypt, Aten.

It is interesting to note that according to current rules for acceptance as a Jewish citizen in Israel the mother must be Jewish for the children to be considered Jewish. Thus, Ephraim and Manassah clearly could not qualify as Jewish by today's standards. If seen through today's traditions, Ephraim and Manassah would be considered genetically "half-Israelites and half-Gentiles". But they could be considered Jewish by G-d's standards!

It is a well know fact in the medical profession that the blood inheritance passes from the father to the children, not from the mother. This is very, very important.

PROMISES MADE TO JACOB...LATER HANDED DOWN

Now concerning the promises made to Jacob's bloodline and his descendants, Ephraim is Jacob's choice to receive the birthright and the double portion promised to the firstborn of Israel (Deut. 21:17; Gen. 43:33; 1 Chron. 5:2; Ezek. 37:19). Thus we see that Ephraim is synonymous with the double portion. Jacob, on his deathbed, promised that Ephraim would become a "melo goyim", meaning a "fullness of nations" or "multitude of Gentiles" (Gen. 49:19). Notice that a Tribe or Tribes of Jews were to be responsible for a multitude of Gentiles in some unspecified manner (at least at the time of the writing of Gen. 49).

Understanding that as Christians you are connected in some way to Ephraim, it becomes clearer when we understand that the ten Tribes of Israel (called Ephraim) in the Bible, were captured and dispersed into all the nations by Assyria in the 8th century B.C. It was through this that they in-bred with Gentiles and furthered the spread of Monotheism to all the world. "Unless a seed falls to the ground and dies it abides along, but if it dies, it bears much fruit." This is exactly what happened, for out of the "death" of Ephraim came "life and hope" to the Gentiles. This laid the foundation for the success of the Covenant of Noah along with the Laws of Noah which would go into all the world at a later date.

As Ephraimites, we understand this to be part of the foundation and promise of our inheritance as a part of Israel. That's right, as part of Israel. Having begun our repentance in studying and correcting our erroneous beliefs, we now can see the truth of who we are as Israelites. We must understand that only Yahweh knows for sure if "Ephraimite blood" is in our lineages and heritages, but be not mistaken, it is in many. Thus the link to Israel. Having come to this understanding it is easy to understand Jeremiah as he cries out in 31:19 "Surely after that I was turned, I repented" (of false beliefs and religious practices learned from the Gentiles during exposure as captives). Have you? This is one of the reasons we study our Hebrew Roots.

The Bible tells us that all who are in Messiah are the seed of Abraham (Gal. 3:29), and that we are called through Isaac's seed also (Rom. 9:7). Isaac's seed was realized in Jacob, his son, whose name was changed to Israel. Through Jacob (Israel) the seed and promise passed through his son Joseph and later through his son Ephraim, or possibly one of the other tribes taken captive to us, the Gentiles of today. Now get this!

Answer for yourself: Even as our Jewish brothers believe they are physical Israelites, can we not understand that many Gentiles can trace their blood lines back to physical Israelites that in-bred with Gentiles over the centuries?

BEING GRAFTED INTO THE ISRAEL OF G-D

Both houses (Jew and Gentile) must receive the adoption of Yahweh into the house of Israel as sons and daughters of Abba "for all have sinned and come short of the glory of G-d" (Rom. 3:23).

Several conversion rules apply to us as Gentiles:

- Ex. 12:48-49: "And when a stranger (Gentile) shall sojourn with thee, and will keep the Passover to the Lord, let all his males be circumcised, and then let him come near and keep it; and he shall be as one that is born in the land: for no uncircumcised person shall eat thereof. One law shall be to him that is home born, and unto the stranger that sojourner among you."
- Lev. 19:34 "And if a stranger sojourn with thee in your land, ye shall not vex him."
- Num. 9:14 "And if a stranger shall sojourn among you, and will keep the Passover unto the Lord; according to the manner thereof, so shall he do: ye shall have one ordinance, both for the stranger, and for him that was born in the land."
- Isa. 56:6-8 "Also the sons of the stranger, that join themselves to the Lord, to serve him, and to love the name of the Lord, to be his servants, every one that keepeth the Sabbath from polluting it, and taketh hold of my covenant; Even them will I bring to my holy mountain, and make them joyful in the house of prayer: their burnt offerings and their sacrifices shall be accepted upon mine altar; for mine house shall be called a house of prayer for all people. The Lord G-d which gathereth the outcasts of Israel saith, Yet will I gather others to him, beside those that are gathered unto him."
- Eph. 2:14,19 "For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us; Having abolished in his flesh the enmity, even the law of commandments contained in ordinances; for to make in himself of twain one new man, so making peace;"
- I Cor. 5:7 "Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Messiah our Passover is sacrificed for us:"
- Rom. 2:29 "But he is a Jew, which is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, and not in the letter; whose praise is not of men, but of G-d."

For Judah, as opposed to the non-Jew as seen above, their descendance has been traced through the mother since the Babylonian captivity, and for very good reasons. Jewish women often had no control over who they were forced to lay with, and the Jewishness of the father could never be assured. The Sages (Torah scholars) determined that only the Jewishness of the mother could be reasonably known, and descendance through the mother seemed the only possibility for guaranteeing the survival of a distinct people.

I believe, however, that the bloodline inheritance follows the seed of the father, not the mother. Thus, for the Jewish people, the inheritance of the bloodline of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, is no better known today than it is for Ephraim. Only Yahweh knows who is the seed of Abraham and some who call themselves Jews today are not of Abraham's seed (Rev.3:9). Likewise, there are those in the Church who cannot prove or trace their link to Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Ephraim, but it is there regardless. Still, the Lord will fulfill His promise to the Fathers in that they will have physical heirs as numerous as the stars of the sky who abide by the faith of their forefathers.

Answer for yourself: What is the faith of the Fathers?

Answer for yourself: If it is Apostolic Doctrine, first of all how certain are you that you are aware of what it actually entails as it existed in the first century before Rome changed it?

Answer for yourself: Without such in-depth knowledge are you certain that you, as a believer in G-d, is obeying it? Sounds like many Christians need to study their Hebrew Roots, would you not agree?

Let us not forget that Ephraim is of the seed of the patriarchs, and there was no possibility of dilutions or contamination of inheritance by having an Egyptian mother, so there is no possibility that the seed of "any" Israelites has ever been lost (Amos 9:9). Yahweh knows who we are and He knows where we live! You can now see that the blood-inheritance of Israel has been handed down by the fathers in an unbroken chain that stretches all the way back to father Abraham, without interruption. Hallelujah!

No one can tell who is of Judah, or who is of Ephraim...except Yahweh. It is my sneaking suspicion that as G-d promised to restore both Houses of Israel (Judah and Ephraim-Gentiles) before the coming of Messiah, that the great awakening of the Restoration of Hebrew Roots to the Christian faith is G-d restoring proper understanding and proper religious practice to Gentile believers (who were once part of Ephraim) in Messiah. This "awakening" is seen in the repentance and return to obedience by the non-Jewish believer, the Christian, to their Torah, festivals, traditions, statutes, ordinances, etc. There must be a return before Messiah comes. This explains the phenomena today of rediscovering Hebrew Roots to the Christian Church. You are part of that glorious plan of G-d.

The people of Israel are Ephraimites (Gentiles Believers) as well as those of Judah (Jews), both journeying in a world that knows us not. It is such a tragedy that the church is not aware of their heritage, let alone their future. Together, Jews and Christians, make up the Two Houses of Israel. Let me interject that Joseph named his second son Ephraim, "For G-d has made me FRUITFUL in the land of my affliction" (Gen. 41:52). The feminine version of Ephraim is "Ephrathah" which happens to be the name of Caleb's second wife. By this second marriage was the lineage of Messiah continued (1 Chron. 2:19). The names Ephraim and Ephrathah, are derived from an ancient Babylonian root word "ephah", meaning "measure." "Ephlahl" is another name derived for this root meaning "the act of JUDGING." "Ephah" is another variation on the theme of measure, meaning "as a breath." If we tie the meaning of all these names together, we get a beautiful picture of Ephraimite-Gentiles.

The people of Israel are Ephraimites and Judahites which are literally the breath of G-d, breathed out into the world to mingle, but never to mix and take upon themselves the religion of the pagans. We are called and ordained to bear fruit and it should remain. As the end of time, as Israel we will sit at Messiah's side, and with him and through him, we will judge the earth. Though made a little lower than angels, we will be exalted for his Name sake, to rule (measure, judge) and reign and live forevermore as one people in him.

To date, the truths about Ephraim and Judah, or the two houses of Israel, has, for the most part, remained a mystery. Today, G-d is lifting the veil from our eyes, that we can see the truths about Israel. With respect for one another, as equal heirs, may Ephraim (churches) and Judah (synagogues) begin to come together in our Lord.

For this to happen will require the forgiveness of the Jew toward the Gentile Church for all the sorrow she has inflicted upon her "brother" and a great humility, knowledge, confession, and repentance from the Gentile Church as she come to grips that her worship of G-d is thoroughly pagan and an offense and abomination before G-d. This is the way G-d would have it.

THE TWO STICKS OF JUDAH AND EPHRAIM...WHAT IS THE MESSAGE TO CHRISTIANITY?

Ezek 37:15-28 15

*The word of the LORD came again unto me, saying, 16 Moreover, thou son of man, take thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and for all the house of Israel his companions: 17 And join them one to another into one stick; and they shall become one in thine hand. 18 And when the children of thy people shall speak unto thee, saying, Wilt thou not shew us what thou meanest by these? 19 Say unto them, Thus saith the Lord G-d; Behold, I will take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his fellows, and will put them with him, even with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall be one in mine hand. 20 And the sticks whereon thou writest shall be in thine hand before their eyes. 21 And say unto them, Thus saith the Lord G-d; Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land: 22 And I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all: 23 Neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions: but I will save them out of all their dwellingplaces, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be my people, and I will be their G-d. 24 And David my servant shall be king over them; and they all shall have one shepherd: they shall also walk in my judgments, and observe my statutes, and do them. 25 And they shall dwell in the land that I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they, and their children, and their children's children for ever: and my servant David shall be their prince for ever. 26 Moreover I will make a covenant of peace with them; it shall be an everlasting covenant with them: and I will place them, and multiply them, and will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for evermore. 27 My tabernacle also shall be with them: yea, I will be their G-d, and they shall be my people. 28 And the heathen shall know that I the LORD do sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore. ## UNDERSTANDING THE PROPHECY

The plan of Yahweh in the latter days is to reunite these two sticks of Judah (the two southern tribes) and Ephraim (the ten northern tribes) into one Kingdom of Israel with the Messiah as the King. A great deal of the prophetic books are devoted to this theme alone. Judah is the tribe currently recognized as occupying the country of Israel.

Prophecy is not always easy to decipher and understand. But the above passage has very important implications for the Christian Church in these last days. Let us begin our investigation looking into the identity of "Ephraim".

Answer for yourself: But who is Ephraim?

In this study we will see that Ephraim was called by the name "Israel", and is referred to, as such, in the prophetic writings. This was prophesied by Jacob in Genesis 48:16. And according to Ezekiel 37:16, the stick of Ephraim is the same as the stick of Joseph.

Gen 48:16 The Angel which redeemed me from all evil, bless the lads; and let my name be named on them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac; and let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth. {grow: Heb. as fishes do increase}

Ezek. 37:16 Moreover, thou son of man, take thee one stick, and write upon it, For Judah, and for the children of Israel his companions: then take another stick, and write upon it, For Joseph, the stick of Ephraim, and [for] all the house of Israel his companions:

We will also see that, as the people of Yahweh, we are in error if we call ourselves "Gentiles" once coming to faith in G-d. Many of us are, in fact, descendants of the lost sheep of the house of Israel. It is these sheep alone for whom Yeshua came (Matt. 15:24), as prophesied in Jeremiah 31:10-11.

Matt. 15:24 But he answered and said, I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

Jer. 31:10 Hear the word of the LORD, O ye nations, and declare [it] in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd [doth] his flock. 11 For the LORD hath redeemed Jacob, and ransomed him from the hand of [him that was] stronger than he.

Paul said in Romans 9:4 that the "New" (better understood as Re-Newed) Covenant applies to and belongs to Israel alone.

4 Who are Israelites; to whom [pertaineth] the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service [of G-d], and the promises; {covenants: or, testaments}

When Yeshua taught us to pray "thy Kingdom come," it was the kingdom of Israel about which he was speaking. This was perfectly understood by the Apostles (Acts 1:6) as they asked the resurrected Yeshua if he was at that time going to restore the kingdom to Israel, and not the church, but the false teachers of Israel today are hiding these miraculous truths from the sheep.

Acts 1:6 When they therefore were come together, they asked of him, saying, Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?

The Kingdom to come will not be a kingdom of Gentiles, but a kingdom of the restored twelve tribes of Israel They will be awakened in the land of Egypt (allegorically) and cry out to be released and restored to the land promised to their father Abraham.

Yahweh did not redeem the Israelites from Egypt until they cried out to Him because of their bondage. G-d is waiting for us to cry out to Him to bring us home (to our true heritage and religious roots). This will be the time when Yahweh will redeem His people from the four corners of the earth (Isa. 11:10-13) and is why the four angels are told to hold back the four winds from the four corners until all are sealed (Rev. 7).

Isaiah 11:10 And in that day there shall be a root of Jesse, which shall stand for an ensign of the people; to it shall the Gentiles seek: and his rest shall be glorious. {glorious: Heb. glory} 11 And it shall come to pass in that day, [that] the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people, which shall be left, from Assyria, and from Egypt, and from Pathros, and from Cush, and from Elam, and from Shinar, and from Hamath, and from the islands of the sea. 12 And he shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth. {corners: Heb. wings.

This seal, as revealed in Revelation 14:1, is His Holy Name. Moses had said in Exodus that the first thing the children of Israel would want to know when he returned would be what His name was.

Rev. 14:1 And I looked, and, lo, a Lamb stood on the mount Zion and with him an hundred forty [and] four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads.

The new (repaired-renewed) covenant, as prophesied in Jeremiah 31:31-34, which awaits fulfillment today, when the two houses of Israel become one, and which is now only "partially established" according to Hebrews 8:8-12, still contains Yahweh's Sabbaths (high-sabbaths), which are a shadow of things to come (Col. 2:17). This means that the sabbaths, as recorded in Leviticus 23, pertain to Israel, both then and today.

These sabbaths (Ex. 31:13), which are a sign between G-d and His people forever, will be the way of life in the Kingdom.

Yahweh's Kingdom, which will have no end, will result in the cleansing of man and the earth, that we may dwell together with our Heavenly Father Yahweh forever!

Harden not your hearts through unbelief as Israel of old did, but rather let us "labor therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief" (Heb. 4:11).

ISRAEL'S CALLING

The primary meaning of the word "roots" is the part of the plant that fixes itself in the earth and by which the plant is nourished. The word also signifies a fundamental quality which, when multiplied by itself, produces a given quantity. A root can be a word which expresses its primary or essential meaning, as distinguished from a derivative. Basically, the word means foundation, basis, or origin.

Remember the movie bearing the name back in the early 1980's? It sparked the Black Americans' interest to know more about their past. The theme was to direct attention to the beginning of a people who were forcefully moved to a different land and enslaved. The movie chronicled the lives of the enslaved through the years leading up to the present day. It won many awards for its brilliant depiction of the Black American people. A strong sense of identity was a result of the movie. In less than 200 years, the descendants from Africa were no longer considered Africans, but Americans. They had absorbed the culture of the land they were transported to, and through the years had gained freedom and had multiplied from a minority to the second largest group of people in America, according to the 1980 census.

The purpose of this information is not to deal with the issue of race, but to establish certain facts from recent history that I believe pertain to an even deeper part of our history. The roots, or origins, of man hold a mystery which involves the future Kingdom of Yahweh. You will not see it at the movies, and it will not win Oscars or awards. It will not even win the Nobel Peace Prize, but it will be the most glorious event that mankind has ever witnessed. The revealing of those to whom the promises pertain and just how enlarged that nation has become will be the mystery disclosed. Now with the eyes of faith, behold the power of Yahweh to keep His promises.

ISRAEL....RECIPIENT OF THE PROMISES OF G-D

The Apostle Paul records for us in Romans chapter 9, verses 4 and 5 that there is a list of things pertaining to Israel and not the church:

"Theirs is the adoption as sons; theirs the divine glory, the covenants, the receiving of the law, the temple worship and the promises. Theirs are the patriarchs, and from them is traced the human ancestry of Messiah." (NIV)

To uncover a mystery, we should go back to the beginning. Remember Yeshua's words in Matthew 20:16 and 22:14, "Many are called but few are chosen." In Genesis 12 the calling and choosing of a man, Abram, is recorded. Later his name was changed to Abraham. Even the simple things of the Word of Yahweh have such a profound meaning. The call to Abram was to come out of his country, away from his kindred, his father's house, and to go to a land that Yahweh would show him.

Answer for yourself: Why?

Answer for yourself: Isn't the faith of Abraham what Yahweh is looking for in His sons today? Verses 2 and 3 of Genesis 12 sets forth the promises, "And I will make of you a great nation, and I will bless you, and make your name great; and you shall be a blessing: and I will bless them that bless you, and curse him that curses you: and in you shall all families of the earth be blessed." According to these verses, Yahweh, through Abram, would make a great nation and also bless all the families of the earth, which would have to include all nations, not just those which would come from the twelve sons.

Before leaving Genesis; let us look at some parallels. Notice that there was a famine in the land and Abram took his wife and all his substance into Egypt. There the identity of Abram's wife was obscured as Pharaoh took her for himself. But Yahweh brought about great plagues upon Pharaoh and his house and caused the release of Abram and his wife, Sarai. Notice Abram left Egypt with great riches of gold and cattle.

These events correlate with the Exodus some 400 years to come. Ecclesiastes 1:9, "What has been will be again, what has been done will be done again; there is nothing new under the sun." The Word of Yahweh tells us that history is repetitive, so it should not surprise us that this Exodus will be seen in type yet in the future. Later we will see just how this relates to us.

Remember Paul said in reference to Israel that theirs are the patriarchs. Abraham is the father of the nation of Israel. In Genesis 13:16 Yahweh said that He would make the seed of Abraham "as the dust of the earth: so that if a man can number the dust of the earth, then shall your seed also be numbered." The nation of Israel was numbered by David with grave and deadly results as the consequence; 70,000 men of Israel died! (1 Chron. 21:14) Yahweh did not want the children of Israel numbered.

Answer for yourself: Why?

Because He was not finished with the promise made to Abraham even in David's day. In 1 Chronicles 27:23 David did not number those under twenty years because Yahweh said He would increase Abraham's seed "like the stars of heaven." Yahweh told Moses that when the children of Israel were numbered they had to pay a ransom, half a shekel for each man according to the shekel of the sanctuary, so that Israel would not suffer a plague from Yahweh (Ex. 38:26). It appears that this was to be done in conjunction with the Day of Atonement, not whenever man wanted it, just as the priest was not to enter into the Holy of Holies whenever he wanted. Also, they were only to number from twenty years old and up.

Yahweh spoke unto Abraham at least five times concerning his seed. The third time was in Genesis 15:5. Here, Abraham was over eighty years old and still without an heir. His name was still Abram as Yahweh again made a promise concerning his seed, that they would number as the stars of heaven. Even though Abram and Sarai were yet childless, Abram believed Yahweh. The belief and hope of things not yet seen were counted to him as righteousness before he received the promise. So it is for us if we truly believe that Yahweh can and will perform the promise to Abraham.

It is still yet to be finished and requires the eyes of faith to know that we ourselves may be counted as Abraham's seed.

Answer for yourself: Can you see how the Bible is a whole book and that even in Genesis we have our roots?

Some believe that the reference in Deuteronomy 10:22 where it says, "Your fathers who went down into Egypt were seventy in all, and now Yahweh your Elohim has made you as numerous as the stars in the sky," fulfilled the promise to Abraham. Psalm 147 tells us that Yahweh knows the number of the stars and can call them all by name! Now we know that Yahweh made the heavens and all that is in them. When Yahweh told Abraham that his seed would number as the stars, Abraham could not number them, but Yahweh knew what He was promising. In the book, Science and the Bible, page 11, is the following about astronomy: Ptolemy counted 1,056 stars, Tycho Brahe cataloged 777 stars, and Johannes Kepler counted 1,005 stars. The total number of stars visible to the naked eye is about 4,000. Yet Jeremiah 33:22 says, "As the host of heaven cannot be numbered, neither the sand of the sea measured: so will I multiply the seed of David My servant, and the Levites that minister unto Me." The Word of Yahweh says that the number of stars cannot be numbered by man, but, remember, Yahweh knows them all by name.

Answer for yourself: Does science confirm the Bible?

Before the invention of the telescope man could not see the depth of creation. But now, astronomers estimate that there are at least 10 to the 26th power (that is, a hundred-million-billion-billion) stars. Truly, the stars cannot be numbered. If one could count 10 numbers a second, it would take him at least a thousand -million - billion years to count to 10 to the 26th power. Yet Abraham believed Yahweh! He didn't ask for a count of the stars or for proof that He could do it--he just believed.

Answer for yourself: Do you?

Truly the Bible records in Hebrews 11:6 that "without faith it is impossible to please Him: for he that comes to Yahweh must believe that He is, and that He is a rewarder of them that diligently seek Him." Hebrews 2:16, "For surely it is not angels he helps, but Abraham's descendants." Sarai believed that Yahweh had restrained her from bearing, and so she had sent Abraham into Hagar, her handmaid. The fruit of that union was not of faith, yet Yahweh said that He would multiply this seed [still the seed of Abraham] innumerable also. But this seed would be as a wild man with his hand on every man and every man's hand on him. He is promised nevertheless to dwell in the presence of all his brethren, Genesis 16:10-12.

When Abram was ninety-nine years old Yahweh established a covenant with him and said that he would be a "father of many nations." This would have to include Ishmael. Here Yahweh changed Abram's name to Abraham (father of many). The importance of faith in the promises made to Abraham cannot be overstated .

The term "everlasting covenant" is used in Genesis 17:7 in referring to the Abrahamic Covenant.

Answer for yourself: Did this "everlasting Abrahamic covenant" stop at some point in time?

Answer for yourself: The Covenant said what?

It said that Yahweh would be an Almighty One to Abraham's seed and that He would give them the land He had shown to Abraham--the promised land! The token of that Covenant was circumcision. Circumcision was not the covenant. The Covenant was the promise of an inheritance to Abraham and his seed and that Yahweh would be their Almighty to protect, feed, care, love, and even save them from sin (the enmity of the flesh).

ISAAC, THE SEED OF THE PROMISE

Yahweh told Abraham that Sarah (her name now changed to reflect what she was to be) would be the "mother of nations" and that her son was to be named Isaac. He was to be the seed of promise, the house built by faith. The "everlasting Covenant" was to be established and re-newed with him and his seed after him, verse 19.

But it was also Abraham's desire that Ishmael would live before Yahweh as recorded in Genesis 17:18. In verse 20, Yahweh did hear Abraham's concern about his son, Ishmael, and promised to bless him also by making him the father of 12 princes and a great nation. Just as Abraham was a loving father and concerned about all his seed, so Yahweh, the perfect Father, is concerned about all His creation. This is why He established through Isaac a way to bless all nations!

In Genesis 21, Isaac was born, 25 years after Yahweh brought Abraham out from his kinsmen, country, and showed him the promised land, promising it to him and his seed. When Isaac was weaned, Abraham held a great feast, during which Ishmael mocked Isaac. It was after this that Sarah asked Abraham to cast out the bondwoman and her son, Ishmael. Yahweh told Abraham to do so, even though it grieved him. Again it is stated in verse 13 that Ishmael would be made into a nation because he was the seed of Abraham.

Faith with works proved to be perfect. In Genesis 22 Yahweh asked Abraham to offer up his son, Isaac, as a sacrifice. Abraham planned to do just exactly that, but when Isaac asked his father where the sacrifice was, Abraham said that Yahweh would provide a lamb.

Answer for yourself: Isn't that just what He did? Yahweh provided.

Isaac was from two people who were beyond their years of reproduction, yet Abraham knew that Yahweh was right in all that He asked him to do. When Abraham bound Isaac, laid him upon the wood, and stretched forth his hand to slay him, then Yahweh knew that Abraham would not withhold even his only son to obey. Yahweh stopped Abraham and provided a ram caught by the horns in a thicket. There Abraham offered the ram as a ransom for Isaac, provided by Yahweh.

Now, having read about this everlasting covenant, we can see why Paul said that it pertains to Israel.

Answer for yourself: But what about the rest of the world?

Answer for yourself: Did Yahweh forget about them? No, He did not.

Answer for yourself: Did not Yahweh say to Abraham that through him all nations would be blessed, but what was "this blessing" and how was it to be offered? Could this "blessing" be the knowledge and Covenants of G-d being made available to those who were estranged from G-d?

Answer for yourself: Is receiving this "blessing" according to a perfect heavenly pattern, or is it according to the various ways that different men and different denominations think it should be?

Answer for yourself: Was there a pattern to be followed, and have we done that in teaching the opportunity for Eternal Life to the non-Jew?

Answer for yourself: You might not think this next question is related, but it is. Could anyone enter the Holy of Holies or just the High Priest?

Answer for yourself: Could he go in when he felt like it or just on the Day of Atonement, or were there proper procedures to be followed to experience the reality of G-d?

Answer for yourself: Why did Yahweh choose only the Levites of all the tribes to do His service?

Remember that it was the Levite's and the priest's duty to teach Israel to distinguish between the clean and unclean so that all Israel, not just the Levites, pleased Yahweh. Through just one tribe Yahweh caused all tribes to be blessed through teaching them His truth. This was to be the pattern whereby the non-Jew (as seen in Ephraim) be taught the truths of G-d by those who were entrusted with them. I need you to understand that there was a "pattern" in these "teachings" once given to the non-Jew and this "pattern" had to be followed. This same understanding will be applied not only to Covenants but the non-Jew's inclusion into the Israel of G-d.

Next we will look at the nation of Israel from the Exodus to the captivity and will see if Yahweh was faithful to His promise given to Abraham or if Israel nullified that promise.

Answer for yourself: Where does the Messiah fit into this promise if it still exists?

Answer for yourself: What about the "New Testament" assembly and its place in this promise?

THE UNCHANGEABLE PROMISE

Yahweh had provided a sacrifice--the ram--as a ransom for Isaac. In Genesis 22:15 we read, "And the angel of Yahweh called to Abraham out of heaven a second time, And said, `By Myself have I sworn, says Yahweh, for because you have done this thing, and have not withheld your son, your only son: That in blessing I will bless you, and in multiplying I will multiply your seed as the stars of the heaven, and as the sand which is on the seashore; and your seed shall possess the gate of his enemies; And in your seed shall all the nations of the earth be blessed; because you have obeyed my voice." Notice if you will the condition for the blessing...."you obeyed My voice." This has major implications when we look at if these prior Covenants and Laws and Commandments have passed away as the New Testament would lead us to believe.

Again, we have the promise given to Abraham that his seed would be as the stars of heaven, that they would be as sand on the seashore, and that they would possess the gate of their enemies. As we shall see, Yahweh kept His promise to Abraham.

Paul tells us in Hebrews 6:13, "For when Yahweh made a promise to Abraham, since He had no one greater by whom to swear, He swore by Himself, saying, `Surely blessing I will bless you and multiply you.' And thus Abraham, having patiently endured, obtained the promise. Men indeed swear by a greater than themselves, and in all their disputes an oath is final for confirmation.

"So when Yahweh desired to show more convincingly to the heirs of the promise the unchangeable character of His purpose, He interposed with an oath, so that through two unchangeable things, in which it is impossible for Yahweh to be false, we who have fled for refuge might have strong encouragement to seize the hope set before us. Here the writer of Hebrews has explained to us that the oath that Yahweh gave to Abraham was an immutable oath and that the promise of His counsel was also immutable (meaning "not capable of or susceptible to change").

ISAAC'S SEED AND THE BIRTH OF TWO NATIONS

When Abraham was old, we know that he sent his servant Eleazar to find a wife for Isaac. He went to the household of Abraham's brother, who still lived in the land out of which Abraham had been called. There he found a woman named Rebekah, who returned with Eleazar to become Isaac's wife. Through this union came the birth of Esau and Jacob. If you are not familiar with the story of Esau and Jacob, you should take this opportunity to read Genesis 24-28.

Rebekah bore Isaac twins, and in Genesis 25:23, Yahweh told her, "Two nations are in your womb, and two manner of people shall be separated from your bowels; and the one people shall be stronger than the other people; and the elder shall serve the younger." Later, in partial fulfillment of this, Esau sold his birthright to Jacob. Also, in Genesis 27, when Isaac had become old, he passed the blessing on to Jacob. This blessing that was passed from Abraham to Isaac, and then to Jacob, is described in Genesis 27-28: "Therefore Yahweh give you of the dew of heaven, and the fatness of the earth, and plenty of corn and wine: Let people serve you, and nations bow down to you: be ruler over your brethren, and let your mother's sons bow down to you: cursed be every one that curses you, and blessed be he that bless you." Thus the passing of the blessing that was given to Abraham in Genesis 12:2-3 was complete.

Because of the trickery that Jacob used in getting his birthright, or blessing, Jacob fled from the face of Esau, and went back to the descendants of Abraham's brother, who lived in Padan-Aram. There he was to take a wife from the daughters of Laban, his mother's brother, as Isaac had charged him. After arriving in Padan-aram, Jacob met Rachel and fell in love with her. She was promised to Jacob by her father, Laban, in exchange for working seven years. But, being tricked into marrying Leah, Rachel's sister, when she was given to him without his knowledge on the wedding night, he worked another seven years for Rachel and was then married to her. Thereafter, through Leah, Rachel, and their concubines, the twelve sons of Jacob were born.

THE RETURN TO THE NATIONS

Jacob was then called to return to the land which Abraham was promised as an inheritance. In Genesis 32:10-12, he said in a prayer to Yahweh, "I am unworthy of all the kindness and faithfulness you have shown your servant. I had only my staff when I crossed this Jordan, but now I have become two groups [#4264, camps]. Save me, I pray, from the hand of my brother Esau, for I am afraid he will come and attack me, and also the mothers with their children. But you have said, 'I will surely make you prosper and will make your descendants like the sand of the sea, which cannot be counted.'" Jacob prayed this in order that he might not lose all of his possessions or inheritance should Esau decide to go to battle against him. Therefore, he had separated his family into two bands. This was actually prophetic of things to come. Notice that Jacob (Israel) had left the promised land, crossing over the Jordan, and went back into the nations. There he was blessed and made to prosper in the world (Egypt) and then recalled by Yahweh. This process is repeated over and over until Yahweh fulfills His promise to Abraham. Ecclesiastes 3:15, "Whatever is has already been, and what will be has been before; and Yahweh will call the past to account."

NOTICE THAT JACOB BECOMES "ISRAEL"...AND THE PROMISE OF MANY NATIONS COMING FROM ISRAEL

In the Exodus account, on his way back, Jacob wrestled with the angel of Yahweh. His name was changed from Jacob to Israel, meaning "struggles and overcomes." Thus the twelve tribes of Israel came from Jacob beginning with his twelve sons and are again returning to the promised land. In Genesis 35:7, we find that Jacob repaired the altar he had built at Bethel where he had fled from the face of his brother. It was there Yahweh told him that his name would no longer be Jacob, but he would be called "Israel." Then Yahweh spoke to him in verse 11, saying, "I am Yahweh, be fruitful and increase in number. A nation and a company of nations shall be of you, and kings will come from you, and kings will come from your body. The land I gave to Abraham and Isaac I also give to you, and your descendants after you."

11 And G-d <430> said <559> (8799) unto him, I [am] G-d <410> Almighty <7706>: be fruitful <6509> (8798) and multiply <7235> (8798); a nation <1471> and a company <6951> of nations <1471> shall be of thee, and kings <4428> shall come <3318> (8799) out of thy loins <2504>

We must make notice that from "Israel," the nation, will come two types of offspring:

- Jews
- Non-Jews

We will see shortly how through the captivity of the Northern Tribes and their assimilation into the world's peoples that this prophecy was to be fulfilled; namely, from Israel will come many nations (non-Jews...later called the Lost Sheep of the House of Israel).

JOSEPH AND BENJAMIN

Notice that from Jacob (Israel) is to come a multitude of Gentiles (goyim/nations).

Answer for yourself: How can Jews become Gentiles? More on that later (I gave you a hint above).

Of the twelve sons born to Jacob, only two were born to Jacob from Rachel and apply to the "original promise." Here we should note that only Joseph and Benjamin represented seed from the promise given to Jacob in the beginning.

It was obvious to the other ten that Jacob favored Joseph, who was the firstborn of Rachel. In the succeeding portion of the history of Israel, it was Yahweh's plan that Joseph would, in fact, become great in the country of Egypt, and that through him (Joseph) his eleven brothers and Jacob their father would be saved and protected from the famine that was to come upon the land. It was there that they grew into an even larger people.

EPHRAIM AND MANASSEH

After Joseph was carried into the land of Egypt, he married an Egyptian woman (Gentile). Scriptures tell us that this woman was the daughter of one of the high priests in the land of Egypt (enmeshed in paganism and false religion). Two sons were born to Joseph in his separation from his brethren. The first son was named Manasseh.

Lexicon Hebrew 4519

04519 Manashsheh {men-ash-sheh'} from 05382; TWOT - 1217; n pr m AV - Manasseh 146; 146 Manasseh = "causing to forget"

- 1) the eldest son of Joseph and progenitor of the tribe of Manasseh
  - 1a) the tribe descended from Manasseh
  - 1b) the territory occupied by the tribe of Manasseh
- 2) son of king Hezekiah of Judah and himself king of Judah; he was the immediate and direct cause for the exile

- 3) a descendant of Pahath-moab who put away a foreign wife in the time of Ezra
- 4) a descendant of Hashum who put away a foreign wife in the time of Ezra

As you have seen Manasseh means "to forget" which meant that Yahweh had caused him, Joseph, to "forget" his family (history will reveal that through captivity, exile, and assimilation of the children of Jacob's people, the northern nation of Israelites, that the revelation of Yahweh and the one true world faith and world religion would be mixed with pagan-false religions of surrounding nations and Israel would truly forget his traditions and faith and become like the Gentiles whom he lived around).

The second son's name was Ephraim, which meant that Yahweh had caused Joseph to be fruitful in his affliction. You will find this recorded in Genesis 41:50-52.

Comparing this with Hosea 1:8-11, we see that even though Yahweh He will afflict Judah and Israel, yet they will be like the sand of the sea for number. It should be noted here that these sons of Joseph were of a mixed seed (remember his pagan wife)--the seed of Israel and the seed of Egypt. This, too, was prophetic of things to come for Israel as we see the paganization of Biblical Judaism today in Gentile Christianity!

"THE BLESSING" IS PASSED ON THROUGH MANASSEH AND EPHRAIM

At the time when Jacob was finally reunited with Joseph, he was exceedingly glad, but in his old age, he was ready to pass the blessing that he had received on to one of his sons. In Genesis 48:3, Jacob said to Joseph, "Yahweh Almighty appeared to me at Luz in the land of Canaan, and blessed me. And Yahweh said unto me, 'Behold, I will make you fruitful, and multiple you, and I will make of you a multitude of people; and I will give this land to your seed after you for an everlasting possession. And now your two sons, Ephraim and Manasseh, which were born to you in the land of Egypt before I came to you into Egypt, are mine; as Reuben and Simeon, they shall be mine.'"

Notice Yahweh said that Ephraim and Manasseh were Jacob's sons, yet in reality they were Joseph's sons.

In verse 9, Israel calls for Joseph to bring the two lads next to him so that Jacob (Israel) could bless them. Then in verses 10-16, a very interesting thing happens. "Now the eyes of Israel were dim for age, so that he could not see. And he brought them near to him; and he kissed them and embraced them. And Israel said unto Joseph, 'I had not thought to see your face: and, lo, Yahweh has shown me also your seed.' And Joseph brought them out from between his knees, and bowed himself with his face to the earth. And Joseph took them both, Ephraim in his right hand toward Israel's left hand, and Manasseh in his left hand toward Israel's right hand, and brought them near to him. "And Israel stretched out his right hand (the hand of blessing), and laid it upon Ephraim's head, who was the younger, and his left hand upon Manasseh's head, guiding his hands wittingly; for Manasseh was the firstborn. "And he blessed Joseph and said, 'Yahweh, before Whom my fathers Abraham and Isaac did walk, the Almighty Which fed me all my life long unto this day, the angel Which redeemed me from all evil, blessed the lads; and let my name (Israel) be named on them, and the name of my fathers Abraham and Isaac; and let them grow into a multitude in the midst of the earth."

Joseph thought the blessing should have gone to Manasseh, his firstborn. Israel informed Joseph that he knew what he was doing. Verse 19, "I know it, my son, I know it: he also shall become a people, and he (Manasseh) also shall be great: but truly his younger brother (Ephraim) shall be greater than he, and his seed shall become a multitude (or an assembly) of nations (Gentiles)."

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that for a second time Israel, or the offspring of Israel are to become "an assembly of Gentiles"?

WHAT SHOULD THE CHRISTIAN TO LEARN FROM WHAT HE JUST READ?

It is important to note several things here.

One is that Israel told Joseph that his two sons would NOT be counted as Joseph's seed but as Israel's (Jacob's) seed, and that the children born to Joseph after these two would be his (Israel's).

This was of MAJOR importance to the history of the children of Israel because the blessing had now passed on to Joseph who had received a double portion for his sons (verse 22). It should also be noted that the "name of Israel" also passed on to these two sons, but especially to Ephraim upon whom Israel's right hand was placed. Since the name "Israel" was passed on to Ephraim and his children, then the children of Ephraim who were later deported and assimilated into the pagan nations are still called by G-d as "Israel" regardless of what denomination they call themselves by today.

In Jeremiah 31:9, an interesting statement is made by the prophet and inspired by Yahweh. He says that Ephraim is the firstborn of Yahweh. If you will remember, Ephraim's name meant "Yahweh has caused me to be fruitful in my affliction." We shall see just how important this statement was to the long-term plan of Yahweh concerning the children of Israel. Israel (Jacob) knew what he was doing when he imparted the blessing to Ephraim as he was being guided by Yahweh's Spirit. But the mystery was not to be fully revealed at this point. Stay tuned.

ISRAEL IN EGYPT..."FRUITFUL IN HER AFFLICTIONS"

In Genesis 49, when Israel (Jacob) was revealing to his sons what would befall them in verse 22, he calls Joseph "a fruitful bough, even a fruitful bough by a well; whose branches run over the wall." After the death of Jacob, the children of Israel stayed in Egypt for over 400 years. The Egyptians continued to oppress the children of Israel because they had enlarged themselves to such a great number that the Egyptians became afraid of them. The children of Israel cried out to Yahweh. In Exodus 2:24, Yahweh heard this crying which caused Him to "remember His covenant with Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob." So Yahweh looked upon the children of Israel and had mercy on them. Then it is recorded that Moses was chosen by Yahweh to gather the children of Israel and bring them back out of the land of Egypt, to the land that Yahweh had promised to give Abraham and his seed forever. Pharaoh did not want to let Yahweh's people go, which was the catalyst for the events leading to the exodus of Yahweh's people.

In Exodus 4:22, Yahweh told Moses to tell Pharaoh, "Thus says Yahweh, 'Israel is My son, even My firstborn...'" Yahweh wanted the children of Israel to come and worship Him and to return them to their land. Compare the statement--Israel is His firstborn--to Jeremiah 31:9 which says that Ephraim is the firstborn. There would seemingly be a contradiction had we not read and understood the Scriptures where Israel placed his right hand upon the head of Ephraim and declared that this name would be upon him (Jacob/Israel crossed his hand in the blessing conferring the firstborn blessing to Joseph's second-born).

Now Yahweh wanted the children of Israel to be released from the land of Egypt so that they could return to the Promised Land and worship Him there. In Exodus 6:5, Yahweh remembered His covenant with Abraham and told Moses that He would bring the children of Israel out from under the burden of the Egyptians and redeem them with a stretched out arm and great judgments. But the plagues that Yahweh brought upon Pharaoh only hardened his heart. Pharaoh resisted every plague to let the children of Israel go, until Yahweh brought the last one.

If you will remember, Yahweh brought plagues upon the Pharaoh of Abraham's day when he had taken Abraham's wife (Gen. 12). "Israel" is referred to as the wife of Yahweh in Scripture (Jer. 3). The same storyline is taking place here in that it is Yahweh's wife, Israel, that Pharaoh must release. If you are not aware of the plagues or would like to refresh your memory, they can be found in Exodus 7:14 to 10:29. After nine plagues, in chapter 12, Yahweh brought the final plague that would cause Pharaoh to release the children of Israel. That final plague was, of course, the death angel smiting all the firstborn of Egypt.

THE PASSING OVER OF THE DEATH ANGEL

Next is recorded Yahweh's institution of the Passover. The importance of the passover sacrifice and the event of the passover itself should be understood clearly if we are to understand the plan of salvation. The children of Israel were to kill a lamb without blemish on the 14th day of Abib, at the beginning of the day, which was at sunset. Then they were to take its blood, strike it on the door and the doorposts, go inside, and partake of it (Exodus 12:8-10). Within this simply act is the demonstration of both "faith" and "obedience" unto G-d which is the beginning of relationship with G-d.

Yahweh instructed the children of Israel to be prepared to spoil the Egyptians. On the night of the 14th, when the death angel saw the blood on the door, he would pass over that house and spare the firstborn. On the other hand, the firstborn of the houses without blood were destroyed by the death angel. During that night, there was much weeping and lamenting because of all the death and suffering of the Egyptians round about the children of Israel. Pharaoh had finally been convinced by those around him to release the children of Israel because of the great consequences of the plagues, especially the final one. From that point, the families of Israel came out of Egypt in great numbers--a number of people so large that they could not be counted. The fulfillment of the promise to Abraham, even though not yet totally fulfilled, was beginning to take form. The children of Israel were now becoming a nation, leaving Egypt with great substance. Yahweh told them to remember the day of the passover, and to keep it as a memorial to all generations. They were to explain to each succeeding generation that Yahweh had redeemed the children of Israel from their bondage and caused them to come out in great substance.

Yahweh took the children of Israel back into the land that He had promised them through Abraham hundreds of years before. Yahweh sent His angel before the children of Israel, protecting them by day from the scorching heat in the form of a cloud. By night, a pillar of fire kept them warm and separated them from their enemies who were now pursuing them. Yahweh asked them to worship Him and obey His voice.

The children of Israel crossed over the Red Sea on dry ground, but the Egyptians were destroyed when the waters came crashing down upon them. Yahweh protected His family from the most powerful physical force that was upon the earth at that time.

Thus the fame of Yahweh and the fear of the children of Israel spread throughout the land. Yahweh had given them this renown, and they were now known by His Name--as His people. All Yahweh asked the children of Israel to do in return was to be obedient to His word and obey His statutes, judgments and laws, just as Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob had done. However, the children of Israel had now been inundated and indoctrinated by the Egyptian way of life and had assimilated much of the Egyptian false worship (Gentile false worship). When Moses went up on the mount to receive the Ten Commandments, the children of Israel reverted back to false worship. They built a golden calf, and proclaimed this calf as Baal (lord). Then they did another blasphemous thing--they ascribed the great power of their exodus and release from Egypt to an idol that could not speak or move, and had no power. We shall see that Israel did this repeatedly throughout her past history leading up to the Babylonian Captivity.

When Yahweh sent 12 men, one from each tribe, to spy out the land that Yahweh was going to give them for their inheritance, there were only two who came back with a good report. The other ten wanted to go back into the land of Egypt (paganism), fearing the inhabitants of that land. It is important to understand in prophecy that these two witnesses, Yeshua (Joshua), the son of Nun, and Caleb, were the only two witnesses who stood before Yahweh at this point and believed that with Him, they could do anything. Interestingly, these two men represented the tribes of Ephraim and Judah. Thus we can begin to see the reason these two tribes gained favor in the eyes of Yahweh. Yahweh honors faith in Him, for the Scriptures tell us that without faith, it is impossible to please Him. Only these two men, representing the tribes of Ephraim (which would become a multitude of G-d-fearing Gentiles) and Judah (Jews), pleased Yahweh. They alone came back with the witness of faith that with Yahweh nothing is impossible.

We should also remember that the last birthright, according to Biblical history, was passed on to Ephraim. Therefore, he had gained a type of pre-eminence over the other tribes of Israel in that he had received the right hand of blessing from his grandfather, Israel.

As the children of Israel entered into the promised land after forty years of wandering, all those who had come out of Egypt, except Yeshua, the son of Nun, and Caleb, had died for their lack of faith. A new generation was about to enter the Promised Land with these two witnesses of faith after the wondrous, powerful, and miraculous way Yahweh had delivered them out of Egypt. Yeshua, the son of Nun, became the successor of Moses, who died having seen the Promised Land, but not being allowed to enter in at that time.

It should be noted here also that Moses, who was the giver of Yahweh's law, was not able to take the children of Israel into the Promised Land because even he had not sanctified Yahweh in the sight of the children of Israel and had fallen short of that law. But Yeshua, the son of Nun, represented something that was yet to come--the "salvation" of Yahweh. It is not a coincidence that Yahweh chose one names Yeshua (Joshua..meaning salvation) to take the children of Israel into the Promised Land.

Next, we will study the period of wandering in the wilderness and compare it to the current wanderings of Israel. Also we will look at the period of time from the judges through the kings and see how Israel again became two bands. The future crossing of the Jordan and the reuniting of those two bands will be glorious.

FAITH TO ENTER IN

It is sad to think that of all the people on the face of the earth, the children of Israel should have been more inspired and awed by the magnificent power of Yahweh than any other nation. Their faith should have been so steadfast that nothing could have stopped them. Yet, they died in the wilderness for lack of faith to enter in, except for Yeshua (Joshua), the son of Nun, and Caleb. They were the only two spies who came out of the Promised Land with the faith that Yahweh could deliver them from anything.

It was Yeshua, the son of Nun, who ultimately led the Israelites over the Jordan River. He represented that which was yet to come, the Messiah.

Many times a conflict is perceived between the Old and New Testaments. One such conflict is the law versus faith.

It is said that a man shall live by keeping the commandments and statutes of Yahweh (Lev. 18:5).

Yet...

Hebrews 10:38 states, "The just shall live by faith."

WHICH IS TRUE? OR IS BOTH TRUE?

These above passages are often terribly misunderstood. The reason Abraham was righteous in Yahweh's eyes was not because he kept the law perfectly (yet which he strived for regardless), but because he had this testimony, that "he believed Yahweh" (Gen. 15:6). Thus, Paul teaches that it is men of faith who are the sons of Abraham (Gal. 2:7).

Answer for yourself: Does this mean that the physical seed of Abraham through Isaac is rejected because they don't hold to traditional first century hopes and beliefs concerning Yeshua? Certainly not.

Yahweh established Isaac as the seed of promise. Therefore, Yeshua, when speaking to the Jews (tribe of Judah), said, "And other sheep I have (the exiled and assimilated Israelites which have now become a mixture of Jew-pagan Gentiles in foreign nations), which are not of this fold (Judah): them also I must bring, and they shall hear My voice; and there shall be one fold, and one Shepherd" (John 10:16). Notice that these "other sheep" had not heard nor accepted any "theology" or "Christology" concerning Yeshua yet, but notice, they were to be included in the people of G-d (THINK).

We will now look at some key points from the wanderings in the wilderness, through the judges and kings, and see what brought about the division of Israel into two separate bands.

THE TWO STICKS OF EPHRAIM AND JUDAH...AND THE IMPORTANCE OF FAITH AND OBEDIENCE...HOSEA SPEAKS

This study is intended to relate a marvelous story concerning the two sticks--Ephraim and Judah --and the mystery that Yahweh revealed to His saints concerning their reunion in the latter days. One of the major themes of this study is faith, which played a key role in Yahweh's choosing and working with certain tribes in a greater manner than others.

As we have discussed, Yeshua, the son of Nun, and Caleb, representing the tribes of Ephraim and Judah respectively, were the two who came back from Canaan with a favorable report (exhibited faith). Only these two believed they could enter in and defeat the giants of the land through the power of Yahweh. After the children of Israel above 20 years old had died in the wilderness, the new generation, having come to its maturity, was then led over the Jordan and into the Promised Land by Yeshua, the son of Nun. They "inherited" the promises of G-d because they had faith mixed with obedience.

In a similar vein, in 1 Kings 11 is a very important reference to the history of the two tribes, or two bands, of Israel. Up to this point the children of Israel had been one nation and now were under one king. When Israel was referred to, it meant all twelve tribes. It was under the reign of Solomon that Israel reached its apex of power, wealth, and strength. Solomon, earlier in his life, displayed great wisdom, but eventually his carnal nature caused a rift between the house of David and Yahweh. Yahweh became angry with Solomon in 1 Kings 11:9. Verse 11 prophesies that He will rend the Kingdom from Solomon and give it to his servant. In verse 12, Yahweh said He would not do this in the days of Solomon for the sake of David, but in the days of Solomon's son He would rend all but two tribes (vs. 13). One tribe for David's sake and one tribe for Jerusalem's sake were to stay, and ten tribes would leave. See 1 Kings 11:13, 31-32, and 34-36.

History tells us that the twelve tribes were then separated into ten tribes and two tribes. Judah, representing the tribe of David, and Benjamin, representing the covenant that Yahweh had with Jerusalem, were now bound together as the two southern tribes. Remember, Benjamin was the son who was never separated from his father, Isaac, and therefore was chosen to represent Jerusalem in Yahweh's covenant relationship with the city.

The ten northern tribes were thus separated from the two southern tribes as Jeroboam, a mighty man of valor from the tribe of Ephraim, was chosen to be ruler over the house of Joseph (1 Kings 11:28). "And it came to pass at that time when Jeroboam went out of Jerusalem, that the prophet Ahijah of Shiloh found him in the way; and he had clad himself with a new garment; and they two were alone in the field: And Ahijah caught the new garment that was on him, and rent it in twelve pieces: And he said to Jeroboam, `Take you ten pieces: for thus says Yahweh, the Elohim of Israel, `Behold, I will rend the kingdom out of the hand of Solomon, and will give ten tribes to you...'"" Now the ten northern tribes were separated and under the leadership of an Ephraimite. The two southern tribes, Judah and Benjamin, remained in the reign of the tribe of Judah.

Israel, or Ephraim, and Judah were then represented in these two bands throughout 1 Kings and the prophetic writings.

It should be noted that those of the tribe of Ephraim were a mixture of Egyptians and Israelites (descended from Joseph and his Egyptian wife), and thus continued to have a problem with Baal worship (pagan worship) in the Northern Kingdom. The first thing Jeroboam did as king was to reestablish Baal worship under the guise of keeping the children of Israel from going back to Jerusalem to worship (kept them from their religious heritage and roots of faith). He forsook the promise that if he would be faithful to Yahweh's commandments that Yahweh would establish a sure house for him. Because of this great sin of lack of faith and obedience to G-d, and the leading of the people astray from G-d, the Northern Nations would be taken captive and they would lose the opportunity to have the truth let alone worship G-d according to the pattern of Truth they once had but did not follow.

The prophecies from this point are written from two different perspectives. Some of the prophecies were written for Judah and Benjamin, and some were written for Israel (Ephraim), the ten northern tribes.

Hosea is a prime example of a prophet that was sent to the ten northern tribes, which were influenced early on by Baal worship. As Jeremiah 23 tells us, Israel went into idolatry, but Judah did more abominably, even when she saw how Yahweh punished her sister, Israel, for her idolatry. Following such punishment and separation G-d's mercy is seen in His promise of restoration of both "sticks" into one united "stick" once again. The heart of the issue is that it would be these assimilated Jews, who through intermarriage and adoption of pagan ways, would lose the truth concerning their G-d. This is a perfect picture of the Gentile Christian Church for over 1800 years at present.

But there is hope of restoration. I will attempt to define by context the prophecies of Hosea and their meanings as quoted in Romans. "This is what the Sovereign Yahweh says: I am going to take the stick of Joseph which is in Ephraim's hand (and of the Israelite tribes associated with him), and join it to Judah's stick, making them a single stick of wood, and they will become one in my hand" (Eze. 37:19).

Answer for yourself: What did Hosea and other prophets sent by Yahweh have to say about the whole house of Israel as they become one stick again in the hand of Yahweh? We need to see New Testament scriptures in light of the entire Bible.

ISRAEL'S REJECTION...AND THE LOSE OF THEIR IDENTITY

With the rending of ten tribes from Solomon's son, Rehoboam, those tribes were given unto Jeroboam with a promise that a sure house would be established for him if he would follow Yahweh's laws and commandments. He did not do so, and the ten northern tribes were destined to be taken captive as a result of their rejection of Yahweh. It is recorded in history that Naphtali was annexed to Assyria in 738 B.C., and in 722 B.C. Sargon captured Samaria, the capitol of the ten northern tribes, and 27,290 inhabitants were carried off as captives (International Standard Bible Encyclopedia).

Prior to this Yahweh had sent prophets to Israel to foretell what would happen to them. Hosea prophesied mostly to the ten northern tribes, although Judah is mentioned also. Hosea's prophecy period began around 743 B.C. and foretold of the fall of Samaria. In Chapter One the prophet was told by Yahweh to take a wife of whoredom (picturing Israelites who turned to paganism through Gentile assimilation) and to have offspring by her. "Whoredom" is #2183 in Strong's, from #2181, which is usually translated as "adultery" or "whorish." However, this does not mean that Yahweh told his prophet to marry a prostitute.

Ezekiel 6:9 says, "And they that escape of you shall remember Me among the nations whither they shall be carried captives, because I am broken with their whorish heart, which has departed from Me, and with their eyes, which go whoring after their idols." Here Israel's "whorish heart" refers to her idol worship. Yahweh told Hosea to marry a woman of Israel who was an idol worshiper. Those of the true Faith who have married unbelievers know many problems can arise from this. Yahweh used the relationship of Hosea, his wife, Gomer, and their children as representative of His relationship with Israel, and also the Kingdom and its children. Yahweh constantly sent prophets to His wife, Israel, pleading with her to come back to Him, yet they continually whored after the idols of the nations. As Hosea 1:2 says, "the land has committed great whoredom, departing from Yahweh."

The first of Gomer's three children was named Jezreel. In most dictionaries, as well as Bullinger's Companion Bible study notes, Jezreel means in the Hebrew "Yahweh sows." The first son of Hosea was a living testimony that Yahweh was going to sow the house of Israel into the world and Gentile nations. In Joel 3:2 Yahweh says that He again will plead for Israel who had been "scattered among the nations."

The second child was called Lo-ruhamah (vs. 6) and means "not pitied" or "no mercy." It refers to the state in which Israel (the Ten Northern Tribes who went into Gentile captivity and paganism) would be during their captivity. Yahweh said, "for I will no more have mercy upon the house of Israel; but I will utterly take them away." Yahweh was not going to have mercy on them until they remembered Him and acknowledged Him as their husband in that covenant relationship (see 2:16). He was going to let them have what they wanted--to worship nothing and to be helped by nothing, because that is what the idols of the nations are--nothing! Read also Isaiah 27:11-13.

Isa. 27:11 When the boughs thereof are withered, they shall be broken off: the women come, [and] set them on fire: for it [is] a people of no understanding: therefore he that made them will not have mercy on them, and he that formed them will shew them no favor. 12 And it shall come to pass in that day, [that] the LORD shall beat off from the channel of the river unto the stream of Egypt, and ye shall be gathered one by one, O ye children of Israel. 13 And it shall come to pass in that day, [that] the great trumpet shall be blown, and they shall come which were ready to perish in the land of Assyria, and the outcasts in the land of Egypt, and shall worship the LORD in the holy mount at Jerusalem.

The third child was named Lo-ammi, meaning "not my people." Yahweh is saying He will NOT consider scattered Israel as His people and that He will not be their Elohim. Let us look at Micah 1:1-7.

Mica 1:1 (KJS) The word of the LORD that came to Micah the Morasthite in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, [and] Hezekiah, kings of Judah, which he saw concerning Samaria and Jerusalem. 2 Hear, all ye people; hearken, O earth, and all that therein is: and let the Lord G-d be witness against you, the Lord from his holy temple. {all ye...: Heb. ye people, all of them} {all that...: Heb. the fullness thereof} 3 For, behold, the LORD cometh forth out of his place, and will come down, and tread upon the high places of the earth. 4 And the mountains shall be molten under him, and the valleys shall be cleft, as wax before the fire, [and] as the waters [that are] poured down a steep place. {a steep...: Heb. a descent} 5 For the transgression of Jacob [is] all this, and for the sins of the house of Israel. What [is] the transgression of Jacob? [is it] not Samaria? and what [are] the high places of Judah? [are they] not Jerusalem? 6 Therefore I will make Samaria as an heap of the field, [and] as plantings of a vineyard: and I will pour down the stones thereof into the valley, and I will discover the foundations thereof. 7 And all the graven images thereof shall be beaten to pieces, and all the hires thereof shall be burned with the fire, and all the idols thereof will I lay desolate: for she gathered [it] of the hire of an harlot, and they shall return to the hire of an harlot.

YET ISRAEL INCREASES...HOW CAN THIS BE?

Even in Israel's rejection by Yahweh and Israel's choosing the way of the nations to become "Jezreel," scattered, "Lo-ruhamah," not pitied, and "Lo-ammi," rejected, Hosea records, "Yet the number of the children of Israel shall be as the sand of the sea, which cannot be measured nor numbered; and it shall come to pass, that in the place where it was said unto them, 'You are not My People,' there it shall be said unto them, 'You are the sons of the living Elohim'" (1:10).

If you will remember, we discussed how Yahweh enlarged Israel in Egypt (Ex. 1:7), which is a type of the world, and which promulgated false deity worship. Hosea recorded in 8:11-13 that Israel (Ephraim) would again return to Egypt. "The thing that has been, it is that which shall be; and that which is done is that which shall be done: and there is no new thing under the sun. Is there any thing whereof it may be said, 'See, this is new?' it has been already of old time, which was before us" (Ecc. 1:9-10).

Yet scriptures such as Isaiah 11:12 tell us, "And He shall set up an ensign for the nations, and shall assemble the outcasts of Israel, and gather together the dispersed of Judah from the four corners of the earth." Notice that Judah and the dispersed of Israel were scattered to the four corners of the earth.

Answer for yourself: Do you see that Yahweh will again call Israel (those who have lost their way and spiritual path) out of Egypt (the world)?

Answer for yourself: Do you think that this is only a spiritual calling?

This is the power of Yahweh to fulfill His promise to Abraham, even when Israel is in affliction. The Adversary's influence as seen in the flesh of man and his worldly systems are still today trying to destroy Yahweh's chosen people.

WHO DID ISRAEL BECOME...AND WHAT OF THE PROMISE TO REGATHER?

Isaiah prophesied that Israel would become desolate and divorced because of her unfaithfulness. Such is a perfect picture of the dispersed of Ephraim who have lost their Jewish Roots and Hebraic Roots of their faith and adopted pagan ways and today call it "orthodoxy." Yet her children were promised to be more than the children of the married, and her seed to "inherit the Gentiles" (Isa. 54:1-3). Yahweh's promise to Abraham will not be broken (Heb. 6:13-17). Now take special note of that promise; "And, behold, the word of Yahweh came unto him, saying, 'This shall not be your heir [Eliezer]; but he that shall come forth out of your own bowels shall be your heir.' And He brought him forth abroad, and said, 'Look now toward heaven, and tell the stars, if you be able to number them;' and He said unto him, 'So shall your seed be.' And he believed in Yahweh; and He counted it to him for righteousness" (Gen. 15:4-6). Eliezer was a faithful steward in Abraham's house and was adopted as the heir if Abraham remained childless. But Yahweh promised that Abraham's seed (Israel) would come from his own bowels.

Ezekiel 20:2-45 tells a short story relating the history, as well as the future, of Israel. It says that Israel's heart went after idols, and their children did the same. They committed whoredoms in their idol worship. So Yahweh said that He would scatter them in the nations because Israel wanted to be as the nations, yet He would still rule over them. He will then gather them from the countries where He scattered them and bring them into the wilderness of the people to plead with them. Yahweh will at that time bring all of the house of Israel into the bond of the covenant, and they will inherit the land promised to their fathers. This also was prophesied by Moses to Israel in the wilderness (Deut. 32).

WHO WILL DO THE REGATHERING?

Answer for yourself: Is it not the shepherd that will do this?

Yahweh moved Jeremiah to write, "Hear the word of Yahweh, O you nations, and declare it in the isles afar off, and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him, and keep him, as a shepherd does his flock. For Yahweh has redeemed Jacob, and ransomed him from the hand of him that was stronger than he" (Jer. 31:10-11).

WHO IS THE SHEPHERD?

Yeshua said, "I am the good Shepherd, and know My sheep, and am known of Mine. As the Father knows Me, even so know I the Father: and I lay down My life for the sheep. And other sheep I have, which are not of this fold: them also I must bring, and they shall hear My voice; and there shall be one fold, and one Shepherd" (John 10:14-16). Yeshua also said that He has sheep which are of another fold.

Previously we established that the scriptures refer to Judah as being first, then Israel. Yeshua offered himself to his own house (Judah) first, many of which rejected him, even to this day. Judah was not only first in the blessings, but first in the curses also. But sadly the Gentile Church has rejected Yeshua for over 1800 years to date by rejecting his Jewishness, his Torah faith, his Biblical Festivals, his correct understanding of the Tithe, adopting a pagan Christology that makes him a g-d, etc. The Gentile Church is guilty of not hearing their "shepherd's voice," preferring false shepherds instead like Paul in various places in the New Testament, or those who corrupted his writings and altered them in "his name." Today Christianity is "Paulinized" and definitely not reflective of a Jewish Faith whereby the non-Jew is grafted into the Israel of G-d. The true Jewish Shepherd has done them little good.

Consider these verses in Romans, "For I am not ashamed of the good news of Messiah: for it is the power of Yahweh unto salvation to every one that believes; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek [Gentile]" (1:16). "Tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that does evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile. But glory, honor, and peace, to every man that works good, to the Jew first, and also to the Gentile" (2:9-10).

Answer for yourself: Who did Yeshua then seek after being rejected by the religious leaders of Judah?

Answer for yourself: Was it not the lost house of Israel? (Matt. 15:24).

Yeshua told the twelve to "go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. 10:16). The lost sheep of the house of Israel included all twelve tribes (James 1:1). As stated above, salvation was first to be offered to the tribe of Judah. Since many from Judah rejected Yeshua, then the call was sounded to go into the highways and byways. This is why Yeshua said in Matthew 10:5, "Go not into the way of the Gentiles, and into any city of the Samaritans enter you not."

WHO WERE THE SAMARITANS?

The following is taken from the Greek concordance of the On Line Bible: "A Samaritan, strictly speaking, would be an inhabitant of the city of Samaria; but the term was applied to all the people of the kingdom of Israel. "After the captivity of Israel, B.C. 721, and in Yeshua's time, the name was applied to a peculiar people whose origin was on this wise: At the final captivity of Israel by Shalmanesar, we may conclude that the cities of Samaria were not merely partially but wholly depopulated of their inhabitants in B.C. 721, and that they remained in this desolated state until, in the words of 2 Kings 17:24, "the king of Assyria brought men from Babylon, Cuthah, Ava (Ivah), Hamath, and Sepharvaim, and placed them in the cities of Samaria instead of the children of Israel: and they possessed Samaria, and dwelt in the cities thereof." "Thus the new Samaritans were Assyrians by birth or subjugation. These strangers, whom we now assume were placed in the cities of Samaria by Esarhaddon, were of course idolators, and worshipped a strange medley of divinities."

Matthew 15 contains a difficult passage to understand.

Answer for yourself: Why did Yeshua treat the Canannite woman with such disdain "It is not meet to take the children's bread, and to cast it to dogs" (vs. 26)?

If we understand that "for everything there is a season, and a time for every matter under heaven" (Ecc. 3:1) we can understand why Yeshua said that he was not sent but to the lost sheep of the house of Israel, as the shepherd to regather the sheep (Jer. 31:10). This is why Peter was admonished to "feed my sheep" three times.

Yahweh's plan is to regather the whole house of Israel (those Israelites intermarried with Gentiles in the world through captivity and exile whereby they lost their ethnic tradition as well as their religious tradition) and then spread the Law of Yahweh to the nations (non-Israelite Gentiles) through them, with Jerusalem as the center.

At that time Messiah will be the King of the earth, which will finally receive the rest that is due her, and men will learn to be obedient to Yahweh's Word.

The thirty-seventh chapter of Ezekiel tells of the time when the power of the whole house of Israel is broken in their affliction, and they are without hope. Then Yahweh will again have mercy on Israel and Judah (see Deut. 32:36,43). Now let us read the revelation given to Ezekiel, "Thus saith Yahweh Elohim; `Behold, I will take the stick of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel his fellows, and will put them with him, even with the stick of Judah, and make them one stick, and they shall be one in Mine hand'" (37:19). This will never happen until the Gentile Christian Church learns to ruthlessly study the truth about their faith, repent and confess their sins of pagan worship when shown them, and adopt a more correct Biblical attitude when shown the truth. This will require humility and a broken heart before their G-d whereby they can humbly admit they have been wrong about so many things and confess that "salvation is of the Jews."

Yahweh continues in verses 21-23, "Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land: And I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel; and one king shall be king to them all: and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all: Neither shall they defile themselves any more with their idols, nor with their detestable things, nor with any of their transgressions: but I will save them out of all their dwelling-places, wherein they have sinned, and will cleanse them: so shall they be My people, and I will be their Elohim."

Now pay close attention.

When the two sticks are brought together (today as seen in Gentile and Jew coming to the unity of the faith, with one LORD, one Faith, one Mikveh, etc.), and there are no more two families, then will Yahweh sanctify Israel, and she will be a blessing to the rest of the families on the earth (this is the fulfillment of the promise to Abraham in the Covenant promise of Genesis 12.) "And the heathen shall know that I Yahweh do sanctify Israel, when my sanctuary shall be in the midst of them for evermore" (vs. 28).

This again will not happen until the Christian Church (which is primarily Gentile, and who finds its Gentile roots coming from Europe from which the Northern Ten Tribes of Israel intermarried and assimilated for well over 2500 years at present) repents of the innate Paganism that is accepted as "orthodoxy" today because of her Biblical illiteracy and loss of her Hebraic Roots. This will not happen until the Gentile Church joins Judah in her acceptance of her Jewish Messiah and rejects the Messiah of Rome that it has accepted instead. Today Christianity tries to pass off Yeshua as the Messiah to the Jews but most never will accept such a character because instead of a Jewish Messiah the Gentile Church presents a "Romanized-Paganized Jesus" instead of a

Hebraic Messiah.

Compare Deut. 32:36 with the above, and understand that Israel (the Israel which sits in Churches today and who practices a paganized Biblical faith that finds its origins in the Sun-Worship of Gentile nations) is destined to become broken and, thus, Israel is finally to understand that salvation comes only from Yahweh, not idols. Then she will give up her Baal worship (pagan worship mixed with the true worship of Yahweh as is so often found in contemporary Christianity which is a mixture of Biblical Judaism and paganism) and live forever, as the descendants of Abraham, in the land that was promised to him.

THE IMAGE OF DANIEL....IT IS YET HAPPENING TODAY

The vision of Nebuchadnezzar (Dan. 2) is an image with a head of gold, breast and arms of silver, belly and thighs of brass, legs of iron, and feet of iron mixed with clay. Notice in verses 41-44 that the iron will not stay mixed with the clay, but in the latter days when Yahweh is about to set up the everlasting Kingdom, a separation occurs; "And whereas you saw iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men: but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay" (vs. 43). Who is it that, although they are mingled with the seed of men, shall separate from them in the days that Yahweh shall set up the everlasting kingdom (vs. 45)? We can view Daniel's image as merely an image of the kingdoms of the nations, or we can view the image as Israel's dispersion in the nations. Since the Bible is written only for Yahweh's people, Israel, and only mentions other nations in respect to Israel's relations with them (Deut. 4:7, 8; Ex. 33:16; Amos 3:1, 2), the latter is probably correct.

"Who are Israelites; to whom pertain the adoption [sonship], and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of Yahweh, and the promises; Whose are the fathers, and of whom as concerning the flesh Messiah came, Who is over all, Yahweh blessed for ever. Amen" (Rom. 9:4, 5).

All four kingdoms represented by the image in Daniel were areas into which the children of Israel had been carried captive. If you consider this image to be a figure of Israel as they were dispersed, then you will see the four great Kingdoms as being Israel dispersed among "the Gentiles," as prophesied by Hosea (8:8).

The first Kingdom (the head of gold) represents Babylon (Dan. 2:38).

Answer for yourself: Could Babylon have been portrayed as the head of gold because it represented the first kingdom raised up by Yahweh consisting of the dispersed Israel?

The area from where the Babylonians came is where some of the Israelites had been carried captive by the Assyrians. If Israel numbered only seventy when they went into Egypt, and grew to two million by the time they came out 430 years after, it should not surprise us that Yahweh caused the lost tribes to flourish in number as they became the nations.

Consider the number mentioned earlier of those who were carried off by Sargon--approximately 27,000. At a ratio of 70 to 2,000,000, which they increased in Egypt in 430 years, in the same amount of time, the 27,000 would have grown to over 750,000,000! The population of the entire United States is only about 200,000,000, which has become the most powerful country in the world in only half the time. Yahweh is using the world as a furnace to melt the metals and remove the impurities, then He will establish His Kingdom, the Kingdom of Israel (Acts 1:3-6).

In Genesis 6 we see that Yahweh did not want his people (the sons of Elohim) marrying the idol worshipers around them (the daughters of men). Just as the iron in Daniel's vision could not mix with the clay, so in the last days the lost sheep will separate themselves as they hear the voice of the Great Shepherd intended for the Gentiles...the Jewish Yeshua and not the other false shepherds in the New Testament or who fill the airwaves today.

In Acts 10, a Roman soldier named Cornelius separated himself to become a son of Yahweh, and he feared Yahweh.

Answer for yourself: Could he have been of the lost tribe of Israel?

Yeshua said his sheep hear his voice and that his sheep are the lost house of Israel. Yes, Cornelius was of the lost sheep, and the Holy Spirit revealed just that when it fell on him and his family.

Paul, in speaking to the Romans, quoted Hosea, "I will call them `my people' who are not my people; and I will call her `my loved one' who is not my loved one, and, It will happen that in the very place where it was said to them, `You are not my people,' they will be called `sons of the living Elohim'" (9:25-26).

THE SEED OF FAITH

Answer for yourself: Are we, who desire to be ruled by Yahweh with Yeshua as our example of G-dliness, only spiritual Israelites?

Those whom Yahweh is calling through His spirit are not only spiritual Israelites, but the seed of Abraham, the lost sheep of the house of Israel, "which in times past were not a people but are now the people of Yahweh: which had not mercy, but now have obtained mercy" (1 Pet. 2:10).

Israel is scattered to the four corners of the earth. Make no mistake--this includes all races, peoples, tongues, and nations. Long before Israel was a nation, Joseph's offspring were half Egyptian. That is why Yahweh holds back the four winds of destruction until His servants, the faithful house of Israel, are sealed with His name in their foreheads (Rev. 7).

In Romans 11 we read of the grafting in of the wild olive branch to the tree which had the natural branches cut off. When an olive tree is not pruned or cared for and is rejected and abandoned, it becomes wild.

Answer for yourself: Is that not what Yahweh did to Israel?

Just as in the short history of America the black race who were brought over has lost its identity, so Israel's has been lost in several thousand years.

We must see with the faith of Abraham. The Scriptures record that it is impossible to please Yahweh without it (Heb 11:6). The household of faith are the ones who are called, not the unbelieving. As it was with Joshua and Caleb, the only two of the physical descendants of Abraham who because of their faith, entered into the Promised Land, so Paul teaches, "For you are all the children of Yahweh by faith in Messiah Yeshua. For as many of you as have been baptized into Yeshua have put on Yeshua. There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither slave nor free, there is neither male nor female: for you are all one in Messiah Yeshua. And if you be Messiah's, then are you Abraham's offspring, heirs according to the promise" RSV (Gal. 3:26-29).

Paul understood that those who heard Yeshua's voice and followed Him were the lost sheep and Abraham's seed. Walk out tonight, look up and consider the number of stars, and believe that you are Israel! Then begin to believe like them, to accept their Scriptures over the corrupted ones we have inherited in our Christian Bibles, return to Biblical worship in the Festivals, repent of robbing G-d by practicing the Tithe the way the Christian Church has taught you, repent of idolatrous worship because you accepted Trinitarianism and a false Christology over an Ethical Monotheism. Begin to pattern yourself as if you are truly Israel, for if you hear anything I have been saying, you are!

Eph. 2:11 Wherefore remember, that ye [being] in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the

Circumcision in the flesh made by hands; 12 That at that time ye were without Messiah (Christ), being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without G-d in the world: 13 But now in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ. 14 For he is our peace, who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition [between us];

IN THE WORLD TO COME...BIBLICAL JUDAISM WILL BE THE WORLD RELIGION AND NOT CHRISTIANITY

It is hard to go to a Christian bookstore these days without noticing that there is a new budding emphasis within the Church today on returning to the Hebrew and Jewish roots of the Christian Faith. We see such manifestations as the singing of the Psalms, the use of banners, the celebration of the Biblical feast days (Passover, Pentecost, Tabernacles), sacred dancing, home schooling, Sabbath celebrations, tithing, use of the Hebrew name of God (Yahweh), chants and high praise, and the displaying of Jewish symbolism (Menorah, Star of David, Shofar, etc.). These are but a few of the elements drawn from our Judaic heritage that are now becoming common place in the worship, practice and teachings of many Christian congregations. Let me say it is long over due.

Although many of these activities are not yet the accepted norm in all Christian circles, it is only the beginning of a rapidly developing trend which can hardly be ignored. It demands explanation. It, in fact, constitutes a Judeo-Christian restoration with a new emphasis on the "Jewish Roots" of the Christian Faith. However, some in Christian leadership are expressing apprehension born out of a fear of legalism. May G-d hasten the day when something is judged, not by whether it is Jewish or traditionally Christian, but by whether or not it is Biblical and G-d-centered.

Eternal truth came from G-d, through the Jews, to the Gentiles, for the world, through the ministry of Yeshua and his followers.

RE-FAMILIARIZATION WITH JUDEO-CHRISTIANITY

Most people are familiar with the term "Judeo-Christianity". It is frequently used by scholars, Bible students and commentators. It means "having roots in both Judaism and Christianity". JUDAISM and CHRISTIANITY were publicly coined words. The word "Christian" was first used in A.D. 42 in the city of Antioch (Acts 11:26). Eventually it was adopted for the purpose of differentiating between believing Jews (in Messiah) and unbelieving Jews. Ultimately it became an identity for the entire Church. The term "Judaism" was born of similar circumstances and was, no doubt, coined for the purpose of implying a "divorcement" from Christianity.

In fact, the proper system of worship and practice for the people of G-d is neither "Jewish" in an ethnic sense nor even "Christian" in a religious sense, but simply divine in a Biblical sense and therefore eternal and universal (for all nations).

Nevertheless, these are acceptable terms when understood in a complimentary fashion and we will use them for identification and orientation. But the phrase JUDEO-CHRISTIANITY is perhaps most ideal in that it expresses and maintains the inherent bond between that religious faith which was authored at Sinai and was handed down by Yeshua's apostles in fulfillment of the Great Commission (Hebrews 12:2, Ephesians 4:5). The "One Faith" of scripture is quite simply the Faith of G-d.

WHY THE DIFFERENCE?

G-d said, "For I am the LORD, I change not..." (Malachi 3:6).

If you believe the above statement about G-d I challenge you to be honest with yourself in answering the following questions:

Answer for yourself: Why then is there such a startling difference between Christianity and Judaism?

Answer for yourself: How can two religions that claim to have sprung from the same G-d fail to have many, indeed most things, in common?

Answer for yourself: Did Jesus start an entirely new religion, and if Gentile Christianity is then then how can you explain that it's major doctrines and dogmas can be found in Sun-Worship as found in almost all the Gentile nations of the world? Does that make Jesus a Sun-Worshiper?

Answer for yourself: Is he responsible for all of the differing doctrines and practices that bear the name of Christianity today, and if so what are we to do about the "one faith" of Ephesians?

Answer for yourself: Is there a difference between the "Christ of Faith" and the "Yeshua of History?" Have we followed the wrong Jesus as Christians?

Answer for yourself: Who is the "real Yeshua" as distinguished from the various thousands of different denominations and non-denominations that exist today which teach different "Jesuses?"

These are reasonable questions that deserve sensible, factual answers.

HAVE WE MISSED THE TRUTH ABOUT THE REAL JESUS IN OUR CHURCH...LET ALONE HAVE WE MISSED IN OUR RELATIONSHIP WITH G-D AND DON'T KNOW IT?

Answer for yourself: One may question: "What difference does it make as to how I worship G-d so long as I have accepted Christ as my personal savior?"

As startling as it may sound, the bulk of Biblical text is not devoted to the message of redemption, but rather how one pleases, serves and honors G-d after having become a believer.

This statement is of such importance we need to listen to it again: As startling as it may sound, the bulk of Biblical text is not devoted to the message of redemption, but rather how one pleases, serves and honors G-d after having become a believer.

"FOR I AM THE LORD, I CHANGE NOT..." (Malachi 3:6).

The precaution given to ancient Israel is a valid one for the Church today. G-d pleaded with them on several occasions not to worship Him through learning the ways of the heathens. It is the Gentile Christian who does this and most likely is not aware. In this day of restoration and renewal of the Church, there is a turning away from many of the man-conceived concepts of worship which have been handed down to us by the historic church fathers and a return to Biblical patterns, even if they do appear Jewish in nature.

PILATE'S QUESTION...CAN YOU ANSWER IT? SOME CAN!

Pontius Pilate asked a significant question of public concern, both for our day and his, when he inquired of Yeshua, "WHAT IS TRUTH?" (John 18.38). The greatest of men still struggle to find the answer to this all-consuming question as they seek to please the living G-d. We at Bet Emet Ministries are dedicated to finding the truth in order to assure that we are worshipping the Father in SPIRIT & TRUTH. Our dedicated study for the past fifteen years has shown us that much of what we were taught by Christianity was anything but truth and surely not given by the Spirit.

Failure to fully answer this profound question has left the Church in a quagmire of conflicting doctrines and practices. This question can not be satisfied with the dismissing response that Yeshua said, "I am the Truth." While we as Christians do have the Christ of the doctrine in common, we find ourselves desperate for unity in the doctrine of the Christ. Nearly everyone at some time has found himself a victim of these conflicts only to ponder the same question: "WHAT IS TRUTH?" Perhaps one of the greatest mistakes to be made in our pursuit of divine truth has been the failure to acknowledge the source. The source of basic truths for the Church came from G-d through the Jews. Any teaching that is not traceable through the Jews is not sound doctrine and will invariably be flawed in its conclusion and application.

It is the gradual drift of the Church from its Hebraic moorings and root system that has rendered us a very divided people (over 2,000 different denominations at last count), as is reflected by the myriad of conflicting doctrines and practices within the corporate body of Christ and by the historic denominational "wall building" that has resulted.

Answer for yourself: Where is the "faith once given to the saints?"

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Are we into legalism and a return to bondage?: Not at all! Although that is often the reaction of some when one does something that appears to be Jewish in nature. Yeshua said, "Think not (although some still do) that I am come to destroy the law...". He was not advocating the continuation of the legalistic system for achieving righteousness as some believe Judaism is to be, nor was he attempting to terminate the Law, which is the guideline or pattern for moral discipline, praise and worship. Biblical Judaism was simply G-d's chosen system of praise, worship and service. The writer of Hebrews informed the Jewish believers that Yeshua was sent to bring repentance to Judaism which had become influenced by Hellenism (Hebrews 9: 10). Yeshua did not replace Biblical Judaism and would not today either. In fact it is my strong belief that Christianity as it stands today is an offense to him to say the least.

JESUS-A REFORMER AND NOT AN INNOVATOR

Yeshua did not come to start a new religion for the world, let alone his church which he was to build. Yeshua came to reform Biblical Judaism (Sinai faith) which was intended by both him and his Father to be the faith taken to the Gentiles in the Great Commission. How so you say:

- 1). By taking away the carnal ordinances (refocusing upon the Torah [613 Commandments] and not upon the multiple oral laws given by man's best intentions to ensure that the written Law

- was not broken)
- 2). By strengthening the meaningful Laws and ordinances
- 3). By adding the dimension of the Holy Spirit which was intended to empower the believer to live a Torah obedient life

Clearly "Christ is the end [Hebrew for "end" is "goal" in the Greek] of the law for righteousness" (Romans 10:4), but Yeshua did not eliminate it as an underlining pattern for worship as is demonstrated in the observance of festival celebrations (Hebrews 10: 1). For example, Yeshua never terminated the Passover celebration. He kept it the night before his death. He never intended that we replace the Passover. He never intended we substitute Easter observance [a pagan festival and rite] for the Passover which was given and commanded by G-d for both Jews and Gentiles alike. Some have added to the Passover a Messianic emphasis, but it is still the PASSOVER nonetheless (1 Cor 5:7-8). Sadly for most of us, although most of us are unaware, our churches substitute "crackers" and "grape juice" as a pseudo-Communion for the Passover which was to be celebrated only ONCE A YEAR. When this principle of reform is understood and the "fear factor" is eliminated, the Church is going to see an accelerated restoration of Judeo-Christianity. Charges of legalism and of being Judaizers in the historic context will diminish. Judeo-Christianity is the answer for perfected praise which the church lacks today. The songs Christians sing to G-d in our Gentile Churches may sound great on the sound systems but to G-d's ears I wonder how such erroneous doctrines and untruths in song sound to Him.

Let me say it another way....we as Christians have failed to heed Yeshua's warning to worship the Father in Spirit and in Truth for our worship is flawed and unacceptable to our Father for the most part if we follow the traditional pattern of most churches where paganism is mixed with Biblical Judaism and condoned by the cliché of having a "new" way..a "new" covenant

The sad fact is that most of the church is unlearned and uninformed about such things because their focus has been limited to redemption only to the exclusion of other important doctrines in the Bible such as worship and teaching.

LET THERE BE NO MISTAKEN IDENTITY AND THE FINAL RENEWAL

Having understood the above warning from Yeshua in John 4, the return to Judeo-Christianity through intense study and repentance, thus leading to a return to a more Biblical pattern of worship of the Father cannot be construed as legalism or a return to religious bondage. Those who say different are simply wrong and have failed to grasp the real message of the Scriptures.

"An over-Hellenized over-Latinized Christianity needs a re-Judaizing process to bring it back to its founding Jewish roots and RENEW it more in keeping with its own inherent ideals." (Edward Flannery- Catholic scholar)

Discerning Christian scholars are beginning to recognize the record of the Holy Scriptures and the truth of history. In a very real sense Gentile Christians have been discriminated against by their own leadership. They have been denied their right of equal access to the Judaic heritage guaranteed them by the New Testament. Presbyterian scholar Harry E. Gaylord described it accordingly, "The Christians, as they were eventually called, did not have a uniform approach to Jewish law, but they were not trying to break away from Judaism. They were a group within it trying to make their views normative. First generation Christianity was a part of Biblical Judaism, but the next generation read us out of it. The New Covenant of grace has guaranteed all men, Jew and Gentile, the right of equal access to the promises of G-d through Abraham. "That the blessings of Abraham might come on the Gentile through Yeshua Christ.....And if ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." (Ga 3:14, 29)

Judaism was a religion of much ceremonial ritualism "until the time of reformation" (Hebrews 9: 10). Because of the ministry of Yeshua Gentiles as well as Jews can now maintain the righteous principles of the law without being encumbered with all the cultural baggage of Talmudic Judaism. It was in this context that the apostle Paul could denounce those who dared to trust in the ritual observance of the law to establish their own righteousness through works of the flesh (Galatians 3: 1-3) and at the same time encourage the celebration of the Passover by Gentile Christians (1 Corinthians 5:7-8).

Answer for yourself: Since the inherent Jewishness of the gospel of Yeshua is so clear in the first century, the obvious question is, "What brought the massive divorcement of Christianity from Biblical Judaism?"

For the answer one need only trace the course of history. After the death of the apostle Paul and the destruction of Jerusalem in A.D. 70, subsequent generations, which included more and more Gentiles, made every effort to remove all traces of Jewishness from the gospel of Yeshua. As the Church became increasingly Hellenized (Greek) and Latinized (Roman), many of the concepts of polytheism (other gods) began to appear, gain prominence and become entrenched in the Church. The Church remains a victim of many of these elements today. But restoration and doctrinal renewal for the Church is on G-d's agenda (Deut. 32:2). Many are beginning to "...ask for the old paths, where is the good way..." (Jer.6: 16). They will be the prophetic ones who "....shall build the old waste places: thou shalt raise up the foundations of many generations; and thou shalt be called, The repairer of the breach, The restorer of paths to dwell in" (Isaiah 58:12). Bet Emet Ministries is one of many who have felt the call to return to the old paths which is the good way, and in doing so, build the waste places destroyed by Gentile Christian anti-Semitism and anti-Judaism. In our pursuit to return to the "faith once given to the saints" we may not have Gentile Christianity's support, but rest confidently in the fact that we are raising up David's tabernacle in fulfillment of Scripture by helping to restore the paths and foundations for many who seek the truth about the G-d of the Bible

THE END RESULT

The present renewal of the Church in Spirit is going to result in a renewal and restoration of Biblical truth in the area of worship and practice.

Answer for yourself: What is the end purpose of and need for this Judeo-Christian restoration?

Quite simply G-d is preparing the Church for the physical Kingdom age. The Millennial Kingdom is our inheritance with Yeshua (Rom 8:17, Matt 5:5). The destiny of Yeshua was declared by G-d through the angel unto Mary: "He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of David forever; and of his Kingdom there shall be no end." (Luke 1:32-33)

If indeed Messiah's Kingdom is a "Davidic Kingdom", we might well conclude that the system and pattern of things that he will employ in that age will be those which "came from G-d through the Jews to the Church" so that we might be equipped to reign with Messiah over all the earth (Rev.20:6).

WHEN DID G-D'S LAWS BEGIN?

For many reasons, there has been confusion among the saints concerning the laws of the Almighty G-d. Well-meaning people have been deceived and misled by denominations, preachers, priests and teachers. As the result, there are all sorts of wrong conclusions, misunderstandings, and widespread errors in the assemblies and denominations concerning the laws of the Eternal Father.

Within the Gentile Christian Church, beginning many centuries ago, erroneous beliefs concerning "the law" were introduced. As a result, church-goers with excellent intentions have been cheated of sound understanding concerning the laws of G-d. In the present day, most who call themselves Christians give little or no thought to "the law" that is so often mentioned within the scriptures. Those scriptural passages that equate "the elect" with those who "keep the commandments of G-d" are generally read without any understanding, by the majority of people. As if that is sad enough, through false teachings and outright error being taught from our pulpits most people have had ingrained within them a "negative" connotation concerning the laws of G-d and pride themselves no "being under those awful things that kill."

Answer for yourself: It is possible, that due to anti-Semitism and improper teaching beginning over 1800 years ago by the Gentile Church which has rejected their "Jewish Mother" that we could be misled today in our understanding of the laws of G-d...His Torah (instruction)? This matter will be examined in this series of articles.

KEEPING THE COMMANDMENTS OF THE FATHER

Answer for yourself: Why is it that the scriptures are filled with often repeated instructions to "keep My commandments," yet the average church-goer is unable to tell you or list what even 50 of the 613 commandments are?

Yeshua very plainly stated that in order to inherit a place in the Heavenly Kingdom, we must do much more than merely call him our Lord. As it is written, he said that a person must also 'do the will of [the] Father'(Matthew 7:21).

Answer for yourself: How can anyone read that passage (and others like it), with the intent of eventually reaching eternal Heavenly rest, without pausing to wonder, "just what is 'the will of the Father'?"

Answer for yourself: We must ask ourselves "Can we follow Jesus without being willing to keep the commandments of the Father?"

When the young man asked Jesus what he must do in order to "have eternal life," Yeshua responded by telling him that in order to reach his spiritual goal he must "keep the commandments" (Matthew 19:16-17).

Answer for yourself: Are we not compelled, then, to wonder which commandments?

Answer for yourself: Because of that answer which He gave to the sincere young individual, should we not wonder whether we are "keeping the commandments"?

Truly, all of us who are sincerely seeking a Heavenly home must ponder whether we are obeying the "will and commandments of the Father."

"If ye love Me, keep My commandments" (John 14:15). "He that hath My commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth Me" (John 14:21). "If ye keep My commandments, ye shall abide in My love" (John 15:10).

Answer for yourself: When you read words such as these, spoken by the Messiah, Himself, how can you not wonder to which commandments He is referring?

"And hereby we do know that we know Him: if we keep His commandments. He that saith, I know Him, and keepeth not His commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth His word, in him verily is the love of G-d perfected; hereby we know that we are in Him" (1 John 2:3-5).

"For this is the love of G-d: that we keep His commandments" (1 John 5:3).

We must know what His commandments are, and we must make the decision to obey them, in order to be called His friends (John 15:14).

The end-times Church -- the assembly of the elect -- is described as those who "keep the commandments of G-d, and have the testimony of Jesus Christ" (Revelation 12:17, 14:12). Those whom the end-time Messiah recognizes as outwardly displaying their love for him, "keep [G-d's] commandments." And those who will not be permitted to inherit a place within the Heavenly Kingdom are those who failed to obey the "will of the Father." All who profess to follow Jesus of Nazareth must be "keeping the commandments," else he or she will be rejected at the day of judgement. It is to those who do not keep the commandments that the New Testament records that Yeshua will say, "I never knew you. Depart from Me" (Matthew 7:23).

Obviously then, commandment-keeping is a basic part of Christ's doctrine. The words of Yeshua repeatedly declare that fact to us.

Answer for yourself: Since commandment keeping is of such importance to Jesus, if you are a follower of Jesus then should they also be as important to you?

THERE IS A YOKE...MAKE NO MISTAKE ABOUT IT

Contrary to what so many have misunderstood or have been misled into believing, there is a "yoke" of commandments to which the believer must yield himself or herself. To be sure, the Father of our spirits is merciful, and gracious, and loving, and kind. However, none of those attributes is in any way opposite to requiring His children to obey His rules. Jesus told those who would follow Him, "Take My yoke upon you"

(Matthew 11:29). Our Messiah never said, 'Do whatever you please, and I'll be satisfied.' In fact, Messiah Yeshua declared just the opposite!

Answer for yourself: Did Messiah say that those who serve him in their way, instead of his way, will not be accepted by him at the Last Day (Matthew 7:21)? He sure did!

Matt 7:21-23 21 Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. 22 Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, have we not prophesied in thy name? and in thy name have cast out devils? and in thy name done many wonderful works? 23 And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity. (KJV)

I want to draw your attention to that part of the above verse where Yeshua mentions "depart from him because they practice iniquity" (Strong's number 458 & 459 meaning "the practice of not submitting to Jewish Law".

23 And <2532> then <5119> will I profess <3670> (5692) unto them <846>, <3754> I never <3763> knew <1097> (5627) you <5209>: depart <672> (5720) from <575> me <1700>, ye that work <2038> (5740) iniquity <458>.

Lexicon Greek 458 458 anomia {an-om-ee'-ah} from 459; TDNT - 4:1085,646; n f AV - iniquity 12, unrighteousness 1, transgress the law + 4060 1, transgression of the law 1; 15

- 1) the condition of without law
  - 1a) because ignorant of it
  - 1b) because of violating it
- 2) contempt and violation of law, iniquity, wickedness

Now let us examine the "root" word.

Lexicon Greek 459 459 anomos {an'-om-os} from 1 (as a negative particle) and 3551; TDNT - 4:1086,646; adj AV - without law 4, transgressor 2, wicked 2, lawless 1, unlawful 1; 10

- 1) destitute of (the Mosaic) law
- 1a) of the Gentiles (notice this carefully)!!!!!!
- 2) departing from the law, a violator of the law, lawless, wicked

Answer for yourself: Is transgression of the LAW of Moses for the Gentile (following the Cross in the New Testament) considered "sin?" Definitely yes.

Answer for yourself: Please note that Ephesians 2:1 says that these Gentile converts "WERE" (past tense) cut off from Yahweh, having no hope because something had separated them for Yahweh. What does Isaiah tell us in 59:1-2 that separated the Gentiles from G-d? Our iniquities, our sin which is transgression of the Laws of Moses, which contained within them the Laws of Noah which were given by G-d to the non-Jew long before there were Jews.

Answer for yourself: The New Testament, in I John 3:4, defines "SIN" as what? Transgression of, violation of, and ignorance of the Mosaic Laws.

Answer for yourself: Does Matt. 7:21 teach us in the New Testament that those who are without the Law, or who are ignorant of the Law, or who violate the Law, or who are destitute of the Mosaic Law (usually Gentiles) are told by Yeshua to depart from him? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Does Matt. 7:21 teach us in the New Testament that those who depart from the law are "wicked?" Yes.

Answer for yourself: Does Matt. 7:21 teach us that if we are ignorant of the Law, thereby showing our contempt of it, should we expect to likewise hear "depart from me" from Yeshua in the world to come? Yes.

Answer for yourself: Does Matt. 7:21 teach us in the New Testament that those who violate the Law and are destitute of the Mosaic Law are told by Yeshua to depart from him. Yes.

Answer for yourself: If your church has taught you that the Law has passed away, thus making you destitute of the Law of Moses, should you expect that Yeshua will tell you to depart from him as well? Yes.

I thought you would think the above quick study very interesting. I can remember just how shocked I was when in my studies years ago I ran across this information when looking up hundreds of words in the Greek from my New Testament. Let is sink into your head and heart; the word in the Greek for "iniquity" means "those who are ignorant of, or disobedient of the Mosaic Laws, especially Gentiles!" I can hear now many of you saying to yourselves "No way", but the facts are facts. More on this important truth which is overlooked by so many later in other articles.

Answer for yourself: Are we not warned that those who substitute "the commandments of men" in place of the Father's doctrine "worship [Him] in vain" (Matthew 15:9; Mark 7:7)?

Answer for yourself: Have you worshipped G-d in vain at times in your life because you failed to understand G-d's Law which commanded the worship of G-d be done in certain ways and not in other ways?

Obviously, there are commandments for Christians to follow, and there is a "burden" that we are expected to bear. The scriptures soothe and assure us, however, that, "His commandments are not grievous" (1 John 5:3). Yeshua said that this "yoke is easy, and the burden is light" (Matthew 11:30).

Those who are called the "saints" are they who "keep the commandments of G-d, and the faith of Jesus" (Revelation 12:17, 14:12). In Revelation 22:14, we read: "Blessed are they that do His commandments, that they may have right to the Tree of Life, and may enter in through the gates of the city [the Holy City descended from Heaven]."

Answer for yourself: Can any one who features himself or herself to be a Christian actually think it is acceptable to by-pass such plain declarations?

Answer for yourself: Once plain scriptural statements such as these are carefully pondered, how can anyone who sincerely seeks to inherit the Kingdom presume to think that he or she is exempt from commandment-keeping?

Answer for yourself: If so, then he or she does not comprehend the scriptures. The question that should be eagerly asked is, 'Which commandments must I, a Gentile believer in G-d through Yeshua, strive to obey'?

Answer for yourself: Have I, a Gentile believer in G-d through Yeshua, been given the exact same commandments as the Jew, or have I as a Gentile believer been given by G-d only some of them (Acts 15 and Isa. 56 hold the answer)? More on that later.

But, for all too many, there is no comprehension of the importance of yielding to Heavenly laws; therefore, for them, that question does not even arise.

FAILURE TO COMPREHEND THE LAW CORRECTLY

Every person who has the ability to read or to listen, but who does not comprehend the scriptures fails to do so because of one of three basic reasons. Either the person does not want to understand; or he or she is not intended to understand; or, he or she has been misled by errant and slothful pastors. Admittedly, each of us has, to some degree, failed to correctly comprehend the scriptures -- for one or more of the above reasons. The good news, however, is that the future of our understanding can be rather bright.

But let us return to the reasons for failure to comprehend the importance of the eternal laws.

- Firstly, there are those people who simply do not want to understand. Next within this category, there are those who are afraid to understand. Like the disciples, of whom it was written: "They understood not that saying, and were afraid to ask Him" (Mark 9:32). Understanding brings with it the added responsibility to make a decision -- to take some action, and to obey. Knowledge and understanding replace ignorance. When that happens, there remains no excuse (John 15:22). New, more clear understanding brings with it a change of perspective. Change is temporarily uncomfortable to us. As humans, we tend to like to stay as we are. Growth requires us to be in flux -- off balance for the moment -- and obligates us to make decisions, and adjustments in our thinking and in our life-style.
- The second reason why people do not comprehend is that it is not foreordained that they should understand. Jesus told his disciples, when asked why he spoke so often in parables: "Because it is given unto you to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of Heaven, but to them it is not given. Therefore, I speak unto them in parables...lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should be converted, and I should heal them" (Matthew 13:10-15). Again, Yeshua (Hebrew for Jesus) explained to his disciples: "Unto you it is given to know the mysteries of the Kingdom of G-d, but to others in parables, that...they might not see, and...they might not understand." He explained that in the 'parable of the sower': the seeds that fell by the way side "are they that hear; then cometh the adversary (devil), and taketh away the Word out of their hearts, lest they should believe and be saved" (Luke 8:10-12).

Following this theme, Paul wrote that "if the gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost; in whom the g-d of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel...should shine unto them" (2 Corinthians 4:3-4). While no one wants to think of himself or herself as being in this category, the undeniable fact is that the scriptures testify that there are many citizens of the planet who are not chosen (from before the foundation of the world) to understand the Word.

- Thirdly, we can misunderstand [not comprehend correctly] the scriptures because of those who have taught us, and the culture in which we were raised. Pastors, preachers, teachers, and parents are all liable to perpetuate and pass on un-truths. This usually occurs without any maliciousness on their part at all -- because they, themselves, were also deceived. In these instances, there is generally no active intent to lead anyone astray. However, mis-direction may also occur because of fear of ridicule, or laziness on the part of pastors and teachers. There are multitudes of ministers who do not understand the law and the Bible yet they preach; and this because of the hardness of their hearts and their lack of dedication to study to ensure that they teach "truth" and not "error." They have fallen prey to tradition.

There are many pastors and preachers and church-school teachers who are like the "blind watchmen" mentioned in Isaiah 56. There are numerous others who are slothful watchmen, not lifting the voice of warning because of their own self interests, or because of fear of losing their salary as a paid hireling minister (Ezekiel 33:1-9; 2 Timothy 4:3; John 10:13). Many are the church leaders who frankly were not called, and not sent by the Father. As Paul asked, "How shall they hear without a preacher? And how shall they preach, except they be sent" (Romans 10:14-15)? There are a multitude of ministers and spiritual teachers who are metaphorically described as "wells without water," actually unable to provide spiritual drink for their parishioners who thirst (2 Peter 2:16). These are they who are uninspired, and who lack the Spirit of Truth to guide them. They substitute man-made theology, popular 'love' psychology, their own chosen 'flavor' of political philosophy, and written speeches copied from the sermons of other men, in place of the gospel of the Kingdom. Emotionalism is what they substitute for righteousness. They preach on subjects such as liberal humanistic morality, self-esteem, and wealth-building, because they themselves know not the right way. These are they who "worship...in vain" because they "teach for doctrines the commandments of men" (Matthew 15:9).

WHEN DID THE LAW BEGIN ANYWAY?

The scriptures do speak of more than one set of laws. Some of the laws were from the beginning: they are endless and eternal. Some laws were added at a later time. Others were commandments related to a covenant with a particular individual or family. Still others were laws upon which there was a time or circumstantial limit placed. It is very important to understand this and be able to discern this when you read and study the Bible. Few do however and we hope to change that for the better by sound teaching on such subjects in this website.

Answer for yourself: Do the scriptures teach us that there was no law in effect before the exodus from Egypt and Sinai? No, not at all! The scriptures tell us just the opposite: that the law of G-d was given to man in Eden -- from the very beginning! Covenants contain laws and commandments as covenant responsibilities that G-d gave man as his part of the covenant relationship. If you have a covenant then you have certain responsibilities; these are called laws and commandments. And yet there are many who have been confused or misdirected into wrongly believing that "the law" is synonymous with everything that Moses spoke to the children of Israel, they mistakenly believe that before Moses, there was no law. Such thinking is completely wrong! Because sin is defined as the transgression of the law, then those who think that there was no law given to man before Sinai must erroneously conclude that there was no sin before Sinai! Such is foolishness.

At the first, Adam was told that he may not eat of the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil. The scripture tells us that, in some wonderful and mysterious way, within the fruit of that special tree was contained knowledge of right and wrong, of good and of evil. When Eve and Adam partook of it, their understanding "was opened," and they were ashamed of themselves. Elohim said "man is become as one of us, to know good and evil" (Genesis 3:22). As Paul wrote, the knowledge of sin comes through the law (Romans 3:20). It is obvious, then, that the fruit of the Tree of the Knowledge of Good and Evil contained within it, in some miraculous manner, the basic laws of right and wrong and of right conduct toward the Creator and fellow-man.

NO LAW....NO SIN...HOW CAN THAT BE?

There was indeed a law given to those favored of Yahweh long before Sinai. If there had been no law, then there could have been no sin, and therefore, no punishment. If there had been no law from the days of Adam and Eve, then, according to Paul's explanation (that where there is no law there is no transgression, and therefore no sin imputed), the Eternal Father would have been unjustified in rejecting Cain's offering.

Answer for yourself: How could Jehovah fairly have rejected Cain's efforts, if Cain had not had prior knowledge of the proper and acceptable way to present an offering? We may not have been told everything in Genesis, but such knowledge of man's responsibilities and duties toward G-d and his fellow man are implied; such responsibilities were always expressed as laws and commandments which, when properly understood, were reflective of the "loving" response toward either G-d or mankind.

Answer for yourself: How could the Eternal Father go on to justly punish Cain for murdering his brother, if Cain had not known that there was a law against murder?

Answer for yourself: Was He justified or unjustified in rejecting and punishing Cain in these matters? He was justified, because He is "righteous in all His ways, and holy in all His works" (Psalm 145:17).

Answer for yourself: If there was no law from the beginning, how could any man have been considered 'righteous'?

Yet the scriptures declare that Noah was 'righteous.' (Genesis 7:1) He was, in fact, the only righteous man in his generation. The rest of the world was wicked.

Answer for yourself: How could a just G-d become angry enough with man to bring a devastating flood upon the earth, unless He expected man to have behaved otherwise?

Answer for yourself: And how could they have behaved otherwise (not sinned), unless they had been given a law, and a set of commandments to follow?

"Sin is not imputed when there is no law" (Romans 5:13). The wicked are those who transgress the law (Psalm 119:53).

Answer for yourself: How, then, could anyone in days of old be labeled as "wicked" if there had been no law before Sinai?

Yet the Sodomites "were wicked and sinners before the Lord continually" (Genesis 13:13).

Answer for yourself: Since, as Paul wrote, no sin is imputed where there is no law; and since, as David wrote, the Eternal Father is "righteous in all His ways," how could He have been justified in destroying Sodom and Gomorrah, if there had there been no law given in those days? He couldn't!

Answer for yourself: How could Abraham have had a discussion with the Angel of the Lord concerning people who were righteous and people who were wicked if there had been no law (therefore, no definition of righteousness or wickedness) prior to Moses' day? He couldn't have!

As we shall discover shortly, there are numerous passages of scripture that affirm to us that there was a law given to man from the very beginning. There was a law that began in Eden, and was given to the family of Adam.

MORE THAN ONE LAW GIVEN

Before we proceed, we must recognize that there was more than one category of law that was given to the children of Israel through Moses. We have already begun to realize that there were the timeless 'commandments of the covenant,' as well as the temporary Levitical 'law of performances and ordinances.' However, there were also other laws -- laws that do not fit so easily into either category. These include the civil or political laws. Laws concerning property and inheritances. Laws of personal hygiene. Laws of retribution, laws governing the rights of the poor, and compensation for victims of crime. And there were other miscellaneous laws. At least some of these laws seem to have been added following the sojourn at Sinai. Most of these laws were in some way conditional, and dependent upon conditions and circumstances. In this article, we will not attempt to deal with this category of conditional laws.

The main focus of these articles are to help you to discern the eternal laws -- the laws that were not conditional, or which were intended to be observed from beginning to ending. As we proceed, we do so reverently, not dogmatically, with the acknowledgment that the ways of our G-d are far above our understanding. The commandments of an eternal nature are sometimes referred to as the "royal law" -- the law that had been given to man from the beginning. To be sure, that law was being re-stated at Sinai. The laws that were being reiterated at Sinai were the same as the laws that had been given to Adam. The laws which Adam had received in the beginning were passed on from generation to generation among his righteous seed. The law that was given to Adam and his generations was preserved in the ark with Noah [as a type and shadow of the Ark of the Covenant].

The children of G-d were not ever left without a law. G-d's children would indeed spiritually "dwindle and perish in unbelief" without His law. At Mount Sinai, the same law was uttered again by the voice of the great 'I Am' directly to the Israelites, as part of the covenant He made with them. These precious and perfect laws had previously been known and observed by Jacob and his sons, when they had immigrated to Egypt. Some of these same laws had been known by Noah and others; even Adam. But, with the passing of many generations, and the bondage of slavery, the nation of Israel had lost sight of these laws during their hundreds of years of captivity.

WHAT ABOUT THE ADDED LAW?

To be sure, there was an added law. The apostle Paul said that the added law was given by Moses because of transgressions until the Seed [the Messiah] should come (Galatians 3:16-19). The added law was just that -- added.

Answer for yourself: Added to what?

Moses could not add something, unless something else had already existed. And certainly that which had existed from the beginning, could not be spoken of as having been added. Moses could not add to the Divine law that was revealed in the beginning to Adam, and which was known and obeyed by the patriarchs.

Answer for yourself: Then what was the law that was "added"?

While Israel was gathered at the foot of Mount Sinai, Yahweh added, because of the sin of the Golden Calf, the laws of performances & ordinances as a consequence of the sins of the Golden Calf. Those laws were given to Moses, and were inextricably linked to the Aaronic priesthood and the Tabernacle. It was expedient that there should be a very strict law given to the children of Israel because they were a stiff-necked people: quick to do iniquity, and slow to remember the Lord their G-d. Therefore, there was a law given them; a law of performances and of ordinances, a law which they were to observe strictly from day to day, to keep them in remembrance of G-d, and their duty towards Him. This "law or laws" were over and above the Laws and Commandments given to Adam and the Patriarchs. Speaking of the law which consisted of "ordinances of divine service and a worldly sanctuary," we read that this consisted of "meats and drinks [offerings], and divers washings [purifications], and carnal ordinances, imposed on them until the reformation (Hebrews 9:10). This litany of ceremonial laws became utterly inseparable from the Aaronic priesthood.

The Levitical priesthood existed only for the purpose of administering those outward ordinances. It did not save not bring atonement because atonement was procured long before an animal was killed by the confession and repentance of the sinner before he brought his animal to the priest to have it killed. Only in a symbolic way was the life in the blood of the animal representative of the offerer and as the animal's blood was placed on the altar the sinner, since repentance, saw himself once again at-that-moment (atonement) in right relationship with G-d on the altar once again. This message of animal sacrifice and how it worked as totally been misunderstood by Gentile Christianity.

In fact, it was by the law that a man served in the Levitical priesthood. To that order of priesthood Yeshua, himself, could not belong (Hebrews 7:13-14). But there was (and is) another priesthood. The same that was from the beginning, and will be forever. It is the priesthood that Melchisedek held. It is 'without father, without mother, without descent.' (Hebrews 7:3; Psalm 110:4). By contrast to this, the Levitical priesthood was conferred solely because of one's parentage and descent. The priesthood of Melchisedek has "neither beginning of days, nor end of life." But the Levitical priesthood did have a beginning that commenced with the laws of performances and ordinances; and it did have an end of existence when the Temple was destroyed in 70 C.E. Also of interest is the fact that Melchisedek was a non-Jew who ministered to non-Jews Eternal Life. Interesting to note is that for the most part Judaism has no outreach to the non-Jew and have failed to be a light to the nations as was their calling, however, in an ironic way the followers of Yeshua took the revelation of the Laws of Noah and the Covenant of Noah to the Gentile world. Sadly today the Christian world has lost its Jewishness and no longer understands how they fit and relate to the Israel of G-d. In this way the followers of Yeshua yet operated as a Royal Priesthood to the world as was their calling, but not as an Aaronic Priesthood but rather as a Priesthood of Melchisedek...to the non-Jew.

WHEN DID G-D'S LAWS BEGIN?

It is to this "added law" we will look shortly for the understanding of it is paramount for the New Testament believer. Shalom.

UNDERSTANDING THE LAW AS YESHUA....A JEW DID

Much of our study will originate from within the Torah, or what Christians commonly refer to as the "Pentateuch." Strictly speaking, the Torah refers to the first five books of the Bible, written by Moshe (Moses); however, over time the term "Torah" has generally taken on the connotation of referring to the entire First covenant (Old Testament). The "Tanakh" (Ta-nack is how you pronounce it) is the more proper term for the Hebrew Bible (equivalent to the Christian Bible's Old Testament). This term is an acronym formed from the Hebrew letters "taw" (t), "nun" (n), and "kaph" (k), which stand for the three main divisions of the Hebrew bible: the Torah (Law or Instructions), the Nevi'im (Prophets), and the Ketuvim (Writings).

Answer for yourself: Well, now we have an idea of where the Torah is found within the Bible, but if it is only one of three sections, how did it get a connotation of referring to the whole Bible?

Answer for yourself: Doesn't it mean "law?"

Actually, this is one of the most important points of our entire study: a proper understanding of the concept of "Torah." A better translation of this term would be "instruction." Torah represents the embodiment of what G-d would have us learn of Him. It comes from the Hebrew word "yarah" which is an archery term meaning "to shoot", or "to take aim" and conveys the concept of "pointing out" (as if by "aiming" the finger), "teaching", or "instructing." This can be verified by referencing the Strong's Exhaustive Concordance of the Bible (Hebrew glossary #8451, and then from there further referenced to #3384), and/or the Gesenius Hebrew-Chaldee Lexicon. (Both books may be ordered from Christian bookstores. They are necessary for your studies.)

Answer for yourself: So if it means "instruction", then how did it get translated "law?"

Good question. When Torah was translated from Hebrew into Greek in the Septuagint, the Greeks didn't have a word for "instruction" that quite matched the concepts embodied by Torah by the Hebrews so they used the closest Greek counterpart, the term "nomos," which means literally "to parcel out," with secondary meanings of "principle" and "law," or "regulation." From there, the Greek was translated into English using the "law" definition. Sadly enough, our Western mind-set has taken this term "law" quite literally and we have come to the erroneous conclusion that it refers to "legalistic regulations no longer in force." Even worse, this concept is propagated Sunday after Sunday in pulpits across the land and in the teachings of many of our seminaries. This error has led to another tragic misunderstanding: that the New Testament has superseded the Old Testament! Nothing could be further from the truth! The New Testament clarifies the Old (First) and expounds upon the teachings of G-d! As one wise theologian has said: "The Old Testament is the New Testament concealed, and the New Testament is the Old Testament revealed." G-d didn't change His mind in the middle of the story; He merely made more concrete (with the sending of the Messiah) some of the more abstract concepts of the Old Testament. However, not all is as simple as that. It is not my intention to expose such errors in this article, but within this document called the New Testament we have many instances of "Replacement Religion" where the desire of the non-Jew to eradicate his responsibility to the Torah has been cleverly inserted and given authority by ascribing such teachings to the heroes of our faith. Let me say when you find contradiction you should sit up straight and ask yourself a simple question: "Is G-d confused." We deal with this corruption of truth in many of our websites and we ask you seek answers to this very troubling problem in the materials presented there.

Needless to say, this is a complex subject and one that could easily fill several volumes. Let me share these scriptures with you to help:

1) Yeshua (Jesus) said: "Think not that I am come to destroy the law, or the prophets; I am not come to destroy, but to fulfill."

"For verily I say unto you, till heaven and earth pass, one jot or tittle shall in no wise pass from the Torah, till all be fulfilled." Matt. 5:17-18

2) "And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and said unto Him, "Thou seest, brother, how many thousands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all zealous of the Torah (law)." Acts 21:20

Answer for yourself: Was the above passages spoken by James, the head of Yeshua's church some thirty years after his death and resurrection?

Answer for yourself: Did James and Yeshua's church feel that the "Law" was still in effect 30 years after the cross?

Notice in the above reference to Acts 21:20:

- This is after the ascension.
- These are Jewish believers in Yeshua who are STILL zealous of the Torah. They haven't dropped the Torah and it's teachings! And, they are still in the Temple every day as you can see if you will read the whole section!
- "All scripture is given by inspiration of G-d, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness." II Timothy 3:16

Notice also that at the time this was written, it referred only to the Old Testament; the New was not yet complete, nor codified.

- Every reference made by Yeshua and the apostles came from the Old Testament. As was pointed out above, the New was not yet written!
- Jewish New Testament translation: "For the goal at which the Torah aims is the Messiah, who offers righteousness to everyone who trusts." Romans 10:4

Contrary to popular belief, there were not two methods of righteousness: law for the Old Testament saints and grace for the church. Salvation was, is, and always shall be by grace through faith. Even Avraham (Abraham), the Father of the Jewish people knew that:

"And he (Abraham) believed in the Lord; and he counted it to him for righteousness." Genesis 15:6

Faith or "confidence" in the Lord is the means of justification before G-d, and the Torah instructs us how to walk in this faith. How to raise our families, how to eat for our health, and how to know G-d is also explained.

GETTING ACQUAINTED WITH THE TORAH..IT IS ABOUT TIME

As stated before, in Jewish tradition the word "Torah", which literally means "teaching," is often used to describe the entire gamut of Jewish religious learning. When so used, Torah refers not only to the Five Books of Moses but also to the Prophets, Holy Writings, Talmud, and Midrash-in fact, to all religious writings from earliest times to the present.

Basically, however, the term Torah applies to the Five Books of Moses, the first five books of the Bible. The word "Pentateuch", a Latin word derived from the Greek, meaning "five books," is commonly used to refer to these five books. Pentateuch corresponds to the Hebrew word "Chumash", meaning "five."

In addition to the five books that are collectively called the Torah, there are two other parts to the Bible: the Prophets (Neviim), which consists of twenty-one books, and the Holy Writings or Hagiographa (Ketuvim or Ketubim), which consists of thirteen books. This biblical triad is often referred to as the Tanach, a Hebrew acronym fashioned from the first letter of the Hebrew words Torah (Pentateuch), Neviim (Prophets), and Ketuvim (Holy Writings).

The following are the thirty-nine books of the Bible:

The Torah: Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers, Deuteronomy.

The Prophets: Joshua, Judges, I Samuel, II Samuel, I Kings, 11 Kings, Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Hosea, Joel, Amos, Obadiah, Jonah, Micah, Nahum, Habakkuk, Zephaniah, Haggai, Zechariah, Malachi.

The Holy Writings: Psalms, Proverbs, Job, Song of Songs, Ruth, Lamentations, Ecclesiastes, Esther, Daniel, Ezra, Nehemiah, I Chronicles, H Chronicles.

According to an early talmudic method of counting the books of the Bible, the figure was set at twenty-four. This number was arrived at by counting the twelve Minor Prophets as one book (in Aramaic the group is called "Tray Asar", "twelve") and by counting each of the following as one book: First Samuel and Second Samuel, First Kings and Second Kings, First Chronicles and Second Chronicles, and Ezra and Nehemiah. (Thus, the thirty-nine count is reduced by fifteen.) The term often used to designate these books in classical literature is "Esrin V'arba'a".

THE HEART AND SOUL OF THE FAITH OF YESHUA AND BIBLICAL JUDAISM...THE TORAH

The Torah is the centerpiece to Yeshua, of Judaism and the key to Jewish survival. Although not every Jew is familiar with the contents of the Torah or observes its commandments, all Jews recognize the centrality of the Torah in Jewish religious life and its function as the moral guide of the Jewish people. Not only that, but it is recognized as being the intended guide for all mankind.

The role played by the Torah in the lives of individual Jews varies considerably. Some Jews have studied the Torah sufficiently to appreciate its message: some have learned to read the Hebrew text some have learned to chant the unvocalized script of the Torah scroll. Some have been called to the Torah on Sabbaths or holidays and are able to recite the Torah blessings. Many Jews, perhaps the majority, however, have had minimal contact with the Torah. The same can be said for much of Christianity as well.

What made it possible for this relatively brief book to achieve such a high level of importance? How did one book come to be so revered that Jews in every century have been willing to sacrifice their lives rather than violate its teachings?

The answers to these questions may be found in the attitudes of the Rabbis of the Talmud and their successors toward the unique historical event generally referred to as "The Revelation," or "Mattan Torah," the giving of the Torah on Mount Sinai over three thousand years ago. The Torah it self describes the scene dramatically: Amidst thunder and lightning, a quaking mountain is engulfed by fire and clouds of smoke. Then the piercing sound of a shofar is heard as G-d appears atop Mount Sinai and reveals the Ten Commandments (and, according to tradition, the entire Torah) to Moses, who then transmits it to the people-at-large.

The Rabbis chose to embellish the scant text and thus add to the mystery surrounding the event. Rabbi Abahu, for example, notes that when the Torah was given, the world lapsed into silence. No one spoke. Total silence. Birds did not chirp fowl did not fly oxen did not low. Even the heavenly angelic choir that always serenaded G-d with "Holy, holy, holy . . ." lapsed into silence and withheld its never-ending praises of the Lord.

It was at this point, says Rabbi Abahu, that the intense stillness was suddenly pierced by a powerful, thunderous Voice proclaiming the first of the Ten Commandments: "I am the Lord your G-d!"

Other Rabbis proposed that the Torah was not intended for Israel alone but was to be the property of the entire world. Commenting on Exodus 20:15, "And all the people saw the Voices," one Rabbi asked, "Why is the plural, Voices, used in this verse when quite clearly the reference is to the Voice of G-d. The singular, Voice, should have been used."

Rabbi Yochanan explains that we are to understand from the plural usage that the one Voice, the Voice of G-d, divided itself into seven, and the seven grew and expanded and emerged as seventy Voices so that all seventy nations of the world would receive the message at the same time. To Rabbi Yochanan the Torah was a universal document, the heritage of all mankind.

Other Rabbis of the Talmud and Midrash present a scenario in which the Torah was offered to nation after nation. Each refused to accept the Torah when it became aware that the scroll's teachings were in conflict with the nation's life-style. Some could not countenance the ban against stealing others against murder still others objected to the prohibition against adultery. Such is a "salad-bar" spiritual relationship with G-d whereby we pick and choose to do only those things commanded by G-d which are deemed acceptable to us.

Not all Rabbis were convinced that the Torah was eagerly accepted by the Israelites either. In fact, said one Rabbi, G-d had to force the Torah upon them. In commenting on the verse "And they [the Israelites] stood at the foot of the mountain," Rabbi Avdimi bar Chama declared, "This verse teaches us that G-d lifted up the mountain and held it over the heads of the Israelites and said to them: 'you accept the Torah, fine and good if not, this place will be your burial site. You will be buried under this mountain.'" In the end, tradition has it, the Israelites did accept the Torah willingly and eagerly, and when it was offered to them, they immediately said, "Naaseh ve-nishma [We will do and we will listen]." So anxious were they to accept the Torah that they agreed to observe its commandments even before they were aware of exactly what those commandments were. This is real faith in action.

The statement in Deuteronomy 33:4 that the Torah is "the inheritance of the Congregation of Jacob" became a widely accepted doctrine. The Torah became the legacy of the Jewish people. They took the Torah to their hearts. They loved it and guarded it. They studied it and taught it and interpreted it, passing on its teachings from generation to generation.

HOW THE TORAH SURVIVED

The Rabbis sought to insure that the sanctity of the Torah would be preserved. They did so by "building a fence [seyag] around it." This "fence" is constructed of laws and regulations designed to preserve the message of the Torah and safeguard its teachings by adding limits, whereby if followed, ensured that transgression of G-d's

Laws would not happen. The Rabbis also sought to encourage respectful treatment of the Torah by mandating how each scroll was to be written, and by whom, and upon what kind of material. They also established regulations governing public readings: when the Torah should be read, how much of it should be read, and by whom. And they specified precisely how the Torah should be housed and how it should be dressed.

Perhaps the greatest factor contributing to the longevity of the Torah is the conscious effort made by great Jewish intellectuals to prevent it from becoming obsolete or irrelevant, as has happened to many famous documents of antiquity. In a perpetual search for new meaning, the Torah was constantly studied, analyzed, probed. Every sentence, every word, every letter was dissected and examined. Was a word missing in a sentence? Was a letter missing in a word? Was a word or a phrase repeated unduly? If so, what was the significance of this occurrence? Was there a hid den deeper meaning to the text?

According to some scholars, it was Ezra the Scribe, of the fifth century B.C.E., who initiated this analytical method of Bible study. They base this on the statement "Ezra had dedicated himself to study the Torah of the Lord so as to observe it and to teach laws and rules to Israel" (Ezra 7: 10). The word "study," say the scholars, implies that Ezra analyzed the Torah text in order to determine what the words were intended to teach.

Scholars of the next ten centuries, through the end of the talmudic period (fifth century C.E.), followed in the footsteps of Ezra. Through constant examination they extracted new meaning from old words and learned profound lessons from episodes that had hitherto been unexplored. The result was that the Torah became a Torat Chayim, a living Torah, as it has often been called.

EARLY INTERPRETERS

The most eminent of the early scholars who interpreted the Torah and made it a relevant, living document were Hillel and Shammai of the first century B.C.E. These two giants and their disciples continually clashed in their interpretations of Torah law, Shammai being extremely rigorous and Hillel taking a more liberal and sympathetic approach. Hillel, for example, would permit an aguna (one whose husband has disappeared) to remarry even if only in direct evidence of the husband's death has surfaced, while Shammai would insist that witnesses come forward with direct testimony before a new marriage would be allowed. The interpretations of these scholars and their contemporaries, known as tannaim, meaning "teachers," are recorded in the first part of the Talmud, known as the Mishna. In compiling the Mishna, which was completed around the year 220 C.E., Judah the Prince, his coeditor Nathan, and their associates sifted through, evaluated, and edited a vast number of legal opinions that had been expressed over the centuries in the academies of learning, primarily in Palestine.

The second part of the Talmud, known as the Gemara, is a commentary on the Mishna. The scholars whose views are presented in the discussions in the Gemara are known as amoraim, meaning "interpreters" or "speakers." For the most part they lived in Babylonia, where the great academies were situated following the destruction of the Temple and the continuing Roman occupation of Palestine. The Gemara of the Babylonian scholars was edited and finalized by Rabina and Ashi and their associates around the year 500 C.E. Together with the Mishna it comprises the Babylonian Talmud.

A second Talmud, the Palestine (or Jerusalem) Talmud, was also created. The Mishna of Rabbi Judah the Prince is the central text of this work as well. However, the Gemara of the Palestinian Talmud consists of the discussions that took place among the amoraim in the academies of learning in Palestine. The academies that continued to flourish in Palestine, primarily in Tiberias, during the Roman occupation in the early centuries C.E. were not equal in stature to those of Babylonia, and the Palestinian Talmud therefore enjoys a lesser status than the Babylonian Talmud.

The Palestinian Talmud, which is often called by its Hebrew name, Yerushalmi, meaning "of Jerusalem," is only about one-third the size of the Babylonian Talmud, which is often referred to as the Bavli, meaning "of Babylonia." Only in recent centuries have scholars begun to study the Yerushalmi.

Analysis of Scripture did not cease with the final editing of the Babylonian and Jerusalem Talmuds, and the most important Bible commentary to emerge from the post-talmudic period is a library of books called the Midrash. Each of these books records random comments on the Bible by scholars who lived during the talmudic period. The earliest midrashic volume is Genesis Rabba, composed some time after the final editing of the Talmud in the sixth century, and the last is Yalkut Shimoni, a compilation by Simon Kara, also known as Shimon Ha-darshan, a thirteenth-century scholar who lived in southern Germany. These volumes contain primarily the wisdom and insights of the scholars of Palestine, although many of the sayings, parables, legends, and interpretations were culled from the teachings of Babylonian scholars who were no less ardent students of the Bible.

CLASSICAL COMMENTATORS

Not until the eleventh century did commentators begin to address themselves to the text of the Torah in sequential fashion. The greatest of these commentators of the Middle Ages was undoubtedly the French scholar Rabbi Shlomo Yitzchaki (1040-1105), popularly known as Rashi. He interpreted the Bible literally and achieved renown because of his manner of explaining difficult words and phrases, enabling the student to understand the simple meaning of the text.

Rashi's commentary is profusely illustrated with quotations from the Talmud and Midrash that have a bearing on verses being discussed. All of this earned Rashi the honorary title parshandata, Aramaic for "supreme commentator."

Four other medieval commentators, along with Rashi, are considered to be the classical Bible commentators. The first of these is a grandson of Rashi, Rabbi Samuel ben Meir (1085-1158), often referred to by the acronym Rashbam. He revered his grandfather and followed his method of presenting the direct, simple meaning of the text. But he avoided interpreting the text in a homiletical (sermonic) manner because, he believed, this might distort the true meaning of the Torah.

Abraham ibn Ezra (1089-1164) was a scholar and poet who lived in Spain until he was fifty years of age and then spent the balance of his life traveling. Ibn Ezra ("Son of Ezra"), as he is often called, was an astrologer, physician, and grammarian with a special interest in etymology. Like the Rashbam, he concentrated on uncovering the primary meaning of the text while avoiding homiletical interpretation.

Rabbi David Kimchi (1160-1235), known by the acronym Redak or Radak, was the most prominent member of a family of Hebrew grammarians and translators who were originally from Spain but later settled in southern France. Although primarily concerned with grammar and etymology, Radak's commentary often speculates on moral lessons implicit in the stories of the Bible.

Rabbi Moses ben Nachman (1194-1270), often referred to by the Greek name Nachmanides, "son of Nachman," is best known by the acronym Ramban. Born in Gerona, Spain, he spent his last three years in Acre, Palestine. Extremely well versed in languages, the natural sciences, philosophy, and mysticism, Ramban was a scholar's scholar and earned the approbation "the great lion in the lair of lions." Although in his interpretations of Scripture he favored following the literal meaning of the text, he often interjected a rational or mystical explanation.

ONLY CERTAIN WAYS TO INTERPRET THE TORAH

At the very end of the thirteenth century (1291), the Bible scholar Bachya ben Asher of Saragossa noted that there are four ways of interpreting Scripture. These came to be known by the acronym pardess, spelled "pay, resh, dalet, & samech."

The "pay" (P) of pardess stands for peshat, meaning "literal explanation of the text." The commentator seeks to explain the plain meaning of the text and no more.

The "resh" (R) of pardess stands for remez, meaning "allusion, allegory, symbolism." The commentator compares words and phrases in one part of the Bible to similar words and phrases in other parts of the Bible and draws inferences from them.

The "dalet" (D) of pardess stands for derash, a form of the word midrash, meaning "interpretation." Here the commentator probes beneath the literal meaning of a word or phrase in order to uncover an ethical or moral lesson that is thought to be implicit in the text.

The samech (S) of pardess stands for sod, meaning "mystery, secret." Kabbalists (mystics) in particular are fond of probing the stories of the Bible to uncover the secrets of the Torah and of life itself.

These methods of interpretation are used in varying degrees and combinations by biblical commentators. The selected verses that follow show how some of these authorities have used these methods of interpretation to resolve obscurities and contradictions in the biblical text and to extract moral lessons from it.

The range of interpretation that has been given the Torah by commentators from earliest talmudic times to the present is vast and impressive. And yet, diverse as the interpretations often may be, they are all within the authentic tradition of Judaism.

Thus, it is evident that there are numerous legitimate approaches to achieving an understanding and appreciation of the Torah. The Midrash put it very well long ago when it said, "There are seventy faces [facets] to the Torah." To which other Rabbis have added: Whatever any diligent student offers as an interpretation of the Torah may be considered as if it, too, came from Sinai. Professor Abraham J. Heschel summed it up when he wrote: "Judaism is a minimum of revelation and a maximum of interpretation."

The Torah is alive, compelling, and pertinent to the life of the individual Jew as well as believing Gentile G-d-fearer. Shalom.

DID YESHUA ABOLISH THE LAW FOR THE CHRISTIAN?

Having survived 1994, Bet Emet Ministries has the enjoyable task of having no longer to expose, reveal, and correct the many errors and areas of disobedience that has crept in unawares in the Christian faith. It has been our purpose to reveal to our readers the tragic truth concerning how we have been led so far astray from obedience and proper worship of G-d in the majority of Christian churches of today. This has not always been as easy task for me as I have had to use a "sharp" pen to confront you with the tragic failure on our parts to worship G-d "in spirit and in truth" as I hope is your desire. Having spent the last year exposing these many errors and sins, we now can devote much needed time to investigating in depth the life of Yeshua as pictured in the Gospels. In this way, we will come to understand more accurately how we are to pattern our lives after him, for it is he who said "when you see me you have seen the Father." Understanding that we are to follow after his example, let us continue our pilgrimage to holiness as we study to learn in order to obey, thus ensuring we are truly becoming more like G-d who is to be our model for life and perfection.

The natural starting point in the study of Yeshua's teaching as seen from the Jewish perspective is his attitude toward the Law, for the Jews are first and foremost the people of the Torah (the Torah is the Jewish word for the Bible, primarily the first five books of the Bible). In first-century Judaism, as is in much of Judaism today, the Law was virtually synonymous with authority. The traditional view, still held by Orthodox Jews, is that G-d's revelation of the Torah to Moses on Mount Sinai included not only the Written Law (Pentateuch-Genesis, Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers and Deuteronomy) but also the Oral Law (the "traditions of the elders"). This "tradition of the elders" is the interpretation of the written law which has been handed down in Rabbinic literature as found in the Mishnah (the collections of Jewish Oral Law) and its commentaries (which together make up the Talmud). The religion of Yeshua (Second Temple Judaism) is founded upon the Law. And since the Law constitutes the very essence of Judaism, one's view of the Law determines one's validity of Judaism itself. One's view of the Law determines if the religion of Yeshua is still valid for today or if it has been replaced by another religion; namely Christianity which, for the most part, rejects the Law that Yeshua upheld. The attitude of Yeshua toward the Law is therefore of the greatest importance to not only the Jew, but the Christian as well.

It is not surprising to note that in the Gospels it is clearly the Law that is the focal point of disputes between Yeshua and some of the Jewish leaders. The majority of scholars hold to the belief that the Law has been the basis of separation between Jews and Christians, not the crucifixion (see J. Parkes' The Conflict of the Church and the Synagogue, pp. 45). C. Montefiore, a Jewish author that esteems Yeshua highly, states that "the quarrels of Yeshua with the Jews of his age, and more especially with the Pharisaic Rabbis, were not about the nature of G-d, His unity, His justice, His mercy; they were about the Law and its authority, and about the relations of outward ceremonial to morality, of ritual ordinances to spiritual religion" (The Religious Teaching of the Synoptic Gospels in Relation to Judaism).

HOW JUDAISM VIEWS YESHUA...AFTER THE FACT

Without study on your part, the stance taken by Yeshua with respect to the Law and its authority will be vague and hard to comprehend. It seems to the casual reader of the Bible that at times Yeshua speaks of the permanent validity of the Law as seen in Matt. 5:17-18; yet his actions and words often seem contrary to the Law (Mark 2:18-27 records the plucking of grain on the Sabbath, a form of work forbidden on the Sabbath). How are we to interpret his intentions as he seems to contradict himself? Much learning is necessary to arrive at the truth of the matter.

The majority of Jewish scholars, consistent with their affirmation of the Jewishness of Yeshua (this means that he was not rejecting his religion and his faith when he, for instance, calls for repentance within his faith by rebuking those leaders who were leading the people astray), take note of the strong emphasis of Yeshua's faithfulness to the Law. A survey of their writings brings us to a consensus of opinion concerning Yeshua's faithfulness to the Law of Israel. With this understanding it is easy to see that Yeshua upheld the Law and did not create a new religion. Notice with me:

- Yeshua restricted not only his but his disciples' ministry to Israel (until after the resurrection).
- Yeshua had a high regard for the Temple and its worship.
- Yeshua advocated the paying of the Temple tax.
- Yeshua supported the offering of sacrifices.
- Yeshua advocated the reciting of Pharisaic-like prayers.
- Yeshua said grace at meals and the blessings over wine.
- Yeshua wore the tzitzit (fringes or tassels) attached to the four cornered garment in fulfillment of the commandments of Num. 15:37-41 and Deut. 22:12.
- Yeshua regarded pagan Gentiles ("dogs") and swine as unholy.

Such attitudes of Yeshua reflect not only his obedience to the Written Law but his agreement with the social customs (Oral Law) of his day.

To the casual reader the assumed paradox of Yeshua's affirmation and denial of the Law must be understood if we are ever to arrive at a correct conclusion regarding Yeshua either continuing in the faith of his fathers or else replacing it with a new faith. Upon correctly understanding what we read in the Synoptic Gospels we shall be able to understand Yeshua and his relationship to the Judaism of his day. It is this issue, which we at Bet Emet Ministries maintain is of crucial importance to properly understand if we as Christians are to justify our current practice of our faith, or in need of correction and repentance. Let us look at various positions regarding Yeshua and the Law and then draw some conclusions.

POSITION #1: YESHUA...A MODEST BREAK WITH THE LAW

The majority of Christian scholars and only a few Jewish scholars speak of Yeshua in terms of breaking the Law or replacing the Law. Even so, if you read their works, they only imply a break, and several who imply it make other statements that seem to contradict their implication. This is very confusing; either Yeshua did or he didn't violate or replace the Law. It is important to note that where a break is spoken of or implied, it is always with the insistence that this in no way lessens Yeshua's true Jewishness. This in itself is a paradox, for the Jews are the people of Law. Those who imply a break see in Yeshua a novel attitude toward the Law, even some go so far as to say "revolutionary." Some see in the Gospels that Yeshua minimized the Oral Law by distinguishing between moral and ceremonial laws (the moral in every case taking precedence over the ceremonial laws). They also point to Yeshua's emphasis upon the inward over the merely outward as well as his stressing of the importance of the higher law of love. It is this "unique" emphasis that the supposed genius of Yeshua is said to consist. Thus, these scholars (primarily Christians) see that Yeshua's teaching regarding the Law forms a new departure from and a break with the Judaism of his age.

What they fail to understand if they had studied Judaism as I have, that within the religion of Judaism are allowances to do just that; to choose the ethical over the ritual to promote life. The Commandments were given by G-d in order that we might "live by them" and "not die by them." What I find hard to accept about the conclusion of such important scholars is that in ascribing to Yeshua that he makes a radical departure from Judaism, then Yeshua would have violated and broken the Law in certain of his teachings and actions and also contradicted his own assertion of the permanent validity of the Law (Matt. 5:17-18). To the Christian this poses a very important question; "how could Yeshua be, according to accepted Christian theology, the substitutionary atoning sacrifice without spot and blemish but yet have sinned because he violated and disobeyed the Law?" Such would be sin. This would be impossible! Of course if you have done any personal investigation into how the sacrificial system operated in the first place you now understand how Christianity has taught atonement wrong and how that it never applied to Yeshua's death in the first place. If this is news to you then you need to ask this ministry for the information in such subjects in order that you become knowledgeable about such matters as are the Jewish people to whom the sacrificial system was given in the first place. So it is easy to discount totally such an interpretation as applied to Yeshua. Let us move on.

Some scholars see Yeshua's departure and break from the Judaism of his day in his relaxing the rigid observance of the Sabbath as well as the dietary restrictions. Such a stance is unsupported by a proper understanding of the text. Yeshua taught the people of Israel that they must observe the Law in every particular aspect (jot and tittle) and that loyalty to the Law was essential.

Samuel Sandmel, a Jewish Biblical scholar, is willing to admit a break with the Law if Yeshua actually spoke the words of Mark 7:15: "There is nothing outside a man which by going into him can defile him." He believes that this was added to the text by the early Gentile Christian community. For Yeshua to say this is for him to repudiate the Mosaic food laws of Leviticus 11 and Deut. 14. Again this would be sin to Yeshua. According to Sandmel one cannot be certain that Yeshua did say these words because they stand against the general picture given in the Gospels, which is one of basic agreement between the Jews and Yeshua (conservative Phariseism), with only "hints" at any profound differences (primarily the school of Shammai which was ultra-strict). What we have then is a tension between Yeshua's affirmation of the Law on the one hand and his supposed neglect and infraction of it on the other hand, and this view is not held by the majority of scholars to say the least. This tension is dealt with by understanding that for Yeshua the "Law should be obeyed unless a higher principle intervenes." Those holding to this viewpoint point to Luke 6:4 according to the Codex Beza (early Greek manuscript) as reflecting this viewpoint. There, seeing a man working on the Sabbath and thus violating Torah, he says, "O man, blessed are you if you know what you are doing; but if you do not know cursed are you and a transgressor of the law." It is beneficial to our study understand that it was always permissible to violate Sabbath Law if one was to do so to preserve life. Possibly the meaning might be intended that with knowledge and increased understanding, one might violate Sabbath Law for the intended purpose of honoring and observing a higher Law, but to do so without such understanding that you are responding to a higher Law would be considered sin. So, I believe that Yeshua did not violate or set aside the Law for a new religion that maintains that the Law is ended.

POSITION #2: YESHUA...NO BREAK WITH THE LAW

The vast majority of Jewish scholars are inclined to understand Yeshua as differing only mildly with the typical Jewish understanding of the Law in his day. Again, this can be seen somewhat in the above account. Yeshua is thus regarded as not essentially different from the Pharisaic Rabbis of his day. Let me interject, that there were two types of Pharisaism in the days of Yeshua; one of which he ascribed and supported, and another to which he would rebuke in Matt. 23. But by no means, was Yeshua rebuking and calling for the abolition of all Pharisees in his day. Failure to understand the two currents within Pharisaism has been responsible for the erroneous conclusions drawn by the majority of Christians that Yeshua condemned all the Pharisees and that all the Pharisees plotted against Yeshua.

It is necessary to remember that Yeshua taught in a period of transition, during the development of different schools of exegesis (interpretation) in Judaism. It is thus inevitable that there would be variant interpretations of the Law as recorded in the Gospels. These variety of interpretations would clash daily. With the Pharisees, Yeshua accepts the Law of the Sabbath; he differs only in the interpretations of that law as found in the Oral Law. The Oral Law detailed the many conditions that allowed for the breaking of the Sabbath. Grace was provided by G-d for those who needed to break the Sabbath for a higher ethic and moral law. For example, the Rabbis of the Hillel School of Pharisaism declared that it was permissible to violate the Sabbath to preserve life, that in doing so you violate a Sabbath to ensure the observance of future Sabbaths. This was accepted halakhah (interpretation) by the Hillel Pharisees (of which Yeshua belonged), but not to the Shammai Pharisees or the Sadducees who were ultra-strict, always adhering to the letter of the Law over the spirit of the Law (Oral Law). It has been said that in elevating the spirit of the Law over the letter of the Law one can understand the minimizing of the ceremonial laws. But it is not that simple according to Yeshua. As Christians, we are not aware that the Oral Law brought a proper understanding to the Written Law if matters were in doubt. Let us not forget that the Sadducees rejected the Oral Law, and Yeshua and the Pharisees did not.

Luke 11:42 says "these (least commandments) you ought to have done, without neglecting the others (grave-weightier commandments)." In drawing such a contrast, Yeshua does not annul the Written Law (613 laws), nor even the ceremonial laws; he only brings priority to our obedience of all the Laws.

Some mistakenly see in his words his opposition to Judaism, and these are usually Christians. This "supposed" opposition to Judaism would be carried to its final conclusion by Paul; namely the replacement of Judaism with a "new Judaism" called Christianity. What was only a re-prioritization of the Law with its many statutes, was mistakenly assumed by others to be a call for abolition of the ceremonial laws (Sabbath, Festivals), and eventually the Law itself. Many have assumed that when Yeshua placed only a "little stress" on the ceremonial Laws, his intention was to abolish them. Nothing could be farther from the truth. Such a concept is not in the context of the Scripture because Yeshua goes on to say "these (ceremonial laws) you ought to have done!" This is far from abolition of the ceremonial Laws in my opinion. Those who have read into this text the abolition of ceremonial Law (for example the celebration and observance of the Festivals) have unwittingly given ammunition to the founding of a new religion that has rejected then tenets of the real faith of Yeshua. Repentance and ethical deeds, as important as they are, are not to be set above or replace the Law, either ethical, moral, or ceremonial Laws. Repentance and ethical deeds are the appropriate response to the Law. Again, Yeshua states "these ought to be done" along with the "weightier matters of the Law" which regards love, the tithe, the Tallit, alms, and benevolence. Failure to understand the mechanics of these verses properly have led well-intentioned people to erroneously believe that Yeshua and Paul set aside ceremonial Laws. More true to the point, is that Yeshua understood that people in daily life cannot retain their distinctiveness solely by means of abstract ethical views. He understood that if Israel were to abandon the ceremonial Laws peculiar to itself, it would gradually be absorbed into the Gentile cultures and would disappear. This is the tragic story of the Christian Church, for when casting off its Hebraic roots (many of which were obedience to ceremonial laws), it has assumed many of the beliefs of paganism and its Hebraic distinctiveness has disappeared.

Yeshua did not stand against the Written Law or Oral Law, nor even Pharisaism, but only against the elevation of the letter of the Law above the spirit of the Law. Jules Isaac states "Yeshua was born and lived under the Jewish Law. Did he intend or announce its abrogation? Many writers hold that he did, but their statements exaggerate, distort, or contradict the most important passages in the Gospels." The supposed violation of the Sabbath by Yeshua was a violation of Pharisaic scruples held by only one sect of the Pharisees (Shammai) and not Hillel Pharisaism. Such a violation for a higher principle (preservation of life) was not in and of itself a violation of the Law. On the matter of dietary restrictions, Yeshua did not declare all foods clean despite the passage as it reads in Mark 7:19. Yeshua tells us in John 8: 26 "I speak to the world those things I heard from Him." How could Yeshua contradict the words of his Father in Heaven as He spoke the dietary Laws in Leviticus? Again in John 12: 49-50 he says "I have not spoken on my own authority; but the Father who sent me gave me a command, what I should say and what I should speak...whatever I speak, just as the Father has told me, so I speak." Now, do you think that G-d would contradict His Word which He overlooks to perform it?

"Take just a minute and remember Peter's vision of the unclean animals on the sheet lowered from heaven and that he heard G-d tell him to "take and eat." It was later he understood fully what the vision had originally meant; not that G-d was abolishing the laws concerning the eating of clean and unclean food, rather that G-d was cleansing the Gentiles (whom Judaism had previously considered unclean as was the food).

Now back to Yeshua. Yeshua's intention was to separate morality from the strict interpretation of Laws of the Old Testament as held by one of the two major branches of Pharisees (Shammai school). Although those Pharisees were resentful of this, the majority never desired to be rid of Yeshua or to kill him. It would be the chief Priests and their scribes (Sadducees) who would be responsible for handing over Yeshua to the Romans. These were Sadducees and not Pharisees.

Having stated the above, it is the opinion of Bet Emet Ministries that Yeshua was a faithful holder of the Law all of his life. Any portrayal of Yeshua as one deliberately and consciously opposed to the Law is the reflection our lack of understanding of the religion of Yeshua and the hostility between the early Gentile church and the Synagogue. The only real differences between Yeshua and the Pharisees are to be found in matters of halakhah (interpretation) and other major differences do not in fact exist, but are due to the misunderstanding of the Gospel data by modern readers (especially when comparing their church's theology to that of Yeshua). So, we can summarize as the bottom line on the matter that any hostility between Yeshua and the Pharisees are due to differences of interpretation of Law (school of Hillel as against the school of Shammai).

POSITION #3: YESHUA...NO ESSENTIAL BREAK WITH BIBLICAL JUDAISM

Recent Jewish writers on Yeshua are beginning to see Yeshua as an authority within Judaism of the first century. This is great news! Although Yeshua does speak with his own special authority ("But I say to you"), it is a mistake to regard this as a break with Judaism. Yeshua is not seen to challenge the authority of Scripture and never violated the Law in any sense at all, either Written or Oral Mosaic Law. Not seeking to abolish the Law or even reform the Law, the mistaken impression that Yeshua did oppose the Law is in part due to the exaggerated wording contained in the Gospels; this wording reflects the later and growing rift between the synagogue and the church (who would write the documents we have called the New Testament).

David Flusser sees only one explicit violation of the Law attributed to Yeshua in the Synoptic Gospels (the plucking of grain on the Sabbath). This, however, is understood as coming from a Greek translator who added the "plucking" of the grain to make the scene more vivid. What actually took place was only the rubbing of grain in the hands, which was allowed by Torah (rubbing was not considered work which was forbidden on the Sabbath). Even so, it was Yeshua's disciples who were guilty of the supposed infraction, and not Yeshua.

Having understood the Greek copyist addition to the text, we find in Yeshua a "Torah-true" Jew, who never and nowhere in the Gospels transgressed against the Mosaic and orthodox Rabbinic legislation. Nowhere and never does he condemn or reject one single Mosaic or Rabbinic institution.

Answer for yourself: If we are to be like Yeshua then how can we who carry his "name" reject the Law or believe it has passed away?

Where Yeshua appears to go against the Law in the synoptic tradition, closer examination reveals repeatedly that this is the result of Christian misunderstanding or, as in the case of Mark 7:19, a later Christian addition. The overwhelming evidence of the Gospels is that Yeshua upheld the authority of the Torah and the Prophets and did not attack a single Biblical Law. On this point Yeshua is in the good company of Hillel, Akiba, and the Hasidim. There is no serious rift between Yeshua and conservative Pharisaism; what minor disagreements there were are properly understood as an "in-fighting" and not untypical of the Rabbinic tradition, which was itself in the process of change. What does set apart Yeshua is his prophetic rhetorical stress of the ethical over the ritual, as would be expected from a preacher of repentance. Where the Law is concerned, the real distinction of Yeshua's devotion is in his extraordinary emphasis on the real inner religious significance of the commandments. Of this view Bet Emet Ministries can concur.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE GREEK GENTILE CHURCH

Whereas Yeshua himself never contemplated abolishing the Law, the Gentile-Greek converts "by putting their words in Yeshua's mouth (altering existing manuscripts or adding to existing manuscripts) made it appear that it was Yeshua himself who undertook to tear down the whole fabric of the Mosaic Law." Thus, whenever Yeshua appears to go against the Law, most reputable scholars tell us we encounter the opinion of the later church and not that of the historical Yeshua. A prime example again is Mark 7:19. Upon study you will find that there was a deliberate twist in misrepresenting a play on words in the Aramaic as meaning "thus he declared all foods clean." This, more than likely, is the view of the writer's church rather than an accurate account of what Yeshua actually said.

BET EMET'S POSITION

Many today are confused concerning Yeshua's standing toward the Law. Many either cannot fit Yeshua and his view of the Law into their current church's theologies, while others, upon study, see that he fully agrees with first-century, Second Temple, Hillel-Pharisaism. G.F. Moore is content to assert that Yeshua's attitude toward the Law, even the ceremonial law, was completely orthodox. This view I support. Others see that Yeshua's teaching supersedes the Torah since the authority appealed to by Yeshua is radically different from the authority appealed to by the Pharisees. To this I disagree. Conflict is inevitable and without further study the differences are irreconcilable.

THE TRAGIC RESULT OF ANNULING THE LAW BY THE GENTILE CHURCH...WE ALL ARE PAYING FOR THAT TODAY

It is evident in the headlines of every newspaper almost every day, America in a state of moral decay. It is my opinion this can be traced to the churches leaning more on grace than Law in their messages. I feel strongly that this major loss of moral standards is because the American Church has lost its way and are not following Yeshua. It has been weakened because it has a loss of reverence for the Law and the Old Testament. What the American Church badly needs is to be awakened to the need to restore the Hebraic Roots of her faith. I firmly believe that this loss of reverence for the Law has caused a lowering of Biblical standards across the board in our society.

As stated before, I strongly believe that the above condition can be changed by the restoration of the Hebrew Roots of the Christian faith. It is my ambition to help others have a higher regard for and return to the Old Testament, the Bible Yeshua used. It is my hope to point the way for the return of many who will hear the message. Those of you who have ears to hear, hear what the voice within my voice is saying. Discern the time. Be wise. It is my humble prayer that not only I have a part in restoring the reverence for the Law of G-d, but you contribute as well. Shalom.

DOES G-D REQUIRE OBEDIENCE TO HIS LAWS IN HIS CHURCH?

G-d's law is summed up in the umbrella policy stated in Matthew 22:37-40, and Mark 12:28-31: Matthew 22:37-40 (NIV) Jesus replied:

'''Love the Lord your G-d with all your heart and with all your soul and with all your mind.' 38 This is the first and greatest commandment. 39 And the second is like it: 'Love your neighbor as yourself.' 40 All the Law and the Prophets hang on these two commandments.'''

I suppose the greatest revelation that G-d ever graced me with is when I came to the understanding the the Law and the Commandments, called the Law, is nothing more than manifestations of G-d; what G-d is and does and what G-d is not and what G-d does not do. In other words, G-ds' Laws are attributes describing Whom He Is, what He does, and what He does not do. Mankind has been given 66 Laws in the Covenant of Noah to describe in a simplistic manner what G-d both is, does and does not do. If we are to be "Holy" for G-d is Holy, and thus desiring to be like G-d then we will take upon ourselves the adherence of these "attributes." Our lives will then model G-d in practical and not just theoretical ways. Later G-d gave Moses an extension of prior Covenants and today we have a greater revelation of Whom G-d is and is not as stated above. Today we have 365 Laws and Commandments detailing in a greater way Whom G-d is and is not. It would behoove the Christian to understand this and orient his thinking in such a way; especially in light of the New Testament and its "anti-Law" message. Sadly our Gentile forefathers, being anti-Semitic, turned their hearts and ears away from such revelation as handed down by the Jews and today we have largely filled out land with Gentile Churches which pride themselves that they "are not under the Law." Dear ones, nothing could be more perverse! Because of our failure to understand such a message and revelation from G-d and our Jewish brethren we have "done what is right in our own eyes" and our lives are filled with unconscious sins daily because we violate these "Holy guidelines" and lean upon our own rational understanding.

G-d's law and revelation of Himself is further stated in the Ten Commandments, and in the directions and guides throughout the Bible. It would again benefit the Christian to understand that these "Ten Commandments" are in reality "TEN CATEGORIES" whereby all 365 Commandments can be organized and grouped according to varying categories. It is only when we pattern our lives according to these Commanded guidelines and Laws that the Kingdom of G-d is manifested both in our lives and in this world.

Matthew 6:9-15 (NIV) "This, then, is how you should pray: '''Our Father in heaven, hallowed be your name, 10 your kingdom come, your will be done on earth as it is in heaven. 11 Give us today our daily bread. 12 Forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors. 13 And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one.' 14 For if you forgive men when they sin against you, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. 15 But if you do not forgive men their sins, your Father will not forgive your sins.

John 15:9-10 9 As the Father hath loved me, so have I loved you: continue ye in my love. 10 If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.

GOD'S SALVATION REQUIRES MORE THAN "LIP-SERVICE"

Matthew 7:21 (NIV) "Not everyone who says to me, 'Lord, Lord,' will enter the kingdom of heaven, but only he who does the will of my Father who is in heaven.

Matthew 21:28-32 (NIV) "What do you think? There was a man who had two sons. He went to the first and said, 'Son, go and work today in the vineyard.' 29 "'I will not,' he answered, but later he changed his mind and went. 30 "Then the father went to the other son and said the same thing. He answered, 'I will, sir,' but he did not go. 31 "Which of the two did what his father wanted?" "The first," they answered. Jesus said to them, "I tell you the truth, the tax collectors and the prostitutes are entering the kingdom of G-d ahead of you. 32 For John came to you to show you the way of righteousness, and you did not believe him, but the tax collectors and the prostitutes did. And even after you saw this, you did not repent and believe him.

Luke 6:46-49 (NIV) "Why do you call me, 'Lord, Lord,' and do not do what I say? 47 I will show you what he is like who comes to me and hears my words and puts them into practice. 48 He is like a man building a house, who dug down deep and laid the foundation on rock. When a flood came, the torrent struck that house but could not shake it, because it was well built. 49 But the one who hears my words and does not put them into practice is like a man who built a house on the ground without a foundation. The moment the torrent struck that house, it collapsed and its destruction was complete."

Romans 2:13 (NIV) For it is not those who hear the law who are righteous in G-d's sight, but it is those who obey the law who will be declared righteous.

James 1:22-25 (NIV) Do not merely listen to the word, and so deceive yourselves. Do what it says. 23 Anyone who listens to the word but does not do what it says is like a man who looks at his face in a mirror 24 and, after looking at himself, goes away and immediately forgets what he looks like. 25 But the man who looks intently into the perfect law that gives freedom, and continues to do this, not forgetting what he has heard, but doing it-- he will be blessed in what he does.

1 John 2:3-6 (NIV) We know that we have come to know him if we obey his commands. 4 The man who says, "I know him," but does not do what he commands is a liar, and the truth is not in him. 5 But if anyone obeys his word, G-d's love is truly made complete in him. This is how we know we are in him: 6 Whoever claims to live in him must walk as Jesus did.

Answer for yourself: Let me ask you to be honest with yourself when answering the final questions. After having read this article, don't you think that it is about time to question how we got a document called the New Testament which teaches exactly opposite of what you have read in these passages and in this article?

Answer for yourself: Don't you think it is about time to be honest with yourself and begin your own personal study into why and how we as followers of Yeshua pride ourselves as Pauline Christians who are "not under the law" when so much of the Old Testament and even the New Testament teach otherwise?

I hope you can honestly say "yes" and begin to open your mind that there are a host of problems connected with the supposed "Divine" revelation called the New Testament which was crafted, altered, and handed down to us by anti-Semitic Gentiles from the earliest centuries of the Church. Shalom.

HAS THE CHRISTIAN BEEN TAUGHT WRONG CONCERNING THE LAW AND THE TORAH?

Most might read the title of this article and completely "turn me off," yet if you will be patient and diligent in your studies you will find what I and thousands of others have discovered: The Law of G-d has not passed away for the Christian today. Sadly, most of Christianity has been taught the wrong perspective of the Torah and much of what they do as a consequence of their "false religious belief system" turns out to be "sin" and they are not aware. Not aware, that is, until they die and find out the hard way. It is the truth that Christians have been taught wrong about the Torah; and it is their misunderstanding on the matter that hides some of the other incorrect understandings regarding the Torah which the Christian has inherited from the Christian church.

When you mention Torah to most Christians and speak regarding the obligations that G-d desires for us to have toward it, almost 99% of the time Christians will try to tell you that you are not saved by keeping the Torah. This is TRUE! Because for the Christian "salvation" is usually always preached as being tied to their faith "in the blood of Yeshua" and they boast that their salvation is not based upon or related to the Torah.

Answer for yourself: Is this belief really held by the vast majority of Christians true?

When Christians hear the word TORAH, they immediately put on their religious salvation hats. They immediately begin to think that since they are taught that Yeshua shed his blood on the tree/cross that they are saved by grace through faith in "his blood" and they are not "under the law". What is amazing to most Christians when shown is that salvation by faith according to the grace of G-d is NOT a new testament doctrine as Christianity makes it seem to be. It has its origin in the Garden of Eden and the Old Testament.

NOTICE HOW THE OLD TESTAMENT AND NEW TESTAMENT AGREES ON THE MATTER OF SALVATION BY FAITH...IT HAS ALWAYS BEEN THAT WAY....

In Habakkuk 2:4 it is written: "... the just shall live by faith".

In Galatians 3:11 it is written: "But no man shall be justified by the law in the sight of G-d, it is evident: FOR THE JUST SHALL LIVE BY FAITH"

Answer for yourself: So what changed?

Nothing! In the OT, the "just shall live by faith". In the NT, the "just shall live by faith".

Answer for yourself: How was Avraham/Abraham saved?

Galatians 3:6-8 "Even as Abraham BELIEVED G-d, and it was accounted to him for righteousness. Know ye therefore that they which are of FAITH, the same are the children of Abraham. And the Scripture foreseeing that G-d would justify the heathen through FAITH, preached before the gospel unto Abraham ..."

Answer for yourself: Even though Avraham was saved by faith, did he still keep the Torah? The answer is YES!

In Genesis 26:5: "Because that Abraham obeyed my voice, and KEPT my commandments , my statutes, and my TORAH"

Answer for yourself: Did you notice that in Genesis 26:5, G-d referred to the Torah as HIS Torah.

Answer for yourself: So, did G-d change? No!

Answer for yourself: Is salvation by grace through faith a NT truth or was this true in the OT also?

G-d never changes (Malachi 3:6).

Answer for yourself: Are the people mentioned in the "Hall of Fame of faith" in Hebrews 11, OT or NT people? Old Testament!

Answer for yourself: In Hebrews 11, how was Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Joseph, Moses, Rahab, Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, David, Samuel and all the prophets "justified and saved before G-d"?

Hebrews 11, tells us that it was by faith because without faith it is impossible to please G-d (Hebrews 11:6).

Answer for yourself: Since Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Moses etc were justified in G-d's eyes by faith, did they also keep the Torah? The answer is YES!

Answer for yourself: Did keeping the Torah save them? No!

Answer for yourself: How were they saved?

They were saved by faith (Hebrews 11).

Answer for yourself: So is salvation by faith a NT doctrine or did it exist as a OT truth also? We have to face it; it existed in the Old Testament long before the New Testament.

Since G-d never changes it was true in the OT as well as true in the NT. Therefore, we have to change our perception that salvation by grace through faith is NOT a NT truth but this has been the way of G-d from the beginning.

SO WHY DID THE SAINTS IN THE OLD TESTAMENT KEEP THE TORAH IF THEY WERE "ALREADY SAVED"?

Answer for yourself: Did salvation by grace through faith keep G-d's servants in the OT from keeping the Torah? No!

Answer for yourself: So, why did they keep it if they were saved by faith? They understood what Christians today dont; namely, obedience is the fruit of faith and a measure of one's love for G-d.

Answer for yourself: Are we as Gentile believers in G-d through Yeshua still required to keep the Torah?

Answer for yourself: Are there examples of non-Jewish believers being taught to keep the Torah in the New Testament? There sure are.

Romans 3:28: "Therefore, we conclude that a man is justified by faith without the deeds of the law"

Romans 3:31: "Do we make void the law through faith? G-d forbid: yea, we establish the law"

Answer for yourself: What does this say?

- 1). Salvation by grace through faith without the deeds of the law
- 2). Yet.....We keep the law

Answer for yourself: How did the people in the "Hall of Fame of faith" (Hebrews 11) live?

- 1). They were saved by grace through faith without the deeds of the law
- 2). They kept the law

David was a man after G-d's own heart (Acts 13:22). In Psalm 119:97, David writes: "O how I love thy TORAH! it is my meditation all the day"

HAS CHRISTIANITY ERRED BY ADOPTING AND ACCEPTING "DISPENSATIONAL" TEACHINGS?

Oh boy has it!

- Therefore, problem #1 in a Christian's understanding regarding the law is believing a NT teaching that they fail to realize is an OT truth also (salvation by grace through faith).
- Problem #2: Believing the dispensational teaching that the OT is "the age of law" and the NT is the "age of grace".

The OT was an "age of grace"

Noah found GRACE in the eyes of G-d. In Genesis 6:8: "But Noah found GRACE in the eyes of the Lord"

Moses found GRACE in the sight of G-d. In Exodus 33:12-13, 16-17:

"And Moses said unto the Lord, See thou sayest unto me, Bring up this people: and thou hast not let me know whom thou wilt send with me. Yet YOU (G-d) has said, I know thee by name, and you have also found GRACE in my sight, Now therefore, I pray thee, if I have found GRACE in thy sight, show me now thy way, that I may know thee, that I may find GRACE in thy sight and consider that this nation is thy people ... For wherein shall it be known here that I and thy people have found GRACE in thy sight? ... and the Lord said unto Moses, I will do this thing also that thou hast spoken: for thou has found GRACE in my sight, and I know thee by name"

So, Noah found GRACE in G-d's eyes and so did Moses.

Answer for yourself: How did Moses plead with G-d in Exodus 33:12-13, 16-17?

Moses pleaded with G-d according to the GRACE of G-d.

Answer for yourself: How did G-d pardon the sins of the people? It was by His GRACE.

Answer for yourself: Did the children of Israel DESERVE to be forgiven of their sins when they made the golden calf? (Exodus 32:1-6) NO!

Answer for yourself: Did G-d forgive them? YES!

Answer for yourself: How? By His GRACE!

Answer for yourself: So, how did G-d forgive the people for making the golden calf?

It was by His GRACE and MERCY!

Exodus 34:6-7 "And the Lord passed by before him and proclaimed, the Lord, the Lord G-d, MERCIFUL and GRACIOUS ... keeping MERCY for thousands and forgiving iniquity and transgression and sin ..."

Answer for yourself: So is forgiveness of our sin by GRACE in the NT a NT truth exclusive of the OT? NO!

G-d forgive the children of Israel when they made the golden calf by His GRACE and MERCY!

Answer for yourself: Did the children of Israel DESERVE to be delivered from the bondage of Egypt under Pharaoh? NO!

Answer for yourself: How did G-d save them? HE saved them by His GRACE and MERCY!

As you can see another problem with Christianity and their dogmas is putting the perception in the Christian's mind that the OT is the "age of law" and the NT is the "age of grace". This is the doctrine of dispensationalism and it is a fallacy according to the Bible because G-d saved His people in the OT and forgave their sins by His GRACE.

There are two primary words that communicate Grace. They are the Strong's word (2580) which is the Hebrew word, "Chayn". The other Hebrew word is the Strong's word (2617) which is the Hebrew word, "Chasayd". "Chasayd" is translated most of the time in the Bible as mercy or loving-kindness. MERCY IS GRACE!

When G-d betrothed Himself to Israel at Mount Sinai, He did so in MERCY. In Hosea 2:19 "And I will BETROTH thee unto me FOREVER, yea, I will BETROTH thee to me in ... LOVING-KINDNESS and MERCIES ..."

Notice that when G-d made the covenant, He made a covenant of LOVING-KINDNESS and MERCY FOREVER.

WHAT IS G-D'S TRUTH ON THE MATTER?

Many times in the Bible, G-d speaks of His MERCY and TRUTH.

Answer for yourself: What is truth?

The answer is in Psalm 119:142:

"Thy righteousness is an everlasting righteousness and thy TORAH IS

TRUTH"

- Malachi 2:6: "The LAW of TRUTH was in his mouth ..."
- Psalm 25:10 "All the paths of the Lord are MERCY and TRUTH unto such as keep his covenant and his testimonies"
- Psalm 61:7 "He shall abide before G-d forever: MERCY and TRUTH which may preserve him"
- Psalm 85:10 "MERCY and TRUTH are met together ..."
- Psalm 86:15 "But thou, O Lord art a G-d full of compassion, and GRACIOUS, long-suffering, and plenteous in MERCY and TRUTH"

Answer for yourself: Did you notice a pattern in the above passages?

Notice in all of these passages that MERCY (GRACE) is mentioned FIRST then TRUTH. We are saved by GRACE FIRST. AFTER we are saved, G-d wants us to live our lives according to TRUTH. The TRUTH is the TORAH and is manifested through the keeping of His commandments.

Another Christian misunderstanding is seeing the "Old Covenant" as "LAW" and the New Covenant as "GRACE". The Bible is clear that the NT is the TORAH written upon your heart.

In Jeremiah 31:33: "But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; After those days, saith the Lord, I will put my TORAH in their inward parts and write it in their HEARTS ..."

Answer for yourself: Can you be a NT Christian and the Torah is written on your heart and you not keep it?

This doesn't make sense.

G-d gave us the indwelling Ruach HaKodesh / Holy Spirit so that we can have the POWER to KEEP His commandments.

In Ezekiel 36:26-27 "A new HEART also will I give you, and a new spirit will I put within you: and I will take away the stony heart out of your flesh, and I will give you a heart of flesh. And I will put my spirit WITHIN YOU, and cause you to WALK in my statutes ... and DO them"

So, if you are a NT Christian, then the TORAH will be written upon your HEART and you will KEEP the commandments of G-d.

Another Christian fallacy is that the Torah was FIRST given by G-d to Moses at Mount Sinai. However, in Genesis 26:5, it tells us the Avraham/Abraham kept the TORAH of G-d. In Proverbs 3:1, 18, it tells us the TORAH is the TREE OF LIFE. The tree of life was planted in the Garden of Eden. In Revelation 22:14, Yeshua told them that KEEP His commandments will have right to the tree of life.

In Isaiah 2:2-3 during the Messianic Age, the TORAH will be taught to ALL nations by Yeshua from Jerusalem.

Another Christian fallacy is that the TORAH means "the law". In fact, TORAH does NOT mean "law" but means "INSTRUCTION". The word, TORAH, is the Strong's word (8451) and comes from the Hebrew word, YARAH, which is the Strong's word (3384) which means, "to lay a foundation, to teach, to point out as aiming the finger".

The word TORAH means INSTRUCTION concerning HOW I should live my life AFTER I am saved. The word in the Bible that means SALVATION is YESHUA/Jesus (Matthew 1:21).

Go to a Christian and say the word "SABBATH", they will think, "we are not under the law". Say the word, "SUNDAY" and they will think "worshipping G-d at church". But the day that G-d gave to worship Him was the SABBATH.

Go to a Christian and say the word, FESTIVALS, they will think, "we are not under the law". Say the word, CHRISTMAS, and they will think, "the birthday of Yeshua". Did you ever hear another Christian speak to another Christian regarding the same religious logic about Christmas that they use on the FESTIVALS?? Have you ever heard one Christian say to another Christian, why do you celebrate Christmas? Don't you know that we are not under the law? You don't have to put up a Christmas tree and buy gifts to be saved! Don't you know that we are saved by GRACE? You don't have to do all that Christmas stuff to be saved! And why do you go to church on Sunday? Don't you know that we are saved by GRACE and not by going to church on Sunday?

Answer for yourself: So, if we are saved by GRACE then why do you go to church on Sunday when it doesn't save you? But, yet we use the same logic when talking about the Sabbath and Biblical Festivals.

Sunday won't be the day of worship during the Messianic Age. Christmas and Easter won't be celebrated during the Messianic Age. But the sabbath and Festivals will be.

Answer for yourself: If the sabbath and festivals are going to be celebrated during the Messianic Age and then for all eternity, aren't they valid for Christians to keep today?

We cannot fulfill keeping loving G-d and loving our neighbor without keeping the Torah. Loving G-d with all our heart is a commandment of the TORAH (Deuteronomy 6:4-5). Yeshua reiterated this truth in (Mark 12:29-30). Loving our neighbor as ourself is a TORAH commandment (Leviticus 18:19). Yeshua reiterated this truth in (Mark 12:31).

Someone once ask Hillel who is a 1st Century Torah leader who lived when Yeshua/Jesus was a little boy, how do you summarize the keeping of the commandments in the Torah? He replied, "Love G-d with all your heart, mind, soul and strength and love your neighbor as yourself. Everything else is commentary. Go and Study".

So, Yeshua/Jesus didn't give a new doctrine and understanding regarding the Torah when He said, "Love G-d and love your neighbor". Yet, Christians have interpreted that Yeshua was saying that if we love then we don't have to keep the Torah. Yet, Yeshua said, "If you love me, keep my commandments" (John 14:15).

I think that without a doubt you have seen that the Law did not pass away as many of you have been told. The only thing remaining is to understand what "parts" of the Law pertain to Gentile believers and which pertain to Jewish believers, for although there is some overlap, the difference outweigh the similarities. It is to these pursuits we take up further study.

HOW ARE WE TO GET FORGIVENESS FROM SIN ACCORDING TO THE BIBLE YESHUA BOTH KNEW AND USED?

Answer for yourself: How well acquainted are you with the Old Testament? Know it pretty well you think? Well, if you do, then this will not be news to you; but if you don't then this will be an eye-opening experience for many of you. I pray you will read and ponder and pray over what is presented, for after all, this is the Words from the G-d who changes not. Now let us study and read and gleam truth; truth which will conflict with many's experience and their current religious belief system. But let me remind you that these are not my words, but are YHWH'S.

A Study of Leviticus 17

Most Christians believe that the only way G-d will forgive you for sinning against Him is with blood. For most Christians this is their answer as to why Jesus had to die. They will tell you that Jesus died as an ultimate sacrifice for you, and that his blood washes away your sin -- if you believe in him. For after all this is what is said in the Greek Scriptures written for the non-Jewish world as contained in your Christian Bibles. Jesus never had a Christian Bible but knew the Law, the Prophets, and the Writings only. He never was benefit of Catholic theology or the alterations of oral traditions which would later become part of your New Testament. In other words Yeshua did not believe in Gentile theology nor would he for he had the Old Testament which Paul would tell Timothy:

1 Tim 4:16

16 Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee.

Answer for yourself: Notice the definite article "the" in reference to a particular doctrine which Paul admonished Timothy to adhere to. That "doctrine" existed then. Is your religious beliefs system that you have today the SAME as was held by the earliest church which was zealous for the Law since they knew that adhering to the Law brought atonement from sin? Most likely not!

Answer for yourself: Know that the New Testament and its doctrines concerning Christology was hundreds of years away from being created by the Catholic Church and their successive Theological Councils at the time Paul penned the above verse in I Tim. 4:16. To what "doctrine" do you think Paul referred when he told Timothy that he could "be saved" in doing them (the doctrines that were held then)? Were they possibly what you have been taught was "done away with" or could they be the very ones the Jews yet revere today?

Well, if you are honest, you have to say the doctrines referred to in the above verse are the very ones contained in the Old Testament for the New Testament was not even close to being formed or ratified yet. So let us examine some "doctrines" in the Old Testament which has a bearing on "saving thyself" as Paul told Timothy.

SAVING THYSELF? CAN IT BE DONE TODAY AND IF SO...WHY HAVE YOU NOT BEEN TOLD?

Christians have the right to believe what they like...and it is my right to explain to you why I can not accept current Christian teaching in many areas. That might sound strange coming from a former Pastor by if you become a diligent student of the whole of Scripture including the Greek texts and passages in the New Testament then you will see many glaring contradictions. Let us look at some.

Firstly, Christians will tell you that only blood will save you. Obviously, if there are alternate methods to achieving forgiveness, Yeshua died for nothing they will tell you.

Christians will site:

Leviticus 17:11

For the life of the flesh is in the blood: and I have given it to you upon the altar to make an atonement for your souls: for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul.

They will promise you hell: you are unable to bring sacrifices today as the Temple is gone, and you have no blood with which to gain atonement. They forgot to tell you one simple but important thing:

G-d made provision for atonement and forgiveness of sin for His people long before they ever had a Tabernacle and Temple as well as when they would be in exile and deprived of a Temple.

This fatal omission of fact blinds the minds of so many to the truths contained in the Bible which answers this most difficult problem.

Answer for yourself: Does the above verse really say that blood is the only means of atonement? If you are honest the answer is no.

ONLY BLOOD FOR FORGIVENESS? THE ROLE OF REPENTANCE AND OBEDIENCE AS AN ATONEMENT ACCORDING TO THE BIBLE YESHUA KNEW AND USED

Consider the following “contradictory” verses (we must look at the whole of Bible if we want to understand a doctrine my friends):

Repentance and Obedience also an apparent alternative to blood:

Psalms 51:19

The sacrifices [acceptable to] G-d are a broken spirit; a broken and a contrite heart, O G-d, You will not despise.

I Samuel 15:22

And Samuel said: "Does the L-rd delight as much in your burnt offerings and sacrifices as in obedience to the voice of the L-rd? Behold, obedience is better than any sacrifice, and to comply [is better] than the fat of rams."

Jeremiah 36:3

Perhaps the House of Judah will hear all the evil I [G-d] intend to do to them, so that everyone may turn from his evil way and I may forgive their iniquity and sin.

Jonah 3:10

G-d saw their works that they turned from their evil way....

Isaiah 43 verses 21-26

- Verse 23: Thou hast not brought Me the small cattle of thy burnt offerings; neither hast thou honoured Me with thy sacrifices...
- Verse 24: ...thou hast wearied Me with thine iniquities.
- Verse 25: I, even I, am He that blotteth out thy transgressions for Mine own sake, and will not remember thy sins.

From this (above) we see that G-d, the Merciful One, wipes away sins from us with no apparent activity on our part (THINK).

Isaiah 45:25

In the L-rd shall all the seed of Israel be justified, and shall glory.

We can be justified, despite our sins, by being "in the L-rd." Granted, this verse is open to interpretation, but to say that "in the L-rd" means that we must sacrifice sounds very forced. Not realistic.

Ezekiel 18:3-32

Verse 9: Hath walked in my statutes, and hath kept my judgments, to deal truly; he is just, he shall surely live, saith the L-rd G-d.

When reading this verse, remember Ecc 7:20: For there is not a just man upon the earth, that doeth good, and sinneth not. Obviously, the verse in Ezekiel is referring to a basically good person who really tries to follow G-d's commands and slips up every now and then. The verse says that he will live. He will NOT see eternal damnation or other such nonsense. Read it again just to be sure.

- Verse 21: But if the wicked will turn from all his sins that he hath committed, and keep all my statutes, and do that which is lawful and right, he shall surely live, he shall not die.
- Verse 22: All his transgressions that he hath committed, they shall not be mentioned unto him: in his righteousness that he hath done he shall live.
- Verse 30: ...Repent, and turn yourselves from all your transgressions; so iniquity shall not be your ruin.
- Verse 31: Cast away from you all your transgressions, whereby ye have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit: for why will ye die, O house of Israel?
- Verse 32: For I have no pleasure in the death of him that dieth, saith the L-rd G-d: wherefore turn yourselves, and live ye.

Also read Ezekiel 33 10-20 which again goes through how G-d wants evil people to repent and makes no mention of sacrifices.

Answer for yourself: Reading all this, doesn't it strike you that the idea that G-d died on the cross so that we are forever forgiven for any sin is a rather absurd idea, especially when you do some homework and see that such a scenario is replete in pagan mystery religions since the beginning of time as seen in various forms of sun worship by primitive mankind as they came to believe that the "sun" (later to be the "son" of the "sun" was on the cross (made by intersections from the division of the zodiac into 4 seasons of the year)?

Answer for yourself: Does it make sense when reading the Bible Yeshua used, the Jewish Old Testament, that we can believe a message so contrary to the whole of the Old Testament; that man can be forgiven without any changes in his deeds?
